U.S. Seeks Agreement On Atomic Veto Issue

JUL 14 1946

Baruch Suggests Power Be Restricted By Treaty Rather Than United Nations Charter Amendment

New York, July 13 (AP)—The United States proposed tonight that the veto on atomic questions be eliminated by international treaty rather than by amendment to the United Nations Charter.

In a new memorandum, submitted to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, Bernard M. Baruch, United States representative, proposed that the veto issue be disposed of in the proposed treaty setting up an atomic control system.

This would make it unnecessary to amend the Charter, which some of the Atomic Commission delegates have admitted would be difficult, if not impossible, in view of Russia's avowed opposition.

Voluntary Agreement

There was no indication, however, that Russia would be any more willing to surrender her veto rights by treaty than by amendment.

The Baruch proposal provides that the Security Council would maintain jurisdiction over atomic matters which actually threatened world peace but that the five permanent members of the Council would agree voluntarily not to use their veto rights on atomic questions.

The proposed atomic development authority, the memorandum said, would be given power to handle control violations which were not considered a threat to peace.

Here is the way decisions on mise of the principle of unanimity of action as applied to general problems or to particular situations not forseeable and therefore not susceptible to advance unanimous agreement."

Use Of Court Suggested

The United States also recommended that the atomic authority make use of the International Court of Justice in settling legal disputes arising over interpretation of the treaty and that it make periodic reports to the United Nations General Assembly.

Another matter which the United States suggested should be clarified in the treaty was the application of United Nation Charter guarantees against interference in questions within the domestic jurisdiction of the member nations.

Baruch proposed that the treaty stipulate that no matter connected with atomic energy be regarded as "essentially domestic" but that all phases of atomic development must be considered as "predominantly international."

atomic questions would be handled under the United States plan:

1. In administrative matters, the decision of the authority would be final.

2. On questions not sufficiently grave to endanger peace, decisions of the authority might either be appealed to a special board or enforced by the Security Council as "procedural matters" if any nation refused to obey orders of the authority.

3. Offenses which endanger peace would be subject to action by the Security Council, but the five big powers would agree not to use the veto.

"The control established by the treaty would be wholly ineffectual if, in any such situations, to be defined in the treaty, the enforcement of security provisions could be prevented by the vote of a state which has signed the treaty," the memorandum said.

"Not A Shield"

"Any other conception would render the whole principle of veto ridiculous. It is intended to be an instrument for the protection of nations, not a shield behind which deception and criminal acts can be performed with impunity."

The memorandum then added:

"Voluntary relinquishment of the veto on questions relating to a specific weapon previously outlawed by unanimous agreement because of its uniquely destructive character, in no wise involves any compro-

Patrol From 88th Div Skirmishes On Own Side Of Italy Line

Gorizia, Italy, July 13 (AP)—The United States 88th Division announced today that an American Army patrol killed two Yugoslav soldiers in skirmishes yesterday after a Yugoslav patrol opened fire when it was caught west of the Morgan Line.

The line divides the British-American zone from the Yugoslav zone of occupation in disputed Venezia Giulia. It extends north from Punta Grossa, a prominent headland 4 miles south of Trieste, to Gorizia, Caporetto and Ratece on the Italian-Yugoslav-Austrian border.

U.S. Troops Alerted

The 88th Division's headquarters said the skirmishes developed after the Yugoslavs crossed the line near Aurisinia, in the Isonzo River Valley southeast of Caporetto, which is itself 22 miles north of Gorizia.

American troops in the zone were ordered on the alert.

The official army statement said:

"At approximately 1600 hours G.M.T. (Greenwich mean time) on July 12, a Yugoslav patrol which crossed the Morgan Line near Aurisinia, southeast of Caporetto, was sighted by a United States outpost.

300 Yards Across Line

"An American-officered patrol, which immediately investigated the violation of the line, was fired on by the Yugoslavs at a point approximately 300 yards from the Morgan Line in Zone A.

"Acting on instructions to fire only when fired upon, the United States patrol returned the fire. After a brief exchange of firing, one of the Yugoslav soldiers was found dead.

"The United States patrol continued to advance until another Yugoslav patrol was encountered, which apparently was intent on ambushing the United States patrol.

No U.S. Casualties

"Another brief fire fight followed, after which the Yugoslavs retired.

"The American patrol returned to Aurisina, where it was ascertained that there were no United States casualties.

"All actions definitely took place in Zone A, and American troops in Caporetto and Aurisina have been alerted while further investigation is being made.

"Later reports confirmed by 88th Division headquarters state that a second Yugoslav soldier was killed in the latter part of the action."

Meanwhile, Trieste itself remained quiet as the general strike which for twelve days paralyzed most of the industry in occupation Zone A, the British-American zone, ended at midnight. However, notice was served by labor spokesmen that the threatened arrest of the eleven-man strike committee might precipitate a new walkout.

Account Of Shooting

The 88th Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore, issued this account of the exchange of shots near Aurisinia:

"At approximately 1,600 hours (GMT), on July 12, a Yugoslav patrol which crossed the Morgan Line near Aurisinia, southeast of Caporetto, was sighted by a United States outpost.

"An American-officered patrol which immediately investigated the violation of the line was fired on by the Yugoslavs at a point approximately 300 yards from the Morgan Line in Zone A.

"Acting on instructions to fire only when fired upon, the United States patrol returned the fire. After a brief exchange of firing, one of the Yugo soldiers was found dead.

No American Casualties

"The United States patrol continued to advance until another Yugoslav patrol was encountered, which apparently was intent on ambushing the United States patrol.

"Another brief fire-fight followed, after which the Yugoslavs retired.

"The American patrol returned to Aurisinia, where it was ascertained that there were no United States casualties.

"All actions denitely took place in Zone A, and American troops in Caporetta and Aurisinia have been alerted, while further investigation is being made.

Reports On Tito Denied

"Later reports, confirmed by 88th Division headquarters, state that a second Yugoslav soldier was killed in the latter part of the action."

The Morgan line extends north from Punta Grossa, a headland 4 miles south of Trieste, to Gorizia, Caporetto and Ratece on the Italian-Yugoslav-Austrian border.

[In Belgrade, Yugoslavia, meanwhile, the Yugoslav Ministry of Information officially denied Rome reports by the Minos News Agency that Marshal Tito had been wounded or that an attempt had been made on his life. The ministry said the Yugoslav Premier, "in excellent health," was making a speaking tour of Montenegran villages.]

Notice Of Strike End

Notice of the end of the Trieste strike appeared in the Allied military government newspaper Giornale Alleato over the signatures of seven Left-wing and predominantly pro-Yugoslav labor leaders, who said the decision was made because of the Allied action in "dissolving" the strike committee. The strike had been called in protest to what the labor groups referred to as "Fascist aggression."

A spokesman for the labor groups said, however, that should the occupation authorities serve warrants issued for the strike committee members, "renewed protests with all the means at our disposal, including a new strike, would result."

However, Col. Alfred C. Bowman, of Los Angeles, senior military government civil affairs officer, said the warrants for the arrest of the strike committee members, charging the eleven men with "conducting an illegal strike," would not be withdrawn. None of the men has been arrested as yet.

Trieste, July 13 (AP)—Two Yugoslav soldiers were killed by an American patrol last night in brief skirmishes near the Morgan Line, and today American troops in the area of the zonal boundary were placed on the alert.

The United States 88th Division announced that two separate Yugoslav patrols opened fire on the American patrol investigating a Yugoslav violation of the Morgan Line. The line divides Yugoslav and American-British zones of occupation in disputed Venezia Giulia.

Trieste Remains Quiet

The announcement from division headquarters in Gorizia said the skirmishes flared when Yugoslavs crossed the Morgan Line near Aurisinia in the Isonzo River valley, about 5 miles northwest of here.

One Yugoslav soldier was killed in the first exchange of fire. The other was slain later when another Yugoslav patrol "which apparently was intent on ambushing the United States patrol," was encountered, the announcement said.

"Acting on instructions to fire only when fired upon, the United States patrol returned the fire. After a brief exchange of firing, one of the Yugo soldiers was found dead.

No American Casualties

Slav Groups Cancel Strike At Trieste

Trieste, July 13 (AP)—A general strike which affected 200,000 workers and had paralyzed this disputed city for two weeks was declared officially at an end today.

A notice in today's Giornale Alleato, official organ of the Allied military government, appearing over the signatures of seven left-wing predominantly pro-Yugoslav labor groups, announced that the strike had ended as of midnight.

The decision was taken, the announcement said, because of action by Allied authorities "dissolving" the strike committee.

Port Remains Quiet

The strike was called by pro-Yugoslav labor leaders on July 2 to protest what they described as "Fascist aggression."

Trieste remained quiet today with only one death reported over the past 48 hours—the fatal beating of a worker accused of strike-breaking. Most of the Italian-owned shops closed by the strikers, were open again.

[An Ansa dispatch from Trieste today said that a bomb exploded in a restaurant there last night, wounding six persons.

[United Nations news service dispatches from the city quoted the labor organizations as announcing, in terminating the strike, that "the essential objectives for which we entered into battle" have been achieved.]

The groups subsequently presented demands calling for the ouster from Trieste of so-called "Italian action groups," for the arrest of Italians responsible for the disorders, including the head of the Trieste section of the National Liberation Committee, and for the purging of Venzia Giulia civil police of alleged Fascist elements and its

Tito Attacked? Slavs Deny It

Belgrade, July 13 (AP)—The Yugoslav Ministry of Information officially denied today reports that Marshal Tito had been wounded or an attempt made on his life.

The report of an attack upon Tito had been carried yesterday by Minos, an Italian news agency.

Belgrade, July 13 (AP)—A British-operated C-47 plane which arrived here from Bari, Italy, with political and other epithets written in oil and dust on its fuselage has been impounded by the Yugoslavs. Its four crew members were held at the airport pending an investigation.

The British Embassy announced that it had formally apologized to the Yugoslav Foreign and War offices and was conducting a thorough search for perpetrators of the incident at the Bari airfield.

The plane, part of a daily flight between Bari and Belgrade, arrived in Yugoslavia with "Down with Tito," "Long Live Mihailovic," "Long Live the Monarchy" and messages of an obscene nature scrawled on it in cyrillic letters.

BYRNES TO REPORT ON PARLEY MONDAY

JUL 14 1946

Secretary Begins Plane Flight Home from Paris.

PARIS, July 13—(AP) Secretary of State James F. Byrnes said today he would report to his nation Monday night on results of the month long foreign ministers conference in which he said the United States accepted some compromises on European treaty proposals to avoid a "clash that nobody wants."

NIGHT

Byrnes, last of the three visiting foreign ministers to leave France, flew from Orly field on the Presidential plane, "The Sacred Cow," at 1:55 p. m. (7:55 a. m., E.S.T.) bound for Iceland and Washington. Those accompanying him included U. S. Senators Tom Connally, (D-Tex.) and Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) and their wives.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin departed two hours earlier. The Soviet foreign minister, V. M. Molotov, took off for Moscow early in the morning.

Will Press For New Parley

Byrnes told a news conference before leaving that he would press for a new meeting of the foreign ministers of the four powers after the forthcoming European peace conference here July 29, and before the meeting of the United Nations in New York, tentatively set for Sept. 23.

The fall conference will return once more to the knotty German problem over which the four foreign ministers spent the last four days in fruitless wrangling.

Touching on one of the major decisions of the conference, Byrnes said that the internationalization of Trieste could well serve as an experiment in international cooperation.

"The nations of the world have entered into what is a great experiment that should determine whether it is possible for the United Nations, in a situation of this kind, to reach a solution," he said.

He did not hesitate to accept compromises on the European treaties, Byrnes told his news conference, because "if we had not gotten a treaty we would have had a clash that nobody wants.

Triest was one of a number of compromises reached on vital issues during the 28-day session. The meeting paved the way for the 21-nation peace conference which will discuss treaties with Italy, Finland, Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria. At the start of the final meeting yesterday the ministers received from their deputies tentative drafts for these treaties, agreed to several minor changes in the drafts and returned them to the deputies, who were told to complete the documents by Wednesday night.

No Agreement on Germany

The long debate on Germany, however, failed to produce any appreciable agreement, and it seemed that the Russians had reached a definite parting of the ways with the western powers on the administration of the beaten Reich.

French Foreign Minister and President, Georges Bidault, in a remarkable concession, agreed to go along with Byrnes' proposal for a central economic administration for Germany, so long as the Saar basin was not included. Molotov rejected the proposal and asked time to study the French condition which was supported both by the United States and Britain.

Byrnes reiterated his offer to merge the American occupation zone economically with any other and the possibility arose that Britain might be willing to accept his offer as a step toward cutting heavy expenditures for breaking down zonal exchange barriers.

Byrnes undoubtedly will touch upon these matters when he addresses the American nation by radio Monday night. His advisers, Vandenberg and Connally, will report to the U. S. Senate some time next week.

U.S. To Ask Call To 'Big 4' After Peace Parley

JUL 14 1946

Paris, July 13 (AP)—Secretary of State Byrnes declared today he wanted another Foreign Ministers Council to take place immediately after the impending peace conference adopts the peace treaties.

His intention to urge another Foreign Ministers session prior to the United Nations meeting in New York, tentatively set for September 23, was disclosed at a press conference before he emplaned for Washington.

MAY

Others Also On Way Home

Soviet Foreign Minister V. Molotov left with the Soviet delegation for Moscow at 5 A.M. and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin caught a plane for London in midmorning.

[In Washington, the State Department said today that President Truman's special plane, bearing Secretary of State Byrnes and Senators Connally and Vandenberg from Paris, would arrive here about noon (E.S.T.) tomorrow.]

Reviewing the Council's work, Byrnes remarked that internationalization of Trieste would be a good experiment in international co-operation.

Plans Report To Public

Byrnes said he had not hesitated to accept compromises on peace treaties because "if we had not gotten a treaty we would have had a clash that nobody wants. Therefore we did not hesitate wherever there was any possibility to reach a reconciliation."

Concerning Trieste he stated "the nations of the world have entered into what is a great experiment that should determine whether it is possible for the United Nations in a situation of this kind to reach a solution."

Byrnes said he would broadcast in the United States Monday night. Senators Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Connally (D., Texas) will report to the Senate next week.

To Confer With Truman

Byrnes said no decision had been taken on the composition of the American peace conference delegation. He said he would discuss it with the two senators while en route to Washington, and later would take up the matter with President Truman.

Byrnes's plane roared down the Orly Field runway at 1.55 P.M. (8.55 A.M., E.D.T.) bound for Iceland and then Washington.

There were some indications that the adjournment of the conference last night marked a parting of the ways between Russia and the western allies on the administration and future of Germany.

Molotov Rejects U.S. Plan

Molotov refused to support a United States plan for a central economic administration for Germany. This proposal was backed by French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, in a remarkable concession, when he agreed to go along with Byrnes if the coal-rich Saar was not included.

Molotov asked further time to study the condition—indorsed by Britain and the United States—that the Saar be placed under French supervision.

Byrnes then reiterated his offer to merge the United States occupation zone of Germany economically with any other zone.

U.S. Offer Tempts Britain

The possibility that the British might be willing to fuse their zone with that of the United States was seen in a statement by British delegation sources that their Government was giving sympathetic study to the American offer.

These sources said that Britain was spending $320,000,000 a year in her zone and the United States $200,000,000, and claimed these expenditures were necessitated because goods could not be exchanged among the four zones under the present setup.

The Ministers also failed last night to reach any compromise on the Austrian question. Here, again, Molotov blocked an American proposal—to establish a special commission to draft a peace treaty with Austria.

At Odds Over Deportations

United States sources said Molotov's opposition to any immediate decision on Austria was linked with his assertion that several hundred thousand displaced persons with pro-Hitler leanings are still in Austria. The Russian Minister has declared that these persons must be deported. The other Ministers have opposed wholesale deportation.

Drafts of treaties with Italy, Finland, Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria will be submitted, as suggestions, to the 21-power peace conference.

Tuberculosis Rate Rising, UN Aide Says

Oxford, England, July 13 (AP)—Dr. Ernest L. Stebbins, American public health authority, told International Red Cross officials today that tuberculosis and venereal diseases have reached epidemic proportions in Europe.

He said that in a two-month tour of eleven European nations he had found the worst conditions in Poland, with the tuberculosis mortality rate four to five times greater than it was before the war. He described the Polish health situation as "desperate."

Dr. Stebbins, former New York city health commissioner and now director of the School of Hygiene and Public Health at Johns Hopkins University, addressing the League of Red Cross Societies, said:

"We do not usually think of tuberculosis and venereal diseases as epidemic diseases, but actually now in Europe they have reached epidemic proportions."

"In the case of tuberculosis only increased hospital care can level off the mortality rate, and at present there are not nearly enough beds, equipment, doctors or nurses."

He visited France, Switzerland, Germany, Poland, Austria, Italy, Greece, Norway, Sweden, Finland and Belgium.

ARMY IN REICH FIGHTS DISEASE

JUL 14 1946

Corporal Punishment Urged to Curb Troops.

JUL 14 1946

Frankfurt, July 13 (A. P.).—United States Army officers expressed the belief today that corporal punishment was the only way to stem a sharp rise in venereal disease among American troops in Europe, which the office of the chief surgeon here said was "probably the highest in American military history." The officers revealed unofficially that recommendations for the severe punishment of soldiers who contract such diseases had been sent to Washington, "but," they said, "it probably would take an act of Congress to impose corporal punishment, which now appears to be the only way to stop the increase."

The chief surgeon's report said that the trend was upward, despite a disciplinary crackdown ordered three months ago by Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, theater commander. On June 16, the average rate of infection was 21.6 per cent over a year's time.

This was an increase of 5.3 over the figure announced on April 25, when McNarney ordered a strict return to garrison life. "But in some areas the figure is more than twice the average," a medical officer said. He added that more than half the troops in some areas were infected in the course of a year.

The Army attributes the rising rate to the decreasing number of troops in relation to the number of promiscuous women; the youth and relative irresponsibility of troop replacements; the high disease rate among German civilians because of State-sponsored promiscuity under the Nazi regime, food shortages causing girls to trade themselves for chocolate bars, and the faulty but widespread faith of soldiers in penicillin as a cure for venereal diseases.

FLIERS' BODIES RECOVERED

Last Taken From German Peak Where Six Died Dec. 14

FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN, Germany, July 13 (AP)—Making a perilous 9,000-foot ascent and descent through the snow-capped peaks of southern Bavaria, a group of American soldiers and German mountaineers has recovered the bodies of six American airmen who were killed when a B-17 bomber crashed into Hochvogel Mountain Dec. 14, 1945.

During the winter Germany's best climbers could not reach the wreckage. After several attempts a team of four United States Air Corps officers and nineteen Germans reached the plane and carried out one body. But it was not until July 2 that the last body could be carried from the peak.

U. S. COLONEL ARRESTED

Accused of Trying to Smuggle Goods From Switzerland

FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN, Germany, July 13 (AP)—The United States Army announced today that Col. Lester A. Webb of Macon, Ga., was being held in Frankfort in connection with an alleged attempt to smuggle $12,386 worth of gold bullion, Swiss coins and watches out of Switzerland.

The Army's public relations division said charges had been preferred against Colonel Webb and that he would be tried soon. Colonel Webb had been in Switzerland arranging for United States military personnel to attend Swiss colleges.

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP) American soldiers' wives and children in Germany will be put through an orientation lecture program "to combat current German propaganda and false thinking," the U. S. Army announced.

They will be warned against the Germans' "fawning, 'friendly' attitudes" and he urged not to develop false sympathy because the Germans look clean and healthy, the Army said. American youngsters in Germany will be told "they are ambassadors of democracy . . . and by their example can do much to refute Nazi youth doctrines."

SOVIETS SEIZE ASSETS OF NAZIS IN AUSTRIA

JUL 13 1946

VIENNA, July 13 — (AP) The Austrian government today began carrying out the order of the Russian commander, Col. Gen. L. V. Kurrasov, for the seizure of all German assets in the Russian zone of Austria.

A communique instructed Austrian officials and businessmen to lend every assistance in reporting German assets.

Kurrasov's order previously had been protested by American Chancellor Leopold Figl. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commanding United States forces in Austria, advised the Austrian government that the United States relinquished all claim to German assets in the American zone.

AUSTRIAN PASS SYSTEM REVOKED BY RUSSIANS

JUL 13 1946

VIENNA, July 13—(AP) An Allied council order to the Austrian government ending the pass system and allowing Austrians unrestricted travel from zone to zone lasted just 24 hours. It was rescinded today on Soviet objection.

The Russians said there were too many Nazis in western Austria and they would not have them entering the eastern Russian occupied zone.

U.S. Helps Austria Retain Ration

JUL 13 1946

Vienna, July 13 (AP) — Food spared from United States military stocks made it possible to continue into July the daily bread ration in Austria at 300 grams a person—four to five slices of bread a day—but the overall food situation was declared critical in Gen. Mark W. Clark's monthly report today.

The daily food ration continued at about 1,250 calories for the average Austrian. This is 800 calories short of the amount a four-power commission reported as the "level necessary to prevent disease and unrest."

Vienna, with a skimpy black market and no food production of its own but backyard gardens, felt the shortage worst.

Legal Increase Little

The UNRRA here estimated that the average Viennese was able to increase his legal ration by not more than 50 calories per day—the equivalent of half a teaspoon of honey. In the American zone of upper Austria, locally produced garden crops increase the ration more.

Clark's report to Washington covered a broad field of economic, housing, transportation and finance improvements in the American zone.

These included rehousing a month and a half ahead of schedule, from 40 to 65 per cent. rehabilitation of rail transport facilities and a new drop of 25 per cent. in the black-market quotation on the American dollar against the stiffened Austrian schilling.

MIKOLAJCZYK SEEKS TO VOID REFERENDUM

JUL 13 1946

Polish Vice Premier Says Thousands Of Ballots Were Destroyed

Warsaw, July 13 (AP)—Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, head of the opposition Polish Peasant party, declared today that he would demand that the provisional Government nullify the referendum of June 30 on the grounds of irregularity in voting and in counting of ballots.

At a news conference for foreign correspondents he exhibited 1,000 partially burned and destroyed ballots he said were salvaged from sewers and refuse heaps.

He charged that many partially destroyed ballots with negative votes were dumped into the sewers and that around Warsaw alone "thousands" of ballots were burned or partially destroyed.

Fraud Charges Denied

Yesterday, Referendum Commissioner Barczikowski said in a statement that previous charges made by Mikolajczyk of irregularities and fraud in the voting and counting were not confirmed by an investigation. The commission admitted that in some instances ballots were removed to other places for counting and that some provincial committees had barred Polish Peasant party members from election commissions.

[A Moscow radio broadcast said tonight that the results of the referendum proved beyond question that the Polish people are behind their Government and that "no fresh maneuvers by the Mikolajczyk group and its patrons abroad can minimize the significance of the fact that Polish reaction has lost."]

Mikolajczyk charged that before, during and after the referendum Government security police arrested more than 5,000 Peasant party members.

Party Not Represented

Mikolajczyk said that his party was not represented on the Government presidium which ordered publication yesterday of official results of the referendum, in which the Government won indorsement of its policies.

He declared that lack of such representation was in violation of the decision of the United States, Britain and Russia at the Moscow conference which guaranteed his party equal representation in the provisional government, established a little more than a year ago.

Mikolajczyk, who was Premier of the Polish Government in London, charged that censorship of Peasant party newspapers was so severe that he had no opportunity to reveal the truth except through statements to foreign news men.

City Reports Noted

Mikolajczyk declared that he had received reports from local committees in twelve cities, including Warsaw, that showed 83.54 per cent of the vote had been negative on the first question in the refrendum, which asked whether the voters approved a one-house legislature.

The Peasant party had opposed the single-house legislature but indorsed the other two questions, dealing with approval of Polish western boundaries and nationalization and agricultural policies of the provisional Government.

"We demand that the files of the referendum be secured, the culprits brought to justice and the referendum be declared invalid as a whole," he said.

"The People Know"

"If this is not accepted, we demand that the local results be published one by one. The people know how they voted. The results published are not the way they did vote."

Mikolajczyk said that many letters now coming into his party headquarters were asking whether there can be a lawful general election, which the provisional Government has promised to hold in the fall. No specific date has been set.

He said that the letters demand that "every local voting commission have a representative of each political party present. . . . They demand freedom of action in propaganda, in meetings and from censorship. . . . If these are not obtained the people say they will not vote in the general elections."

Changes In Voting Urged By Pole

JUL 13 1946

Warsaw, July 12 [AP—Delayed] Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, opposition member of the Polish Government, said today he would fight any attempts of the Government bloc to draft general election laws similar to those covering the recent referendum.

Representatives of each of six political parties were not allowed to be present during the referendum voting, he said.

The Vice Premier said he would continue to work for what he called proportionate representation of his party in the election machinery. He added that if he failed, he would favor Big Three supervision of the November elections.

Fraud "Not Confirmed"

Referendum Commissioner Barczikowski declared in a statement that Mikolajczyk's charges of irregularities and fraud in the voting and counting "were not confirmed" after an investigation.

He asserted that charges made by the Polish Peasant party leader, particularly in the Lodz, Poznan and Warsaw districts, "do not provide sufficient ground for suspension of proclamation of the referendum returns and therefore official results, accordingly, were published today as provided by law."

Attempts Peported

Barczikowski's statement did say that there were "a number of attempts on ballot boxes."

Where it appeared polling places were not sufficiently secure from attacks by lawless bands, commissions were ordered to take the ballots to well-guarded places for counting, he said.

Mikolajczyk has charged that this movement of the ballots was a violation of the law.

The delegation had called to protest against what it said was persecution of "democratic" citizens and to urge a conference of all party leaders to discuss a method of restoring order in Greece.

General Gonatas told the delegates that anarchist and Communist bands were terrorizing Greece, and that he believed these bands received their orders from EAM.

Russian Output Gains Told

JUL 13 1946

London, July 13 (AP)—Tass reported preliminary figures on the first six months of the new Soviet five-year plan today, showing Russia is making a rapid recovery from four years of war.

Heavy industry and railway transport are making the quickest comeback, the dispatch declared. It added that:

In the South, pig-iron production increased 65 per cent and the steel output more than doubled.

Rolled-metal production increased 82 per cent., coke 90 per cent. and iron-ore extraction 48 per cent.

Nonferrous Production

In the nonferrous field, the production of aluminum, zinc, tin and hard alloys was well ahead of the Government-fixed goals for the period and the oil industry was ahead of schedule.

The Moscow coal basin has been fully restored and returned to prewar production, and in the Western coal area output is ahead of schedule.

Output of food, clothing, footwear and textiles is also on the increase.

Palestine Parley Seeks Early Decision

JUL 13 1946

London, July 13 (AP)—British and American negotiators met for the second time at 10 Downing Street today, in hopes of speeding a final decision on admission of an additional 100,000 Jews to Palestine.

The discussion—described by British and American sources as being at "an official level"—was understood to be on military and political consequences in the Holy Land if recommendations of the British-American Committee on Palestine are carried out.

The British, who already have moved toward one of the avowed preliminaries—the disarming of illegal Jewish underground forces—were reported to be raising the question of informal assurances of American military assistance if fresh immigration should cause large-scale disturbances.

No Military-Aid Promise

America consistently has offered technical and financial support in implementing the recommendation on 100,000 Jews, but has withheld commitment on military aid.

The British are understood to intend, that if both Jews and Arabs were disarmed, the likelihood of military operations being needed would be remote, but to insist on some American assurances in event of necessity.

Meanwhile, support of British countermeasures in Palestine came from a British Rabbi, Dr. Israel I. Mattuck. Speaking at the Liberal Jewish Synagogue, he commended action against the "terrorism of Palestine," and declared:

"The only question raised by the action is whether it was right to arrest members of the Jewish Agency. Jews must suspend their judgment until the facts are known."

Suggests Haven Elsewhere

Rabbi Mattuck continued: "Let the Jews in other lands, who ply Britain with reproaches urge their own governments to take an effective share in establishing peace in Palestine, and also to open the doors of their own countries to the tragic victims of Palestine."

The rabbi said terrorism in Palestine "has been generally condemned by Jews, including Zionist leaders," and added, "it follows that they must approve and support the action to suppress it."

Criticism of the Government came simultaneously from the Independent Labor party, a small, extreme left-wing group without connection with the Government Labor party. In a statement, the ILP said it viewed the Palestine situation and recent British measures "with grave apprehension" and demanded an immediate truce in which Jews and Arabs would be consulted "in an atmosphere of complete democratic freedom."

Cairo Police Arrest 80 In Red Probe

Cairo, July 13 (AP)—Police announced the arrest of about persons, including the son of a Jewish banker of Italian origin, in an investigation of the Egyptian Communist movement.

Hamby Bey, head of the police political section, identified the banker's son as Henry Curiel, 35. Hamby said that those held included many persons of foreign nationalities. The police official added that several young Egyptian women were involved in the movement, but were not arrested.

Akbar el Yom, influential independent weekly, said documents seized by police in recent raids indicated the Communist program included such goals as disrupting British-Egyptian treaty revision negotiations and seizing land holdings of more than 50 acres.

Arabs Demand Arrests.

Jerusalem, July 13 (A. P.).—The arrest and trial of Jewish agency leaders and other Jews responsible for the state of affairs in Palestine was demanded yesterday by the Arab Higher Executive Committee.

The committee, in a letter to Lieut.-Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine High Commissioner, said Jewish leaders were responsible for "the wave of murder, destruction, intimidation and incitement which has swept the country and resulted in a serious loss of Arab and non-Jewish life and property."

Lashes Zionists.

Melbourne, July 13 (A. P.).—Sir Isaac Isaacs, former Australian Governor-General, charged today that political Zionism "by its unfair insistence of a Jewish state to dominate the Arabs prevents peaceable entry into Palestine of unfortunate European Jews."

Smoke Bombs Discovered

JERUSALEM, July 13 (AP)—The police announced today that they had found two boxes containing seventy-one large smoke bombs and five small hand-made bombs in a forest on the grounds of the Hebrew University on Mt. Scopus.

Meanwhile, Haifa police said that a man who identified himself as Benjamin Papanek reported to the Mt. Carmel police station this morning. Papanek and Otto Freund, Czech Jews, were kidnapped at Haifa July 4 by Jewish underground representatives who accused them of tipping off the British on the arms cache found at Meshek Yagur.

The man who reported to the Mount Carmel authorities was wearing only a pair of shorts and showed signs of ill treatment, police said.

"Voice of Israel," illegal Jewish radio station, previously had announced that Papanek and Freund had been tried by the Jewish people's court, that Freund was acquitted and released and that Papanek was ordered expelled from Palestine. Freund returned to Haifa Thursday.

Japan's Political Gains Lauded

Tokyo, Sunday, July 14 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today applauded Japan's political development under the occupation but declared that the nation was not yet ready for an uncensored press.

In the latest of his periodic reports on the occupation, the Supreme Commander cited the formation of the Government of Shigeru Yoshida on May 20 as another "step forward" in development of "a normal and healthy parliamentary situation," as it was done openly and by democratic methods.

"Negotiations were no longer restricted to secret conversations of the 'elder statesmen' and 'circles close to the throne,' but were carried on among various political parties and received the benefit of full publicity in the Japanese press," the report said.

Resignation of the preceding cabinet was due directly to "pressure of public opinion," and this also was "an encouraging advance of Japan's political development," MacArthur reported.

Attempts To Justify War

As for censorship, he said its primary function was to assure that "former militaristic and ultra-nationalistic influences are not imposed once again on the press and other media of information."

MacArthur reported that "while substantial sections of the Japanese press have subscribed to the supreme command's censorship codes, there are numerous indications that the time has not yet arrived for relaxation of censorship regulations. Attempts at justification of the Japanese war position continue. The press is now beginning to hint that heavy reparations are unfair."

Survey ... country's political future, M... rthur said that if the Yoshida ...abinet could solve key national problems to the nation's satisfaction "it may expect to remain in office for some time. If it fails to do so, it may have to give way to a new combination."

For the present, the situation appears stable with no important movement to unseat the ruling regime, he said, and "from the point of view of developing parliamentary institutions and practices the Yoshida cabinet marks a step forward in what must be a continuing process. . . .

"The Cabinet represents the more conservative forces still active in Japanese political life (the extreme reactionaries, militarists and their sympathizers having been eliminated for all practical purposes). It thus reflects the present balance of political forces in the lower house as established by popular vote in the April election.

"Over against the conservative government is a vigorous and progreesive opposition which will act as a watchdog for the liberal groups of the populace and as a gadfly to the parties in power.

"It will strive to take advantage of the Government's mistakes to build up its own popular strength with the aim of eventually succeeding to office."

Few Crimes Against Force

Other items in MacArthur's summary included:

Relations between Allied personnel and civilians continued on the whole satisfactory, with a low rate of crimes against the occupation forces.

A coal shortage continued to impede all heavy industries.

Twenty thousand new houses were being built monthly, with 250,000 to be completed by the end of the year.

Government surveys indicated that more than half the jobless men were not seeking work because they felt they could not stand regular employment on a low-calorie diet.

GI 'Bullying' Of Japanese Is Banned

JUL 13 1946

Yokohama, July 13 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, 8th Army commander, cracked down today on Yank soldiers who mistreat Japanese civilians and threatened severe measures to halt serious crimes.

In a strong letter circulated last month and made public only today, Eichelberger said that he meant to stop serious breaches of discipline. He pointed out that there were isolated "but very serious" crimes to be reckoned with, and added that "bullying" actions of soldiers toward the Japanese would not be tolerated.

One American soldier has already been condemned to the gallows for crimes against the Japanese and several others face trial. Some others have received lighter sentences for minor crimes.

The general said that "our courts are empowered to mete out stiff penalties, "if the order circulated in his June 22 letter fails to curb crime in the Japanese islands.

Major Disturbance

Tokyo, July 13 (AP)—The crackdown by General Eichelberger on the "drunken bullies" of the American occupation forces in Japan highlights a subject which has been a major disturbance to occupation officials—the behavior of American soldiers in Japan.

Indicative of the proportions of the disturbance is seen in the fact that the 8th Army commander saw fit to release his letter for publication after having made the subject a part of his Fourth of July address to assembled troops.

It was stressed that the conduct of the majority of the occupation personnel has been above reproach, but the objectionable minority have assaulted women, maliciously beaten Japanese men, stolen, engaged in black-market operations and by their "deliberate bullying attitude" have made the Japanese suspicious of the democracy which our troops are supposed to represent.

General's Comment

In the words of Eichelberger:

"One drunken, slovenly bully can neutralize the good impression made by a dozen fine soldiers."

Not only have the Japanese been distressed with the performance of the objectionable minority. American wives who have arrived recently have been sharply critical of troops who subject them to whistles and howls when they appear on the streets. The sight of American troops openly fraternizing with Japanese women likewise has been censured by the American women.

In this connection, it should be noted that not only enlisted men are seen in the company of Japanese women. Officers of high rank may be seen driving kimonoed Japanese women in their cars.

Col. C. V. Cadwell, of Arcadia, Cal., 8th Army provost marshal, said he believed that Eichelberger's letter condemning the minority troop action was prompted by the general's desire to get the "right picture" to the new soldiers who largely make up the occupation forces.

The provost marshal said there had been no marked increase in any particular type of offenses, although Eichelberger said he had "received an increasing number of reports of crimes committed by Americans."

Cadwell admitted that there "has been a little more carelessness on the part of the troops in the observing of the rights of others."

Jap Autos Overturned

The "carelessness" has consisted of overturning Japanese automobiles, foul and profane blasts at Japanese who failed to scurry swiftly enough from the paths of vehicles, and the shouldering of small Japanese from the sidewalks.

Also disturbing has been the fact that some of the Americans on their "arrogant bullying" forays have carried lethal weapons. An officer recently displayed a collection of weapons taken from soldiers by military police. The exhibit includes hunting and butcher knives as well as clasp knives, brass knuckles, blackjacks and guns.

Can't Check Thefts

There is no way to check the theft of Government property by soldiers, but some idea of the merchandising activities of the occupation forces can be gained from the fact that 35,000,000 more dollars have been sent to the United States by troops in Japan than has been paid to the soldiers in wages. The sale of American rations, clothing and automobile supplies on the black market is not uncommon.

Some officers have attempted to excuse the troops' misconduct on the grounds of youth. According to headquarters records, the average age is about 23 years.

Eichelberger, however, made it plain he would not tolerate attempts by individual soldiers, young or otherwise, to "toughen up" the occupation. He declared that General MacArthur sets the policy and it will not be one of demonstrating superiority by "injuring small and undernourished Japanese."

67,500 Tons of Food Released to Japs

Tokyo, July 13 (A. P.).—Allied Headquarters announced today the release of more than 67,500 tons of imported food to the Japanese Government to supplement rations for the second ten-day period of July. Wheat made up most of the release, which is the largest so far made.

Headquarters also directed the Japanese to pick up 5,000 tons of excess United States Army food now in danger of spoilage at Iwo Jima.

Jap, Noted For Beating Prisoners, To Be Tried

Tokyo, Saturday, July 13 (AP)—Toshio "Hop-Along-Cassidy" Goto accused of beating war prisoners until they were unconscious and then reviving them so they could again feel his blows, is the latest Japanese guard to be assigned for trial before the 8th Army military tribunal in Yokohama.

Goto allgedly beat one unidentified Dutch prisoner with a heavy chair until he crushed the man's chest. The formal charge is mistreatment of prisoners.

China's Fleet Review Held in Tokyo Bay

Chinese Fleet in Tokyo Bay

TOKYO, July 13 (AP)—Most of the Chinese fleet—eight warships—was reviewed today by two Chinese generals in Tokyo Bay, where the Japanese once swore no Chinese craft would anchor. Gens. Chin Teh-chun and Ho Ying-chin proudly looked over the eight small warships—two destroyers, two submarine chasers and four minesweepers—after their arrival from America. The ships were the gift of the United States. The little fleet will sail for China soon.

Big Communist Push Is Said to Imperil Paoting—Parley in Manchuria Likely Today

By The Associated Press.

NANKING, July 13—Twenty thousand Chinese Communist troops have attacked the Government's outer defense works near Tientsin and are fighting ten miles from that United States Marine base in North China, Peiping dispatches said today.

The first assault was made by 10,000 troops operating near Peitsang, eight miles east of Tientsin, the independent newspaper Hsin Min Pao declared. Simultaneously a second force of 10,000 Communists began pushing toward Tientsin from the southeast, the newspaper added, and reached Tungtitow and Setitow, ten miles from the city.

Chinese Red Attacks Reported In Hopeh

Nanking, July 13 (AP)—The Chinese press reported today that Communist troops which have been massing in Hopeh province had launched their initial attack against Government outer defenses of Tientsin and had struck at a Government garrison on the Peiping-Mukden railroad.

Meanwhile, as United States Envoy General Marshall renewed active efforts to negotiate peace between the elements, military sources at Mukden reported that the rival Communist and Government Manchurian field commanders had agreed to hold their much-delayed peace meeting tomorrow at Changchun.

The North China independent newspaper Hsin Min Pao reported that 10,000 Communist troops had pushed northward in Hopeh province to the villages of Tungtitou and Setitou, ten miles southeast of Tientsin.

Garrison Is Attacked

Another Red force of 10,000, which has been concentrating in the Hsinho district, 10 miles east of Peitsang, which is 8 miles from Tientsin, opened an attack on a Government garrison there, the paper said.

Clashes also were reported at Hsukechung, 50 miles north of Tientsin, and at Nanhsuanchiang, just north of the coal mining center of Tangshan, 60 miles northeast of Tientsin.

The Catholic newspaper Yu Shih Pao (Social Welfare) said 1,000 Reds had struck at Lutai, 30 miles northeast of Tientsin on the Peiping-Mukden railway, and that the operation of the special week-end train on the Tientsin-Peiping line was suspended to safeguard passengers.

Paoting Threatened

Nationalist military sources said large-scale movements of Communist troops were threatening Paoting, capital of Hopei province, and that ten regiments of Reds recently transported from Manchuria had been concentrated in the Tangshien-Chengtin area, 70 miles south of Paoting. Another 1,000 Communists attacked a Government garrison at Chima, 20 miles north of Tsingtao, for 36 hours before finally being beaten off, the Government sources said.

The much-discussed meeting of the Manchurian military commanders—Communist General Lin Piao and Nationalist General Tu Li-ming—thus would be held in an atmosphere of increased tenseness if they actually get together tomorrow as reported in Mukden.

Tu Flying From Mukden

The military sources which reported the meeting said Tu would fly to Changchun tomorrow from Mukden to arrive in time for a conference with Lin, who would arrive from Harbin.

Total cease-fire orders in Manchuria would be the principal topic for discussion at the meeting, for which Peiping truce headquarters has strived for weeks. However, it was predicted that Tu would make any such order contingent on the withdrawal of the Communists from Harbin, which might not be acceptable to the Communist leader.

Press dispatches in Mukden reported that 50,000 Communist troops were massed near Tangshan threatening to cut rail communications between China proper and Manchuria and that another 20,000 were gathered at Lanhsien in the same area.

The Communist spokesman, Wang Ping-nan, denied that Red war planes had attacked areas along the Yellow River, as was charged in recent pro-Government communiqués.

"The Communist Army has no air force and never has had one," he said. "We have neither pilots nor planes."

Chinese Communist Army Slowly Building Air Force

Shanghai, July 13 (AP)—Against almost insurmountable difficulties the Chinese Communists are trying to build an airforce to offset the present air superiority of the Nationalist Government forces, but unless some other country goes to their aid the chance of creating an effective combat organization seems negligible.

[In Nanking, Wang Ping Nan, Communist spokesman, emphatically denied today that Red war planes had attacked areas along the Yellow River as was charged in recent pro-government communiqués.

["The Communist army has no airforce and never has had one," he said. "We have neither pilots nor planes."]

One-Plane Force

After Japan's collapse, Communist Gen. Chou En-lai told newsmen, with a twinkle in his eye, that the Communists had a one-plane airforce — that one plane having been captured from the Japanese.

However, the Yenan airforce undoubtedly is larger than that. The exact size, though, is anyone's guess and the guess would be complicated by the Communists' well known use of dummies on their airfields to deceive scouters.

The Communists undoubtedly seized some Japanese planes in China after Japan's collapse, but a more likely and better source of supply would be Japanese machines inherited from the Russians in Manchuria. There is no evidence to support suspicions whispered in Nationalist circles that the Russians are supplying the Yenan forces with planes.

Some Planes Diverted

Informed foreign quarters assert that some of the planes flown over the Hump from India for China during the war were diverted to the Communist cause by Chinese pilots attracted to Yenan either financially or ideologically.

Observers agree that whatever the size or the source of the Yenan air force, it is relatively small and obsolete as pipelines for open purchase of aircraft are strictly controlled by the Government.

La Guardia Wins Praise Of Chinese Red Leader

Chou Is Pleased by Decision to Cut Relief Supplies

NANKING, July 13 (AP)—General Chou En-lai, head of the Communist delegation at Nanking, today praised Director General F. H. La Guardia of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, for cutting down on all relief supplies for China except food.

Replying to a telegram from La Guardia, Chou sent the director a message saying: "I feel gratified to learn of your deep concern over the calamity-stricken people of China and the measures you have taken to cope with the unsatisfactory state of distributing supplies by C. N. R. R. A." [The Chinese branch of U. N. R. R. A.]

Chou suggested in his message that Communist-held areas of China have their own representatives on U. N. R. R. A.s allocation committee, and that U. N. R. R. A. itself make an inspection and recommendations for the distribution of supplies.

13 Dead, 33 Injured In Chinese Air Crash

Nanking, July 13 (AP)—Chinese dispatches from Tsinan said thirteen persons died and 33 others were injured seriously when a Central Air Transport Corporation C-46 plane crashed near Tsinan after developing motor trouble fifteen minutes after its takeoff northbound.

Only three of the 49 persons aboard escaped injury.

Two of the three crewmen were among the dead.

Chinese Democratic Leader Is Slain

Nanking, July 13 (A. P.).—A Chinese dispatch from Kunming, received here today, said that Li Kung-pu, Democratic League leader, was assassinated as he descended from a bus near his home. One suspect was held. The victim was one of the celebrated "Seven Gentlemen" imprisoned by the Japanese Government before the war because of their anti-Japanese activities.

MORTARS USED AGAINST HUKS

Philippine Army Begins Large-Scale Fight On Guerrillas

Manila, July 13 (AP)—The Philippines army used mortars today against a besieged band of Hukbalahaps, emphasizing a threat of "large scale action" intended to crush an estimated 30,000 members of that dissident guerrilla organization.

The besieged band, of uncertain numbers, has been entrenched for two days in Pampanga province, central Luzon.

In Manila, final surrender notices were prepared by the army for distribution among the Huks, demanding that they give up their arms and disperse.

Opposed To Roxas

Active since shortly after the fall of Bataan as the "army of the people against Japan," the Huks opposed President Manuel A. Roxas in his bid for office and since his inauguration have made varied demands on him: that they be accepted in the regular army; that their leader, Luis Taruc, be admitted to the House of Representatives, and that Roxas institute agrarian reforms. Taruc was denied the legislative seat on grounds of fraud.

The mortars were brought into action at Lubao in Pampanga province today during the second day of a clash with entrenched peasants, using machine guns. Fifty civilian guards were reported slain during yesterday's fighting.

20 Women Kidnapped

At the Village of Mayantog, in Tarlac province, the Huks were reported to have kidnapped 20 Filipino women today in their continued attempts to obtain camp cooks and workers. Provincial officials said they had good hopes the women would not be physically mistreated.

Scores of killings, kidnappings and other instances of terrorism occurred preceding the election of Roxas, who campaigned on a promise that he would stamp out lawless elements "promptly and effectively."

The Huks have been most active in the four central Luzon provinces of Tarlac, Bulacan, Neuve Ecija and Pampagna, where they have clashed repeatedly with military police and the so-called United States Army Forces of the Far East, a name retained by guerrillas, who were recognized by the United States during the war.

Huks Kidnap 20 Filipino Women

Tarluc, Luzon, P.I., July 13 (AP)—Twenty Filipino women were kidnapped today at the near-by village of Mayantoc by an armed band which Philippine Army military police identified as members of the Peasant irregular guerrilla organization, the Hukbalahaps.

The military police said the kidnapping was apparently an aftermath of the clash between MP's and Huks near the village July 9 when 38 Huks and one MP were slain. Unable to provide a motive for the mass abductions, the MP officials speculated that it might have resulted from an attempt to "recruit" camp cooks and workers.

Distraught provincial officials said they had good hopes the women would not be physically mistreated.

Bloody Clash Continues

Meanwhile, at Lubao, to the southward in Pampanga province, a bloody clash between the Huks and a group of MP's reinforced with civilian guards went into its second day.

Reliable reports of yesterday's fighting said an entire detachment of 50 civilian guards had been slain. There was no estimate of casualties suffered by the Hubkalahaps.

M.P.'s started using mortars today against the entrenched peasants who are equipped with .50-caliber machine guns.

Major Tiburcio Ballestros, Pampanga province provost marshal, reported the MP's and guards had the Huks surrounded and that their surrender was but a matter of time.

Near San Fernando

Lubao is about 10 miles southwest of San Fernando, provincial capital.

The Philippine Army reported in Manila that final surrender notices were being prepared for distribution to all Hukbalahap bands and that unless the ultimatum was accepted, "large scale action" would be taken.

MANILA COURT DEFERS COLLABORATION TEST

Manila, July 13 (AP)—Arguments for the dismissal of a test case which might lead to quashing of more than 5,000 indictments charging collaboration with the Japanese were postponed in People's Court today until July 20.

The court previously had announced it would hear the arguments. But the postponement was granted when it became apparent that most of the 5,000 Filipinos charged with treason would seek dismissal of the indictments against them on the grounds the new Philippines Republic could not try them for alleged acts of treason against a commonwealth that no longer exists.

Senator Vicente Francisco, representing many top-ranking Filipinos charged with collaboration, moved for dismissal of an indictment against labor leader Hilario Moncado on these grounds earlier this week.

The court this morning said it wished all of the judges on the court to hear the arguments on which hinges the entire collaborationist issue in the Philippine Islands.

Since filing the original dismissal petition in behalf of Moncado, Senator Francisco has filed similar motions in behalf of fourteen other prominent clients, including a former Manila mayor and three provincial governors who served during the Japanese occupation of the islands.

He also has asked dismissal of the indictment against beauteous Mrs. Haydee Herras Tehankee, who is accused of consorting with high Japanese officers during the occupation. Mrs. Tehankee was a Philippines socialite before the war.

A flood of similar petitions is expected next week with at least 100 of the defendants already having notified court attaches that they would file their petitions immediately.

British Loan Bill Adopted By House, Vote of 219-155,

Awaits Truman Signature

AID FOR WAR ALLY APPROVED AFTER AMENDMENTS FAIL

Means to Offset Influence of Communism Seen by Proponents.

DEMAND FOR BASES HIT

Appeals to Force Britain to Pledge Collateral Are Rejected.

WASHINGTON, July 13—(AP) Congress gave final approval today to a $3,750,000,000 loan to Great Britain, sending the legislation to President Truman by a House vote of 219 to 155.

The Senate already had authorized the huge fund intended to rehabilitate England's war-disorganized international trade.

In closing debate, proponents shouted that the decision on aid for the wartime ally would determine whether the world will turn to Washington or Moscow for leadership.

Fear of Russia Cited

Russia loomed large in the long and bitter House arguments, which ended with Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) appealing for approval of the credit, lest England and Western Europe "be pushed into an ideology I despise."

Sixty-one Republicans joined 157 Democrats and one minor party member in voting for ratification of the loan urged by President Truman. Opposed were 32 Democrats, 122 Republicans and one minor party member.

Final congressional approval occurred after the House had beaten back 219 to 154 an effort to require Britain to put up "merchantable" collateral, beyond that government's pledge to pay.

Demand For Islands Killed

Likewise, the House rejected all amendments seeking possession, in return for the loan, of British island bases now held by the United States on 99-year lease.

Rep. Dirksen (R-Ill.), author of the collateral amendment suggested that in consideration for the credit, Britain might put up its Middle East oil resources, its wool, gold mines, insurance companies and "other security of a merchantable nature."

Moving swiftly toward the final vote, the House also:

1. Shouted down an amendment by Rep. Bender (R-Ohio) to reduce the loan to $1,250,000,000.

2. By a 180 to 19 standing vote, knocked down a motion by Rep. Celler (D-N.Y.) to kill the ratification legislation.

3. Rejected by voice vote an amendment by Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.) that would have required Britain to put up the same collateral and pay the same interest rates as are stipulated by the Export-Import bank.

4. On a 154 to 99 vote, defeated a proposal by Rep. Reed (R-N.Y.) that after England gets the first $1,000,000,000 she could get no more unless at the end of one year she advised the United States that Britain had ended "all discriminatory trade practices."

5. Downed by voice vote an amendment by Rep. Woodruff (R-Mich.) proposing that no payments be made unless Britain turned over to the United States for the duration of the loan such of its Atlantic and Pacific areas as the President deems useful to America's defense.

Rep. Monroney (D-Okla.) told the House Woodruff's amendment proposed to seize land from a friend, "when we have not even seized lands from our enemies."

6. Also rejected by voice vote a proposal by Rep. Cole (R.-N.Y.) that as a loan condition, Britain sell to the United States for $1,000,000 the Atlantic island areas now leased by the United States as military bases.

7. The last rejected amendment, by Rep. Smith (R-Ohio) would have stipulated that Britain could not draw on the loan until the United States balanced its budget.

Already Approved by British

Passage of any amendment would have wrecked the financial agreement, which was ratified by the British Parliament last December.

The opposition chided proponents who contended that the loan would build "a bulwark against Communism." Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.) described the loan as "Jim Crow" financial juggling, "as unique kind of isolationism by treating one nation one way and another another way." He said such a policy might cause another war.

On the other hand, Rep. Marcantonio, New York American Labor member, called for approval of the loan, saying "I believe world peace depends on unity among the Big Three," and without the loan "there would be a further deterioration of unity."

Rep. Powell (D-N.Y.) in opposing the credit declared "I can't divorce British imperialism from his loan."

Before the voting began, Speaker Rayburn presented the last appeal for the administration forces.

"World leadership is offered us today," Rayburn shouted. "Voices throughout the world are crying for American democracy to lead. Will we seize that leadership or will we allow somebody else to seize it.

"If that happens, God pity us, and God pity the people of other nations."

Rep. McCormack of Massachusetts, the Democratic leader, had told the House its action would show whether the world would turn to Washington or Moscow for leadership. He said if America assumed isolation and appeasement it would leave "practically all of the other nations of the world, against their will and desires, subject to the influence, gravity and the orbit of the Soviet Union.

Provisions of Loan

In brief, the loan agreement provides:

The loan would be made on a 50 year basis, repayable by the year 2001. There would be no interest during the next five years, but interest at 2 per cent would begin in 1951. In return, the British agree:

1. To wipe out, within one year, the entire dollar pool established in wartime to give British absolute control over dollars flowing into the Middle East, India, and other empire regions whose currency ae based on the pound sterling. American businessmen contend this dollar pool prevents them from doing business freely in India and the Middle East.

2. Britain will begin negotiations with empire countries, particularly India and the Middle East, for a reduction in the $14,000,000,000 debt which Britain owes there.

3. Further, she agrees to support American proposals for removal or reduction of barriers to international trade. Britain says that without the loan she cannot promote world trade outside the empire and would in effect be forced into economic isolationism that would defeat the purposes of the Bretton Woods agreements for international economic cooperation.

House Refuses To Cut Loan To Britain

Washington, July 13 (AP)—The House refused today by a voice vote to reduce the proposed loan to Britain from $3,750,000,000 to $1,250,000,000.

Immediately thereafter the members also rejected, by a 168-to-112 standing vote, an amendment to require collateral for funds granted.

Defeat of the proposals represented another smashing victory for the Administration. Earlier, the House defeated, 180 to 19, a motion by Representative Celler (D., N.Y.) to kill the loan ratification bill.

Bender Proposed Cut

The amendment to slash the proposed grant was by Representative Bender (R., Ohio.). It received only a scattering of votes, and only a few members spoke on it.

The collateral proposal, by Representative Dirksen (R., Ill.), was debated vigorously for nearly two hours, and was one of the key offerings of loan opponents.

Dirksen asserted that the only sensible way to loan money is to demand security for it.

Called Peril To Agreement

The House defeated his amendment, however, after loan supporters declared its approval would wreck the entire financial agreement with Britain.

Celler had moved to strike out everything after the enacting clause in the legislation.

Rayburn Appeals Personally

This test on the Celler motion came shortly after Speaker Rayburn (D., Texas) personally appealed to the House to ratify the credit, lest England and western Europe "be pushed into an ideology I despise."

As the House assembled to cast its crucial vote on the ratification legislation, already approved by the Senate, Rayburn arose and declared:

"World leadership is offered us today. Voices throughout the world are crying for American democracy to lead. Will we seize that leadership or will we allow somebody else to seize it?

"If that happens, God pity us and God pity the people of other nations."

Taber Also Backs It

Representative Taber of New York, senior Republican on the Appropriations Committee, had announced his support of the loan earlier, declaring:

"The United States must stand by the only ally standing by her in the negotiations for peace."

Representative Wolcott, of Michigan, ranking Banking Committee Republican leading a segment of his party in support of the loan, said approval would help "prevent the spread of those forces throughout the world which are destructive to the American way of life."

"Washington Or Moscow"

Through much of the long debate has run the argument by its backers that the House decision will determine whether the world looks to Washington or Moscow for leadership.

Critics contended Russia might consider the loan an "overt act" and said it is more likely to promote war than peace.

Results Of New Polls

The latest polls of House members showed 188 for the credit, with 163 against and 82 undecided or not reached. The poll takers, report on Republicans was 30 for, 141 against, 21 not reporting; on Democrats 158 for, 22 against and 59 not reporting. The two minor-party members were not included in the poll, which was taken by Representative Priest (D., Tenn.), for the Democrats, and by Representative Landis (R., Ind.), for the Republicans.

The 50-year loan, under the agreement, would be advanced to the British during the next five years, with no interest during that time. Interest at two per cent would begin in 1951.

Conditions For Britain

In exchange, the British agree:

1. Within one year to wipe out the entire dollar pool setup in wartime to give Britain absolute control over dollars flowing into the Middle East, India and other empire regions where currency is based on the pound sterling. American business men have been critical of this dollar pool as preventing them from doing business freely in India and the Middle East.

2. Great Britain will begin negotiations with empire countries, particularly India and the Middle East, for a reduction in the $14,000,000,000 debt which Britain owes there.

3. Britain agrees further to support American proposals for removal or reduction of barriers to international trade. Britain says that without the loan it cannot promote world trade outside the empire and would in effect be forced into economic isolationism.

BRITAIN HAILS NEWS ON LOAN

Cabinet To Debate Revision Of Import Program Tomorrow

London, July 13 (AP)—Great Britain's Labor Government tonight officially welcomed the $3,750,000,000 United States loan "as a sign our American friends want to work with us just as we want to work with them."

In a statement reflecting nationwide relief at the House of Representatives' approval of the long-awaited grant, Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton said on behalf of his Government:

"The American Congress has approved the loan. This does not mean that we can now relax our efforts, but it will hasten the time when we can once more play our full part in a vigorous and expanding system of inter-zonal trade."

Some Resentment Of Criticism

"I take the approval of the loan as a sign that our American friends want to work with us just as we want to work with them.

"We have a common interest in reviving trade throughout the world and providing good standards of living for men and women everywhere."

Early press and public reaction to the granting of the loan included some resentment of criticisms of Great Britain voiced in the United States during the last six months. Some British feared that rising American prices would cut the value of the $3,750,000,000 loan.

Cabinet Meeting Called

The news did not reach the public until most Britons were abed, but the British Broadcasting Company interrupted a program to announce the news.

A meeting of the British Cabinet was called for Monday to discuss a revision of Britain's import program in view of the loan, informed sources said.

Lord Balfour of Burleigh, chairman of Lloyds Bank, described the granting of the loan as a "great international gesture of common sense which, properly used, will prove equally beneficient to both parties."

Called Gamble For British

The Sunday Dispatch said that "for us it is a gamble—a gamble to the extent of £1,100,000,000 that by the time the first installment is due in December, 1951, we shall have so far recovered our overseas trade that repayment will be easy."

A front-page article in the Sunday Times said that "seven months' delay in ratifying the British loan, accompanied by increasing inflation in America, has reduced the dollar value of credit by between 10 and 25 per cent."

Before Congress took its final action, the Evening Star said that some congressional comment gave the impression Britons were "money grabbers of the lowest sort," but added "the general feeling of this country as the loan receives final Congress assent is one of gratitude."

What the Loan Will Mean to Britain and U.S.

England Pledges Herself to Remove Financial and Trade Restrictions

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP).—The financial agreement between Britain and the United States, approved by Congress today, provides:

1. A $3,750,000,000 loan from this country to Great Britain.

2. Agreement by England to end financial practices which discriminate against the United States and some other countries.

The huge loan is intended to give England, weakened by war, a chance to put her financial house in order and thereby remove restrictive financial and trade measures she adopted in desperation during war time.

The United States agrees:

1. To grant the British a fifty-year loan of $3,750,000,000. Britain can borrow all or any part of it but whatever borrowing she does must be done by 1951. There will be no interest on the borrowed money until 1951. After that date Britain must start paying 2 per cent interest on all she borrowed. Interest and loan must be paid back by 2001.

2. If in any year England suffers a severe depression, the United States agrees to waive interest on the loan for that year.

Britain agrees:

1. England will not discriminate against American products in any of her controls on goods she imports.

2. For any goods or services purchased in the United States, England will pay in dollars or, if payment is made in pounds, American exporters will be able to convert the sterling into dollars.

3. Within a year, unless the United States agrees to a temporary extension, England will remove all of the restrictions on changing pounds into dollars for ordinary business deals.

(During the war England, to save her supply of American dollars, had restrictions on changing pounds into dollars.)

4. England will dissolve the sterling area dollar pool. During the war England through a tie-up with other nations close to her, had a deal whereby they pooled their dollars.

5. England agrees to support the American proposal for an international trade organization to reduce trade barriers and eliminate trade discriminations.

Sabath Changes Mind, Votes for British Loan

Says Opposition of Wavering Tories Swayed Him

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP).—Chairman Adolph J. Sabath, Democrat, of Illinois, of the Rules Committee, opened House debate on the $3,750,0000,000 British loan Monday with a statement that "for the first time in thirteen years I am unable to support the Administration."

Today he voted for the loan ratification bill. He told the House:

"Since I made that speech I have observed that some of the outstanding British tories are criticizing and opposing the loan. Consequently, I came to the conclusion that the defeat of the loan would be capitalized by that reactionary group against the present labor government in an effort to overthrow it."

After the Monday speech Representative Sabath said, "Even some of my friends have assumed to think that my opposition was based only on the unfair treatment of Czechoslovakia and the Jews.

"Certainly, I am deeply interested in the welfare of Czechoslovakia and of the Jewish people everywhere now and in the future, but I am an American, right or wrong, first, last and always."

SENATE MEASURE ON OPA IS BACKED BY HOUSE LEADERS

Rules Committee Plan for Conference on Bill May Be Rejected.

ACTION ON TUESDAY

Agreement to Protect Monday Absentees Delays Vote.

WASHINGTON, July 13—(AP)—With strong Republican backing, a drive got under way today in the House to send a revised price control bill to President Truman exactly as the Senate passed it early this morning.

However, an informal but binding "gentlemen's agreement to defer the showdown until Tuesday gave Administration leaders a long weekend to organize a fight for removal of Senate-voted decontrols on major food items.

Protects Absent Members

The agreement, made by Democratic and Republican leaders to protect many members who will be absent Monday, nullified the House Rules committee's speedy action in recommending that the controversial bill be sent to a Senate-House conference for adjustment of differences.

That situation left the country without national price or rent controls for another week-end. They went off July 1 when OPA legally lapsed.

After President Truman had vetoed on June 29 a previous OPA extension bill on the grounds it was "unworkable" the House had voted a 20-day, full authority extension of OPA.

But the Senate, after a week of debate, finally passed at 1:56 a.m. Eastern Standard Time today a bill which exempted major food items among other things, from any further federal price control.

Taft Comments on Vote

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said today the Senate's 62 to 15 vote for the modified price control bill was a notice to President Truman and Congress does not like the "outrageous methods of the OPA."

The President, when he vetoed the previous OPA bill had singled out Taft for special criticism, contending that an amendment sponsored by Tfat would have helped manufacturers reap a bonanza."

The Ohio senator said in a statement that he interpreted the Senate's action today as meaning "that if the President refuses to improve the outrageous methods of the OPA, then there is no choice but to remove from control products in which the OPA has made the most miserable failure."

Taft asserted that increases in food prices since OPA died "do little more than reflect consumer's subsidies which the OPA was paying."

"These subsidies always fool the people," he said, "whatever was not paid in prices was paid in taxes."

The House rules committee made its recommendation at a special afternoon session, proposing that the Senate bill be sent to conference for adjustment of differences. It took that course after it became appaernt that the measure could not be sent to conference by unanimous consent of the House.

Showdown on Tuesday

The showdown Tuesday will be on a motion to revise the Rules committee recommendation and send the bill to President Truman instead of conference. That can be accomplished if a majority of the membership votes to concur in the Senate bill, which technically is an amendment to a House measure extending the old price control law until July 20.

Rep. Halleck (R-Ind) said he believed the bill passed by the Senate "is just about as good a bill as you can get from the Senate." He based that opinion, he told the Rules committee, on the heavy vote by which the Senate wrote the decontrol amendments into the bill.

Before the House logically could even ask the Senate to back down, Halleck explained, it should go on record for or against the decontrol provisions and it could do that only on a motion to accept the Senate bill without change.

Rep. Clarence Brown (R-Ohio) and John J. Delaney (D-NY) said they too believed the House should vote first on the Senate bill. Both are Rules committee members.

But Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the Banking committee insisted that a conference be held.

If a compromise seemed unlikely after an initial meeting, Spence said, the conferees could ask the House to instruct them by voting way or the other.

Rep. Wolcott (R-Ind), top minority member of the Banking committee, also indicated preference for a showdown votee in the House before sending the bill to conference. Wolcott said the strategy probably would be to defeat the Rules committee recommendation and then have the House vote on all the Senate decontrol provisions at one time or dispose of them separately.

In that way, he explained, House conferees would have something to back their position if and when they got to conference with the Senate.

Brief Debate Permitted

Only one hour of debate is permitted on the Rules committee recommendation. It probably will come at the start of Tuesday's session.

Despite the delay, administration leaders are hopeful of getting to President Truman by the end of next week a bill he can sign—one devoid of provisions that provoked the veto on the previous OPA bill.

The fight centered around Senate-voted decontrols on meat, poultry, eggs, butter, cheese, milk and other dairy products, cottonseed, soybeans, grain, livestock and poultry feed and tobacco, and removal of price curbs on petroleum as long as supplies meet domestic demands. House leaders indicated they would fight to restore controls to all those items.

"If we can do that," one high-placed Democrat told reporters, "I believe the bill will be in shape for the President to accept. It won't have the main things to which he objected in his last veto—the pricing formula requiring price levels equal to those of the first half of 1941, plus subsequent increases in production costs."

Rep. Wolcott (R-Mich), top minority member on the House Banking committee, aparently held the key to the bill's fate. Other than to observe that the vetoed measure appeared "stronger" than the new bill, Wolcott wasn't commenting.

Wolcott will be one of the House conferees.

In the past he has opposed removal of controls from specific items, but in a speech following the June 29 veto message he indicated he was tiring of fighting the Administration's battle on that score.

G.O.P. May Accept Bill

There was a tendency among some Republican leaders to allow the measure to go to President Truman as it left the Senate, their reasoning being that the Senate would not back down in its position and there would be a prolonged period of uncertainty for the consuming public.

But they said they doubted if they could keep the measure out of conference.

As the measure finally came out of the Senate, it would resurrect OPA—which has been dead technically since June 30—and restore price controls ceilings as of that date, except for the many items on which controls were ordered removed.

Rent Controls Remain

It would continue rent controls in states that do not have their own rent control machinery.

Retained by the Senate and likely to be kept by the House is a provision giving the Secretary of Agriculture, rather than the OPA, the last word on lifting food controls. Mr. Truman had opposed a similar provision of the earlier bill on the ground it was an "unsound split of authority."

Also retained, despite the President's earlier objection, was a section guaranteeing automobile and appliance dealers full prewar margins and discounts until sales return to the 1939-41 average.

The Administration's major triumph in the Senate was approval of a provision requiring that producers, manufacturers and processors' price ceilings be high enough to take care of the average production cost increase since 1940—with OPA allowed to make "reasonable adjustments" to meet abnormal production.

This replaced a provision of the original measure—inserted at the insistance of Senator Taft (R-Ohio)—declaring that ceilings must assure individual producers, processors and manufacturers prices equal to those of the first six months of 1941, plus any subsequent weighted average increase in unit costs throughout the industry.

Otherwise the measure extends the OPA and price control until next June 30; grants an additional $1,000,000,000 for food subsidies; prohibits any food subsidies after next April 1, and establishes an independent three-man control board empowered to approve higher price ceilings than recommended by either OPA or the Secretary of Agriculture.

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—The Senate passed, 52 to 15, early today an OPA revival bill that had been denuded of almost as many major price controls as it promised to restore.

Final passage came at 1:56 A. M. (Eastern standard time), on the thirteenth day of the OPA's lapse into a legal coma. Approval was obvious almost from the moment that the long roll call of weary Senators started, six minutes earlier.

Apparently amended far beyond the bounds which would permit its acceptance by President Truman, the one-year extension measure was sent to the House where it seemed likely to receive a quick push toward a Senate-House conference committee. There, administration leaders hope to rewrite it from tip to roots.

Representative Wolcott of Michigan, top Republican of the Banking Committee, said that an effort might be made to substitute for it the original extension bill President Truman vetoed on June 29. Wolcott said that the first bill appeared stronger than the latest Senate measure.

As it floundered through a sleepy Senate, the new measure would revive the OPA and restore price control ceilings as of June 30. It would reinstate rent controls* with the proviso that States take over in this field where they have adequate laws.

Price controls, however, would not be replaced on meat, poultry, eggs, butter, cheese, milk or other dairy products, cotton seed, soybeans, grain, livestock or poultry feed, nor on any form of tobacco. Petroleum would have no ceilings as long as supply meets domestic demands.

Some Items Reinstated.

Reinstated were some of the provisions of which President Truman objected when he vetoed OPA extender bill No. 1 on June 29.

These included a section giving final say on the lifting of food controls to the Secretary of Agriculture instead of the OPA, which Mr. Truman said was an "unsound split of authority." It contained also what he called "cost plus" amendments for automobile and appliance dealers and lacked an addtional $250,000,000 in subsidiaries he asked.

In one major respect, however, it was more satisfactory to administration leaders than the first bill. The Senate put in a provision requiring that producers, manufacturers and processors ceilings be placed high enough to take care of the average increase in costs in their industry since 1940.

This was substituted for a provision inserted in the original bill by Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) which Mr. Truman had labeled as the most damaging section of that measure.

The apparent administration strategy was to take this measure direct to a Senate-House committee without further action by the House itself now. There it would be matched with a twenty-day extension of OPA powers voted by the House previously and joined together under rules that would permit almost any sort of final compromise.

Senator O'Mahoney (D.-Wyo.) predicted that an entirely new bill would be evolved in the process.

O'Daniel Hopes for Veto.

The Senate named Senators Wagner (D.-N. Y.), Barkley (D.-Ky.), Downey (D.-Cal.), Radcliffe (D.-Md.), Tobey (R.-N. H.), Taft (R.-Ohio) and Millikin (R.-Col.) as its conferees.

Senator O'Daniel (D.-Tex.), who had threatened previously to delay passage of the bill with parliamentary maneuvers, said in a forty-minute speech starting at 1:10 A. M., that he hoped the bill would come back to the Senate from the conference committee in the same form that it went there so that "President Truman will veto it."

In the last long speech before the final vote, O'Daniel slapped at the OPA, the New Deal, the Senate, and his desk. He said it was stupid and ridiculous to try to revise the ghost of the OPA. He said that the New Deal was guilty of squandering and corruption, that the administration was "walking hand in hand with all the crooks in the country." He said that Senators only were interested in getting votes.

Hopes for Modification.

It was obvious that Senator Barkley (Ky.), the Democratic leader, hoped to strike out in conference all of the exemptions voted for specific products, thus bringing back under controls the major food and other items on which the Senate said no ceilings should be placed.

If he succeeds in doing this and the House and Senate accept the compromise version, Barkley and others appeared to believe that President Truman would find it satisfactory.

At the end of nearly a week's debate on the measure, Senator Pepper (D.-Fla.) sought unsuccessfully to bring the OPA back to life as it existed before June 30—with the addition of an independent decontrol board. He asked its continuance to February 1, but lost 52 to 23.

The Florida Senator told his colleagues that exemptions they had voted for food items would cost consumers $4,700,000,000 a year in grocery bills alone.

Provisions of New Senate OPA Bill Contrasted With Vetoed Measure

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 13—Here is a comparison of the principal provisions of the Senate's OPA extension bill and the original extension measure vetoed by President Truman June 29:

Livestock, Meat and Poultry

New Bill—Taken out from under price control.

Milk and Dairy Products

New—Out from under control.

Cottonseed, Soybeans and Their Products

New—Exempted from control.

Old—Subject to control.

Grain and Feedstuffs

New—Grain, and livestock and poultry feed made from it, out from under control.

New—Uncontrolled.

Old—Controlled.

Petroleum

New—Not subject to control unless Decontrol Board certifies supply insufficient to meet domestic demand.

Old—Subject to control.

Rents

New—Federal Government could not impose rent ceilings in States which had their own rent-control organizations.

Old—No such provision regarding States.

Manufacturers' Pricing Formula

New—Maximum prices would have to return producers, manufacturers and processors, on an industry-wide basis, the average costs in 1940, plus the average industry-wide increases in costs since then. However, OPA would be allowed to make "reasonable adjustments for conditions resulting from abnormal volume of production," and to refuse increases where costs were being realized if the increases would not aid production or would reduce the production of equally needed products.

Old—Ceilings would have to reflect to individual producers, processors and manufacturers their own prices in the first half of October, 1941, plus the weighted average increase in unit costs since then throughout the industry.

Wholesalers' and Retailers' Discounts and Markups

New—Wholesalers and retailers must be allowed the discounts and markups prevailing June 29, 1946.

Old—Distributors, wholesalers and retailers must be allowed the discounts and markups prevailing Jan. 1, 1946.

Retroactive Clause

New—Provisions of extension bill shall take effect as of June 30, 1946 (date of expiration of old act) and OPA regulations, orders and price schedules not otherwise changed by new bill would go back into effect.

Old—No such provision needed.

Many provisions were common to both bills. Among the most important of these were:

Duration of Extension—To June 30, 1947.

Split of Authority—Secretary of Agriculture to have say on what agricultural commodities can be controlled.

Decontrol Board—An independent three-man board could override either the Price Administrator or Agriculture Secretary for failing to grant ceiling increases where good cause is shown.

Subsidies—Trimmed from $2,000,000,000 asked by OPA to $1,000,000,000, with stipulation that no food subsidies could be paid after next April 1.

Special treatment for automobile and appliance dealers. They would have to be allowed their full pre-war markups and discounts until their sales get back to the 1939-41 average.

"Map" abolished. OPA's maximum average price regulation which was designed to keep low-priced garments on the market is terminated.

Veto Assailed

Taft asserted that President Truman, by his June 29 veto of the first extension bill, had rejected a measure which "at worst might have resulted after three or four months in not more than ten per cent increase in some manufactured products."

"Now," the Ohioan continued, "he has a bill which gives no encouragement to increased production of manufactured products because while Senator Barkley adopted my formula, he gave the Administration discretion not to use it. But the bill takes most controls off food."

Taft alluded to a provision under which price ceilings for manufactured articles must reflect 1940 industry-wide averages, plus the industry's average increase in costs since then. Several exemptions permit the OPA, however, to refuse to grant such increases.

Reflection Of Subsidies

Increases in food prices since OPA died, Taft contended, "do little more than reflect consumer's subsidies which the OPA was paying."

"These subsidies always fool the people," he said, "whatever was not paid in prices was paid in taxes. There is no real increased cost to the people in these subsidies being paid by the consumer instead of by the United States Treasury."

Roll Call of Votes on OPA Revival

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—Following is the roll call vote by which the Senate early today passed an OPA revival bill:

FOR THE BILL—(52).

Democrats For:

Barkley, Briggs, Burch, Carville, Chavez, Downey, Eastland, Fulbright, George, Gerry, Gossett, Green, Hayden, Hill, Hoey, Huffman, Johnson (Col.), Johnston (S. C.), Kilgore, Lucas, Magnuson, McCarran, McClellan, McKellar, McMahon, Mead, Mitchell, Murdock, Murray, Myers, O'Mahoney, Overton, Radcliffe, Russell, Stewart, Swift, Thomas (Okla.), Thomas (Utah), Tunnell, Wagner, Walsh—(41).

OPA Vote Shows U.S. Will: Taft

Washington, July 13 (AP)—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) asserted today that the Senate's 62-to-15 vote for a modified price control bill served notice on President Truman that Congress does not like "the outrageous methods of the OPA."

In a formal statement, the Ohio senator declared he interpreted the Senate's action as meaning "that if the President refuses to improve the outrageous methods of the OPA, then there is no choice but to remove from control those products in which the OPA has made the most miserable failure."

OPA CHIEFS HOPE FINAL BILL WILL RETAIN CONTROLS

WASHINGTON, July 13 — (AP) Backed to the wall again by price control legislation they don't like, top OPA officials today clung tenaciously but glumly to preconceived operation plans.

There was no mistaking the OPA attitude on the series of decontrol amendments tacked on the Senate-approved extender bill, although the agency made no official comment.

The obvious hope of OPA officials was that a House-Senate conference committee will mould the bill more to their liking, or that failing this, President Truman will veto it again.

The revival bill worried the agency's high command much more than the deep slash in OPA operating funds voted last night by the Senate appropriations committee. That group approved expenditure of only $56,000,000 during the fiscal year 1946-47, as against $142,000,000 requested by the agency and $106,000,000 voted by the House.

However, the Senate committee joined the House in authorizing the Budget bureau to recommend a supplementary appropriation later on the basis of any revival bill.

Meanwhile, OPA officials saw the apparent assurance of at least $56,000,000 as the solution to one big problem—how to continue to pay 34,000 OPA workers whom Mr. Truman instructed to stay on the job when price controls expired July 1.

James G. Rogers, Jr., OPA deputy administrator and general manager, said in an interview that "as long as we can give our people some assurance they will be paid, I think we can hold this staff together pretty well."

He acknowledged that in the last week there has been some "unrest" among clerical workers and other lower-salaried OPA employes but "amazingly little evidence" of any quitting.

Porter 'Frightened By Chain Reaction Of Inflation'

JUL 14 1946

Washington, July 13 (AP)—Declaring that he is a "frightened man," OPA Administrator Paul Porter said today, "We've had a taste—just a taste—of what can happen without price and rent controls.

Porter, in a radio address, likened "inflation chain reaction" to the aftermath of an atomic bomb blast. He said the reaction will be slow in getting started.

"But when it does start—when it begins to rumble all along the line—some of the price increases you've been seeing in the last two weeks may look like pretty small potatoes by comparison," Porter continued.

Elaborates On His Theme

He added that it is "that chain reaction of inflation which has me worried and has me saying"—with the author of a book on atomic energy—"I'm a frightened man."

Elaborating on his chain reaction theme, Porter said:

"I am not thinking of 79-cent lamb chops, or butter at $1 a pound, or the thousands of unwarranted rent increases and evictions. . . .

"I am thinking ahead to what may happen as a result of price increases that are being made in basic commodities and raw materials, which for one reason or another haven't yet made themselves felt in your stores—at least, not to the full effect they will be felt if controls are not restored promptly."

Refers To Price Index

Noting that the Bureau of Labor Statistics' price index of 28 basic commodities had climbed seventeen per cent during the first eleven days after controls expired July 1, Porter said prices measured by this index had risen "only about 13 per cent" between May 17, 1943, and last June 28.

On some items, price increases since controls expired have been due, at least in part, to elimination of Government subsidies. Among commodities on the B.L.S. index which were subsidized are butter, hogs, cattle, sugar, coffee, copper, lead and zinc.

Porter said there is "an easily detected note of wishful thinking" in the statements of merchants, distributors and manufacturers who have "pledged they will do their best to hold the price line, with or without the OPA."

out price controls learned their economics.

Finds No Realism

"I can't find anything very realistic in their notion that a hundred thousand pledges and 40,000,000 themselves, even with the best intentions in the world, are all that's needed to achieve price stability in this difficult time."

Porter asserted that "one reason why price rises haven't taken business is that so much of America's business is practically at a standstill."

He said trading in many commodities is "as has stopped and many mills aren't making cloth or taking of uncertainty of any kind," because of uncertainty about the price situation.

Most Mean What They Say—

He said the majority of them "mean what they say" and that perhaps they can hold the line on goods they have in stock at present.

"But when those goods are gone," Porter continued, "what's going to happen then? What's going to happen when the chain reaction of inflation starts reacting—somewhere down at the base of the production and distribution line?"

Expressing concern over the "complacent tone of some (who) tell you that a runaway inflation is impossible here," Porter said:

"I sometimes wonder when those who take such a complacent view of the immediate future with

Opposed House Provision

This testimony disclosed that both LaGuardiaa and William L. Clayton, Assistant Secretary of State, had strongly urged elimination of a House provision denying UNRRA funds to any country which refuses to permit accredited American press representatives to "enter, observe and report without censorship on the distribution and utilization of relief" in that country.

The committee decided against striking out the amendment. But on motion of Senator Ball (R., Minn.), it decided that none of the UNRRA money in the bill could be spent unless correspondents were permitted to send reports on UNRRA activities "without any deletions or modifications by censorship."

Outlines Possible Effect

Ball said this had the effect of not challenging Russia's right to maintain censorship, but providing for uncensored dispatches on UNRRA's operations. He said he did not know if the new version is acceptable to the State Department and to LaGuardia.

In testimony taken by the committee behind closed doors, Senator Bridges (R., N.H.), demanded to know of Clayton "how much longer do we have to bow down to the dictates of Russia as to how we spend our own money?"

Clayton contended that UNRRA missions in Byelorussia and the Ukraine, the two Soviet republics receiving aid, had not been hampered in any way in distributing supplies. He said that the censorship clause would not change the situation, adding:

"It would make an ally of ours in the war and a country that we are trying very hard to work with for the restoration of the world, and for future peace, it would make that country mad and I think they would have a right to get mad."

A "Heartbreaking" Job

Asserting that UNRRA was a "heartbreaking" job at best, LaGuardia told the committee that the United States ought to do all it could to create good will.

"I want to hand out this food," he said. "I do not want to throw it at them."

LaGuardia contended that he had stopped all but vital food shipments to China only because supplies had piled up in ports there due to the breakdown in inland transportation. He said these supplies were deteriorating and were being stolen.

Oil Deliveries Lag: Clark

JUL 14 1946

Washington, July 13 (AP)—Gen. Mark W. Clark reported to superiors today that a "critical situation" has resulted in the United States zone of Austria from failure and uncertainties of petroleum deliveries from the Soviet zone.

He said that since May, Austria has been dependent upon these petroleum products, except for gasoline.

"Until June 28, the only Soviet supplied petroleum products received in the United States zone against May and June quantities were 600 tons of Diesel oil," Clark said.

A summary of Clark's monthly report, containing the petroleum angle, was released by the War Department.

Senate Gets Money Bill With Censorship Proviso

Washington, July 13 (AP)—A pulled punch at foreign news censorship went to the Senate today, along with word that UNRRA Director F. H. LaGuardia has demanded that the Chinese Government overhaul its relief setup.

The relaxed censorship provision, aimed at Russia, was contained in a $2,700,000,000 money bill approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee. Disclosure of LaGuardia's action came in printed testimony of committee hearings on the measure, which contains $465,000,000 for LaGuardia's United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

One Part of Reorganization Plan Approved by Senate

JUL 14 1946

Heeds Barkley Appeal and Backs Union of Grazing Service and Land Office

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP).—One of the three Presidential plans for merging and streamlining government agencies squeezed through Congress today when the Senate heeded a plea of Democratic leader Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, to "scrape some of the barnacles from the ship of state."

The Senate, by a ballot announced as 37 to 30, voted down a resolution disapproving a plan which proposed that the Grazing Service and General Land Office be combined into a single Bureau of Land Management in the Interior Department.

Fought by Republicans, that was the biggest of a dozen-odd shifts in "reorganization plan No. 3."

The House already has rejected the plan and two others President Truman sent to Congress on May 16. Under the reorganization act, all three go into effect automatically at midnight Monday—sixty days after submission—unless both Senate and House vote them down.

Battling against time, Republicans maneuvered to shove the remaining two plans to a showdown in the Senate before Monday's deadline. They complained that the Truman plans would not do the reorganization job Congress intended, and that Senators had not had sufficient time to study them.

But Senator Barkley shouted to his colleagues:

"We cannot stand on the floor of the Senate and denounce duplication, denounce inefficiency and denounce expense, and then refuse to pass the first plan that comes along for reorganization."

"There has been a demand for years that we scrape some of these growths, these barnacles from the ship of state."

Other Plans Face Fight

The closeness of the vote on plan No. 3 pointed to trouble ahead for the remaining two, as the Senate decided to act on them in reverse numerical order. No. 3 was regarded as the least controversial.

The biggest scrap was shaping up over plan No. 1 and its provision for consolidating an assortment of agencies dealing with housing into a single, permanent national housing agency.

The three-ply Presidential program for government bureaus and commissions involves twenty-eight separate shifts.

Plan No. 2, for instance, takes the children's bureau out of the Labor Department and turns it over to the Federal Security Agency. It proposes, too, other steps preliminary to setting up a new Federal Department of Welfare under a Cabinet officer.

Senator Homer Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, questioned whether the plans comply with the goal of a 25 per cent saving of government money which Congress inserted in the reorganization act.

May Save $500,000 a Year

But the Senate Judiciary Committee said the three plans combined might cut government expenditures by $500,000 a year.

Additional changes which now go into effect through plan No. 3:

Shift the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation from the Commerce Department to the Coast Guard and Customs Bureau, in the Treasury Department, where it has been temporarily in war time.

Give the Secretary of Agriculture complete control of the programs of the Federal Crop Insurance and Commodity Credit Corporations, while keeping them as separate corporations.

Combine the Paymasters and Quartermasters Department of the Marine Corps into a supply department.

Abolish the functions of the Labor Relations Board for taking strike ballots—in line with action already ordered by Congress.

House Group Clears Way For Atomic Bill

JUL 14 1946

Washington, July 13 (AP)—The House Rules Committee today cleared for House consideration early next week legislation setting up domestic controls over atomic energy.

The committee recommended four hours of debate on the controversial measure, a rewritten version of the McMahon bill passed by the Senate some time ago.

The Senate measure called for a five-member civilian commission to control atomic energy development.

It was revised by the House Military Committee to require that at least one of the members be a military representative and that the head of the division of military application also be a representative of the armed services.

Numerous House members already have indicated they will seek to adopt the entire Senate bill without change, paving the way for a fight over the issue of civilian versus military control of atomic energy.

Navy Sets Atom Research For Warship Propulsion

By The Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, July 13—Chancellor Arthur H. Compton of Washington University announced today that the institution had received a $103,000 Navy contract for research in the use of atomic power for propulsion of warships.

"A battleship with an atomic power unit would use the unit to propel the ship, and at the same time might produce materials from which atomic bombs could be made," Dr. Compton said.

In charge of the research will be Dr. Arthur L. Hughes, head of the university's Physics Department and acting director of its recently organized Institute of Nuclear Science and Engineering.

"It is essential to increase our supply of fundamental knowledge of atomic structures," Dr. Hughes said.

"We are now returning our major efforts to the fundamental research which was neglected during the war years. Atomic research at the university will be a cooperative venture. Modern nuclear research involves so many branches of science that it is necessary to have the cooperation of a group of specialists."

AIR ATTACKS CREDITED WITH BEATING JAPS

Survey Says Victory Was Sure Without Atom Bomb Or Russians

JUL 14 1946

Washington, July 13 (AP)—A commission which studied bombing effects and other factors told President Truman today that Japan certainly would have surrendered before the end of 1945 even without the atomic bomb, Russia's entry into the war or any Allied invasion plans.

Asserting that air supremacy was "the major factor which determined the timing of Japan's surrender," the United States Strategic Bombing Survey had this to say on other points, in a report to the President:

THE ATOMIC BOMB — brought "further urgency and lubrication" to peacemaking machinery.

RUSSIA'S ENTRY — "Neither defeated Japan nor materially hastened the acceptance of surrender."

THE INVASION THREAT—"Anticipated landings were even viewed by the military with hope that they would afford a means of inflicting casualties sufficiently high to improve their chances of a negotiated peace."

Foreseen In 1944

Some Japanese leaders recognized as early as the Spring of 1944 that "Japan was facing ultimate defeat," said the report made public today by the White House.

"The time lapse between military impotence and political acceptance of the inevitable might have been shorter," the report said, "had the political structure of Japan permitted a more rapid and decisive determination of national policies.

"It seems clear, however, that air supremacy and its exploitation over Japan proper was the major factor which determined the timing of Japan's surrender and obviated any need for invasion.

Based On Detailed Inquiry

"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the survey's opinion that certainly prior to December 31, 1945, and in all probability prior to November 1, 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if the atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

The report summarized the findings of a staff of 1,150 civilians and Army and Navy officers and enlisted men who started work in Japan in September, 1945, weeks after Japan's fall. Headed by Franklin D'Olier, former national commander of the American Legion, the twelve-member survey earlier studied and reported on the effects of the aerial attack on Germany.

By questioning more than 700 Japanese military, Government and industrial officials and translating many documents, the survey put together a narrative report of "Japan's struggle to end the war."

Decided As Early As May

Asserting that Emperor Hirohito and his chief political and naval advisers had decided as early as May, 1945, that the war must be ended on any terms. The report set out these factors as "principal contributions to surrender":

1. Blockade of Japan's sea communications exploited the basic vulnerability of an island enemy which, with inherently second-power resources, was struggling to enlarge its capabilities by milking the raw materials of a rich conquered area. United States submarines sank 55 per cent of the total of Japanese merchant shipping lost. Navy and Army Air Forces sank 40 per cent.

2. Concurrent military operations . . . formed a shears that scissored Japan's military potential into an ineffectual remnant.

Fear Of Bombs Persuasive

3. Fear of home island bombing was persuasive to the political leaders even before its direct effects could be felt. News of the B-29 and its intended capabilities reached Japan in 1943.

4. The expected invasion "raised few fears which expedited the decision to surrender beforehand" despite the notion in some quarters that it might be turned to Japanese account.

5. So long as Germany remained in the war that fact contributed to the core of Japanese resistance. Slight evidence exists that some hope was held for a long-promised German miracle weapon.

6. The Hiroshima and Nagasaki atomic bombs did not, defeat Japan, nor by the testimony of the enemy leaders who ended the war did they persuade Japan to accept unconditional surrender.

7. Russia's entry into the Pacific war two days after the Hiroshima bomb dropped neither defeated Japan nor materially hastened the acceptance of surrender.

Yank's Tale Of Atomic Bomb For Tokyo Sped Surrender

JUL 14 1946

Washington, July 13 (AP)—How a captured B-29 Superfortress pilot helped the Japanese make up their minds to surrender last August was disclosed today by the United States Strategic Bombing Survey.

A rumor that an atomic bomb was to be dropped on Tokyo August 12 got started after questioning of the pilot, unidentified in the report.

Japan's first overture toward acceptance of the Potsdam surrender terms was cabled to the United States via Switzerland August 10.

The story, made public at the White House, said:

"Indubitably the Hiroshima bomb and the rumor derived from interrogation of an American prisoner (B-29 pilot), who stated that an atom bomb attack on Tokyo was scheduled for August 12 introduced urgency in the minds of the Government and magnified the pressure behind its moves to end the war."

The 20th Air Force, in charge of all B-29 operations, would not give out the pilot's name. Declining to comment on the truth or falsity of the story of a Tokyo bombing plan, air force officials said the question of whether the pilot gave information to the enemy was involved.

Upping Draft Age To Be Deferred

Washington, July 13 (AP)—The War Department says it may be necessary in the future "to consider the induction of men through age 35," but it has "not recommended to the President that the top draft age be raised from 29 to 35 years."

This statement was issued last night after an official close to the draft policy had told reporters he understood such a recommendation already had been made.

Advised of the War Department's statement, this official said all selective service plans are based on upping the age limit from 29 to 35, when induction calls are resumed in September.

Memorandum Issued

The Army's press memorandum said:

"In any future calls on selective service for personnel, the War Department will specify that the call be filled, in so far as possible, by men within the 19 to 29 age bracket.

"If in the future it is found that there are insufficient personnel within this age bracket to satisfy manpower requirements, it may be necessary to consider the induction of men through age 35.

"The War Department has not recommended to the President that the top draft age be raised from 29 to 35 years."

One of the Army's biggest manpower sources, until the new draft law went into effect July 1, was the 18 year olds. They now are exempt until they turn 19.

him escape the consequences of his wrongdoing."

The defense finally got what it called "harmless" FBI "whispering wire" recordings in evidence yesterday.

But accompanying the nine recordings which Special FBI Agent J. Morton Arnold made when the 30-year-old Russian visited the Kennedy home the evening of last February 2, was Arnold's amplified testimony of what he said he heard. Kennedy had testified he sold secrets about the U.S.S. Yellowstone to Redin for $250, making one such deal that evening.

Quotations Are Cited

Fragments of the low-voiced conversation which he said he heard Kennedy say included:

"Just how interested are you in this . . .;" ". . . all electrically controlled;" "blueprints," and ". . . this is pretty complex, you read it over and see if you understand it and if you don't I'll explain it to you."

He admitted, however, that he had been able to barely understand Lieutenant Redin or heard only a "mumble," and to Attorney Tracy Griffin's question whether he had heard Redin say a "single word in connection with the matters involved in this case," replied that he had not.

Jury To Get Records

The jurors will take the records, including an amplifying phonograph and headphones, with them when they retire. They were brought into the case when the Government, through its last rebuttal witness, Arnold, offered them to the defense.

As heard in the courtroom, the record played was a jumble of sound, with little or none of it intelligible.

Later, Allan Pomeroy, chief assistant United States district attorney brought from Arnold the comment that they were made on a specially soft wax. Playing of them a number of times as the FBI investigated the case, he said, had lessened their "fidelity" of recording.

Prosecution Stresses Redin Case Importance

JUL 14 1946

Seattle, Wash., July 13 (AP)—A special assistant to the United States Attotrney General, opening Government arguments in the Nicolai G. Redin espionage-conspiracy trial, asserted today that if the Russian naval officer had obtained requested secret information, "this courtroom would never have heard this trial."

The Government attorney, Victor E. Anderson, of St. Paul, Minn., told the jury:

"The Government could not have afforded to disclose the situation if Redin had obtained information he sought. We would rather have lost the trial. But we caught him before those documents saw the light of day."

Prosecution Handicapped

Anderson declared that the Government came into the case "with certain handicaps because secret naval information could not be disclosed."

He outlined to the jury the charges that Redin bought secret data on the new type United States destroyer tender Yellowstone from Herbert G. Kennedy, shipyard engineer, and continued:

"Such activities are despicable, but a thousand times worse when they come from a former ally whom we trusted and helped until there was no more cry for assistance."

"I don't know whether the defendant did this of his own initiative," Anderson added, and turning to Redin he waved his hand and said, "I am going to pay you the tribute that what you did on those dates was on the orders of the Kremlin."

Urges "Just Verdict"

Anderson opened his argument by calling for a "just verdict." He asked the jury to shed any partisanship, asserting:

"The defendant is a citizen of a foreign country and I wish that what I may say might be heard in the innermost resesses of the Kremlin. Don't hold it against him where he was born, but don't let

SEATTLE, July 13 (AP)—Lieutenant Redin was pictured by Defense Counsel Irvin Goodman as the victim of a "political trial."

"I say this case is a small part of a much larger setting," Mr Goodman said. "A spy case was needed at this particular time in world history but you and I, as Americans, want no artificially created spy scare to disrupt the peace of the world."

Patterson Lauds Japanese-American Unit

Washington, July 13 (AP)—Secretary of War Patterson said today members of the Japanese-American 442d Infantry Regimental Combat Team were "heroes" whose war exploits "no American will forget."

In a letter to Lieut. Col. Alfred A. Pursell, the commanding officer, the War Secretary said the unit would "march into history" after President Truman reviews 500 remaining officers and men who returned this month from European war service.

Mr. Truman is to present a presidential distinguished unit citation at a review here Monday.

The War Department announced yesterday that under a change in plans the outfit will be mustered out in Hawaii instead of at Fort Belvoir, Va.

REP. MAY IN CLASH WITH PROBE GROUP

JUL 14 1946

Senators Say He Is Unable to Contradict Tie-Up with War Firms.

WASHINGTON, July 13—(AP) In a gloves-off exchange, the Senate War Investigating committee concluded today that Rep. May (D-Ky.) is "unable to explain or contradict" evidence linking him with munitions makers and the House Military chairman in reply challenged the general "conduct of your hearings."

Dropping the polite formalities of congressional exchanges, the committee wrote May directly that it could find no alternative to the conclusion that "you admit the facts" gathered in its inquiry "to be true."

May Sends Snappy Reply

May snapped back a formal reply that such a conclusion is "unwarranted" and added that "it parallels other characteristics of the conduct of your hearings to which I object."

The committee turned thumbs down on the conditions with which May hedged an agreement to "consider" a personal appearance to tell of his acknowledged help to an industrial combine headed by Dr. Henry Garsson. It contended that the import of those demands constituted a refusal to appear in its inquiry into the group's profits on $78,000,000 in war contracts and its Washington influence.

Denies Refusal to Appear

"I have not so declined," May declared in his reply. "Before accepting, I am simply seeking a basis upon which such acceptance can be made without being denied the rights and privileges specified."

May struck back, too, at the Senate committee's sharp comment that public servants should seek accountings of their public trust "frequently, fully and openly" to preserve the integrity of Congress.

"Be assured," May wrote Chairman Mead (D-N.Y.) of the Senate committee, "that zeal in the desire to 'account frequently and openly' is not limited to the sphere of any particular group nor is integrity and devotion to duty.

"My request was directed only in my desire that the public be afforded the opportunity for the presentation of evidence by me and others under conditions conforming with the established concepts of judicial fairness.

"If this is fully and completely accorded me upon whom the brunt of attack is apparently leveled I shall willingly appear and it is hoped, regardless of the established practices of your committee, it will recognize the justice of my stated position."

May has insisted that he be given the right to appear accompanied by his attorney with power to cross-examine former witnesses, call his own witness, and subpoena records. The Senate committee has taken a firm position that he should not be given privileges denied others.

In language unusually strong for an official communication, the committee wrote May directly that it could find no alternative to the conclusion "that you admit the facts" gathered in its inquiry "to be true."

Saying that public servants should seek accountings of their public trust "frequently, fully and openly," the committee curtly advised May that "when wrongfully challenged, we should rush to defend" the integrity of Congress.

Rejects May's Conditions

It rejected flatly the conditions laid down by May for his personal appearance to dismiss testimony that he actively aided a group of 19 Illinois concerns to obtain huge war contracts, manpower and materiel favors and advance payments on munitions work. Instead, it suggested that May testify under conditions that he, himself, imposes upon witnesses as chairman of the House Military committee.

The letter, made public by the investigating committee, added:

"The committee is confident that this standard will satisfy all of the safeguards to personal rights which do not conflict with the equally important objective of obtaining full and accurate information for the Congress and the nation, unhampered by technical and legalistic obstructions."

May had written the Senate committee demanding assurance that, if he appeared to testify, he would be given an opportunity to have his counsel present with the right to recall and cross-examine previous witnesses, call his own witnesses, and subpoena records in his behalf.

In reply to May's demands for conditions, the committee declared: "Stripped of 'ifs', 'ands', and 'buts', the plain and simple import of your letter is that you decline to appear before the committee to face and explain the fact that have been presented.

"The committee has sought to find an alternative to the conclusion that you admit these facts to be true, that you are unable to explain or contradict them. It cannot find any such alternative."

"We are all public servants," the letter added. "As such, the citizenry and its representative bodies, of which we are members, are entitled to an accounting of our stewardship of the public trust we have accepted. This should induce us to seek to account frequently, fully and openly.

"No possession should be more precious than the confidence of the public in the integrity and devotion to duty of a representative of the people in a democracy. When wrongfully challenged, we should rush to defend that integrity."

May has acknowledged that he helped the Illinois combine, the Erie Basin and Batavia Metal Products companies, and his "good friends"—the promoters of the combine, Henry and Murray Garsson. But he has denied that he profited personally, and asserted that he only did what any other congressman would do to aid them in making contracts and getting the war job done.

Key Witness Sought

The sharp letter to May overshadowed, meanwhile, the failure of a key witness to appear in the committee inquiry into the high profits, complicated operations and Washington influence of the Illinois combine.

George Meader, committee counsel, reported that Louis Sarelas, $10,000-a-year Washington office manager of Erie Basin and Batavia, under subpoena from the committee, had failed to report as ordered at an executive session of the committee today.

He said a second subpoena had been issued, but not yet delivered because committee investigators were unable to locate Sarelas. He said that Sarelas' family had informed the committee that he did not return home last night.

Sarelas told a reporter later he had not received a subpoena delivered to his home in Silver Spring, Md., because he spent last night with a sister in Washington.

"I have been attending the hearings right along and will attend Monday and testify if the committee wishes me to," he said.

Sarelas was scheduled to go on the witness stand when the committee resumes its public hearings Monday, along with Joseph Freeman, Washington representative of the combine.

The committee wanted to find out from Sarelas if May had ever visited or telephoned the Washington office during the time it was obtaining contracts which added up to more than $78,000,000.

Meader said Sarelas would be questioned, too, on the activities of Albert Jacobson, who resigned from the district bar association under pressure in 1938, got a job as a clerk-typist in the War department at $1,620 a year, and rose swiftly to a $9,975-a-year contract approving post in Chemical Warfare service's legal division.

Under the committee's schedule they will be followed by Allen B. Gellman and Joseph T. Weiss, associates of the Garssons in development of the munitions combine. Unlike Henry Garsson, both have notified the committee that they will waive the constitutional protection which safeguards any person from being required to testify about matters which might degrade or incriminate him.

Unexplained, also, was the identity of a witnes who appeared before the committee during the executive session. So secret was his testimony that committee whisked him through a back exit upon its conclusion, and members refused to identify him or explain why he was called.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the committee discused briefly what steps should be taken if May refuses to appear voluntarily, but deferred a decision temporarily. Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) has declared that a subpoena should be the next step.

Other members, however, have taken the stand that a subpoena should be issued only as a last resort, and that legal action should not be taken to force May's attendance until all other witnesses have been called.

ARMY TO EXPAND AVIATION TRAINING

JUL 14 1946

WASHINGTON, July 13—(AP)—Outstanding Army airmen will spend five of their first 20 years service in school under plans announced today by the Army Air forces.

One in every ten officers will be in school at any one time, it was estimated by Maj. Gen. David M. Schlatter, deputy commander of the new air university system of training.

Topped by an air war college at Maxwell field, Ala., the air university includes five schools which will start full scale operation in September. Included are;

Air command and staff school, at Maxwell field; air special staff school, Gunter and Graig fields, Ala.; school of aviation medicine, Randolph field, Texas, and Air institute of Technology, Wright field, Ohio.

ARMY SENDS BIG PLANE ON MISSION TO EUROPE

JUL 14 1946

WASHINGTON, July 13. — (AP) The Army sent its huge "flying boxcar" winging toward Europe today for the first time.

Eight paratroopers were aboard. American and British occupation troops will be shown the newest wrinkles in parachute tactics and air cargo transport.

The two-engine plane, officially known as the C-82 "Flying Packet" is the Army's latest standard air carrier.

Troops will witness demonstrations of unloading and discharging 55 millimetre howitzers and a 2 1-2 ton truck as well as parachute drops.

The detachment, numbering 14 including air crew, is to proceed to England after arriving at Wiesbaden, Germany, and then return to the American occupation zone for demonstrations.

Eisenhower Honored by Greece

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower received today the Grand Cross of the Order of George I with swords, awarded by King George of Greece. The presentation to the Chief of Staff was made at the War Department by Lieut. Gen. Alexander Papagos, retired, who commanded the Greek armed forces during the Albanian campaign and is now on a semi-official visit to the United States.

Same Ships Soon For GI's, Kin

JUL 14 1946

Washington, July 13—Army men with dependents soon will have their families with them on the same ship when they go overseas, the adjutant general's office says.

With the Transportation Corps, it is working to speed the migration of dependents going overseas. The office says they will be moving much faster soon.

Biggest problems are shortages of shipping space, and housing in overseas theaters, but they're being licked gradually.

3,022 Have Gone

A total of 7,789 families were approved to go to the European theater between April 1 and July 31. So far only 3,022 have embarked, but Lieut. Col. R. F. Oakes of the Transportation Corps is confident the others will have left by the end of this month.

From April 1, when the migration really began, to June 27 a total of 5,800 families had gone to all theaters. A family is defined as a wife only or a wife and children.

Sometimes a family is delayed several months in departing. That usually is due to problems in the particular area for which they are headed.

The reason the Army thinks it will be possible before long for men to take their families with them is that the number of requests from men now overseas for their dependents to join them is slackening.

Europe Getting Most

A breakdown of June embarkations illustrates where most dependents are going. Here's where 2,227 went: Europe, 1,392; Alaska, 49; South Atlantic, 111; Africa and Middle East, 5; Mediterranean, 123; Mid-Pacific, 232; West Pacific, 31; Japan and Korea, 312.

The Army says preference no longer is being shown to rank in getting a man's dependents overseas and helping him find housing for them.

A colonel just back from Tokyo said the Army is taking over homes once occupied by foreign diplomats there and assigning them to men on the basis of family size, regardless of rank.

Wallace Sees Arms Causing High Taxes

JUL 14 1946

Calls U. N. Chief Hope for Settled World Economy

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Commerce, told the American people tonight that their taxes can be cut "only when we have a world in which high armaments won't be necessary."

"And that kind of world," Secretary Wallace said in remarks prepared for a radio broadcast, "can come only with world-wide economic co-operation, bolstered by political co-operation in the United Nations."

Appearing on the program with William L. Clayton, Assistant Secretary of State, on the National Broadcasting Company series on foreign policy, Secretary Wallace called for furtner large foreign loans by the United States "if we seriously want to exercise leadership for peace and greater freedom of trade."

Mr. Clayton set up $8,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000 as an annual goal for United States exports.

It will take at least that volume, said the State Department's ranking economic official, to keep America's economy running at top speed. He added:

"That figure may even be too low, if we get inflation and the value of the dollar goes down.

"And, of course, in the long run we'll need to import at least as much as we export or people abroad won't be able to buy our goods—at least not for long."

Both men agreed that the United States, as the world's greatest producing nation and its only great lending nation, has at the moment responsibility for leadership in economic and political affairs.

Spy Agent Carried $10,000 in Girdle

JUL 14 1946

But F. B. I. Got Her Money, Not Nazis in U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP).—The Germans used every trick—including a woman who had $10,000 stuffed in her girdle—in attempts to smuggle money to their spies in this country during the war.

But the Department of Justice announced today that another $180,000 in cash and valuables headed off before it got to the Nazi agents is now ready to be turned over to the Alien Property Custodian.

This brings to $366,000 the amount of spy money collected by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and deposited in the Treasury General Fund.

J. Edgar Hoover, F. B. I. director, said most of the money was sent over in United States currency.

The valuables included a fancy diamond ring, some rare stamps and expensive watches.

In addition to the woman with the expensive girdle, the Germans tried such stunts as these:

A seaman tried to bring in a large denomination bill. It was found in his bridgework.

Another tried to get money through by putting it under the paper lining of a cigar box.

The F. B. I.'s biggest haul came in January, 1943. That's when it turned over to the Treasury nearly $171,000 in cash, obtained from eight Nazi saboteurs. Six of these later were executed.

Another big catch was $56,694.61 obtained from William Curtis Colepaugh and Erich Gimpel, who were landed on the coast of Maine in November, 1944. The F. B. I. caught them a month later.

PAPER SAYS ARMY SMASHED RADIOS

JUL 14 1946

Atlanta Journal Charges Equipment Was Wrecked

Atlanta, July 13 (AP)—The Atlanta Journal said tonight that 50 tons of Army radios and radio equipment, "bearing signs of having been smashed deliberately with hammers and hacked with axes," are being unloaded here as junk.

The newspaper quoted an unnamed "young Atlantain who served as a radio operator in the Navy" as saying after his examination of the material that much of it was new. He estimated the equipment cost $1,000,000.

The Journal said the junk was purchased by the Atlanta Steel Supply Corporation for $12.88 a ton, or a total of $644.

Salvage Called More Expensive

The newspaper said the equipment came from Warner-Robins Field, at Macon, Ga., and quoted Capt. H. R. Daniels, public relations officer there, as saying:

"Most of the material was obsolete as far back as 1939, 1940 and 1941. It is all Army stuff, and it is a fact that salvage of parts suitable for commercial use would be more expensive to the Government than it is to sell it as junk.

"Some of it likely is classified (secret) equipment mutilated under Army regulations as a security measure. And it is probable that if the equipment were salvaged and placed on the market, it would have resulted in the loss of many jobs in commercial plants manufacturing radios and parts."

View Camera Holders

The Journal said many of the radios appeared "to have been smashed and hacked just enough to permit disposal by the Army as junk."

The paper said a professional photographer found several "8 by 10 holders for view cameras" which are difficult to purchase on a civilian market.

MONTANA CHARGE STIRS COMMITTEE

JUL 14 1946

Report Wheeler "Dominates" Probe Heard By Opponent

Washington, July 13 (AP)—A campaign opponent's assertion that Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D., Mont.) "dominates" the Senate Campaign Investigating Committee precipitated today a verbal battle between the committee's clerk and its chief investigator.

George Barker, investigator who held hearings in Montana, told the committee today that Leif Erickson, Wheeler's opponent for the Democratic senatorial nomination, had said he was informed, possibly by the committee clerk, that Barker had been hired at Wheeler's instance.

Mrs. Grace Johnson, committee clerk, testified indignantly that she didn't know Erickson, hadn't talked to him on the phone or otherwise and hadn't asked anyone else to communicate with him.

"Extremely Rude"

Furthermore, Mrs. Johnson said that Barker had been "extremely rude" to her, adding:

"He has not been a gentleman at all in the time that he has been on the committee."

She testified under questioning that she had been employed by the Senate Small Business Committee, of which Senator Murray (D., Mont.) is chairman. Murray has opposed Wheeler's renomination.

Barker's assertion that Erickson had charged the committee was "dominated" by Wheeler prompted a demand by Senator Bridges (R., N.H.) for a thorough investigation.

Bridges Expresses Concern

"I want this committee run squarely on the level, without any discrimination against anybody concerned," Bridges asserted. Senator Johnson (D., Col.), acting chairman, echoed the sentiments.

Barker told the senators that at no time had he been given "the slightest intimation that this investigation was to be slanted either in favor of Erickson or Senator Wheeler."

Toward the end of the hearing Mrs. Johnson told Senators Johnson and Bridges that "when Senator Ellender (D., La.), chairman of this committee, returns I intend to tell him fully about the disgraceful and deplorable attack Mr. Barker has made on me this afternoon."

She added she intended to see "the best lawyer I can find."

"There is not one thing he (Barker) can prove," she asserted.

Montana Hearing Called Fair

Bridges said if "there is any basis for Erickson's charge, I want to get to the bottom of it. I want to see action taken, and drastically."

John B. Layton and George E. Cooper, members of the metropolitan police force, lent to the committee to make the investigation in Montana, testified the hearing there had been conducted openly and fairly.

The hearing adjourned until next week, probably Tuesday, when witnesses from Montana and New York will be examined. They are expected to testify as to how funds were raised to publish two books and a circular which Senator Wheeler charged were attempts to "smear" him.

Little In Europe $400,000 Won't Buy, Advertiser Finds

Seattle, July 13 (AP)—An American who will offer up to $400,000 can buy almost anything in Europe from a castle in Switzerland, a villa in Italy, a surplus airbase in France or an island off the coast of Scotland, Hermann Schoenen, of Seattle, has discovered.

All you need to do is advertise, he says, and there are scores of people willing to help you spend your money.

Schoenen, an engineer at the Boeing Aircraft Company, advertised in the London Times that he was in the market for real estate. He offered up to £100,000 pounds (approximately $400,000 American money).

His Ad In The London Times

He said he had inherited the money, but it is tied up in European countries where foreign exchange laws prohibit the removal of capital. Rather than take a chance on fluctuating foreign currency, Schoenen decided to try and buy real estate.

"Wanted, water-front estate on small island, with medium-sized house, should have small harbor with pier and necessary buildings for operation; must be in good condition; consider England, France, Switzerland. Up to £100,000."

He then listed his American address.

And Some Of The Responses

An owner of a castle sent a picture showing a magnificent estate on an island in Lake Lucerne, Switzerland. It is surrounded by an ancient but well-kept moat.

The airbase owner in France explained that the property was used during the war but had been turned back to him. The island off Scotland also had a large home and a three-masted schooner to go with it.

Real-estate men in the United States heard of his plans and have telephoned from all parts of the nation offering to sell European property.

Why doesn't he go to Europe to spend his money?

"I was born in Germany and one finds that money isn't everything after comparing conditions in the United States with those in foreign countries."

Navy To Commission Carrier Saipan Today

Philadelphia, July 13 (AP)—Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, famous carrier task-force commander of the war in the Pacific, will be the principal speaker tomorrow at commissioning of the aircraft carrier Saipan, first of a new class to join the United States Fleet.

More than 1,400 persons are expected to attend the ceremony at the Philadelphia naval base. Vice Admiral James L. Kauffman, commandant of the 4th Naval District, will turn the new ship over to her commanding officer, Capt. John G. Crommelin, veteran naval pilot from Wetumpka, Ala., who will be in command during the shakedown cruise scheduled in August.

The Saipan, a 20,000-ton ship listed by the Navy as a light carrier in comparison with the standard 27,000-ton Essex class and the giant 45,000-ton Midway class, is named for the Mariannas island that was a principal base for United States air attacks against Japan. The ship's anti-aircraft armament is ten twin mounts and five quad mounts of 40-millimeter and sixteen twin mounts of 20-millimeter machine guns.

BATTLESHIP COLORADO JOINS INACTIVE FLEET

SEATTLE, July 13 — (AP) The U.S.S. Colorado, which fought through eight campaigns and engagements from Tarawa to Okinawa and lost 84 of her officers and crewmen, started her postwar "vacation" today.

The skippers of many of her sister ships were on hand for the ceremonies which transferred the battleship to the inactive 19th fleet where she will remain in readiness for any future call to duty. She was launched in 1921.

BY CHARLES A.GRUMICH

NEW YORK, JULY 13-(AP)-ADVOCATES OF AUSTRALIAN-AMERICAN PROPOSALS FOR AN AUTONOMOUS INTERNATIONAL ATOMIC CONTROL AGENCY PUSHED AHEAD DOGGEDLY TODAY ON A COURSE WHICH MAY LEAD TO A DECISIVE SHOWDOWN WITH RUSSIA OVER THE BIG POWER VETO IN THE UNITED NATIONS.

THESE PROPONENTS CONCEDED THAT RUSSIA COULD BLOCK ANY MOVE TO AMEND THE CHARTER ON THE VETO QUESTION, SIMPLY BY INVOKING THE VETO ITSELF. NEVERTHELESS, THEY PROCEEDED ON THEIR COURSE, WITH THE SUGGESTION THAT THE CHARTER AND THE SET-UP OF THE U.N. ITSELF MIGHT PROVE TO BE OUTMODED IN THE ATOMIC AGE.

THESE FACTORS EMERGED AFTER YESTERDAY'S ACRIMONIOUS THREE-HOUR SESSION OF THE 12-NATION ATOMIC WORKING COMMITTEE AT WHICH:

1--THE RETIRING ATOMIC CHAIRMAN, FOREIGN MINISTER HERBERT V.EVATT OF AUSTRALIA, REJECTED THE RUSSIAN ATOMIC PLAN AS "IMPOSSIBLE."

2--BERNARD M.BARUCH, OF THE UNITED STATES, SAID EVATT'S SUMMATION AS CHAIRMAN "CONFORMS BASICALLY TO THE UNITED STATES PROPOSALS". APPARENTLY REFERRING TO A RUSSIAN DEMAND FOR IMMEDIATE DESTRUCTION OF ATOM BOMBS, BARUCH ADDED THAT "A SOLEMN EXPRESSION OF PIOUS INTENT IS NOT SUFFICIENT X X X PROTECTION."

3--SOVIET DELEGATE ANDREI A.GROMYKO SAID HE SAW NO REASON WHY EXCHANGE OF ATOMIC SECRETS SHOULD NOT BE STARTED IMMEDIATELY AMONG THE UNITED NATIONS. HE OPPOSED UNSUCCESSFULLY THE FORMATION OF 12-NATION COMMITTEES TO CARRY ON UNDER THE COMMISSION.

4--EVATT, ACCORDING TO A WITNESS WHO ASKED NOT TO BE IDENTIFIED, ACCUSED GROMYKO OF OBSTRUCTING PROGRESS ON HIS REPORT BY "TALKING TOO MUCH" AND GROMYKO RETORTED: "NOT HALF AS MUCH AS YOU."

IN A PRELIMINARY TO THAT POINT OF DEBATE GROMYKO TOOK OFFENSE WHEN EVATT OMITTED MENTION OF RUSSIA AMONG THE NATIONS WHICH HAD BEEN HELPFUL IN THE WORK OF THE ATOMIC SUB-COMMITTEE WHOSE EFFORTS WERE UNDER DISCUSSION.

A9

GROMYKO WAS OUTVOTED TWICE ON MOTIONS TO ESTABLISH 12-NATION COMMITTEES. POLAND SUPPORTED HIM ON ONE MOTION AND ABSTAINED ON THE OTHER.

GROMYKO VOTED AFFIRMATIVELY, HOWEVER, ON A MOTION FOR A THIRD COMMITTEE, WHICH WOULD BE CONCERNED WITH EXCHANGE OF SCIENTIFIC

DATA ON THE ATOM BUT WOULD NOT DIVULGE THE SECRETS AS QUICKLY AS THE RUSSIANS WOULD LIKE. BARUCH SAID SECRET INFORMATION WOULD NOT EVEN BE DISCUSSED AT THIS STAGE OF THE DELIBERATIONS.

IT WAS BARUCH WHO MADE THE BROADEST HINT THAT THE ATOMIC CONFEREES MIGHT SEEK NEW MEANS OF OVERCOMING RUSSIA'S OPPOSITION TO YIELDING THE VETO AND THAT THE U.N. MIGHT BE SHAKEN UP TO CONFORM WITH THE DEVELOPMENTS OF THE ATOMIC AGE.

BARUCH FIRST REITERATED THAT HE WAS CONCERNED WITH THE VETO POWER ONLY AS IT AFFECTS ATOMIC ENERGY, AND ADDED:

"I DIGRESS HERE TO REMIND ALL OF US THAT WHEN THE UNITED NATIONS WAS FOUNDED THE ATOMIC BOMB WAS UNKNOWN. THEREFORE, IT IS APPARENT THAT THE PROCESSES SET UP IN THE CHARTER DID NOT--COULD NOT--DEAL WITH THIS PREGNANT SUBJECT.

"IT IS OBVIOUS THAT AN OFFENDER SHOULD BE DEBARRED FROM SITTING IN JUDGMENT IN HIS OWN GUILT."

EVATT SAID FLATLY THAT THE UNITED STATES "ALONE POSSESSES ATOMIC WEAPONS" AND ADDED THAT A "MERE CONVENTION" PROVIDING ATOMIC DISARMAMENT AS PROPOSED BY RUSSIA WOULD APPLY IN FACT ONLY AGAINST THE UNITED STATES.

HE ADDED HIS OPINION THAT IT WOULD BE LEGALLY AND PRACTICALLY IMPOSSIBLE FOR THE SECURITY COUNCIL'S FUNCTIONS TO BE ENLARGED "IN ORDER TO INCLUDE THE MULTIFARIOUS AND DETAILED EXECUTIVE DECISIONS INVOLVED IN THE ADMINISTRATION OF A TREATY FOR THE CONTROL AND DEVELOPMENT OF ATOMIC ENERGY. X X X IF, HOWEVER, THE CONTROL SYSTEM OF THE INTERNATIONAL AGENCY WERE X X X SHOWN INADEQUATE OR INEFFECTIVE, THE MACHINERY OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL WOULD BE INVOKED."

A10 JUL 14 1946

EVATT STRONGLY SUPPORTED THE UNITED STATES DEMAND THAT THE VETO MUST BE YIELDED ON ATOMIC SUBJECTS.

"I AM CONVINCED," EVATT SAID, "THAT IN THE END THE SOLUTION OF OUR TASK WILL BE IN THE PREPARATION, FOR SUBMISSION FIRST TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL AND EVENTUALLY TO THE UNITED NATIONS, OF A MULTILATERAL TREATY EMBODYING FOUR VITAL SUBJECTS:

"1--AN OVERALL PLAN FOR INTERNATIONAL CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY AND ITS DEVELOPMENT FOR PEACEFUL PURPOSES.

"2--THE CHARTER OF AN INTERNATIONAL ATOMIC ENERGY AGENCY WITH WIDE POWERS TO ADMINISTER THE PLAN AND PUT IT INTO EFFECT.

"3--OBLIGATIONS BY MEMBER STATES NOT TO USE ATOMIC ENERGY FOR PURPOSES OF DESTRUCTION.

"4--TERMS AND CONDITIONS UNDER WHICCH THE SEVERAL PARTS OF THE PLAN SHALL BECOME OPERATIVE IN JUST AND EQUITABLE SEQUENCE."

ALL 12 NATIONS IN THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION WILL BE REPRESENTED IN THE THREE COMMITTEES SET UP TO HANDLE (1) OVERALL PROBLEMS, (2) LEGAL QUESTIONS INCLUDING THE VETO AND (3) SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL INFORMATION WHICH WOULD BE EXCHANGED AMONG THE U.N. WHEN A[illegible] THE CONTROLS ARE SET.

WASHINGTON, JULY 13-(AP)-SECRETARY OF STATE BYRNES WAS FLYING HOME FROM PARIS TONIGHT TO REPORT TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN AND THE AMERICAN PEOPLE A PARTIAL AND UNCERTAIN SUCCESS OF THE GREAT POWERS' EFFORTS TO FORGE REAL WORLD PEACE.

HE HAD PLANS, HOWEVER, FOR A SWIFT FOLLOW-UP OF THE LIMITED ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE PARIS MEETING IN AN EVIDENT ATTEMPT TO EXPAND THE AGREEMENTS REACHED THERE. BEFORE LEAVING PARIS EARLY SATURDAY, HE DISCLOSED HIS INTENTION OF URGING ANOTHER MEETING WITH FOREIGN MINISTERS MOLOTOV, BEVIN AND BIDAULT PRIOR TO THE UNITED NATIONS SESSION AT NEW YORK SEPT. 23.

FURTHERMORE, REVIEWING THE WORK OF THE 28-DAY PARIS SESSION CONCLUDED FRIDAY, BYRNES TOLD NEWSMEN THAT THE AGREEMENT TO INTERNATIONALIZE THE CONTROVERSIAL CITY OF TRIESTE, BETWEEN YUGOSLAVIA AND ITALY, IS "A GREAT EXPERIMENT THAT SHOULD DETERMINE WHETHER IT IS POSSIBLE FOR THE UNITED NATIONS IN A SITUATION OF THIS KIND TO REACH A SOLUTION."

THE STATE DEPARTMENT SAID BYRNES WAS DUE IN ABOUT NOON SUNDAY ON PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S SPECIAL PLANE "THE WHITE HOUSE REPORTED THAT THE PRESIDENT, WHO SCHEDULED A SUNDAY AFTERNOON CRUISE ON THE POTOMAC RIVER, WOULD SEE BYRNES SHORTLY AFTER HIS ARRIVAL.

MONDAY NIGHT BYRNES IS TENTATIVELY SLATED TO MAKE A NATIONWIDE RADIO BROADCAST. RETURNING WITH HIM ARE SENATORS VANDENBERG (R-MICH) AND CONNALLY (D-TEX) WHO ARE EXPECTED TO REPORT TO THE SENATE NEXT WEEK.

BYRNES AND THE SENATORS LEFT WASHINGTON A MONTH AGO TODAY FOR THE SECOND HALF OF THE PARIS FOREIGN MINISTERS CONFERENCE. THE FIRST HALF ENDED IN ALMOST TOTAL FAILURE THREE WEEKS EARLIER.

WHAT RENDERED THE SUCCESS OF THE SECOND HALF PARTIAL AND UNCERTAIN, IN THE VIEW OF DIPLOMATIC AUTHORITIES HERE, WERE THE FACTS THAT ONLY ONE OF FOUR MAJOR PROBLEMS WHICH BYRNES HOPED TO SOLVE AT PARIS WAS ACTUALLY SOLVED, AND RELATIONS BETWEEN RUSSIA AND THE WESTERN POWERS CONTINUED CLOUDED AND INSECURE.

THOSE FAMILIAR WITH BYRNES' PLANS WHEN HE SET OUT ON JUNE 13 KNOW THAT HE WAS DETERMINED TO WORK FOR SUCCESS ON FOUR MAJOR LINES: FIRST, AGREEMENT OF THE BIG FOUR TO HOLD A PEACE CONFERENCE THIS SUMMER; SECOND, EXTENSIVE AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE WESTERN POWERS AND RUSSIA ON PEACE TREATIES WITH ITALY AND THE OTHER SECONDARY EX-ENEMY STATES; THIRD, PEACE TREATY PLANS FOR AUSTRAI; FOURTH, LONG-RANGE CONTROL AND PEACE TREATY MACHINERY FOR GERMANY.

THE FOREIGN MINISTERS OF AMERICA, RUSSIA, BRITAIN AND FRANCE AGREED ON THE SUMMER PEACE CONFERENCE -- AT PARIS JULY 29. BUT IT WILL BE LIMITED TO THE TREATIES WITH ITALY, FINLAND AND THE BALKAN STATES

AND WILL HAVE NO POWER TO FORCE THE BIG FOUR TO DO ANYTHING THAT ANY ONE OF THEM DOES NOT WANT TO DO.

RUSSIA BLOCKED BYRNES' MOVES FOR A PROMPT PEACE SETTLEMENT WITH AUSTRIA AND FOR BETTER AGREEMENT ON GERMAN ISSUES. THIS MEANS, FOR ONE THING, THAT GERMANY REMAINS DIVIDED INDEFINITELY INTO LARGELY EXCLUSIVE ZONES -- A SYSTEM WHICH HELPED COST THE UNITED STATES MORE THAN $200,000,000 LAST YEAR. IT MEANS TOO, THAT OCCUPATION TROOPS REMAIN INDEFINITELY IN AUSTRIA AS WELL AS THE COUNTRIES LEADING TO AUSTRIA.

ON THE REMAINING PROBLEM OF AGREEMENT WITH RUSSIA ON THE ITALIAN AND OTHER PEACE TREATIES THE MINISTERS HAD ONLY PARTIAL SUCCESS BECAUSE OF THEIR DECISION TO DELAY SUCH QUESTIONS AS THE DISPOSITION OF THE ITALIAN COLONIES.

THERE WAS SOME EVIDENCE THAT THE PARIS MEETING PRODUCED LITTLE NEW REAL UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN THE RUSSIAN AND ANGLO-AMERICAN WORLDS. DURING THAT PERIOD MOSCOW STEPPED UP ITS PROPAGANDA AGAINST THE UNITED STATES, ITS DEAS AND ITS METHODS OF DOING THINGS.

ONE OF THE THINGS WHICH INTERESTED AUTHORITIES HERE WAS THE WAY IN WHICH MOLOTOV ARGUED FOR A CENTRALIZED ADMINISTRATION OF GERMANY, THEN BLOCKED ITS IMMEDIATE REALIZATION WHEN BYRNES PROPOSED ACTION. ONE WIDELY-HELD ESTIMATE OF RUSSIA'S GERMAN POLICY IS THAT THE SOVIET UNION IS MAKING A STRONG PLAY FOR POLITICAL SUPPORT IN GERMANY.

THEY EXPECT THE LAGOON'S BOTTOM TO BE LEFT DRY FOR SEVERAL SECONDS, BEFORE THE WATERS RUSH BACK.

HERE ARE OTHER MAGIC TRICKS EXPECTED OF THE ATOMIC BOMB WHEN IT IS TOUCHED OFF BENEATH THE WATERS OF BIKINI LAGOON JULY 25 (JULY 24, U.S. TIME.):

THROWING FIVE TO 15 MILLION TONS OF WATER IN SOLID OR SPRAY FORM AS HIGH AS 25,000 FEET;

CREATING AN ENORMOUS BUBBLE GROWING AT A FANTASTIC RATE WHICH, UPON BURSTING, WILL FORM A TREMENDOUS WATERSPOUT AND LEAVE MOMENTARILY A GREAT CAVITY IN THE WATER.

CRUNCHING THE HULLS OF SOME SHIPS, OVERWHELMING OTHERS WITH WAVES TOWERING MORE THAN 100 FEET WHICH WILL RACE OUT FROM THE BASE OF THE WATERSPOUT.

A GROUP OF TASK FORCE SCIENTISTS, WHOSE FORECASTS ON PHENOMENA IN THE FIRST TESTS PROVED HIGHLY ACCURATE, MADE THESE PREDICTIONS TODAY FOR THE UNDERWATER BLAST AT THE URGING OF REPORTERS, BUT EXPLAINED THAT NOTHING WAS SURE IN THIS BUSINESS.

THEY INCLUDED DR.RALPH SAWYER, TECHNICAL DIRECTOR OF THE TASK FORCE; DR.M.P.O'BRIEN, OCEANOGRAPHER AND DEAN OF ENGINEERING AT THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA; DR.N.E.BRADBURY OF THE LOS ALAMOS, N.M., LABORATORY; DR.G.K.HARTMAN, CIVILIAN SCIENTIST OF THE NAVY BUREAU OF ORDNANCE.

THE NEWS CONFERENCE BROUGHT NEW DETAILS OF THE ELABORATE SAFETY PRECAUTIONS FOR FIRING THE NUCLEAR FISSION DEPTH CHARGE.

BRADBURY SAID THE BOMB WOULD NOT BE ARMED (FUSE DEVICE MADE READY FOR FIRING) UNTIL IT IS READY TO BE FIRED, AND THEN THE ARMING WILL BE DONE REMOTELY BY A COMPLICATED SEQUENCE OF RADIO IMPULSES.

LONDON, JULY 13 (AP)--BRITISH OFFICIALS REGARD THE $3,750,000,000 UNITED STATES LOAN AS A PUMP PRIMER WHICH WILL START TRADE FLOWING ALL OVER THE GLOBE AND RETURN BRITAIN TO ITS PREWAR POSITION AS "MIDDLEMAN TO THE WORLD."

JUL 14 1946

THE APPROVAL HELPS BRITAIN TO DODGE SOME DRASTIC BELT-TIGHTENING, BECAUSE, AS ONE GOVERNMENT SOURCE PUT IT, BRITAIN WAS "ALREADY SCRAPING THE BOTTOM OF THE BARREL" OF ITS DOLLAR RESOURCES.

TRADE WAS TRICKLING ACROSS THE ATLANTIC IN ADVANCE. ONE OF THE FIRST PAYMENTS FROM THE LOAN WILL BE FOR A STILL-UNDETERMINED AMOUNT OF GOODS ALREADY IN THE PIPELINE.

NEWSPAPERS PROBABLY WILL EXPAND TO SIX PAGES FROM THEIR WARTIME FOUR UNDER WHAT ONE OFFICIAL CALLED A "GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT" TO IMPORT MORE NEWSPRINT FOR PUBLISHERS WHO HAVE BEEN INCREASINGLY FRETFUL THAT THEY HAVE TOO LITTLE SPACE TO EXPLAIN THE PROS AND CONS OF SOCIALISM.

THE RATE OF SPENDING WILL BE DETERMINED BY A SORT OF BRITISH ECONOMIC HIGH COMMAND HEADED BY CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER HUGH DALTON.

EVERY THREE TO SIX MONTHS THIS GROUP MEETS TO SCAN AVAILABLE MONEY FOR IMPORTS, ALLOT THE AMOUNTS WHICH MAY BE USED FOR CERTAIN PRODUCTS AND ASSIGN PRIORITY TO THEM, SO THAT THE FUNDS MAY BE SPENT ONLY FOR ITEMS CONSIDERED NECESSARY TO REBUILD THE COUNTRY'S TATTERED ECONOMY.

DIPLOMATIC AND BUSINESS MEN SAY THEY EXPECT LOAN TO INJECT NEW LIFE INTO TRADE BETWEEN THE UNITED KINGDOM AND THE LATIN AMERICAN COUNTRIES AND TO ALLOW RESUMPTION HERE OF IMPORTS SUCH AS COLOMBIAN COFFEE, CUBAN TOBACCO AND BRAZILIAN RAW COTTON.

BRITISH AND OTHER EUROPEAN OFFICIALS AGREED TRADE IN ALL WESTERN EUROPE WOULD BE SPEEDED UP.

Part to Be Spent on Foods

LONDON, July 13 (AP)—To the Englishman in the street, the outward effects of the American loan to Britain will barely be visible.

His wife may notice it in the grocery stores, for part of the money will be spent on American dried eggs, canned milk, canned fruit and fruit juice. But there will not be enough of these things for a splurge on the table; just enough to knock a little of the monotony out of the austere British diet, which now is even below wartime levels.

A large proportion of the American fund will be spent on American machinery. Britain's economic chieftains regard this as the fastest way to whip a manpower shortage, particularly in the coal mines.

Imports of cotton from the United States would probably be somewhat below the 1938 volume of 887,000 bales, an official said. But he added that American cotton would still find a good market here.

Without the loan, an official said, there would have been no way to avoid blocking payments for Hollywood films, which now will remain free. He added that the Virginia tobacco, which makes the Briton's favorite smokes, would virtually have disappeared here.

MOST EUROPEAN COUNTRIES ARE CREDITORS TO BRITAIN. BY ACCELERATING BRITAIN'S INDUSTRIAL PROCESSES AND MAKING MORE BRITISH GOODS AVAILABLE FOR EXPORT, THESE DEBTS CAN BE SATISFIED WITH GOODS.

ONE CONSEQUENCE OF THE LOAN, A BRITISH OFFICIAL EXPLAINED, IS THAT BRITAIN NOW CAN BEGIN TO NEGOTIATE WITH THESE COUNTRIES ON THE FREEING OF SMALL AMOUNTS - -PERHAPS TWO OR THREE PERCENT - - OF BLOCKED STERLING CREDITF FOR CONVERSION INTO DOLLARS WITH WHICH THEY CAN BUY AMERICAN GOODS.

WITHIN A YEAR BRITAIN ALSO MUST MAKE THE PROCEEDS OF ALL CURRENT TRANSACTIONS AVAILABLE FOR FULL USE SO THAT, AFTER THAT TIME, ANY COUNTRY WITH A FAVORABLE TRADE BALANCE WITH BRITAIN MAY USE ITS POUNDS AS IT DESIRES.

INDIA IS THE BIGGEST CREDITOR. HER BILL AGAINST BRITAIN, MAINLY FOR KEEPING BRITISH TROOPY THERE DURING THE WAR, NOW STANDS AT ABOUT £1,240,000,000 ($4,960,000,000).

EXPORTS FOR THE FIRST FOUR MONTHS OF THIS YEAR WERE £109,109,000 ($436,436,000) BELOW IMPORTS -- AN ADVERSE BALANCE WHICH MUST BE MET ALMOST SOLELY FROM THE LOAN. JUL 14 1946

BUT THE STEADY INCREASE OF EXPORTS, OFFICIALS BELIEVE, WILL PUT THE COUNTRY ON ITS FEET BEFORE IT HAS TO MAKE THE FIRST REPAYMENT INSTALLMENT ON THE LOAN IN 1951.

COMMENTING UPON THE EUROPEAN ANGLE, AN OFFICIAL OF THE BELGIAN ECONOMIC MISSION TO LONDON SAID:

"WE WOULD LIKE TO EXPORT MORE TO BRITAIN AND HOPE FOR AN EXPANSION OF THE COMMERCIAL RELATIONS AS SOON AS POSSIBLE."

HOWEVER, BRITAIN OWES BELGIUM MONEY AND "WE CANNOT USE THESE POUNDS IN BRITAIN BECAUSE BRITAIN IS NOT ABLE TO EXPORT THE THINGS WE NEED MOST IN BIG ENOUGH QUANTITIES," HE SAID.

"ANYHOW," HE ADDED, "WE INTEND TO SPEND SOME OF THE POUNDS IN THE UNITED STATES WHEN THE WORLD BANK STARTS OPERATING."

FRANCE, ON THE OTHER HAND, OWES BRITAIN MONEY. ONE FRANCO-BRITISH TRADE AGREEMENT FOUNDERED BECAUSE BRITAIN WAS UNABLE TO ACCEPT THE LUXURIES SUCH AS WINE AND PERFUMES WHICH FRANCE WAS ABLE TO SELL. NOW FRANCE, TOO, HAS AN AMERICAN CREDIT AND CAN ACCEPT THE BRITISH GOODS BECAUSE OF HER BOLSTERED FINANCIAL POSITION.

EVEN WITH THE LOAN, SAID PRIME MINISTER ATTLEE, BRITAIN'S DOLLAR POSITION WILL REMAIN GRIM. THE MAIN REASON FOR NEGOTIATING IT, HE SAID, WAS "TO LET US WORK ALL THE HARDER" ON REBUILDING THE NATION'S EXPORT TRADE. THIS TRADE NOW IS ZOOMING FASTER THAN THE MOST OPTIMISTIC GOVERNMENT PLANNERS ANTICIPATED, THOUGH IT IS STILL BELOW THE PREWAR LEVEL.

FRANCE HEARS CHURCHILL

Briton, In Bastille Day Talk, Calls For Strong Nation

JUL 15 1946

Metz, France, July 14 (AP)—Winston Churchill called on Europe today to "rise from her ruins and spare the world a third and possibly fatal holocaust" and declared that a strong France was necessary to achieve this goal.

The former British Prime Minister, speaking at a Bastille Day celebration marking the 157th anniversary of the French Revolution, said that there could be "no revival of Europe or its culture without a strong France."

Political observers were quick to note the great appeal Churchill made to France without directly referring to a western bloc or even a written alliance between France and Great Britain.

Wants Europe First

"Europe must take first place in our thoughts," he insisted. "May there be a decent life achieved and set up for Europeans." He then carefully pointed up his next remark: "'Europe' is my first watchword. My second watchword is 'France.'"

He referred to the necessity for British-French understanding and said:

"You must never allow the slightest recrimination between Great Britain and France."

Speaking at a dinner given in his honor by the municipality of Metz, Churchill referred to Russia as "our heroic ally."

"No Third Time"

"Twice," he said, "have the United States spent blood in coming to Europe. Twice has Great Britain and the Commonwealth done the same, and twice has our heroic ally Russia. There must be no third time."

Churchill made his entire speech in French, an act which won the large audience.

Reminiscing on the days which led up to World War II, Churchill said the League of Nations, even without the United States, could have preserved the peace of Europe if it had been given a fair chance.

He then went on to explain the purpose of his visit to Metz:

"When President Roosevelt and I decided in 1942, with the support of our Governments and military leaders, on the liberation of North Africa, I gave General [Henri] Giraud a rendezvous in Metz. Nous voici! (Here we are!)."

Crowd Cheers

The crowd cheered.

Giraud was military governor of Metz at the time of France's fall in 1940. He later commanded French forces in North Africa. He had met and welcomed Churchill at the Metz airport this morning.

"No prison has ever been able to hold him," Churchill said of Giraud, who escaped from German military prisons in both, World War I and World War II.

The former head of the Free French forces in North Africa was recently elected deputy to the Constituent Assembly, supported by the Rightist Republican party.

Refers To De Gaulle

Churchill referred to his wartime friend, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, as the "unconquerable great spirit."

Churchill made the speech after the Prefect of Moselle, the Mayor of Metz and Robert Schumann, French Minister of Finance, had paid tribute to him as a great liberator.

Churchill left for the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg shortly after completing his speech. He will remain there overnight as the guest of the Grand Duchess Charlotte.

FRENCH PRESIDENT THANKS AMERICA FOR HELP IN WAR

JUL 15 1946

M. MOST X

PARIS, July 14 — (AP) President Georges Bidault of France today expressed "the gratitude of the French people" to the United States for its part in the liberation of France from the Nazis, and said differences between the two nations were like "old friends' quarrels."

DAY

Replying to President Truman's message of salutation on the 157th anniversary of the French revolution, Bidault, in a shortwave broadcast to the United States, compared the revolutions that gave birth to the two republics and described how each nation had helped the other in gaining its freedom.

Fought to Guard Liberties

"At one time we established our public liberties a few years' time apart," Bidault said in his Bastille day message to America. "To preserve them, to extend them to others, we—you and us—each in turn have offered many an effort and too much blood.

"Fighting at the side of Lafayette, some peasant from Auvergne or Touraine found across the sea the glorious repose promised for the defense of just causes.

"For the same defense years later, with many more men and means because times had changed, your countrymen from Illinois and from Texas came to a land on which they fought and which they helped to deliver—a land they most often knew only from their school teachers.

Thanks American Nation

"We are old friends who may happen to quarrel sometimes as old friends are wont to do. But it is from the bottom of my heart that, in reply to his noble and moving message which recalls in our national holiday our ideas in common, I address my thanks and regards to President Truman and the expression of the French people's friendship and gratitude to the United States of America."

Throughout France and the empire, Frenchmen feted Bastille day with impressive ceremonies and even more impressive festivities.

Bunting-trimmed cafe terrades overflowed and boulevard crowds jostled good naturedly as Bastille day was celebrated in a city decked with French, American and British flags.

Festivities preliminary to traditional all-night dancing on cobblestoned streets and spacious squares drew throngs which broke all records since the early thirties.

An atmosphere of political conciliation reigned.

2,000 Workers March

In the morning's military parade blue-denimed workmen marched for the first time, 2,000 strong, from France's armament factories. In the afternoon's traditional labor parade, from Place de la Republique to Place de la Bastille, controversial political slogans were conspicuously absent.

President Georges Bidault was in the reviewing stand.

Only one incident marred the celebrations—a big piece of stone broke from the famed Arch of Triumph about 4.30 A.M. and landed in two parts at the base.

The two fragments, one weighing 40 pounds, came from a high relief on the structure. The area below was hastily fenced off to keep out holiday crowds.

Heat Wave Broken

A passing thunderstorm last night cleared the air for the first letup in Paris' week-long heat wave.

Crowds turned out this evening for dancing before cafés hung with colored paper lanterns. There were fireworks shows in the sky and brightly lit fountain displays in the squares.

Present also were American soldiers who turned out to see the show, and the traffic jeeps of white-helmeted American MP's. But they were far from dominating the scenes as they had last year.

This time it looked as if peace had come back to France.

Quick End Of Austerity Not Aim Of Loan, Britain Warns People

E. CREACH

London, July 14 (AP)—The British Government, accepting the American loan with relief if not with outspoken gratitude, buckled down tonight to the twin tasks of putting the money to work and convincing Britons it will not improve overnight their austere standard of living.

Authoritative informants said the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Hugh Dalton, will touch on both aspects in a report to the House of Commons tomorrow. This will follow a Cabinet meeting to place official approval on a new import program made possible by the $3,750,000,000 loan from the United States.

Held Business Proposition

In a statement last night welcoming the loan, Dalton avoided any expression of thanks. He took, instead, the point of view adopted generally by the British press and many public figures—that the loan is a business proposition benefiting the United States at least as much as Britain.

"I take the approval of the loan as a sign that our American friends want to work with us, just as we want to work with them," he said.

Dalton will tell the House of Commons that machinery and machine tools will take high priority in the new import program, along with newsprint to increase the size of Britain's four-page dailies and gasoline that may end rationing by Christmas, informants said.

More Food Possible By Fall

More food can be imported and the housewife has been told she may expect additional canned fruit, dried eggs and possibly meat and fats, but not before autumn.

While Britain can draw on her new dollar reservoir up to the limit, financial men say they believe the Government will proceed slowly to avoid buying while prices are high and having to repay when they are lower.

Government sources emphasized that the prime reason for the loan was not to fill British shops with goods, but to help boost the country's already spurting export trade to a record level. Then exports can be used to pay for imports.

Unmixed Gratitude Rare

Expressions of unmixed gratitude were rare. Typical of general reaction was this statement by Sir Norman Kipping, director general of the Federation of British Industries:

"I wish it had not been necessary to ask for the loan, but without it we should inevitably have had to tighten our belts still further."

In an article in the London Sunday Pictorial Lord Vansittart expressed British gratitude for the loan, but complained of "seven months of intermittent abuse of this country."

Vansittart, former chief diplomatic adviser in the British Government, declared that "some people here in Britain were as reluctant to accept the loan as the Americans to grant it, but there was no visible alternative.

Beaverbrook's Paper Gloomy

British press reaction to the loan generall was warm though sprinkled with misgivings. Lord Beaverbrook's London Daily Express took the gloomiest view.

"The consequences will be bitter . . ." that newspaper said. "Two pillars of empire are fallen—the sterling bloc and the dollar pool. . . . On the long view it will threaten Britain with separation from her Empire."

The liberal News Chronicle said:

"We in this country should recognize as did the late Lord Keynes that this is a very generous act."

"Economic Disarmament"

The Financial Times saw many "dangers" in accepting the loan but declared there was no alternative. It said Britain was "obliged to give the lead in economic disarmament much the same way as she did in military disarmament after World War I."

The Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party, said the loan introduced the assurance of stability into a world "in sore need of those qualities."

The independent Yorkshire Post said the "advantages of the loan outweigh its rather onerous terms."

Fought Loan From Start

The Daily Express had fought the loan from the start. It made dire predictions, saying: "The fruits . . . will be bitter in the mouths of young people who have finished winning the war and even more bitter to children whose teeth are to be set on edge ten to twenty years hence.

"Great Empire markets will topple while Britain chases orders in Bogota and Buenos Aires. It is bad news for the people at home. It is bad for the overseas dominions and colonies. It is bad for the world."

'Atomic Diplomacy' And Russia

JUL 15 1946

London, July 14 (AP)—The Moscow radio declared tonight that the new United States memorandum on the atomic-energy control question "does not differ in principle" from the Soviet-opposed Baruch plan.

The United States, in a memorandum to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission disclosed last night, proposed that the veto on atomic questions be eliminated by international treaty rather than by amendment to the United Nations Charter.

First Moscow Comment On It

In the first comment from Moscow on the new proposal, the Soviet broadcast of an article in the Communist party newspaper Pravda declared:

"The new memorandum, presented by the American delegation after the Soviet project was published, does not differ in principle from the Baruch plan, since it does not admit the necessity of concluding a convention on the prohibition of the production and use of the atomic weapon.

"Moreover, this memorandum, as well as the Baruch plan, virtually treats the control organization as a counterbalance to the entire United Nations organization, and to the Security Council in particular."

Appeal Rejected In Pogrom Cases

JUL 15 1946

London, July 14 (AP)—The Moscow radio said tonight that the Polish Supreme Military Court had rejected the appeal of the nine defendants sentenced to death last Thursday for setting off the bloody July 4 pogrom at Kielce, in which 41 persons, mostly Jews, were killed.

A Polish military court tried and sentenced twelve persons in all. The three others, including one woman, received prison terms ranging from seven years to life imprisonment.

All the defendants, upon examination by a military prosecutor, admitted participation and "qualified guilt" in the mob action against Jewish stores, homes and apartments, but resisted prosecution attempts to show specific killings.

Earlier today J. Viktorov, Soviet observer, blamed the Kielce pogrom on the "Fascist underground movement," from which, he said, "threads lead to the PSL (Polish Peasant party) headed by Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk."

"It was not accidental," Viktorov wrote in a Pravda article reported by Tass, "that in an interview with the correspondent of Gazeta Ludowa Mikolajczyk lacked the courage to brand anti-Semitism, resorting only to general condemnation of 'violence and murder of innocent citizens.'"

Viktorov said Augustus Cardinal Hlond, head of the Catholic Church in Poland, also refused to condemn those responsible for the pogrom and "made a statement to foreign correspondents fully in the spirit of Goebbels propaganda."

MOSCOW ART IS 'OUTRAGED'

JUL 15 1946

New York Times Article On Theater Called Slanderous

London, July 14 (AP)—The Moscow radio today accused Brooks Atkinson, former Moscow correspondent of the New York Times, of making "slanderous statements" about life in the Soviet Union and said "Soviet art workers are particularly outraged by Mr. Atkinson's assertion that the level of the theater and music in the U.S.S.R. is low."

Called "Gangster Of The Press"

The broadcast said Atkinson, target of a similar attack in the Communist party newspaper Pravda last Thursday, was a "gangster of the press."

Atkinson's Comment

It quoted a letter to Pravda from Alexei Popov, head of the theater section of the Society of Cultural Relations with foreign countries and art director of the Red Army theater, as saying Atkinson had sent him letters praising the work of the Russian theater.

"Popov observes quite justly," the broadcast said, "that such duplicity on the part of Atkinson certainly will not strengthen the trust of the Soviet people in representatives of the foreign press working in the U.S.S.R."

[The New York Times published a statement by Atkinson today in which the correspondent acknowledged his praise for a Popov production, but said he had singled out Popov's "She Stoops to Conquer" as "an exception to the general mediocrity of the Soviet theater."

[Atkinson recalled a recent article from Moscow on the Soviet theater in which he said: "The Moscow theater generally seems to be living in the past. It is conservative in style and taste, which is surprising in a country that is constantly beating its chest over its progressiveness; and it lacks artistic vitality."]

HOUSEWIVES IN BRITAIN FIGHT BREAD RATION

JUL 15 1946

LONDON, July 14. — (AP) Petitions signed by 315,000 housewives beseeching King George VI to repeal bread rationing were submitted to the Office of Minister of Food John Strachey today, one week before the latest British rationing scheme becomes effective.

Borne by a thousand booing women who marched from a protest meeting in Trafalgar square to the Home office, one petition asked the King "to exercise your prerogative and dissolve Parliament, as it no longer represents the will of the people of Britain concerning the rationing of food."

PLANE BAN DELAYS CUPID

But British Girl May Be Able to Keep Wedding Date in Chicago

LONDON, July 14 (AP) — The grounding of Constellation planes threatened to prevent Nora Wood from keeping a date to marry former Sgt. David Eckstein in Chicago on Tuesday, but she may make it yet.

Miss Wood, a 23-year-old British schoolteacher, had planned to leave in a Pan-American Airways Constellation last week, but the ban on the big planes kept her grounded.

Pan-American's Skymasters are reducing the number of those stranded, and a company spokesman said "it looks as if Miss Wood will make it, but it will be a close thing."

Pan American, like British Overseas Airways, had been using Constellations exclusively on the London-New York flights.

ARMY 'MAD' OVER 4 HELD BY RUSSIANS

JUL 15 1946

U.S. Officer In Berlin Asserts 'Something Is Likely To Happen'

Berlin, July 14 (AP)—A high-ranking United States Army officer said tonight that if the Russians failed by tomorrow to release an American warrant officer and his wife, being held for apparent unauthorized entry into the Soviet occupation zone, "something is likely to happen because we are getting mad about this."

The officer, who declined to be quoted by name, said the Russians had broken their promise to release Warrant Officer Samuel L. Harrison, of San Antonio, Texas, and his wife, Helen, who disappeared into the Russian zone on July 1 when, without the required written travel orders, they were reported to have exceeded zonal limits to visit a pet shop.

No Word Of Two Officers

Giving voice to a shortening of tempers among American Army officials over what has become an unprecedented case, the officer said:

"The Russians gave us a definite commitment they would return the Harrisons yesterday or today. We sent some agents down to the Russian Kommandantur to fetch them, but they did not get them."

There still was no word tonight on the fate of two other American Army officers—Capt. Harold Cobin, of Newark, N.J., and Lieut. George E. Wyatt, of Oklahoma City—who were last seen July 4 when they were reported to have boarded a train for Oranienburg, north of Berlin.

Retaliation Reported

There have been unofficial reports here that the Russians have been holding the Americans in retaliation for alleged similar detainments of Russian personnel by American authorities. However, American security officers here have denied that they have held any Russians as long as two weeks without turning them over to Russian authorities or giving a full report of their apprehension.

Soviet authorities have said nothing publicly about the four missing Americans, nor has any word of them been printed in the Soviet-controlled section of the Berlin press.

Topic Of Berlin

The case, however, has become a major topic of conversation among Berliners, and a remark frequently heard is, "so, now Americans as well as Germans are disappearing."

It was learned that attempts to effect the return of the four—the Harrisons first because a woman is involved—have gone through all channels—the Berlin district command headed by Maj. Gen. Frank A. Keating, the theater command of Gen. Joseph T. McNarney and the military government headed by Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

The issue came up in the Allied Control Authority's co-ordinating committee Friday, in the form of a proposal to draft a four-power agreement on how each occupying power should handle nationals of another occupying power who violate interzonal travel rules.

GERMANS GET MORE FOOD

JUL 15 1946

Russians Increase Rations in Their Occupation Zone

BERLIN, July 14 (AP)—The Russian Military Government anounced today a nincrease in food rations in the Russian occupation zone in Germany for persons regarded as non-essential to industry.

Beginning in August children, non-workers and white collar workers will receive an additional 1.76 ounces of brea daily and fifty-three ounces of potatoes monthly. Laborers and children also will receive an increase of about ten ounces monthly in other foodstuffs and the remainder of the population five ounces.

The present calory levels in the Russian zone were not announced.

U.S. May Revise Plans For Reich, Pauley Says

JUL 15 1946

Frankfurt, Germany, July 14 (AP). Edwin W. Pauley, a member of the Allied Reparations Commission and a personal representative of President Truman, said today that America's reparation's plans in Germany might have to be "materially revised" unless Russia changed her reparations policies.

He told newsmen that the Soviet Union was removing finished consumer goods from Germany and declared that this action violated the Potsdam agreement which "provides first priority on German exports to pay for essential imports."

Pauley said his mission was unable to determine how much the Russians were taking out of Germany. The mission had requested but had not received from the Russians figures on removals of current production, he said.

Arrived From Geneva

The mission arrived in Frankfurt today by plane from Geneva to begin a study of reparations in the United States zone. Pauley and his group of experts also will make a side trip to the Ruhr Valley in the British zone. They previously had visited Japan, Korea, Manchuria, Formosa and the Philippines.

"We won't violate the Potsdam agreement unless we are forced to by some other Government's failure to comply," Pauley declared.

To cite America's position he made public a letter he had sent to Soviet Ambassador I. M. Maisky, chairman of the Allied Commission on Reparations, on July 13.

Last Settlement Recalled

"You say," he told Maisky, "that the Russian people are more interested in reparations than in anything else. My people, remembering the last reparations settlement . . . insist we do not forget imports. . . ."

"An export balance in Germany," Pauley's letter continued, "cannot be produced in Germany without some imports, such as food, alloys, cotton, etc. If these indispensable imports . . . are not a charge against exports then you or we or some other economy will have to pay for the imports."

He revealed that in the July 13 letter he told Maisky that reparations should be based "upon things, not upon dollars." He said "our position is to deindustrialize Germany of its war potential. We have subordinated money values to future security."

Army spokesmen said they learned from German sources that former Nazis gained control of Bavarian Medical associations, refused to treat Jews and other "anti-fascists," and made practice by other physicians "uncomfortable."

Romania Election Laws Approved

Bucharest, July 14 (AP)—King Mihai gave Romania's new electoral laws royal assent last night, although the Government and opposition parties had failed to come to terms over minor differences on the laws within the 48-hour limit set by the monarch. The date for the elections will be set by a superior electoral committee to be chosen soon.

Sweden Refuses To Join Any Great Power Bloc

Stockholm, July 14 (AP)—Foreign Minister Oesten Unden today said Sweden was ready to assume the obligations connected with joining the United Nations, but that she would not join any great power bloc.

The aim of the Swedish Government will be to seek to prevent any cleft arising between the East and West, he declared, adding that Sweden pays considerable attention to the possibility the present disagreement in the Security Council may last into the future.

SWEDEN REPLIES TO REDS

STOCKHOLM, July 14—(AP) The Swedish Foreign office informed Russia today that, according to Swedish law, no objection can be raised to either Swedes or foreigners leaving the country. The statement was in reply to a Soviet note which had said that no Russian citizen should be permitted to leave Sweden unknown to the Soviet legation here.

2 NAZI PHYSICIANS SEIZED IN BAVARIA

JUL 15 1946

MUNICH, Germany, July 14.—(AP) United States military government authorities said today they had discovered that leading Nazi physicians have been allowed to practice in Bavaria despite army regulations against it.

As the first step of an investigation, officers said, two leading German doctors in this area have been placed under house arrest.

Reds Deny U.S. Will Renounce Atomic Bomb

JUL 15 1946

Call Baruch Plan Dictation and Denounce American Policies on Occupation

MOSCOW, July 14 (AP).—A commentator in the official Communist newspaper, "Pravda," charged today that "ruling circles" in the United States in general have no intention of renouncing the atom bomb.

M. Marinin, upholding the Soviet plan for control of atomic energy as contrasted with the United States proposal outlined by Bernard Baruch, declared:

"The atomic bomb called into being 'atomic diplomacy,' and from the entire period of discussion of the problem of atomic energy in the United States the conclusion is reached that ruling circles in the United States in general do not intend to renounce the atomic weapon."

Another "Pravda" writer said the question of economic unification of Germany was "now an order of the day." He added that the Soviet Union favored such a plan but that it could be achieved only by a united central government, with genuine "democratization" of Germany as a forerunner.

Say Reactionaries are Backed

The newspaper "Trud" hit at American occupation authorities in Japan, charging they were supporting "reactionary elements" placing obstacles in the path of Japanese trade unionists.

Marinin charged that Baruch's plan for international control of atomic energy has "two styles, two languages—the language of dictation to everybody with the exception of the United States and the foggy language of indecision regarding the United States."

He said that although United States Senator Brien McMahon, Democrat, of Connecticut, called for creation of an "atmosphere of trust as one of the first needs for successful international collaboration, Baruch's plan of course does not create such an atmosphere."

Marinin maintained that the Baruch plan "does not express the will of humanity and does not answer the demands of the peoples.

"The will of the peoples is absolutely clear," he said. "They demand immediate and complete outlawing of the production and use of atomic weapons. This demand comprises the essence of the Soviet plan introduced in the United Nations Commission for the Control of Atomic Energy."

On the German question Y. A. Viktorov, "Pravda's" international reviewer, wrote that "the American plan for a treaty of demilitarization of Germany, despite its ballyhooed names, presents a step backward from the Berlin (Potsdam) conference decisions and ignores entirely the guaranty of reparations deliveries."

He criticized what he called unsatisfactory projects for partitioning Germany into separate autonomous states or any attempt to force on Germany a "federal system."

"It is characteristic that supporters of these projects contrive in defense of their plans, despite logic and healthy thinking, to combine the partition of Germany with their preachings of 'economic unity,' he said.

Urge Central Rule in Germany

"Not only that, but they attempt to describe the Soviet Union as opposing economic unity. Meanwhile, it is as clear as clear can be that economic unity in Germany can only be achieved by a united central government, and a forerunner of the formation of such a government is genuine democratization of the country.

"The first step toward organizing such a government must be formation of central German administration. In this connection it is in place to note that the proposal for formation of a central German administration was raised by the Soviet govrnment one year ago, but was postponed upon suggestion of the other participants in the Berlin conference. However, this question is now an order of the day.

(A Moscow broadcast declared that "a decision on the German question can be put off no longer, for it creates an atmosphere of instability in world affairs and prevents establishment of the firm peace that the nations long for.")

BRITISH JEWS ASK EVIDENCE

Attlee's Remarks On Palestine Terrorism Cited

JUL 15 1946

London, July 14 (AP)—The chairman of the Board of Deputies of British Jews, Prof. Saul Brodetsky, urged the British Government today to make public the evidence which, Prime Minister Attlee has said, links arrested Jewish leaders with Palestine terrorism.

"One would have thought," Brodetsky told a board meeting, "that the British people would have been satisfied by the production of this alleged evidence of what justification the Government had for their arbitrary action."

Meanwhile, American and British experts prepared to resume their "official level" discussion of the Anglo-American Palestine Committee reporf with no general expectation that immediate admission of 100,000 Jews to Palestine would result.

Britain's "Present Intention"

The diplomatic correspondent of the authoritative Sunday Observer said that if "one or more" recommendations of the committee are found unworkable "it is not the present intention of the British Government to agree that the report should be adopted only in part."

"In that case," the correspondent said, "it is probable that an attempt would be made by the two governments to agree on a new policy for Palestine, starting from but not necessarily based on the report, which could be fitted into the United Nations trusteeship system."

"Though the British Government would like to see the talks expedited, they seem likely to last three or four weeks," said the Sunday Times' diplomatic correspondent, adding that consultations between Foreign Secretary Bevin and Secretary of State Byrnes would follow.

Describing the discussions as "a first attempt to reconcile the widely differing British and American points of view," the writer listed among the differences British "reluctance" to admit 100,000 Jews and United States "reluctance" to promise any needed military help.

General Spears Comments

Meanwhile, Major General Sir Edward Spears, head of the Spears mission to Syria and Lebanon in 1941, said today that in his opinion "Great Britain, the United States and the Dominions should give a lead to Christian opinion by offering to take a considerable quota of the Jews who wish to leave Europe."

Major General Spears predicted in a letter to the Sunday Chronicle that if 100,000 Jews were sent to Palestine this year, as recommended by the British-American inquiry committee, "all hope of peace and security in the Middle East would end."

Cites "Zionist Fanaticism"

"Zionist fanaticism," he said, "is one of the realities of the Palestine problem, and to ignore it is unrealistic. No policy short of surrender to its demands will reconcile it.

"If the British Government decided to admit 100,000 Jews, this would be taken as a first installment obtained by pressure and violence and the same methods would be continued until the objective of a Jewish majority had been obtained."

Dr. Weizmann In Jerusalem

Jerusalem, July 14 (AP)—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish Agency Executive and of the World Zionist Organization, arrived here today from his home at Rhoboth for a joint meeting of members of the Jewish Agency and the Jewish National Council (Vaad Leumi).

Three members of the Executive still are held by the British. Police authorities denied a report circulated in Haifa that Dr. Bernard Joseph, one of the members, was ill and had been taken to a Haifa hospital for observation. The police said Dr. Joseph still was in Latrun detention camp and was in good health.

All-Orient Conference Urged

Cairo, July 14 (AP)—The weekly magazine Middle East Opinion asked today that an all-Orient conference be held at New Delhi, India, to oppose the British-American inquiry committee's proposal that 100,000 Jews be admitted to Palestine this year.

The magazine, edited by Scorate Sekaly, said the request for such a conference also would be published in the Hindustan Times and affiliated papers of India.

Declaring that zionism was making a determined bid to create a Jewish state in Palestine immediately, the magazine said that President Truman had made the Zionist cause his own and "will not refrain from using the armed forces of the United States in order to satisfy the outrageous demands of the Zionists."

Force Can't End Communism, Says Arab League Chief

Alexandria, Egypt, July 14 (AP)—Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha, secretary general of the Arab League, criticized today the Egyptian Government's wholesale arrest of persons accused of being Communists.

"The Arabs support equality and stand for the weak against the strong," said Azzam Pasha, whose organization embraces Egypt and six other Middle East states. "Right and Left in Egypt should be given an equal chance to express their beliefs. We cannot eliminate communism by the use of force and violence."

He expressed his views in an interview.

Premier Defends Roundup

Meanwhile, Premier Ismail Sidky Pasha, at a conference with foreign news men defended the Government's roundup. Approximately 100 persons, many of whom he said were Greeks and other foreigners, were being held.

The Premier said that, although he did not yet have official evidence, such information as he had made him believe that Egyptian Communists had received instructions from abroad to try to break up the negotations on revision of the 1936 British-Egyptian treaty.

Communist-Wafdist Link Denied

"They wanted to break up the negotiations with a continuous general strike," the Premier said.

He denied that there was any relation between the Communists and the Wafdist (Egyptian Nationalist) party, which opposes his regime. Sidky Pasha added that the reason for suppressing the Wafdist newspaper El Wafd Al Misri was "that its editor, Dr. Mandour, is a Communist, and all his articles were Communist propaganda."

Veterans Act To Aid South African Natives

Johannesburg, South Africa—South African veterans have started a movement for a new type of war memorial to their fallen comrades. They agree that those who have fallen would rather have something useful done in their name than to have stone cenotaphs or memorials erected. Their suggestion is establishment of health centers for non-Europeans, throughout the Union.

The movement started among soldiers in Italy and 1,500 promptly agreed to give two days' pay to start such a fund.

His chief of staff, Chen Cheng, and minister of national defense, Gen. Pei Tsung-Hsi, were among the conferees.

C-46 Planes Grounded in China

SHANGHAI, July 14 (AP)—The Central Air Transport Corporation today grounded all its C-46 transport planes pending an investigation of the crash of a C-46 near Tsinan Friday. Thirteen of the forty-nine aboard were killed in the crash and thirty-three others were seriously injured.

Soviet Labor Plans For Japan Called Regimentation Attempt

R. BRINES

Tokyo, Monday, July 15 (AP)—Allied headquarters, replying to Russian labor proposals for Japan, charged today that "certain elements" were using propaganda, terrorism and untruths in attempts to establish "regimentation of the Japanese masses under the leadership of the left."

The charges were contained in a statement issued by General MacArthur's economic and scientific section, which includes the labor division. It said there was "practically nothing new" contained in the program proposed by Lieut. Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko, Soviet member of the Allied (advisory) council for Japan, in a press release July 10.

MacArthur's Approval Seen

"Certain elements here," said the headquarters announcement, "are trying by the usual methods of exaggerated propaganda, the application of terrorism and prevarication of the truth to assume leadership of this labor movement in the hope of re-establishing the regimentation of the Japanese masses under leadership of the left in lieu of the former regimentation under leadership of the right."

The statement, issued by the Public Relations Office, was not attributed to any individual, but presumably it met MacArthur's approval beforehand.

The six-page discussion of the Soviet program, said current or impending legislation covered every reform demanded by the Russians except "the provision that laborers on strike could seize and operate the properties involved.

A Strike Weapon

"This measure of pre-emption and practical confiscation of property without due recompense violates the law of property rights providing for due compensation for the seizure of property," the statement added.

"So far as is known, no such provision exists in any nation in the world. Even in the Soviet Union, it is believed to be most doubtful that such measures are provided for or permitted."

Derevyanko's statement had indorsed so-called production control, a strike weapon used frequently by Japanese unions, which both MacArthur's headquarters and the Japanese Government have condemned.

Recommendations Soon

The headquarters' statement disclosed that specific recommendations for labor reform would be issued within a week by a special labor advisory commission under Chairman Paul L. Stanchfield, which has been investigating the problem for four months.

It added that "SCAP (Supreme Commander, Allied Powers) encourages progress in desirable types of labor legislation but desires that details be worked out by the Japanese themselves through Democratic processes. The ground work has all been to establish a complete and progressive labor system in the new Japan."

It said the Government was drafting a labor disputes adjustment bill and considering a labor protection bill which would establish a 48-hour week, annual vacations with pay and overtime pay; would tighten measures against child labor and dangerous employment for women; and would lay the groundwork for a minimum wage.

Reprisals Forbidden

Current legislation guarantees freedom of unions, forbids reprisals against labor and legalizes collective agreements. The statement acknowledged that safety regulations of present laws were not adequately enforced.

Since the occupation, 4,000 labor unions, aggregating more than 3,000,000 members, have been organized and 212 trade agreements have been signed.

This "is one of the healthiest movements toward democratization that prevails in Japan," the statement said.

TOKYO HEAT ENDS SESSION OF COURT

JUL 15 1946

TOKYO, Monday, July 15—(AP) The hot weather floored the international war crimes tribunal again today and forced it to recess indefinite until a new air conditioning system will work.

The tribunal sat this morning after a recess of five days while the system was being installed. Cool blasts of air greeted the court but before long the room was hot and stuffy again.

"We are informed," Tribunal President Sir William Webb announced dryly, "that the blast of cold air we had this morning is only temporary.

"The water supply is insufficient to keep the machinery running. We are about to be subjected to the same sort of heat we encountered last week. We will adjourn until a date to be fixed."

Webb gave his opinion of Tokyo's heat when he recessed the court last Wednesday, declaring the temperature was interfering with "the proper discharge of our duties."

Court attaches hesitated to predict when the air conditioner might be made to work properly because there is a general water shortage in Tokyo.

Jap War Trial Resumed, Heat Had Forced Recess

Tokyo, Monday July 15 (AP)—The International Military Tribunal trying Japan's wartime leaders, in recess since last Wednesday because of the heat, reconvened today in a newly air-conditioned courtroom.

JAPANESE GET NEW LAW

Severe Punishment Provided for Allied Order Violations

TOKYO, Monday, July 15 (AP)—An Imperial ordinance providing punishment by prison term or fine for Japanese violators of Allied directives went into effect today. Heretofore, Japanese had no such law, and violators had to be tried in Allied provost courts.

Under the new ordinance, prison terms up to ten years and fines to 10,000 yen may be levied against Japanese found guilty of black-market transactions, illegal entry into Allied off-limits areas, damaging Allied property, displaying uncensored or banned books or films, and theft, purchase or illegal possession of Allied property.

So Sorry Please No Thrones Today

TOKYO—(AP) Do you want to become emperor of Japan? Do you want your husband smoked out of a cave on Okinawa? Do you want to quit your job in a brothel?

Then write to General MacArthur! That, at least, is the solution spontaneously reached by thousands of Japanese who have things on their minds.

Japanese of all degrees apparently have decided that the American commander is "Mr. Fixit" for everything.

The three problems mentioned above were among 2,497 letters received in the past two weeks, a typical period.

JAP WOMEN END BAN ON TRIPS TO HOLY PEAK

TOKYO, July 14. — (AP) Democratized Japanese women broke the 1,300-year-old ban against their sex on sacred old Omine mountain and scaled the peak today—with an escort of three policemen to protect them from irate Buddhist priests.

The emancipated feminine climbers did not remain long on the sacred mountain top. The glowering priests, who for centuries have barred all women, watched but otherwise pointedly ignored them. The climb was to the Buddhists a desecration of their holy ground.

SUBMARINE MOVED TO CENTRAL SPOT FOR SECOND TEST

E. FAY

ABOARD THE U.S.S. McKINLEY, Bikini, July 14—(AP) As 70 Army and Navy aircraft engaged in an air rehearsal today for the second Bikini atom bomb test, the submarine Pilotfish was moved into a position that may put her the closest of any target ship to the scheduled underwater explosion on July 25 (July 24 U.S. Time).

The modern, heavy hulled submarine was moored between the carrier Saratoga and the American and Japanese battleships Arkansas and Nagato. The spot where the Pilotfish was moored seems to be the likely location of the atom depth charge.

Whether the Pilotfish will meet the force of the atom bomb on the surface or submerged has not yet been made clear. The task force commander has said that the majority of the submarines used in this test will be submerged.

Another submarine, the Skate, was close under the first bomb, which burst in the air. The Skate came out of the encounter able to operate under her own power although she was not able to dive.

The battleships New York and Pennsylvania at present are anchored some distance away from the lethal zone. The State of New York wants its namesake as a war relic.

Underwater A-Bomb Blast May Expose Lagoon Bottom

ABOARD U.S.S. MOUNT McKINLEY, July 14—(AP) Scientists expect strong magic to be conjured by Bikini's second atomic bomb, such as rolling back the waters of the lagoon like a Biblical Red sea.

They expect the lagoon's bottom to be left dry for several seconds, before the waters' rush back.

May Do Unusual Tricks

Here are other magic tricks expected of the atomic bomb when it is touched off beneath the waters of Bikini lagoon July 25 (July 24, U. S. time.):

Throwing five to 15 million tons of water in solid or spray form as high as 25,000 feet;

Creating an enormous bubble growing at a fantastic rate which, upon bursting, will form a tremendous waterspout and leave momentarily a great cavity in the water.

Crunching the hulls of some ships, overwhelming others with waves towering more than 100 feet which will race out from the base of the waterspout.

A group of task force scientists, whose forecasts on phenomena in the first tests proved highly accurate, made these predictions today for the underwater blast at the urging of reporters, but explained that nothing was sure in this business.

They included Dr. Ralph Sawyer, technical director of the task force; Dr. M. P. O'Brian, oceanographer and dean of engineering at the University of California; Dr. N. E. Bradbury of the Los Alamos, N. M., laboratory; Dr. G. K. Hartman, civilian scientist of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance.

Great Safety Precautions

The news conference brought new details of the elaborate safety precautions for firing the nuclear fission depth charge.

Bradbury said the bomb would not be armed (fuse device made ready for firing) until it is ready to be fired, and then the arming will be done remotely by a complicated sequence of radio impulses.

Other precautions include padlocks on radio firing apparatus for both the bomb-bearing barge and the trigger ship.

The man who pulls the safety switch on the bomb also is the keeper of the keys for unlocking the trigger transmitter.

If, because of mechnical failure, the trigger mechanism fails to operate for more than a hour or so on Baker day, there will be a delay of more than 24 hours while recording instruments are reset.

The bomb will be lowered from the barge "some time" in advance and only after all but the experts are safley outside the danger zone.

O'Brien estimated it would take 20 to 30 seconds for the spout to reach the upper levels of spray, which he variously estimated would reach heights of 15,000 to 25,000 feet.

He said the spectacle probably would look "something like Old Faithful geyser or Yosemite falls upside down."

It is posible the bomb will blast a submarine crater in the coral of the lagoon floor.

Concluding the various phenomena forecasts of scientists was the cautious comment of Bradbury that no atom bomb ever has been exploded under water and, therefore, what will happen is uncertain.

Maybe, Bradbury said, the bomb will just "fizzle" under water.

At a later news conference, Admiral Blandy disclosed a new indication of the power of the July 1 air blast. He said pictures made by divers showed that the transport Gilliam, which was close under the bomb, was "badly torn up" and the entire ship above the main deck "practically gone."

Animals Aboard Ships at Bikini 'Die Like Flies'

Navy Officer Reports They Appear Healthy One Day And Drop Off the Next

KWAJALEIN, Monday, July 15 (AP).—A report that Bikini test animals have begun "dying like flies" came today from the U. S. S. Burleson, highly secret animal ship from which reporters have been barred.

An officer who visited the Burleson said animals that appear healthy and have a normal blood count one day "drop off the next day." Asked whether any animals would be taken to the United States for further study, as originally planned, the officer exclaimed: "What animals?"

The inference was that at the rate the animals were dying recently there soon would be few if any left.

On July 10 Navy Captain Shields Warren, Harvard pathologist, said the survivors would be taken to the Universities of Chicago, California, Cornell, Harvard, Rochester and Stanford and the Navy Laboratory at Bethesda, Md., for a long-term study of radiation effects.

Another officer said that the Pig 311, fished from the waters of Bikini Lagoon after the July 1 atomic bomb explosion, still was alive yesterday. He understood, however, that the pig was showing a diminishing blood count and other internal signs of damage.

At the indicated rate the animals are dying, it now seems fairly certain the atomic bomb radioactivity at Bikini was far more deadly than many had thought.

REVISED MEASURE IN TERRIBLE SHAPE, PRESIDENT HOLDS

JUL 15 1946

House Will Act Tuesday on Committee Plan for Conference.

G. O. P. HAS PROPOSAL

Key Republicans Favor Immediate Ballot on De-Control Items.

WASHINGTON, July 14 — (AP) President Truman served notice on Congress today that he disliked pending OPA legislation about as much, or possibly even more, than the price control bill he vetoed two weeks ago.

Mr. Truman asserted specifically that the measure, as passed by the Senate Saturday, "is in terrible shape" and "couldn't be any worse."

This was taken generally as a hint that he may veto the new bill, unless basic changes are made in it. It came in an informal opinion expressed to Senators Connally (D.-Tex.) and Vandenberg (R.-Mich.). The President met them following their return from the foreign ministers' meeting in Paris, and OPA was one of the first things Vandenberg asked him about.

Confusion in Congress

Meanwhile, the congressional battle over the now-dead agency hit a new peak of confusion, with little clear indication of what action will be taken.

Leaders of assorted blocs on Capitol hill voiced widely-varying ideas of what will happen next.

Most of them agreed, however, that they will have to make some fundamental changes in the Senate-approved measure or it will run into the Presidential veto.

In this connection, Senator Taylor (D.-Idaho) urged in a statement that Mr. Truman veto the bill, unless it is modified, on grounds that it now is "a hoax."

House to Act Tuesday

The next test on the measure will come Tuesday, when the House considers a Rules committee recommendation that a Senate-House conference committee be given the task of rewriting the measure. Any action taken by such a group would be subject to votes in both chambers later.

With this showdown in the offing, these varying developments were reported:

1. Several key House Republicans, including Reps. Halleck of Indiana and Wolcott of Michigan, said they favored rejection of the Rules recommendation. They urged, instead, an immediate House ballot on the Senate provisions lifting controls from many items. Several of these G.O.P. officials said they favored sending the Senate-passed bill, as is, to the White House.

2. Administration leaders worked feverishly to line up support for the Rules suggestion. They declared their only hope of getting what they termed a "satisfactory" bill is to send it to the conference committee, where an attempt can be made to restore some of the controls.

Pessimistic on Outcome

3. Several Administration spokesmen in the House told a reporter they are growing increasingly pessimistic that anything can be worked out in Congress which Mr. Truman will accept. One of them, Rep. Patman (D.-Texas), said:

"We are getting discouraged. It certainly is going to be a hard fight to get a suitable bill. We will try, but I'm not sure we can do it."

4. Several legislators said they are urging that a conference be held between Mr. Truman and some of the Senate-House conferees, if they are named, to work out an advance understanding on what the conferees might be willing to do, and what the White House would take.

Hint of Compromise

5. Some Senate Republicans began talking of a possible compromise by which controls would be left off many items, as in the Senate bill, but be subject to restoration. Under this plan an independent decontrol board would be given authority to restore ceilings on the items if prices moved upward too swiftly.

JUL 15 1946

6. Rep. Marcantonio (AL-N.Y.) said he will start circulating a petition demanding that Congress stay in session "until a decent OPA bill is passed."

The OPA has been dead officially since June 30. In the Senate passed bill it would be revived until June 30, 1947. But the agency would be barred from controlling prices on meat, poultry, eggs, milk, dairy products, grain cottonseed tobacco, livestock and poultry feed, soybeans, and petroleum.

The measure would continue rent controls in states not having their own machinery for such controls.

It would give the agriculture secretary, rather than OPA, last word on removing food controls. Price ceilings for producers, manufacturers and processors would be kept at levels to take care of cost increases since 1940, with OPA allowed to make "reasonable adjustments" to meet abnormal boosts. The earlier bill vetoed by the President used the first six months of 1941 as the base period in such calculations and authorized subsequent weighted average increases in unit costs throughout the industry involved.

Truman Hints Veto If Senate's OPA Bill Is Passed by House

TALBOT DEMANDS GRADUAL END TO OPA PRICE CONTROL

JUL 15 1946

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP) Representative Joseph E. Talbot today asked for gradual decontrols on prices as the middle ground between the extreme contentions of a "strong" OPA and no OPA at all.

Talbot made the statement in his final "report to the people" broadcast, a weekly radio series heard on three Connecticut stations.

Talbot stated that, "the contention of the OPA, of course, was that business could absorb the increased cost of higher wages without raising prices. That was not only impractical. It was impossible. The result was decreased production of civilian goods—at a time when production should have increased by leaps and bounds," he continued.

"The profit incentive, backbone of the free enterprise system that has built this country, was eliminated," the Naugatuck congressman asserted, and continued, "It is unthinkably silly to ask any good business man to operate at a loss."

Talbot repeated his contention that production is the key to the battle against inflation. He stated, "If goods are hard to get, people are willing to pay more to get them. That is what has created the black market. If you make goods more easily available, if you produce more so that anyone can get what he wants without paying 'under-the-table' prices, then the simple element of competition is going to drive down the price."

Talbot concluded that the present situation "is definitely the fault of a philosophy that held that wage control and price control could be divorced from each other and that prices could be held down while wages went up." Talbot called that philosophy "purely a pipe dream."

BYRNES, SENATORS ARRIVE AT CAPITAL

JUL 15 1946

Truman Warmly Greets Party Returning from Paris Parley.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—With a warm welcome home from President Truman, Secretary of State Byrnes today completed his latest peace-making mission to Europe and summed it up this way: "We made some progress."

"I'm very happy to be home," he told reporters upon landing at Washington airport, "and I know I speak for our delegation when I say we made some progress on the road back to peace."

Greeted by Truman

As Byrnes stepped down from the President's own big four-engined plane, followed by Senators Connally (D-Tex) and Vandenberg (R-Mich), the chief executive waved and smiled a greeting from the foot of the landing steps. He gave the three the news of final passage of the $3,750,000,000 British Loan Bill by Congress but said the OPA Bill is in "terrible shape."

Byrnes told the President he would make his first personal report at the White House tomorrow morning on the results of his negotiations with Foreign Ministers Molotov, Bevin and Bidault.

Will Broadcast Report

Tomorrow night Byrnes will make a radio talk via the Mutual Broadcasting system and the American Broadcasting company from 10 to 10:30 p.m.

His "some progress" summary presumably indicated the line of his reports to both the President and the nation. Behind it was the fact that while the four ministers agreed on a peace conference at Paris July 29 to discuss treaties for Hitler's ex-satellites, they had made no agreements on German or Austrian problems.

Byrnes mission to Paris had lasted a month. He left Washington June 13 and the meeting with the Russian, British and French foreign ministers began June 15. It lasted 28 days, ending Friday.

In view of the failure make any agreements on Germ and Austrian problems, he has nounced he wants another meetin of the four between the end of the Par peace conference and the beginnin of the United Nations assembly in New York Sept. 23.

BRITAIN'S USE OF LOAN MAY BEGIN IN WEEK

JUL 15 1946

Issue Expected To Shift To Credits For Others, Notably Russia

Washington, July 14 (AP)—Anglo-American trade officials believed today Great Britain may be drawing upon her $3,750,000,000 loan within a week.

The next question, among Administration leaders, is how much money this nation may be expected to loan to other foreign nations, and whether Congress will provide the funds.

The big question mark is a loan to Russia, discussed on the basis of about $1,000,000,000 but with negotiations stymied on the issue of what Russian concessions might be considered along with the talk about cash.

Bank Down To Last Billion

As Congress is expected to recess within a few weeks, and the Export-Import Bank is down to its last billion dollars, many congressmen say it is highly questionable whether any cash for big new foreign loans will be available this year.

The possibility of a Russian loan entered into the debate over the British credit, with evidence that there would be strong opposition. There was discussion some two months ago of a $1,250,000,000 increase in Export-Import Bank funds, but little has been heard of it lately.

The last formality in making the long-debated fund available to Great Britain will be the signing of the congressional bill by President Truman.

Signing Ceremony Plann

The White House said that be done with some ceremony ably tomorrow morning.

Among those expected to attend the White House signing are James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, just returned from the Paris meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers; John Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, and British officials.

Officials of the Treasury and of the British Embassy said the actual mechanics of making the credit available, after the bill becomes law, are "as simple as international monetary relationships can be."

Treasury Department officials said they have to take no action until they receive the first demand from the British.

Explanation Of Method

The British will ask that the credit be transferred, as needed, to their account. This is how they explained it will be done:

The British Ambassador, Lord Inverchapel, will write a letter to the Secretary of the Treasury informing him the British Cabinet has designated Gordon Munro, head of the United Kingdom treasury delegation in Washington, as its loan representative.

He can direct the transfer of money from the Treasury to the credit of the Bank of England. This credit will be with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Role Of Board Of Trade

If a British business man wants to make an American purchase, he goes to the Board of Trade in England. If the board decides the purchase will help world trade or otherwise fall within the purposes of the credit, his request is granted.

Assuming this Englishman wants to buy £10,000 worth of farm machinery, the board grants his request, and he is given an import license.

Then he takes his check for £10,000 and the import license to the Bank of England and obtains a British letter of credit for $40,000, the exchange rate.

Manufacturer Gets Dollars

This he sends to the American manufacturer who deposits it. The manufacturer gets his actual money out of the British credit, in dollars, that has been set aside with the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

Thus purchasers in Great Britain are permitted to buy American goods and to pay for them with American dollars.

The British Government will pay out the dollars through the Federal Reserve Bank in New York.

This money is a loan to the British, over a period of 50 years.

The whole purpose of the loan was to supply the British with a good reserve of American dollars.

They couldn't buy these dollars out of cash sterling funds, without lowering the value of the pound. And so the loan was arranged.

Loan To Ethiopia Announced

The Export-Import Bank today announced a $3,000,000 loan to Ethiopia for purchase of equipment in this country to build back the African nation's economy.

At the same time, the bank released details of its $650,000,000 loan to France as part of a $1,370,000,000 credit agreed on in May. It will help France begin a four-year reconstruction period.

France has two years to use the new loan to finance United States purchases. The money used will bear interest of 3 per cent a year, with the principal repayable in semi-annual installments over twenty years, begining January 1, 1952.

Orders Placed By France

Some $300,000,000 will pay for various equipment orders already placed by France. Another $170,000,000 will go into new equipment orders.

An additional $100,000,000 will purchase industrial raw materials. The remainder of the $650,000,000 will pay for United States services, including engineering and ocean freight, in moving the purchased equipment.

proclaiming today the same principles of liberty and of respect for the individual as those in whose name her people spoke 157 years ago.

"On this day—a day bright with the achievements of the great French Republic and with the deeds, suffering and sacrifice of her valiant people—I am happy to address you, Mr. President [Georges Bidault, French Provisional President], in the name of the United States of America, my best wishes and fraternal salutations."

MITCHELL PUSHES DEMAND FOR MAY TO GIVE TESTIMONY

JUL 15 1946

Urges Unusual Action to Bring Congressman Before Probers.

WITNESSES CALLED

Hearings on Munitions Combine Will Resume Today.

JUL 15 1946

WASHINGTON, July 14. — (AP) Senator Mitchell (D-Wash) today urged the extraordinary use of legislation to hale Rep. May (D-Ky) to the witness stand on the Senate War Investigating committee's own terms to explain under oath about helping a munitions combine with its war contracts.

Meanwhile the committee summoned more witnesses to dig further into the issue of the munitions makers' Washington activities and influence.

Urges Action by Congress

Mitchell suggested the committee draft a formal resolution ordering the Kentuckian, chairman of the House Military committee, to testify. This would require approval of both House and Senate.

The committee and May were deadlocked over the question of the congressman's voluntary appearance after a frosty exchange of letters. He has demanded the right to have on hand his own counsel, permission to recall previous witnesses, call his own witnesses and subpoena records.

This was flatly rejected by the committee delving into war profits of the combine—the Erie Basin Metal Products company and firms associated with them—on $78,000,000 worth of contracts. Instead the committee proposed that May appear on the same terms as witnesses before May's own Military committee.

May himself has acknowledged that he helped the combine and its promoters, Murray and Henry Garsson—"good friends of mine"—but has said he was motivated only by a desire to help the war effort and that he did not personally profit.

Exchange Sharp Letters

Discarding customary amenities and polite formalities of congressional exchange, the committee in a letter flung at May Saturday the assertion that it had concluded he is "unable to explain or contradict" testimony linking him to Washington dealings of the munitions makers.

The committee sharply told May that "public servants" should hold themselves ready for accountings of their public trust "frequently, fully and openly" in order to protect the integrity of Congress.

In sharp reply, May denounced as "unwarranted" the committee's conclusion that his reply to an invitation to testify shows that he admits "facts" gathered in the inquiry "to be true." He added that that conclusion "parallels other characteristics of the conduct of your hearings to which I object."

Denies Refusal to Appear

May denied that, in setting up his conditions for a personal appearance, he had "declined" to appear voluntarily.

The chances of House and Senate pasage of such a resolution as Mitchell suggested remained uncertain, complicated both by a drive to clear up legislation standing in the way of adjournment and by the relationship between the two branches of Congress.

But meanwhile the war investigators planned to resume public hearings tomorrow, calling Allen R. Gellman and Joseph Weiss, associates of the Garsson brothers in the development of the combine, Joseph Freeman, their Washington front man, and Louis Sarelas, manager of their Washington office.

Truman Hails Liberated France

Bastille Day Message of President Brings Warm Response From Bidault

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 14.—President Truman, saluting France on its first peace-time Bastille Day in seven years, asserted today that despite terrific war losses France "remains in the front line of the free nations of the earth."

In a recorded speech beamed to France by the State Department Mr. Truman said:

"Two years ago we were fighting against the Germans on French soil, side by side with the valiant soldiers of France, both military and civilian.

"One year ago, while the war was nearing its victorious conclusion in the Far East, France was rebuilding her economy and receiving again into her arms those of her brave sons and daughters who had returned from the infamous prisons and camps of Germany.

"In spite of her losses and the destruction of her territory for the second time in twenty-five years, France remains in the front line of the free nations of the earth.

OBSERVERS TO GET CLOSER VIEW OF A-BOMB EXPLOSION

JUL 15 1946

WASHINGTON, July 14. — (AP) Observers of the second atomic bomb test in Bikini lagoon, now set for July 25, are to be somewhat nearer the scene of the blast then during the July 1 test, Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy announced tonight.

Otherwise, said the commander of joint Army-Navy Task Force One, observers, reporters and radio men will have the same opportunities as in the first test to view the explosion.

The second test explosion, to be below the surface of shallow water, is to determine, Blandy said in a statement, the damage to parts of hulls under water, the effects of waves against the ships and the effects of radio-activitied water thrown on the exposed parts of the targets.

A third test later will measure the effects of a deep water detonation.

Admiral Blandy said the principal ships closest to the point of detonation, under present plans, will include the battleships Arkansas and Nagato, the aircraft carrier Saratoga, the cruiser Pensacola, the destroyer Mayrant, the submarine Pilotfish, the transport Fallow and an LST. Most of the submarines used in the test are to be submerged, he said.

For the July 1 test observers generally were 10 miles or more from the blast scene.

Now It's Ickes Vs. Atomic Bomb

Washington, July 14 (AP)—Harold L. Ickes, former Secretary of the Interior, tonight proposed world renouncement of the atomic bomb, that the United States stop making them and render impotent those it already has.

Ickes said in a telegram to the National Committee on Atomic Information that such action would be "the most fitting celebration of the first anniversary of the atomic age."

The message was made public on the eve of the opening session of the Institute on World Control of Atomic Energy.

Henry Wallace, Secretary of Commerce, will be among those addressing the group tomorrow.

NAZIS PLANNED GIANT BOMBER

Ship Was Being Perfected For New York Attack

JUL 15 1946

Washington, July 14 — (AP) — Hitler's scientists were at work on a supersonic bomber designed to bombard New York, the Army Air Forces disclosed today—one item on a terror list of 136 secret weapons they were striving to perfect or improve at the war's end.

Col. D. L. Putt, deputy chief of the Air Materiel Command's Technical Intelligence Division, said the bomber was expected to reach 154 miles above the earth. It was never finished, but Putt expressed belief that "time was the only obstacle" to its completion.

"The Germans hoped to destroy any city on earth with a fleet of 100 of these bombers within the space of a few days' operations," Putt said.

Reports On Nazis' Weapons

Putt drafted the official report on the Nazis' developments of guided missiles and other ultra-modern weapons.

One giant long-range winged rocket, which was in design stage, was to carry smaller rockets. These were to take off on their own at a specific point, attain speeds up to 5,800 miles an hour, and finish their trajectories in a long glide. The range of this weapon was calculated at 3,000 miles, sufficient to span the Atlantic.

Other weapons, listed in a résumé of Putt's report published by the official AAF review, included rockets with which the Nazis hoped to break up the Allied bomber formations which leveled German cities.

Used All Kinds Of Controls

The German missiles, Putt said, "used every known type of remote control and fusing means, including radio control, wire control, radar CW (continuous wave), acoustics, infra-red, light beams and magnetics. In similar fashion all methods of employing jet propulsion for subsonic and supersonic speeds were being fully exploited."

He said the Germans were far ahead in the development of the ram jet engine, which is only now being put to use by the American Army and Navy Air Forces. In 1944 the Germans actually fight-tested a unit designed to produce a gross thrust of 4,400 pounds at 500 miles an hour, Putt reported.

Although the Nazis lacked the atomic bomb, the review said there was reason to believe they hoped until the end to be able to perfect some sore of atomic explosive to arm the V-2s with which they blasted London and Antwerp.

Specific Secret Weapons

Specific secret weapons listed by Putt included these principal types:

Enzian—Winged flak rocket, 17 feet long, carrying 990 pounds of explosive and controlled by radio. Intended for use against heavy bomber formations.

Wasserfall—26-foot flak rocket similar in design to the V-2, visibly controlled by radio, later by means of radar tracking. It had highest priority for development at war's end.

X-4 Ruhrstahl — 6-foot rocket bomb launched from fighter aircraft and controlled from the fighter through two 4-mile lengths of wire.

Armor Piercing Bomb

Fritz X—Armor piercing, radio controlled bomb used by Germans against allied ships at Salerno landing.

HS 117—"Butterfly" rocket propelled, radio controlled missiles to be launched against bomber formations at 560 miles an hour. They were in large-scale production in January last year at Nordhausen underground factory.

Rheintochter—One of latest anti-aircraft missiles, rocket propelled to 48,000 feet altitude at 1,100 miles an hour, carrying 330 pounds of explosive.

A-4—Better known as the V-2, this rocket was the Nazis' greatest actual achievement in missiles with a range of 250 miles and top speed of 3,500 or more miles an hour. About 10,000 were made.

Cheapest Of Weapons

Putt reported guided missiles relatively the cheapest of weapons. The entire V-2 program was estimated to have cost the Germans $21,000,000. Countermeasures of the Allies were calculated to have cost four times as much as the entire German flying-bomb program.

The AAF review said that between June 13 and September 3, 1944, a total of 2,354 V-1s landed in greater London, killing 5,476 persons, destroying 23,000 buildings and homes and damaging 1,000,000 more.

In addition 1,482 flyers lost their lives bombarding the launching sites.

Thus the buzz bombs alone, in a campaign of three months, were responsible for about a tenth of the number of all British deaths from all conventional aerial bombing.

UNRRA OFFICIALS LEAVE ON TOUR

JUL 15 1946

WASHINGTON, July 14 — (AP) — A party of UNRRA officials, headed by Director General Fiorello La Guardia, left National airport here today on an overseas inspection trip. LaGuardia also will attend the fifth council session of UNRRA at Geneva beginning August 5.

UNRRA headquarters said the party was scheduled to go to Italy, Greece and Yugoslavia, visit UNRRA displaced persons camps in Germany and possibly go into some of the other UNRRA receiving countries in Europe before the Geneva conference opens.

Air Transport command offices said the plane was scheduled to fly to Bermuda, Santa Maria, Casa Blanca, Cairo, Athens, Rome, Belgrade, Trieste, Paris, Munich, Geneva and to make "short hops into Russia."

Welles Says Nazis' Trial Must Be Absolutely Fair

Declares Rushing It Through Will Defeat Its Purpose

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UP) — Sumner Welles, former Under Secretary of State, said tonight that the German war-crimes trial at Nuernberg must be conducted with the utmost fairness no matter how long it takes.

In a radio address over station WOL, he said that many now argue that the trial is taking much too long, and that the best method would be to rush the trial through and execute the guilty defendants without further delay.

He warned that this would defeat the purpose of the trial—to establish that national leaders responsible for wars of aggression are to be held individually responsible.

1% SECURITY TAX IS 'FROZEN' AGAIN

JUL 15 1946

House Group Reverses Stand After Raising It To 1½%

Washington, July 14 (AP)—Reversing a previous stand for an increase in the Social Security old age insurance tax, the House Ways and Means Committee announced today a decision to "freeze" the tax for another year at one per cent on employers' pay rolls and employés' pay.

Moreover, the committee cut out of its Social Security revision bill a provision for larger grants to low-income states for the payment of benefits to needy aged, blind and dependent children.

The reversal occurred when the committee confronted a deadlock in the House Rules Committee. Representative Knutson (R., Minn.) said such a compromise was necessary to get any bill at all passed before Congress adjourns for the summer.

Bill As Newly Drawn

The new changes in the bill probably will block a House floor battle on the Townsend old age pension plan, since, under the compromise, the leadership hopes to present the bill to the House with a rule barring amendments.

As newly drawn, the security revision measure provides:

1. A freeze on the one per cent tax for old age and survivors insurance. The committee previously had voted to put this tax at 1.5 per cent against employers and employés for a five-year period beginning January 1. Without Congressional action, this tax, by provision of the original security statute, would increase automatically next January to 2.5 per cent on employers and employés.

To Take In Maritime Workers

2. Special survivors insurance coverage for the families of veterans of World War II. This stipulation would give insurance protection, without cost, to the families of any veteran who dies within the next three years.

3. Blanketing 200,000 maritime workers under the unemployment compensation features of the Social Security Act. These workers have not been covered previously.

4. An increase from $20 a month to $25 in the amount the Federal Government will put up for matching State funds paid to needy aged, blind and dependent children. This makes it possible, under the 50-50 Federal-State matching arrangement, for a needy person to receive $50 a month instead of the present $40 top.

The committee previously had voted to raise the Federal top for needy persons from $20 to $30, and to put up two Federal dollars for each State dollar in those states where individual incomes are 66 per cent or less of the national average. This earlier provision, by a special formula, also would have given more Federal dollars in those states where the income is 66 to 99 per cent of the national average.

Rewrote Bill To Avoid Fight

This provision encountered formidable opposition from House members representing states with high individual incomes.

With the Ways and Means members at loggerheads also on the effort to raise the old age insurance tax, the Rules Committee balked on a request by Ways and Means Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) to limit amendments that could be considered on the House floor.

Thus facing a possibility the bill would go to the floor wide open for amendments—including a Townsend plan amendment — the Ways and Means group rewrote its bill.

RECRUITING SPURT REPORTED BY ARMY

JUL 15 1946

25,336 Volunteers Signed Up in Week, Total Now 847,220.

WASHINGTON, July 14 — (AP) — An upsurge in Army enlistments to 25,336 for the last week in June, the largest weekly total in five months, was reported today by the War department.

For the entire month the total was 62,494, which reversed a recent downward trend and swelled the number of volunteers for the regular Army since last fall to 947,220, the statement said.

The jump in recruiting coincided with action by Congress to extend the draft for nine months with 18 years olds exempted, and to increase Army pay.

Major General Harold N. Gilbert, director of the Army's drive for volunteers, said the interest of high school graduates in obtaining future educational benefits under the GI bill of rights was the principal explanation for June's enlistment increase. He said all male members of some graduating classes joined the Army. The benefits are open to those who sign up before Oct. 5.

Other officials said reports for July and August, during which the War department has declared a temporary draft holiday, would be required to determine how heavily the Army could rely on volunteers to meet the continuing need for replacements.

12 in County Area Are Decorated By Britain for Wartime Services

WASHINGTON, July 14. — (AP) — The award of British decorations to 1,277 Americans for wartime services was announced today by Lord Inverchapel, the British Ambassador.

Among those honored are 12 from the Fairfield county area, including two from Bridgeport, two from Fairfield and two from Stratford.

Sixty-nine of the decorations, all given in the name of His Majesty the King, were of various ranks in the Order of the British Empire. The remainder were of the King's Medal For "Service in the Cause of Freedom."

Recipients are being notified by mail. The ribbons of the decorations will be sent them shortly, but the medals themselves will not be available for some time because of metal and manpower shortages in Britain.

Those from the county area to be decorated are: Mrs. Gordon Michler, Rockridge avenue, Greenwich, who is to be a member in the Order of the British Empire.

The King's Medal for Service in the Cause of Freedom will go to Mrs. Herman Beckett, Delta avenue, Danbury; Mrs. S. G. Bexson, 135 Placid avenue, Stratford; Mrs. J. D. Brown, 438 Norman street, Bridgeport; Mrs. Ainslie W. Goodall, 157 Riverside avenue, Westport; Mrs. Austin Hoy, Fairfield; Mrs. T. Montgomery, 440 Compo road, Westport; Mrs. Robert L. Munger, 35 William street, Ansonia; Edward Seccombe, 35 Fairview terrace, Derby; J. E. Sparling, 626 Huntington road, Stratford; Frederick Sturges, Jr., Fairfield and L. A. Van Stone, 368 Gregory street, Bridgeport.

ALIENS IN U. S. FORCES MAY BECOME CITIZENS

WASHINGTON, July 14. — (AP) — Attorney General Tom C. Clark today issued this warning to 112,000 aliens who served, or are serving, in the armed services:

Congress has provided many a short cut (no period of waiting, rigid requirements dropped) for members of the armed services who want to become citizens. But Clerk pointed out that the act expires December 1, 1946.

It affects all aliens who went into service prior to December 28, 1945.

Jewish Veterans Mass For Protest

Washington, July 14 (AP)—Jewish war veterans arrived from many states today in an organized protest against British Palestine policy.

Benjamin Aronsohn, commander of the District of Columbia Department of the Jewish Veterans of the United States, said more than 3,000 veterans came in by train, plane, bus or car during the day.

They plan a parade tomorrow and conferences with President Truman and other American and British officials to ask that Great Britain permit 100,000 displaced European Jews to enter Palestine.

Aronsohn said " a very orderly" presentation of the veterans' viewpoint was planned.

"We wouldn't permit it to be any other way," he said.

The war veterans will be quartered tonight and tomorrow at the Jewish War Veterans clubrooms, at barracks buildings and in college dormitories. They expect to depart tomorrow night.

Aronsohn said at least 1,200 veterans arrived on a special train from New York; 400 on a special train from Boston, and others on busses and trains from distant points. About 400 came in a motorcade from New York, he said.

WORK IS STARTED ON ATOMIC TREATY

F. CARPENTER

U. N. Group Drafts Pact for Controlling New Energy

JUL 15 1946

NEW YORK, July 14—(AP) The Australian and Brazilian delegates to the 12-member United Nations Atomic Energy commission mapped today the immediate work of the group as it began its task of drafting a proposed treaty for controlling the atom.

The Australian is Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, who guided the commission through phase one of its labors—during which all views were explored.

The Brazilian is Capt. Alvaro Alberto da Motta Silva, who technically became chairman of the commission under the plan of rotating that post each month by the English alphabetical order of the commission membership.

Confer on Schedules

Capt. Alberto indicated today that he and Dr. Evatt still were conferring on the future schedule of the three committees set up by the working committee of the commission at a lengthy closed meeting Friday. It was expected an announcement might be made tomorrow.

The first committee established Friday for the phase two, treaty-making operation, will recommend measures of control, sanctions, and observance of steps to insure the prevention of the use of atomic energy for destructive purposes.

The second committee will handle the controversial veto question in its field of legal points. It also will deal with the relationship between the atomic control agency and the U.N. Security council.

Scientists on Committee

Scientific and technical experts will make up the third committee which will consider and recommend proposals for the exchange of scientific information and for developing atomic energy for peaceful uses.

Sub-committee No. 1, which was appointed last month, completed its task Friday.

The commission members had before them a proposal from the United States that the veto on atomic questions be eliminated by treaty rather than by amending the United Nations Charter.

The proposal was submitted in Memorandum No. 3 from the U. S. delegation last Friday but was not made public until last night.

Offered by Bernard M. Baruch, U. S. delegate, the proposal would have the Security council maintain jurisdiction over atomic matters actually threatening world peace. However, it provided further that the five permanent members of the council holding the veto would agree volúntarily not to use their veto rights on atomic matters.

Baruch has declared that any control scheme for atomic energy must not contain the veto. Soviet Russia, one of the five great powers holding the veto, has held equally as firmly to the right of the veto on atomic matters and has insisted that the proposed control should come within the purview of the Security council in its position as guardian of the world's peace.

Navy Will Train Venezuelan Crew

Norfolk, Va., July 14 (AP)—Vice Admiral Daniel E. Barbey announced today that a Venezuelan crew will be trained at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base near here to man the first amphibious ship to be transferred to a Latin-American country from a pool of amout 150 surplus landing craft.

Barbey, commander of the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force, said negotiations between Venezuela and the United States for the transfer of the LST 1065, now tied up in the York River, are nearly complete and plans have been made to train a Venezuelan crew in various techniques of amphibious operations.

Barbey said the pending transaction probably is the forerunner to a succession of transfers of some 150 amphibious ships declared surplus by the United States and rendered available to various Latin-American countries on an allocations basis.

Byrnes Sees World Nearer Peace But Chides Russia for Raising 'Doubts and Fears' of Friends

JUL 16 1946

BYRNES RAPS REDS FOR OBSTRUCTING PACT ON GERMANY

WILL END ZONES

JUL 16 1946

U. S. to Seek Removal of Barriers to Trade Inside Reich.

WASHINGTON, July 15 — (AP) Secretary of State Byrnes tonight warned Russia that she is creating "doubts and suspicions" by objecting to a German disarmament treaty and announced that the United States is acting immediately to break down economic barriers in Germany — with or without Moscow.

"Our military representative in Germany," Byrnes disclosed in a radio address," will this week be instructed to cooperate with any one or all of the three governments (Britain, Russia, France) in essential administrative matters like finance, transportation, communication, trade and industry. We will either secure economic cooperation between the (German occupation) zones or place the responsibility for the violation of the Potsdam agreement."

The American chief in Germany is General Joseph T. McNarney.

Reports on Parley

Byrnes presented a radio report to the nation on the work of the Paris foreign ministers conference. Earlier in the day he had reported personally to President Truman.

Throughout the speech Byrnes repeatedly blamed Russia for failure of the conference to reach agreement on critical issues—particularly the German disarmament treaty, the centralization of German economy and the draft of a peace treaty for Austria.

On the issue of the German disrament treaty Byrnes openly acknowledged the split between Russia and the western powers and asked:

"Is German militarism going to be used as a pawn in a struggle between the east and the west and is German militarism again to be given the chance to divide and conquer?"

JUL 16 1946

Must Have Answer

"To that question," he continued, "there must be an unequivocal answer, for equivocation will increase unbearably the tensions and strains which men of good will everywhere are striving to relieve."

He said the Soviet statement to the foreign ministers meeting against the disarmament treaty proposal "reveals how hard-pressed the Soviets were to find real objection to a treaty which gives them the assurance that Germany should never again become a threat to their security or to the security of Europe."

Then he added:

"I do not believe that the Soviets realize the doubts and suspicions which they have raised in the minds of those in other countries who want to be their friends by the aloofness, coolness and hostility with which they have received America's offer to guaarntee jointly the continued disarmament of Germany."

Might Have Averted War

Had such a treaty been in existence after World War One, Byrnes argued, World War Two never would have occurred.

Byrnes traced in considerable detail each of the major issues which had occupied the foreign ministers —himself, Molotov, Bevin of Britain and Bidault of France—during the 28-day session.

He said that because Germany is "threatened with inflation and economic paralysis" and the American zone is costing American taxpayers $200,000,000 a year, he had urged that the Allied control commission be instructed to administer Germany as an economic unit.

The British agreed to this and the French reversed their previous position of opposition to accept. But the Russians said they could not agree without further study of the Saar question, involving exclusion of that area from the centralization.

"I made clear," Byrnes said, "that we were unwilling to share responsibility for the economic paralysis and suffering we felt certain would follow a continuance of present conditions in Germany.

"I then announced that as a last resort we were prepared to administer our zone in conjunction with any one or more of the other zones as an economic unit.

"I stated that whatever arrangements were made with one government would be open on equal terms to the governments of the other zones at any time they were prepared to participate.

JUL 16 1946

"The British stated that they would consider our proposal and indicated they hoped to agree. Neither the Soviets nor the French expressed any view."

It was then that Byrnes declared instructions would be sent to McNarney this week to secure such cooperation as he could with one or more of the other three zones in Germany.

Blocked Austrian Treaty

Molotov blocked immediate steps toward writing an Austrian peace treaty which would provide for withdrawal of occupation troops, making two arguments, Byrnes reported. The Russian foreign minister contended that Austria should be further de-nazified and that a large number of displaced persons should be withdrawn from the country before a treaty is completed.

Byrnes said that the United States recognizes "the seriousness of these problems" but he declared, "it would be a tragedy to hold up the peace treaty with Austria because she is obliged to offer temporary refuge to these people until homes can be found for them in other countries."

In summarizing his policies, Byrnes said that "we do not believe in a peace based on a desire for vengeance. We believe in justice, charity and mercy. If we act with charity and mercy, those we fear as enemies may become our friends."

On the single positive accomplishment of the conference — the drafting of peace treaties for Italy, the Balkan states and Finland—Byrnes expressed some dissatisfaction.

"The drafts of treaties agreed upon are not the best human wit could devise," the secretary said. "But they are the best which human wit could get the four principal Allies to agree upon. They represent as satisfactory an approach to the return of peace as we could hope for in this imperfect and war-weary world."

The treaties are to be submitted for criticism and recommendation to a 21-nation peace conference at Paris July 29. Byrnes expressed hope that the foreign ministers will be able to agree upon final texts before the end of the conference so that the treaties could be signed by the time it ends.

He disclosed that he had opposed plans for secret sub-committee meetings at the peace conference and said he gave notice that the United States "will use its influence to open to the press the meetings of the conference and of its committees."

Byrnes Radio Report

JUL 16 1946

Washington, July 15 (AP)—The text of Secretary Byrnes's radio report to the nation on the Paris Foreign Ministers' meeting:

After every great war the victors find the making of peace difficult and disappointing. It took the thirteen American states more than five years after winning their independence to agree upon a constitution which promised anything like a durable peace among themselves.

To build world peace requires even greater tolerance, patience and understanding. It requires the will and ability to seek the best, to accept the best obtainable, and then to make the best obtainable work. As war breeds war, so peace can be made to breed peace.

Reason For Council

That is why President Truman and I were determined at Potsdam last summer two months after V-E day to set up the Council of Foreign Ministers. We were eager to have the council start the making of peace and to make peace as quickly as possible wherever possible.

It was obvious then that the making of peace with Germany would take time. There was no German Government to deal with, and no agreement as to how soon we should permit a German Government to function. It was equally obvious that a start could be made toward making peace with Italy and the states which were satelites of the Axis that had governments. So we started there.

The whole world knows how great the struggle has been during the last ten months to harmonize the views of the great powers so as to make possible the presentation of tentative drafts of treaties to a peace conference. That struggle has now been brought to a successful conclusion and the peace conference has been called to meet in Paris on July 29.

Hopes For Completion

It is my hope that the Council of Foreign Ministers will consider the recommendations and agree upon the final text so that the treaties may be signed by the delegates before the conference adjourns.

The drafts of treaties agreed upon are not the best which human wit could devise. But they are the best which human wit could get the four principal allies to agree upon. They represent as satisfactory an approach to the return of peace as we could hope for in this imperfect and war-weary world.

The attitude of the United States in these matters represented not only the judgment of the President and the Secretary of State, but also the judgment of Senator Connally and Senator Vandenburg, whose long experience in our foreign relations and intimate knowledge of the specific issues made their counsel invaluable.

Trieste Greatest Issue

The greatest struggle was over the Italian treaty, and the greatest issue involved in that treaty was the fate of Trieste and adjacent territory along the western shore of the Istrian peninsula. The American delegation, supported by the French and British, urged that Trieste and adjacent territory which are predominately Italian should remain with Italy, and the predominately Slavic hinterland should go to Yugoslavia.

The Soviet Union argued strongly that Trieste and adjacent territory should not be cut off from its immediate hinterland. Dhile it admitted that a few cities and towns along the coast were predominately Italiln, it urged that the Istrian peninsula should be regarded as a whole and that so regarded it was premodinately Yugoslav. This view was also urged by Czechoslovakia.

The Soviet Union further urged that greater consideration should be given to the Yugoslav claims than to the Italian claims because, while Italy as one of the Axis partners was responsible for bringing on the war against the Allies and for the loss of thousands of Allied lives, Yugoslavia had fought on the Allied side throughout the war and suffered from the attacks of Italy.

Describes Serious Dilemma

As neither the Soviets nor ourselves were prepared to yield, we then proposed that the issue be left to the peace conference, but the Soviets would not agree.

This left us in a more serious dilemma than most people realize. We could make a separate peace with Italy, leaving her Trieste, but the Soviet and Yugoslav governments, and possibly others would not accept that treaty.

If we made a separate peace, the Soviet and Yugoslav governments would andoubtedly demand that Italy make a separate peace with them, ceding Trieste to Yugoslavia. If Italy refused, it is not difficult to foresee the difficulties which would arise.

Even if no one of us presented a treaty to Italy, a disarmed Italy could hold Trieste against the army of Yugoslavia only so long as our troops held it for her.

JUL 16 1946

Proposal By French

In an effort to break this deadlock the French informally suggested that Trieste and adjacent territory be separated from Italy but not ceded to Yugoslavia, and that its security and integrity be internationally guaranteed.

At first no one liked this proposal. But the more it was studied the more it seemed to offer a reasonable basis for agreement. It was recalled that before Italy entered World War I, she had proposed that the Trieste area should become an autonomous state.

Our delegation insisted that the area should be protected by the United Nations and not by joint agreement between Italy and Yugoslavia as the Soviets proposed, and not by the four principal Allied powers as suggested by the French. Our proposals were accepted.

The proposal as finally agreed upon leaves Gorizia and Montfalcone with Italy in the north and includes within the free territory of Trieste the rest of the area west of the agreed ethnic line.

Neither Under Alien Rule

It is true that the proposed free territory of Trieste is predominately Italian in the city and predominately Slav outside of the city. But neither the Italians nor the Slavs in this territory are placed under alien rule; they are given home rule. The people will elect their own assembly and the assembly will elect the officials to administer the laws. They will be subject to supervision only by the United Nations Security Council and by an impartial governor appointed by the Security Council.

The prosperity and welfare of Trieste are linked not only with Italy but with Yugoslavia and the countries of central Europe. It is the natural outlet of central Europe to the Mediterranean.

The only railroads entering Trieste come through Yugoslavia and are controlled by Yugoslavia. Representatives of that government asserted that if Trieste were given to Italy they would divert traffic to Fiume or some other port in Yugoslavia.

May Be Best Means

Because of the bad feeling between the two peoples in that area the control by the United Nations may prove to be the best means of preventing armed conflict and relieving tension.

If the area were joined either with Italy or Yugoslavia, its political and economic relations with the other would suffer. Its industries might be unable to attract the necessary capital and labor might have difficulty finding employment.

If friendly relations are maintained between the free territory of Trieste and her neighbors, this little territory may enjoy greater prosperity and be a source of greater prosperity to its neighbors than would be the case if it were joined either with Italy or Yugoslavia.

I am convinced that the agreed solution to the problem of Trieste is fair and workable if the peoples most concerned work together to make it so. Unless they work together, there can be no solution.

Colonies Discussed

No final decision was reached on the disposition of the Italian colonies.

It will be recalled that originally the Soviets had requested the trusteeship of Tripolitania. They stated they wanted a base in the Mediterranean for their merchant ships. The French favored Italy as trustee for all the colonies and at the April session the Soviets expressed their willingness to accept the French proposal. Except for certain reservations in respect of Cyrenaica, the British were willing to accept our proposal to have all the colonies placed under the trusteeship of the United Nations.

In view of the difficulty the Foreign Ministers were having in reaching agreement and the danger of the colonial question becoming a pawn in the settlement of other issues, I sugested that we defer a final decision.

For 4-Power Decision

It was finally agreed that the ultimate disposition of the colonies should be made by the four principal Allied powers in light of the wishes and welfare of the inhabitants and world peace and security, taking into account the views of other interested governments.

If the four principal Allied powers do not agree upon the disposition to be made of the colonies within a year after the coming into force of the treaty, they have bound themselves to make such disposition of them as may be recommended by the General Assembly of the United Nations.

The four powers have further agreed to send commissions to the colonies to ascertain the wishes of the local population.

Pending the final disposition of the colonies, they will remain under the existing British military administration.

Veto Question Avoided

The thing I like about the agreement on the colonies is that the ultimate decision does not require unanimity. Failing agreement among the four powers, the decision rests with the United Nations.

The Soviets finally withdrew their objection to the cession of the Dodecanese to Greece and to the permanent demilitarization of the islands.

It was, however, extremely difficult for us to reach agreement on reparations. The Soviets wanted at least $100,000,000 reparations for the devastation of their territory by the Italian armies.

Moreover, under the armistice agreements with Hungary, Romania and Finland reparations payments of $300,000,000 from each had been imposed. The Soviets found it difficult to reconcile themselves to a more lenient reparations policy in the case of Italy.

Conscious Of Italian Help

We one the other hand were more deeply conscious of the help that Italy gave us in the last months of the war and opposed putting on her a reparations burden which would delay her economic recovery.

We had previously agreed that reparations could be taken in war plants not needed for Italian peacetime economy and could be paid out of Italian assets in Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria. But the Soviets insisted that part of the reparations should come from current or future production of Italian factories and shipyards.

We reluctantly agreed that the Soviets could receive reparations up to $100,000,000. But we required them to agree that in so far as reparations were taken from Italian production, the deliveries must be arranged so as to avoid interference with economic reconstruction.

Put Off For Two Years

We further required the Soviets to agree that such deliveries should not commence for two years. In order to avoid our having to finance Italy's purchase of raw materials to furnish manufactured products to the Soviets, we also required agreement that the imported materials needed by Italy to make these deliveries should be supplied by the Soviets.

There remain some questions in the Italian treaty and other treaties on which we were unable to reach final agreement. As the Soviet delegation took the position that they would not agree to the calling of the peace conference until the four governments had harmonized their views on fundamental questions, we assume that the Soviets do not regard these issues as fundamental and will accept the decisions of the peace conference.

I admit that prior to our meeting in April I had little hope we would ever reach agreement. After our April meeting I had less hope. Now the prospect for peace treaties with five countries is bright. Ninety days after ratification of those treaties occupation armies must be withdrawn except where they protect a line of communications. Then the people of the occupied states can live and breathe as free people. Truly we are on the road back to peace.

Must Recognize Differences

I have no desire to conceal from the American people the great struggle and tremendous difficulties the four governments had in harmonizing their views to the extent they did on these treaties.

In the long run we shall have a much better chance to work out our problems if we and our allies recognize the basic differences in our ideas, standards and methods instead of trying to make ourselves believe that they do not exist or that they are less important than they really are.

While the council made real progress toward peace with Italy and the ex-satellite states, it made no progress at all on the German and Austrian questions. Perhaps the time taken in discussion was not wholly lost, because our experience suggests that understandings, particularly with our Soviet friends, cannot be reached until we have gone through rounds of verbal combat, in which old complaints are repeated, past positions reaffirmed, differences accentuated and crises provoked.

Suggests Soviet Idea

I am ready to believe it is difficult for us to understand them. But I sometimes think our Soviet friends fear we would think them weak and soft if they agreed without a struggle on anything we wanted, even though they wanted it too. Constant struggle, however, is not always helpful in a world longing for peace.

The Soviets started the German discussion with a prepared statement on the draft treaty we had proposed to guarantee the continued demilitarization and disarmament of Germany for at least a quarter of a century. The Soviet statement reveals how hard pressed the Soviets were to find real objection to a treaty which gives them the assurance that Germany should never again become a threat to their security or to the security of Europe.

I do not believe that the Soviets fully realize the doubts and suspicions which they have raised in the minds of those in other countries who want to be their friends by the aloofness, coolness and hostility with which they have received America's offer to guarantee jointly the continued disarmament of Germany.

Would Have Averted War

Had America been a party to such a guarantee after World War I, World War II would never have occurred, and the Soviet Union would never have been attacked and devastated.

Is German militarism going to be used as a pawn in a struggle between the East and the West and is German militarism going to be given one chance to revive and conquer?

To that question there must be an unequivocal answer, for equivocation will increase unbearably the tensions and strains which men of good will everywhere are striving to relieve.

The Soviets stated that our proposed treaty was inadequate; that it did not assure the denazification and democratization of Germany; that it did not assure them reparations. But these are political matters which are already dealt with in the Potsdam agreement.

Points To Military Pact

Our military agreement of June 5, 1945, provided for the prompt disarmament of armed forces and demilitarization of war plants. By our 25-year treaty we propose that when Germany is once disarmed, we shall see that she stays disarmed. We cannot understand Soviet opposition, especially as Generalissimo Stalin on last December 24 agreed with me in principle on this subject.

The Soviet representative stated he had reports that in the British zone the disarming of military forces was not being carried out. The British representative stated he had reports that in the Soviet zone German war plants were being operated.

We asked that the control commission investigate the accuracy of both reports. The British and the French agreed. But the Soviet Government would not agree to the investigation unless we limited it to the disarmament of armed forces.

Only Part Of Settlement

I certainly made clear in our earlier meeting in Paris that the proposed guaranty of German demilitarization was only a part of the German settlement. I proposed then and I proposed again at our recent meeting that deputies be appointed to start work on the whole settlement which the Allies expect the Germans to accept. The British and French accepted the proposal. The Soviets rejected it.

The Soviets suggested that we have a special session of the council on the German problem. I agreed and insisted on setting a date.

But from my experience with the Italian and Balkan settlements I fear that until the Soviets are willing to have responsible deputies who are in close touch with the foreign ministers, sit together continuously over a period of time and find out just what is the area of our agreement and what is the area of our disagreement, the exchange of views between the ministers on the complicated problem of the German settlement will not be sufficient.

It is no secret that the four-power control of Germany on a zonal basis is not working well from the point of view of any of the four powers. Under the Potsdam agreement, Germany was to be administered as an economic unit and central administrative departments were to be established for this purpose.

Non Self-Supporting

But in fact Germany is being administered in four closed compartments with the movement of people, trade and ideas between the zones more narrowly restricted than between most independent countries.

In consequence none of the zones is self-supporting. Our zone costs our taxpayers $200,000,000 a year. And despite the heavy financial burden being borne by ourselves and other occupying powers, the country is threatened with inflation and economic paralysis.

This condition must not continue. At Paris we proposed that the control commission be instructed to establish the central administrative agencies necessary to administer Germany as an economic unit, and to arrange for the exchange of products between the zones and for a balanced program of imports and exports.

Accepted By Two

The French Government which had previously opposed the establishment of central administrative agencies indicated their willingness to accept our proposal when we suggested that the Saar be excluded from the jurisdiction of these agencies. The British agreed.

But the Soviets said that they could not agree to the exclusion of the Saar without further study, and therefore no immediate progress was possible.

I made clear that the United States was unwilling to share responsibility for the economic paralysis and suffering we felt certain would follow a continuance of present conditions in Germany.

I then announced that as a last resort we were prepared to adminster our zone in conjunction with any one or more of the other zones as an economic unit. I indicated that recently we had secured co-operation with the Soviet zone in one matter and with the British on another. I explained that our offer was made not in an effort to divide Germany but to bring it together.

Open To Other Zones

I stated that whatever arrangements were made with one government would be open on equal terms to the governments of the other zones at any time they were prepared to participate.

The British stated that they would consider our proposal and indicated they hoped to agree. Neither the Soviets nor the French expressed any view.

Our military representative in Germany will this week be instructed to cooperate with anyone or all of the three governments in essential administrative matters like finance, transportation, communication, trade and industry. We will either secure economic cooperation between the zones or place the responsibility for the violation of the Potsdam agreement.

Finally we came to a discussion of the Austrian problem. On June 1 I had circulated a proposed draft treaty recognizing the independence of Austria and providing for the withdrawal of the occupying troops. The British also had submitted a draft for consideration. I asked that the deputies be directed to prepare the treaty.

Soviet Counter Proposal

The Soviets submitted a counter-proposal calling first for further action to insure the de-Nazification of Austria and the removal of a large number of displaced persons from Austria whom they regard as unfriendly to them.

The British and French were willing to join us in submitting to the deputies the consideration of the treaty and in requesting the control council to investigate and report on the progress of de-Nazification and on the problem of the displaced persons. But the Soviets were unwilling to agree to the deputies taking up the Austrian treaty until more tangible action was taken on these other two problems.

We recognize the seriousness of these problems and have been grappling with them.

The problem of displaced persons is particularly difficult to solve. Where they are willing, we help them to return to their homes. But many refuse to return to their own countries because they fear death or imprisonment for their political views. Our tradition of protecting political refugees is too precious for us to consent to the mass expulsion of these people from our zone.

Cannot Be Cruel Solution

The United Nations has a committee studying the problem and we shall continue to do our part to try to find a solution, but it cannot be a cruel solution that will reflect discredit upon the American people.

It would be a tragedy to hold up the peace treaty with Austria because she is obliged to afford temporory refuge to these people until homes can be found for them in other countries.

We shall press on in session and out of session to restore conditions of peace to this war-sick world, to bring soldiers back to their homes and to their families, to beat our swords into ploughshares. The war has left wounds, but we must work to heal those wounds.

We do not believe in a peace based on a desire for vengeance. We believe in justice, charity and mercy. If we act with charity and mercy, those we fear as enemies may become our friends. We must trust to the healing processes of peace and pray that God in his mercy will give peace to the world.

Dr. Evatt Attacks Use Of Veto In Security Council Of U.N.

M. Harrelson

New York, July 15 (AP)—Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Minister for External Affairs, today attacked use of the veto in the United Nations Security Council and warned that the veto might be used indirectly to nullify decisions of the forthcoming Paris peace conference.

NIGHT

Evatt, who plans to leave shortly to attend the peace parley, made his declaration in a broadcast as he ended his one-month term as chairman of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

To Fight Big Power "Dictation"

He served notice that he would not only fight any attempt at big power "dictation" of peace terms but that he would take the leadership before the United Nations General Assembly in September to have the whole veto question brought under review.

He also reiterated his intention to make every effort to prevent the veto from being injected into any atomic control plan which may eventually be approved by the atomic commission.

Shortly after Evatt spoke, the United Nations secretariat announced that the Australian delegate had met with Capt. Alvaro Alberto Da Motta Silva, of Brazil, his successor as chairman of the commission, and agreed on a series of meetings this week to press on with work of drafting an atomic control plan.

They agreed that each of the three new twelve-nation committees and the full atomic commission itself would meet within the next four days.

Obvious Reference To Russia

Evatt devoted most of his speech to the veto, which he described as "undemocratic" and "unjust." He did not mention Soviet Russia in connection with his criticism of veto "abuses," but it was obvious that he referred to that country, since Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko is the only delegate who has invoked the veto so far.

He said he had warned at the San Francisco conference against dangers of abuse and that the experiences in the Security Council had "proved conclusively" that his warning was justified.

"Indeed," he said, "the most serious disability under which the United Nations is now laboring is the illogical system of voting in the Security Council."

Speaking of the peace conference, he referred indirectly to efforts of V. M. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Minister, to have the four big powers lay down in advance the rules of procedure for the meeting scheduled for July 29.

Attempt "To Shackle" Others

Evatt described this as an attempt "to shackle" the other participants in the conference "with rules of procedure dictated at the Council of Foreign Ministers."

He said "it is essential that the individual veto of any great power shall not be allowed to insinuate itself into the Paris Peace Conference."

Regarding atomic control, he said the American delegation was "absolutely justified" in insisting on a strong system of controls and surrender of the veto before destroying her stock pile of bombs.

Evatt Attacks U.N. Veto As 'Unjust'

F. Carpenter

JUL 16 1946

New York, July 15 (AP)—Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Foreign Minister, today attacked the veto procedure in the United Nations Security Council as "undemocratic and unjust" and declared there must be "no veto" in the Paris peace conference.

Evatt, who is retiring as chairman of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, said in a broadcast heard here and in Australia that the "illogical system of voting in the Security Council" is the "most serious disability under which the United Nations is now working."

DAY

Called "A Travesty"

Evatt, who sat in the Security Council and watched the Russian delegate invoke the veto power three times in one session on the Spanish issue, said:

"It is a travesty on democratic procedures when any one nation can block the unanimous opinion of the remainder of a council of eleven when it is endeavoring solely to conciliate and adjust international disputes and situations.

"Australia has therefore given formal notice that the General Assembly will be asked at its next meeting to review the way in which the veto power has been exercised during the past year. I sincerely hope that good sense will prevail and that the special privilege of individual veto will never in the future be abused."

Against Speed

The Australian Cabinet member, who will leave later this week to sit in on the Paris peace conference, said it is to be hoped there will be no attempt "of any kind, direct or otherwise, to hustle through in a few weeks settlements which have taken so long to draft."

Reporting on the work of the Atomic Energy Commission, he said he had obeyed the United Nations General Assembly mandate to proceed with the utmost dispatch to such an extent that some of his colleagues had good-humoredly accused him of driving them too hard. He said, however, that "substantial progress has been made."

Evatt praised the United States offer "to give up this new and tremendously powerful weapon" as an act "unparalleled in history."

Member Applications

Meanwhile, the bids of five nations, two of which are loaded with political dynamite, were on file today as the deadline arrived for applications for membership in the United Nations to be considered at the September meeting of the General Assembly. (600)

SIAM FILES APPEAL WITH U. N. COUNCIL ON BORDER DISPUTE

JUL 16 1946

NEW YORK, July 15. — (AP) Siam appealed to the United Nations Security council tonight to settle her frontier disputes with Indo-China "which threaten the preservation of peace" between the Republic of France and the Kingdom of Siam.

The formal complaint, asking council mediation and agreeing to abide by the council's proposals for solution, said the border troubles continued to "cause grave concern" to the government of Siam.

The request from the Bangkok government, dated July 11, was circulated immediately among the council delegations and will be placed on the agenda within three days for consideration at the next meeting.

The United States, Great Britain and China already have said they would support a full hearing on the dispute and were joined by India in support of Siam's pending application for membership in the United Nations.

The Siamese announcement said a delegation from Bangkok would arrive in New York within a few days to support Siamese charges of French aggression from Indo-China which were laid before the U.N. twice last May without recommendation for Security council intervention. (600)

Text of Appeal From Siam

JUL 16 1946

The Siamese Chargé d'Affaires, Nai Bhakdi, handed to Arkady Sobolev, Acting Secretary General of the United Nations, yesterday afternoon the following communication:

Sir: N.Y. TIMES

In conformity with instructions received from the Minister for Foreign Affairs of Siam, I have the honor to transmit to Your Excellency the following communication cabled from Bangkok:

JUL 16 1946

JUL 16 1946

To the Secretary General of the United Nations.

Your Excellency:

The cablegram from the Prime Minister of Siam, dated the 25th May, 1946, addressed to Your Excellency, indicated a state of affairs on the Indo-Chinese-Siamese frontiers which so menaced the maintenance of peace in this area as to cause grave concern to the Government of Siam, a country which is whole-heartedly devoted to the principle of the settlement of international differences by pacific means.

As these unfortunate conditions, especially in view of the fact that territorial problems pending between the two countries still remain to be solved, continue to give rise to profound anxiety, the Government of Siam has decided to bring the matter formally to the attenton of the Security Council.

The Government of Siam, duly authorized by the National Assembly on the 17th June, 1946, unreservedly accepts the obligations imposed by Article 35, Paragraph 2, of the Charter of the United Nations as a prerequisite to bringing to the attention of the Security Council, for consideration under the pertinent article of the Charter, those matters in dispute between the Republic of France and the Kingdom of Siam which threaten the preservation of peace between the two countries.

The Government of Siam further agrees to accept any solution proposed by the Security Council in regard to immediate matters at issue, as well as in regard to all matters, territorial or otherwise, connected therewith.

The Government of Siam now formally requests Your Excellency to place the dispute between France and Siam upon the agenda of the Security Council.

Accept, sir, the assurances of my highest consideration.

DIREK JAYANAM.
Minister for Foreign Affairs of Siam.
Bangkok, July 11th, 1946.

I am also to inform Your Excellency that in connection with the above a Siamese delegation is leaving Bangkok for New York within a few days.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
L. D. BHAKDI,
Charge d'Affaires, A. I.

U. N. GROUP FAVORS SITE OF 3.5 MILES

JUL 16 1946

Area of 2,240 Acres Will Be Required, Commission Decides.

JUL 16 1946

NEW YORK, July 15 (AP)—The United Nations Headquarters commission today approved a committee recommendation for consideration of an unselected area of 2,240 acres, or 3.5 square miles, to be occupied by the official buildings of the proposed "world capital."

It said the required building site might be reduced to two square miles if it has " a natural or publicly-owned protective belt of assured permanence" which would ensure a total area of 3.5 square miles.

The chairman, Sir Angus Fletcher, said the commission is continuing examination of potentially suitable sites.

The report will be submitted to the General assembly in September. The areas under examination are in the New York-Connecticut border counties of Westchester and Fairfield.

TO TRY HITLER YOUTHS

DAY

London, July 15 (A. P.).—The United Nations War Crimes Commission said today twenty members of the Hitler youth movement would be tried on charges of killing five captured flyers near Pforzheim, Germany, on March 17, 1945. A group of seven flyers was marched at midnight to the town cemetery. Three escaped and four were shot to death. One of the fugitives was captured the next day and killed, but the other two will testify in the trials.

BRITAIN CONTINUES BREAD RATIONING DESPITE U. S. LOAN

JUL 16 1946

Wheeler

LONDON, July 15—(AP) Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton told the House of Commons today that the American loan to Britain would bring relief from a monotonous, belt-tightening diet, but Food Minister John Strachey emphasized there would be no retreat from bread rationing.

Dalton, in a statement first greeted by scattered boos and later by cheers, said the $3,750,000,000 lent by the United States not only would supply Britons with a more varied diet, but would bring them a limited amount of consumer goods.

NIGHT

He added, however, that priority would be given capital investments, which he said would help Britain to get on her feet again and contribute to world trade.

A Labor party member asked Dalton how much Britain stood to lose with the removal of price controls in the United States.

"Calculations vary according to the calculator and according to the day of the week," Dalton replied. "Prices move about very rapidly and I would prefer not to give an exact answer."

Strachey was asked if it would be too late to reconsider bread rationing, which begins next Sunday, and he replied:

"I am sorry to say that as far as cereals supplies are concerned, the ratification of the loan can have no direct or indirect effect whatever."

The food minister, however, bowing to the demands of housewives, has increased the ration of bread for persons under 18 years of age by an ounce a day, and has made other slight adjustments. These increases, granted following mass meetings of women and petitions to the ministry, will cut the expected saving of wheat in Britain from 10 per cent to 7 per cent, Strachey said.

"We have come to the conclusion that the best way of helping the most hard-pressed housewives is to give extra bread not directly to them, but to their children," he said.

U.S. Loan To Vary Britain's Diet

London, July 15 (AP)—Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton told the House of Commons today that the first effects of the $3,750,000,000 United States loan would be a more varied British diet, but "we cannot yet afford to buy all we would like."

The credit, repayable over 50 years beginning in 1951 at 2 per cent provisional interest, was enacted by the United States Congress Saturday and awaited only President Truman's promised signature.

DAY

"We shall be able to authorize the Ministry of Food to purchase foodstuffs which, if they can be obtained, will provide a more varied diet," the Laborite financial secretary said in commenting on the loan.

Priorities Indicated

He added that the Government expected also to be able to prepare for better supplies of raw materials and a limited increase in manufactured imports.

Comments of British newspapers ranged from restrained optimism to gloomy foreboding. Some editors professed to see the outpouring from the United States Treasury as a new menace to the entire British Empire.

Stocks were steady. The loan caused no bouyancy on the market.

Dalton also told the House of Commons, "we cannot relax our efforts in production, especially in the export trade. As soon as we can, we must balance our overseas account."

Import Increase Seen

The Cabinet considered the loan earlier. Authoritative informants said the loan would result in high priority for machinery, machine tools and newsprint to allow newspapers to increase from their current four-page sizes.

The program also is expected to provide for new gasoline imports which may end rationing by Christmas, these informants said.

While Britain can draw on her new dollar reservoir up to the limit, financial circles expressed belief that the Government would proceed slowly to avoid buying while prices were high.

Palestine Parley Is Resumed

Wheeler

London, July 15 (AP)—British and American negotiators resumed talks on Palestine today amid growing indication that Britain insists on all or nothing in implementation of the Anglo-American Committee report.

DAY

Details were withheld under a news blackout imposed at Britain's request, but Foreign Office sources said that London would not recede from its view that admission of 100,000 Jews could not be considered separately from the other nine recommendations in the report.

These include recommendations that Britain and the United States, with other countries, should endeavor to find homes for displaced persons irrespective of creed and nationality, and that terrorism, illegal armies and threats of violence—by either Jews or Arabs—be suppressed.

U.S. Balks At Armed Aid

American negotiators were understood to be under instructions to offer any financial and technical assistance necessary to implement the immigration, but not to commit the United States to military assistance.

In Baghdad, Jamil Pasha Alrawi, Iraq's Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs, said that the Arab states resented American intervention in Palestine.

The London negotiations, he said, will not change the Arab attitude and the Arab states "have made it clear that American intervention must stop."

Consequences Feared

"Anglo-American politicians should meditate well," he asserted, "before making decisions that will arouse grave consequences in the whole Arab world."

Diplomatic observers expressed belief that the talks might continue for three or four weeks. Some quarters suggested the talks might be followed by consultations between British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

Major General Sir Edward Spears, head of the Spears Mission to Syria and Lebanon in 1941, predicted meanwhile that if 100,000 Jews were sent to Palestine this year "all hope of peace and security in the Middle East would end."

"Zionist Fascism" Hit

"Zionist fascism," Spears said in a letter to the Sunday Chronicle, "is one of the realities of the Palestine problem, and to ignore it is unrealistic. No policy short of surrender to its demands will reconcile it. If the British Government decided to admit 100,000 Jews, this would be taken as a first installment obtained by pressure and violence, and the same methods would be continued until the objective of a Jewish majority had been obtained."

At the same time a demand that the British Government make public evidence which Prime Minister Attlee has said links arrested Jewish leaders in Palestine with recent violence came from Prof. Saul Brodetsky, chairman of the board of deputies of British Jews.

Dispatches from Palestine disclosed that three members of the executive of the Jewish agency still are held by British authorities.

NAZI COMMANDER IN NORWAY WILL FACE ALLIED COURT

JUL 16 1946

LONDON, July 15—(AP) Gen. Nikolaus von Falkenhorst, Nazi commander in chief in Norway during the German occupation, will be tried about July 29 on charges of responsibility in killing of 14 British Commandos taken as prisoners of war, the United Nations War Crimes commission announced tonight.

NIGHT

Earlier the commission disclosed that a group of 20 members of the Hitler youth movement will be tried for slaying five Allied airmen near Pforzheim in March, 1945. It was at Pforzheim that seven captured airmen were taken from a school cellar at midnight to a cemetery, where four were shot to death and three escaped. Later one was recaptured and slain, but the other two who escaped will be summoned as prosecution witnesses.

Von Falkenhorst's trial will be held at Celle, north of Hamburg, while the Hitler youth members will be tried at Ricklinhausen probably on Aug. 14.

Von Falkenhorst, who surrendered to the U. S. 42nd (Rainbow) division in May, 1945, will be charged also with inciting his troops to give no quarter to British Commandos and with turning Commandos over to Nazi security police for almost certain death, the announcement said.

Nazi military installations in Norway were a target for British Commando raids during the war.

MOSCOW BLASTS CONGRESS ON OPA

JUL 16 1946

London, July 15 (A. P.).—The Moscow radio asserted today that the American Congress is "taking no measures to alleviate the lot of the people, to put the brake on soaring prices."

"Every day that passes with prices uncontrolled augments the menace of inflation and hampers the reinstatement of controls in the future," Commentator Anatoli Ossipov declared in a review of the United States domestic scene.

DAY

"Government circles, appreciating the gravity of the situation, are doing at least something to curb the appetites of manufacturers and owners of housing property, but these are only half measures, and the Americans know it," he said. "The problem can only really be tackled on a Federal scale."

Ossipov said "some United States newspaper and radio stations—especially broadcasts for abroad—are trying to make out that nothing in particular has happened."

"These papers and stations are controlled by big business, and it is not surprising that they should try to mislead public opinion both at home and abroad. The progressive American opinion and press is unanimous in acknowledging that, in the bickering around price control, Congress has shown what its real position in the country is and the way it is leaning."

U.S. News Executives Received By Attlee

London, July 15 (AP)—Twelve American news executives winding up a month's tour of Europe were received by Clement Attlee, British Prime Minister, today three days before their scheduled takeoff for Paris and home.

The editors accepted an invitation to visit the Prime Minister at Number 10 Downing street this afternoon. A special reception to meet other British Government officials was arranged for later today at the Dorchester Hotel.

Their full program called for a visit to Parliament tomorrow. W. Averell Harriman, United States

Ambassador, scheduled another reception in their honor for tomorrow night.

On Thursday the Army C-54 transport that has carried them through Germany, Austria and Italy will take them to Paris from where they will take off July 20 for the United States.

Anglo-Canadian Grain Talks To Be Resumed

London, July 15 (AP)—The Evening News said today it understands that negotiations for "signing of an Anglo-Canadian long-term wheat agreement will probably be resumed this week."

The News predicted the agreement would guarantee a market to Canadian farmers "over a period of about four years" and would mean more substantial wheat supplies for Britain starting next year.

It said Food Minister John Strachey had hoped to conclude the agreement during his recent visit to Canada and the United States but found it impossible to complete administrative details in time.

Britain May Consider Guiana Jewish Colony

London, July 15 (AP)—George Hall, colonial secretary, today said that Britain was prepared to give further consideration to a 1939 offer to provide land and facilities for a group settlement of Jews in British Guiana if the Jews want it.

"The proposal presents difficulties and has been the subject of much inquiry in the past," he said in a written reply to a question by a member of the House of Commons.

"But his Majesty's Government," Hall added, "will give the matter further consideration if it is clear that this is desired by responsible Jewish authorities."

AMERICAN COUPLE RELEASED BY REDS

Officer, Wife Held 15 Days for Entering Soviet Zone.

X E. Shanks

BERLIN, Tuesday, July 16—(AP) A United States Army warrant officer and his petite wife, on the verge of a breakdown when she first gained her freedom, were released unharmed early today after 15 days in Russian captivity for entering the Soviet occupation zone in Berlin without a written permit.

Warrant Officer Samuel L. Harrison and his wife, Helen, told newspapermen at an Army press conference that following their detention when they went to the Russian zone on July 1 to visit a dog kennel, they were kept apart for two days—Harrison in a dungeon-like cellar and his wife in a bare room.

NIGHT JUL 16 1946

Questioned Constantly

Reunited, they were not treated roughly, Harrison said, and received "passable" food, although they were questioned constantly as to the reason for their presence in the Russian zone.

The couple was handed over to Maj. Gen. Frank A. Keating, U. S. Berlin commander, at Russian headquarters here at 1:45 a. m.

Although the Russians gave no reason for the couple's long detention, Army officials intimated it was in retaliation for the detention of two Russian military personnel by the Americans. Harrison said his Russian questioners told him repeatedly the Americans were holding Russians.

Apparently the Russians still held in custody two other Americans—Capt. Harold Cobin of Newark, N. J., and Lt. George Wyatt of Oklahoma City—who last were seen boarding a train for Oranienburg in the Russian zone.

Reds Promise to Investigate

American military officials said they had received no word concerning Cobin and Wyatt, but said that the Russians had promised to investigate the case.

Originally the Russians promised to release the Harrisons by Sunday and when they failed to do so, a high-ranking American officer said the Russians were guilty of a breach of faith.

U. S. officials told newspapermen they had advised the Russians, in answer to Soviet inquiries, that the Americans had in custody two Red army personnel seized in the U. S. occupation zone. The Russians were wearing civilian clothes, the officials said.

The inference was, therefore, that the Russians had been holding the American couple in reprisal in order to obtain the freedom of the two Russians, apparently regarded by Soviet officials as of considerable importance.

Harrison, with a two-day growth of beard, and his petite wife, both looking a bit bewildered, walked into the early morning press conference with Keating.

Keating said Mrs. Harrison was "ready to break down" when she first saw the general, it had been so long since she had seen an American face.

The man and wife told newspapermen they were questioned on many occasions and at great length by the Russians.

"Things happened to us so fast after we innocently walked into the Russian zone in search of a dog kennel that we can't quite remember everything," Harrison began.

Separated Two Days

"The first two days of our detention we were separated," he continued. "I was kept in a cellar—more like a dungeon—and my wife in a bare room with only a bed, table and chair—with guards at the door.

"Those first two days during which we were subjected to considerable questioning were most difficult, mainly because we were worried about each other."

Mrs. Harrison, sitting nervously on the edge of her chair, interjected, "I was very scared, but I got over my fright eventually."

"At first they took our watches, rings, wallets and identification cards," Harrison continued. "I was questioned for three hours, mainly on the point of what we were doing in the Russian zone. Our questioners, dressed in civvies, always came back to that question. They complained repeatedly that Americans were holding Russians.

Moved By Automobile

"Two or three times we were advised that we would be released, but instead we simply were moved to different houses by automobile, always in the neighborhood of northern Berlin.

"We were not treated roughly after the first two days. Even the food was passable, although the food they gave us the first 48 hours couldn't be eaten. I don't know what sort of stuff it was.

"Last Friday the Russians sent up a barber to me and I received my first shave."

Asked whether the Russians also had taken his socks, Harrison grinned and looked at his bare ankles, explaining, "My socks became so dirty I decided it was better to throw them away. When we were released, everything that had been taken away from us was returned intact—including our jeep." (400)

U. S. General in Berlin Declares He'll Take Action if Couple Are Not Freed Today.

DAY

Berlin, July 15 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Frank A. Keating, the American commander in Berlin, said today that he had received a definite promise from the Russian Gen. Alexander Kotikov that the American warrant officer and his wife, missing since they entered the Soviet zone July 1, would be released within a few hours.

Keating said he would take "very definite action" if the missing couple, Warrant Officer Samuel L. Harrison of San Antonio, Tex., and his wife Helen were not released. Keating added that he personally would receive the Harrisons at Soviet headquarters.

"Our information is that they will definitely be released tonight," he said.

The General declared he would take only a Russian-speaking interpreter with him to Soviet headquarters.

'Something May Happen.'

A high-ranking United States Army officer, who declined to be quoted by name, said yesterday that "something is likely to happen" if the Russians failed by today to carry out a previous promise to release the Harrisons. This officer said that "we are getting mad" about the detention of these Americans, who were reported seized when they entered the Soviet zone without the required travel orders to visit a pet shop.

"The Russians gave us a definite commitment they would return the Harrisons yesterday or today," the Army officer said. "We sent some agents down to the Russian Kommandatur to fetch them, but they did not get them."

Capt. Harold Cobin of Newark, N. J., and 2d Lieut. George E. Wyatt of Oklahoma City, last seen on July 4 when they were reported to have boarded a train for Oranienburg, north of Berlin, also have not been heard from.

U. S. ZONE IMPORT ORDERS ANNOUNCED

JUL 16 1946

Berlin, July 15 (A. P.).—Several million dollars worth of new import orders for food and materials needed for the economy of the United States occupation zone of Germany were announced today by the American Military Government.

Commitments were made to purchase three million dollars worth of field seeds from France, the Netherlands, Sweden and Denmark and contracts signed for purchase of another one million dollars worth of preserved fish from Sweden.

On the export side, an agreement was made to ship to Denmark 195 tons of soda ash per month for three months to manufacture bottles in which to ship Danish milk back to the United States zone.

The United States zone also sold to Czecho-Slovakia $25,000 worth of Freon gas.

Siegfried Line Is Mostly Junk

Berlin, July 15 (AP)—The Siegfried line—Hitler's famous but futile west wall—isn't worth ripping up, Allied officers have concluded.

Many of the emplacements now outmoded will be ignored, mute reminders to the Germans for whatever they want to make of it.

The anti-aircraft batteries and mine fields of the west wall have all been destroyed however. Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States deputy military governor, said that nothing of any war potential would be allowed to remain intact.

Schacht 'Traitor' To Hitler, His Counsel Says

T. Reedy

Nuernberg, Germany, July 15 (AP)—The international military tribunal was asked today to judge the case of Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz so that history will not judge all German seamen as pirates and murderers.

A few hours earlier, counsel for Hjalmar Schacht, Germany's financial wizard, pleaded for his acquittal on grounds that he was an out and out "traitor" to Hitler.

Otto Kranzbuehler, presenting defense summary for Doenitz, who was for eight days head of state after Hitler's announced death, told the court that "not only the fate of the Admiral is connected with this decision—it is also a question of the honorable names of hundreds of thousands of German seamen."

NIGHT

Submarine Warfare

Kranzbuehler, himself a navy man, said the principal charge against Doenitz was unrestricted U-boat warfare early in the war. This he blamed on the British themselves.

"Soon after the war started, orders of the British Admiralty fell into German hands," he said. "A decision of the tribunal has made it possible for me to submit them."

He said under these orders the British merchant vessels were ordered to report submarines by radio and use naval artillery and depth charges against them.

Kranzbuehler declared that the late President Roosevelt justified an order to United States naval forces to attack submarines with the statement "when you see a rattlesnake rear its head do not wait until it jumps at you but you destroy it before it gets a chance."

Reference To 1941 Speech

His reference was to a speech by Roosevelt in 1941 that the Navy intended to protect United States shipping then engaged in ferrying lend-lease materials to Britain.

Counsel for Schacht presented the German financial wizard as a man who "trod the path of conspiracy" against Hitler and now finds himself in the same prisoners' box with the Gestapo chief who arrested him for such overthrow attempts.

Rudolf Dix, appearing for Schacht, said the aging financier went through three stages of the Hitler regime, each as a patriot.

1. Active participation in the Government as the Reich's Finance Minister for the good of Germany until 1938 when he resigned.

2. Minister Without Portfolio from 1938 to 1943, constantly conspiring to overthrow the warrior Government and keeping that position in order to bore from within.

3. An outright plotter against Hitler's life from 1943 on, including a definite role in the July 20, 1944, bomb plot which resulted in Scacht's incarceration in a concentration camp.

Dix derided the allegation that Schacht quit because of rivalry with Hermann Goering. He said the aging financier saw Goering only as chief of the war plan, and that was reason for enmity.

DECLARES SCHACHT WAS FOE OF HITLER

T. Reedy

Nuernberg, July 15 (A. P.).—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Nazi Germany's financial wizard, was pictured by his own attorney before the International Military Tribunal today as a man who "trod the path of conspiracy" against Adolf Hitler and now finds himself in the same prisoner's box with the Gestapo chief who arrested him for such conspiracy.

DAY

The attorney, Dr. Rudolf Dix, declared in his final summing-up address: "Kaltenbrunner and Schacht sit on the defendant's bench. Kaltenbrunner was Chief of the Main Reich Security Office until May, 1945. Schacht was a prisoner of the Main Security Office in various concentration camps. It makes a rarely grotesque picture to see the jailer-in-chief and his prisoner sharing the same bench."

Dix said that since the summer of 1944 he had held the commission to defend Schacht as one of the July 20 bomb plotters before Hitler's People's Court and that now he found himself defending him before a tribunal seeking to fix the guilt of Hitler's Government. "This too is in itself a self-contradictory state of affairs," he said. (900)

PAULEY SAYS REDS HIDE DATA ON REICH

JUL 16 1946

DAY

Frankfurt, July 15 (A. P.).—The American reparation plans in Germany will have to be revised materially unless Soviet Russia changes her present policies, according to Edwin W. Pauley, member of the Allied Reparations Commission and personal representative of President Truman.

Arriving here yesterday from Geneva to begin a study of reparations in the United States Zone, Pauley told a press conference that the Soviet Union was removing finishedconsumer goods from Germany in violation of the Potsdam agreement which, he said, "provides first priority on German exports to pay for essential imports." He said his mission had been unable thus far to determine how much the Russians were taking out of Germany. The mission has requested but not received from the Russians figures on removals of corrent production, Pawley added.

Pauley and his group of experts plan to visit the Ruhr valley in the British Zone while they are in Germany. They had previously visited Japan, Korea, Manchuria, Formosa and the Philippines.

G. I. Wives Taught Tricks of Germans

Frankfurt, Germany (A. P.).—American soldiers' wives and children in Germany will be put through an orientation lecture program "to combat current German propaganda and false thinking," the United States Army announced.

They will be warned against the Germans' "fawning, 'friendly' attitudes" and be urged not to develop false sympathy because the Germans look clean and healthy, the Army said. American youngsters in Germany will be told "they are ambassadors of democracy and by their example can do much to refute Nazi youth doctrines."

Reds Assail British Policy, Find 'Velvet Curtain' in East

MOSCOW, July 15 — (AP) The Communist party's official newspaper Pravda accused Great Britain today of hanging up a "velvet curtain" over the Pacific and the Middle East where, it declared, there is "neither peace nor order" a year after the war.

In a broadside aimed at the British who talk about Russia's "iron curtain" in Europe, a Pravda article by Boris Izakoff invited its readers to lift a corner of the "velvet curtain" and take a glance behind it.

War Activity in Indies

Izakoff charged "war activity on a big scale" in Indonesia and "something quite close to war operations' 'in Palestine.

"Curious details are outlined from time to time behind the folds of the velvet curtain which divides Indonesia from the outside world," the Pravda writer said.

He added that in Indonesia a year after the war there is "occurring war activity on a big scale of which we read daily in the newspapers. And five months after British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's speech before the United Nations Security council, war in Indonesia is unceasing day after day."

NIGHT

Behind the British "velvet curtain," the writer said, the British government mission went to India with a plan for treating all possible questions "except the most important—the evacuation of the British army from India."

Writes of Palestine

Turning to Palestine, Izakoff said that "in reality there is appearing something quite close to war operations. All that is being done there is justified in London by citing misunderstanding between Jews and Arabs. A convenient justification!"

The writer said efforts to evacuate the British army from Egypt were useless and declared that foreign troops were still in Syria and Lebanon.

Greece, the sole Balkan country on the other side of the "velvet curtain," he added, "knows neither peace nor order" and despite the fact that a promise was made to evacuate British forces after the elections "British forces still are not leaving."

"The picture would not be complete," Izakoff continued, "if it did not include what is happening behind the velvet curtain in the English occupation zone in Germany."

Izakoff said that one of the most important tasks placed before the occupation authorities was uprooting Hitler and demilitarization, then asked "How are things going in the English zone?"

The author recalled that the Soviet press "has already pointed out that an appreciable part of the German armed forces is still not demobilized in the English zone." He gave the figure as 147,672, which he said was "almost one and a half times more than the Reichswehr was permitted to have after the first World war."

He charged that uprooting of fascism in the English zone had only "symbolic character" and that "order behind the British velvet curtain in no way answers the task of creating a sound and long peace."

Britain's 'Velvet Curtain' Hit By Reds

JUL 16 1946

Moscow, July 15 (AP)—The Communist organ Pravda declared today in an article by Boris Izakoff that while British circles have been talking about a Russian "iron curtain" in Eastern Europe, Britain has hung up a "velvet curtain" in the Pacific and Middle East.

The article, which invited Pravda's readers to lift the "velvet curtain" and look behind it, stated:

"Curious details are outlined from time to time behind the folds of the velvet curtain, which divides Indonesia from the outside world." It added that in Indonesia a year after the war there is "occurring war activity on a big scale of which we read daily in the newspapers" and that more than five months after Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's speech before the United Nations Security Council "war in Indonesia is unceasing day after day."

DAY

Behind this same "velvet curtain," the article continued, a British Government mission went to India with a plan of treating all possible questions "except the most important—the evacuation of the English Army from India."

Turning to Palestine, the Pravda writer stated: "In reality, there is happening in Palestine something quite close to war operations. All that is there being done is justified in London by citing a misunderstanding between Jews and Arabs. Convenient justification!"

Cites Egypt, Syria, Greece

Pravda said that Egyptian efforts to get the British Army out of Egypt were useless and that foreign troops were still in Syria and Lebanon.

It asserted that Greece, sole Balkan country on the other side of the "velvet curtain," knows "neither peace nor order." Despite the fact that a promise was made to evacuate British forces after the elections, "English forces are still not leaving," Pravda said.

"The picture would not be complete if it did not include what is happening behind the velvet curtain in the English occupation zone of Germany," said the article.

Complain About Germany

"The Soviet press has already pointed out that an appreciable part of the German armed forces are still not demobilized in the English zone."

Pravda placed the number of forces at 147,672, and added: "This is almost one and a half times more than the German Reichswehr was permitted after the first World War."

Pravda said the uprooting of Fascism in the British zone has only a "symbolic character."

"The order behind the velvet curtain in no way answers the task of creating a sound and long peace," it added.

Mihailovic, 10 Aides Guilty, Sentenced to Die for Treason

BELGRADE, July 15. — (AP) Gen. Draja Mihailovic and 10 of his wartime followers were sentenced today to die before firing squads for treason and collaboration with the Nazi invaders of Yugoslavia, and the 13 other defendants similarly charged were given prison sentences ranging down to 18 months.

The 50-year-old leader of the Chetniks, first organized resistance to the Nazis in his country, received the verdict of the Yugoslav military court with outward calm. But the crowd, including many uniformed Partisans who fought under Marshal Tito, cheered when the court president announced the findings.

NIGHT

The [illegible] Chetnik chieftain and his co-defendants were given eight and one-half hours in which to appeal the death sentences to the presidium of the Yugoslav parliament. If the sentences are upheld the penalties will be exacted privately and swiftly, unconfirmed reports said.

For the 28 days of the trial the defendants had been led into the courtroom through a side door and into an aisle where the spectators easily could reach out and touch Mihailovic. Today every eye was glued on the doorway, but the Chetnik leader, garbed in a plain khaki tunic and trousers, suddenly appeared at the head of the procession of prisoners from a doorway adjacent to the judges' bench.

Sentenced to death with Mihailovic were:

Radoslav-Rade Radic, 56, former Chetnik unit commander.

Milos Glisch, 36, a Chetnik leader.

Oskar Pavlovic, 54, former Zagreb chief of police.

Dragi Yovanovic, 44, former Belgrade chief of police.

Yanasje-Tasa Dinic, 55, former minister of interior in the puppet government of the late Premier Milan Nedic. During the trial Dinic told the court "I don't want to live after the crimes I have committed."

Velibor Yonic, 54, Nedic's minister of education.

Peter Zhivkovic, former Yugoslav general, once a member of the exiled government, convicted in absentia.

Mladen Zujevic, 51, former Chetnik commander believed now living in Paris, convicted in absentia.

Djuro Dokic, 72, former minister of commerce, who was accused of conspiring to ship slave workers into Germany.

Sentenced In Absentia

Among those sentenced in absentia were two former Yugoslav diplomatic representatives in Washington—Konstantin Fotic, former ambassador to the United States, and Zhivan Knezevic, an attache. They were accused of organizing false propaganda abroad against Tito's national liberation movement. Both were sentenced to terms of 20 years in prison.

Extraordinary precautions had been taken by the court. Crowds gathered before ticket booths long before court convened at 8:15 a. m. (2:15 a. m., EST). Each person who gained admittance was screened carefully. All were ordered to leave parcels and briefcases outside, and the trees near the courthouse were festooned with packages left hanging there.

The assemblage of uniformed men and intellectuals inside the courtroom was in sharp contrast to the crowds of peasants at previous sessions. The spectators were quiet through most of the two-hour proceedings during which the president read a long list of crimes with which Mihailovic was accused.

Death Sentences Cheered

But the reading of the death sentences, one after another, evoked shouts of approval and bursts of applause—the heaviest reserved for the sentencing of Mihailovic himself.

Mihailovic's sentence was announced at 10.20 A.M., and newsreel cameras, grinding away under the glaring lights, were focused upon his calm face. A battery of photographers' bulbs flashed in an instant.

The word of the verdict was speeded to tense crowds outside the courtroom, and by loudspeaker to crowds gathered in the center of Belgrade.

Kumanudi's Sentence Lightest

The lightest of the sentences—eighteen months—was given to Dr. Kosta Kumanudi, 72, who frequently served Yugoslav governments before the war as a Cabinet minister.

Relatively light sentences also were given Dr. Lazar-Laza Markovic, 64, prewar Cabinet minister, six years; Djuro Vilovic, 51, defrocked Catholic priest and former member of the National Committee, seven years; Dr. Momchilo Ninčic, 70, Minister of Foreign Affairs in the London exiled Government, eight years.

Others Sentenced

Sentenced to 20 years imprisonment with a stipulation of forced labor were Zivko Topalovic, wartime aide of Mihailovic and prewar Social Democratic leader now believed to be in Rome; Slobodan Yovanovioc, former London government premier and oldest of the defendants; Dr. Stefan Molievic, former president of Mihailovic's National Committee, and Slavoljub Vranjesevic, former chief of staff to radio's unit.

Dr. Bozidar Puric, also a former London Government premier, was sentenced to sixteen years' imprisonment; Dr. Milan Gavrilovic, first prewar Yugoslav Ambassabor to Russia, fifteen years, and Radoje Knezevich, former major in the Yugoslav Royal Army, ten years.

Many observers, noting that in general those closely associated with the puppet Nedie regime were given the death sentence, expressed surprise at the lightness of the other sentences.

The verdict followed a spectacular trial which began June 10 and was marked by the court's refusal to permit testimony by American flyers shot down in Yugoslavia during the war.

The Mihailovic-Tito Feud

Mihailovic admitted having contacts with the Germans, but denied he ever actively collaborated or intended to collaborate with the Nazis. The testimony brought into sharp focus the wartime conflict between the Chetniks and the Partisans organized later by Gen. Jospi Broz (Tito), now Premier of Yugoslavia.

Mihailovic, once hailed as a hero of Yugoslavia, organized his Chetniks in 1941 after King Peter's Government fled to London. He was designated as War Minister by the émigré Government and later was assigned British and American liaison officers.

Tito's National Liberation Movement forces emerged in 1943, and a year later the British and United States governments switched their support to them.

Mihailovic was captured in his mountain fastnesses last March 13, with a small band of faithful followers.

Chetnik Leader And 10 Others To Be Shot

G. PALMER

Belgrade, July 15 (AP) — Gen. Draja Mihailovic, former Chetnik leader, and ten of his 23 codefendants were convicted today by a Yugoslav military court on charges of collaborating with the Germans and were sentenced to die before firing squad.

DAY

The defendant, the first underground leader to attract wide attention during the war, was given eight and a half hours to appeal for leniency from the presidium of the Yugoslav Parliament. The deadline is 8 P.M.

Unconfirmed reports said the executions would be private, provided the sentences were upheld, and that the penalties would be executed swiftly.

Liaison With Allies

Mihailovic became Minister of War to former King Peter's exiled government in London. American and British officers served at his mountain headquarters as liaison officers during the last years of the war.

Prison sentences ranging downward to eighteen months were imposed on the remaining defendants.

It was not immediately announced how soon the death sentences would be carried out. Two of those sentenced to die were tried and convicted in absentia.

Others To Die

Sentenced to be shot with Mihailovic were:

Redoslav Rade Radich, 56-year-old former commander of the Bratislav Chetnik unit.

Milos Glisch, 36-year-old Chetnik leader.

Oskar Pavlovich, 54, former Zagreb police chief.

Dragi Yovanovich, 44, former Belgrade police chief.

Tanasje-Tasa Dinich, 55, former Minister of the Interior in the puppet government of Milan Nedic, who told the court: "I don't want to live after the crimes I have committed."

Velibor Yonich, 54, Minister of Education in the Nedic Government.

Peter Zhivkovich, former Yugoslav general sentenced in absentia.

Forced Labor Charge

Djuro Dokich, 72, former Commerce Minister accused of conspiring for forced shipment of workers into Germany.

Kosta Musicki, 49, former aide de camp to King Peter and Queen Mary.

Mladen Zujeich, 51, former Chetnik commander believed to be in Paris and sentenced in absentia.

Among those receiving prison sentences was Konstantin Fotich, former Yugoslav Ambassador to the United States, who was sentenced in absentia to 20 years.

Outwardly Calm

The crowd cheered when the verdict was announced against Mihailovic, who took the decision with outward calm.

The verdict against the Serbian-born Chetnick leader and his fellow defendants climaxed a trial which began July 10. Mihailovic maintained stoutly throughout the proceedings that he was innocent of collaboration with the Nazis and that he had fought to drive them from the country.

The verdict was announced shortly after 8 A.M. (2 A.M. EST) by the president of the military court, which had concluded hearing of testimony last week.

Sentencing was delayed for several hours, however, under Yugoslav court procedure which required a full explanation of why the defendants were found guilty.

U.S. Testimony Out

The trial was marked by the refusal of the Yugoslav Government to permit the testimony of United States flyers who were forced down in Yugoslavia during the war and who were ready to swear that they owed their lives to Mihailovic's men.

Mihailovic was sentenced in a courtroom crowded with spectators, many of whom had waited for hours to gain admittance. In contrast to the throng of peasants who had made up the spectators during the 28 days of actual trial, the crowd included hundreds of uniformed Partisan fighters, high-ranking Yugoslav officers and intellectuals.

The spectators were screened carefully at the gate before being admitted to the courtroom and were ordered to leave parcels and briefcases outside the building. The trees outside were decorated with briefcases and packages suspended from the branches.

Veteran Career Officer

Mihailovic was a veteran career officer. When the Balkan war broke out in 1912 he was a 17-year-old student in a Belgrade military academy, but left school to join the Serbian army in the field.

He was promoted to second lieutenant for his services in that campaign and subsequently won high honors in World War 1, when he received almost all the military decorations the Serbian Government could bestow.

After the formation of the state of Yugoslavia, Mihailovic joined the Royal Guard and became one of the youngest majors in the army. He attended the general staff school and subsequently served successively as military attache in Sofia and Prague.

When Germany invaded Yugoslavia in April, 1941, Mihailovic was serving as a regimental commander with the rank of colonel. With the flight of the government he retired into the mountain fastnesses of the country, where he gradually rallied a band of followers about him.

Rated Hero By Allies

He was soon recognized by exiled King Peter as the leader of the Yugoslav resistance movement and reports of his exploits against the Germans raised him to the role of hero in Allied countries.

In 1943, however, Gen. Josip Broz, now Premier Tito, entered the news as leader of a new Yugoslav resistance army, the Partisans. There were reports of skirmishes between Mihailovic's Chetniks and Tito's followers, and Tito violently accussed Mihailovic of collaborating with the Germans.

In 1944, the British Government, which had been backing Mikhallovich, switched to support of Tito as the leader of organized Yugoslav resistance, and the United States followed suit on the ground that supplies should be made available to the most effective fighter.

With the collapse of the Germans and the emergence of Tito as head of the new Yugoslav government, formal charges of treason and collaboration were prepared against Mikhailovich. Hunted for months, he was finally run down and seized on March 13 last in a mountain refuge, surrounded by only a few faithful followers.

Truman's Intercession Urged

Washington, July 15 (AP)—Constantin Fotitch, former Yugoslav Ambassador, made public today a message to President Truman urging him to "use all your authority with the Government in Belgrade" to set aside "this monstrous sentence" of General Mihailovic.

Fotitch wrote that the death sentence, if carried out, "will greatly affect the tranquillity and internal peace of Yugoslavia and consequently the peaceful consolidation of this part of Europe.

As for his own sentence by the same court, Fotitch said:

"I am not surprised that I have been tried because I was fighting, and will continue to fight, against any dictatorship, no matter from which side it comes."

Fotitch, who was sentenced in absentia to twenty years, said he had not seen the accusation against Asks for Unlimited Force to Fight Aggression —Lays Wreath on Patton's Grave.

Luxembourg, July 15 (A. P.).—Winston Churchill today strongly advocated unlimited armed forces for the United Nations against all aggressors. Addressing the Luxembourg Chamber of Deputies, he urged a collective force exerting its action from a world center so that aggression would fail powerless.

DAY

"I hope Germany will resume her place in the circle of Europe in the form of separate States," the former British Prime Minister said, "so that not one of them will be strong enough to menace the safety of peace."

After luncheon Churchill paid a tribute to all soldiers who fell in the Battle of the Bulge by placing a huge wreath of red roses and white gladioli on the grave of Gen. George S. Patton Jr., the wartime commander of the United States Third Army Patton, who died of injuries, suffered in a traffic accident after the victory, is buried in the Hamm Cemetery, near Luxembourg, where 8,500 white crosses mark the resting places of American soldiers who fell defending this country.

Press Defense Committee, and Communist wings of numerous organizations which played underground roles against Nazism during the war.

The war still seemed to be continuing against Fascism, with exciting posters showing women wearing scarlet liberty caps and brandishing axes against Franco and hydra-headed capitalists.

While English Communists—week-end visitors—received applause in the afternoon's march, it was nothing like Churchill's reception in Metz. When he arrived on the balcony at the city hall, overlooking the market place, the crowd went wild in excitement. For a time it looked as though they never would let him speak, as they roared "Churcheel, Chur-cheel." Many Americans in the crowd (Metz is one of the few remaining cities in France where there still is an active Army post with lines of communication with Germany) heard his appeal for Anglo-French solidarity and his moving tribute to the privations and indignities suffered throughout the war by the citizens of Lorraine.

Metz is a soldier's city. The Romans made it the capital of Belgium. It has been involved in almost all European wars since its foundation. Its only era of peace was in the ninth century, when it became a city of priests and monks with fifty-two churches, abbeys and convents clustered within its walls or defense works. Today, though it lies in the iron-ore district of Lorraine, it is not surrounded by factories but by barracks, and Churchill received a soldier's welcome with a resplendent review of troops under Gen. Giraud.

The general, who took off his Legion of Honor under Petain and swore he would never wear it again until Metz, his hometown, was free, wore it at the celebration.

For the soldiers and citizens, England's discarded Premier was "the great leader of liberty," "the fairy godfather to De Gaulle" and the man who said 'No' to Hitler." Wild cheers rocked the crowds, some onlookers, sobbed, some wept, and some women became hysterical in an inspired moment of his oratory when he declared solemnly: "For forty years I have marched with France. I will continue to march with France. . . . I look to France to lead the birth of Europe."

ITALIAN PREMIER TO GUARD BORDERS

JUL 16 1946

ROME, July 15—(AP) Premier Alcide de Gasperi, introducing his new cabinet to the constituent assembly of the new Italian republic, declared today that his government would make every effort in defense of the Italian frontiers and the disputed Venezia Giulia area.

He said the assembly would be consulted before the Italian peace treaty is signed.

NIGHT

The government's program, de Gasperi said, would be based on the four freedoms expounded by the late President Roosevelt.

De Casperi's program calls for stabilization of the lira, increasing the daily bread ration, a series of agrarian reforms, including expropriation of uncultivated lands for transfer to peasants, and a vast program of public works.

The premier told the assembly that because Italy was in danger of inflation, a long-term economic and financial program could not be presented now.

A message from provisional President Enrico de Nicola to the assembly said a new period of "decisive importance" was beginning for Italy.

Hunger Strike By Jews Reported in Palestine

1,600 in Detention Camp Act to Speed Release

JERSALEUM, 15 (AP).—Well informed Jewish sources said 1,600 Jews in the Palestine government's Rafiah detention camp began a hunger strike tonight.

Although Palestine police denied that such a demonstration was taking place, the Jewish sources said the hunger strikers would maintain their fast "in protest against the authorities' failure to speed up their releases."

Earlier, the government allocated 1,500 immigration certificates for Jewish immigrants for the period July 15-Aug. 15, but only 435 of them will be used by Jews not now in Palestine. The government said 1,065 certificates would be allocated to immigrants who entered Palestine illegally during the last thirty days.

Egypt and Britain Resume Negotiations on Treaty

New Proposal Drops Plan for Military Alliance

CAIRO, July 15 (AP).—Premier Ismail Sidky Pasha told the Chamber of Deputies today that negotiations for a new Anglo-Egyptian treaty of alliance had been resumed after Britain agreed to give up a proposal for a military agreement between the two countries.

He explained that Egypt's independence would not be touched under a newly proposed Anglo-Egyptian joint defense committee, and it was hoped the treaty negotiations would end "with success in the near future."

Negotiations for revision of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty, Sidky said, were halted May 22 "because the British delegation presented to us a plan for a military agreement including certain conditions which our side could not accept."

The new proposal, he explained, called for a joint defense committee of military authorities and civilian representatives appointed in equal numbers. "The Egyptian delegation, after discussing this proposal, discovered that the existence of this committee under the conditions drawn by the Egyptian delegation does not touch the independence of the country in large or small matters," he said.

SEARCH IS PUSHED FOR U. S. MARINES KIDNAPED IN CHINA

JUL 16 1946

T. MASTERSON

TIENTSIN, China, July 15—(AP) Seven United States Marines kidnaped by unidentified Chinese, were sought by air and ground forces today as fighting between Chinese Communist and Government forces was renewed at numerous points in Manchuria and North China.

(In Shanghai the middle course Democratic League declared that China was heading towards civil war on a gigantic scale which would certainly cause her final collapse.)

NIGHT

Marine headquarters in Tientsin disclosed that Marines were taken prisoner Saturday at the village of Hsinanchuang, 22 miles northeast of Chinwantao, on the railroad that leads to Mukden.

Chinese papers here said the abductors were Communists, but the announcement merely described them as a band of about 80 armed Chinese not otherwise identified.

The Marines, members of a detachment guarding a railroad bridge, had gone to the village to buy ice, according to an eighth member of the party who hid in the ice house and escaped capture. The Marines' jeep and trailer were recovered in the village.

Strong Marine patrols immediately began a search, which is continuing. An aerial spotting hunt was pressed Sunday but was hampered Monday by bad weather. Chinese Government troops were assisting.

At the same time, reports reaching here said Communists had attacked a railway station south of Tientsin in Hopei province and were on the offensive in the vicinities of Tsingtao and Tsinan in Shantung province.

These Chinese accounts said 20,000 Communists were attacking the town of Tsimo, 15 miles north of Tsingtao, and that a similar number had fought at Chengyang, ten miles north of Tsingtao.

Other dispatches said 10,000 Communists had encircled Chiengchang, in northern Manchuria, and had captured the town of Hungfantzu, on the north bank of the Sungari River.

Digging Air-Raid Shelters

Other Communists were reported mobilizing northeast of Harbin.

From Kalgan, Communist-controlled capital of Chahar, in Inner Mongolia, came word that the Communists were digging air-raid shelters and erecting sandbag barricades in expectation of large-scale hostilities. Appearance almost daily of unidentified aircraft was given as the reason.

[Amid these reports of war and preparations for war, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek moved from sweltering Nanking to Kuling for the summer. Chinese sources in Nanking said this was a "death blow" to hopes for an early settlement, and that the Communists deeply resented the Government leader's departure at this stage.

Chiang Government Blamed

[The Democratic League's statement, predicting civil war and collapse, placed the major share of blame on Chiang's government, which it said had rejected repeated proposals for peace.

[Lo Lung-chi, league spokesman, said the government had insisted on discussing only military questions rather than allowing the unification program of last January.]

Seven U. S. Marines Kidnaped By Band of 80 Armed Chinese

Nearby Garrison Are Alerted and Strong Detachments Ordered to Hunt for Yanks—Fighting Flares in Manchuria.

T. Masterson

Tientsin, July 15 (A. P.).—Seven American Marines were taken prisoner on Saturday by "an unidentified band of eighty armed Chinese" in a village about twenty-two miles north of Chinwangtao, on the Gulf of Chihli, United States Marine Corps headquarters announced here today.

DAY

The announcement said that all Marine garrisons in the Chinwangtao-Peitaiho area have been alerted and that strong detachments have been ordered to search the countryside for the missing men. An air search, that began at dawn yesterday but was halted by weather conditions, will be resumed as soon as possible.

The Chinese press asserted that the captors were members of the Communist army and that Chinese Nationalist troops have been ordered to join in the search for the Americans.

Jeep Is Recovered.

The Marine announcement said that the Marines were seized in Hsinanchuang village where they had gone to purchase ice. An eighth member of the detachment was in an ice house when the band struck and eluded capture.

The missing men were from a detachment guarding a bridge on the Peiping-Mukden railroad. They were stationed at Kiushouying, a mile and a half from the village where they were captured. The Marine announcement said that the jeep and trailer used by the captured men had been recovered in the village but that no trace of the men has been uncovered.

Raid Shelters and Barricades.

Kalgan, Manchuria, July 15 (A. P.).—The Chinese Communists in this capital of Cohahar province, 100 miles northwest of Peiping, are preparing for the outbreak of large-scale hostilities, it was evident today. Air-raid shelters and sandbag barricades were to be seen throughout the city. Tension has been heightened considerably by the almost daily appearance of unidentified planes high overhead in the early mornings.

New Fighting In China

JUL 16 1946

Nanking, July 15 (AP)—Fighting flared in Manchuria and North China again today as the nation's sporadic peace negotiations were stifled by summer heat.

Tom Masterson, Associated Press correspondent, also reported from Peiping that Communist troops had struck at a railroad station south of Tientsin, in Hopei province, and launched new attacks in the vicinity of Tsingtao and Tsinan, at the base of the Shangtung peninsula. There are American marine bases at Tientsin and Tsingtao.

Other Chinese press reports said 10,000 Communists had assaulted Chienchang in Manchuria and reportedly had completed encirclement of the city while others captured Hungfantzu, a bridgehead on the north bank of Manchuria's Sungari River.

Twenty thousand other Reds were reported attacking Chimo, 15 miles north of Tsingtao, while a similar number reportedly fought across Shengyang in an engagement in the Chaiosien area, 10 miles north of Tsingtao.

A heavy mobilization of Communist soldiers was reported taking place between Harbin and the Chiamusze-Peia area northwest of Harbin.

Chiang Deserts Nanking

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek deserted the heat of Nanking and direct peace negotiations for the mountain air of Kuling, flying to his summer capital with Madame Chiang and their elder son, Chiang Ching-kuo.

A truce conference scheduled for yesterday between the Nationalist and Communist Manchurian army commanders was called off.

Communist quarters expressed resentment that Chiang had gone off to the summer capital at Kuling to escape Nanking's oppressive heat, because he must make the decisions in current deliberations.

Some Chinese sources said General Marshall, special United States envoy, had declined to accompany the Generalissimo to Kuling because he was anxious to speed the peace talks, but had agreed to go up on week ends.

Chou Still In Shanghai

It was apparent, however, that the conversations could not get far right now because Gen. Chou En-lai, the Communist negotiator, still is in Shanghai.

Furthermore, Chiang conferred with his top military advisers before he left yesterday for Kuling, presumably on the negotiations, and he made arrangements for officials to see him when necessary at the summer capital.

Want Chinese Red At Peace Conference

Nanking, July 15 (A. P.).—The Chinese Communists demanded today that Foreign Minister Wang Shih-chieh include a Communist in China's delegation to the Paris peace conference. A formal petition said the Communists control one-third of China's population and were entitled to representation.

A Communist spokesman said that if the Government approved the most likely delegate would be Tung Pi-wu, the party's "elder Statesman" and Communist representative to the San Francisco conference.

Negotiations for ending China's internal strife remained at a standstill. Gen. Chou En-lai, chief negotiator for the Communists, was still in Shanghai.

U. S. Envoy Arrives in Nanking.

Nanking, July 15 (A. P.).—J. Leighton Stuart, new American Ambassador to China, arrived from Peiping today. Stuart is expected to fly to Kuling, summer capital, this week to present his credentials to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

LAGUARDIA CHIDES CHINA UNRRA HEAD

JUL 16 1946

Shanghai, July 15 (A. P.).—The Shanghai United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration employees who released of their own accord a recommendation that China's relief supplies be cut, have been officially condemned for the act.

Director-General LaGuardia, it was disclosed today, cabled J. Franklin Ray, acting director of the China UNRRA office, that the release "doesn't meet with my approval and such conduct must not be repeated."

The Director-General's attitude toward the recommendation itself was not mentioned.

Ray conferred today with Gen. Chou En-lai, number two Chinese Communist, concerning relief for Communist-controlled areas of China and Manchuria.

Chou conferred with T. F. Tsiang, director-general of the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration on the same subject and about compensation for Chinese farmers who are forced to move because of the Yellow River relocation project.

A spokesman for Chou, who has headed the Communist peace negotiations with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, said Chou had no intention of going to Kuling, summer capital, where Chiang has gone to escape the Nanking heat.

Jap Repatriation From China At End

Shanghai, July 15 (AP)—The United States Army China Service Command announced that the repatriation of Japanese from China proper would be completed today with the sailing of the last of the deportation ships.

The sailing will conclude the movement of more than 2,220,000 Japanese back to their homeland, the command said, and United States Army repatriation teams will now concentrate all their efforts on Manchuria, where more than 1,000,000 Japanese still remain.

So far about 305,000 Japanese have been moved from Manchuria.

World's Largest Atom Rocket Range Proposed

Sydney, July 15 (AP)—A British rocket bomb mission which surveyed Australia three months ago was reported today to have recommended to the British Government that the world's largest rocket and atom bomb testing range be established in Central Australia.

The Canberra correspondent of the Sydney Sun said the mission had estimated that an expenditure between $28,000,000 and $32,000,000 would be needed.

Sources close to the Government in Canberra said they were unable to confirm officially the Sun report.

The newspaper reported that the testing range would be 1,000 miles long and possibly 200 wide.

RAF Drops Food In Begal Area

Calcutta, July 15 (AP)—Floods of unprecedented severity have created grave conditions in the Chittagong area of eastern Bengal, causing authorities to press RAF planes into service to drop food supplies.

The Halda and Karnaphuli rivers, fed by the monsoon, have damaged rice crops, flooded villages and drowned cattle.

U. S. Wreath Mourns Siam King

BANGKOK, Siam, July 15 (AP)—Postmaster General Robert Hannegan and other visiting United States dignitaries laid a wreath today before the golden urn containing the remains of King Ananda Mahidol, who died last month of a mysterious gunshot wound. Others in the group, which was returning home from the Philippine independence ceremony, were Senator Millard Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland; Lieut. Gen. John Cannon, Assistant Secretary of War W. HEAT DELAYS TRIAL OF JAP WAR CHIEFS

Tokyo, July 15 (A. P.).—Further delay hit the trial of Japan's wartime leaders today as the International Military Tribunal announced it would recess until the court room's new air-conditioning system was in full operation.

Sir William Webb, tribunal chief justice, indicated the trial might resume on Wednesday, when a pipeline to carry adequate water supplies for the air-conditioning system was expected to be installed.

The court reconvened this morning after a recess of five days while the cooling system was put in. However, the water supply was insufficient to keep the machinery running.

Sir William told the Associated Press it was possible some members of the tribunal might collapse if the trial was continued in the uncooled court room during Tokyo's heavy summer heat.

Record temperatures have affected efficiency in many Tokyo offices, which are ill equipped for summer. As a partial concession to the heat, the Army has authorized open, tieless collars as the official uniform in Tokyo. Rolled sleeves are prohibited, however. (ADD)

Prosecutor Returning

Tokyo, July 15 (AP)—Joseph B. Keenan, chief of the international war-crimes prosecution, will leave Washington July 16 to return to Tokyo after a month's rest to resume direction of the prosecution of former Premier Tojo and other major war-crimes defendants, it was announced today.

NOMURA ASSERTS HE WARNED TOKYO

O. H. JUL 16 1946

Tokyo, July 15 (A. P.).—Kichisabura Nomura, the Japanese Ambassador who was conducting "peace" negotiations in Washington, D. C., when his nation struck Pearl Harbor, said today he had warned his Government that it must stop the southward march of Nipponese armies or incur the wrath of the United States.

DAY

Asked if he had received a message from his Government during his negotiations urging that no attack be made on the United States, Nomura replied:

"I did not know the Pearl Harbor attack was going to occur, so I could not have recommended against it. I sent nothing to my Government in those last critical days except the text of the American notes."

The Admiral-diplomat said that if called upon he would so testify before the international tribunal trying war Premier Hideki Tojo and other former war leaders on crimes charges. But, he added, he has not yet been subpoenaed.

Jap Women Cops Bemoan Role

JUL 16 1946

They Stand on Street Corners and Direct Traffic—Pay Is Below That Promised.

Tokyo, July 15 (A. P.).—Tokyo's sixty feminine cops—who made their tradition-shattering debut after two months of special training—have found out they aren't cops after all and the girls are plain dissatisfied about it.

"We are made by the metropolitan police board to play the roll of dolls," the pertly uniformed policewomen asserted today in a statement issued to the press. "We have been deceived."

The policewomen still technically are "auxiliary employees" with no police authority. Their limited status has confined them to standing on street corners directing traffic and helping children and old women across intersections.

Furthermore, the statement asserted, they were promised 300 yen (about $20) a month, but have received only 260. Likewise they receive no special rations, as are provided for men police, they complained.

TOJO SPURNS BOOKS FOR NEWSPAPERS

Tokyo, July 15 (A. P.).—The newspaper Tokyo Shimbun noted today that former Premier Hideki Tojo now scans six newspapers daily, instead of the Japanese classics he read prior to the start of his trial on war crimes charges.

After reading the newspapers, Tojo makes voluminous notes and then becomes "absorbed in meditation," Tokyo Shimbun reported, adding that the "famous ... must be piling ... ide ... y."

10,000 Demonstrate in Tokyo

TOKYO, July 15 (AP).—More than 10,000 Japanese workers from some twenty labor unions demonstrated today in the Imperial Palace Plaza against the labor relations adjustment bill introduced in the diet by the Japanese Cabinet. They then marched to Premier Shigeru Yoshida's residence to present him with a petition protesting his opposition to labor's production control program.

Tokyo, July 15 (A. P.).—Nippon Keizai, economic newspaper, estimated today that Japan's new wheat crop would be 40 per cent less than normal with a harvest of some 12,000,000 koku (one koku equals about five bushels).

STILL BAR WOMEN FROM JAP PEAK

Tokyo, July 15 (A. P.).—The 1,300-year ban against women ascending Omine—sacred Buddhist mountain in south central Japan—still stood today.

The Japanese press reported that twenty girl hikers from Osaka had scaled the forbidden peak, but Kyodo News Agency said later that they had been halted a mile and a half from the summit by Buddhist priests.

After a two-hour argument, the hikers marched back down the mountain and the priests retired with their dignity and tradition intact.

ESTATE SALE RAISES ISSUE IN PHILIPPINES

MANILA, July 15 (AP)—Sale of the 840,000-acre Buena Vista estate to Brig. Gen. Ernest H. Burt of the United States Army caused a furor today in Government circles because the Philippine Government claims title to the estate.

Buena Vista formerly was owned by the San Juan de Dios Catholic Hospital Association. Before the war the Philippine Government took a twenty-five-year option to buy the estate for 3,000,000 pesos ($1,500,000) for redistribution to 23,000 peasant tenants. During the war the Puppet Government exercised the option, deposited 3,000,000 pesos with the court and claimed title, but the Catholic group refused to accept payment in occupation currency and continued to claim ownership.

Notice of the sale by the hospital to General Burt, former Assistant Judge Advocate General of the United States Army, now retired, was filed on July 1. Sale price was 5,000,000 pesos, or about six pesos an acre—far below comparable market values of farm lands.

President Manuel A. Roxas said the Government still claimed title to Buena Vista and would move to "protect the rights of the Government in this matter and to carry out a plan to transfer this property to occupants."

General Burt refused to name associates in the purchase syndicate. He said the sale provided for the resale to peasants on a ten-year installment basis at prices 25 per cent under market value. Any profits, he said, would be split with the hospital for charity work and with the Government for help for the old and destitute. (ADD)

Mock Bomb Test Slated Friday At Bikini

FRAY

Aboard U.S.S. Mount McKinley, July 15 (AP)—The trigger that will set off the second atom-bomb blast at Bikini will be tried out Friday by exploding a simulated missle during the full-scale rehearsal of the second underwater test.

A flash bulb, loaded with powder to be exploded by a remote-control radio impulse, will be mounted on a floating drydock anchored at the target center. The atom bomb itself will be slung beneath a craft especially modified for the purpose for the real test.

No Delay Expected

DAY

Vice Admiral William H. P. Blandy, atom-test commander, said today that no delays were foreseen for the test itself, scheduled for July 25, Bikini time (July 24, United States time).

An official task-force statement disclosed that the under-water atom bomb is going to tell on itself. Inside the bomb will be an ionization meter rigged to a radio transmitter to flash information on the initial action of the bomb to scientists aboard a laboratory ship.

The specially constructed craft, from which will be suspended the caisson containing the bomb, is ready. All laboratory ships to be used in assembling and firing the bomb are in Bikinia Lagoon. Yesterday 70 army and navy aircraft went through a rehearsal for the test.

The submarine Pilotfish was moved to a position which may put her closest among the 68 warships and transports to the actual point of explosion.

The precise depth from which the bomb will be detonated has not been disclosed. Officials will say only somewhere between eighteen feet and the bottom of the lagoon, 180 feet down. The unofficial guess is that the depth will not greatly exceed eighteen feet.

Types Of Ships Involved

The ships in the test will range from carriers and battleships through destroyers, cruisers and submarines to transports and small landing craft. The heavy hulls of the battleships and the carrier Saratoga (built as a batfle cruiser) are of sturdy frame. Their girders are no wider apart than the breadth of a man's spread arms. The transports' girders are almost 20 feet apart. The underwater blast pressure on the sheet-stell hull between the frames will be terrific.

The experts who speculate on the results of the explosion think they may include substantial interior damage from the shock tearing loost machinery, fixtures and even steam lines. That would mean high anti-personnel effect were the ships manned.

Spy Ring May Still Be Working, Commission Fears.

OTTAWA, July 15—(AP) A Royal commission probing Moscow-directed espionage operations said today that the Russians, by means of agents who "may still" be at work, sought information concerning the post-war defenses of the United States, Canada and Britain.

The Russians not only were operating their spy system in Canada, the commission said, but "the evidence indicates that there were agents working along the same lines in the United Kingdom, the United States and elsewhere."

Sought Research Data

While striving to gain information on atomic energy, radar and other wartime secrets, the Russian agents had as an even more far-reaching goal the securing of information "related to research developments which would play an important part in the post-war defenses of Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States," the commission's dramatically-worded 250,000-word final report revealed.

Further the commission said it had received evidence that:

1—Samples of Uranium 235 enriched and Uranium 233, essential elements in the manufacture of atomic bombs, were given to a Russian military attache in Ottawa by a British scientist. So important did the Russians regard these samples that a Lt. Col. Motinov flew them to Moscow.

Comintern in Operation

2—Despite Moscow's announcement in 1943 that the Communist International or Commintern was being dissolved, this agency of world Communism exists and continues its work."

3—Moscow had sought and obtained "top secret" political information relating to policies of the United States and British governments as well as the Canadian.

4—The Russians, in establishing their "several parallel undercover systems," followed the Nazi pattern of working through their nationals in foreign countries. These nationals could be kept in line by instilling in them a fear that their relatives in the home country might be persecuted, one witness said.

5—The Communist movement "was the principal base within which the espionage network was recruited," since it provided personnel with "adequately developed motivation" and the organizational framework wherein recruiting was carried out safely and efficiently.

Concerning the uranium samples, the commission said that Dr. Alan Nunn May, a British scientist who worked in Montreal on atomic research, had given this material to a Lt. Angelov, an assistant military attache in the Russian embassy in Ottawa. The materials were taken to Moscow by Lt. Col. Motinov.

Had No Bomb Data

"No one in Canada could have revealed how to make an atomic bomb," the commission said. "There was no one in Canada who had that information." Further, the commission said, there was no suggestion in the evidence "that anyone who had any information on the subject made any disclosures except Dr. May." Last spring Dr. May was sentenced to 10 years in prison by a British court which convicted him of violating the Official Secrets act.

While the report showed that the Russians were largely balked in their efforts to gain atomic information, the espionage network had better luck ferreting out the secrets of other Allied weapons, the commission revealed. On this subject the report said:

"Information of the greatest importance" on radar was communicated to the Russians by agents. "Much, and possibly all, of the information available in Canda" on ASDIC (submarine detection device) "has been compromised." Secret information "of great value" was delivered on explosives and propellants. "One of the Russian agents had the wiring diagram" of a new-type fuse which the United States produced with the help of Canadian discoveries.

The commission also disclosed that the Russians for more than half a year tried to obtain a false Canadian passport for a Russian undercover agent who at that time, Aug. 29, 1945, was living in Los Angeles.

The cover name of this agent was "Witczak," the commission said, and the Russians were willing to pay $3,000 for the false passport.

Heard 116 Witnesses

The commission, composed of two members of Canada's seven man Supreme court, spent four months investigating the Russian operations. Working on the backbone of oral and documentary evidence supplied by the 27-year-old former Soviet embassy code clerk, Igor Gouzenko, the commission heard 116 witnesses, studied 1,000 exhibits and took 6,000 pages of evidence. Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King made the report public as he tabled it in the House of Commons this afternoon.

This is the picture the commissioners drew, observing that their findings "are as authoritative as those of any court."

Through secret chambers of the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, the Russians directed a "fifth column" in Canada through three principal networks: military espionage, the NKVD (Soviet Secret Police) and a "political system" section.

These networks had ramifications in the United States, Great Britain and on the continent of Europe, but the commission was able to learn details only of the military espionage operations, directed by military intelligence headquarters in Moscow through the former military attache in Ottawa, Col. Nicolai Zabotin.

The work was directed not only at gaining atomic energy, radar, and other secret wartime scientific data, but at getting information "related to research developments which would play an important part in the post-war defenses of Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States."

"It is obvious," the commission said, "that there was intended to be a large-scale, post-war expansion of the network of Canadians in the military espionage system."

Quotes Clerk's Testimony

The commissioners quoted frequently the oral testimony of Gouzenko, who fled the Soviet embassy last September with documents exposing the network, saying they accepted his evidence as true.

They quoted Gouzenko as telling them that Zabotin some time before last September 5 called in his staff and said to them of the western Allies: "Yesterday they were Allies, today they are neighbors, tomorrow they will be our enemies."

"In Russia" Gouzenko told the commissioners, "there is a great deal of propaganda carried on by conversation of the propagandists and even in the press. It is all done to train people to think that they must fight another war, that maybe it will be our final war."

The commissioners then reported: "We believe Gouzenko reported what he heard at the Ottawa embassy honestly and accurately, but we have no way of knowing to what extent these views are held by Russians other than those in the embassy who exposed them. Whether the international situation at that time (or since) makes the accuracy of his opinions more or less probable, is not the point."

Action to check the Soviet operations in Canada was necessary in any case, the commissioners said.

Repeating their earlier charges that the Russian operations were illegal and were designed "to affect the safety and interests of Canada," the commissioners recommended that all existing security measures should be coordinated. They suggested also that consideration be given to additional security measures "which would be practical to prevent the infiltration into positions of trust under the government" of persons such as those Canadians who already have been convicted. REDS OBTAINED DATA ON POLICY OF BRITAIN TOO

Ottawa Royal Commission Reveals Several Parallel Rings Were at Work.

SAYS SOME MAY OPERATE YET

Declares There Is Little Doubt Russian Secret Political Police Have Unit in Dominion.

Montgomery

Ottawa, July 15 (A. P.).—Soviet spies in Canada sought and obtained top-secret political information relating to the policies of the United States and British governments as well as the Canadian, the Special Royal Commission investigating Moscow-directed spy activities reported today.

DAY

The commission reported also that the Russian Government seems to have operated not one but "several parallel under-cover systems" in Canada, and may still be doing so.

The commission related its earlier charges that the Soviet network spread into the United States and Great Britain, and added that it also operated on the Continent of Europe. In a final report on four months' work, running to 692 pages, the commission added several sensational charges to its earlier disclosures which already have sent some Canadian Government employees and a member of Parliament to prison for conspiracy and violation of the official secrets act.

Presented to Parliament.

The 250,000-word document, presented in the House of Commons by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, added nine new names to the fourteen previously named, but said that without further documents "we cannot identify any non-Russian members" of rings other than that around which the five-months' investigation has revolved. That was the military intelligence system directed by Col. Nicolai Zabotin, former Military Attache recalled to Moscow some time ago for inadmissible activities.

In swift sequence, Supreme Court Justices Robert Taschereau and R. L. Kellock reported:

1. There was an organization whose duty it was to procure false Canadian passports and other citizenship documents for the use of agents in Canada or elsewhere.

2. Zabotin and his assistants were helping to supervise and finance the work of an organization of agents operating in certain European countries.

'Powerful in Canada.'

3. There can "be little doubt" that the N. K. V. D., the secret Russian political police, "have a powerful organization in Canada."

4. Several parallel "undercover systems of networks" existed under the direction of members of the Soviet embassy and they "had and may still have their own undercover agents operating in Canada."

5. They included another military network parallel to that of Zabotin and, like his, directed by Red Army Intelligence headquarters.

6. There was some evidence that a naval system of intelligence was being organized.

7. A "secret political system" was under a Russian named Goussarov, who held the official position of Second Secretary at the embassy. Its task was to act as the pilot for Communist activities.

Post-war Defenses at Stake.

In connection with technical data on atomic energy, radar and other wartime secrets communicated illegally to Russia, the commission declared: "We should emphasize that the bulk of the technical information sought by the espionage leaders related to research developments which would play an important part in the post-war defences of Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States.

"Regarding the evaluation of this material, we will say only that this information appears to have been such as would be designed to facilitate detailed estimates of Canada's post-war economic and military potential . . . parts of this information could also be useful in connection with possible sabotage operations."

Political information also was obtained, it said. Much of this "was classified as top secret and related not only to the policies of the Canadian Government but to those of the Government of the United Kingdom and the United States," the commission said.

Names More Canadians.

The commission named as organizers of cells from which agents were recruited or as media for the communication of information:

Agatha Chapman, 29 years old, a Bank of Canada employee in Ottawa.

Freda Linton, former secretary at the National Film Board who has vanished.

Samuel Sol Burman, a Montreal insurance agent.

Henry Harris, a Toronto optometrist.

It named as active in procuring a false Canadian passport: Henry Harris, Dr. John Sobeleff of Toronto and W. M. Pappin of Ottawa,, a Passport Office clerk.

It named as "not active in subversive activities, but would have done so if required:"

A. Normal Veall of Montreal, a Royal Air Force officer.

Fred Chubb, a Montreal chemist.

Jack Isidor Gottheil of Montreal, a Canadian army captain.

Witczak Onetime U. Of S.C. Student

Los Angeles, July 15 (AP)—The Los Angeles Times tomorrow will say that Ignacy Witczak, whose name was linked in Canada to purported Russian espionage operations, received a degree with honors from the University of Southern California in 1942 and disappeared mysteriously last November after Government agents began an investigation of him.

The Times said it learned that Witczak, who enrolled at the university in 1938, was an earnest, bespectacled scholar of 35 with a penchant for the social sciences. The newspaper said his wife, Bunia, and their 2-year-old son, Dickie, also disappeared mysteriously last March.

PRESIDENT USES 26 PENS TO SIGN BRITISH LOAN BILL

JUL 16 1946

WASHINGTON, July 15—(AP) With 26 souvenir pens, President Truman today signed the British loan legislation, enabling London to draw upon the $3,750,000,000 credit immediately.

Then, in an apparent reassurance for Moscow although he did not mention Russia specifically, the President declared that "no one should think that this agreement between the United States and Great Britain is directed against any other country. It is not."

"The system of trade we seek," his statement continued, "is open on the same fair terms to all the United Nations."

Mr. Truman also referred to the months of debate in Congress which preceded final action Saturday, when the House voted its approval.

"Full and frank debate is a principle of the democratic system," he said, "and I believe that the time and care given to the consideration of the agreement are insurance that our approval rests on full understanding."

The President added that "the loan serves our immediate and long-range interests by helping to restore world trade. At the same time it enables Great Britain to cooperate in creating a pattern of mutually beneficial economic relations among the nations of the world. It goes far to remove the danger of rival and antagonistic economic blocs."

The 26 pens the President used to write the 12 letters "Harry S. Truman" were handed out to the British ambassador, Lord Inverchapel, Secretary of State Byrnes, Chief Justice Vinson, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and other officials and congressmen of both parties who attended the ceremony. Mr. Truman could write no more than a part of one letter with each pen.

Mr. Truman and other Presidents have used a number of pens in similar ceremonies previously but officials could not remember as many as 26 being used for one occasion. Gen. Douglas MacArthur used six pens to sign the Japanese surrender.

Loan To Russia Held Unlikely This Year

JUL 16 1946

Washington, July 15 (AP)—Russia probably will have to wait until next year at least for a loan even a fraction of the size of the $3,750,000,000 credit Congress approved for Britain on Saturday.

The Kremlin reportedly is interested in borrowing about $1,000,000,000 from this country.

Little has been heard of a Russian loan since the United States some months ago notified Moscow of a willingness to discuss it—provided Russia would agree to talk at the same time about her trade relations with the Balkans and other areas within the Soviet sphere of influence.

Must Go Through Bank

Any such loan would have to come through the Export-Import Bank, unlike the one to Britain which won a $19-to-$55 House vote of approval, following previous Senate clearance.

Only President Truman's signature is needed before London can start drawing on the money and some officials believe the first money will be advanced this week.

The British credit will come directly from the United States Treasury, but any money Moscow might get would be from the Export-Import Bank, a government agency with considerably less than $1,000,000,000 left in its till.

Other countries seeking to borrow money from the United States normally would go through the Export-Import Bank, as France and Ethiopia have just done for loans of $650,000,000 and $3,000,000 respectively.

No More Funds Asked

No formal Administration request for additional Export-Import funds has been made, and with Congress striving hard for adjournment, prospects for action this year appear remote.

Representative Wolcott (R., Mich.), who led Republican support of the British loan, told newsmen today "it would be most unfortunate" if the Administration asked for an increase in Export-Import Bank funds at this time.

"Congress would treat such a proposal as if it were voting on a direct loan to Russia," Wolcott said. "All the arguments used for the British loan—that it would prevent a spread of Communism—would be used against a Russian loan. I doubt if an increase in Export-Import funds could get through Congress now."

Whether the Administration will ask for an increase in the bank's money will be decided by the National Advisory Council, comprised of the Secretaries of State, Treasury and Commerce and other agencies dealing with foreign questions. The council may meet this week.

JEWISH VETERANS DEMAND ACTION ON PALESTINE REPORT

JUL 16 1946

WASHINGTON, July 15 — (AP) Jewish war veterans carried to President Truman, the British embassy and the state department today their protests at failure to permit immediate entry of 100,000 European Jews into Palestine.

The group calling on Lord Inverchapel, British ambassador, left with him a statement declaring that as long as Britain refuses to implement the unanimous recommendation of the Anglo-American committee of inquiry calling for the immediate immigration of 100,000 Jews into Palestine x x x all right-thinking Americans x x x will have nothing but scorn for your government."

One delegation told Mr. Truman the Jewish veterans would undertake to recruit a division of volunteers any time he felt it desirable to send American troops to Palestine to facilitate entry of Jewish refugees.

It left a statement with the President declaring the group felt that Britain's "demand for American troops" to preserve order in the Holy Land "is a colossal bluff, designed to frighten and mislead the American people."

Earlier the veterans, estimated by their leaders at more than 4,000, paraded along Constitution avenue to the Washington monument for memorial services for Jewish servicemen killed in two world wars.

Included were large delegations from New York, Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia and other cities. The Jewish veterans came by special train, bus and automobile. They planned to return to their homes tonight.

Lt. Col. Milton J. Richman of Hartford, Conn., and Fred S. Harris of Meriden, Conn., headed the delegation which called at the White House. Archie H. Greenberg of Brooklyn was spokesman for the group which went to the British embassy and Capt. William Kapelman and David Lasker of Boston, Mass., for the third delegation which called on Undersecretary of State Acheson.

WOULD RECRUIT JEWISH DIVISION

JUL 16 1946

Vets Offer to Enlist Troops for Palestine Duty.

Washington, July 15 (A. P.). A delegation of Jewish war veterans told President Truman today they would like to recruit a division of Jewish volunteers for duty in Palestine if he feels that would help facilitate the entry of 100,000 Jews into the Holy Land.

In a statement left with Mr. Truman, the group said Britain wants the United States to send troops into Palestine to preserve order if the 100,000 Jews are admitted as Mr. Truman and an Anglo-American commission have proposed.

The group said that they were convinced that no American troops are actually needed, and that Britain's demand is a colossal bluff, designed to frighten and mislead the American people.

The delegation included Fred S. Harris of Meriden, Conn., past national commander of the Jewish War Veterans of world war I; Capt. Hershel Auerbach of New York city, a veteran of world war II; Chaplain Shepard Z. Baum of New York city, chaplain of world war II; Lieut. Leonard Moriber of Miami Beach, world war II holder of the Distinguished Service Cross, and Benjamin Aronsohn,, department commander of the District of Columbia, Jewish War Veterans.

M'MAHON OFFERS PLEA TO AID JEWS

JUL 16 1946

WASHINGTON, July 15—(AP) Senator McMahon (D-Conn.), presented to the Senate today a telegram quoting a resolution by the Jewish war veterans post 86, New Haven, Conn., recommending immediate congressional action on proposal for admission of displaced European Jews into Palestine.

The resolution, forwarded by Milton P. Portnov, post adjutant, declared statements of British Foreign Minister Bevin should be "nationally and officially branded as anti-Semitic repudiation of what our armed forces fought and died for."

McMahon, chairman of the Special Senate Committee on Atomic Energy Control, will preside tomorrow over a session of the Institute on World Control of Atomic Energy. The discussion, at the Interior department, will be on the subject, "What Will Be the United States' Policy on World Control of Atomic Energy?"

Atom Veto Won't Balk U. S.

JUL 16 1946

Hancock Asserts Only Effective World Control Will Reveal Our Secrets.

Washington, July 15 (A. P.).—John Hancock, a member of the American delegation to the United Nations Atomic Commission, asserted today that the United States will not dispose of its atomic bombs or yield basic atomic secrets until creation of an effective world control system.

He strongly indicated also that in order to make atomic controls effective the United States would be willing to go outside the framework of the United Nations if necessary to nullify the great power veto.

Hancock, an intimate associate of Bernard Baruch, United States delegate to the Atomic Commission, spoke before the Institute of the National Committee on Atomic Information.

Outlining reasons for American objections to a veto over atomic energy matters, Hancock said in his prepared speech:

"The least that must be insisted upon is that (1) once violations of the treaty (for atomic control) have occurred, punishment must be swift and certain, and (2) the operations of the ADA (Atomic Development Authority) cannot be interferred with by the device of the unanimity (veto) rule."

Japs Wise to Bomb.

Japanese scientists knew more about atomic energy at the time of Hiroshima than Americans had believed, Dr. Philip Morrison of the Los Alamos, N. M., atom bomb propect,, told the institute.

Morrison declared that when he was in Hiroshima a month after the first bomb was dropped on Japan, Prof. Nishina, one of Japan's foremost physicists, "talked intelligently with me about the physics of the bomb."

The Japanese scientist's first question to him was "What was the efficiency of the bomb?"

"It (the bomb) was no secret to him, but a problem, to be attacked by methods he knew well, along lines quite as familiar in Tokyo as in New Mexico," Morrison said.

While American scientists gave the Japanese no data on the efficiency of the bomb, he added, the Americans were "amazed" at the professor's' technical questions regarding the bomb.

Morrison said world control of atomic energy "can be made to work" and that United Nations negotiations indicate a general agreement "on means and on objective."

"There remain hard problems at issue," Morrison said in an address prepared for the institute. He included "unilateral United States manufacture of bombs and the U. S. S. R. desire for the rule of great power unanimity."

Morrison decried "public unwillingness to face the problem," but he noted that one year is not long enough to end all problems associated with the great discovery. Discussion has brought out, he said, that the new energy is potentially of "enormous good."

World Bomb Control Urged By Wallace

Washington, July 15 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Wallace declared today that humanity could not survive an atomic war and added that "survival and security can be achieved only through world control of atomic energy."

"It is to be hoped that all negotiators at the United Nations will bear in mind that the only final answer is world control," Wallace said in a speech prepared for an "institute on world control of atomic energy."

House Set For Debate

The institute, sponsored by "The Committee on Atomic Information," opened its two-day meeting as the House prepared to start debate this week on legislation for a commission to control domestic development of atomic energy.

A sharp fight is in prospect over whether civilians only should be named to the commission, as provided in a bill passed by the Senate, or whether the armed forces should be represented as demanded by the House Military Committee.

No Defense, He Says

On the subject of world control of the bomb, Wallace asserted:

"This must be our immediate purpose—to gain time and provide a secure base for considering the problem of war itself. The main factors are clear—there is no defense in science (against the atomic bomb), just as there is no lasting secret."

Another conference speaker, Dr. Norman H. Dawes, of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, also appealed for civilian control of atomic energy.

This, he said, along with "freedom for science and scientists in nuclear research and internationalization of the newly emancipated energy . . . are the ways alone in which democracy can be continued and strengthened and the chances for world peace furthered."

Acheson Urges U. S. Enirance To World Court

Senators Also Hear Fahy and Jessup Testify in Favor of Participation

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP).—The Truman administration's indorsement of United States participation in the World Court of the United Nations was laid today before a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee.

Dean Acheson, Under Secretary of State, and Charles Fahy, legal adviser of the State Department, testified that both President Truman and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes favor yielding compulsory jurisdiction to the court on international legal questions involving this country.

Mr. Acheson said that this nation's participation would constitute "a long and even a decisive step in the direction of crossing the line which separates world disorder from world order based on law."

He added that this country has already agreed to settlement of its political disputes by the U. N. Security Council and now should take the next step by allowing similar determination of international judicial questions in which it may be involved.

"It is difficult to see how any harm could come to the United States," he said.

Senator Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat, of Utah, who presided, asked whether Congressional action should be through the pending resolution, requiring two-thirds approval of the Senate, or a measure allowing both the Senate and House to act by simple majority vote as was done on the United Nations organization. Mr. Acheson replied that either would accomplish the same result.

Senator Warren R. Austin, Republican, of Vermont, who will serve as this country's representative to the Security Council, observed that the World Court is similar to the Supreme Court of the United States in that both lack a "sheriff" to inforce their decisions.

Mr. Fahy said that under the proposal this country consents to be sued in the international court by any other nation that files the same agreement.

He agreed with Senator Austin that if both political and judicial questions are involved in a dispute the court probably could not act unless asked to do so by the Security Council.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup, professor of international law at Columbia University, said that the Foreign Relations Committee had already recommended participation in the World Court when it approved the U. N. Charter and urged active participation in all U. N. activities.

He declared this country could not find a "better bench" than the fifteen independent judges already set up by the U. N.

The move for participation was initiated in the Senate under a resolution sponsored by fifteen Senators, including nine Republicans and six Democrats.

442d Combat Outfit Is Told It Not Only Fought Enemy but Overcame Prejudice

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—President Truman today congratulated the Japanese-American 442d Regimental Combat Outfit for their victories over the enemy and over prejudice.

Before affixing the Presidential distinguished unit citation banner to the colors of the 442d the President declared that American citizenship is "much more than race, creed or religion."

He told the troops they had fought not only the enemy but prejudice too, "and won." But he urged them to continue the fight against prejudice.

The President stood in a downpour of rain as he made his brief speech from the ellipse at the rear of the White House grounds.

As he walked among the various units making up the 442d Regimental Combat Team, the President was followed by a small group of notables, including Chairman Andrew J. May (Democrat, of Kentucky) of the House Military Committee.

About half of the 500 officers and men who returned from overseas with the Japanese-American group live in Hawaii. They will be sent to separation centers there, while those living in this country will be discharged in the United States.

The Presidential inspection and review followed a parade down Constitution Avenue. Robert P. Patterson, Secretary of War, and ten outstanding men of the unit were in the official reviewing party.

The text of the President's speech follows:

"It is a very great pleasure to me today to be able to put the Presidential citation on your banner.

"You are to be congratulated on what you have done for this great country of ours. I think it was my predecessor who said that Americanism is not a matter of race or creed, it is a matter of the heart.

"You fought for the free nations of the world along with the rest of us. I congratulate you for that and I can't tell you how very much I appreciate the privilege of being able to show you just how much the United States of America thinks of what you have done.

"You are now on your way home. You fought not only the enemy, but you fought prejudice, and you have won. Keep up that fight, and we continue to win—to make this great Republic stand for just what the Constitution says it stands for: the welfare of all the people all the time.

"Bring forward the colors."

HOUSE WILL VOTE ON OPA BILL TODAY

JUL 16 1946

Backers Fear Revival Will Fail, Seek to Aid Buyers' Strikes.

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—Legislation to facilitate buyers' strikes on any goods which jump high above OPA ceilings was plumped into the legislative hopper today amid signs that some price agency's friends are giving up hope for its revival with the powers they want.

NIGHT

Meanwhile Philip Murray, C.I.O. president, climbed Capitol hill to speak of a "danger of widespread unrest" if prices go out of hand. He told a congressional committee that if effective controls are not restored there will be repercussions at the polls in November.

Showdown in House

A showdown occurs in the House tomorrow, on the new Senate bill. That is the measure President Truman says "couldn't be worse"—thus hinting at another veto unless the legislation is revised considerably before it reaches his desk.

The tension on price control was heightened further when Senate Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, broadly indicated that the next bill Congress sends to the President will be the last and that if Mr. Truman vetoes it OPA will be dead permanently. Barkley said he hopes Congress will adjourn by July 27. That would leave little time to get the pending measure to the White House and back, and pass something else.

The House Republican high command failed, meanwhile, to reach an agreement on party strategy for OPA legislation.

G.O.P. Fails to Agree

The Republican Steering committee met in the office of the party leader, Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, but members said there were "differences of opinion" and no over-all plan was arrived at.

Some party leaders said they believed the House will send the Senate bill to a House-Senate conference committee, to see if a compromise can be written, and that no instructions will be given the House conferees that would tie their hands in the conference with the senators.

However, they expect the conferees might be unable to agree, in which event the House might instruct them to accept the Senate bill with certain revisions.

Would Prepare Price Data

Rep. Voorls (D-Calif) offered the buyers' strike guide bill. It would provide consumers with official price data on important commodities and services. The weekly reports would come out of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"The thing that really is needed," the Californian said, "is to enable the people to select specific cases where unwarranted price increases have taken place and to withhold their purchases as to those particular things."

Introduction of this bill came after president Walter P. Reuther of the C.I.O. United Auto Workers said in Chicago a buyers' strike "such as the country has never known" will result from the nationwide series of mass meetings scheduled by the union for tomorrow.

C.I.O. Leader Murray told the House Labor committee that Congress had better remain in session until an effective OPA bill is passed.

"We have national unrest, national chaos and a Congress that is derelict in its duties," he declared. "There is only one kind of sound (OPA) bill and that is one that will keep prices down."

If Congress fails to revive controls, he said, the "greatest economist in America, the American housewife" will see that a Congress is selected in November "which will solve them."

JUL 16 1946

Friends, Foes Of OPA Gird For Battle In The House

JUL 16 1946

Washington, July 15 (AP)—OPA's friends and foes in the House sharpened their legislative sabers today for a duel over the price-control revival bill which President Truman declared "couldn't be any worse."

The Chief Executive's comment on the Senate-passed measure added the strongest hint yet that a second veto is in the offing unless something more to the Administration's liking can be worked out by a joint committee of the two chambers.

Barring a last-minute change in plans, the first test will take place on the House floor tomorrow.

The issue is whether any controls at all shall be imposed again on a dozen or more items.

Exempted In Senate Bill

The Senate, by top-heavy majorities, ordered these things kept free of any future price ceilings:

Meat, poultry, eggs, milk, butter, cheese and all other livestock and dairy products; cottonseed, soybeans and their products; grain and feedstuffs; tobacco products and gasoline and other petroleum products, so long as oil supplies do not drop below domestic demand.

It undoubtedly was this list of exemptions that prompted Mr. Truman to say the OPA bill "is in terrible shape." He used that phrase in reporting on the status of price controls to Secretary of State Byrnes and Senators Connally (D., Texas) and Vandenberg (R., Mich.) upon their return yesterday from the Paris Foreign Ministers' Conference.

The measure which emerged from the Senate on Saturday was a substitute for the OPA bill Mr. Truman vetoed June 29.

Some Would Pass It "As Is"

However, a formidable group of Republicans who claim some Democratic support want to accept the Senate bill "as is" and send it along to Mr. Truman without following the usual procedure of referring it to a Senate-House conference.

"I believe the bill as passed by the Senate is just about as good a bill as you can get from the Senate," Representative Halleck (R., Ind.) said. "We might as well send it to the President and leave it up to him."

However, Administration leaders, hopeful of rewriting the measure almost completely, at at least knocking out all or most of the exemptions, want the bill sent to conference.

Called "Decontrol" Measure

"You might as well not have any price controls at all if you're going to take all the important things out from under controls," asserted Representative Monroney (D., Okla.). "This is not a price-control bill. It is a price-decontrol measure."

Three courses lie open for the House when it votes tomorrow:

1. It may send the Senate bill directly to the White House.

2. It may simply send the bill to conference without specific recommendations to the conferees, or,

3. It may send it to conference, with instructions to fight against some of the Senate proposals and to accept others.

In the event the second course is decided upon, some lawmakers said they would try to arrange a meeting between conference committee members and Mr. Truman in an effort to reach an advance understanding on just what would be necessary to assure a new price-control law.

Matters Believed Acceptable

Under either conference procedure, little difficulty was expected in reaching an agreement on these other provisions of the Senate bill:

Continuance of rent controls except in states having their own control machinery.

A section under which price ceilings for manufactured articles must reflect 1940 industry-wide averages, plus the industry's average increase in production costs since then, with the OPA having power to deny such increases under certain conditions.

Transfer of control over farm commodity prices from OPA to the Secretary of Agriculture, except those specifically removed from controls.

Creation of an independent decontrol board appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, which could override both the OPA and the Secretary of Agriculture in pricing matters.

Allowance of prewar margins and discounts for automobile and appliance dealers.

Truman Sees Long Famine

JUL 16 1946

Asserts U. S. May Have to Help Prevent Starvation for Another Three Years.

Washington, July 15 (A. P.).—President Truman told a youth food conference today that the United States may have to help prevent starvation in war-torn areas for another three years.

"It is going to take another year or two—maybe three—before those countries can get back on a production basis so that they could even contribute their own support," the President declared. "We are going to help them all we can with machinery and tools and the wherewithal to raise food, but it will be some time before those destroyed countries can get back on a basis where they can feed themselves."

Opening the meeting of the National Youth Conference on Food in the East Wing of the White House, the President told the delegates that the United States had furnished to date 417,000,000 bushels of food grains as compared with commitments last November for 225,000,000 bushels.

"But that is nothing for us to brag about," he said. "We furnished those food grains because we happened to be the country that had them. That doesn't mean that everybody, while he didn't starve, received enough to eat."

He told the young people that he wished they could see "the situation as it really is" in Poland, Greece, Hungary, Austria, Germany and China.

"You would understand then just exactly what it means, and what war and pestilence really mean. You would know what the four horsemen look like."

Wallace Addresses Group.

Secretary of Commerce Wallace told the youth group that "fully one-fourth of the world's population is now at the starvation level."

"It may be another year or possibly two years before the people of the world have enough food to free them from the fear of death by starvation," he said in a speech prepared for the conference on food.

Despite reports that harvests were bigger than expected, he said: "We cannot allow ourselves to be misled by appearances in the season of plenty. If we are to produce the one world that we like to talk about, all nations must make an effort to think in terms of the desires and problems of other nations. Only then will it be possible to arrive at reasonable agreements and build a world free from the fear of war."

The thirty-four teen-age boys and girls are from farms and cities in sixteen States and represent seventeen national youth agencies with a combined membership of 32,000,000 children. Among the delegates were Isaac Alcabes and Gertrude Mason of New York, Allan D. Nacht of East Orange, N. J., Marjorie Croot of Morristown, N. J., John Barton of Summit, N. J., and Clifford F. De Wolfe of East Haven, Conn.

Senate Kills Truman Plan To Merge Housing Groups

JUL 16 1946

Two Other Reorganization Proposals Approved, Become Law.

WASHINGTON, July 15 — (AP) Congress tonight killed off President Truman's order consolidating all housing bureaus into a single, permanent National Housing agency.

After giving lukewarm assent to two other White House reorganization plans, the Senate voted 45 to 31 to disapprove the more important "Plan No. 1."

This scuttled the housing proposal. The House previously had voted down all three plans issued by the White House May 16.

Two Plans Approved

The other two plans—one of them strengthening the Federal Security agency, the other making several minor consolidations of government agencies—become law at midnight tonight, under terms of the 1945 Reorganization act.

A housing consolidation still may become law, however, for such a plan is provided in the Wagner-Ellender-Taft long-range housing bill, a measure which already has gained sweeping Senate approval. Either plan would give permanent status to a set-up similar to the one now functioning under NHA Administrator Wilson Wyatt.

Taft Leads Opposition

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), a co-sponsor of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft measure, led the opposition to the President's plan. He said it went farther than, and "completely disregarded," the Senate- approved bill which bears his name.

Under Mr. Truman's plan, he said, a housing administrator might be "public-housing minded," to the detriment of privately-financed housing which would also be under his wing.

Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky), said Taft's claim simply "wasn't true."

The only difference between the two plans, he said, was use of the word "supervise" in the Senate bill and "control" in the White House plan.

"How can I supervise you unless I can control you," Barkley asked, turning to Taft, and then won a laugh with this: "And the Lord knows I wish I could do that at times."

Scrapped along with housing features of "Plan No. 1" were clauses which would have:

Put the Farm Credit administration under the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation; merged the Office of Contract Settlement into the Office of Reconversion; set up a consolidated Agricultural Research administration under the Secretary of Agriculture.

Vote Is 40 to 37

Earlier the Senate decided, by a scant vote of 40 to 37, to reject a House resolution blocking Presidential "Plan No. 2." This merges the Children's bureau and other social agencies into the Federal Security agency.

This cancelled out the House's veto, for the reorganization act makes such orders law in 60 days unless both Senate and House reject them.

The FSA reorganization is widely regarded as the Administration's preliminary move toward creating a new department of welfare with cabinet rank.

Taft leaped on this point in criticizing the plan, saying it was a first step in making FSA Administrator Watson Miller "an overall adminstrator of health, welfare and educational programs of the government."

Barkley said most of the complaints came from government employes who "have no right to complain" of moves intended to promote "efficiency and economy."

ARMY AND NAVY TO SPEED STEEL SCRAP TO MILLS

JUL 16 1946

Emergency Plan to Relieve Critical Shortage Which Threatens Industry.

Washington, July 15 (A. P.).—Reconversion Director John R. Steelman today announced a ten-point emergency program aimed at speeding the flow of scrap metal to steel mills.

He acted after receiving a report that steel mills had less than two weeks' supply of scrap on hand and that urgently needed steel production might soon have to be curtailed.

Steelman's statement said that surplus ships, guns, tanks and ammunition would be broken up and made available to the steel mills for ultimate production of peacetime goods.

The report of the steel emergency came from the Civilian Production Administration, Steelman said, adding that the program to meet it was formulated at an inter-agency meeting at the White House.

Under the program:

1. The CPA will authorize the War Assets Administration to lease surplus Navy and maritime ship yards and other ship scrapping facilities to private operators.

2. The Navy and Maritime Commission will immediately list all facilities suitable for ship scrapping operations, "including those being retained in stand-by condition, which can be turned over to the WAA on twenty-four hours' notice for temporary release."

3. The Navy and Maritime Commission will make several hundred surplus ships immediately available for scrap salvage.

4. The Army will notify overseas commanders of the "urgent need for scrap on this country and instruct them to speed up the return of military scrap wherever this is possible."

5. The Navy Department has directed Navy yard and other installation commanders "to place all available scrap on sale immediately," and ship- breaking operations will be pressed where this can be done without interfering with other urgent work. All Navy-owned machine tools which are no longer useful and have no commercial values will be scrapped and sold.

6. The Maritime Commission will urge operators of ships returning empty to this country to load as much military scrap or ballast as they can maintain in foreign ports.

7. The Army "will endeavor to expand its current program of demilitarizing live ammunition and equipment."

8. A joint War Department CPA study "will be started immediately to determine the extent to which alloy steel in guns, tanks and other armor plate can be used in civilian production."

9. All agencies of the Government will institute "an intensive scrap housecleaning drive" and the practice of accumulating piles of scrap before calling for bids "will be discontinued during the emergency."

10. The War Assets Administration "will accelerate the sales as scrap certain machine tools which are obsolete or otherwise unsuitable for civilian production."

Mills Face Shutdown.

Steelman said that the CPA reported that some steel mills "have less than one day's supply of scrap on hand and that urgently needed steel production might drop as much as 30 per cent within two weeks unless that flow of scrap is speeded up."

Industrialist Cuts Ties With Garsson Brothers

JUL 16 1946

Waives Immunity, Tells Probers He Did Not Know of Aid from Rep. May.

WASHINGTON, July 15. — (AP) Munitions maker Allen B. Gellman, describing himself as "deeply humiliated," testified today that he had cut loose from his wartime associations a few days ago upon learning of their past, "so that I could fight my own battle."

"I'd rather be dead," he cried out when Chairman Mead (D-NY) of the Senate War Investigating committee asked him whether he would have embarked upon a war contract association with Henry and Murray Garsson had he known their background.

Waives Protection

Agreeing to waive constitutional protection against being forced to testify, Gellman denied any knowledge that Rep. May (D-Ky) had gone to the aid of the midwest industrial combine of which he and the Garssons were officials.

He said that he had "left the selling end of the business" to the Garsson brothers while he concentrated on production, working hard "for every dollar."

He denied, too, any knowledge of the activities of press agent Benjamin Franklin Fields, a former convict, on behalf of the combine. Senator Mitchell (D-Wash) has charged that Fields linked an offer of a $5,000 "campaign contribution" to a plea that he persuade his colleagues to "lay off" the inquiry.

As Gellman professed his ignorance of the Fields matter, Mead broke in to characterize Fields as a "conman" and "professional, high pressure lobbyist" and to assert that he "ought to be run out of town."

Consults Own Attorney

Gellman said that upon hearing of the testimony concerning Fields and the Garssons he decided to "cut loose" and consult his own attorney. Previously he had been represented by the same lawyer as the Garssons.

Committee Counsel George Meader has put into the record FBI reports identifying Henry Garsson as a dismissed Internal Revenue agent and brother Murray as a one-time associate of Dutch Schultz and Owney Madden, and a former employe of the Department of Labor in the Hoover administration.

Gellman told the committee that Murray Garsson was "a very sociable sort of an individual" who boasted frequently of knowing "practically every important person in Washington" and of seeing them frequently over pinochle games and at cocktail parties.

He paid tribute to Henry Garsson's engineering ability and, at one point, heaving a heavy sigh, declared that he had thought during their wartime operations that everything was "on the up and up."

"I feel very sorry for you," said Mead, after declaring that Gellman and the family of J. T. Weiss had a "good record" and good name before their association with the Garssons and the development of the combine.

Studies Corporate Structure

As Mead went with Gellman through the corporate structure of the 19 closely-linked concerns, the munitions maker at times had trouble recalling whether he had been an official of companies or what his title had been.

Gellman testified that he and J. T. Weiss had sold their 70 per cent interest in Batavia Metal Products company to Henry Garsson in 1944 for $350,000 in cash, part of which Garsson obtained by borrowing $75,000 from the associated Erie Basin Metal Products company.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) drew from Gellman testimony that Erie made this loan at a time when it was beseeching the government for advance payments on war contracts in order to keep operating.

Gellman said he had nothing to do with the purchase of $48,000 worth of lumber from the Cumberland Lumber company for which May was listed as the Kentucky agent, beyond advancing $33,400 to Garsson as a loan. Testimony has been introduced previously that the lumber was never delivered.

Questioned Lumber Deal

He declared that he had asked Garsson at one point why the lumber had not been delivered, and was told that it was being stored because it was "green."

In Frankfurt, Ky., Revenue Commissioner O. M. Howard said that Kentucky is at work on a complete check of the Cumberland Lumber company. He said the company has never filed its corporation, property or state income tax report, and said that his department has no record of the company's existence.

Gellman dismissed as "just a misunderstanding" a transaction which the Justice department is investigating, involving the Interstate Machinery company, another in the combine. The committee did not develop details of that transaction beyond putting into the record a copy of an Army negotiator's letter to Assistant Attorney General Theron L. Claudle which referred to "false claims."

Gellman acknowledged that both Erie Basin and Batavia let out subcontracts to other companies in the combine, but denied that this was done for the purpose of increasing profits from the government.

Freeman Testifies

Gellman was called to the stand after Joseph Freeman had told the committee that he took problems of the combine to Rep. May for help.

Freeman, the group's Washington representative whose salary skyrocketed from $5,841 in 1941 to $70,000 four years later, told the Senate committee that he called upon May "six or eight times" for aid.

He denied flatly, however, that he ever had paid May, chairman of the House Military committee, any money for that help, or that he had ever discussed "funds" with the Kentucky legislator.

He said, mopping his brow repeatedly during testimony, that he "didn't know" whether May had ever visited his office. The answer came after Chairman Mead (D-N. Y.) had cautioned him to "think long and hard and remember that you are under oath."

Invitation to May Stands

Freeman was called to the witness stand after the committee formally announced that its invitation to May to appear personally to testify "still stands, but there will be no further written informal invitation."

"The committee," said Chairman Mead, "at its executive session on Saturday, instructed counsel to examine the law as to bringing Congressman May before the committee by legal process. It postponed decision as to further steps pending an examination of the law and until completion of the testimony of other witnesses."

This left the question of May's voluntary appearance at an impasse. May has insisted that he be given the right to have counsel present, cross examine witnesses, call witnesses of his own, and summon records from the War department.

"As an arm of the Senate," answered Mead, "we are under a mandate to obtain facts. In doing so, we are obliged to control and conduct our proceedings ourselves. It would not be right to delegate that power and that responsibility to a third party—least of all to a witness before the committee."

As the committee pressed into the wartime profits and operation of 19 closely-linked munitions concerns, Freeman testified that he had been made a "dummy" director of the Cumberland Lumber company although he knew nothing about its operations and owned none of its stock.

The committee has received testimony that May was listed as the Kentucky agent for Cumberland and that the Illinois combine paid $48,000 to Cumberland for lumber which was never delivered.

Under a sharp examination by members of the committee, Freeman denied any knowledge of Cumberland's financial affairs, but acknowledged that he had relayed on to Henry Garsson, promoter of the combine, a sealed envelope containing its papers.

Tells of Timberland Deal

Freeman said the timberland deal, for which Cumberland was organized, grew out of a call by Freeman to inquire whether May knew of lumber for sale in Kentucky. Later, the witness said, he took to the congressman a request from Henry Garsson that an effort be made to obtain options on land which May had mentioned to him.

Asked whether he always found May cooperative when asked for aid, Freeman said "not always." He added that he sometimes had to wait as much as a week before he got the requested lift.

Committee Counsel George Meader asked whether Freeman requested help from anyone else on problems of Erie Basin and Batavia Metals companies, two members of the munitions group.

"There was no reason," the witness responded.

Freeman also:

1. Described Benjamin Franklin Fields as "a very dear friend of mine" but denied prompting him to an effort to halt the committee's inquiry.

2. Waived the constitutional immunity which Garsson claimed after being informed by Mead that he could not be required to testify concerning matters which would "incriminate or degrade" himself.

3. Said that he never had referred to May as Yiechel—Yiddish, he explained, for Jacob — "because I had too much respect for the congressman."

4. Said that he had turned a certain $46,000 in checks over to his attorney to cash because he had no bank account himself and was having "marital trouble." (Testimony has been given that the checks were ultimately cashed by Sam Beard, self-styled gambler).

5. Denied that he, himself, had ever "played the horses," gambled, or given presents in return for favors, or spent "five cents" for entertainment in connection with war contracts.

6. Acknowledged that he had obtained an air priority for himself and his wife for a trip to California shortly after being married. Mead referred to the journey as a "honeymoon trip."

Manpower Lack Is Approaching, Officials Think

Washington, July 15 (AP)—A new manpower shortage by fall is looming larger in the eyes of some Federal economists.

Officials of the Civilian Production Administration, who first reported the possibility in May, say now they are "even more convinced" by latest census reports.

The Census Bureau found the civilian working force had risen to 56,740,000 in June, approaching the "sixty million jobs" level which Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace calls "full employment."

Three Factors Cited

CPA officials said the manpower pinch might be felt as early as October or November, growing out of three factors:

1. Demands for perhaps 1,000,000 men in construction and building materials.

2. Sizable expansion in the retail trades and services.

3. Continued but smaller new hiring by factories.

Some analysts in the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion say there is "better than a 50-50 chance" for a manpower shortage this fall; others believe it will be severe in some industries and localities but not general.

USES Opinion

The United States Employment Service holds mainly to the latter view, but its current official report, "The Labor Market," gives this forecast:

"A period of economic activity unparalleled in peace-time appears in the immediate offing. The labor market will consequently become even tighter than it has been in recent months."

Throughout the Government, officials voice surprise over the rate at which private industry has absorbed discharged veterans—almost 10,000,000 in the last ten months, USES says. Five of every six service men released up to June were at work or in school.

Wary About Predicting

Government officials are wary about predictions, in view of the celebrated error of the old War Manpower Commission in predicting 8,000,000 unemployed this spring. Few are willing to be quoted by name or to guess which industries will be hardest hit.

The consensus, however, is that housing construction will run into serious manpower troubles as the homes-for-veterans drive gets into full swing; that the lower-paid industries like textile mills and brickyards will encounter a recurrence of their wartime difficulties, and that "unpopular" occupations like foundry work and the needle trades will have difficulty recruiting workers.

Alleviating factors, some officials hold, will be a tendency of women and others who have retired from the labor market to go back into it if jobs are plentiful and wages good.

$1,250,000,000 Debt Cut Is Planned by Treasury

JUL 16 1946

By [illegible] United Press

WASHINGTON, July 15—The United States Treasury will slash the national debt to $267,000,000,000—a cut of $1,250,000,000—on Aug. 1 by retiring short-term obligations for cash, it was disclosed today.

When the Aug. 1 redemption is completed, the debt will have been cut about $13,500,000,000 since March 1, in line with President Truman's goal for economy in government.

The short-term obligations will be redeemed for money from the Treasury's high cash balance, which totaled $12,281,789,442 on July 12. This is about two and one-half times that of normal peacetime years.

Farrington, Republican, of Hawaii, provides $10,000,000 of Federal funds for repair of roads and bridges, $1,300,000 for reconstruction of public buildings, schools, docks and other structures, and $5,000,000 for loans to individuals at 3 per cent interest for reconstruction of homes and stores. Judge Rules Against Capital Penalty—Seattle Jury Gets Case Today

SEATTLE, July 15 (AP)—Federal Judge Lloyd L. Black ruled out the death penalty as a sentence for a possible conspiracy conviction of Russian Lieut. Nicolai G. Redin in his espionage conspiracy trial after Government and defense attorneys had finished two days of closing arguments.

After the jury had left the room, Judge Black commented briefly that the young naval officer had been tried on the theory that it was a capital case. He said that under the indictment it could have been. Tracy E. Griffin and Irvin Goodman, defense counsel, stated that Lieutenant Redin was on trial for his life.

Judge Black said that in time of war an espionage conspiracy conviction could carry death, but added: "The evidence would not satisfy me that any conspiracy existed beyond all reasonable doubt before V-J Day. I am satisfied that the statute contemplated a 'shooting war.'"

His instructions will be given tomorrow morning to the jury of seven men and five women.

The chief Assistant United States Attorney, Allan Pomeroy, reviewed the evidence in his closing argument, mentioning the prominent part Federal Bureau of Investigation agents had played in working with Herbert S. Kennedy, who had testified that he had sold naval secrets to Lieutenant Redin.

Cattle Bringing Record $25 at Chicago Yards

JUL 16 1946

Hogs Highest Since 1919; Analyst Says Consumer May Pay 70 to 75% More

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 15.—Vigorous buying today sent cattle prices to a new top and ran hogs up to the highest level since 1919—$25 and $19 a hundred pounds, respectively.

The new cattle pinnacle was accompanied by a rise in the price range on steers to the highest in history, running from $22.50 up to $24.50. Such activity came in spite of delivery of the second largest receipts at Union Stockyards since last October.

One market analyst said the new top price represented an increase in cost to the packer of 66 2-3 per cent since lifting of Office of Price Administration price controls. He explained that before July 1 the ceiling was $18 and the packer received a $3 government subsidy on the average, reducing his cost to $15 a hundred pounds. This is now two-thirds higher, but it was pointed out that the proportion is raised as the meat goes through processing to reach the consumer and by that time the increase likely will be 70 to 75 per cent over former price ceilings.

Seven car loads of strictly choice steers brought the $25 limit. Choice heifers also made a climb to $23.25, the Friday level for steers, from the $22.50 last quoted.

The new price on good and choice hogs toppled the previous recent high of $18.50 established July 1, but still was under the $23.60 a hundred pounds paid in 1919.

Trade was more than for a week ago, an estimated 14,000 total compared with 25,500 last Monday, leading some traders to consider the big market rush was slowing up.

Other marketts across the country showed similar results from the day's trading.

At St. Paul, steers reached a new all-time high of $23. Jersey City had a market top of $24, and a $23 peak also was reached at St. Louis.

Hog prices reached $19.25 at St. Louis; $20 at Buffalo and $19 at Indianapolis, and Omaha, Neb.

Wholesale Butter Off 3 Cents

The wholesale price of butter dropped three cents a pound yesterday. It was the first break noted in the commodity on the New York Mercantile Exchange since July 1, when ceiling prices ended.

The highest grade butter—AA 92 score—closed at 71½ cents yesterday, compared with 74½ cents on Friday. Similarly, grade B butter was down to 70½ cents. The effect of the drop, dealers said, would not be felt in the retail market for a while because present supplies were bought at a higher wholesale price.

Meanwhile, in retail stores throughout the city butter continued to sell at 79 to 99 cents a pound.

Meat prices, however, continued to rise. Eugene C. Schulz, Commissioner of Markets, reported yesterday that retail prices have increased 10 to more than 50 per cent since the death of the Office of Price Administration.

Supplies Quite Good

The smallest percentage increase, a survey by his office showed, was on calves' liver, which has gone from 82 to 90 cents a pound. The largest rise was in beef chuck steak, which went up from 32 to 49 cents a pound.

Other beef prices showed rib roasts up from 39 to 55 cents a pound, porterhouse steak from 56 to 65 and beef liver from 42 to 55 cents a pound.

Meat supplies in the city yesterday ranged from "moderate" for veal and lamb to "fairly liberal" for pork, Clyde F. House, market news analyst for the United States Department of Agriculture, reported. Beef, he said, was normal about the 1940-'41 average.

Good beef was offered yesterday by independent packers for $31.50 to $50 a hundredweight, compared with $22.80 under the O. P. A., he said. Veal ranged from $28.80 to $50, as opposed to the O. P. A. ceiling of $22.80, while pork, which had a ceiling price of $19.75, was selling at $32 to $50.

Says Sound Industry There Is Vital to a New Asia

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio, July 14 (AP).—T. Z. Koo, an adviser to the Chinese United Nations delegations, declared Sunday that Japan should be rebuilt with a healthy peace-time industrial structure and not be left a pauper nation.

"We cannot think of a New Asia without a prosperous Japan," he told the Antioch Institute of International Relations on the ninth of its ten-day discussion series.

Turning to China's role in international politics, he said that his country did not want to be drawn into either the "Russian or the American orbit."

"Russia," he said, "was no residue of good will in China to build on. And America's good will was strained in the war years, particularly by the secret Yalta agreement on Manchuria."

Mr. Koo, who spent three years in occupied China, asserted that political authority had been destroyed in many parts of his country during nine years of occupation.

STATE FACES DROP IN WINTER WHEAT

JUL 16 1946

Albany, July 15 (A. P.).—The estimated New York winter wheat crop of 5,064,000 bushels totals little more than half of the 1945 crop and nearly 2,000,000 bushels under the ten-year average, the State Department of Agriculture and Markets reported today.

The department blamed the decrease on the reduced number of acres for harvest this summer, caused by rainy weather last fall which curtailed sowing and brought the 1946 acreage to 211,000, less than two-thirds of the 1945 harvest of 358,000 acres.

Spring wheat, which, the department said, was relatively unimportant in the State, was estimated at 162,000 bushels on 9,000 acres, as compared with 57,000 bushels on 3,000 acres last year. Stocks of old wheat remaining on New York farms on July 1 totaled 702,000 bushels, as compared with 715,000 bushels on July 1, 1945, and 836,000 bushels, the ten-year average for that date.

However, July corn estimates indicate a crop of 18 per cent above last season and 12 per cent above average. Oats were forecast at 29,036,000 bushels on 854,000 acres in contrast to 20,822,000 bushels last season and a ten-year average of 23,964,000.

"After being ordered to stop by our frontier detachment," the communique said, "the American soldiers replied by opening fire. Two of our frontier guards were killed."

LONDON, JULY 15-(AP)-THE MOSCOW RADIO DEFENDED SOVIET USE THE VETO IN THE UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL TODAY AND CHARGED CRITICS WITH SEEKING TO SABOTAGE POSTWAR COLLABORATION.

IN A COMMENTARY BY DR.LEMIN, THE BROADCAST SAID THE IDEA OF UNANIMOUS AGREEMENT OF THE BIG POWERS WAS BORN OF THE DESIRE TO APPLY WAR EXPERIENCE TO WIN THE PEACE.

"THE WORLD SECURITY ORGANIZATION CAN BE EFFECTIVE ONLY IF THE MAJOR POWERS ACT IN HARMONY ON THE BASIS OF CO-OPERATION AND EQUALITY," SAID LEMIN, "AND IF NO GROUP OF GREAT POWER OR GROUP TRIES TO MAKE THE ORGANIZATION A TOOL OF ITS OWN."

LEMIN SAID THAT ATTACKS ON THE RIGHT OF VETO "ACTUALLY ARE DIRECTED AGAINST THE PRINCIPLE OF EQUALITY AND CONCORD ON WHICH INTERNATIONAL COLLABORATION IS FOUNDED."

HE ADDED THAT THE VETO PRINCIPLE IN THE SECURITY COUNCIL DIFFERED FUNDAMENTALLY FROM TTHAT IN THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS, WHERE APPROVAL OF ALL POWERS WAS REQUIRED AND ONE SMALL NATION COULD PREVENT ACTION AGAINST AN AGGRESSOR.

"THE PEOPLE MAKING THESE ATTACKS WANT TO CONVERT THE U.N. AND ANY OTHER INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION INTO A WEAPON FOR ISOLATING A GIVEN POWER OR GROUP OF POWERS," SAID LEMIN.

BASTILLE DAY (290)

PARIS, JULY 15-(AP)-WINSTON CHURCHILL, SPEAKING IN METZ YESTERDAY AT A BASTILLE DAY CELEBRATION MARKING THE 157TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE FRENCH REVOLUTION, CALLED ON EUROPE TO "RISE FROM HER RUINS AND SPARE THE WORLD A THIRD AND POSSIBLY FATAL HOLOCAUST," A GOAL WHICH HE SAID NECESSITATED A "STRONG FRANCE."

MEANWHILE FRENCH PRESIDENT GEORGES BIDAULT, SPEAKING AT A SIMILAR CELEBRATION IN PARIS, VOICED "THE GRATITUDE OF THE FRENCH PEOPLE" TO THE UNITED STATES FOR HER ROLE IN THE LIBERATION OF FRANCE FROM THE NAZIS AND SAID DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES WERE LIKE "OLD FRIENDS' QUARRELS."

FROM WASHINGTON PRESIDENT TRUMAN, IN A RECORDED SPEECH SHORT-WAVED TO FRANCE, SALUTED THE NATION ON HER FIRST PEACETIME BASTILLE DAY IN SEVEN YEARS.

"IN SPITE OF HER LOSSES AND THE DESTRUCTION OF HER TERRITORY FOR THE SECOND TIME IN 25 YEARS, FRANCE REMAINS IN THE FRONT LINE OF THE FREE NATIONS OF THE EARTH, PROCLAIMING TODAY THE SAME PRINCIPLES OF LIBERTY AND OF RESPECT FOR THE INDIVIDUAL AS THOSE IN WHOSE NAME HER PEOPLE SPOKE 157 YEARS AGO," PRESIDENT TRUMAN SAID.

JUL 16 1946

CHURCHILL, WHO SPOKE AT A DINNER GIVEN IN HIS HONOR BY THE MUNICIPALITY OF METZ, REFERRED TO RUSSIA AS "OUR HEROIC ALLY."

"TWICE," HE SAID, "HAVE THE UNITED STATES SPENT BLOOD IN COMING TO EUROPE. TWICE HAVE GREAT BRITAIN AND THE COMMONWEALTH DONE THE SAME, AND TWICE HAS OUR HEROIC ALLY, RUSSIA. THERE MUST BE NO THIRD TIME."

THE FORMER BRITISH PRIME MINISTER DECLARED THERE COULD BE "NO REVIVAL OF EUROPE OR ITS CULTURE WITHOUT A STRONG FRANCE."

"EUROPE MUST TAKE FIRST PLACE IN OUR THOUGHTS," HE SAID. "MAY THERE BE A DECENT LIFE ACHIEVED AND SET UP FOR EUROPEANS. 'EUROPE' IS MY FIRST WATCHWORD. MY SECOND WATCHWORD IS 'FRANCE'".

EMPHASIZING THE NECESSITY FOR BRITISH-FRENCH UNDERSTANDING, CHURCHILL ASSERTED: "YOU MUST NEVER ALLOW THE SLIGHTEST RECRIMINATION BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE."

THE VETERAN BRITISH STATESMAN MADE HIS ENTIRE SPEECH IN FRENCH, AN ACT WHICH WON THE LARGE AUDIENCE.

BIDAULT IN HIS SPEECH ACKNOWLEDGED TRUMAN'S ADDRESS, COMPARED THE BIRTHS OF THE AMERICAN AND FRENCH REPUBLICS AND DESCRIBED HOW EACH NATION HAD HELPED THE OTHER TO GAINING HER FREEDOM.

IN BERLIN FRENCH OCCUPATION TROOPS OBSERVED BASTILLE DAY WITH A PARADE ON THE CHARLOTTENBURGER CHAUSSEE.

BERLIN--FOURTH AND SECOND (CORRECT) NIGHT LEAD, HARRISONS X X X OUR BEEP.

WHILE WAITING WORD FROM GEN.ALEXANDER KOTIKOV, RUSSIAN COMMANDER IN BERLIN, TO JOIN HIM AT HIS OFFICE TO PICK UP THE HARRISONS, KEATING TOLD THIS STORY OF NEGOTIATIONS TO RELEASE THE PAIR:

ON JULY 1, CERTAIN HIGH RUSSIAN OFFICIALS ACCUSED THE AMERICAN MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT IN THE BERLIN DISTRICT OF TAKING INTO CUSTODY RED ARMY PERSONNEL. THIS ALLEGATION CAME TO KEATING'S ATTENTION ABOUT THE SAME TIME KEATING FIRST LEARNED OF THE HARRISONS' DISAPPEARANCE.

KEATING THEN REQUESTED THE RUSSIANS TO RELEASE THE AMERICANS IMMEDIATELY BECAUSE IN GOING OUT TO BUY A DOG, THEY INADVERTENTLY WENT ONLY ABOUT 500 YARDS INTO SOVIET-OCCUPIED TERRITORY.

FOR EIGHT DAYS THERE WAS NO FURTHER WORD, DESPITE FREQUENT EFFORTS TO START NEGOTIATIONS WITH THE RUSSIANS.

MEANWHILE, COBIN AND WYATT DISAPPEARED ON JULY 4.

"NOTHING HAS BEEN HEARD IN EVEN THE REMOTEST WAY ABOUT THEM," KEATING SAID.

INTELLIGENCE OFFICERS SAID IT WAS RUMORED THAT COBIN WAS GATHERING INFORMATION FOR A BOOK AND HAD MADE SEVERAL TRIPS TO ORANIENBURG WHERE THE RUSSI

THIS INFORMATION HAD BEEN WITHHELD BECAUSE ITS PUBLICATION MIGHT JEOPARDIZE CHANCES OF GETTING QUICK ACTION FROM THE RUSSIANS.

EARLIER IN THE DAY, KEATING MET WITH HIS RUSSIAN OPPOSITE NUMBER, GEN.ALEXANDER KOTIKOV, AND IT WAS THEN THAT HE SAID HE RECEIVED A CLEAR-CUT REPLY THAT THE HARRISONS WOULD BE RELEASED WITHIN A FEW HOURS.

IF THE HARRISONS WERE NOT RELEASED THIS TIME AS PROMISED, KEATING SAID, HE WAS PREPARED TO TAKE "VERY DEFINITE ACTION." HE DID NOT SPECIFY WHAT ACTION HE CONTEMPLATED.

THE LEAGUE LEADERS, NOW IN CONFERENCE HERE, MADE THEIR PREDICTION IN A STATEMENT WHICH OBSERVED THAT THE KUOMINTANG (NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PARTY) AND THE COMMUNISTS HAVE NOT BEEN ABLE TO COME TO TERMS AFTER PROTRACTED NEGOTIATIONS AND "AN APPEAL TO ARMS SEEMS TO BE THEIR ONLY ALTERNATIVE" NOW.

THE STATEMENT CONTENDED THAT IF THE DECISIONS OF THE JANUARY INTER-PARTY POLITICAL CONSULTATIVE CONFERENCE HAD BEEN CARRIED OUT THE PRESENT CRISIS WOULD HAVE BEEN AVERTED. IT ASSERTED ALL THE LEAGUE'S EFFORTS TO SEE THAT THE AGREEMENTS WERE ENFORCED, AND ITS REPEATED PROPOSALS FOR PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT OF THE SITUATION IN MANCHURIA AND NORTH CHINA WERE FLATLY REJECTED BY THE GOVERNMENT.

THE LEAGUE PROPOSED THAT CONSULTATIVE CONFERENCE DECISIONS BE IMMEDIATELY AND HONESTLY PUT INTO EFFECT AND THE 10-MAN INTER-PARTY STEERING COMMITTEE BE REACTIVATED.

THE STATEMENT LIKEWISE STRESSED AS VITALLY IMPORTANT THE NECESSITY OF FORMING A CHINESE COALITION GOVERNMENT.

LO LUNG-CHI, THE LEAGUE'S SPOKESMAN WHO RELEASED THE STATEMENT, ASSERTED THAT THE GOVERNMENT WAS MORE TO BLAME THAN THE COMMUNISTS FOR THE FAILURE OF PEACE NEGOTIATIONS SINCE THE GOVERNMENT HAD NSISTED ON DISCUSSING ONLY MILITARY RATHER THAN MILITARY AND POLITICAL SUBJECTS.

THE STATEMENT DEPLORED THE ASSASSINATION OF LEAGUE LEADER LI KUNG PU LAST FRIDAY AT KUNMING, VIEWING IT AS THE CULMINATION OF A LONG STRING OF OUTRAGES PERPETRATED BY "GESTAPO ELEMENTS."

TOKYO, JULY 15-(AP)-~~THE PEOPLE OF~~ ENGLAND STILL ARE "EXTREMELY INCENSED" WITH THE JAPANESE, ALVARY D.F. GASCOIGNE, NEWLY ARRIVED BRITISH AMBASSADOR, ASSERTED TODAY.

THE TALL VETERAN OF THE BRITISH DIPLOMATIC SERVICE TOLD AN ALLIED PRESS CONFERENCE THAT BRITISH FEELING AGAINST THE JAPANESE WAS BASED NOT SO MUCH ON THE ASSAULTS AGAINST THE FAR EASTERN SEGMENTS OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE AS ON THE "AWFUL ATROCITIES" AND TREATMENT OF PRISONERS AND METHODS OF WAGING WAR.

ABOARD U.S.S.APPALACHIAN, JULY 15-(AP)-OBSERVERS OF THE SECOND ATOMIC BOMB TEST EXPLOSION SCHEDULED IN BIKINI LAGOON FOR JULY 25 WILL HAVE A MUCH CLOSER VIEW THAN THEY DID FOR THE AERIAL DROP TWO WEEKS AGO.

ON THE PREVIOUS OCCASION THE FLAGSHIP MT.MCKINLEY WAS TEN NAUTICAL MILES DISTANT AND THIS PRESS SHIP WAS 20 MILES AWAY. PRESENT INDICATIONS ARE THAT THIS TIME THEY WILL BE CLOSE ENOUGH TO SEE INSIDE THE LAGOON WHEN THE UNDERWATER EXPLOSION OCCURS.

THE NAVY WANTS OBSERVERS TO BE AS CLOSE AS POSSIBLE WITHIN THE LIMITS OF SAFETY TO AVOID LIKELIHOOD OF ANYONE UNDERRATING THE BOMB. IN THE AIR-DROP TEST OF JULY 1 MANY EXPRESSED DISAPPOINTMENT BECAUSE THE SPECTACLE AS SEEN FROM A DISTANCE WAS NOT DAZZLING.

(EXACT DISTANCES FOR THE NEXT OBSERVATION HAVE NOT BEEN DISCLOSED.)

WEATHER, WHILE IT STILL COULD DELAY THE TEST, WILL NOT BE AS GREAT A FACTOR AS BEFORE, WHEN FULL VISIBILITY WAS REQUIRED FOR THE BOMBING PLANE.

THIS TIME THE BOMB WILL BE ANCHORED IN THE LAGGON, POSSIBLY 18 FEET UNDER THE SURFACE, AND DETONATED BY A RADIO TRIGGER MECHANISM. HOWEVER, MANY AIRCRAFT WILL BE IN THE AIR, INCLUDING PHOTOGRAPHIC PLANES AND RADIO-CONTROLLED "DRONES," JUST AS BEFORE.

THE COMMISSIONERS QUOTED GOUZENKO AS TELLING THEM THAT THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE DISSOLUTION OF THE COMINTERN WAS PROBABLY THE GREATEST FARCE OF THE COMMUNISTS IN RECENT YEARS," AND THAT "ONLY THE NAME WAS LIQUIDATED, WITH THE OBJECT OF REASSURING PUBLIC OPINION IN THE DEMOCRATIC COUNTRIES."

"ACTUALLY THE COMINTERN EXISTS AND CONTINUES ITS WORK" GOUZENKO SAID, AND TO THIS THE COMMISSIONERS ADDED SIMPLY: "THE DOCUMENTS WHICH GOUZENKO BROUGHT WITH HIM CORROBORATE THIS TESTIMONY."

"IN EVERY INSTANCE BUT ONE," THE COMMISSIONERS SAID, "ZABOTIN'S CANADIAN ESPIONAGE AGENTS WERE SHOWN TO BE MEMBERS OF OR SYMPATHIZERS WITH THE COMMUNIST PARTY."

"THE EVIDENCE ALSO DISCLOSES," THE REPORT CONTINUED, "THAT SECRET MEMBERS OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART IN PLACING OTHER SECRET COMMUNISTS IN VARIOUS POSITIONS IN THE PUBLIC SERVICE WHICH COULD BE STRATEGIC NOT ONLY FOR ESPIONAGE BUT FOR PROPAGANDA OR OTHER PURPOSES."

IN DESCRIBING THE OPERATIONS OF THE "AGENTS" AND "CELLS," THE REPORT SAID THAT THE RUSSIANS EXPLOITED SOCIAL CONTACTS WITH GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES, AND THAT THEY FOLLOWED THE NAZI PATTERN OF WORKING THROUGH THEIR NATIONALS IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES, IN THIS INSTANCE THROUGH THE LARGE UKRAINIAN GROUPS IN CANADA.

IN THIS CONNECTION ANOTHER QUOTATION FROM GOUZENKO WAS PRODUCED IN THE REPORT: "THEY TRY TO DEVELOP THOSE PEOPLE AS A COMMUNIST-MINDED POPULATION. IF THEY CONSIDER IT IS NECESSARY TO DEVELOP SOME OF THEM THEY CAN USE THE FEAR THAT THEIR RELATIVES WILL BE PERSECUTED IN THE HOME COUNTRY. THAT IS NO JOKE. IT IS THE REAL THING. THEY MAY SAY TO A MAN: "IF YOU DO NOT AGREE TO WORK, YOUR SISTER OR BROTHER MAY BE LIQUIDATED."

SECRET MEMBERS ARE RECRUITED INTO THE PARTY, THE REPORT SAID, FROM AMONG STUDENTS, SCIENTIFIC WORKERS, TEACHERS, OFFICE AND BUSINESS WORKERS, "PERSONS ENGAGED IN ANY TYPE OF ADMINISTRATIVE ACTIVITY AND ANY GROUP LIKELY TO OBTAIN ANY TYPE OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYMENT."

THE COMMISSIONERS THEN CONTINUED: "ONE OBJECTIVE, WE CONCLUDE, IS THAT THIS TECHNIQUE FACILITATES THE ACHIEVEMENT OF A BASIC POLICY OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY, VIZ, TO GET CONTROL, THROUGH THE ELECTION OF SECRET MEMBERS TO THE DIRECTING COMMITTEES, OF AS MANY TYPES OF FUNCTIONAL ORGANIZATIONS AS POSSIBLE, INCLUDING TRADE UNIONS, PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS AND BROAD NON-PARTY ORGANIZATIONS SUCH AS YOUTH MOVEMENTS AND CIVIL LIBERTIES UNIONS. X X X

"BY THESE MEANS THE TECHNIQUE OF SECRET MEMBERSHIP IS CALCULATED TO FACILITATE ESSENTIALLY DISHONEST BUT NOT INEFFECTIVE METHODS OF PROPAGANDA IN THE INTERESTS OF A FOREIGN STATE."

THE COMMISSIONERS IN SUMMARIZING THE MEANING OF THE EVIDENCE ON THE MILITARY ESPIONAGE OPERATIONS SAID:

"THE EVIDENCE WE HAVE SHOWS THAT ZABOTIN'S ORGANIZATION WAS PARTICULARLY ANXIOUS TO OBTAIN TECHNICAL INFORMATION REGARDING DEVICES WHICH WOULD BE USED IN THE POST-WAR DEFENSES OF CANADA, THE UNITED KINGDOM AND THE UNITED STATES;

"SECRET INFORMATION REGARDING POLITICAL PLANS AND POLICIES OF THESE COUNTRIES; ECONOMIC INFORMATION WHICH WOULD BE USEFUL IN ASSESSING THE ECONOMIC AND MILITARY POTENTIAL OF CANADA; DETAILS REGARDING THE LOCATION OF CANADIAN DEFENSE INDUSTRIES;

"INFORMATION ON CERTAIN TELEPHONE LAND-LINES AND TAPPING DEVICES; AND DOCUMENTS WHICH COULD BE USED BY RUSSIAN AGENTS "PLANTED" IN CANADA OR ELSEWHERE, PLUS INFORMATION WHEREBY SUCH AGENTS COULD ENTER CANADA AND ACQUIRE A BASE OF OPERATIONS HERE."

JUL 16 1946

WASHINGTON, JULY 15-(AP)-PIERRE AUGER, FRENCH SCIENTIFIC CONSULTANT TO THE UNITED NATIONS ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION, SUGGESTED TONIGHT THAT THE UNITED STATES IMMEDIATELY STOP "THE PRODUCTION OF (ATOMIC) BOMBS" AS A GESTURE OF "GENEROSITY" TO IMPLEMENT THIS COUNTRY'S PROPOSAL FOR WORLD CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY.

DECLARING THAT WHILE THIS COUNTRY'S PLAN AS OUTLINED BY BERNARD BARUCH "IS ESSENTIALLY GENEROUS--BUT YOU DON'T SEE IMMEDIATELY WHAT IS GENEROUS ABOUT IT," AUGER TOLD A DINNER MEETING OF THE INSTITUTE ON WORLD CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY:

"STOPPING THE PRODUCTION OF BOMBS NOW WOULD BE A GESTURE WHICH I AM SURE WOULD BE VERY MUCH APPRECIATED (BY THE OTHER NATIONS.)"

AUGER ADDED THAT "RELEASE OF SOME OF THE FUNDAMENTAL SCIENTIFIC KNOWLEDGE (ON ATOMIC ENERGY) WOULD BE AN EXCELLENT THING."

HE SAID THAT HE HAS FOUND OUT THAT THIS COUNTRY ACTUALLY HAS RELEASED SOME BASIC INFORMATION BUT HE ADDED "IT HASN'T BEEN ADVERTISED."

HE SUGGESTED THAT THIS NATION GIVE SUCH BASIC INFORMATION "OPENLY AND GET THE ADVANTAGE OF IT."

HE SAID HE WAS NOT SUGGESTING THAT THIS NATION GIVE OUT TECHNICAL DETAILS ABOUT THE BOMB "BUT JUST PURE SCIENCE," AND HE ADDED THAT THE SPREADING OF SUCH FUNDAMENTAL INFORMATION WOULD BE ADVANTAGEOUS TO SCIENTISTS ALL OVER THE WORLD AND WOULD STIMULATE RESEARCH.

"ON THE WHOLE," HE SAID, "I AGREE AND THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT AGREES FUNDAMENTALLY WITH THE SO-CALLED BARUCH PLAN."

"IT IS A SERIOUS ATTEMPT," HE SAID, "TO GET PEACE FOR ALL. IT WOULD BE WELL TO ADD TO THAT PLAN A GESTURE OF GENEROSITY THAT WOULD CLEAR UP THE ATMOSPHERE."

JUL 16 1946

HE SAID THAT HE DID NOT THINK "THE VETO QUESTION IS AS FUNDAMENTAL AS IT LOOKS."

-AN INDICATION THAT THIS COUNTRY WOULD BE WILLING TO GO OUTSIDE THE FRAMEWORK OF THE UNITED NATIONS IF NECESSARY TO NULLIFY THE GREAT POWER VETO ON ATOMIC CONTROL MATTERS WAS GIVEN TODAY BY JOHN HANCOCK, MEMBER OF THE AMERICAN DELEGATION TO THE UNITED NATIONS ATOMIC COMMISSION.

"IT WOULD SEEM DESIRABLE, IF POSSIBLE, TO ACCOMPLISH EFFECTIVE CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY WITHIN THE FRAME-WORK OF THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER," DECLARED HANCOCK, AN INTIMATE ASSOCIATE OF BERNARD BARUCH, WHO PRESENTED THE AMERICAN PLAN FOR INTERNATIONAL ATOMIC CONTROL TO U.N.

"BUT NO NATION, AND NONE OF ITS NATIONALS," HANCOCK ADDED, "CAN BE PERMITTED, BY HIDING BEHIND THE SHIELD OF ANY PROVISION IN THE CHARTER, TO CLAIM IMMUNITY FOR WILLFUL VIOLATIONS OF A SOLEMN AGREEMENT VOLUNTARILY ENTERED INTO, OR TO PREVENT THE EFFECTIVE OPERATION OF THE ATOMIC DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY."

HE MADE THE STATEMENT IN AN ADDRESS BEFORE THE TWO-DAY INSTITUTE ON WORLD CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY BEING CONDUCTED BY THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE ON ATOMIC INFORMATION WHICH REPRESENTS 72 NATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS IN VARIOUS FIELDS.

HANCOCK WAS OUTLINING REASONS FOR AMERICAN OBJECTIONS TO A VETO POWER OVER ATOMIC ENERGY MATTERS IF THE NATIONS SHOULD AGREE ON A TREATY FOR THE CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY.

"THE LEAST THAT MUST BE INSISTED UPON," HE SAID, "IS THAT (1) ONCE VIOLATIONS OF THE TREATY HAVE OCCURRED, PUNISHMENT MUST BE SWIFT AND CERTAIN, AND (2) THE OPERATIONS OF THE ADA (ATOMIC DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY PROPOSED IN THE AMERICAN PLAN) CANNOT BE INTERFERED WITH BY THE DEVICE OF THE UNANIMITY RULE."

(THE "UNANIMITY RULE" REFERS TO THE VETO POWER.)

IN THE SAME SPEECH, HANCOCK DECLARED THAT THE UNITED STATES WOULD DISPOSE OF ITS STOCK OF ATOMIC BOMBS "ONLY WHEN WE AND ALL OTHER NATIONS CAN BE FULLY ASSURED THAT NO ONE CAN TURN ATOMIC ENERGY TO WARLIKE USES."

OTHER SPEAKERS, INCLUDING SECRETARY OF COMMERCE HENRY WALLACE, CALLED FOR "WORLD CONTROL" OF ATOMIC ENERGY.

"HUMANITY MIGHT STAGGER THROUGH ANOTHER WAR LIKE THE LAST -BUT IT COULD NOT SURVIVE AN ATOMIC WAR," WALLACE SAID.

THE INSTITUTE WAS TIMED TO BE HELD ON THE ANNIVERSARY OF THE HISTORIC FIRST DETONATION OF THE ATOMIC BOMB IN NEW MEXICO, JULY 16, 1945.

"WE HAVE WASTED MUCH OF THIS FIRST YEAR," DECLARED WALLACE. "WE "WE HAVE WASTED TIME IN CONGRESS--AND WE STILL DO NOT HAVE THE LEGISLATION PROVIDING FOR THE PEACETIME DEVELOPMENT OF NUCLEAR ENERGY UNDER CIVILIAN CONTROL. AND NOT UNTIL LAST MONTH DID THE UNITED NATIONS ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION GET DOWN TO WORK."

JUL 16 1946

WASHINGTON, JULY 15-(AP)-FOLLOWING IS THE TEXT OF PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S STATEMENT IN SIGNING THE BRITISH LOAN AGREEMENT: (ABOUT 250)

THE APPROVAL BY THE CONGRESS OF THE FINANCIAL AGREEMENT WITH GREAT BRITAIN IS A MAJOR STEP IN CARRYING OUT OUR PROGRAM FOR REVIVING AND EXPANDING INTERNATIONAL TRADE. THE WIDE DISCUSSION OF THE MEASURE WHICH HAS TAKEN PLACE ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC EMPHASIZES ITS IMPORTANCE. FULL AND FRANK DEBATE IS A BASIC PRINCIPLE OF THE DEMOCRATIC SYSTEM, AND I BELIEVE THAT THE TIME AND CARE GIVEN TO THE CONSIDERATION OF THE AGREEMENT ARE INSURANCE THAT OUR APPROVAL RESTS ON FULL UNDERSTANDING.

THE LOAN SERVES OUR IMMEDIATE AND LONG-RANGE INTERESTS BY HELPING TO RESTORE WORLD TRADE. AT THE SAME TIME IT ENABLES GREAT BRITAIN TO COOPERATE IN CREATING A PATTERN OF MUTUALLY BENEFICIAL ECONOMIC RELATIONS AMONG THE NATIONS OF THE WORLD. IT GOES FAR TO REMOVE THE DANGER OF RIVAL AND ANTAGONISTIC ECONOMIC BLOCS. NO ONE SHOULD THINK THAT THIS AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN IS DIRECTED AGAINST ANY OTHER COUNTRY. IT IS NOT. THE SYSTEM OF TRADE WE SEEK IS OPEN ON THE SAME FAIR TERMS TO ALL THE UNITED NATIONS.

WHILE CONSIDERATIONS OF BROAD SELF-INTERESTS UNDERLY OUR ACTION, THIS DOES NOT MEAN THAT WE HAVE NOT FORGOTTEN THE CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH GAVE RISE TO BRITAIN'S PRESENT PROBLEM. IT IS FORTUNATE AND GRATIFYING THAT THIS ACTION BOTH SERVES OUR OWN INTERESTS AND HELPS TO SOLVE THE PROBLEMS WHICH BRITAIN FACES AS THE DIRECT CONSEQUENCE OF HAVING DEVOTED HER HUMAN, SPIRITUAL AND MATERIAL RESOURCES SO FULLY TO THE COMMON CAUSE.

30 Others Get Long Terms For Bulge Slaughter

O. Odds

Dachau, July 16 (AP)—Forty-three Nazi Elite Guard veterans were doomed to die, and 30 others, including three generals, were given long prison terms today for the slaughter of 900 American prisoners of war and Belgian civilians during the Battle of the Bulge.

The formal death sentence prescribed hanging, but the 30 doomed officers and men asked permission to face firing squads instead. The U. S. military court announced that a recommendation to that effect would be made to Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, U. S. commander in Europe.

NIGHT

Top Six Condemned

Among those condemned to die was Col. Joachim Peiper, daredevil commander of "Task Force Peiper," an armored formation which included his own 1st S.S. panzer regiment and which participated in the bloody massacre of unarmed American prisoners at Malmedy, Belgium.

Gen. Joseph (Sepp) Dietrich and 21 others were sentenced to life imprisonment. Dietrich, a veteran of Hitler's 1923 Munich beer hall putsch, commanded the 6th panzer army spearheading the German winter counter-offensive in December, 1944.

Of the others sentenced to prison, two were given terms of 20 years, one 15 years, and five 10 years by the court which last Thursday returned a verdict of guilty in the largest mass conviction yet obtained in any war crimes trial.

Gets 20 Year Term

One of those sentenced to 20 years was Lt. Gen. Hermann Priess, commander of the First S.S. panzer corps. Brig. Gen. Fritz Kraemer, chief of staff to Dietrich during the Ardennes battle, was sentenced to 10 years.

All the prisoners received the pronouncement stoically. The only signs of emotion in most cases were slight smiles of relief when defendants learned their lives would be spared.

But Peiper, highest ranking officer among those condemned to die, laughed outright when a photographer's flash bulb exploded in his face as the sentence was read to the tense courtroom by the court president, Brig. Gen. Josiah T. Dalbey.

Some German women among the German civilians who crowded into the courtroom broke into sobs when the sentences were read.

The mass conviction was another in a series of similar verdicts in recent months. Last May United States authorities sent to the gallows 28 Nazis in atonement for the deaths of more than 300,000 persons in the notorious Dachau concentration camp. Thirty-three had been convicted in that case last December, but Gen. McNarney commuted five of the sentences.

Fifty-eight Nazis were sentenced to death in May for atrocities at the Mauthausen concentration camp death mill, and these sentences still are under review.

The prosecution in the Malmedy trial concentrated much of its fire on Col. Peiper and produced numerous statements from the ranks of the defendants themselves to show that members of his elite guard regiment were instructed to kill prisoners of war during the last desperate German effort in the west. The Nazis were accused of the wanton killing of 750 Americans and 150 Belgian civilians.

There were 75 defendants before the bar when the trial opened. At the last minute, the prosecution dropped its charges against one, an Alsatian gunner who testified against the others. Of the remainder, only one was acquitted when the verdict was returned Thursday.

43 SS MEN TO DIE FOR MASSACRE OF YANK PRISONERS

JUL 17 1946

30 Other Nazi Veterans of Bulge Battle Get Jail Sentences.

Dachau, July 16 (A. P.).—An American military court sentenced forty-three veteran German SS troops to death today for the slaughter of 900 American soldiers and Belgian civilians during the winter Battle of the Ardennes Bulge.

Prison sentences ranging up to life were given the other thirty of the seventy-three officers and men convicted last Thursday. They included twenty-two for life terms, two for twenty years, one for fifteen and five for ten years. All prisoners took the sentences calmly. The only signs of emotion were slight smiles of relief by those who received less than death sentences.

Col. Joachim Peiper, who gave the order that the SS troops were to take no prisoners, was one of those doomed. Testimony was that he ordered frozen, exhausted and disarmed American prisoners shot during the battle and that the Germans sang songs of massacre on the eve of the offensive.

Two Generals Imprisoned.

Col.-Gen. Josef (Sepp) Dietrich, veteran of Adolf Hitler's abortive beer hall putsch in 1923 in nearby Munich and commander of the German Sixth Panzer Army, was sentenced to life imprisonment. His troops spearheaded the battle in December, 1944.

Lieut.-Gen. Hermann Priess, commander of the First SS Panzer Corps, was sentenced to twenty years in prison. Brig.-Gen. Fritz Kraemer, chief of staff to Dietrich, was given ten years.

Testimony at the trial showed that 750 American prisoners were slaughtered and 150 Belgian civilians also were put to death.

Peiper, the highest ranking officer among those sentenced to die, laughed when a photographer's flash bulb exploded in his face as the sentence was pronounced. Peiper was the daredevil commander of the "Task Force Peiper," an armored formation which included his own First SS Panzer Regiment. It was his men who participated in the massacre of American prisoners of war at the Belgian town of Malmedy, a key in the decisive battle.

Ask To Be Shot.

The formal death sentense provided for hanging. The doomed men asked the court for permission to be shot, instead. The court announced that a recommendation to that effect would be made to Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, commanding general of American forces in Europe.

Some women wept as the sentences were read in the crowded court room. About three-fourths of the spectators were German civilians and the rest were American soldiers.

The prosecution introduced statements from the defendants at the trial to show that the Germans had been instructed to wage ruthless warfare and kill their captives. Several Americans who escaped death at Malmedy testified.

The trial resulted in the largest mass conviction yet handed down by an American court against German war criminals.

The sentences were pronounced by the court president, Brig.-Gen. Josiah T. Dalbey. Only one of the seventy-four accused officers and men, an enlisted man who testified for the prosecution, was freed in the eight-week-long trial, held in this former Nazi concentration camp where thousands of prisoners died.

U.N. ATOMIC GROUP TO WORK ON PACT

D. Harrelson

NEW YORK, July 16—(AP) A newly-created atomic committee will hold its first meeting tomorrow to begin drafting an atomic control plan, despite Russian insistence that no control system be set up until the atom bomb has been outlawed.

NIGHT

This committee was created last Friday by the working committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy commission after a month of discussions in which the 12 member nations outlined their general views on the atomic question.

Will Propose Controls

Designated as Committee No. 2, the group was charged with making specific recommendations on questions dealing with atomic control, including possible conventions, sanctions and enfofcement.

Tomorrow's meeting marks the opening of a new phase of the atomic commission's work—the actual drafting of definite proposals. Two other committees, the legal and the scientific and technical, will start work later in the week.

Although discussions during the past month have disclosed that a majority of the atomic experts were agreed that any atomic control plan should follow the general line laid down by the United States, there were no indications that Russia would alter her stand.

Some of the delegates have expressed concern privately over the attitude of Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko in recent closed meetings. A particular instance was his opposition at last Friday's meeting to the creation of Committee No. 2 and the legal committee.

Opposed By Gromyko

Gromyko voted against the establishment of both committees. His position was that the primary problem was the outlawing of atomic weapons and that there was no need for a control system until this was done.

The concern of the delegates was not so much over what might happen at the present stage, for in the committees and in the atomic commission itself only a simple majority is necessary to approve a plan.

But, it was pointed out, if any control plan is adopted over Russian opposition, the Russians have the power either to veto it in the Security council or to refuse to ratify the treaty making the plan effective.

Thus, the atomic commission faces the possibility of working for months on a control plan and then having the entire plan discarded unless it can meet Soviet objections.

Siam Asks U.N. To Intervene

C Grupich

New York, July 16 (AP)—The Kingdom of Siam has asked the United Nations Security Council to step into its complicated frontier dispute with France over parts of Indo-China which were seized by the Siamese with Japanese support and Vichy French collaboration months before Pearl Harbor.

The territories involved constitute some 20,000 square miles shown on prewar maps as parts of Cambodia and Laos, bordering the Mekong River in Indo-China.

The Siamese contend, however, that the disputed areas are historically their own and that they are only part of the territory they were forced to cede to French empire builders in 1907.

DAY

Request Circulated

Siam's request has been circulated among the Council delegations and will be taken up at their next meeting, which must be held not later than July 24.

The Siamese legation in Washington filed the mediation request yesterday under a charter article providing that a nonmember of the United Nations may submit a dispute to the Security Council if it agrees in advance to abide by the Council's terms for settlement.

The United States, Great Britain and China have already announced their support of a full hearing in the Council and those three and India have joined as sponsors of Siam's pending application for United Nations membership.

Delegation From Bangkok

The Siamese said a delegation from Bangkok would arrive in New York shortly to support their charges that French forces from Indo-China had recently violated the Mekong River frontier, seized Siamese nationals, fired "wanton fussilades" into Siamese territory and engaged in plunder and looting. Those charges were transmitted to Siam to the United Nations on two occasions in May.

Yesterday's communication said continued frontier troubles "threaten the preservation of peace" between France and Siam.

Siam and Indo-China fought an undeclared border war along the Mekong in 1940-41. Indo-China, under remote control of Vichy France, had capitulated to undeclared Japanese aggression southward, which was ostensibly undertaken to outflank China, and Siam was let into the shortlived Japanese coprosperity sphere.

U.N. SPEEDS WORK ON NEW QUARTERS AT LAKE SUCCESS

L. Hauck

NEW YORK, July 16—(AP) The United Nations will move to its new home at Lake Success, on Long Island, the weekend of Aug. 10, an official said today.

Work has been progressing speedily at the interim headquarters at the former Sperry Gyroscope plant, and David B. Vaughan, director of conferences and general services, said it would be ready for occupancy by tha tdate.

Lease Expires Aug. 15

The UN lease on Hunter college in the Bronx expires Aug. 15, and assurances have been given city and college officials that the premises will be vacated completely in advance of the deadline.

Moving UN from its first United States home at Hunter to the interim headquarters will require about three days, Vaughan said.

Under present plans the world organization will remain at Lake Success, a small town in Nassau county, for three to five years before going to a permanent site.

The UN Headquarters commission, under instructions from the General assembly to select a permanent home in the Westchester, N. Y.-Fairfield County, Conn., area, has been at work for several weeks. A preliminary report of one of its committees indicated the UN would require 3.5 square miles with 2,240 acres, but no definite site has been nominated.

Maximum employment of the UN was set in the report at 2,654 persons, with housing accommodations needed for 7,000, including delegations.

New York Prepares Bid

Meanwhile, there were reports that the City of New York was quietly preparing a proposal to have the United Nations locate permanently at the old World's Fair site in Flushing, where the General assembly will meet in September.

There have been previous reports that efforts would be made in the assembly to change the decision on the headquarters from the New York-Connecticut area to San Francisco or even Europe.

Vaughan said it was possible that the new Security council chamber at Lake Success might not be ready on the date of the move, but that arrangements would be made to hold the council in a large committee room temporarily.

Efforts will be made to have the council hold a final meeting at the Henry Hudson hotel, where it has been convening for the past month, just before Aug. 15, and thus pave the way for a two-week recess at the time of switching headquarters.

The Atomic Energy commission and all other UN bodies except the General assembly itself will be housed at Lake Success.

U.S., Britain To Confer On Reich Co-Operation

London, July 16 (AP)—British-American discussions will open shortly in Berlin in an effort to establish closer economic relations between the British and American zones of occupation in Germany, the Foreign Office announced today.

A spokesman said there was no confirmation in Whitehall of New York reports published in the London Evening News, that former United States Ambassador John G. Winant was in London to negotiate directly with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin on co-operation between the occupation zones.

"On Personal Business"

The Foreign Office, he said, was aware of Winant's presence in London, but was not expecting him to enter the discussions. The American Embassy said Winant was in London on personal business and had not been in contact with the Embassy.

The British spokesman expressed belief the talks would not be long delayed. He observed that there was full agreement in principle between the United States and Britain on the necessity for a free now of food, raw material and processed goods between the zones. He said the American proposals were welcomed by the British.

It was disclosed that Bevin will lead the British delegation to the European peace conference opening in Paris July 29.

Oil Strike In Iran Brings Martial Law

London, July 16 (AP)—Tass reported today that martial law had been proclaimed in Ahwaz, Iran, where troops occupied union and company offices during a strike of Anglo-Iranian Oil Company workers.

The report from Tehran, broadcast by the Moscow radio, said the workers struck July 14 for improved working conditions, dismissal of an oil company agent, cessation of alleged company interference with Iranian political affairs and "transformation of the company into a purely commercial enterprise."

British 'Gas' Ration Up 50 P. C. on Aug. 1

London, July 16 (A. P.).—Emanuel Shinwell, Minister of Fuel and Power, told the House of Commons today that the basic British gasoline ration would be increased 50 per cent on August 1 because of purchases enabled by the $3,750,000,000 loan from the United States.

This will allow pleasure cars to be driven about 270 miles a month instead of the present 180 miles. He said also that a "rather more generous allowance" would be made for essential industrial users.

Best Wishes Sent To Bidault by Stalin

Paris, July 16 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Stalin of Russia has sent "best wishes" to President-Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, who led his Popular Republican Movement party into power in France by trouncing the Communist party in the recent election.

Stalin's message, sent for the French independence day celebration, but announced belatedly only today, said:

"My best wishes for you and for the French people."

U.S. To Release Russ In Berlin

JUL 17 1946

D. DeLuce

Berlin, July 16 (AP)—The Russians handed over a missing American warrant officer and his wife to United States army authorities early today, and soon afterward the Americans announced that they were releasing three Russian espionage suspects to the Red Army.

The civilian-clad Russians, two of whom claimed to be Red Army officers, were arrested two weeks ago in the United States zone, it was announced.

The Americans, Warrant Officer and Mrs. Samuel L. Harrison, of San Antonio, Texas, disappeared fifteen days ago when they ventured 500 yards into the Russian occupation zone to seek a pet shop dog kennel.

Two Still Missing

Two other Americans still were missing somewhere in the Russian zone. Gen. M. A. Gruvin, Russian deputy military governor, advised United States Army authorities that the Red Army still was "collecting data" on the men in the neighborhood of Oranienburg, a Russian army district headquarters.

The missing men were Capt. Harold Cobin, of Newark, N.J., and Lieut. George Wyatt, of Oklahoma City, who were last seen July 4 boarding a train for Oranienburg, 20 miles north of Berlin.

Maj. Gen. James A. Keating, American commander in Berlin, said strenuous efforts were being made to obtain their release. Harrison and his wife Helen were released to Keating at 1.45 A.M. at Russian headquarters.

American intelligence officers said they had no trace of Cobin and Wyatt since the driver of their jeep left them at a northern Berlin railway station.

Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Sibert, chief of the United States headquarters intelligence division, said the three Russians had been held on suspicion of espionage in the United States zone of Berlin.

"The arrest of these civilian-clad, foreign clandestine operatives in the United States zone of Berlin in no wise violated any written, oral or implied quadripartite agreement in that city," his statement said. "Our policy in the future must be the same or more severe, depending on the circumstances."

Identified By Name

The Russians are "being turned back" to the Soviet zone at the request of Russian authorities, who identified the three by name, the statement said.

The Harrisons, at a press conference in the United States sector, said they had been questioned repeatedly during their captivity.

Harrison said they were arrested by two motorcyclists wearing civilian clothes but carrying pistols.

"We were not roughly treated," he added.

Tears Scare Russians

Mrs. Harrison, who came to Berlin May 15, said that at one point during her questioning she began to weep and "I guess I scared the whole darned bunch of them."

"When the Russians set us free they promised to get me a dog."

United States security agents, in commenting on the arrests of Russians, said that for the most part those picked up were merely booked and released.

They said that since January 1 American military police had arrested 365 Russians, mainly for traffic violations and shootings. During the same period, the Russians are known to have arrested 25 Americans.

AMG TO TURN OVER CAMPS TO GERMANS

JUL 17 1946

Berlin, July 16 (A. P.).—The American Military Government announced today that it was turning over to German civil authorities the administration of internment camps in the United States zone containing persons awaiting trial under denazification laws.

There are eighteen such camps. The inmates are charged with having fostered Nazi ideology and otherwise having furthered the aims of the Nazi party.

The Military Government will, however, continue to retain custody over camps containing internees held as war criminal suspects and witnesses, and persons regarded as dangerous to the occupation forces.

NEW CRY OF CASTE ON SHIP IS RAISED

JUL 17 1946

Berlin, July 16 (A. P.).—Several civilian Military Government employees, including a former brigadier-general, have indicated their intention to complain to the War Department against what they called a "caste system" governing the accommodations given their families on dependents' ships operated by the Army.

The issue came to a head when a group of civilian dependents arriving aboard the President Tyler complained that during the voyage the wives of Army officers got top-deck accommodations and civilians were placed below in overcrowded and poorly arranged quarters.

Mrs. Henry Parkman of Boston, Mass., whose husband, recently a brigadier-general, is now head of the MG Civil Administrative Section, said that she and her four children had been put in an overcrowded compartment on C deck along with the dependents of enlisted personnel, while officers' wives had the promenade above. Mrs. Parkman said her husband planned to protest to the War Department.

Mrs. A. E. Bevier of Rochester, N. Y., whose husband, a former Lieutenant-Colonel, is chief of the MG Public Welfare Section, said that she had already protested to the Army health authorities over the accommodations given her and her two children.

RAEDER INNOCENT, DEFENSE ASSERTS

L. Beery

NUERNBERG, Germany, July 16 (AP) Dr. Walter Siemers declared today that Grand Admiral Erich Raeder and, in effect, all the German high command, were innocent of wrongdoing in Germany's war because Hitler was entirely responsible and the Fuehrer's suicide proved he knew it.

"Hitler admitted this and evaded the responsibility for committing suicide by showing the slightest regard even for the life and well-being of the German people," the attorney declared in his defense summary for the 70-year-old one time chief of the German navy.

Earlier, the war crimes tribunal was told that Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, who was chief of the German state for eight days after Hitler's demise, did nothing to start the war but took decisive steps to end it.

In presenting a defense for Raeder, Siemers said Raeder helped rebuild the German navy but with the approval of the Reichstag and the cabinet before Hitler came to power. This he regarded as lawful and eventually proper because Britain extended her stamp of approval by negotiating a naval treaty in 1935.

Doenitz 'Didn't Help Fuhrer Start War'

L. Beery

Nuernberg, July 16 (AP)—The International Military Tribunal was told today that former Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz did nothing to start the war but took decisive steps to end it.

With this plea, Dr. Otto Kranzbuehler, defense counsel for Doenitz, sought to prove the innocence of the fleet commander and final head of the German state, who took over from Adolf Hitler May 1, 1945, and surrendered the battered nation eight days later.

Defense Summed Up

The attorney presented the following version of Doenitz's role in the wartime Reich:

At the beginning of the war he was an obscure U-boat commander, without influence.

He opposed Hitler's effort to withdraw from the Geneva Convention and ordered the discontinuance of rescues of shipwreck survivors, only to save the lives of submarine personnel.

He never ordered the destruction of ship's crews.

"A survey by a British minister showing 87 per cent of the crews saved simply is not compatible with an order of destruction," he said.

Calls Crews Combatant

Kranzbuehler said that ships' crews were genuine combatants and asserted that the Allies apparently took the view that the German civilian population was in that category, too.

"I am surprised at the indignation of the prosecution about the loss of about 30,000 men on ships which were armed and carried war material and, often enough, bombs destined for use in attacks on German cities," the counsel said.

He quoted Admiral Chester Nimitz as saying in a statement that American submarines did not rescue survivors "if it meant unusual additional danger for the submarine."

U. S. Releases Three Russians Described as Spies in Berlin

JUL 17 1946

R. O'REGAN

FRANKFURT, Germany, July 16 (AP)—American and Soviet armies in Germany engaged in a strange undercover clash of intelligence services tonight.

The Russians were believed to be holding two American officers incommunicado in Soviet territory and the U.S. Army said it was releasing to the Red army three Russians, officially described as "clandestine operatives in the U.S. zone of Berlin."

NIGHT

The two Americans believed held in the Russian zone are Capt. Harold Cobin of New York and Newark, N.J., and Lt. George Wyatt of Oklahoma City, Okla., missing since they were seen boarding a train for Oranienburg in the Soviet zone July 4.

U.S. officers declined to deny there was any large-scale espionage activity in Germany. As speculation grew on the extent of spy activity, officers at Army headquarters in Frankfurt refused to say wether they suspected extensive Russian intelligence operations in the American zone.

Likewise, they refused to deny or confirm rumors that arrests were made in addition to the three suspected Russian operators, who, dressed as civilians, were picked up two weeks ago in the American zone of Berlin.

Asked if there was any truth in the rumor that Germans have reported to American authorities that Russian agents were infiltrating the U.S. zone in Berlin, officers at headquarters refused to comment.

Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Sibert, U.S. intelligence chief, said the three Russians now being turned back to the Red army were held on suspicion of espionage, and that the three were known by name both to Soviet and American authorities. It was reported here that their arrest was part of a carefully-planned counter intelligence trap.

The decision to release the Russians, reported to be two officers and a driver, followed the return by Soviet authorities of Warrant officer Samuel L. Harrison of San Antonio, Tex., and his wife, Helen, who had been held in the Russian zone since July 1. However, no progress was made in the case of Cobin and Wyatt.

A statement from Gen. Joseph T. McNarney's headquarters announced that the three Russians were being "turned back" to Soviet occupation authorities at the latters' request after they had been identified by name.

A formal statement said two of the Russians claimed to be Red army officers and all three were wearing civilian clothes.

"The arrest of these civilian-clad, foreign clandestine operatives in the U.S. zone of Berlin in no wise violated any written, oral or implied agreement in that city," said the statement issued by Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Sibert, chief of headquarters intelligence division.

Food Lack Stirs Ruhr Disorders; Police Attacked

JUL 17 1946

Essen, Germany, July 16 (AP)—An unruly Dortmund crowd attacked German police today, freeing a prisoner accused of black market operations, and evidences of unrest increased elsewhere in the industrial Ruhr.

British officials are well aware that the population of this coal mining-industrial area are growing restive as the months pass without an increase in food rations.

Miners get heavy worker rations of 3,000 calories, but family members get only 1,000 and claim this sometimes is actually only 700 because of the scarcity of potatoes and cereals.

"Next winter will be interesting," one officer said.

Russia's Ace Writer Baffled by America, Has High Praise for Literature in U. S.

R. JAMES

MOSCOW, July 16—(AP)—Ilya Ehrenburg, Soviet Russia's ace newspaperman, reported today he found a group of "provincial dummies" in the United States "who were convinced that with the help of Esperanto they could make the atomic bomb harmless."

This was one of the many "peculiarities" gleaned from his recent American tour and noted for the readers of the official government newspaper Izvestia.

NIGHT

The writer professed bafflement at a number of other things he observed in the United States—among them "the cult" of the American dollar and the goings-on at American dinners.

"I was present at dinner meetings," he wrote. "At first everybody hurriedly chews chicken. Then orators make long speeches. Next comes a sentimental song by a lady singer, and finally a clergyman takes up a collection for charity."

Ehrenburg devoted much of his article to his observations of the lot of the American negro.

He said that in Mississippi he met a plantation owner who tried to convince him that "blackskinned people in general are not human beings," adding that "neither the radio nor ventilators have in the least affect the mental development of this slave owner."

Groups Defend Negroes

The Russian newspaperman said he found everywhere "organizations for defending the rights of Negroes," adding:

"Every year innocent Negroes are sentenced to the electric chair and yearly the best people in America protest against this barbarism."

Ehrenburg had high praise for contemporary American literature, declaring that "it would be difficult today to find in western Europe writers equal to Hemingway, Faulkner, Steinbeck and Caldwell, and I could add a few other names."

New York skyscrapers, he said, justified their geography.

"This is an enormous city built on a little island," he wrote, "but in the smallest provincial town one may find a few small skyscrapers built around one-storied buildings. Such are the contrasts of America."

Writes of Contrast

"There is nothing more contrasting to the English character than the common American. Englishmen are courteous, phlegmatic, love to live their life at home, order their suits from good cloth and wear them until death or at least until the next election. But Americans love everything new. They seldom become used to one apartment until they begin hunting for a new one which they want to furnish with everything new, throwing away all the old furnishings."

Ehrenburg observed that "it is impossible to understand the modern world without understanding America," but added:

"It is difficult to understand it. Intricate technical achievements often conceal a simple heart and the simplicity in turn conceals an unexpected intricacy."

"Everything New"

Ehrenburg declared that there was "nothing more in contrast to the British character than the average American."

"Englishmen," he said, "are more courteous, phlegmatic, love to live their lives at home, order their suits from good cloth and wear them until death, or at least until the next elections. But the Americans love everything new. They seldom become used to one apartment until they begin hunting for a new one, which they want to furnish with everything new, throwing away all the old furnishings."

Ehrenburg declared that in all sections of the country he found "organizations for defending the rights of Negroes," but that he had encountered in Mississippi a plantation owner who told him that "black-skinned people in general are not human beings."

"Neither the radio nor the ventilating system had an effect on the mind of this slave owner," Ehrenberg said.

America Is A Land Of Strange Contrasts, Red Author Says

R. JAMES

Moscow, July 16 (AP)—Ilya Ehrenburg, Soviet journalist who has just returned from a tour of the United States, described America in an article in Izvestia today as a nation of strange contrasts.

"New York's skyscrapers justify their geography," Ehrenburg said. "This is an enormous city built on a little island. But in the smallest provincial town one may find a few small skyscrapers built around a portions of America. He said he came across one group of provincial "dummies" who were "convinced that with the help of esperanto they could make the atomic bomb harmless."

DAY

Turning to the race question, few thousand one-storied buildings. Such are the contrasts of America."

"Provincialism" Cited

Ehrenburg also was impressed by the "provincialism" of large suits from good cloth and wear them until death, or at least until the next elections. But the Americans love everything new. They seldom become used to one apartment until they begin hunting for a new one, which they want to furnish with everything new, throwing away all old furnishings."

Discussing American literature Ehrenburg said:

"It would be difficult to find today in Western Europe writers equal to Hemingway, Faulkner, Steinbeck or Caldwell, and I could add a few other names."

"Intricacy Concealed"

The Moscow radio broadcast Ehrenburg's story, recorded in London, including these additional comments:

"It is impossible to understand the modern world without understanding America.

"It is difficult to understand it. Intricate technical achievements often conceal a simple heart and the simplicity, in turn, conceals an unexpected intricacy."

Quotes Professors

Adjoining railroad station coinslot baggage lockers in Atlanta, he said, was "a dark, stinking room with the inscription 'for colored people.'"

In Tennessee, there were excellent libraries and laboratories . . . but "professors told me that they do not have the right to teach the theory of evolution in the schools."

Ehrenburg said he discovered in America "yet another cult—that of the dollar."

Chicken And Speeches

"I was present at dinner meetings," he wrote. "At first everybody hurriedly chews chicken. Then orators make long speeches. Next comes a sentimental song by a lady singer and finally a clergyman takes up a collection for charity."

The Russian said he discovered all the states did not teach the same history and that "topicality here often overshadows the historical sense."

"For the average American almost an epoch elapses between the morning and the evening newspaper, and later in the day he cannot always remember what exactly he got excited about in the morning."

MIKHAILOVICH'S PLEA FOR MERCY IS TURNED DOWN

JUL 17 1946

Ten Other Chetniks Also Appeal in Vain to Tito's Presidium.

G. PALMER

Belgrade, July 16 (A. P.).—Gen. Draja Mikhailovich and his ten co-defendants sentenced to death on charges of treason have lost their appeal for mercy. The Presidium of the Yugoslav Parliament, it was officially announced today, has rejected the pleas.

The bearded Chetnik leader, once the War Minister as well as field commander for the exiled Government of King Peter, was convicted yesterday by a military tribunal of treason and collaboration with the Germans and was sentenced to be shot. Convicted with him were twenty-three others, of whom ten were ordered shot and thirteen were sentenced to prison terms ranging from eighteen months to twenty years.

All requests to the Presidium for mercy were made personally with the exception of those of two absentee defendants—Mladen Zujevich and Peter Zhivjovich, who appealed through their defense attorneys. When the court president informed the accused men yesterday that they had the right to appeal for pardons he told them they could apply personally, through attorneys or through relatives.

Only eight and a half hours were given for the completion of these appeals.

The authorities refused to say whether the executions would be carried out publicly or privately. It was reported yesterday that they would be private, with only the firing squad and official witnesses present.

Mihailovic's Plea Denied

JUL 17 1946

London, July 16 (AP)—The Belgrade radio reported today rejection of Gen. Draja Mihailovic's appeal for mercy after his sentence to death yesterday on charges of collaboration with the Germans.

The broadcast, recorded by the British Broadcasting Corporation, said appeals by his 23 colleagues who also were found guilty of collaboration and treason had been rejected too.

Ten of them were condemned to death along with Mihailovic, the Chetnik leader who rallied Yugoslavs against the Germans in the early days of the war in the Balkans and later was accused of joining the Germans in fighting the partisans of Premier Marshall Tito.

U. S. Plans No Action

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—A State Department official said today that as far as he knew the United States was not planning to intercede with Yugoslavia to prevent the execution of General Mikhailovitch.

Lincoln White, department press officer, gave that answer at a news conference when questioned whether the American Government contemplated any such move.

He also expressed doubt that the United States would turn over to Yugoslavia Constantin Fotitch, former Yugoslav Ambassador to this country.

50,000 DEMAND TRIESTE

JUL 17 1946

Gather in Belgrade to Protest Big Four's Decision

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, July 16 (AP)—A crowd of approximately 50,000 persons, chanting the names of Premiers Tito and Stalin, protested tonight against the decision of the Big Four Foreign Ministers to internationalize Trieste.

Members of all Yugoslav trade unions and other groups marched to Terazije Square in the heart of Belgrade. They carried banners that read: "We ask for a revision of the Paris decision on Trieste," "Trieste to Yugoslavia is justice to Yugoslavia" and "Yugoslavia as an Ally demands justice from the Allies."

On the speakers' balcony of the Hotel Moscow, orators demanded that Trieste be given to Yugoslavia. The crowd, led by shouts from persons on the balcony, repeated: "Istria is ours, Trieste is ours."

NINE JEWS SEIZED BY POLISH OUTLAWS

JUL 17 1946

NIGHT

WARSAW, July 16—(AP) Nine Jews were reported today to have been seized by outlawed NSZ bands as hostages for nine Poles executed Sunday for participating in the July 4 pogrom at Kielce.

The reports did not indicate the fate of the nine Jews, although advices from Kielce, where they were abducted, said they were threatened with death at the time of their seizure if the lives of the nine Poles were taken.

A firing squad executed the Poles in secret, and news of the executions was not widespread in Kielce since newspapers there have not published it.

The government announced today that a Maj. Sobczynski, head of the Kielce security forces, and three of his assistants were arrested after a special investigating committee reported they had not been "energetic enough" in intervening to halt the pogrom, which cost the lives of 41 persons, mostly Jews.

The nine Poles were executed in secret on Sunday by a firing squad for their part in the pogrom, which cost the lives of 41 persons, mostly Jews. News of the executions was not generally known in Kielce, however, since newspapers have not published it. A Foreign Ministry spokesman announced the shootings yesterday.

Refutes Charges In Polish Voting

JUL 17 1946

Warsaw, July 16 (A. P.).—A Government spokesman declared today that Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's charges of fraud in connection with the national referendum proved "unsubstantiated." The spokesman added that no further action was contemplated on Mikolajczyk's demands that the voting be declared invalid.

The move is believed to have been orderd because of the presence of "subersive elements" in Poland and frequent killings by members of the outlawed NSZ—national armed forces, opposed to the provisional government as well as to "Jews and Communists."

The government sends secret police agents into Warsaw's nightclubs to demand that patrons show their "legitimacja."

Warsaw, July 16 (AP)—Outlawed NSZ bands operating in the Kielce district were reported today to have seized nine Jews as hostages for nine Poles who were convicted of setting off the July 4 pogrom at Kielce and executed.

SOVIET IS URGED TO OPEN DANUBE TO ALL TRAFFIC

JUL 17 1946

NIGHT

VIENNA, July 16—(AP) American military transportation officers have proposed to Soviet officials the resumption of navigation over the entire course of the 1,175-mile Danube river but thus far have received no reply from the Russians, U. S. headquarters announced today.

The proposal, made in writing May 16, asked that the most important inland waterway in Europe be opened to traffic as soon as obstructions are removed. The river now has been cleared for navigation between points in the U. S. zones in Austria and Germany, and passenger, express and freight services have been resumed over limited stretches in other zones.

"It is believed," said the American announcement, "that navigation beyond the United States zones is probably hazardous in many stretches of the river."

American military transportation officials said nazards in the Danube outside the U. S. zone were believed to be fallen bridges, wrecks and pontoon bridges.

The Russians claim the Danube Steamship company's assets under the Potsdam agreement, but many of the company's vessels remain in American hands.

U. S. headquarters said that approximately one-third of the Danube river fleet, as it existed at the end of the war, was taken over by U. S. forces in Austria and "has been put in good repair, pending an agreement which would assure free and secure navigation."

Meanwhile, the Soviet-controlled newspaper Oesterreichische Zeitung said U. S. military authorities in Austria were just beginning to relinquish control of Austrian industry but that the Russians had begun the process last autumn.

The comment came even as Gen. Mark W. Clark, U. S. commander in Austria, officially turned over to the Austrian government the huge United Iron and Steel works at Linz, which, under the name of "the Hermann Goering works," produced German Tiger tanks during the war. Clark remarked that he hoped other nations would follow suit.

Paper Hits U.S. Austria Policy

JUL 17 1946

DAY

Vienna, July 16 (AP)—The Russian-controlled Oesterreichische Zeitung said today that United States military authorities were just beginning to relinquish control of Austrian industry, whereas the Russians had started the process last autumn.

The newspaper declared in a front-page editorial that Americans were "making a lot of noise" about turning over to other German industries to Austria.

In the Soviet occupation zone there was never such a system of military administration as that which exists today in the Western zone," the newspaper said.

Release Of Steel Plant

The editorial appeared while Gen. Mark W. Clark, commanding general of United States forces in Austria, prepared to release to the Austrians administration of the United Iron and Steel Works at Linz. A report by Clark's headquarters said the transfer "marks the beginning of Austria's economic independence."

Meanwhile, American military transportation officers have made proposals to Soviet officials for the resumption of navigation over the whole course of the Danube River as soon as obstructions are removed, United States Headquarters announced today.

The proposals, made in writing last May 16, have not been answered by the Russians, the announcement said. Details were not disclosed.

Italy Oil Strike Handicaps UNRRA

Rome, July 16 (AP)—Petroleum workers throughout Italy struck today, tying up vital operations and paralyzing UNRRA transport.

The strike was called by the Petroleum Syndicate after negotiations with the Government's petroleum distribution organization for a 30 per cent wage increase and other benefits were stalemated.

Some 7,000 workers walked out, halting unloading of tankers at ports and affecting—in addition to UNRRA transport—the country's fire and police departments and railway movements, military transport and movements of the diplomatic corps in Italy and Vatican City.

In Rome only one small plant supplying Allied military vehicles was operating.

Communists Attack Greek Police Again

DAY

Athens, July 16 (AP)—The Ministry of Public Order today reported a third Communist attack on a gendarmerie station and a monarchist band attack on a village in central Greece.

A royalist band of 150 Saturday surrounded the village of Laspi in a mountainous section in the Agrinion region and opened fire, killing two and wounding twenty.

The newest left-wing attack was said to have been made with mortars and heavy machine guns on a gendarmerie station in the Elasona area, where two previous attacks occurred in the last forty-eight hours. The Ministry said it was believed the same communist band perpetrated all three attacks. Two of seven gendarmes at the station were reported missing and two wounded. The communists were accused of kidnaping a doctor and a schoolmaster and of setting the station afire.

Reports Region Terrorized

SALONIKA, Greece, July 14 (Delayed) (AP)—Macedonian Gov. Gen. Nicholas Kottas said today that scores of well-armed "Communist bands" were terrorizing villages and towns in northern Greece in a "guerrilla civil war." Troops and the police are combatting the outlaws, who operate in groups of 150 to 500 with mortars and machine guns.

Gen. Constantine Ventiris, commander of the Second Army in Central Macedonia, said the Communist raids were the second phase of a full revolution. The third phase, he said, will be a declaration of war against the constituted authority. The initial phase was the organization of armed units, he said.

Gen. Anastasiou Dalipis of Central Macedonia said in an interview in Kozani that a plot for a full-scale revolution scheduled for June 15 had been discovered and frustrated.

ARABS TO EXPAND THEIR BOYCOTT OF JEWISH ECONOMY

JUL 17 1946

NIGHT

JERUSALEM, July 16. — (AP) The Arab Higher Executive committee announced tonight an expansion of its ban on all Jewish goods in Palestine to a "full boycott of all economic, cultural and social Jewish activities."

The announcement came as Jews throughout Palestine prepared for a general strike, beginning at 9 a. m. tomorrow, in sympathy with 1,600 Jews reported to be on a hunger strike at the Rafiah detention camp. Police denied that any such hunger strike was in progress.

In sympathy with the Rafian inmates, all Jewish inmates in the Latrun prison camp, including Jewish executive agency members Moshe Shertok and Dr. Bernard Joseph, began their own hunger strike this afternoon. The Latrun inmates include several hundred of the Jews rounded up by the British June 29.

The Arab committee ordered Arab merchants not to buy from Jewish merchants or factories; not to import foreign merchandise except through Arab agents, and not to exploit the "sacrifice" of Arab consumers in this boycott by raising prices unnecessarily. The Arab consumers were told to buy solely from Arabs and to satisfy themselves that the goods they buy do not originate from Jewish industry or are not imported through any Jewish agent.

Jews, except those employed by the government in essential services, will stay away from work throughout Palestine tomorrow, said an announcement of the Jewish National Council (Vaad Leumi), and no urban or interurban transport will be operated in the Jewish sector of the country.

PALESTINE JEWS TO GO ON STRIKE

JUL 17 1946

DAY

Jerusalem, July 16 (A. P.).—The Jewish National Council, Vaad Leumi, announced today that a general strike would be staged throughout Palestine tomorrow, from 9 A. M. to midnight, in sympathy with 1,600 Jews whom Jewish informants reported on a hunger strike at the Rafiah detention camp. The police denied that there was such a hunger strike.

There will be no work in towns or villages except by Government employees and in maintenance of essential service, the announcement said, and no urban or interurban transport in the Jewish sector of the country.

Jewish restaurants will open for two hours at lunch time and one hour at night, but all other Jewish shops and places of entertainment will be closed.

Jewish informants, insisting the hunger strike was in progress and would continue, said it was "in protest against the authorities' failure to speed up releases."

Truman Silent on Palestine

JUL 17 1946

Has No Comment on Proposal for a Division of Jews

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—The White House said today President Truman had no comment on a proposal of Jewish war veterans to recruit a division of Jews for service in Palestine.

A delegation of Jewish veterans offered yesterday to organize the division if Mr. Truman felt that it would halp to facilitate the entry of 100,000 Jews into the Holy Land. They said Britain had demanded American troops to preserve order in the event the Jewish refugees were admitted.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, when asked about the veterans' proposal at a news conference, said there was no comment available from the President.

Mr. Truman told his last news conference he would have nothing to say on the Palestine question until American and British Cabinet committees concluded discussions on immigration proposals.

Saudi Arabia Bars Political Activities

Warning Follows Arrest of Alleged Reds in Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt, July 16 (AP).—The government of Saudi Arabia has warned the people of that nation against any political activity or propaganda.

A Saudi Arabian communique published here today declared that the government will not permit the holy land of Islam to become a place for such activities and will take "all measures" against offenses.

The publication of the communique came soon after the wholesale arrest of alleged Communists in Egypt and the suppression of several Egyptian newspapers, including the opposition Wafd party organ, which were critical of negotiations for a new Egyptian-British alliance.

[The Iraq government also has suppressed twelve Leftist newspapers for criticizing the administration, and arrested twenty members of the unauthorized National Democratic party on charges of Communism.

[Commenting on the apparent general action against Leftist movements and newspapers in the Middle East, a British Foreign Office spokesman said at London that Great Britain regards the incidents as "internal matters of the nations concerned." Gen. Chou Bids Marshall Halt China Civil War

Communist Accuses Rivals of Ordering an Offensive in North Kiangsu Area

NANKING, July 16 (AP).—General Chou En-lai, chief Communist negotiator, made a special appeal tonight to General George C. Marshall, special American envoy, to halt the spreading civil strife in China.

NIGHT

Even as Chou made his appeal, Communist spokesman Wang Ping-nan said the "present situation is heading directly into a full-scale civil war."

Chou went directly to see Marshall after returning from Shanghai to present what he described as war orders captured by the Communist New 4th Army directing seven Kuomintang (government) units to start a general offensive against the north Kiangsu area.

Wang described the military situation as "very critical." He said it had deteriorated rapidly since Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek left Sunday for the summer capital at Kuling.

He warned that the Communists "are still on the defensive, but if the government attacks continue, we must answer them."

600 MARINES JOIN SEARCH FOR SEVEN HELD BY KIDNAPERS

JUL 17 1946

PEIPING, July 16.—(AP) Search was pressed in vain today for seven United States Marines kidnaped by Chinese near Cinwangtao Saturday.

Six hundred Marines, an equal number of Chinese Government troops, and seven planes were participating.

NIGHT

Chinese newspapers attributed the abduction to Chinese Communists, but numerous bandit gangs are known to operate in the neighborhood. The Marine corps said merely that 80 unidentified Chinese were responsible.

Names of the Marines have not been disclosed.

Pro-Government press reports continued to detail widespread fighting between Communists and Government troops.

The paper Yi Shih Pao said 80,000 Communists were besieging Tatung in Shansi province 170 miles west of Peiping, and the paper Hsin Min Pao said a cease-fire team had been sent there by truce headquarters.

The Government's Central News agency said the Communists had ceased attacking the railway to Tientsin in Hopeh, province after a week of futile attacks.

Other Government accounts said 5,000 Communists were attacking 14 miles north of Tsinan, capital of Shantung province, but that Government troops had cleared the railway running southward from Tsinan to Tsingtao.

The Communists, in a broadcast from their Yenan headquarters, asserted the Government was pursuing an extermination campaign against 60,000 Communists war veterans in central China, but that in hard fighting and by means of a 150-mile forced march the Government plan had thus far been thwarted. Chinese Envoy Approved

Nanking, July 16 (AP)—A Foreign Office spokesman said today the British Government had approved the appointment of V. T. Cheng, London-educated Chinese jurist, as Ambassador to London.

Airmen Hunt U.S. Marines

Peiping, July 16 (AP)—More than 1,000 men and seven aircraft pressed the search today for seven United States Marines kidnapped Saturday by a band of 80 Chinese.

Marine Corps headquarters here said no trace had been found of the missing men, who were taken prisoner in a village near Chinwangtao. An eighth Marine escaped capture.

DAY

All Marines in the area of North China have been alerted, a Marine Corps officer said. Two companies of 600 Marines and a similar number of Chinese Government soldiers have been detailed for the search.

Chinese papers said the kidnappers were Communists, but there was no confirmation. Numerous bandit gangs operate in the area.

80,000 Attack Tatung

Meanwhile, Chinese press dispatches said a force of 80,000 Communists was attacking strategic Tatung in Shansi province, a weakly defended city famed for its huge stone Buddhas.

A cease-fire team was reported en route there.

The Government-controlled Central News Agency said the Communists had halted their attacks on the Tientsin-Pukow rail line in Hopei province after more than a week of fighting, and that the Tsinan-Tsingtao line had been cleared of Reds.

Five thousand Communists were reported attacking Government positions fourteen miles north of Tsinan, capital of Shantung province.

CHINA'S HARVEST WILL FALL BELOW PRE-WAR LEVELS

JUL 17 1946

SHANGHAI, July 16.—(AP) A survey of China's 1946 crop expectancy by UNRRA's agricultural rehabilitation division shows severe deficits compared with the 1931-1937 average yield.

On estimates based on the best information available to UNRRA, China should produce this year about 39,500,000 metric tons of rice compared with a pre-war average of 45,300,000 tons.

The 1946 wheat crop, estimated at 22,400,000 metric tons—a sharp gain over last year's production of 18,600,000 tons—will, it is believed, closely approach the pre-war figure of 22,640,000 tons.

Food Reserves Depleted

Although the actual figure estimate of the 1946 rice crop is only about 10 per cent under the 1931-1937 average, and the wheat estimate only slightly below the pre-war norm, the deficit becomes larger when the rise in China's population and the drastic reducton of reserve food stocks due to war, are considered.

During the war years, vast agricultural areas were not cultivated because of enemy occupation and the scarcity of farm animals, thousands of which were confiscated by the Japanese.

Two million rice and wheat producing acres in the north were flooded as a war measure and will not be productive until 1947 after completion of the Yellow river dyke repair project to drain the land.

Drought Cuts Crop

In the south, drought and wartime lack of fertilizer have reduced crop yields still further. In both north and south the lack of reserve grain stocks has added to the current famine.

Arthur Grove of Roosevelt, Minn., UNRRA agricultural analyst who compiled the crop estimates from available sources, said the figures were only approximate.

Plans now being worked out by UNRRA and the Ministry of Agriculture should result in a better system for future crop estimates.

Dr. T. H. Chien, vice minister of agriculture and forestry, is now in the United States studying the latest methods of crop reporting which he will introduce in this country upon his return.

Prospects for substantially increased food production next year are bright, Grove said. He cited the Yellow river project, now nearing completion, UNRRA's introduction of imported fertilizers, insecticides, seeds, farm tractors and modern farming methods as examples of efforts being directed toward expanded crop yields in 1947 and heading off future famines.

Siam Reviews King's Death

Bangkok, July 16 (AP)—Siamese police officials announced today a plan to re-enact their version of King Ananda Mahidol's death before a commission of inquiry.

They said the King's bed and mosquito net would be used in the reconstruction of the royal bed cham... before a commission hearing in t... Ministry of Justice.

The re... was scheduled to conclude the commission's inquiry. It will follow testimony by the queen mother and present King Phumiphon.

Murder Theory Attacked

Police officers interrogating doctors before the inquiry commission vigorously attacked a murder theory advanced by twelve physicians serving on the twenty-man medical commission which conducted an autopsy on the King's body.

Under police questioning, the doctors agreed that a murderer could not have shot from the right or left side of the bed and, therefore, must have shot from the head of the bed.

Police officials then sought to demonstrate the improbability of shooting from that position.

Dutch Ships Slip Out Of Australia

Sydney, July 16 (AP)—Six Dutch ships that have been tied to Australian wharves for six to ten months by a waterside workers ban on loading material that might be used against Indonesian nationalists cleared Sydney and Brisbane today for the Netherlands East Indies.

Three of the ships slipped their moorings at Brisbane and sailed under steam raised by wood fuel gathered in the city during the past few weeks.

Later the other three left Sydney with one of them, the Stagen, carrying sufficient coal to fill the bunkers of the three ships from Brisbane at sea for the voyage to the NEI. No dockside union labor was used in preparing the vessels for sea and they carried no cargo.

JAP NEWSPAPER STRIKERS EJECTED

JUL 17 1946

Tokyo, July 16 (A. P.).—An estimated 1,325 non-striking employees of the newspaper Yomiuri today ejected 600 strikers who had built barricades and prevented publication for four days. They then proceeded to put out an edition.

A company representative said that no violence occurred. The strikers, however, said that ten of their number were injured at the hands of non-strikers. Thirty Japanese policemen stood by outside the plant but did not interfere. The strikers had demanded a 500-yen subsistence allowance and other benefits as well as the reinstatement of employees discharged or transferred during an earlier dispute over policy.

A spokesman for the publisher, Tsunego Baba, said the company had agreed to the subsistence allowance but refused to reinstate personnel ousted, he said, for attempting to force a communistic policy on the newspaper.

War Dept. Exacts No-Strike Oath

Tokyo, July 16 (AP)—Civilian employes of the United States War Department here were ordered today to sign a no-strike affidavit.

The directive from Washington ordered workers to swear they would not strike against the Government of the United States, that they are not members of an organization of Government workers that asserts it has a right to strike against the Government, and that they will not join such an organization while working for the Government.

Such affidavits must be signed before employés receive their first pay checks for the 1946-47 fiscal year.

One civilian worker asked the Office of Civilian Personnel, directed by Lieut. Col. L. G. Alexander, what would happen if he failed to sign such an affidavit. He was told he probably would be discharged.

Reds Explain Jap Labor Legislation

Tokyo, July 16 (AP)—Russia's proposals for Japanese labor legislation are based on precepts long recognized in England, France, "and to a great extent in the United States," the Russian Embassy said tonight in an eighteen-point statement.

The proposals submitted by the Soviet member of the Allied Council for Japan, the Embassy statement said, were considered important because they would "assist in the speediest enforcement in Japan of progressive labor legislation based on the rich experience of democratic countries."

The embassy said that the Allied powers' economic and scientific section in its review of the proposals "fully confirms the opportuneness of the well-grounded recommendations for labor legislation in Japan made by the Soviet member of the Allied Council."

Food Rations And Disease

Yokohama, July 16 (AP)—Wartime food rations were so severe in Japan that the beriberi rate rose 300 per cent among soldiers and civilians and malnutrition increased by 200 per cent, Lieutenant Colonel Inouye, one-time head of the Japanese Army hygiene section, told a war-crime court today.

HEIRS CLAIM NORTH BORNEO

Kin Of Sultan Of Sulu Challenge Crown Colony Status

Manila, July 16 (AP)—Nine heirs of the late Sultan of Sulu laid claim to British North Borneo today.

The Sultan's heirs contended Britain's current steps to make

North Borneo a Crown colony is improper and that the 31,000 square miles of land reverted to them through non-payment of rents by the British.

Nick Osmena, attorney for the heirs and a son of former President Sergio Osmena of the Philippine Commonwealth, said he was prepared to carry the case to the United Nations tribunal if necessary.

Some Philippine Citizens

The Philippines Government, while not officially participating in any way, is known to be making quiet inquiries concerning validity of the claim, since the claimants are Philippines citizens.

In London, a British Foreign Office spokesman said nothing had been heard of the claim there as yet, but remarked that it was "pretty quick work," inasmuch as Philippines had been independent only since July 4.

Actually, disclosure of the claim was timed not by Philippines independence but by the fact that Britain planned formally to convert North Borneo into a Crown colony on or immediately after July 15.

Throughout its previous existence as a separate entity, North Borneo has been a so-called "protected state" of Britain, administered by the British North Borneo Company under royal charter.

The territory, in the northeast part of Borneo, is not to be confused with the British Borneo states of Sarawak and Brunei, which total about 53,000 square miles, or with Dutch Borneo, which embraces the remaining 208,000 square miles of the big island.

The nine heirs, represented by Nick Osmena, son of the former Philippine president, produced copies of a lease executed January 22, 1878. It gives the British North Borneo chartered company perpetual rights to the territory plus fourteen islands between Borneo and the southernmost Philippines for an annual payment of 5,300 Borneo dollars (about $2,500).

Lease Abrogated, Claim

The heirs claim the lease was abrogated by the company's failure to pay the annual grant since 1936, when the late Sultan Jamalul Kiram died, despite a ruling by Borneo Justice C. F. C. Macaskie on December 18, 1939, that the heirs were legally entitled to payment. Macaskie ruled "it is abundantly plain that the successors in sovereignty are the Government of the Philippine Islands."

Lease Called Great Bargain

Economic experts here say the original lease was one of the greatest bargains in history. Profits of the North Borneo chartered company averaged $9,000,000 annually in return for a $2,500 lease payment.

FILIPINO URGES TAX ON BACHELORS

Manila, July 16 (A. P.).— An annual tax of 10 pesos ($5) on bachelors was proposed in the Philippine Congress today by Representative Manuel Cases, unmarried himself. He suggested the levy on unmarried men and childless widowers between the ages of 30 and 50, exempting diplomats and members of the United States armed forces.

Sultan Of Sulu's Heirs Challenge British Rule

Manila, July 16 (AP)—British incorporation of North Borneo as a crown colony may have international repercussions.

Nine Philippine citizens, heirs of the late fabled Sultan of Sulu, declared through an attorney today that Britain has no right to the 31,000 square miles of oil, mineral and timber domain they claim is rightfully theirs.

North Borneo yesterday formally became a part of the British Empire, ending 64 years of administration by the British North Borneo Company.

May Appeal To U.N.

The heirs are prepared to carry the case to the United Nations.

The newly sovereign Philippine Republic, while not officially in the picture, also is known to be making quiet inquiries about the claims.

Only 15% Of Bikini Animals Died From Blast, Blandy Says

Aboard U.S.S. Mt. McKinley, July 16 (AP)—The atomic bomb which burst over Bikini lagoon July 1 has taken the lives so far of only 15.3 per cent of the animals exposed to its blast and radioactivity, Vice Admiral William H. P. Blandy, atom-test commander, said today.

Ten per cent of the animals, he said, were killed outright. He added that other deaths from radiation were expected to occur during the next three months and commented that mortality so far was at the "expected rate."

2,982 Of 3,519 Alive

His report said 2,982 of the 3,519 animals used in the test were still alive.

[Blandy's statement was in sharp contrast with that of an officer who reported at Kwajalein on Monday that the animals were "dying like flies." The officer indicated there soon would be no animals left to take to the United States for further study.]

King Invited To Test

Juda, King of the nation of Bikini, may see the second atomic bomb shake the island where he and his people once lived in peaceful obscurity.

King Juda received an invitation today after he had been paid a courtesy visit by Blandy and other American notables, at his present abode, Rongerik Island.

Blandy and his staff went by plane to Rongerik, 130 miles from Bikini, to see the King. He was introduced by Commodore Ben Wyatt, Marshall Island commandant, who explained through an interpreter that "this man commands thousands of men and hundreds of ships," and is responsible for the whole project.

Speaks Through Interpreter

Admiral Blandy, speaking slowly to an interpreter, said it was a great honor to visit Juda and his people and thanked them for their "kindness and co-operation in making this experiment possible."

Wyatt then introduced Senator Hatch, of New Mexico, a member of the President's evaluation board.

Gifts Presented

The task force chiefs went to the new land of Juda bearing gifts. Blandy personally explained the operation of a new design air-conditioned pipe and gave the King tobacco and cigarettes.

For others there were 200 bars of chocolate, soft drinks and salted nuts. Wyatt presented to Josiah, the village schoolteacher, a geographical globe, and found himself involved in an attempt to explain it.

Admiral Blandy gave the people a set of a half dozen photographs of the first bomb test, showing the bomb cloud over Bikini. He also tried to explain what a weather balloon was: "It shows how strong the wind blows and in what direction."

TO BE CLOSER TO ATOM BLAST

Observers Will Be Moved Up for Second Test.

Aboard U. S. S. Appalachian, July 16 (A. P.).—Observers of the second atomic bomb test in Bikini Lagoon scheduled for July 25 will have a much closer view than they did for the aerial drop two weeks ago.

On the previous occasion the flagship Mt. McKinley was ten miles distant and this press ship was twenty miles away. Present indications are that this time they will be close enough to see inside the lagoon when the underwater explosion occurs.

The Navy wants observers to be as close as possible within the limits of safety to avoid likelihood of any one underrating the bomb. In the air-drop test of July 1 many expressed disappointment because the spectacle as seen from a distance was not dazzling.

Weather, while it still could delay the test, will not be as great a factor as before, when full visibility was required for the bombing plane. This time the bomb will be anchored in the lagoon, possibily 18 feet under the surface, and detonated by a radio trigger mechanism. However, many aircraft will be in the air, including photographic planes and radio-controlled "drones," just as before.

Navy Capt. Fitzhugh Lee, public information officer, said the Navy anticipated the possibility of a wave sweeping over low-lying Bikini island. For that reason, the club where thousands slaked their thirst beneath the palms will be evacuated three days before the test. Other installations will be moved to the highest point of land—less than 12 feet in elevation.

15.3 Per Cent of Animals Dead.

Aboard U. S. S. Mt. McKinley, July 16 (A. P.).—The atomic bomb which burst over Bikini lagoon July 1 has taken the lives so far of only 15.3 per cent of the animals exposed to its blast and radioactivity, Vice-Admiral William H. P. Blandy, atom test commander, said today.

Ten per cent of the animals, he said, were killed outright. He added that other deaths from radiation were expected to occur during the next three months and commented that mortality so far was at the "expected rate." His report said 2,982 of the 3,519 animals used in the test were still alive.

TWO RED OFFICIALS TO LEAVE CANADA

Embassy Aides Begin Packing as Spy Report Is Issued.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 16.—(AP) Two top officials of the Soviet embassy in Ottawa are leaving hurriedly for Russia following publication of official charges that they had been engaged in directing under-cover espionage operations in Canada, it was learned today.

They were Vitali G. Pavlov, whose official position was second secretary but who was described as the head of an NKVD (Soviet secret police) espionage network; and Ivan T. Krotov, with the official position of commercial counsellor but also accused of spying for Moscow.

Packing Started

The pair began packing hurriedly yesterday as a special Royal commission issued a final report on Soviet espionage in Canada, according to best available information here. They are believed to be the last to leave Canada of 17 Soviet embassy officials and employes named as engaging in spy networks.

These departures began last fall soon after 27-year-old Igor Gouzenko, a code clerk, fled the embassy and turned over to Canadian authorities a mass of documents on an espionage system which the Royal commission said was directed from Moscow by the director of military intelligence.

Two of the first to go were Col. Nicolai Zabotin, military attache and head of one espionage system, and Nicolai Zheveinov, head of the Ottawa bureau of Tass, the official Soviet news agency. Zheveinov also was accused of taking part in such activities. Zabotin, who left "clandestinely," in the words of the Royal commission report, is rumored to have been shot to death on the way home aboard the Soviet ship Alexander Suvorov. Moscow had announced his "recall" for "inadmissible" activities.

It is not clear whether Pavlov and Krotov were called home, or whether they were requested to leave by the Canadian government.

The Royal commission's 250,000-word report accusing the Russians of using secret rooms in the embassy for espionage activities created a sensation in diplomatic quarters in the Canadian capital. While the main outline of the spy operations had been known through previous commission reports and through trials of Canadians involved, the detailed documentation published yesterday was of deep interest to every government which has a Soviet embassy or legation in its own capital.

Using the Communist party as a "base" for recruiting and "developing" Canadians for the espionage work, the Russians, according to the report, directed these activities through the embassy.

"Several parallel under-cover systems, or networks" were employed, the agents of one system often not knowing what was being done in another and often being spied upon by their own countrymen, the report said. It was added that these parallel systems "may still have their own under-cover agents operating in Canada."

Gouzenko was quoted in the report as saying, after mentioning the parallel intelligence systems, that "the same thing was true in the United States, according to a telegram I saw." The telegram was not produced by Gouzenko, and the report made no elaboration on its contents.

The following excerpts from the report give a picture of the Russian operations as seen by the commissioners:

"Gouzenko [whose testimony the commissioners repeatedly said they accepted as true] testified there was a five-man committee in Moscow which passes on Soviet officials who are being sent to foreign countries. The committee consists of representatives of the NKVD, the military intelligence, the naval service, the commercial service and the diplomatic service.

"There can be little doubt that the NKVD, previously called the OGPU, and which is the secret political police of the Soviet Union, have a powerful organization in Canada. * * * While Gouzenko's evidence and the documents establish the existence of the NKVD organization in Canada, we have been unable to ascertain the extent of its infiltration and the identity of its Canadian and other agents.

"In rooms of this secret wing [of the Russian Embassy in Ottawa] the cipher clerks of the various branches of the Soviet mission in Ottawa were located. They numbered five in all, the NKVD, the Embassy proper, the political section, the commercial section and the military. * * *

"All these cipher clerks operated independently and each one used a different cipher which was unknown to the others."

Talks On Soviet Spies Seen

Ottawa, July 16 (AP)—Indications that the three nations which hold the atom-bomb secret may confer on Russian spy activities were seen today following publication of an official Canadian report that Soviet agents, who "may still" be operating in Canada, had flown samples of Uranium 235 to Russia.

The report, issued by a royal commission composed of two of Canada's seven Supreme Court justices, asserted that many top secret military developments had already been compromised because of Russian spies, and that Moscow was seeking information on post-war defenses of the three countries—the United States, Britain and Canada.

After repeating previous charges that the Soviet spy operations had ramifications in the United States and Britain, the commission recommended that Canada consider whether to communicate her findings "to the proper authorities in the United Kingdom and the United States."

Samples To Moscow

The 250,000-word report said that Dr. Alan Nunn May, British scientist who worked on atomic research in Montreal, had given samples of Uranium 235 enriched and Uranium 233, essential elements in the manufacture of atom bombs, to a Lieutenant Angelov, assistant military attaché in the Russian Embassy in Ottawa. The materials then were flown to Moscow by a Lieutenant Colonel Motinov, the commission asserted.

May was sentenced by a British court last spring to ten years in prison.

"Information of the greatest importance" on radar was obtained by Russian spies, the report said. Also compromised were a wiring diagram on a type of fuse, information on a submarine-detection device and secret data "of great value" on propellants and explosives, the report added.

Balked On Atom Secrets

The commission said the Russians had been largely balked, however, in their efforts to ferret out details of atomic secrets.

The report summarized four months of work in which 115 witnesses were heard and 6,000 pages of evidence taken.

The report dealt primarily with Canada and mentioned the other two countries only incidentally in instances where Soviet activities in the Dominion had ramifications abroad. The chief type of such ramification was Moscow's efforts to get scientific secrets shared by Canada, Britain and the United States.

The report would seem to indicate that, whatever the United States and Britain might do about the matter domestically, the United States and Canada would have to discuss it in the course of their defense talks which are carried on regularly through the Permanent Joint Board of Defense. The commissioners mentioned several times that post-war defenses of Canada were involved, and said that it is obvious that the Russians planned "a large post-war expansion of the network of Canadians in the military espionage system."

A big part of Canada's effort to combat this threat to the safety and interests of the state is to be a program of "publicity, education and full understanding" regarding the evidence laid before the commission, Prime Minister Mackenzie King told Parliament. He said that the report itself is a very important instrument to this end, an apparent reference to the detailed accounts of just how Canadians were taken into the network through Communists in the Dominion and through agents direct from Moscow.

This afternoon Miss Agatha Chapman, 29-year-old economist employed by the Bank of Canada, said in a statement that she had been shocked to learn that she had been accused in the Royal Commission's report of serving as a contact between two of the Russian agents in Ottawa. "I have had no connection with espionage or anything related to it," she said. She added, however, that she had "numerous acquaintances, amongst whom are some of the people named by the Royal Commission."

Only Dependable Friendship Will Preserve Peace, Says Senator.

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) called on Russia today to understand the "simple truth" that there can be no lasting world peace unless the Russians and Americans develop a dependable friendship instead of the distrust and suspicion he said now exist.

The Michigan senator painted for his colleagues a dark picture of conflicting viewpoints at the Paris meeting of United States, British, Soviet and French foreign ministers, which he attended as an adviser.

Hopes for Friendly Relations

But he brightened the canvas with the prediction that "patience, fair play, tenacity and firmness"—qualities which he said had been displayed by Secretary of State Byrnes—would make it possible "for eastern Communism and western democracy to find friendly, common ground."

Vandenberg, who heads the Republican senatorial conference, outlined in a lengthy speech delivered before a well-filled Senate and crowded galleries, three factors on which he said peace hinges. They are:

"1. The dependable and effective operation of the United Nations in behalf of justice courageously sustained by collective security.

"2. The successful outlawry of atomic bombs and kindred instruments of sudden, overwhelming mass destruction, under a tight system of total discipline which makes bad faith impossible.

"3. The development of dependable and warranted friendship between big and little nations and particularly between the great Union of Soviet Socialistic Republics and the great United States of America."

Calls on Russians

To accomplish these aims, the Michigan senator said the Russians ought to understand that the United States respects the rights of the Soviets to "rule themselves to suit themselves, precisely as we insist on this right for ourselves and others."

Moscow should understand, he continued, that the United States has enlisted "for keeps" in the effort to make sure that military aggression "shall never curse the earth again."

Further, he said, the Russians must come to know that Americans are prepared for "enlightened, progressive cooperation" with other nations but that they "cannot be driven, coerced or pressured" into decisions and "will not bargain in human rights and fundamental liberties anywhere on earth."

Finds Mutual Distrust

He said that there is between the United States, Great Britain and France on one side and Russia on the other "mutual distrust and suspicion which 'the iron curtain' between us and the insatiable Soviet appetite for proselyting and propaganda do not help dispel."

"Yet," he added, "these things must be dispelled—not in pretense but in fact—if we are to get on with the vital business of peace on earth.

"Particularly there must be dependably dispelled any distrust or suspicion on the one hand that the United States is attempting to organize the world against the Soviets; on the other hand that the Soviets are attempting to organize the world against our western civilization. War between us would be an unthinkable calamity which I am certain they, as well as we, abhor."

Vandenberg Reports on Big 4

JUL 17 1946

Michigan Senator Says Russia Is Creating Suspicions by Attitude on Germany.

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) told the Senate today that "substantial gains" have been made toward world peace but the goal still remains "far from total achievement."

The Michigan Senator took the floor to discuss the Big Four meeting of Foreign Ministers in Paris, which he attended as an adviser. He voiced full indorsement of the conference report given the nation by radio last night by Secretary of State Byrnes.

Byrnes said that Russia is creating "doubts and suspicions" by her objections to a German disarmament treaty. He announced that this country is moving toward breaking down economic barriers in Germany, even if the Soviets do not help.

Vandenberg said there is "appalling disagreement" among the Big Four powers on the question of Germany.

As one example of the failure to see eye to eye on many points, he said that Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov "quotes Yalta to prove that President Roosevelt promised $10,000,000,000 in reparations to Russia."

"Mr. Byrnes," Vandenberg continued, "quotes Yalta to prove that Mr. Roosevelt did nothing of the sort."

Byrnes said in his speech that orders giving Russia a choice between co-operation or "economic paralysis" in Germany will go forward this week to Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, American military commander at Frankfurt.

The Gist of the Orders.

The orders will be to co-operate with any or all of the other occupying powers — Britain, France and Russia—on finance, transportation, communication, trade and industry.

Vandenberg told the Senate that Russia has construed the 1945 Moscow agreement among the big Powers to an extreme. He said this "microscopic liberalism" might carry Big Four domination "to the point of monopoly and dictatorship" if it was unchecked in the task of writing the peace.

It has become difficult, he said, to attain the "peoples' peace" toward which he contended the United States is working. But he hailed as the Paris conference's greatest achievement the calling of the 21-nation peace conference. He said the United States will be prepared to stand on the position it has made.

Before the invitations to the peace conference were issued, Vandenberg said, the Soviet "threw up another road block," demanding basic rules of procedure that would keep the conference substantially in the grip of the "Big Four."

Great Britain and the United States, he said, "rejected the straight jacket," and the outcome was that "suggestions" were offered for conference procedure. The suggstions, he said, were not binding and the conference is free to adopt its own rules.

"Thus," he declared, "it is possible for Eastern Communism and Western democracy to find a common ground."

The orders will be to co-operate with any or all of the other occupying Powers — Britain, France and Russia—on finance, transportation, communication, trade and industry.

"We will either secure economic co-operation between the zones or place the responsibility for the violation of the Potsdam agreement," Byrnes asserted.

Truman Congratulations.

President Truman listened in and telephoned congratulations to the Secretary immediately after the broadcast.

Russia declined at the Paris meeting to go along either on economic measures, guaranties for keeping Germany disarmed for a quarter of a century, or the writing of a peace treaty for Austria. On those points, Byrnes observed, the conference "made no progress at all." He pinned the blame squarely on Russia.

"I do not believe," he declared, "that the Soviets realize the doubts and suspicions which they have raised in the minds of those in other countries who want to be their friends by the aloofness, coolness and hostility with which they have received America's offer to guarantee jointly the continued disarmament of Germany."

On the success side of the ledger Byrnes listed the calling of a peace conference for July 29 to consider treaties, drafted in tentative form at the Paris council, for Italy and the former Axis satellites.

Sees Prospects Bright.

Prospects are bright, he said, for treaties that will let the people of five occupied States "live and breathe as free people." He added: "We are on the road back to peace."

Leading up to his disclosure of the orders being drafted for McNarney, Byrnes said it was no secret that four-Power control of Germany on a zone basis is not working well. Under the Potsdam pact, he said, Germany was to be administered as an economic unit. Instead, he added, it is being run in four closed compartments and the country is threatened with inflation and economic paralysis.

Time Spent on Germany.

Byrnes granted that the time spent on German and Austrian questions might not have been a total loss. Experience suggests, he said, "that understandings, particularly with our Soviet friends, cannot be reached until we have gone through rounds of verbal combat, in which old complaints are repeated, past positions reaffirmed, differences accentuated and crises provoked."

My task is greatly simplified by the able report to the nation which was made last night by radio by Secretary Byrnes. I endorse that report. Further, I present my compliments to the Secretary upon his splendid performance at Paris, which was in the finest American tradition. I also present my compliments to my able friend, the Senator from Texas, who, as usual, was a tower of strength to the American position.

Excerpts From Senator Vandenberg's Report on Big Four Conference in Paris

JUL 17 1946

WASHINGTON, July 16 (UP)—Following are excerpts from Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg's report to the Senate on the Paris meeting of Foreign Ministers:

Mr. President, the Senate of the United States has a direct responsibility in respect to the peace treaties which shall finally terminate World War II. The Senate will have to pass upon these treaties. The Senate and the country therefore should be fully informed with regard to the process from which these treaties will develop.

The treaties with Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria, Rumania and Finland now are approaching final form in the Council of Foreign Ministers, upon which America, Russia, Britain and France are represented. This Council has just concluded its fourth and most successful effort in this regard at Paris.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes invited the senior Senator from Texas (Mr. Connally), who is chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, and the senior Senator from Michigan, now speaking, to join him in this Paris mission. I propose frankly to present my view of the net result and I shall deal with the significance of what was not accomplished just as freely as I shall deal with the significance of what was.

"Substantial" Peace Gains

Mr. President, I believe that peace has made substantial gains; but it is still far from total achievement.

At the outset, Mr. President, I wish to say that I was reluctant to accept this latest important international assignment, the fourth peace mission which has taken me from my domestic duties in the Senate in the last fifteen months. * * *

One overriding consideration, however, has governed my decision. Peace with justice is the supreme necessity for America and for the world. Peace is indivisible in this atomic age. The pursuit of effective, dependable peace with justice takes priority over every other human need.

It is not for an instant to be denied that our internal problems are of utterly vital concern. A sound, sane, solvent, free America is indispensable to peace itself. A weak, a broken America would cheat the world, ourselves included, of the peace leadership which is the dearest hope of humankind.

The labors in which Congress is currently engaged are of incalculable importance. I regret my temporary absence.

On the other hand, Mr. President, every aspiration we pursue in behalf of life, liberty and happiness in our own United States is finally at the mercy of another war—and what a cruel, ironical mercy it would be in the aftermath of Nagasaki and Hiroshima. * * *

[illegible] Mr. President that I made my choice between these obligations. Indeed, I felt I had no choice. I have responded to the urgent requests of two Presidents and two Secretaries of State to participate in this spade work for peace. Regardless of politics, which have no place in such considerations, I shall continue to make every contribution within my power to the effective organization of security, of peace with justice for us and for the world. I know of no land on earth which has a larger measure of intimate self-interest in that objective than our own. * * *

Now, Mr. President, in a preliminary way I submit a few general observations about all peace negotiations where inevitable national rivalries collide with peace ideas. The end product can never be perfection. What may be desired is limited by what may be attainable. The end result must be common ground or there is no peace. Failure is preferable to a pretense of success at the price of unsound compromise or appeasement. Munich forever personifies this warning, but the measure of failure is not the presence of compromise. Rather the measure of success is the preservation of essential principles in spite of compromise.

Did Not Have "Own Way"

Before we went to Paris I said we could compromise within principles, but that the dignity and honor of the United States of America and the world's hope of peace with justice could no longer compromise with principles themselves, as was too often done under pressure of war exigency upon too many previous occasions. I believe the American delegation at Paris did not compromise with principle in the compositions which made possible this continuing forward march toward peace. I repeat that no free international negotiation ever permits anyone to have things all his own way. We did not have things all our own way at Paris by any stretch of the imagination. But that is not the test. The test is whether we sustained the American ideals, and whether the result put us closer to peace with justice in this war-torn world.

Despite our disappointments, I believe that Paris meets this test. * * *

Ah, yes, Mr. President, there are serious disappointments here and there in the Paris record. I shall take care not to disguise them. The people are entitled to the truth. But I say again that the true test must be objective and must assess the whole. * * * A peace conference cannot allow itself the luxury of breaking down each time some favorite passion, no matter how nobly meditated, fails of total conquest. Peace itself is too desperately important.

And so, Mr. President, now let us look at the Paris record. The greatest [illegible] at the Paris conference was over the convocation of a general peace conference in which the twenty-one nations which fought the war together should have full opportunity to work together on the terms of peace with five enemy states, namely, Italy, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Finland. This has been the dearest dream of the Government of the United States ever since the Moscow Conference of December, 1945, when such a peace conference was promised not later than May 1, 1946. It has been the American idea of developing a people's peace.

Mr. President, it is now accomplished. To be sure, the Moscow pledge was not as broad as the American Secretary wished and sought. In the face of Soviet opposition it was impossible to lodge final plenary power in the ultimate peace conference. I have always regretted this stricture. After the peace conference the last word again reverts to the four great powers in the Council of Foreign Ministers. But the conscience of the Allied world will have spoken in the interim, and it speaks with superlative authority.

A Literal Interpretation

The promised date of May 1, 1946, came and went without the promised peace conference. The trouble was that the Moscow Agreement had also said that the four great powers, Russia, Britain, France and America, must agree upon fundamentals in the preliminary peace draft before the peace conference should be called. From start to finish the Soviets construed this requirement with microscopic literalism. In support of their contention it is fair to say that they were building upon the accepted theory that big-power unity is indispensable to world peace in the San Francisco pattern. In opposition to their contention, however, it is equally fair to say that their interpretation would carry this so-called unity to the point of monopoly and dictatorship in the big powers, to the utter derogation of the status of the smaller nations of this earth which stood shoulder to shoulder with us in the trenches of this late war, now victoriously concluded.

It was upon this rock that both recent Paris Councils nearly split. From the first hour that the Council reconvened in April, Secretary Byrnes began demanding a new date for the peace conference. At the April sessions he asked for June 15. At the start of the June session he asked for July 15. In both instances the Soviet delegation was adamant. By the end of June, however, the fundamentals were sufficiently agreed to, so that at long last, and at the end of enormous travail, we were able to celebrate the Fourth of July by a unanimous agreement to call the peace conference for July 29. I confess that I felt that it was not unlike a second Declaration of Independence. * * *

I may add parenthetically to my colleagues that unlimited debate in the Senate is quite painless when compared with unlimited debate in three languages in the Council of Foreign Ministers.

Thus the twenty-one United Nations get the peace conference they long have sought; the peace conference which America has long insisted they should have; and they will enter it as free agents. Thus the world takes another long step down the thorny paths toward peace with liberty and justice.

To the citizens at a distance the points that were in controversy may seem relatively trivial; yet in the final analysis nothing is trivial which can disorganize the friendly relations of the earth. We know to our sorrow that little matches light big fires. The truth is that Paris was to stand or fall upon this one basic composition. There was a powerful lesson in it, too. Given patience, fair play, tenacity, and firmness in the American attitudes, it is possible for Eastern Communism and Western democracy to find friendly common ground.

Now I wish to speak of the problem of Trieste, because on the one hand it was the most dangerously delicate problem which the Council of Foreign Ministers confronted, and on the other hand it best typifies the extreme difficulties which are faced in mapping any sort of peace for Europe and the world * * *.

Choice Regarding Trieste

Unfortunately the Council of Foreign Ministers operates on the principle of unanimity. There could be no settlement except by mutual agreement. The Soviets clung to their [proposed ethnic] line in behalf of Yugoslavia. We clung to ours in behalf of Italy. If we both were still clinging to those lines there would be no agreement and no peace. There would be no peace conference under such circumstances. Trieste is a tinder box under any circumstances. It would become sheer dynamite if the present status of uncertainty were to continue indefinitely. Therefore the choice lay between a stalemate, which spelled inevitable disaster on the one hand, and a decent composition within the ethnic principle offering reasonable elements of hope upon the other hand. * * *

It was under these circumstances that the plan for the Free Territory of Trieste was born and ultimately accepted by all concerned. It includes the city of Trieste as a free international port and its immediate environs up and down the Adriatic coast. * * *

The settlement does not cheat Italians of their ethnic rights, because if Italians predominate in this Free Territory, as we know they do, they can predominate in their own free elections, which are under their own free control. Certainly they would be just as free as they would be under Italian sovereignty, and certainly they will be just as safe and probably much safer under the wing of the United Nations. Meanwhile, since 86 per cent of the area of Venezia Giuglia goes to Yugoslavia, there will be no real basis of Yugoslav complaint.

Solution "Far From Ideal"

Let me be entirely clear about my own view of this situation. It is far from ideal. It is my personal view that Trieste should have gone to Italy. As recently as June 30 I filed a memorandum with the Secretary of State from which I wish to quote partially for the record:

"Trieste has now become a cause celebre. It involves so many entrenched rivalries, it is freighted with so much potential hazard to the peace of Europe and the world that the only hope for a pacific acceptance of any decision respecting it is to have the greatest and the widest possible authority behind any decision respecting it, no matter what it may be.

"Four men sitting in this Council have no business making any decisions in the first instance. They should seek the unprejudiced recommendation of an immediate peace conference of the twenty-one Allies who have fought the war together and who have a right to make the peace together—either this or the advice of the General Assembly of the United Nations."

But when the Secretary of State found his valiant efforts unsuccessful, either in keeping Trieste in Italy or in referring the issue to the peace conference, and when he found that this hopeful composition was the only way to get a peace conference at all or peace itself, I think he was well justified in his approval of this design for the Free Territory of Trieste, under which human rights and fundamental freedoms are preserved beneath the seal of the United Nations.

I agree that such devices are not historically encouraging. I have no illusions that this experiment is any sort of a self-succeeding panacea. On the other hand I have no illusions as to what would happen if we could not go on with the business of at least initiating peace in Europe, and particularly in its cockpits.

Curbing [illegible] Urged

Furthermore, there are no true precedents for the Free Territory of Trieste because there are no precedents for the kind of United Nations which will take the responsibility. Therefore, melancholy prophets might well curb their gloom and give peace a chance. This plan is the best answer currently available to those who are charged with the awful responsibility of finding common ground for peace with justice and getting on with the job.

Mr. President, the Italian treaty presented very formidable problems. Not the least of them was the disposition of Italian colonies in North Africa, namely, Cyrenaica and Tripolitania, which together comprise Libya. * * * The final agreement permanently separates the colonies from Italy, gives the Council of Foreign Ministers one year in which to agree upon a formula, and in the absence of any such agreement transfers the colonies automatically to the Trusteeship Council of the United Nations.

Thus, from our viewpoint, human rights and fundamental freedoms in these colonies are amply safeguarded. * * * Thus, again, a great principle is preserved.

A third major perplexity had to do with Soviet demands for reparations from Italy * * *. There was never any serious question in the Council of Foreign Ministers concerning the global sum of $100,000,000 [the amount asked by Russia], nor was there any dispute that it should come, as far as possible, from surplus war plants in Italy, from external Italian assets in Hungary, Rumania, and Bulgaria, and a few incidental sources. We figured these assets at around $60,000,000. Moscow figured them at around $22,000,000. In either event, the controversial question was, whence comes the balance?

Difference on Reparations

The Soviets demanded this balance out of Italian commodities in current production. We and the British insisted that Italy's current economy must not be burdened in any fashion which interferes with her economic recovery, particularly since there is now a new, free, democratic Italy which is struggling back to independent life.

We and the British happen to be the forces in the military occupation of these points until these peace treaties are concluded. * * * We are footing the bills. Under such circumstances, to take Russian reparations out of current production in Italy would be virtually equivalent to taking them, by proxy, out of Britain and out of the United States.

There were collateral questions—as, for example, whether this Russian balance might come from surplus Italian warships. But the issue which tied the Council in a knot for many days was this question of "current production." It was finally settled by an agreement which spreads this balance of reparations over seven years, which creates a moratorium for the first two years, and which subsequently provides that Russia shall furnish Italy the raw materials for the commodities ultimately to be made and paid upon this deficit in the reparations accounts. In other words, it will not be paid from "current production." * * * Again, our principle has been preserved.

Mr. President, I have lingered in some detail upon a few of these major disputes. There were, of course, many other important decisions before the drafts of these five treaties could be concluded. Indeed, there were literally hundreds of such decisions which involved vast research and labor. The world might take some encouragement from the fact that most of them resulted in prompt and harmonious agreement, without benefit of headlines which never bother about such accords. * * *

"Least Defensible" Ruling

The South Tyrol area remains in Italy. This is the least defensible of all these decisions on ethnic grounds because the area is predominantly Austrian. The decision, however, actually was made a year ago at the London conference and Paris had no jurisdiction except over permissable "minor rectifications." Defense of the decision rests upon the fact that the area has been in Italian sovereignty for twenty-five years, and that Italy became our ally while Austria remained our enemy to the bitter end * * *.

Let it be constantly remembered that all decisions are subject to review, and to new recommendations at the hands of the peace conference, where the judgment of twenty-one nations, rather than only four, will be taken. Let it be further remembered that the forum of the United Nations is ever available, in years to come, to deal with untoward eventualities. If they threaten peace and security, or if they prove to undermine the purposes of the United Nations, any such situations, regardless of origin, fall within the jurisdiction of the General Assembly under Article 14 of the Charter.

In other words, we are not building a static world in which only force can rectify the errors of yesterday. I may be permitted to speak with deep feeling on this matter because it was my privilege at San Francisco to initiate and develop Article 14. I was happy to note that Secretary Byrnes, responding to an inquiry along these lines, confirmed this thesis when on July 5, 1946, he wrote in part as follows:

"We all know that the world does move and that, if the use of force is to be avoided, ways must be found of facilitating changes by peaceful means."

Reference to the Assembly

The Secretary warned that methods of such review must not be "too readily available" lest they invite confusion, but he specifically pointed to the forum of the General Assembly as a means "of facilitating needed changes by peaceful means."

Mr. President, I come to the final chapters of the conference. They are not encouraging, but they reflect the facts of life as we find them and not as we uld wish them to be if ours were an exclusive power of direction. But they deal with our most vital peace conundrum and they emphasize bot. the difficulty and the need for the most earnest and impartial efforts that can possibly be made to bridge the great gap between Soviet thinking and the rest of us respecting Germany and Austria, and French thinking and the rest of us respecting the Rhineland and the Ruhr.

The lesser treaties, while indispensable in a preliminary way, [illegible] on the perimeter of the problem. Germany and Austria are at the core. Fortunately there is one simple theme upon which all four of the major powers relentlessly agree, namely, that Germany must be denazified and demilitarized, this time for keeps, so she can never rise again as an aggressor to pillage and to plague the earth. We must cling tenaciously to this common purpose because, at this point, it is our only bond.

Unfortunately the pattern to achieve this result, involving as it inevitably does the social, economic and political future of Germany, is a matter of appalling disagreement. The actual military suppression of reborn aggression is now inextricably interwoven with these other complex considerations. For example, the American offer of a long-term military contract, under the final auspices of the United Nations, to come immediately to Allied military aid against any new German aggression now seems to attract relatively little interest, although it is the maximum proof of our good faith and the maximum assurance of the earliest feasible termination of the mass occupation of Germany by alien troops, including our own.

Plan Condemned by Russia

While tentatively approved by Britain and France it has been openly condemned by the Soviets. I shall always think, however, that if this proposal could have been actively pressed by us when it was first proposed in my Senate speech of Jan. 10, 1945, if it, instead of power politics, could have been the Yalta inspiration, we and the world might have avoided many of our subsequent tragic errors and anxieties. * * *

It was the short range, the immediate problem in Germany which disclosed the true depth of cleavage between the great powers upon this subject. Here the differences were not only acute; they were often acrimonious. The basis of trouble is the fact that the Potsdam Agreement ordered

Germany to be handled, during the occupation, as an economic unit, but it also divided Germany into four zones of military occupation. * * * The result is that Germany is being administered in four air-tight compartments. * * * Worse, the zones are separated by intense suspicions. * * *

Everybody wanted an investigation. Nobody could agree as to what kind of an investigation. * * * The upshot was that there will be no investigation.

I do not mean, Mr. President, to overemphasize these disagreements. I am simply reporting frankly upon the perplexities of one series of episodes to indicate that not even the Senate, wrestling with OPA, treads a more troublesome path than does an international council on the trail of international consent. I am simply suggesting to those who may be impatient with diplomatic delays and futilities that it is much easier to be critical than to be correct. * * *

JUL 18 1946

No Progress Toward Unity

So far as this meeting of the Paris Ministers is concerned, no progress was made [toward economic unity of Germany and reciprocity between the four zones] unless it is voluntary evolution in the direction of voluntary reciprocity. But by no stretch of the imagination can the blame, present or future, be laid at our door. We have pointed the way to a practical and immediate answer. Without an answer, the German problem may approach catastrophe this winter. There is nothing in the Potsdam Agreement, or any other agreement, which requires us to accept catastrophes by default. Nobody has the moral right to veto peace.

Mr. President, I regret to say that the situation regarding an Austrian treaty is no more stimulating at the moment. Austria, like Germany, is in the cockpit of Europe, where the most important and most dangerous peace factors are to be resolved. The Government of the United States has been demanding a peace treaty with Austria for many weary months. * * * Secretary Byrnes asked the Paris conference to initiate this desperately important undertaking. He presented a tentative draft and asked that it be referred to the Ministers' deputies for study and recommendation. France and Britain agreed. The Soviets declined.

Mr. President, those who hear me will understand that my report is confined to the nations and the treaties immediately involved in the Paris conference. This does not mean that there are not other irksome problems. There are plenty of them. One of the most glaring, in my view, was the failure of Poland to carry out the democratic pledges which were made in the Yalta and the Potsdam Agreements.

Personal Attacks Recalled

I have made vigorous and repeated protests on this score in respect to the situation and I shall continue to do so, despite the bitter personal attacks upon me which have emanated not only from official Warsaw but from official Moscow and from the integrated Communist press all around the world. I have heard infinitely much in all these international conferences from other governments about the sanctity of the Yalta and Moscow and Potsdam Agreements. Suffice it to say upon this score that it is long past time for those who were responsible for these agreements to make them effective in behalf of a truly free Poland.

I make this comment in connection with this discussion only because the Poles were brought into the Paris debates by Mr. Molotov in the consideration of displaced persons [in Austria].

The final major disagreement of the Council came when Secretary Byrnes unsuccessfully sought a treaty guarantee from Yugoslavia that Italians left in ceded territory should be protected in their "human rights and fundamental freedom." * * * Mr. Molotov replied that Yugoslavia is not an enemy state; that it has its own constitution and laws and requires no external advice in respect to domestic matters. Mr. Byrnes gave notice that the United States will seek these protections at the peace conference a few days hence.

The need for them will not be lessened in enlightened world opinion by the bitter tragedy of the current order for the legalistic assassination of General Mikhailovitch.

Prospect "No Darker" Now

Now Mr. President, let me briefly sum up. The major powers have agreed upon five treaties to end the war with Italy, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria and Finland. * * * The major powers have not agreed upon any phase of the two other treaties to end the war with Germany and Austria. Some of the implications in this failure to even start the treaty process are unpleasant to contemplate. But the prospect is no darker than it was, upon past occasions, with the other five. I prefer to believe that if we could agree upon the five, we should be able to agree upon the two. But it would be self-delusion to refuse to face realities.

Someone said at Paris that if this recent Council had been confined to America, France and Britain, it would have achieved total agreement, including preliminary plans for the German and Austrian treaties, in ten days. This is simply another way of saying that Eastern communism and Western democracy are the forces which confront each other in planning for a new and better world. They differ in ideas, ideals and ideologies. For example, they certainly could not agree upon a definition of "democracy," although this is the objective to which both profess to subscribe.

The great trouble is mutual distrust and suspicion which the "iron curtain" between us, and which the insatiable Soviet appetite for proselyting and propaganda do not help dispel. Yet these things must be dispelled—not in pretense, but in fact—if we are to get on with the vital business of peace on earth. Particularly there must be dependably dispelled any attempt to organize the world against the Soviets; on the other hand, that the Soviets are attempting to organize the world against our Western civilization. War between us would be an unthinkable calamity, which I am certain they, as well as we, abhor. But good-will and good faith between us will continue to be difficult until we reorganize our mutual attitudes.

Some Suggestions for Soviet

It is in this spirit that I would suggest just a few simple truths to Moscow.

First, you should understand, with complete conviction, that we deeply respect the great Russian people and their inalienable right to rule themselves to suit themselves, precisely as we insist this right for ourselves and others.

Second, you should understand, with complete conviction, that we are just as determined as you are that military aggression—from any source and no matter what its guise shall never curse the earth again; and we are enlisted in this cause for keeps. And you should understand there is no thought of conquest in our souls.

Third, you should understand, with complete conviction, that we are prepared for enlightened, progressive cooperation with every land which invites and deserves our mutual good-will.

Fourth, you should also understand, with equally complete conviction, that we can not be driven, coerced, or pressured into positions which we decline voluntarily to assume; and that we will not "bargain" in human rights and fundamental liberties anywhere on earth.

Mr. President, in my view, peace hangs chiefly upon three factors which are inextricably interwoven.

(1) The dependable and effective operation of the United Nations in behalf of justice courageously sustained by collective security.

(2) The successful outlawry of atomic bombs and kindred instruments of sudden, overwhelming mass destruction, under a tight system of total discipline which makes bad faith impossible.

(3) The development of dependable and warranted friendship between big and little nations; and particularly between the great Union of Soviet Socialistic Republics and the great United States of America.

U.S. Takes Risk Of Open Split With Russ

JUL 18 1946

Washington, July 16 (AP)—The United States risked an open split with Russia today in an attempt to force economic unification of Germany.

Secretary of State Byrnes declared last night that orders giving Russia a choice between co-operation or "economic paralysis" in Germany will go forward "this week" to Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, American military commander at Frankfurt.

The orders will be to co-operate with any or all of the other occupying powers—Britain, France and Russia—on finance, transportation, communication, trade and industry.

Radio Report

In a radio report to the American people on successes and failures of the four-power Council of Foreign Ministers at Paris, Byrnes asserted:

"We will either secure economic co-operation between the zones or place the responsibility for the violation of the Potsdam Agreement."

President Truman listened in and telephoned congratulations to the Secretary immediately after the broadcast.

Russia declined at the Paris meeting to go along either on economic measures, guarantees for keeping Germany disarmed for a quarter of a century, or the writing of a peace treaty for Austria.

On those points, Byrnes observed, the conference "made no progress at all." He pinned the blame squarely on Russia."

"Suspicions" Aroused

"I do not believe," he declared, "that the Soviets realize the doubts and suspicions which they have raised in the minds of those in other countries who want to be their friends by the aloofness, coolness and hostility with which they have received America's offer to guarantee jointly the continued disarmament of Germany."

On the success side of the ledger Byrnes listed the calling of a peace conference for July 29 to consider treaties, drafted in tentative form at the Paris council, for Italy and the former Axis satellites.

Prospects are bright, he said, for treaties that will let the people of five occupied states "live and breathe as free people." He added:

"We are on the road back to peace."

"A Great Struggle"

But the four powers had a "great struggle and tremendous difficulties" in harmonizing their views as much as they did on peace treaties, the Secretary said. And he presented a grim picture of the tugging and hauling that went on over Germany and Austria.

Leading up to his disclosure of the orders being drafted for McNarney, Byrnes said it was "no secret" that four-power control of Germany on a zone basis is "not working well."

Under the Potsdam pact, he said, Germany was to be administered as an economic unit. Instead, he added, she is being run in "four closed compartments" and the country is threatened with "inflation and economic paralysis."

The Secretary said he was ready to believe it was as difficult for the Russians to understand us as it is for us to understand them.

Obstructionist Attitude

"But I sometimes think our Soviet friends fear we would think them weak and soft," he went on, "if they agreed without a struggle on anything we wanted, even though they wanted it too.

"Constant struggle, however, is not always helpful in a world longing for peace."

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said he planned to speak for about an hour and a half in the Senate to give his colleagues a "frank appraisal" of Russia's part in the Big Four deliberations.

Chairman Connally (D., Texas) of the Foreign Relations Committee will report to the Senate tomorrow. Both accompanied Byrnes to Paris as advisers.

HOUSE TO DEBATE ATOMIC CONTROLS, VOTE ON THURSDAY

JUL 18 1946

JUL 18 1946

WASHINGTON, July 16. — (AP) The House voted 162 to 35 today to take up a bill for domestic atomic energy controls over the objections of some members who declared it would give away secrets.

Final action on the measure is not expected until Thursday.

Rep. Thomas (R.,NJ), a member of the Committee on unAmerican Activities, declared that Communists and Communist front organizations [illegible] for this bill" and that its passage would be the quickest way possible to give the atomic secrets away." He said that Andrei Gromyko, Russian representative on the United Nations Security council, wants Congress to pass a bill "that will pass on to the other nations of the world all the secrets that we have."

Rep. Elston (R-Ohio) assailed the measure as "the most dangerous bill ever submitted to Congress."

Chairman Sabath (D-Ill) of the Rules committee and Rep. Thomason of Texas, second-ranking Democrat on the Military committee, vigorously denied that Communists are pushing the bill. Thomason noted that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower favors it.

Sabath assailed a report by Ernie Adamson, chief investigator for the Committee on UnAmerican Activities. Adamson reported that security officers at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic reservation fear for the safety of the United States and said scientists at Oak Ridge are in communication with foreigners.

Referring to Adamson as "the great expert," Sabath said Col. David E. Shaw, Manhattan district security officer, authorized him to inform the House that Shaw does not consider the security of the district "in jeopardy" because of the activities of Oak Ridge scientists.

The bill before the House, as approved by its Military committee, would establish a five-man control commission to include at least one and possibly two military representatives. The Senate has passed a similar measure by Senator McMahon (D-Conn) stipulating that all five commissioners must be civilians.

President Truman and the heads of the armed forces have endorsed the McMahon bill. Administration leaders in the House indicated they will try to substitute it for the Military committee's version.

JUL 18 1946

Atom-Control Dispute Goes To House Floor

Washingotn, July 16 (AP)—With civilian versus military control the main issue, the congressional fight over atomic energy legislation moved to the House floor today.

A group of Military Committee members led by Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N.J.) indicated they would try to block consideration of a Senate bill providing for all-civilian control. Should they succeed—and the odds appeared against them—the bill would die without a direct House vote.

Thomas and Representative Elston (R., Ohio), who were among nine committee Republicans signing a minority report against the measure, have expressed the opinion that now is not the time to enact atomic-energy legislation.

Unsettled World Conditions

"The atom bomb should be left in the hands of the military until world conditions are more settled," Elston said. "We have reason to believe the secret is now safe with the Army, but we may lose it if a civilian commission is set up to handle it."

The crux of the controversy is whether the armed services shall have an active voice in the control of domestic development of atomic energy. As passed by the Senate, the legislation made no provision for military representation on the five-member control commission. Neither did it leave the way open for the Army to make atom bombs.

House Recommendations

The House Military Committee has recommended that at least one of the commission members be a military representative, and that the commission, upon direction of the President, should give the armed services a free hand in the production of atomic weapons.

President Truman has indorsed the Senate bill, as did army and navy spokesmen, although Thomas told the Rules Committee the Army was acting on orders from the White House and had no choice.

'No Defense', So World Bomb Control Is Urged

JUL 17 1946

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Declaring there is "no foreseeable defense in science against the atomic bomb," Chairman W. A. Higinbotham of the Federation of American Scientists today called for an international development and control authority.

"America must quit kidding itself about defenses," he said. "It must choose between a world cooperative security or drastic efforts to minimize the consequences of an atomic war."

Predicts Others Having It

Higinbotham, in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Institute on World Control of Atomic Energy, said that in four more years other nations will be able to produce atomic bombs, and added:

"There is no foreseeable defense to stop atomic bombs and certain other weapons of mass destruction—weapons which in future wars could in a single night do as much damage to Europe's capitals as was done in six years of the last war.

"As a scientist, I know . . . that the bomb is powerful enough and cheap enough to destroy the cities of the world. . . . To me there seem to be only two courses offering even partial hopes of security for America in the atomic age:

1. We shall ardently seek and secure a system of world co-operation under law, or

2. We must retreat as a nation into a po'icy of defense and decentralization. . . .

No Military Security

"The best professional soldiers now admit that adequate armed forces and military preparations, however well equipped and lavishly financed, cannot provide security for such a large and powerful nation as the United States. . . .

"So if our international course continues along the path of an atomic-arms race, we shall see a war of nerves such as history does not record. Unless we succeed in establishnig world control, government officials must plan defense and decentralization measures beyond description. . . ."

HOW TO MEET ATOM DANGER

JUL 15 1946

McMahon Says Attack First or Have World Control.

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—Chairman McMahon (D.-Conn.) of the Senate Atomic Committee said today there are two ways to gain security against surprise atomic attack—attack first or establish international atomic control.

No responsible American official advocates an atomic attack by us on others, McMahon told the Institute of World Control of Atomic Energy, adding: "The only other way I know of to protect ourselves against atomic warfare is through some form of effective international control."

He advocated "a continuous worldwide inspection system by an international body" as a means of control and declared that is the substance of the American proposal to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

The Connecticut Senator recalled that today is the anniversary of the first detonation a year ago of an atomic bomb in New Mexico. "This first anniversary can scarcely be called a happy one," he said. "Where the fires of war brought fusion among peoples, atomic fire has so far brought only fission and confusion."

Scientist Adds Warning.

W. A. Higinbotham, chairman of the Federation of American Scientists, saying there is "no foreseeable defense in science against the atomic bomb," also called for an international development and control authority.

"America must quit kidding itself about defenses," he said. "It must choose between a world cooperative security or drastic efforts to minimize the consequences of an atomic war.

"There is no foreseeable defense to stop atomic bombs and certain other weapons of mass destruction—weapons which in future wars could in a single night do as much damage to Europe's capitals as was done in six years of the last war.

"As a scientist, I know that the bomb is powerful enough and cheap enough to destroy the cities of the world. Our security must be found outside the field of invention and gadgets. To me there seem to be only two courses offering even partial hopes of security for America in the atomic age:

"1. We shall ardently seek and secure a system of world co-operation under law, or

"2. We must retreat as a nation into a policy of defense and decentralization.

EIGHT BIG CARRIERS GET UNIT AWARDS FOR WAR VICTORIES

JUL 18 1946

WASHINGTON, July 16.— (AP) Eight gallant "flat tops" received from President Truman the homage of a nation grateful for their many heroic victories over the Japanese in the Pacific.

The men who led them saluted smartly as President Truman in a ceremony today on the White House grounds paid tribute to the carriers and the sailors who manned them.

NIGHT

One by one, as President Truman called up the officers of the Belleau Wood, Bunker Hill, Cabot, Essex, Hornet, Lexington, San Jacinto and Yorktown.

The chief executive then presented Presidential Unit Citations for each of the ships, handing them to Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, war time commander of Task Force 58.

The admiral, receiving a Presidential handshake on each occa- to the officers of each ship. to the officers of eac hship.

The citations read by the President told how each of the carriers "fiercely c/untered the enemy's aerial attacks and destroyed his planes," and "inflicted terrific losses on the Japanese in fleet and merchant marine units sunk or damaged."

"When you read those records, you read the history of the war in the Pacific," Mr. Truman said in a brief extemporaneous address.

"The carrier now has become the eyes of the fleet—its guardian," Mr. Truman asrted. "It is hard to appreciate fully just what these carriers meant to the winning of the war in the Pacific and the winning of the war in the Atlantic. I can't say too much of the men who actually did the work."

The President said the ceremony was held to show "what the country thinks about the contribuions which these men made to the victory we have just won."

In the audience was the widow of Vice Admiral John S. McCain, who commanded the companion Task Force 38. The ships won their awards in battle while serving in the two task forces.

In addition to the 22 officers who represented the eight ships for the occasion, over 100 other officers and enlisted men who served aboard them were White House guests for the ceremony.

White House Ceremony Pays Homage to 8 Fighting Flattops and Their Crews.

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—President Truman today bestowed a nation's grateful tribute on eight aircraft carriers and the men who rode them to victory.

DAY

In a colorful ceremony on the sun-bathed south grounds of the White House, the Chief Executive presented Presidential Unit Citations to Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, wartime commander of Task Force 58, who accepted them on behalf of each of the veterans.

Referring to the carriers as the "eyes of the fleet," Mr. Truman said that their record was remarkable and that an account of their exploits is a history of the war in the Pacific.

Mrs. John S. McCain attended the ceremony in place of her husband, the late Vice Admiral who commanded Task Force 38. At the conclusion, Mr. Truman shook hands with scores in the crowd, including the officers who served on each of the ships—The Belleau Wood, Bunker Hill, Cabot, Essex, Hornet, Lexington, San Jacinto and Yorktown.

"For extraordinary heroism in action against enemy Japanese forces in the air, ashore and afloat" read each of the eight citations.

Differ Only in Detail.

They differed only as to detail. For the Belleau Wood, it was for heroism in the Pacific area from September 18, 1943 to August 15, 1945; for the Cabot, from January 29, 1944, to April 8, 1945; for the Essex, August 31, 1943, to August 15, 1945; for the Hornet, March 29, 1944, to June 10, 1945. So on, down the line, the Bunker Hill, the Lexington, the San Jacinto, the Yorktown.

"Daring and dependable in combat," the citations said, they "fiercely countered the enemy's aerial attacks and destroyed his planes; and they inflicted terrific losses on the Japanese fleet and merchant marine units sunk or damaged." They "rendered loyal service in achieving the ultimate defeat of the Japanese Empire."

These officers who commanded or served aboard the ships in wartime, plus over a hundred other lesser officers and enlisted men, were invited to the ceremony.

For the Belleau Wood: Rear Admirals John Perry, Alfred M. Price and William G. Tomlinson; the Bunker Hill, Rear Admirals John J. Ballentine and Marshall R. Greer, Commodore George A. Seitz and Capt. Thomas P. Jeter; the Cabot, Rear Admiral Malcolm F. Schoeffel and Commodores Stanley J. Michael and Walton W. Smith; the Essex, Capt. Roscoe L. Bowman and Carlos W. PROBERS TO GIVE REPORT MONDAY ON PEARL HARBOR

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—A majority of the Pearl Harbor committee was reported today to have decided that commanders on the spot and military officials in Washington were to blame for failure to anticipate the Japanese attack.

The commanders, Maj. Gen. Walter Short and Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, did not receive from Washington specific information they should have been given, the committee was reported to have found.

Eight Sign Report

Eight of the ten senators and representatives conducting the inquiry were said to have signed the report finding that President Roosevelt and Cordell Hull were free of any direct responsibility for the Japanese blast at the Hawaiian base.

In the 112,000-word document to be made public next week, the committee was said to have expressed belief that the late President and the former Secretary of State had taken reasonable steps to inform the Pearl Harbor commanders of war danger in the Pacific.

The Senate and House agreed during the day to extend the deadline for the report to next Monday. Today was the previous deadline.

While official secrecy covered the committee's report, members who asked not to be named discussed it with newsmen. It was understood to include 25 recommendations for changes in Army and Navy procedure as a result of the evidence turned up by the group.

Writes Minority Report

The two Republican senators, Brewster of Maine and Ferguson of Michigan, did not sign with the other three senators and five House members. Ferguson already has written a minority report.

In this document, Ferguson is expected to go into diplomatic negotiations preceding war and to emphasize a contention that this country had a Pacific defense arrangement with Britain, Holland and Canada long before Pearl Harbor.

Two other Republicans, Reps. Keefe of Wisconsin and Gearhart of California, were said to have signed the majority report. One Democratic member explained that the two did not agree with some details of the findings but were agreeable to overall decision and recommendations.

Both Short and Kimmel had contended before the committee that they had not been sufficiently informed of the danger of attack. Committee members observed that both Gen. George C. Marshall and Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow told the inquiry that if there was any responsibility for not having warned Short more specifically, it was theirs.

Senate Modifies Censor Ban in Voting Relief

JUL 18 1946

Sends U. N. R. R. A. Grant Back to the House With Free-Press Proviso Eased

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—The Senate today passed a $2,700,000,000 appropriations bill containing a modified ban against censorship of American news reports of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration activities in foreign countries.

It carries $465,000,000 for the U. N. R. R. A., but provides that no funds may be used in countries which refuse to admit a "reasonable number" of American correspondents and to permit their U. N. R. R. A. dispatches to go through without deletions.

NIGHT

The measure now returns to the House, which passed the appropriation bill with a stronger free-press amendment. The House provided in effect that none of the funds could be used in countries where censorship prevails.

State Department officials opposed the House provision on the ground that it would offend Russia and would fail to accomplish its objective. Senator Joseph H. Ball, Republican, of Minnesota, who sponsored the Senate modification, said it was acceptable to the State Department.

The Department of Agriculture said today that grain shipments on the seas will fill this country's famine relief goal of 225,000,000 bushels for the first six months of this year.

It said shipments yesterday brought total exports between July 1, 1945, and July 15, 1946, to 417,000,000 bushels—the largest amount ever shipped in a like period in the country's history.

Shipments beginning today will be credited to a tentative goal of 250,000,000 bushels for the marketing season ending June 30, 1947.

Senate Taking Up UNRRA Fund Bill

JUL 18 1946

Washington, July 16 (AP)—The Senate considered today a proposal to ban UNRRA aid to countries which censor American newsmen's stories on relief operations as it worked to clear its calendar in anticipation of a month-end adjournment of Congress.

The no-censorship provision, a revised version of a proposal already voted by the House, came up in a $2,700,000,000 money bill carrying $465,000,000 for UNRRA and $56,000,000 to tide over the payless OPA.

As approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee, the bill provides that no American funds for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation agency shall go to countries which censor dispatches about UNRRA.

Affects UNRRA News

The committee altered the House version so that the new draft does not challenge the right of such countries as Russia to maintain news censorship, but requires that UNRRA news be cleared without deletions or other changes.

William L. Clayton, Assistant Secretary of State, told the committee that the House version would be sure to make Russia "mad."

When the money bill is out of the way, Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, said he wants to get quick action on several more important bills and go home.

Mentions Three Proposals

Besides the Senate measure to revive price controls, he mentioned three proposals now pending in the House which have received favorable votes. These include domestic atomic control, congressional reorganization and minimum-wage legislation.

He said the Senate ought to act on a House bill to provide terminal pay for GI's, a Federal aid-to-education measure and the tidelands bill on which Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) has been pressing for action.

Won't Block Vote

Barkley opposes this measure, which would give title to ocean-shelf areas to the states, but told McCarran he would not seek to block its consideration.

Senator Mead (D., N.Y.) said he and others are determined to press for action in this session on a bill to outlaw the payment of state poll taxes as a prerequisite in Federal elections. Southerners have a filibuster ready for this one, if it comes up.

Ferguson Report

In his minority report, Ferguson was expected to lay emphasis on a contention he had repeated during the hearings that there was an arrangement between the United States, Great Britain, the Netherlands and Canada for a Pacific defense plan long before the United States entered the war.

Pearl Harbor Probers Absolve F.D.R., Hull

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Eight of the ten Pearl Harbor committee members were reported today to have signed a report absolving President Roosevelt and Cordell Hull of any direct responsibility for the surprise 1941 attack.

Republican Senators Brewster of Maine and Ferguson of Michigan declined to sign it, was learned.

However, GOP party colleagues representing the House on the joint congressional committee—Representatives Keefe of Washington and Gearhart of California—were said to have gone along with the six Democratic members.

The 112,000-word majority report, due to be released formally later this week, reportedly places the blame for American failure to anticipate the attack on both Washington military officials and the commanders at Pearl Harbor. These were Maj. Gen. Walter Short and Admiral Husband E. Kimmel.

The committee was said to have made 25 recommendations for administrative changes in Army and Navy procedure as a result of disclosures in connection with the attack.

Nonpartisan Stand

Members who have been working on the report for several weeks said there was little question in their minds that they had arrived at a nonpartisan analysis of the facts in connection with the surprise attack. As proof of this, Democrats on the committee cited the decision of Keefe and Gearhart to sign the report.

One Democratic member said that while Keefe and Gearhart did not agree with some of the details of the findings they were willing to acquiesce in the overall decisions and recommendations.

On the other hand, Ferguson has already prepared a minority report, which Democratic members said was printed by the official Senate printer before the majority report of the committee had been completed.

Ferguson's minority report was also expected to deal extensively with the diplomatic negotiations which preceded this country's entry into the war.

Although details of the majority report were cloaked in secrecy, members who participated in drafting it said the committee had indicated belief that the late President Roosevelt and former Secretary of State Hull had taken reasonable measures to warn the Pearl Harbor commanders that war was imminent in the Pacific.

So far as Short and Kimmel were concerned, the committee reportedly found that while they had not been fully cognizant of the developing world situation, they were not given as specific information about conditions in the Pacific as they should have received.

GIFTS TO OFFICERS REVEALED IN PROBE OF MUNITIONS FIRM

JUL 18 1946

Witness Says He Saw Cases of Liquor in Combine's Washington Office.

QUESTIONED ON FUNDS

Senators Hear 'Contact Man' Carried Thousand Dollar Bills.

WASHINGTON, July 16 — (AP)

A description of packages addressed to generals and cases of gift liquor in the Washington office of a munitions combine, and of a contact man who habitually carried a roll of $1,000 bills, was given today to the Senate War Investigating committee.

The picture, with some details lacking, came from husky, mellow-voiced Louis Sarelas, a self-styled "sensitive soul" who was manager of the companies' Washington office.

NIGHT

Telephone Call from May

In connection with the monied contact man, Joseph Freeman, Sarelas related an incident that occurred when Chairman May (D.-Ky.) of the House Military committee once telephoned to inquire about Freeman's whereabouts.

"In a facetious moment," Sarelas said, "I replied that he was in New York making money for us. I realized I had overstepped the bounds of propriety. I was stunned at my own term. Congressman May chastised me in no uncertain terms."

Committee members pressed the blushing witness for an explanation as to why he was so disturbed over the remark, and the degree to which May had "chastised" him. The implications of the incident, however, was not made clear.

Embarassed by Statement

Sarelas, saying he was "completely covered with embarassment" and "red all over" because of his reply to May, testified that the congressman retorted at the time: "That isn't what I asked you."

As Chairman Mead (D.-N. Y.) suggested that "chastisement doesn't sound too severe," Sarelas declared that he had not been exposed for long "to the vagaries of life," and added:

"I am a rather sensitive soul and I must ask you not to take advantage of me."

"May I assure you that I won't take advantage of you," replied Mead.

Sarelas, under questioning about the affairs of the office, disclosed that Freeman made a practice of carrying his money around with him in $1,000 bills because he had no bank account.

Sarelas told of returning from a bank where he had cashed a check for Freeman, flourishing some of the "grand" notes before friends, and remarking:

"Don't get me wrong. I have to pay this off."

"Are you sure you didn't say 'pay-off?'" inquired Senator Knowland (R.-Calif.).

"I may be stupid," Sarelas replied, "but not stupid enough to go around saying I had pay-off money."

He explained that he got a "sensation" out of carrying the big money.

"It made me think of a peacetime retreat where I could sing all I wanted," he confided.

Sarelas said he had seen cases of liquor in the Washington office, but testified that he did not know for whom they were intended. He testified, too, that he had seen packages in the office addressed to Army officers identified in the testimony only as Generals Campbell and Hardy and a third whose name he could not recall.

Sarelas related that he had opened one of these packages—he could not remember which one—and discovered a wrist watch in it. He said the other packages were about the same size.

Quizzed On Ties With Garsson

The commitee then dug into his relationship with Murray Garsson, described in an FBI report as a onetime associate of gangster Dutch Schultz. Murray Garsson, now in Cuba, is the brother of Henry Garsson, one of the chief promoters of the munitions combine.

Sarelas said Murray Garsson was frequently in the office, often snatched the telephone from his hands, and by "subtleties of inferences" and a "redundancy of remarks" generally pushed him around.

"Mr. Murray Garsson and myself enjoy in quotes 'a very formal relationship'," said Sarelas.

He volunteered, as committee members inquired into telephone calls, that "Mr. Murray Garsson could answer all six telephones in the office at the same time."

On the subject of his dealings with Murray Garsson, Sarelas mentioned Albert Jacobson, who resigned "under pressure" from the District of Columbia bar in 1938, got a job in the War department as a clerk typist, rose to a $9,975-a-year contract approving post in the Chemical Warfare service's legal division, and gained a letter from May recommending his reinstatement to the bar.

Sarelas said that once he complained to Garsson that he was not being adequately paid. He testified that Garsson then held what purported to be a telephone conversation with Jacobson and offered Jacobson the office manager's job at $20,000 a year.

He said he could not tell whether Jacobson actually was on the other end of the line because he could not see whether Garsson had his finger on the telephone hook.

Asked for an explanation, Sarelas remarked he did not know whether "it was a manifestation of sadism" on the part of Garsson.

Increased His Salary

Sarelas said that Freeman had been "reluctant to recommend me for a higher wage because I became his brother-in-law," but that Henry Garsson ultimately "recognized what I was doing" and boosted his pay from $3,900 to about $11,000 a year some six or eight months after he started work.

The committee recalled Jacobson to the stand and he denied that Murray Garsson had ever held a telephone conversation in which he offered him $20,000 a year. He said, however, that Garsson did call at his office in the War department on one occasion and offer him a job "way up in the thousands—I think $50,000 a year."

"He did not tempt me in the least," the witness added. "I'm not money-mad, and I was perfectly contened."

Jacobson testified that his salary was less than $9,000 a year at the time, but he said Garsson "always talked ridiculous figures" and "I didn't pay any attention to anything he said."

Jacobson amended earlier testimony that he could not recall having visited the Washington office of Erie Basin and Batavia, Metal Products companies. He read into the record a letter he had previously sent Mead recalling that he had visited the office to pick up souvenir shells distributed by Erie.

The shells were 4.2 chemical mortar "rejects" mounted on a wooden frame, and Jacobson declared that Erie had given them as souvenirs to "practically every top man in the War department," including Secretary of War Patterson.

Jacobson told the committee that he was an "honest government employe who gave loyal service to the war effort" but who had been "crucified by the publicity in the papers and publicly humiliated."

Accounted Questioned

The committee earlier questioned Harry Glick, $30,000 a year accountant and treasurer of the concerns, about the combine's relations with Cumberland Lumber company, of which May was listed as Kentucky agent. Previous testimony was that the firms had paid the company for lumber which never was delivered.

Glick said Henry Garsson was responsible for this transaction and that "we wanted no part of it and no responsibility in it."

The committee members pressed Glick as to why advances to Garsson of more than $33,000 were carried on the books for two and a [illegible] years for lumber from Cumberland which remained undelivered.

Glick explained that "we relied on assurances" from Garsson, as an official of the Batavia Basin Metal Products company to whom the lumber was to be delivered, that it was available. He said that he had known that Garsson was "interested" in Cumberland.

Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.) produced previously-introduced checks endorsed for Cumberland "by A. J. May" from Erie Basin Metal Products, an associate of Batavia, and inquired:

"That would indicate that Mr. May got the money personally?"

May Got Money

"It would indicate that," Glick responded.

May denied in a House speech that he profited from his relations with Cumberland or Garsson.

Under sharp questioning by committee members, Glick acknowledged that Garsson had begun repayment on the advances paid on lumber only after committee investigators began inquiring into the transaction in April of this year.

Mead interrupted Glick's testimony to assert that he and other officials of the company should have volunteered their knowledge about Cumberland at the start of the inquiry.

"We didn't know what the investigators wanted," retorted Glick.

"I question that," said Mead.

Knowland read into the record a memorandum to Glick from Lee Stone, an attorney for some of the concerns in the combine, protesting that one government investigator was getting "too nosey."

Glick conceded he had received the memo, and told the committee that there had "been an understanding" at the outset of the inquiry that all questions concerning records should be channeled through him.

"You wanted to have all the information screened so you could review the information," declared Ferguson.

Garsson Accepted As 'Super-Salesman

JUL 18 1946

DAY

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Munitions maker Allen B. Gellman told the Senate War Investigating Committee today that he had accepted Henry Garsson, his wartime associate, as a "super-salesman" because "the proof of the pudding was in the eating of it."

Gellman testified that Garsson had backed up his claim of ability to obtain Government munitions orders by (1) getting a big advance contract, and (2) by showing him a letter from the Chemical Warfare Service expressing hope that he (Garsson) would "share" in future business.

Witness Admits "Mistake"

He denied, however, that Garsson had ever told him that he had "special influence" in Washington. Testimony has been introduced to show that Garsson obtained help from Representative Andrew J. May (D., Ky.) on problems of an Illinois munitions combine.

Gellman said that he had made a "mistake" by not having Garsson more thoroughly investigated before they decided to go into the munitions business together.

Had Half Million Dollars

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) pressed Gellman closely on his wartime earnings and the net worth of his holdings and those of Joseph T. Weiss. He told the committee that they were worth a half million dollars before the war began.

Gellman, however, said he had "no idea" of their value now, contending that such a determination could be made only after the Government completes renegotiation to recoup excessive profits.

He declared that the Government would get back "every cent it has coming from interests in which he and J. T. Weiss are associated.

Refers To Brooklyn Factory

Gellman testified he had believed Garsson was the head of a New York corporation at the time of their initial association, with a factory in Brooklyn.

Testimony has been introduced previously to show that army officers, at Garsson's invitation, inspected a plant there in late 1941, in which Garsson had no interest, as a preliminary to giving him his first war order.

Misled By "Appearances"

Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) said that the Army officers "might just as well have been taken out to see Brooklyn Bridge and have been told that they could buy it."

The witness testified yesterday that "appearances" misled him into association with Henry and Murray Garsson, brothers.

Gellman, describing himself as "deeply humiliated" by earlier testimony dealing with the background of the two brothers, said he "cut loose" from the Garssons so he could "fight my own battle."

Waiving all rights to refuse to answer any questions, Gellman began his testimony by saying he spoke for the "Gellman-Weiss" interests in denying any wrongdoing by Erie Basin Metal Products Company, Batavia Metal Products Company or other concerns in the mid-Western war-contract combine. He defined the Gellman-Weiss interests as including himself and his wife; Joseph Weiss, who also was scheduled to testify today and Weiss's wife and mother.

"Impressed" By Garsson

Gellman added he had been "impressed" with the belief that Murray Garsson was a former Assistant Secretary of Labor. "I didn't dream," he said, "that a man could be appointed to high office with the kind of background that was brought out."

FBI reports read into the committee's record have identified Henry Garsson as a dismissed internal revenue agent and Murray Garsson as a one-time associate of Dutch Schultz and Owney Madden.

Senate OPA Bill Rejected by House By Vote of 211 to 64

JUL 18 1946

CONFERENCE GETS ORDERS TO WRITE COMPROMISE BILL

JUL 18 1946

Truman May Accept Senate Version if Food Curbs Are Restored.

REPUBLICANS SPLIT

Minority Bloc Favored Risking Second Presidential Veto.

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—Reports circulated on Capitol hill late today that President Truman has advised he will sign the new Senate-approved OPA bill if Congress will remove its bans on price controls for meat, eggs, butter, milk and other living cost items.

This report went around, although not immediately confirmed by Democratic leaders, shortly after the House, by a 211 to 64 vote, declined to accept the Senate's bill and directed that a Senate-House committee write a compromise measure.

Committee Meets Briefly

The conference committee met briefly on OPA shortly after the House acted, but put the controversy aside until tomorrow.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) told newsmen he hopes the committee will produce an OPA compromise tomorrow and that it will speed through the House and Senate.

The House vote came after Democratic Leader McCormick (Mass) told his colleagues the people "will remember next November" what Congress does with OPA. He voiced confidence the conference committee will write a one-year OPA restoration bill that the House, Senate and the President will approve.

The Administration drive for an opportunity to rewrite the Senate bill, described by President Truman as "terrible," won in the House as Republican ranks split on a proposal to approve the Senate measure "as is" and toss it to the President, notwithstanding veto prospects.

When the showdown came, no formal motion was made to plump the Senate bill on the President's desk.

Backed by G.O.P.

A key Republican, Rep. W. Scott (Mich) of the Banking committee, joined Administration leaders in urging that the Senate version be rewritten in a committee representing the two chambers. He told the House the Senate bill "at present is in worse condition than we have ever seen the history of OPA legislation."

Today's brief House debate was studded with new warnings from OPA proponents against inflation. Both sides quoted conflicting figures on how high the cost of living has jumped since OPA died June 30.

Rep. Sabath (D-Ill) said prices are up on many food items 30 per cent, while Rep. Jenkins (R-Ohio) said he had figures indicating it does not cost as much now to fill a market basket as it did two weeks ago.

Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the Banking committee declared if all OPA restraints against inflation are removed "we will imperil the very future of this nation and the happiness of her people."

Ban on 'Propaganda'

The Senate meanwhile approved a ban on "propaganda" by OPA officials along with a $56,650,000 fund to operate the agency if it is revived.

Senator Murdock (D-Utah) protested the propaganda "rider" but Senators McKellar (D-Tenn), Overton (D-La) and Ball (R-Minn) defended it.

Ball said the provision was inserted because OPA officials had "put the heat on Congress" and improperly used public funds for this purpose.

The provision would bar the use of any funds to "pay the salary of any person engaged in preparing or disseminating general propaganda in support of price control or any price control program."

Murdock protested this was "legislation in an appropriation bill" in violation of rules.

OPA Restoration Issue Moves To House

JUL 18 1946

DAY

Washington, July 16 (AP)—The posthumous battle over OPA moved into the House today with signs pointing to a decision to let a conference committee try for a compromise that both Congress and the President will okay.

Administration leaders drove hard for such a procedure, hopeful of getting a stronger price-control bill than the Senate measure, which President Truman has said "couldn't be any worse."

That bill would bar future ceilings on meat, dairy products, gasoline and several other items.

Specifically, the House had a choice between accepting the Senate draft as is and sending it to the White House for a possible veto, or routing it to a joint committee of House and Senate members.

Indications of an Administration victory on the second course appeared as Republican ranks split over the first. The Republican steering committee held a meeting yesterday, but failed to agree on a concerted line of action.

Some members of the GOP group predicted the conference action would prevail and that the chamber would not even instruct its conferees, thus leaving them with a free hand in dealing with the senators.

No Predictions

No one would guess at the shape any compromise might take. But it was deemed certain the Administration would fight to delete the Senate-approved decontrols on meat, poultry, dairy products, grain, cottonseed and soybeans.

Representative Voorhis (D., Cal.) introduced a bill intended to facilitate buyers' strikes against goods jumping high above OPA ceilings. The measure would instruct the Bureau of Labor Statistics to prepare weekly reports on price changes as a guide for consumers.

BLS currently issues price statistics, but they are computed by averaging costs of numerous commodities. The bureau's basic-commodity index, which it has been making public daily since OPA's death July 1, showed a 1.1 per cent rise yesterday. That brought the increase from the first of the month to 24.3 per cent.

OPA Employes Not Sure Of Full Pay

JUL 18 1946

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Nearly 50 per cent of OPA's 34,000 employés face the prospect of half-pay this week. And there's a possibility the others may get none when next week's pay day rolls around.

This may reveal whether the agency can hold its staff together while legislation to revive price controls is pending.

Thus far Congress has taken no final action on OPA's appropriation for the fiscal year which began July 1. It may by the end of the week, but that will not avert delays in pay checks.

15,000 Due This Week

Scheduled to receive checks tomorrow and the remainder of this week are about 15,000 OPA field workers. They are assured of at least half of what they have coming because part of the pay period covers the last week of June.

But there is virtually no chance at all, according to OPA budget officials, that they can be paid on time for the first week of July.

"There is scarcely a possibility that Congress will act before the end of the week," said one official. "That means a delay of at least a few days on the second batch of checks."

Paid In Full For June

A week from tomorrow, July 24, is the regular pay day for all other OPA employes—about 3,400 in Washington and another 15,000 in the field. These already have been paid in full for work in June.

OPA figures that unless the appropriation bill is through Congress by Friday, it will be impossible to pay these 18,400 workers on time. That means they would get no pay at all when it is due.

There is a chance, however, that the Friday deadline will be met.

OPA officials acknowledge that uncertainty over pay poses a big test on whether workers stay on the job, as requested by President Truman.

Thus far, according to the agency, virtually all employés have stuck it out.

OPA isn't the only agency facing pay difficulties.

Postal Employes' Dilemma

Jesse M. Donaldson, first assistant postmaster general, said last night that about 450,000 postal workers will go without their checks due this week until Congress ends the silver-price disagreement that is snagging the $1,600,000,000 Treasury-Post Office appropriation bill.

The next Treasury Department pay roll does not fall due until July 24.

U.A.W. SPONSORS BUYING 'STRIKE'

JUL 18 1946

The C.I.O. United Auto Workers, sponsoring a national "people's rally" against the upswing in living costs, called Tuesday night for a week-long meat buying "strike" by the American public.

Before a cheering, shirt-sleeved Detroit crowd, President Walter P. Reuther of the big union urged a meat buying strike as a means to "terrorize profiteers" and to restore "reasonable prices." The proposed strike would start Wednesday.

The auto union, marshalling its forces in a protest against the expiration of OPA, also had organized demonstrations in other cities in which it invited the participation of all organized labor and civic and veterans groups.

Reuther's proposal for the meat strike was made first at Flint, Mich., where he addressed another rally before flying to Detroit.

Leaders of the U.A.W.-C.I.O. had called on workers to leave their jobs if necessary to attend rallies. In Detroit production was upset in at least one major auto company—Chrysler—when an estimated 20,000 to 30,000 men left their jobs.

On the other hand General Motors spokesmen said "as far as we know none of our workers walked out." Ford reported its 70,000-man force at the Rouge plant virtually intact although 2,500 quit an hour early at the Lincoln factory, halting its production.

Re-enact Boston Tea Party

BOSTON, July 16 (AP).—Eight painted "braves" and two young "squaws" pitched their protests against inflation today into the Boston Harbor waters where, in 1773, tax-angry patriots gave the Boston Tea Party which brewed revolution.

Ten members of the American Veterans' Committee in feathers and war paint climbed aboard the fishing smack Evelina Goulart at the fish pier and set at her prow their sign: "1773, no taxation without representation; 1946, save the nation from inflation."

As the two girls struck figurehead poses on the bowsprit, the eight veterans of the tribe threw overboard cartons carrying large-print legends which read: "Pappy O'Daniel flour $500 a barrel"—"Wherry bread 50 cents one loaf"—"Taft apples $1 one apple."

2,800 Sign O. P. A. Petition

PHILADELPHIA, July 16 (AP).—Petitions calling on Congress to continue the O. P. A. were circulated in midtown Philadelphia today by volunteers who identified themselves as members of the C. I. O. United Office and Professional Workers of America.

At the same time, the Food Distributors Association, representing 24,000 retail food stores in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, said in a full page newspaper advertisement that it "cannot absorb" all of the recent increases in wholesale prices.

Nicholas Chase, regional director of the Office Work's Union, said more 2,800 persons signed the petitions.

Britain Delays Use of Loan Pending Fate of O. P. A.

JUL 18 1946

Food and Machine Tools To Be Among First Purchases

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—A spokesman for the British Embassy said tonight it was "very likely" Britain would hold off spending any of the $3,750,000,000 American loan until Congress decides the fate of price control.

"As the situation stands now," the spokesman said, "one can't be sure the price situation won't change before we get a cable across the Atlantic telling London we've placed orders."

Once the future of price control has been clarified, he said, Britain will begin to use the loan funds gradually.

Food will be a top-priority item, the spokesman said, but machine tool purchases can also be expected in the next three months, along with those of raw materials—tobacco, cotton and petroleum.

The 50 per cent increase in British gasoline rations are a "direct result of the loan," he said. Britain, he explained, had been conserving its gasoline supply to guard against the possibility that Congress would reject the loan.

Senate Votes Extension Of the Sugar Quota Act

JUL 18 1946

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—The Senate agreed today to a one-year extension of the sugar quota act beyond Dec. 31 of this year. The act provides for sugar production and import quotas and for sugar subsidies.

Previously the Senate Finance Committee had recommended a three-year extension, but Walter F. George, Democrat, of Georgia, committee chairman, obtained unanimous consent to modify this to the one-year extension approved by the House.

The legislation still must go back to the House because the Senate struck out a provision that applied to the Philippines. Senator George explained the House inserted this section before the Philippines became a republic on July 4. He said he agreed to the single-year extension at request of the State and Agriculture Departments.

Men 19 to 29 Face Draft Call, Deferments Will Be Tightened

JUL 18 1946

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—President Truman today authorized extension of the draft to men 19 through 29 and Selective Service quickly tightened up on deferments.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, draft director, instructed local boards that occupational deferments must be allowed only "to those few registrants" whom they find to be indispensable and irreplaceable to the national existence."

Farmers and farm workers will continue to get special consideration, however, and fathers are exempt.

The Army's two-month draft holiday will end in September and Hershey said it had asked for 25,000 men that month. The June call was for 50,000.

Mr. Truman approved a Selective Service recommendation that the acceptable draft age be stretched through 29. Since V-J day, the ceiling has been 26 years, although the present law permits a maximum of 44.

Present occupational deferment rules have applied to men deemed "necessary and regularly engaged in an activity in support of the national health, safety and interest."

Hershey told the local boards to "provide for classification, examination and forwarding of induction" of men 19 through 29.

Postponement of induction will be provided only for registrants still in high school. Undergraduate college students no longer will be permitted to finish out a quarter or semester when they are called.

Men in the 26-29 age group previously found unfit for general military service will have their cases reviewed.

Local boards also were directed to consider men discharged from the armed forces who were not on active duty overseas or whose service was less than six months.

A Selective Service official estimated tentatively that the new deferment standards would lift the number of men available to 155,000 by next March 31—about 70,000 more than under the previous rules.

An Army request for an increase of its authorized officer strength in the regular Army from the present 25,000 to 50,000 was approved by the House. A similar measure is pending in the Senate.

VOTES 25,000 MORE OFFICERS IN ARMY

JUL 18 1946

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—The House passed a bill today authorizing increase of the number of commissioned officers in the regular army from 25,000 to 50,000.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, testified at committee hearings on the legislation that approximately half the contemplated increase would be allocated to the Air Forces. The remainder will be split between the Ground and Service Forces.

A bill similar to that passed by the House bears approval of a Senate Military sub-committee. The full committee has not acted on it.

President Truman signed, meanwhile, a $7,263,542,400 appropriation bill financing the War Department's first year of post-war operation. It is approximately one-third as large as the Army's last appropriation. The bill includes funds for continued operation of the atomic bomb project and for military relief and Government in occupied countries.

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—Troops in mountain training in Colorado will test two new Army rations in September, the War Department said today.

The rations are a new combat, or "E ration," and a new type ten-in-one. The "E" consists of six cans, including two meat units, two biscuit, one bread and one fruit unit. An accessory package contains heat tabs for warming the meat.

The new ten-in-one includes five different menus, and substitutes a hot meal for the World War "K ration" noon feeding. The Army said the tests will be made by a battalion of the 38th Infantry combat team at Camp Carson.

War Trophy Bill Signed

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—President Truman signed today legislation providing for distribution of war trophies, including those captured from the enemy, among the states. Distribution will be by the Secretary of War. Each state's share will be determined by the number of its residents who served in the Army. Guns, tanks, airplanes and similar equipment may be given away—after treatment to insure they cannot be used as weapons—to governors of the states. ARMY ORDER SUSPENDS NEGRO ENLISTMENTS

WASHINGTON, July 16. — (AP) The War department suspended enlistment of Negroes in the regular Army today except as specialist. It explained that they had made an "overwhelming response" to the current intensive recruiting campaign.

Some 140,000 Negroes have enlisted since last fall at the rate of approximately one to each five recruits. The Army's announced policy is to limit Negroes to the one-to-ten ratio of the civilian population.

A War department statement said that the quota for Negroes had been "greatly over subscribed and the army found itself unable to continue uncontrolled enlistment."

Enlistments were suspended, not cut off entirely, the War department said. It added that "it is expected that as a result of expiration of enlistments, Negro army strength will be reduced to an extent where enlistments can profitably be resumed."

Still open to Negroes is service as skilled technicians with at least six months prior service in 48 specified skilled specialties.

House Votes Hawaii Land Bill

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—The House passed and sent to the Senate today two bills amending the Hawaiian land laws to meet conditions resulting from the war and the April tidal wave. One bill would permit the territorial government to acquire privately owned land along the Hilo waterfront in exchange for territorial land elsewhere. The waterfront land would be used for construction of a sea wall. A safety zone behind the wall would be developed as a park. The tidal wave destroyed most buildings in the area. The second bill would extend the time for purchasers of territorial land to meet conditions of purchase where they were prevented from doing so earlier because of the war.

Warns War Assets Aides: 'Do Not Accept Favors'

JUL 18 1946

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16—The War Assets Administration today warned its employes not to buy surplus goods for themselves and not to accept "social entertainment" or other favors from prospective purchasers of surpluses.

In a notice to all employes, Lieut. Gen. E. B. Gregory, the WAA's administrator, said:

"Officials and employes in all grades of the WAA are forbidden to accept social entertainment or other special favors from persons with whom they may transact business in any manner which might conceivably place the employe so favored under any personal obligation, however slight."

General Gregory said the notice merely reiterated and emphasized instructions already in effect.

REDIN CASE GIVEN TO SEATTLE JURY

JUL 18 1946

Judge Rebukes Government Attorney's Attempt to Link Russian to Kremlin

SEATTLE, July 16 (AP)—The espionage-conspiracy case against Lieut. Nicolai G. Redin of the Russian Navy went to a Federal court jury here this afternoon after District Judge Lloyd L. Black had sharply rebuked a Government attorney's attempt, in his closing argument, to hitch the alleged offenses to the Kremlin.

The jury, after three weeks of testimony and arguments, received the case at 1:18 P. M. after two hours of instructions from Judge Black, and retired for dinner at 5:30 P. M., without any indication of its progress. It reconvened at 7:15 P. M.

The jurors were absent during the judge's morning reprimand of the Government counsel for attempting to expand the international significance of the case beyond the scope of the evidence presented in court.

Under court orders not to leave the block on which the court building and grounds are situated, Lieutenant Redin whiled away the afternoon hours with his wife, one of his attorneys and a newspaper. He obtained special permission to attend a dinner hour farewell cocktail party given by Russian Consul General Michael S. Vavilov of San Francisco for the Redins and the press at a nearby hotel.

The jury of seven men and five women took with them sixty exhibits, including nine "whispering wire" transcriptions of conversations between Lieutenant Redin and a shipyard engineer, Herbert G. Kennedy, who testified to receiving $250 from Lieutenant Redin for information about the new destroyer tender Yellowstone.

The recording machine, which the jurors took into their room, had three sets of earphones attached. The transcriptions require three hours for a recording, and bailiffs estimated it would take twelve hours for all jurors to hear the complete set, if they so desired.

More than 2,600 pages of testimony and arguments were also available for the jurors' consideration.

Earlier Federal Judge Lloyd L. Black gave two hours of instructions to the jury after severely criticizing one closing Government argument, but the judge denied a defense counsel request that Herbert G. Kennedy, key Government witness, be named as an "accomplice."

The mention of Mr. Kennedy came in exceptions to the judge's instructions taken by Attorneys Tracy E. Griffin and Irvin Goodman. The judge commented, after they had completed, that he was "inclined to think they were without merit."

Mr. Goodman objected to the judge's instructions that the death penalty was not involved and then said the defense also objected to the court's refusing to inform the jury that, in considering evidence, they should have regarded Mr. Kennedy as an "accomplice." Mr. Kennedy's testimony that he sold naval secrets about the U. S. S. Yellowstone, destroyer tender, to Redin for $250 has been important evidence.

U. S. ATTORNEY IS CRITICIZED

JUL 18 1946

Redin Spy Case Judge Makes Caustic Comments.

Seattle, July 16 (A. P.).—Federal Judge Lloyd L. Black said in the jury's absence in the Lieut. Nicolai C. Redin espionage-conspiracy trial today that he was "sorry that the dignity of this trial had been threatened by such extravagant claims" in the Government's closing arguments.

During the first two and a half weeks of the trial, the judge said, evidence was submitted and the counsel had confined themselves to the issues.

The Government charges are based on testimony of Herbert Kennedy, shipyard engineer, that he sold secrets of the United States Yellowstone, a destroyer tender, to Redin for $250.

"It is my opinion that until the opening arguments, the jury was much impressed by the Government's case," Black said. (The opening argument was given by Victor E. Anderson, special assistant to the United States Attorney-General.)

"I will now state that there is not a syllable of evidence in this trial that the Kremlin had instructed Redin or even knew he was in this country. There was not a whisper of evidence that Russia had any information on Redin's activities."

Criticizes U. S. Counsel.

Asserting that Government counsel had overstated importance of the trial, Black continued:

"It is not more important than any other trial. It will not decide whether there is another war. Let us keep our feet on the ground." The judge remarked that defense counsel had "happily" taken advantage of the introduction of such statements.

Black also referred to closing arguments by Defense Attorney Irvin Goodman, and remarked that the Tom Mooney trial in California two decades ago had no connection with this case. Goodman had compared the two.

"I will advise the jury," the judge said, "to base their consideration on the sworn evidence in the case. This jury will merely say whether the defendant is guilty or not guilty."

Black yesterday ruled out the death penalty in the case, which is expected to go to the jury today.

BEEF CATTLE PRICES MAKE NEW RECORD

JUL 18 1946

Hog Quotations At Chicago Sweep To Highest In 27 Years

Chicago, July 16 (AP)—Beef cattle prices set another all-time record today, hogs swept to the highest in 27 years, and sheep were just 10 cents under the highest mark in history made in 1918.

The new cattle price was $25.75, fully 75 cents higher than Monday's top, the highest to date. Seven carloads of steers brought the top price, and best heifers were close behind at $14.75 for their new record.

On hogs the highest actual price was $20.50, paid sparingly, but the $20 practical top which was paid freely climbed a full dollar above Monday's high. The record price is $23.60 run up in 1919, and the lowest on record was $1.65 a hundred pounds paid in 1932.

Spring Lambs Near Record

Spring lambs reached $22, which was 75 cents higher than on Monday, and slaughter ewes were up to $11 from $10.50. The record high price of $22.10 was paid in 1918.

Some other markets showed similar marked price boosts. A top of $20.50 was paid for hogs at Buffalo, St. Louis and Omaha, while $20.35 was paid at Indianapolis. All were 50 cents to $1.25 higher.

Bidders at St. Louis pushed cattle prices to $25.

All Time High At Omaha

Cattle prices hit an all-time high of $25 at the Omaha stockyards.

Three loads of steers sold at that price. A buying stampede also shot heifers to a new top of $23.50.

Receipts continued heavy, with 10,500 cattle, 10,500 hogs and 1,700 sheep.

Twelve principal markets had but 82,500 hogs on sale today, compared with 95,800 yesterday, 93,864 a week ago, and 42,261 a year ago. Salable cattle totaled 65,000 today, 88,600 yesterday, 60,675 a week ago, and 44,765 a year ago.

Egg Turnover Sets Record

Shell egg futures set a record turnover of more than 34,500,000 dozen in Chicago as prices skidded as much as 1.3 cents a dozen, then recovered to finish approximately even with yesterday's new low level.

It was the fourth consecutive sharp decline. October deliveries were fully 8 cents under the quotation when OPA price controls ended, but active short covering and replacement buying reversed the trend at 37.75 cents to lift the price to 38.95 at the close.

The previous record trade was set May 16 when 31,302,000 dozen eggs changed hands.

Record Set At Lancaster

Lancaster, Pa., July 16 (AP)—Five head of Herefords sold at Lancaster Union Stockyard, largest east of Chicago, today for 27 cents a pound—highest ever received there on the open market, stockyard officials reported.

They said records at Lancaster showed the selling price was the highest they had on record on any market since 1865.

The steers, owned and fed by Martin Schaefer, of York county, Pennsylvania, averaged 1,100 pounds each. They were sold to a packing company.

At Lancaster farmers market hybrid roasting ears were being sold at several stalls at $1.80 a dozen.

Sergeant Maphis was the eight thousand two hundred and ninety-ninth man to be separated from the service at Fort Meade during July.

He received his discharge yesterday from Brig. Gen. Charles G. Helmick, commanding general of Fort Meade.

Bride From Egypt Sues Ex-G. I.

LOS ANGELES, July 16 (AP).—A romance which started a year ago with a table tennis game in Alexandria, Egypt, ended in alimony court here today when Mrs. Simone Gazaleh McQueen, twenty-two, won $1 a month from Hugh B. McQueen, former soldier whom she charges deserted her after bringing her here on a troopship last November. Her attorney explained that the purpose of the award is to give the court jurisdiction until she has established the necessary year's residence to sue for a divorce.

Y.M.C.A. LOCATES NEARLY ALL OF ITS WAR DEPOSITORS

JUL 18 1946

NEW YORK (UP)—The Y.M.C.A. is nearing the end of a 16-month search for the 450 soldiers, sailors and marines who left their savings, $42,000 in all, with its branch in Manila before the Japanese invasion of the Philippines.

"We have to locate only 31 of the original 450 men who gave us their money for safekeeping," Charles T. Tidball, accounting executive, Army-Navy Y.M.C.A. Headquarters, said.

"We got letters daily from mothers or relatives of the boys," he said. "We have had claims from people who have no right to petition us. But we're slowly making contact with all entitled to the money."

How many of the original 450 who fought the Japanese in the Philippine are alive is not known, but the Y.M.C.A. is prepared to turn the money over to them or their relatives if proper claims are presented.

The story of the deposits in the service men's exclusive 'bank" began Jan. 4, 1942, when H. Ward Smith, executive secretary of the Manila Y.M.C.A., checked the sums on deposit as Japanese troops advanced on the city.

Saves Lists

With the city already under seige, Smith put three typists to work copying the lists of depositors and the sums due each. Six copies were made on onionskin paper.

Smith gave one each to five trusted Filipinos and kept one list himself. When the Japanese took over, Smith was placed under house arrest, his office ransacked and the records burned. He still had his list.

Three days later Smith entered Santo Tomas prison camp. Still later he was shifted to the Los Banos camp, but the list was cleverly cached in a box of his personal belongings.

"My gear underwent repeated searches," Smith said later. 'They stripped me of pictures, personal papers, even insurance policies, but they didn't find the list."

When the Americans entered Manila Feb. 23, 1945, Smith was released. Unable to find the five Filipinos who held the other lists, he contacted Tidball and the search for the 450 men or their next of kin began.

Siamese-U.N.

New York, July 16 (AP) Konthi Suphamongkhon, 32-year-old Siamese diplomat who served the Allies as a spy in Tokyo during the war, arrived here today to press Siam's bid for membership in the United Nations and prepare for a hearing of the Indochina-Siamese frontier dispute before the security council. JUL 18 1946

He said the Siamese government does not consider that Siam remains in a "technical state of war" with France, as stated by the French colonial administration in Indochina and added:

"We would like to have any conflict settled once and for all. We will accept any solution by the security council."

The young diplomat was enroute home from law studies in Paris when France fell in June, 1940, and took refuge in Dakar before reaching Siam nine months later to join the underground against the Japanese.

He was an aide to Diriock Jayanama, present foreign minister of Siam, when Jayanama was ambassador to Tokyo, and for two years they smuggled intelligence back to Siam where it was relayed via through a fantastic American-British network set up in Siam through the "free thai" movement's underground connections.

Based in Bangkok in January, 1945, Suphamongkhon spread the word that he was going to the country because of ill-health. Instead he made a rendezvous with an American flying boat in the gulf of Siam and came to Washington. JUL 18 1946

There he joined a mission urging the formation of a Siamese government in exile under Allied supervision and to establish liaison with the United Nations at the San Francisco conference.

The Siamese mission's proposals were turned down at the time because they would reveal too much of the underground work still functioning in wartime.

He estimated 80,000 Siamese participated in the underground against the Japanese, with 20,000 armed "and the whole population among the sympathizers."

WASHINGTON,JULY 16-(AP)-UNLESS WORLD CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY IS ESTABLISHED, GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS MUST PLAN "MEASURES BEYOND DESCRIPTION" FOR THE DEFENSE AND DECENTRALIZATION OF OUR CITIES, ATOMIC SCIENTIST WILLIAM HIGINBOTHAM SAID TODAY.

"I HAVE NO HESITATION IN PREDICTING," DECLARED THE CHAIRMAN OF THE FEDERATION OF AMERICAN SCIENTISTS, "THAT IF THEY DO NOT, IN A FEW YEARS METROPOLITAN REAL ESTATE VALUES WILL TOPPLE, AS THE AVERAGE MAN REALIZES THE DISADVANTAGES OF LIVING IN EXPOSED CITIES."

HE TOLD THE INSTITUTE ON WORLD CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY THAT ATOMIC SCIENTISTS HAVE LONG ENVISIONED THE PROSPECT OF PEOPLE "RUNNING FOR COVER AND BURROWING LIKE MOLES" IN SUBTERRANEAN SHELTERS UNLESS THE POSSIBILITY OF ATOMIC WARFARE IS REMOVED.

ASSERTING THAT "IN FOUR YEARS" OTHER POWERS CAN PRODUCE ATOM BOMBS UNLESS WORLD CONTROLS AGAINST SUCH PRODUCTION IS SET UP, THE SCIENTIST CONTINUED:

"INTERNATIONAL MANEUVERING TO CONTROL SOURCES OF RAW MATERIALS FOR BOMBS IS HIDDEN FROM VIEW BUT WE MAY BE SURE THAT BEHIND THE SCENES THE SEARCH FOR URANIUM IS BEING CARRIED OUT ON A SCALE SURPASSING THAT OF THE GOLD RUSH OF '49....

"TO SCIENTISTS, IT IS PLAIN THAT THE FIRST OBJECT OF THE UNITED NATIONS ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION MUST BE TO STOP THE ATOMIC ARMS RACE BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE."

Mihailoviteh Is Executed With 8 Others for Treason

Chetnik Chieftain Shot for Collaboration—Public Takes News Calmly as Yugoslav Leaders Minimize Its Importance

JUL 18 1946

By The Associated Press.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, July 17—Gen. Draja Mihailovitch died at dawn today before a firing squad. The bearded, 50-year-old Chetnik leader who electrified the Allied world in 1941 by organizing the first Yugoslav resistance to the German invaders was executed less than forty-eight hours after a Yugoslav military court had found him guilty of treason and collaboration [illegible] crimes.

Eight others who were convicted with him were executed in the same private military ceremony.

In this capital, the people apparently lost all interest in the convicted men once the death sentence was passed. The only official comment this morning was this terse announcement:

"Since the Presidium of the Yugoslav Parliament rejected the appeals of the accused men, all the death sentences have been carried out."

Otherwise, Yugoslav authorities remained silent and adopted the attitude that the news of the executions was unimportant. The sentences had been carried out swiftly in accordance with the Yugoslav custom of exacting the death penalty within two days of its imposition.

NIGHT

Others Who Were Executed

Executed with the Chetnik chieftain were:

RADOSLAV-RADE RADIC, 56, former commander of a Chetnik unit.

MILOS GLISCH, 36, a Chetnik leader.

OSKAR PAVLOVIC, 54, former chief of police of Zagreb.

DRAGI YOVANOVIC, 44, former chief of police of Belgrade.

YANASJE-DASA DINIC, 55, former Minister of the Interior in the puppet government of the late Premier Milan Nedic.

VELIBOR YONIC, 54, Nedic's Minister of Education.

DJURO DOKIC, 72, former Minister of Commerce.

KOSTA MUSICKI, 49, former aide de camp to King Peter and Queen Mary of Yugoslavia.

23 Given Prison Terms

The military court has sentenced eleven men in all to death, but two had been tried in absentia. They are Peter Zhivkovic, former Yugoslav general who once served as a member of King Peter's government-in-exile in London, and Mladen Lujevic, 51, former Chetnik commander who now is believed to be living in Paris.

Twenty-three other defendants were convicted and sentenced to prison for terms ranging from eighteen months to twenty years.

The guns of the firing squad rang down the curtain on a tense drama which began in April, 1941, when Mihailovic, a regimental commander with the rank of colonel, fled to the hills before the advancing tide of German might and organized a band of guerrillas.

His exploits in the mountain fastnesses won acclaim throughout the Allied world. King Peter and the British and Americans gave him supplies and sent liaison officers.

Tito Then Came To Fore

The national liberation movement emerged in Yugoslavia in 1943 under the command of Marshal Tito (Josip Broz), now the premier of Yugoslavia's Communist-dominated government. In 1944 the British and Americans switched their support to Tito as being the most effective fighter against the Germans, and the liberation movement Partisans began their accusations against the Chetniks as collaborators.

Mihailovic fled to the hills, and last March was tracked down and captured with a band of his followers.

Mihailovic, throughout his trial, maintained stoutly that he never collaborated with the Germans and that he had fought to drive them from his country, but the government of Marshal Tito charged that the Chetniks not only collaborated, but did battle against the national liberation forces.

Mikhailovich Put to Death As a Traitor to Yugoslavia

Eight of His Followers Also Die Before Firing Squad—Convicted of Collaborating With Nazis.

JUL 18 1946

Belgrade, July 17.—(AP)—Gen. Draja Mihailovic, once acclaimed by the Allied world as the organizer of the Yugoslav resistance movement, died before a firing squad at dawn today—less than 48 hours after his conviction on charges of treason and collaboration with the Germans.

Eight other men who were convicted with the former Chetnik leader were executed at the same time. The executions were carried out in a private military ceremony.

The others executed were:

Radoslav-Rade Radic, 56, former Chetnik unit commander.

Milos Glisch, 36, Chetnik leader.

Oskar Pavlovic, 54, former Zagreb chief of Police.

Dragi Yovanovic, 44, former chief of police of Belgrade.

Yanasje-Tasa Dinic, 55, former minister of the interior in the puppet government of the late Premier Milan Nedic, who committed suicide last January by leaping from his jail cell.

DAY

Velibor Yonic, 54, Nedic's minister of education.

Djuro Dokic, 72, former minister of commerce.

Kosta Musicki, 49, former aide-de-camp to King Peter.

Official Yugoslav comment this morning was that "since the presidium of the Yugoslav Parliament rejected the appeals of the accused men, all the death sentences have been carried out."

Capital Loses Interest

The capital apparently lost all interest once the death sentences were passed. Authorities were diffident about issuing any statement regarding the executions, and the attitude was that news of the executions was unimportant.

Mihailovic and 23 co-defendants were convicted last Monday by a Yugoslav military court. He and 10 others were sentenced to death, and the remaining 13 to prison terms ranging from 20 years to 18 months.

Two of those sentenced to death and eight of those sentenced to prison were convicted in absentia.

The presidium of the Yugoslav Parliament yesterday rejected appeals for mercy.

The trial of the Serbian-born Chetnik leader and his fellow defendants began June 10, and was marked by partial "confessions" on the part of some of the principals. Mihailovic, however, maintained that he was innocent of collabortion and that he had fought to drive the Nazi from Yugoslavia.

Yank Testimony Refused

The Yugoslav government refused throughout the proceedings to allow U. S. fliers, who had been forced down in Yugoslavia, to testify that they owed their lives to Mihailovic and his Chetniks.

Charges against Mihailovic included an allegation that his Chetniks attacked Partisan forces led by Marshall Tito, now premier of Yugoslavia.

A veteran army officer, Mihailovic left a Belgrade military academy at the age of 17 to join the army when the Balkan War broke out in 1912. He was quickly promoted to second lieutenant, and later won high honors in the First World War.

Subsequently, he served as military attache in Sofia and Prague, and was one of the youngest majors in the Yugoslav army.

Mihailovic was a regimental commander with the rank of colonel when Germany invaded Yugoslovia in April, 1941. After the government fled, he retired into the mountain wilderness and organized a band of followers. Within a short time, he was recognized by exiled King Peter as his war minister and as the field leader of the Yugoslav resistance movement.

Allied Acclaim Quick

Reports of his exploits against the Germans and of his fanatic resistance in the face of overwhelming odds quickly earned him the admiration of the Allied world, which hailed him as a hero.

His very name became synonomous with the indominable will of minority groups to resist the Nazi invaders.

But in 1943, Gen. Josip Broz—Marshal Tito—leader of the newly-organized Partisans, accused Mihailovic of collaboration with the Nazis, and there were reports of clashes between forces of Tito and Mihailovic.

The following year, first Britain and then the United States switched support from Mihailovic to Tito. The U. S. decision was on the grounds that supplies should be made available to the leader who was doing the most effective job of fighting the Germans.

After the German collapse, Mihailovic went into hiding to avoid arrest on charges of treason and collaboration. He was finally captured March 13 in a mountain cave, guarded by only a handful of followers.

BRITAIN'S BAKERS REBEL ON ORDER TO RATION BREAD

JUL 18 1946

Tom Williams

LONDON, July 17. — (AP) Britain's bakers, backed by 200,000 retailers and defiant of a threat of imprisonment, rebelled today against the Labor government's plan for bread rationing amid growing signs of similar revolt throughout England.

In a stormy session of the National Association of Master Bakers, 1,500 delegates shouted down all opposition to the call for non-cooperation, and Alfred Bostock, chairman of the associations executive, declared, "there's no doubt it is a complete revolt."

The meeting unanimously adopted a resolution calling for rationing scheme "impossible to work in its present form" and announcing that bakers "will continue to supply bread and confectionary as heretofore without bread units and with the hope that a simplified scheme will be introduced."

Even while Minister of Food John Strachey was fighting off critics during a question and answer period in the House of Commons, Bostock said the harassed food chief had agreed to meet a delegation of bakers tomorrow.

Reports of a bread crisis were also heard in Ulster where bakery employes were resigning in protest against rationing.

Petitions against the bread scheme, signed by more than 350,000 housewives, have been presented to the Crown and another was submitted to Commons today.

There were indications that if the bakers revolt held, the government might be asked to authorize local authorities to establish municipal bakeries.

The bakers' mass meeting emphasized signs of growing rebellion which have been appearing since the government announced the rationing order—an order, which if effected, will place the country on a bread ration for the first time since World War I.

Strachey told a press conference yesterday that bakers who wilfully refused to cooperate in the bread rationing scheme would be liable to prison terms of from one to seven years and fines from $2,000 to $20,000.

JUL 18 1946

London, July 17 (A. P.).—The National Association of Master Bakers threatened today to defy the Government order to ration bread beginning next Monday at the risk of imprisonment if necessary. Some 1,500 delegates shouted down all opposition to the call for non-co-operation. Alfred Bostock, chairman of the association's executive, declared "there's no doubt it is a complete revolt."

Even while Minister of Food John Strachey was fighting off critics during a question period in the House of Commons, Bostock announced that the harassed food chief had agreed to meet a delegation of bakers tomorrow.

The meeting unanimously adopted a resolution calling the rationing scheme "impossible to work in its present form" and announcing that bakers "will continue to supply bread and confectionery as heretofore without bread units and with the hope that a simplified scheme will be introduced."

Strachey said yesterday that bakers who willfully refused to co-operate in rationing would be liable to prison terms of from one to seven years and $2,000 to $20,000 fines. (ADD)

BRITAIN WATCHES UNREST IN IRAN

JUL 18 1946

LONDON, July 17—(AP) Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told the House of Commons today that Britain would hold Iran responsible for the safety of Britons and British property in the Kuzistan area, where disturbances last Sunday caused the death of 17 persons and injuries to 150.

The disturbances grew out of a strike which a British Foreign office spokesman said was more political than industrial and was organized by the leftist Tudeh party.

A Conservative member of Parliament asked the foreign secretary to what extent the troubles were caused "by intrigue and propaganda of the Soviet government," and Bevin replied that he had "not inquired into it."

Bevin said that while Britain would insist on the protection of British lives and property there was no intention of interfering with the affairs of Iran.

The strike began July 14 after workers had demanded pay for their day of rest (Friday). The stoppage defied a recently enacted law prohibiting sudden strikes and lockouts.

When violence threatened, martial law was declared, Bevin told the House of Commons, and in a later clash between local political elements, the casualties occurred.

Moscow Charges British Arm Tribesmen In Iran

London, July 17 (AP)—The official Soviet news agency Tass, quoting Iranian press reports, said today that the British were supplying arms to Kuzistan tribesmen in Iran and predicted "bloody disorders" would follow.

Earlier, the British Foreign Office said that 17 persons were killed and 150 injured in a strike in the Kuzistan area against the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. The incident, the Foreign Office said it was informed, was of a political rather than an industrial nature. (INSERT)

A spokesman for the British Foreign Office said official reports had been received that the strike against the oil company had ended and that some of the workers had returned to their jobs. (ADD)

17 REPORTED DEAD IN IRANIAN STRIKE

JUL 18 1946

London, July 17 (A. P.).—The Foreign Office said today that it had been informed that a strike in the Kuzistan area of Iran had resulted in the death of seventeen persons and the wounding of 150 others and that the incident was of a political rather than an industrial nature.

A Foreign Office spokesman said official reports had been received that the strike had ended and that some of the workers had returned to their jobs with the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. He said discussions between labor and management over working conditions were under way in a friendly atmosphere at the time the strike was organized by Tudeh (extreme leftist) party leaders. He declined to specify what political motives were involved, but speculation here was that the strike may have been a show of strength.

Commentators Describe Gains Since Potsdam Agreement

LONDON, July 17 (AP)—Moscow Radio commentators, observing the first anniversary of the Big Three Potsdam Agreement, spoke in glowing terms today of a year of progress in the Soviet zone toward denazification and the conversion there to a peacetime economy.

Commentator Mikhail Mikhailov said that agrarian reforms, including liquidation of big estates owned formerly by Nazi supporters, resulted in food difficulties becoming "considerably less than in the western zones."

"Not only has there been no cut in rations in the Soviet zone, but they have been increased recently for certain categories of the population," he said.

Commentator K. Hoffman said that the forces of "world reaction" had fought against the Potsdam decisions, trying to undermine Allied friendship and isolate the Soviet Union. Commentator V. Nikitin charged that in the western zones the decisions of Potsdam had not been carried out completely and that monopolistic German combines still retained their influence.

Press Inquiry Proposal Termed 'Intimidation'

London, July 17 (AP)—Three members of the Conservative opposition party at separate meetings tonight assailed the Labor Government, and Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, in particular, in connection with a proposed Government inquiry into the British press.

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard also entered the controversy, declaring that Morrison's real purpose was "intimidation" of the [illegible]

Bevan, Labor member of Parliament, said Morrison had constituted himself "the enemy of the press" when he expressed sympathy with the demand for an inquiry into "monopolistic tendencies."

David Gammans, Conservative M.P., said in a byelection speech that the Government Ministers were "trying the old trick of finding a scapegoat for their own shortcomings by blackguarding the press, the House of Lords and the Conservative party."

Noel Whiteside, Conservative candidate for Parliament, said: "It is something new in politics to deny a man the tools with which to ply his trade—newsprint—because he dares to report the truth."

The Evening Standard said:

"Mr. Morrison's real purpose is the intimidation of the newspapers and the silencing of criticism. The next stage on this progress to totalitarianism would be Government control of the press."

Prime Minister Attlee is reported ready to reject Morrison's proposal.

U.S. ATOMIC PLAN GETS TOP PRIORITY

JUL 18 1946

Max Hayes Cson

NEW YORK, July 17 — (AP) A United Nations Atomic committee agreed today to decide on a U. S. proposal for an atomic development authority before taking up Russia's demands for an international convention outlawing the production and use of atomic weapons.

Committee No. 2 of the Atomic Energy commission, charged with the task of drafting an atomic control plan, decided at a two-hour closed session to begin discussions of the U. S. proposal at its next meeting July 24.

Russia's Plan to Follow

The delegates agreed that they would press for a showdown on this question as soon as possible and then move on to Russia's proposal for the outlawing of atomic weapons.

Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko, who previously had insisted that atomic weapons be banned as a preliminary to any control plan, accepted the decision to give the U. S. proposal priority.

The main issue on the Russian proposal is the question of timing. All the delegates are agreed that atomic weapons should be outlawed, but a majority, led by the United States, insist that a strong system of controls should be created first.

Will Add Details

John Hancock, representing the United States, told the committee that the U. S. delegation would submit further details of its atomic control plan shortly. He said he was not sure the delegates understood the plan entirely.

One of the questions still to be explained by the Americans is the time table, outlining the stages by which the control plan would be put into effect. A memorandum on this part of the plan will be submitted within a week or 10 days, American circles said.

Gromyko said he intended to speak at the next meeting on the last U. S. memorandum in which Bernard M. Baruch proposed that the five big powers agree by treaty not to use the veto on atomic questions.

Gromyko already has indicated Russia would not agree to any amendment to the U.N. Charter to limit the use of the veto.

Today's meeting was presided over by Capt. Alvaro Alberto da Motta Silva of Brazil, who was unanimously elected chairman. Capt. Alberto already is serving as chairman of the Atomic commission, which will hold its first meeting under his leadership tomorrow afternoon.

The newly created legal committee of the Atomic Commission will hold its first meeting tomorrow morning. This committee has two main tasks: to work out such complicated legal problems as the veto question, and to advise Committee No. 2 on the drafting of a treaty embodying the atomic-control plan.

The twelve-nation scientific and technical committee will start work Friday on problems connected with the exchange of scientific information and the development of atomic energy for peaceful uses.

Committee Sets to Work on World Setup in Secret Session

C. Eppich

New York, July 17—(AP)—A 12-nation atomic committee, including among its membership the Soviet Union which opposed its formation last week, set to work today under instructions to draft a plan for a world atomic control agency.

It is the United Nation Atomic Energy Commission's "Committee No. 2" whose designated task is:

"To examine questions associated with the control of atomic energy activities, including all measures designed to insure the prevention of the use of atomic energy for purposes of destructions, and other weapons of mass destruction, and also including subject matters of possible conventions, sanctions and observance, and to make specific recommendations on said subjects."

Secret Session Today

Committee No. 2 was scheduled to meet in secret session to launch the second phase of negotiations started by Subcommittee No. 1, which completed a preliminary exploration of the various nations' views on atomic control last week.

Meetings of a new legal committee, which will be concerned with the vital veto question, and the scientific data committee will be held later in the week.

All three committees steering the troubled course for the commission are made up of representatives from all the nations on the commission: The 11 U. N. Security Council Nations plus Canada.

Soviet delegate Andrei A. Gromyko had opposed the formation of Committee No. 2 and the legal committee, insisting at a long commission session last Friday that no control system should be set up until the atom bomb had been outlawed.

He voted for setting up the scientific committee only after declaring Russia believed such a group should begin the exchange of information on atomic know-how immediately—a view opposed firmly by the United States.

At the conclusion of the first month of negotiations the commission majority appeared to be generally favorable toward the United States proposal to dispose of the atom bombs under international treaty terms after a world control agency had been set up.

Russia Opposes

Russia, however, continued in opposition to the program proposed by the United States on the major points involving the veto in the Security Council and a timetable for setting up a world atomic authority.

Seeking a way to end the impasse with Russia, Bernard M. Baruch, the chief United States delegate, countered with a proposal to abolish the veto on atomic matters by an international treaty which would bypass the UN charter.

But proponents of the American plan conceded that Russia could block any atomic control plan by use of the veto when it is submitted to the Security Council for approval or could defeat the intents of the American program by refusing to sign a treaty.

Russia's counter-plan for atomic control, calling for immediate destruction of the atom bombs, was rejected as "impossible" last week by the retiring atomic chairman, Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt of Australia.

Capt. Alvaro Alberto, Da Motta Silva, Brazilian physicist and naval officer, took over the chairmanships of the various atomic groups today after long consultations with Evatt.

7.5 Square Miles Needed For U.N. 'World Capital'

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP) The proposed "world capital" would cover an area of 7.5 square miles within one and one-half hours' commuting time from Manhattan borough in New York city under a committee recommendation approved today by the United Nations Headquarters commission.

The price of the tract would be no obstacle, the committee indicated under "site selection assumptions," which said "no otherwise advantageous area is to be rejected solely because of high values."

The "world capital" in the projected preview of the staff planners would have easy access for both freight and passenger trains and an airfield or shuttle service to international airports already established in the New York area.

Must Be "Attractive"

Furthermore, it should be "attractive, even scenic, with varied terrain, partly open, partly wooded" and have "existing lakes or opportunity for artificial lakes."

"The site should be selected so that advantage can be taken of the climatic conditions, which favor locating building areas on south and southeast, or at least away from north and northwest facing slopes, so as to be protected from cold north to west winds in winter and to receive cooling south breezes in summer," the planners reported.

The 7.5 square miles figure was based on the needs for official buildings and housing for U.N. personnel, their families and service workers. The official buildings alone would need an area of 3.5 square miles.

The overall useable area would be surrounded by a buffer belt, outside the U.N. community, but guaranteed in some manner to provide permanent open space.

The 7.5 square miles and establishments would be owned by U.N.

Preliminary surveys will be reported to the General Assembly in September for the selection of such a site somewhere in the areas of Fairfield and Westchester counties along the Connecticut-New York border.

New York, July 17—(AP)—Two engineer members of the United Nations permanent headquarters commission yesterday made surveys of the Quarry Heights section of the town of North Castle and the Whitelaw Reid estate in the town of Harrison, both near White Plains, N. Y.

The commission must recomend to the General Assembly alternate sites of two, five, 10 20 and 40 square miles as permanent headquarters sites for U. N.

The U. N. is scheduled to begin moving from Hunter College to its temporary site at Sperry Gyroscope Company at Lake Success, N. Y., August 10.

8 Escaped Soldiers Sought In Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, July 17 (AP). United States Military Police today searched the American zone of Germany for eight American soldier-prisoners who broke out of the 3d Army stockade at Mannheim July 15 in the sixth American jail break within a few weeks.

Announcing the break, the Army's provost marshal for the European theater said the men, all privates, sawed their way through a barred third-story yard. The privates, all held on a.w.o.l. charges, then used a rope of blankets to scale a 30-foot wall.

The men were identified as Pvts. Frederick L. Hatfield, William Matthews, Raymond V. Blaclock, Charles Balroko, James Dixon Henry James, Robert L. Carr and William Downey. Their home towns were not given.

TWO U.S. OFFICERS MISSING IN BERLIN

JUL 18 1946

Russians Say No Trace of Americans Found in Russian Zone.

R. O'REGAN

FRANKFURT, Germany, July 17.—(AP) The two American officers who disappeared July 4 into the Russian zone of Berlin cannot be located by the Russians and Soviet authorities doubt that the men are being held there, an Army public relations officer announced tonight.

The Russians stated they "have been unable to locate Capt. Harold Cobin and Second Lt. George Wyatt and that to the best of their knowledge they are not being held in the Russian zone," the announcement said.

NIGHT

Russians Released

At the same time Col. George S. Eyster, public relations chief in the European theater, disclosed that the three Russians arrested two weeks ago in the U. S. zone of Berlin on suspicion of espionage "are being released to Russian authorities at Hof today." Hof is on the border between the American and Soviet zones of occupied Germany.

The assurances that Cobin and Wyatt could not be located were given to Maj. Gen. Frank A. Keating, commander of the American military district of Berlin, by Lt. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, Russian Berlin commander, Col. Eyster said.

Cobin, of New York, and Wyatt, of Oklahoma City, disappeared after they were seen in a north Berlin railroad station boarding a train for Oranienburg, 20 miles north of Berlin in the Russian zone. It had been believed that the two were being held by the Russians against the return of the three Soviet soldiers—two officers and a driver—picked up in civilian clothes in the American zone.

Berlin reports yesterday said that Gen. M. Drativin, Russian military governor in occupied Germany, advised Gen. Keating that the Russians were "collecting data" on Cobin and Wyatt in the neighborhood of Oranienburg.

Sought Material for Book

Intelligence officers said it was rumored that Cobin was gathering material for a book and had made several previous trips into Oranienburg, where during the war the Nazis maintained a notorious concentration camp which the Russians now are said to be using as an internment camp.

Cobin's wife, Mary, arrived in Berlin from New York only a week ago, and found her husband missing. Mrs. Cobin revealed that her 53-year-old husband was Russian-born and spoke Russian fluently. She said he never had mentioned Wyatt in his letters, but officials described the latter as a younger man, "studious and learning to speak Russian."

Cobin is connected with the U. S.-controlled Allied documents center in Berlin. (AOD)

RUSSIANS SAY MISSING YANKS CAN'T BE FOUND

JUL 18 1946

Declare Cobin and Wyatt's Whereabouts Are Not Known to Them.

OFFICERS LAST SEEN JULY 4

Were Then Taking Train to Enter Soviet Zone—Captain's Wife Interviewed in Berlin.

Frankfurt, Germany, July 17 (A. P.).—The Russian authorities have told the United States Army, it was announced officially here today, that two American officers supposed to have disappeared into the Russian zone of Berlin on July 4 cannot be found.

The missing men are Capt. Harold Cobin of New York city and Newark, N. J., and Lieut. George Wyatt of Oklahoma City. They were last seen on boarding a train for Oranienburg, a Russian provisional headquarters twenty miles north of Berlin.

DAY

The Russians yesterday released two other missing Americans, Warrant Officer and Mrs. Samuel L. Harrison, and in exchange the American authorities released three Russians, two of them army officers, who had been held on suspicion of espionage in the United States zone.

'Can't Be Located.'

Col. George S. Eyster, Public Relations officer, said that the Russians asserted they have been unable to locate Cobin and Wyatt and that to the best of their knowledge they are not being held in the Russian zone. These "assurances," he continued, were given to Major-Gen. Frank A. Keating, commanding officer of the United States district of Berlin, by Lieut.-Gen. Alexander Kotkov, the Russian commander in the German capital. It had been believed in Berlin that the two officers were being held as hostages for three Russians being held, the Red Army alleged, by the American authorities.

Eyster said that the Russians arrested in the American section of Berlin "are being released to Russian authorities at Hof today. Hof is on the border of the American and Russian occupation zones.

Earlier a senior security officer in Berlin said that before Cobin and Wyatt are returned the Russians "might ask us to release some more of their personnel whom they think we are holding."

Meanwhile today it was learned from another authority that American officials, operating a dragnet to catch some twenty-six American soldiers as long-term A. W. O. L.'s, are checking on reports some of them may be in the Russian zone. One officer, however, dismissed this as a routine check, saying: "We look everywhere for A. W. O. L.'s and there's nothing sensational in our going into the Russian zone to check."

Mrs. Cobin Speaks.

Berlin, July 17 (A. P.).—In a neat modern house in the borough of Zehlendorf Mrs. Mary Cobin has been waiting for a week now to be reunited with her husband, Capt. Harold Cobin.

"It's darned uncomfortable having waited these two and a half years to rejoin Harold to arrive here and find he is not around," she said today. "They tell me he will be all right, so I try not to worry and to keep my daughter from worrying. I telephoned her the other night to reassure her."

The daughter, Mrs. Eugene Elliott lives at 531 West 123d street, New York.

Mrs. Cobin said her 53-year-old husband was born in Russia and spoke Russian fluently. Army officials described Wyatt as a younger man, "studious and learning to speak Russian."

Mrs. Cobin said she had no knowledge of reports current here that her husband was writing a book, and wanted to visit the Oranienburg camp for material.

RUSSIANS YET TO RELEASE 2 U. S. OFFICERS

Army Reports No Progress Made to Gain Americans' Freedom

Berlin, July 17 — (AP) — A senior security officer at the U. S. Army's Berlin district headquarters said today there had been no progress in attempts to gain the release of two remaining Americans held by the Russians for unauthorized entry into the Soviet occupation zone.

This officer added it was likely that before the pair — Capt. Harold Cobin, of New York City, and Newark, N. J., and Lt. George Wyatt, of Oklahoma City, Okla.—were returned, the Russians "might ask us to release some more of their personnel whom they think we are holding."

DAY

Two other Americans — Warrant Officer Samuel L. Harrison and his wife, Helen, of San Antonio, Texas — were released on Tuesday after the American authorities had promised they would release three Russians arrested on suspicion of espionage in the U. S. section of Berlin.

Russian Promise

"We've heard nothing further on Cobin and Wyatt beyond the Russians' promise several days ago that they would 'investigate' the case," the U. S. security officer said. "It's quite likely, though, that before they are released, the Russians may demand some quid pro quo.

1946

"I can't say officially, but I think we may be holding some more Russian personnel down the line somewhere in our occupation zone."

Meanwhile, it was learned from another source that American officials operating a dragnet to catch some 26 U. S. soldiers listed as "long-term AWOLS" were checking on reports some of them might be in the Russian zone. One officer, however, dismissed this as a routine check, saying "we look everywhere for AWOLs, and there's nothing sensational in our going into the Russian zone to check."

Reich Unity Hope Seen

ED SHANKE

Berlin, July 17 (AP)—A high British staff spokesman declared today that Britain still retains hope for full economic co-operation in Germany among the Big Four while considering the offer of James F Byrnes, Secretary of State, of an economic union between the American zone and any other.

Nothing that the Paris conference failed to agree on treating Germany as an economic whole immediately, the spokesman emphasized an announcement by Ernest Bevin, Foreign Secretary, that Britain must organize its zone to reduce liabiilty on the British taxpayer.

"How this statement will be translated into action I cannot say today," he continued. "It requires very careful consideration. The declaration does not imply a change in our policy.

No Desire To Isolate Zone

"There is no desire to dig a ditch around our zone. We stand for a unified Germany in which movement of persons, trade and ideas are subject to no hampering restrictions. We want to see full co-operation between all four Allies. We are confident that with patience, perseverance and mutual understanding the difficulties of today will be resolved."

The first sign of consolidation within the British zone came in an announcement that the provinces of the Northern Rhineland and Westphaila will be combined soon into a single land with the capital at Duesseldorf because of the "special importance" this region—comprising the Ruhr—has economically and industrially from the British zonal point of view.

Present Setup Uneconomical

Political reorganization of the rest of the zone, now divided into nine political units ranging in size from several million inhabitants to just a few hundred thousand, also is under consideration, it was revealed.

"The present setup is uneconomical, unbalanced and unsuitable for the policy of decentralization of government, which is an agreed "Allied policy," the British spokesman said.

Explanation Given

Brig. Gen. W. H. Draper, head of the economics section of the American Military Government, said conversations here on economic corelation of the British and American zones would be on a "preliminary and exploratory" basis, and there were indications that machinery has been set up for such talks to begin immediately.

These discussions probably would cover a common import-export plan for the British and American zones, and touch on transport, food, industry and the use of raw materials, Draper said.

Trial of Kilian Adjourns After Lawyers Clash

Two Almost Come to Blows; Court Member Resigns After Third Bias Charge

O. DOANE

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, July 17 (AP)—Tension in the court martial of Colonel James A. Kilian on charges of cruelty at the Lichfield detention camp, which he commanded, reached a new climax today when defense and prosecution lawyers came close to blows and a court member resigned after being accused for the third time of prejudice in favor of the defendant.

Kilian's attorney, Lieutenant Colonel Raymond E. Ford, of Fort Pierce, Fla., and Major Joseph S. Robinson, of New York, the trial judge advocate, engaged in a heated argument when Major Robinson remarkel: "Why don't you tell the truth at least once, Colonel Ford?"

Colonel Kilian himself stepped between the two lawyers as they faced each other, and the court was hurriedly cleared by the president.

"I ought to haul off and smack you," Major Robinson muttered to Colonel Ford as they stalked stiffly from the court.

"Go ahead and smack if you want; I'll get out of the way," Colonel Kilian said, stepping aside.

Another lawyer stepped between Major Robinson and Colonel Ford, and no blows were struck.

The court ordered a twelve-day "cooling off" period by adjourning until July 29 to give Colonel Kilian's lawyers more time to prepare his defense against charges that he sanctioned cruelty to American soldiers imprisoned at the detention camp in England. Motions by the defense for a directed verdict of acquital, then for a prolonged postponement until more witnesses could be brought here from the United States were denied by the court.

Colonel Hardin Sweeney, of maha, was the member of the court who voluntarily withdrew after he was accused for the third time by the prosecution of bias in favor of Colonel Kilian.

German Workers On British Homes In Hamburg Riot

JUL 18 1946

Hamburg, Germany, July 17 (AP). Three hundred German workmen assigned to prepare homes for families of British military government personnel, rioted today, asserting the food given them was only "fit for pigs."

The mob looted a construction camp commissary and threatened to kill the camp doctor and chef unless they opened doors of the food store.

Police reserves restored order and arrested the 19-year-old leader, despite efforts of the rioters to rescue him.

Vatican Sees World Headed For Grave Peril

Looks to U. S. as Strongest Pillar of Liberty, Finds Danger in Soviet System

R. MORSE

VATICAN CITY, July 17 (AP)—In the view of the Catholic Church the world is entering one of the most dangerous periods in two thousand years, and the United States, because of its ideals and religious belief, is the strongest pillar in the threatened structure of human liberty.

The Church is not pessimistic, but it is very much alarmed.

That conclusion has been unmistakable after a series of discussions with prelates in the Vatican, climaxed today by a private audience with Pope Pius XII.

It was not an interview, nor were the Pontiff's words spoken for quotation. But there was no mistaking the concern the Pope feels for the success of the Conference of Paris on July 29, where the four major powers and seventeen invited nations will review the drafts of the peace treaties. Nor was there any doubt about the affection for the United States that the Pontiff entertains.

Several days ago, in a quotable statement to a group of American newspaper executives who visited him, the Pope described the world as a "quagmire of inhuman suffering and injustice." He characterized its problems as "intricate and tragic."

The principal reason, in the Vatican view, is simply that Soviet Russia, from both the spiritual and the social points of veiw, propounds a doctrine antithetic to the Catholic Church.

Opposes Soviet System

Primarily, the Church is concerned with freedom of religion. But like the democrats of the world, it is also concerned with freedom of thought and speech and freedom of the press. On both points—the spiritual and the social—the Church finds itself in opposition to the Soviet system, a high prelate familiar with Church problems in eastern Europe said. They are irreconcilable, he added.

To a question whether Communism and Catholicism can live together in the same world, this prelate replied: "We have been living with our enemies for nineteen centuries. We are men of faith, and to us, Communism is a thing that must pass."

Meanwhile, he said, it is nevertheless a menace to the fundamentals of the Catholic faith.

As an example, Poland, a predominantly Catholic country, was cited. The situation there, he said, is "distinctly threatening... No one can say what will happen to the Church...Our information is meager, and we can only wait and see."

The same obscurity veils the situation in Ruthenia, it was stated. Moscow has announced that the Ruthenian clergy and communicants, breaking with Rome, have aligned themselves with the Russian Orthodox Church. In the Vatican, a similar alleged "defiection" in 1839 under Czar Nicholas was recalled.

Vatican Looks to U. S.

"Then as now it was an instance of force majeure," he prelate in question said. "The other time they claimed three bishops were involved. This time they claim no bishops . . . only some priests. But it is our information that now, just as before, the great body of the clergy and the people have remained faithful. Whatever has happened, and our information is fragmentary, it can be regarded as an example of a policy being forced on the people."

To the Church the erasure of individual liberties and the subjection of the individual man to the State constitute a terrible danger to the world as a whole. Thus, another prelate described the international situation as "a powder keg that could blow up at any time."

Not only for religious reasons, but also because of the social issues involved, the United States is regarded in Vatican opinion as the standard-bearer for the ideals of freedom. "America holds the same belief in fundamental human rights as the Church. It therefore has naturally assumed the role of a leader," the prelate said.

For all of this, the Vatican does not expect another world war in the near future. "It is a catastrophe too terrible to be contemplated," an officer said. "The solution lies in prayer, in putting an end to secrecy and suspicion, and in a return to good-will."

So Sudden Complains Italy At Big-4 Call

Rome, July 17 (AP)—Italy protested today to the four-power foreign ministers council that she had been given far too little time to get together the information the deputy foreign ministers wanted about the Italian-Yugoslav boundary issue in Venezia Giulia.

An Italian Foreign Minister communiqué said the protest was contained in a telegram sent to the secretariat general of the council in Paris. The telegram pointed out that Premier Alcide de Gasperi's government wa snot advised until Monday night that the council's mission considering the special commission boundary question wanted an Italian delegation to appear before it today.

The foreign ministry said the invitation brought with it the first official information that the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and Russia had decided to internationalize the Adriatic city of Trieste — claimed by Italy and Yugoslavia.

NSZ Bands Accused of Killing Red Army Men and Jews

L. GELLER

Warsaw, July 17 — (AP) — Twenty-five Russian soldiers were reported today to have been killed during the last month by the same outlawed bands of Irregulars (NSZ) which are accused of systematically slaying Jews throughout Poland.

The newspaper Glos Ludu said that the latest NSZ attack was on a passenger train near Lublin, and that six Russians were taken captive and later brutually slain.

Meanwhile, mystery cloaked the fate of nine Jews reportedly held prisoner by the NSZ near Kielce, scene of a pogrom July 4 in which 41 persons were killed. Advices from Kielce said the Jews were hostages for nine Poles sentenced to death for participating in the pogrom.

The nine Poles were executed Sunday by a firing squad, but it was not known if retalitory measures had been taken against the hostages.

The Jews were said to have been threatened with death if the executions were carried out. However, news of the executions was not widespread in Kielce, since newspapers there did not publish an account of them.

The NSZ, which is widely scattered over Poland, also is reported to have stopped a train near Bialystock recently and to have killed a number of Red Army soldiers and stripped others before escaping into a forest region. Bialystok is about 30 miles from the Russian frontier.

Demobilized Russian soldiers traveling in caravans homeward from Germany have been set upon frequently by bandit gangs. Close to a score of Russians were reported to have been killed recently in a forest.

Although troops and security forces were ordered to capture the band which attacked the train near Lublin, no announcement was made as to whether any members of the gang had been rounded up.

Newspapers asserted editorially that serious developments might occur unles the NSZ were wiped out and unless Russian soldiers were guaranteed security within Poland.

On another subject, newspapers announced yesterday that a scheduled session Friday of the Catholic-backed Labor Congress had been delayed. They said the decision was taken by the party's executive committee.

The newspapers added that aides of of the party's president, Karol Popiel, quoted him as declaring that he had protested the announcement of the delay, and that he had been warned that mass arrests might occur if he tried to hold the congress.

The pressure against Popiel, who is closely identified with Catholic leaders, was considered generally to be an attempt by the government bloc to force the Labor Party into a proposed single bloc ticket at the Polish elections in November.

WARSAW (AP) — The Polish newspaper Rzeczpospolita charged in a recent editorial that "it is a fact that in many fields of our national economy corruption continues to flourish, abuse has spread and graft continues."

It added: "The state treasury is being cheated, not once, but a hundred times."

PAULEY IN VIENNA

Vienna, July 17 (A. P.).—Edwin W. Pauley, personal representative of President Truman, said here today that Austrian industry, except for war potential, should be left intact. Pauley, ranked as an Ambassador, arrived here last night to confer with Gen. Mark W. Clark, commanding general of United States forces in Austria, with reference to the reparations program.

London will be the next stop on his round-the-world tour.

Assembly-Line Technique Hailed By Russian Home from U. S. Visit

B. JAMES

MOSCOW, July 17—(AP)—Ilya Ehrenburg, Russia's top-ranking journalist, conceded today that Russia could learn something from America's asembly line technique but that Americans also had something to learn from the outside world.

NIGHT

Continuing his impressions of America, gleaned from a recent tour, the Soviet writer told readers of the Russian government Newspaper Izvestia he did not agree with "European aesthetes who laugh about American standardization" for even if all suits do look alike they are obtainable for all.

Saw Detroit at Work

In Detroit, he said he saw how quickly Americans could make automobiles, build skyscrapers, invent and make life easy, but added they are "inadequately acquainted with the outside world."

"They badly study the old world," Ehrenburg said. "A group of pupils could not name even one city in the Soviet Union."

But in spite of this, he said, "no other country has attained such standardization as the United States."

"I was in tens of American towns and could not tell one from another," he wrote. "Each town has its main street and not one American can distinguish in a picture the main street of one town from that of another."

Ehrenburg told his readers that in New York he found "separate cities like the Negro Harlem, where there exist a 'shirt hospital' and private pawn shops where one may pawn pants."

He admitted that some cities, such as San Francisco, Boston and New Orleans, had retained their individuality, "but the remaining cities have no face of their own. They are only a collection of Americans."

Goods Standardized

Pointing out that goods also are standardized, Ehrenburg admitted, however, "I think we can study from the Americans how quickly good shoes and pots can be made."

He said Americans love to make money "but they don't know how to spend it. I do not want to say they are stingy. They spend money quickly and energetically but without thinking."

He seemd amazed at the number of automobiles he saw.

"The average American loves automobiles," Ehrenburg said, "and change their cars for new ones, once, twice, three times during a threeyear period."

Turning to American intellectuals, Ehrenburg said they "are still weak and not confident of themselves."

"They seem to hide behind floodlight signs and citations from the Bible," he added, "but there are some able intellectuals who know their salvation is not in flight but in raising the spiritual level among the average American."

GIVES RED VIEW ON AMERICANS

Ilya Ehrenburg Says We're Politically Low.

B. JAMES

Moscow, July 17 (A. P.).—Ilya Ehrenburg, in the second of a series of articles on his recent tour of the United States, declared in Izvestia today that Americans have developed an astonishing technic of manufacturing but are badly informed about world problems. Having asserted yesterday that many Americans are "provincial dummies," he said today that their "political level also is very low." Adding: "Americans are inadequately acquainted with the outside world. They badly need to study the Old World. A group of pupils could not name even one city in the Soviet Union."

DAY

He pictured the United States as composed mostly of identical cities and towns. "I was in many American towns and could not tell one from another," he declared. "Each town has its Main street." Two or three cities—San Francisco, Boston, New Orleans—have maintained some individuality, but "the remaining cities have no faces of their own, they are only a collection of Americans."

He said that New York is composed of several separate cities, including Negro Harlem, where there are "privatte pawn shops where one may pawn ones pants." He said that goods are standardized in the United States, and that "I think we can study from the Americans how to make shoes and pots quickly and well." He added: "I do not agree with European esthetes who laugh about American standardization. Let all suits look like one another; all the same, they are obtainable for all.

"Americans love to make money, but they do not know to spend it. I do not want to say they are stingy. They spend money quickly and energetically, but without thinking."

He said he saw many drunks in America, and observed that Americans love automobiles and trade in their cars every year or so. He said that American intellectuals are "still weak and not confident of themselves," adding: "They seem to hide behind floodlight signs and citations from the Bible. But there are some able intellectuals who know that their salvation is not in flight, but in raising the spiritual level among average Americans."

Bulgaria Purging Army

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 17 (AP).—The government announced today that 245 officers had been dismissed from the Bulgarian Army, forty of them on charges of Fascist activity, and said a purge of the army was continuing.

Peace Or No, Turkey To Remain Mobilized

Istanbul, July 17 (AP)—President Ismet Inonu expressed a wish tonight for a "prompt definite peace" but declared it still was mandatory for Turkey to keep her army fully mobilized as it has been for the last three years.

In a broadcast address asking support for his People's party in next Sunday's election, Inonu declarde it was probable that the question of the Dardanelles and the "security" of Istanbul would arise soon.

"Turkey, long troubled by fears of Russia, has kept her army ready for action and Istanbul still is under a state of siege," he said, adding:

"If peace is established or not, we cannot see on the horizon in clear fashion the events and sacrifices which we would be obliged to make in order to do our duty to save the cause of the Turkish nation which loves peace, which has no aim on anybody's property and which is determined not to sacrifice any of its proper rights and its proper land."

Petting In Auto In U.S. Shock To Ehrenburg

London, July 17 (AP)— Ilya Ehrenburg, Russian writer, was surprised by many things on his recent trip to the United States, but it took petting in the back seat of the automobile to shock him.

Quoted by the Moscow radio tonight, the Soviet journalist said: "It is enough to take an evening stroll through Central Park, New York, to see one more meaning of the motor car . . . as a substitute for the lovers' wedding bed. Such habits make your thoughts rather sad."

AMERICAN SLAIN FROM AMBUSH ON TRIESTE HIGHWAY

King

TRIESTE, July — (AP) A widespread day-long search of the Gorizia-Trieste highway area by U. S. 88th division patrols and investigating squads failed tonight to produce a single clue to the identity of the person who ambushed an American army jeep, killing one American soldier and injuring two others. Their names were not disclosed.

NIGHT

Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore, commanding the division, described the murder—committed last midnight—as a "treacherous and cowardly act" and said that it might lead to closing the road at night to all except military traffic.

As soon as word of the murder reached division headquarters heavily armed patrols were scattered through the area searching fields and hillsides and halting all passing traffic in quest of weapons. The patrols included several tanks.

About 150 feet behind the point where the jeep crashed into a stony cliffside after a bullet struck its driver in the head, investigators found about 18 empty .38 caliber cartridge cases.

The cartridges were of German manufacture, indicating that a long burst was fired into the jeep from the rear probably with a German-made Snyder (burp) gun.

Broken bushes indicated that the assassin lay in wait in an overgrown and deeply sloping roadside.

While evidence was lacking, unofficial theorizing turned to the question of whether the shooting was in possible reprisal for the recent death of two Yugoslav soldiers in border clashes with American troops.

Another theory suggested that the shooting was an effort to cause an incident calculated further to strain relations between the armies facing each other across the Morgan demarcation line, which divides the occupation troops of Yugoslavia to the east from American and British forces in the west.

American military government officials had other trouble in Trieste. "Locked out" workers at shipyards in the Trieste area gathered in demonstrative crowds at dockside gates today as military government authorities strived to end a new work stoppage ordered by management heads yesterday.

Col. Alfred Bowen, of Los Angeles, senior military government officer, said he was optimistic that a solution could be found to the "punitive lockout" ordered by the management to halt clashes between nonstrikers and workers returning after abandoning last week's general strike.

GI Loses Life, Two Wounded In Trieste Ambush

Trieste, July 17—(AP)—Unknown machinegunners ambushed an American Army jeep before midnight killing a soldier and wounding two others, headquarters of the U. S. 88th Division announced today.

The Americans were attacked four days after a United States patrol killed two Yugoslav soldiers in a brief skirmish near the Morgan Demarcation Line, which divides the occupation troops of Yugoslavia to the east from American and British forces in the west.

Yugoslavia, with strong Russian backing, has been claiming Trieste and the Venesia Giulia district of Italy, a claim opposed by the United States and the United Kingdom.

While the Americans were being ambushed, Belgrade dispatches told of a crowd of 50,000 persons marching in the Yugoslav capital, chanting the names of Russian Prime Minister Stalin and Yugoslav Premier Tito. The crowd shouted, "we ask for a revision of the Paris decision on Trieste." "Trieste to Yugoslavia' and "Yugoslavia as an ally demands justice from the Allies." (ADD)

Says Yugoslavia Won't Agree.

Belgrade, July 17 (A. P.).—Vice-Premier Edvard Kardelj told Parliament today that the Yugoslav government "cannot and will not agree" to the Paris settlement of the Trieste question.

"It seems as though some of the Allies are treating Yugoslavia not as an ally but as an enemy," he said.

Last night a crowd of approximately 50,000 persons, which gathered here to protest the Big Four Foreign Ministers' decision to internationalize Trieste, heard speakers denounce the Western Allies and eulogize Russia as the "guardian of small nations."

"Soviet Russia was the only one in our favor at the Paris conference," one speaker told the throng. "The rest of the Allies sought to dismember our country and give it to defeated Italy."

Another speaker asserted that the Western Allies "are giving us more difficulties than help in our reconstruction." All demanded that the decision of the Foreign Ministers Council in Paris be annulled and that Trieste be awarded to Yugoslavia.

The crowd included members of trade unions and other groups which assembled at various points in the city and marched to Terazije Square. The marchers carried banners which read: "We ask for a revision of the Paris decision on Trieste," "Trieste to Yugoslavia is justice to Yugoslavia" and "Yugoslavia as an ally demands justice from the Allies."

During the demonstration the crowd chanted "Tito, Stalin! Tito, Stalin," punctuating these shouts with the refrain: "While our blood flowed we were Allies."

detention camp also were to end their strike at the same time.

The one-day strike throughout Palestine, called in sympathy for the 2,000 internees, was marked by renewed appeals from the Jewish underground for intensified efforts in the struggle for free immigration and a Jewish state.

Overnight, in Jerusalem, Haifa and the all-Jewish city of Tel-Aviv, posters urging a greater struggle appeared on buildings, evidently posted both by Haganah and Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organizations.

Police and armored cars were on the alert outside Tel-Aviv against any possible outbreak of trouble as the work stoppage there became complete.

Both in Jerusalem and Haifa the stoppage was fully effective. In Jerusalem, all Jewish establishments except hospitals, essential services and newspapers were shut down and in Haifa all traffic ceased.

Speakers in Haifa urged non-cooperation with the mandate government in Palestine, including nonpayment of taxes, at an open air mass meeting, and other speakers demanded freedom for Jews detained at camps in Eritrea as well as for those rounded up in the wave of arrests by the British in Palestine June 29. FIGHTING SPREADS AS GEN. MARSHALL STRIVES FOR PEACE

NANKING, July 17 — (AP)

1948

Chinas' opposing armies were characterized today as moving closer to full-scale civil war while General Marshall's peace negotiations remained tightly deadlocked in Nanking.

Gen. Chou En-lai, No. 2 Chinese Communist, listed Government "aggressions" on four fronts, involving more than 1,000,000 Government soldiers.

"Local conflicts are blooming rapidly into civil war and there is no inclination on the part of the Government to halt them," Chou told a press conference.

The central government's minister of information, Peng Hsueh-pei, denied the charges, and counter-charged that Communist armies are on the march toward the Yangtze from the north.

"If we permit them to advance to the Yangtze unopposed, we had better start considering moving the capital (from Nanking) back to Chungking," he said.

The abduction of seven United States Marines and two so-called "political assassinations" also were involved in the turmoil.

Air and ground searches were pressed for the Marines seized Saturday near Chinwangtao in an area where Marine guards have prevented the Communists from destroying tracks and bridges used by the government in moving troops to Manchuria.

The two assassinations at Kunming accounted for two professors who were members of the Democratic league, a sparkplug of the coalition movement.

Chou charged that the two, Wen Yi-tu and Li Kung-pu, were slain by Government secret police agents in a "reign of terror started at Sian-fu (Shensi province), Chungking elsewhere in China.

At Kunming, 11 other progressive leaders were reported to have asked and obtained refuge in the United States consulate. Chou said he had discussed the slayings with General Marshall who had conveyed Chou's protest to the Government minister of communication.

REPORT BATTLE NEAR NANKING

Chinese Say Communists Are But 20 Miles Away.

Nanking, July 17 (A. P.).—The Chinese Government declared today that 130,000 Communist troops have opened an offensive along the Yangtze River and were attacking only twenty miles from Nanking and forty-five miles from Shanghai. The Government carried a protest to Gen. Marshall, the special envoy of the United States, asserting that the Communists intended to sweep up key cities and ports along the 175-mile stretch of the river between this capital and Shanghai.

The Communists complained to Marshall late yesterday, accusing the Government of provoking this East China fight and asserting that the situation was "heading directly into a full-scale civil war."

The Government said that the Communists have attacked both Luho, twenty miles north of Nanking, and Haimen, forty-five miles north of Shanghai, as well as other ports. Correspondents were not allowed to visit the alleged battle front north of Nanking to investigate the conflicting claims.

Gen Chou En-lai, the chief Communist negotiator, told Marshall that the Communist New Fourth Army had captured "war orders" to Government troops in northern Kiangsu province to open a general offensive. Wang Ping-nan, the Communist spokesman, declared that the Communists are still on the defensive but that "unless some drastic action is taken instantly the answer is civil war." Marshall was expected to confer within two or three days with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who is now in the summer capital at Kuling.

Yanks Accuse Reds.

Tientsin, July 17 (A. P.).—The seizure of seven United States Marines by armed Chinese was described unofficially at Marine headquarters today as most probably a Communist effort to cause the Marines in China to lose face.

Air and ground search was intensified for the seven men who were kidnaped last Saturday by a band of eighty Chinese near the port of Chinwangtao, where they had been sent to buy rice. An eighth Marine, who hid in tall grass and escaped capture, was identified today as Pfc. John William Mahoney of Chicago. The names of the others have not been made public.

Secret Deal in Mongolia.

Manila, July 17 (A. P.).—An authoritative informant said today that the Chinese Foreign Office has learned of a secret deal between Soviet Russia and the Mongolian Peoples Republic permitting the garrisoning of Russian troops in that pivotal Asiatic State. This informant said that Nationalist China is expected to oppose the petition of the Mongolian Republic for membership in the United Nations because of the secret agreement.

Soviet Accuses U. S.

London, July 17 (A. P.).—The Moscow radio declared today that the United States was planning to arm and train Chinese troops and to prolong lend-lease to Nanking, in a move which "actually amounts to interference in China's affairs."

Prof. V. Lan, in a broadcast discussing the continued fighting in China, said: "Though the Left camp is anxious to make peace, no agreement can be reached as long as the Right camp, and more particularly its leadership, gets backing and encouragement from outside forces.

"Some people in the United States have been claiming that the Soviet Union is helping the People's Army of China . . . but Secretary of War Patterson had to admit that only rumors were being spread on this subject.

"The Soviet Union fought the Japanese in China and then withdrew its troops from Chinese territory, the United States Army did not fight the Japanese on Chinese territory, but after Japan had surrendered, American troops were ordered to China."

Chinese Political Leader Slain

Nanking, July 17 (A. P.).—The Central News Agency said today that Prof. Wen Yi-Tu, an American exchange student and a leader of China's third party Democratic League, had been slain in Kunming by an unknown assassin while walking with his son. It was the second political slaying reported in that southwest China city within a week.

COUNCIL OF MITSUI PLANS TO DISSOLVE

Tokyo, July 17 (A. P.).—The Mitsui family council, largest organization of its type in the world, was reported reliably today to have decided to dissolve—possibly the first step in the disintegration of a family financial empire worth more than 25,000,000,000 yen ($1,666,666,666).

A resolution to dissolve must be approved by occupation officials, who probably will check to see if the move contains any attempts to evade taxes or directives.

The Mitsui family council, which dates back to 1722, holds the controlling interest in Mitsui Honsha, a family holding company with assets of about 1,200,000,000 yen ($80,000,000). This company has eighty-nine subsidiaries, all highly valued. In turn, these eighty-nine are associated with about 900 others.

The Mitsui family council consists of eleven families which have been pooling their assets. Control of this pool was vested in the senior family.

Inequity to Reds Seen

SHANGHAI, July 17 (AP).—Over the dissenting vote of the Chinese delegate, the U. N. R. R. A. Far Eastern Council adopted today a sub-committee report, to be submitted to the forhcoming Geneva U. N. R. R. A. meeting, asserting that equitable distribution of U. N. R. R. A. supplies to Communist areas of China has not been achieved, despite efforts made.

The report stated that distribution operations by the Chinese national relief and rehabilitation administration (C. N. R. R. A.) has been seriously hampered in recent months by a lack of adequate financial backing.

This and other criticism of the handling of U. N. R. R. A. supplies at the China end led U. N. R. R. A. Director General F. H. La Guardia to halt the flow of all U. N. R. R. A. goods to China except essential foodstuffs.

The Far Eastern Council met amid mounting hopes that La Guardia would soon rescind his order. With this in mind, the Council agreed to recommend a three-month extension until June 30, 1947, in the deadline for shipping relief supplies to China, and urged that a China office of U. N. R. R. A. be maintained until Dec. 31, 1947.

Representatives of ten nations, including the United States, Great Britain, France, Soviet Russia and Australia, are on hand for the Council sessions.

THIS JAP FARMER RUNS OWN UNRRA

Tokyo, July 17 (A. P.).—A 27-year-old farmer near Chiba stood on the main driveway to the Imperial Plaza today. A white cloth band around his shoulder bore the words: "Answering the anxious wishes of the Emperor that none should starve."

To each passer-by Mikio Saito doled out a handful of rice and four potatoes. Tight-belted Tokyo citizens blinked unbelievingly but accepted the food gratefully. Saito's stock lasted less than an hour. Then he rolled up his sack and caught a train back to Chiba, feeling he had done his bit.

4,000,000 Back in Japan

TOKYO, July 17 (AP).—The return of 31,491 Japanese from Manchuria last week boosted the total repatriation figure to more than 4,000,000. There are 1,918,312 Japanese who remain to be repatriated from Asiatic areas, including 1,043,565 from Manchuria

15 More Ships Will Return Pacific Vets

Tokyo, July 17 (A. P.).—Fifteen additional ships are being diverted from the Atlantic to the Pacific to join the demobilization fleet which must return 250,000 troops to the United States. They are expected to arrive in Pacific ports between August 7 and August 19.

SPECIAL MONEY FOR YANKS IN JAPAN

Tokyo, July 17 (A. P.).—Americans in Japan, Korea and the Ryukyus on Friday will change their money for a new "A" currency which the Japanese may not possess legally. The exchange is being made to halt the black marketing of yen.

JAPS DOUBLE CATCH ON TUNA GROUNDS

Tokyo, July 17 (A. P.).—Fishing is good for Japan's increased tuna fleet, now that it operates almost as far east as Wake Island. And good fishing is helping the critical food shortage at home.

Soviet Russia opposed the extension but the Allied Control Council approved it over the Russian protest, and today Capt. J. L. Kask of the fisheries section at headquarters declared that the fishermen almost doubled their usual catch when word was flashed to them that they could move eastward to the 165th meridian.

JAP BOATS CAUGHT

Tokyo, July 17—(AP)—Six Japanese fishing boats without proper papers have been caught in the past two weeks between Japan and Korea and have been returned under suspicion of smuggling repatriates and contraband, the U. S. commander of naval activities in Japan said, today.

Bodies Of Seven Fliers Recovered In Japan

Osaka, July 17—(AP)—The bodies of seven Superfortress fliers killed in a mountain crash near Nara in January of 1945 have been recovered by a U. S. Army graves registration platoon. None of the victims has been identified.

Sale of Estates To General Burt Stirs Filipinos

Roxas Threatens to Cancel American's Purchase of Land Promised Peasants

MANILA, July 17 (AP).—Filipino indignation mounted today over the sale of two large estates to American Brigadier General Ernest H. But.

The estates—the 840,000-acre Buena Vista and the smaller Capellania de Tabobong—were bought in the name of General Burt at what experts called far below the market value. They had been earmarked by the new Philippine government for redistribution to peasant tenants. The Buena Vista estate is claimed by the government under a twenty-five-year option given before the war by the owner, the San Juan de Rios Catholic Hospital Association.

Congress is investigating, and President Manuel A. Roxas was outspoken about the transactions today. At a press conference he charged that "speculators" were attempting to undermine the government's loan program.

Such cases, he declared, show that the urge for "unconscionable profits at public expense seems to have no nationality and knows no patriotism." He threatened to void the sale, even if it is necessary to expropriate the estates.

The thousands of peasant tenants on both estates have protested and have prepared communications to President Truman, Pope Pius XII and the United Nations.

General Burt said today in an interview that he was "bewildered" and that the criticism was unjustified.

"We acquired the property under an agreement that it be resold to tenants," he said. "We proposed to have them choose their own committees to determine the value of the land on which they are living, then sell to them at 75 per cent of their own valuation over a ten-year period.

"As to the profit that might be realized, one-third was to go to the San Juan de Rios Hospital for construction and maintenance of a new hospital, and one-third to the government with the understanding the funds were to be used for old-age benefits.

"We are trying to do some good for the people, but find we are being censured by the government. We have no quarrel with the government, and can be counted on to co-operate."

Filipinos assert that the plan to sell the land to peasant tenants on a ten-year installment program will net the syndicates backing Burt a handsome profit.

Burt was until recently legal adviser to American Commissioner Paul V. McNutt. President Roxas said he learned of the Capellania de Tabobong sale before his inauguration, and that he mentioned it to Commissioner McNutt before the latter became American ambassador to the new republic. McNutt, Roxas said, was "shocked," and asked for and received Burt's resignation.

The Buena Vista estate brought 5,000,000 pesos ($2,500,000, and the other 1,250,000 pesos ($625,000).

SHIPS ADDED TO FLEET FOR NEW BOMB TEST

JUL 18 1946

Time Advanced to 5:35 P. M. July 24 New Haven Time

Aboard the USS Mount McKinley, July 17—(AP)—Seventy-five ships were selected today to brave the fearsome pressures of the underwater atomic bomb blast, and most of them already are in Bikini lagoon.

This is two more than the number of ships in the July 1 target array. In addition, a dozen small landing craft will be spaced in the lagoon when the bomb goes off July 25 (July 24, U. S. time).

The decision to increase the number of target ships by one destroyer and a tank landing ship was made by the joint Chiefs of Staff and announced by Vice Adm. William H. P. Blandy, task force commander.

There will be 29 fighting ships in the lagoon — five battleships, two carriers, three cruisers, 11 destroyers, and eight submarines.

Other major target ships will be 17 transports, 28 landing ships and one large landing craft. Spares have been brought in to make up for the five ships sunk by the July 1 bomb.

Blandy announced that the time for setting off the bomb had been moved up 15 minutes to 8:35 A. M. (5:35 P. M., July 24, E. D. T.) but might be held off as late as noon because of weather.

Nine-Man Trigger Team

Rear Adm. W. S. Parsons, deputy task force commander for technical direction, told a news conference the elaborate trigger for the bomb would be cocked at the last minute by a nine-man team.

The team will be headed by Dr. Marshall Holloway, Los Alamos, N. M., physicist and faculty member of Cornell University.

The calm, mind-mannered physicist will lead the team to the bomb barge, unlock and padlock and throw a switch to clear mechanism on the bomb to receive the radio impulse from the trigger ship, Cumberland Sound.

Then the party will speed off in a launch to the Cumberland Sound, where Holloway will unlock a room containing the power supply for the trigger transmitter, then unlock another room containing the transmitter.

One minute before the detonation, Holloway will set a clock in motion which will activate a series of radio impulses that eventually will explode the bomb when the final combination is reached.

Parsons told Blandy it would be possible to stop the explosion up to 15 seconds before the blast by calling over the intership communication system: "Stop, negative, negative!"

Time Clock to Be Used

A time clock similar to those used in U. S. bank vaults will guarantee that the atomic bomb cannot be exploded prematurely in the underwater test July 25.

Rear Adm. Parsons said the time clock will be mounted on the barge in Bikini lagoon from which the bomb will be suspended a few feet under water.

This time clock will be so set that the bomb cannot possibly be set off before the pre-determined hour, even if "a saboteur with a transmitter" sent the signals setting the intricate bomb mechanism in motion, Parsons told a news conference.

PIG SURVIVING BIKINI BOMBING MEDICAL HERO

JUL 18 1946

Scientist Studying Husky Porker for Radioactive Ray Effects

Aboard USS Appalachian, July 17 —(AP)—Pig No. 311, sole survivor of the atomic bomb blast on the sunken Japanese heavy cruiser Sakawa, is the living hero of the Crossroads operation and bids fair to become the real hero of medical atomic pioneering.

He is one of more than 3,000 animals affected by radioactive rays. These animals are the first line of defense against radioative ray death. They are repeating medical history. Many times in the past animals have shown the way to medical discoveries.

Pig No. 311 is still nameless. This husky porker, more than any other animal, typifies the young fighting man's experiences. He is California bred. His ship was terribly hit by everything the bomb had. He was found swimming 24 hours after she sank. His age is relatively that of a young man of 20—such as might stay afloat so long.

No. 311 has had three doctors in attendance. He has had penicillin and liquids. His symptoms are a military secret.

But what this care means after an atomic bombing is no secret to those familiar with radioactive medicine.

Meat the Same

If No. 311 were quartered in a butcher shop his meat probably would likely be the same. But actually savants could demonstrate that his is a different kind of pork chops.

Rays that hit him change nitrogen into carbon. Less pork and more carbon probably would be the verdict if a true atomic autopsy were possible.

Salts, chlorine and other common chemical compounds in his body probably have been altered. Even his bones should contain some strontium, of fireworks fame, and other elements not usual in bones.

If he were human he should suffer from sterilization which, however, would involve no real suffering because his male sex hormones would remain lusty and active.

His chest is somewhat of the size and strength of a man.

This pig, like the crew, had one been aboard, inhaled some of the radioactive particles after the blast. Human beings retain such particles in a considerably larger percentage than do the usual test animals, which are rats and mice. No. 311 has larger lungs that may tell a more useful story of the inhaled particles.

One reason for pigs on the Crossroads test was the fact that of all animals their skins are most nearly like that of humans. That means that No. 311's skin would react to heat and X-rays in human fashion.

Honor To The Goats

North Hollywood, Cal., July 17 (AP)—The goats who died in Bikini's atom blast will be honored in a memorial service here next Sunday, complete with eulogy, lowering of the flag to half-mast and blowing of taps.

The San Fernando Valley Goat Association, sponsoring the service, saved 200 animals owned by its members from the test by a protest to Washington that they were purebreds. Ordinary goats from elsewhere were substituted.

RUSSIA TO RECALL HER SPY SUSPECTS

G. MONTGOMERY

OTTAWA, July 17. — (AP) All of the 17 Soviet embassy officials and employes named by a Canadian government commission as having engaged in espionage activities in the dominion will be out of this country "immediately" at the request of the Soviet government, Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King informed Parliament today.

Eleven of them had left before the two-man Royal commission published its report last Monday, King said, and added that he had received assurance that the "remaining NIGHT leaving immediately."

The prime minister made the statement in reply to a question as to what the "recognized diplomatic procedure" was in the case of those officials and employes accused of espionage.

Two of the top officials of the embassy began packing hurriedly as the report was published. They are Vitali G. Pavlov, in the official position of second secretary but accused as the head of a NKVD (Soviet secret police) espionage network, and Ivan I. Krotov, officially the commercial counsellor but also accused of taking a leading role in spying.

The four others still in Ottawa when the espionage report was published Monday are believed to be among those employed in minor positions, such as doormen and clerks, but who also had more important functions as espionage agents.

MORE SPY TRIALS AHEAD IN CANADA

Ottawa, July 17 (A. P.).—Three and possibly more of the nine persons named by the Royal Commission in its latest report on Moscow-directed espionage in Canada will probably face court charges, it was learned reliably today. There was no hint of what the charges would be or the persons to be singled out. All nine were listed as either engaged actively in espionage, organizing cells, seeking false passports or having been prepared to participate in subversive activity.

Two Russian diplomats, Vitali G. Pavlov and Ivan Krotov, were reported to have left Canada hurriedly.

All the Crown counsel connected with spy prosecutions were to meet today at the Department of Justice to plan their next step. "We are acting," the Minister of Justice, Louis St. Laurent, said tersely.

Redin Is Cleared of Espionage; Russian Hails 'Fair Trial' in U. S.

By The Associated Press

JUL 18 1946

SEATTLE, July 17—Lieut. Nicolai G. Redin of the Soviet Navy was freed today to return to his native land with his wife and child, cleared by a Federal Court jury of espionage and conspiracy charges.

The former Soviet purchasing commission representative here "feels that the injustice of his arrest" has been removed by the verdict, his attorneys said after the jury of seven men and five women returned their decision this morning. The jury, out since 1:18 P. M. yesterday, brought in its verdict at 10:14 A. M.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury and Your Honor, I'd like to thank you for this fair trial in these United States of America," the Russian said after the verdict was read.

Allan Pomeroy, chief assistant United States Attorney, said he had no statement at this time.

Lieutenant Redin, arrested last March 26 at Portland, Ore., was charged in two indictments with buying detailed secret information about the U. S. S. Yellowstone, a destroyer tender built here, from Herbert Kennedy, a shipyard engineer. He also was accused of attempting to obtain information on radar and fire control of the Yellowstone and with conspiring with some person or persons unknown to transmit all the information to the Soviet Union.

Lieutenant Redin thanked the jurors personally as they left the courtroom, and his next thoughts were of his wife, Galina, who had been at his side daily during the twenty-two-day trial, but did not come to court this morning. Calling her excitedly from a near-by phone, he addressed her by a pet Russian name and then exclaimed: "Not guilty! Not guilty!"

At their home, Mrs. Redin said she "never had unpacked." They were packed to leave Seattle for a new Russian assignment when Lieutenant Redin was arrested. Homesick for her native land, she said they would "leave for home" as soon as they could arrange it, but that their young daughter, Irinia, was ill.

Judge Lloyd L. Black said that to avoid any misunderstanding conclosing arguments of the Government and defense that he felt the argument of Mr. Pomeroy was "excellent." The other Government argument was made by Victor E. Anderson of St. Paul, Minn., special assistant to the United States Attorney General.

Judge Black had stated, in the jury's absence, that "there was not a syllable of evidence presented that the Kremlin had instructed Lieutenant Redin to secure the secret information at issue here or that the Kremlin even knew he was in America." He said that defense counsel had "seized happily" on the argument to "inject extraneous issues" into their closing arguments.

For the war crime, four German officers and men and the Mayor of Borkum were sentenced to hang at a court-martial trial at Ludwigsburg, in the American occupied zone of Germany, and nine other individuals were sentenced to prison. The chief of the local air raid police, Klase Meyer-Gerhards, was acquitted on evidence that he tried vainly to protect the Americans.

Members of the families of the victims were notified belatedly of the circumstances this week by the Adjutant-General. They included:

MYERS, William J., 1st lt., whose widow was listed as Mrs. Patricia M. Myers, of Titusville, Pa.

GRAHAM, Howard S., 2d lt., mother, Mrs. Gladys N. Graham, Haight ave., Poughkeepsie.

WALTHALL, Harvey M., 2d lt., mother, Mrs. Kathryn D. Walthall, Baltimore, Md.

FABER, Kenneth, sgt., wife, Mrs. Pauline A. Faber, Kenmore, N. Y.

DANNO, James, sgt., mother, Mrs. Susie Mary Danno, Great Falls, Mont.

DOLD, William F., sgt., father, Bruce M. Dold, 11 Mitchell Place, Glenn Ridge, N.J.

LAMBERTUS, William W., sgt., father, Gustave Lambertus, 146 Autumn street, Passaic, N. J.

Mayor Ackerman of the town of Borkum was sentenced to hang for inciting civilians to attack the unprotected group. Others sentenced to die were Capt. Kurt Goeball, senior officer on the island; Lieuts. Jakob Seiler and Erich Wentzel, his subordinates, and Sergt. Johann Schmits, who was charged with guarding the prisoners.

Nazi Murder of 7 Yanks Bared

War Department Discloses 'Death March' Atrocity on German Island in 1944.

JUL 18 1946

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—A wartime "death march" of seven American flyers on the German island of Borkum in the North Sea two years ago was brought to light today with identification of the airmen.

The seven, crewmen of a bomber which was forced down on the island on August 4, 1944, were beaten as they were forced to march through the streets, and then were shot and killed by Nazi soldiers, the War Department disclosed.

Families Receive News.

Gustave Lambertus, father of Sgt. Lambertus and a restaurant employee in Passaic, said today's War Department announcement was the first intimation he had that his son died in the "Death March." He said he had been notified by the department that a "trial was under way," but was given no additional details. Sgt. Lambertus, who was 23 years old, was first reported missing in late August, 1944, and in October of 1944 the family was notified he had been killed in action.

Sgt. Dold's mother said at their Glen Ridge home that she was informed of the details of her son's death recently but had not told any one.

Dold, first reported missing, later was reported killed in action in September, 1944, in a raid over Germany, when his plane, disabled by Flak, went down after colliding with another craft in the unit.

The 22-year-old Dold, a gunner and photographer on a flying fortress, was a student at Notre Dame University when he enlisted in the AAF. He went overseas in June, 1944.

CIVILIAN ATOM CONTROL HIT

JUL 18 1946

Rankin Says He Never Found A Traitor From West Point

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Representative John E. Rankin (D., Miss.), fiercely attacking legislation for civilian control of atomic energy, told the House today "there are spies" now inside the Oak Ridge (Tenn.) atomic plant and that investigators for the House Committee on Un-American Affairs are after them.

Rankin declared the bill might result in release of the secret of the atom bomb to Communists. The world, he said, should be put on notice that "we are going to keep this bomb."

The way to do it, Rankin advised, is to kill the legislation and leave the bomb in charge of the military.

"I have never found a traitor graduated from West Point yet," he declared.

Mentions Mihailovic

"Picture Washington if this was in the hands of the gang that murdered Mihailovic (the Chetnik leader executed in Yugoslavia) today," Rankin said.

The legislation also was assailed by Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N.J.), who said Andrei Gromyko, Soviet representative on the United Nations Security Council, "couldn't have drawn a better bill for Russia."

"Every Communist and every Communist Front organization is rooting for its passage," he declared.

The legislation drew stout defense of Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.), who said "it allows our Government to maintain and protect our monopoly of atomic weapons . . . which otherwise might make their way into the hands of our potential enemies."

Far From Decision

At the end of the second day of debate the House found itself far from a decision on whether to vest control of atomic energy entirely in civilians, to give the military a dominant voice, or to kill the legislation outright.

The first test vote may come tomorrow—on a House Military Affairs Committee recommendation that there be at least one military representative on the proposed five-member control commission which the Senate unanimously decreed should be composed entirely of civilians. Chairman May (D., Ky.) insisted that would not constitute military control; that a majority must be civilians.

Another fight is in store over the patent provision—identical in both the Senate and the House measures—which opponents claim would destroy private enterprise and be a first step toward state socialism. It would give the Government virtually a monopoly on invention in the atomic-energy field.

Austin Predicts Firm U.S. Stand In U.N. Council

JUL 18 1946

He Agrees With Vandenberg Policy Must Withstand All Attempts at Coercion

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP).—Senator Warren R. Austin, Republican, of Vermont, today joined Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, in declaring that the United States will no be "coerced" into international decisions.

"The sooner the world learns that, the better," he added. Senator Austin, who has been named by President Truman to represent this country on the United Nations Security Council.

Thus Senator Austin forecast the same sort of firm United States stand in the U. N. council that Senator Vandenberg said Secretary of States James F. Byrnes took at the Paris Foreign Ministers' conference.

The Vermont senator's declaration came in approving what he called the "frankness" of Senator Vandenberg's appraisal yesterday of the accomplishments and failures of the Big Four meeting.

Noting that there was "appalling disagreement" among the major powers over the immediate and long-range future of Germany, Senator Vandenberg called on Russia to help replace with dependable friendship the distrust and suspicion he said now exist between Washington and Moscow.

The Mishigan senator added in a report to his colleagues yesterday that the Soviets must learn that the Americans "cannot be driven, coerced or pressured" into decisions and "will not bargain in humans rights and fundamental liberties anywhere on earth."

Indorsing this, Senator Austin told a reporter he believes a candid discussion of the difficulties the American delegation encountered in Paris will help solidify public opinion.

"I think the public announcement that it is not our purpose to yield to coercion is very important," he said. "The sooner the world understands that, the better."

Senator Edwin C. Johnson, Democrat, of Colorado, said he thought the Byrnes and Vandenberg reports had gone a long way to line up the Senate solidly behind the course the Secretary of State has pursued thus far and to give him added backing in the twenty-one-nation peace conference that opens July 29.

Senator Claude Pepper, Democrat, of Florida, who was critical of a previous post-conference report by Senator Vandenberg earlier in the year, said he regarded the Michigan Senator's new statement as "moderate."

"But he is making the unquestioned assumption that we are of necessity lined up in the western bloc, with the lines drawn between eastern and western Europe," Senator Pepper said. "Our position ought to be that of arbiter, not a participant in the age-old struggle between Great Britain and Russia for power."

Intervention Ban Drafted for The Americas

JUL 18 1946

Proposal Will Be Submitted to Pan-American Parley in Colombia Next Year

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP).—Representatives of the American republics approved and referred to their governments today a proposal that they formally agree not to intervene in one another's affairs.

The Pan American Union governing board accepted unanimously its committee report drafting a "declaration of the rights and duties of the American states."

Diplomatic authorities agreed the suggested draft would clarify the status of frequently discussed hemisphere "intervention," with a declaration in Section 8:

"Intervention by any one or more states, directly or indirectly, and for whatever reasons, in the internal or external affairs of another states, is inadmissible."

The proposal was submitted to the governing board by an eight-nation committee—the United States, Brazil, Mexico, Colombia, Peru, Bolivia, Honduras and Nicaragua.

The board asked the American republics to submit their observations and comments before Oct. 15, to permit preparation of a final drafts on the rights and duties of the hemisphere nations.

Ultimately, the report will be placed on the agenda of the ninth international conference of American states, scheduled to be held in Bogota, Colombia, some time in 1947.

Good Neighbor Policy

Today's declaration proposed that the American republics "reiterate their adherence to the policy of the good neighbor." That policy, it said, "expresses an aspiration that is common to all the American nations."

The hemisphere governments, the declaration said, "should consider that this policy is a standard which should govern their common relations."

The proposal suggested that the American republics "reaffirm their faith in the principle of continental solidarity and proclaim their unswerving loyalty to the intra-American system."

By reaffirming their intention to strengthen continental solidarity, the proposal said, the Western Hemisphere governments will proclaim themselves members of the world community.

The governing board's proposal suggested that the political existence of any new state be independent of its recognition by other governments.

Uruguay Plan Doomed

It proposed that recognition itself be "unconditional and irrevocable" and signify that governments recognizing the new state accept its personality with all the rights and duties prescribed by international law.

Diplomats pointed out that ultimate approval of today's draft by the American governments would mean the death of Uruguay's proposal for collective and multilateral intervention.

Uruguay suggested last year that the American republics reexamine the hemisphere principle that one country may not interfere in the internal affairs of another. Uruguay, in a radical departure from inter-American political principles, proposed adoption of the principle of "multilateral, collective intervention to protect the essential human rights and to insure fulfillment of a nation's international obligations."

Ultimately, eleven nations rejected the Uruguayan suggestion, although Secretary of State James F. Byrnes gave his unqualified approval to the idea shortly after Foreign Minister Eduardo Rodriquez Larretta announced it.

secretary in the Washington office of two mid-west munitions firms, told the Senate war-investigating committee that she had overheard a long distance telephone talk by her employers about $1,000 for "Yankel," a Yiddish nickname which she said they frequently used for Representative May.

The youthful secretary, who has coal-black hair, was Mrs. Eleanor Hall. She testified that Representative May, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee had thrice visited the office where she worked and on one occasion had cautioned employees there to guard their telephone conversations "because the wires may be tapped."

With the close of her testimony, the committee suspended—at least temporarily—its public hearings and decided to meet privately tomorrow to discuss legal processes for bringing Representative May before it for a sworn explanation of his activities.

Into her testimony, Mrs. Hall sprinkled liberal references to expensive presents to high-ranking Army officers and their wives, and to the business transactions which occurred during her employ which she described as "very shady."

Her testimony ended in turmoil at the day's end. As she stepped from the witness table, a husky, swarthy complexioned woman plunged toward the committee, sobbing and screaming denunciations of Mrs. Hall's character and testimony and demanding an opportunity to be heard.

Led by police from the committee chamber, she identified herself as Vanetha Sarelas Doukes, elder sister of Louis Sarelas, $11,000-a-year office manager of the munitions establishment at the time Mrs. Hall was employed there.

Speaking with a Southern accent, Mrs. Hall had quoted Mr. Sarelas as telling her that Representative May had gotten him out of the Army after only six weeks' service. She also declared that Mr. Sarelas had once acknowledged to her that he (Sarelas) had forged her name to her pay check while she was ill.

Mr. Sarelas had testified only yesterday that she quit her job Oct. 17, 1945—a job she first took in March of 1945—because she was "emotionally upset."

"After all," protested Mrs. Hall today, "when you are working for a bunch of crooks, it does get you emotionally upset."

She said that members of the office—among them Joseph Freeman, the Washington agent of the combine, and Murray Garsson, one of its promoters, "frequently" referred to Representative May as "Yankel."

Upon the request of Senator James M. Mead, Democrat, of New York, who is the Senate committee's chairman, a committee investigator later explained that term as "Yiddish for 'Little Jack'" and said it meant "he's not too smart."

"That Piece of Paper"

Saying that she was on an office extension at the time, she testified that Mr. Freeman on one occasion telephoned E. M. Glazier, treasurer of one of the concerns in the combine, and inquired: "What about that piece of paper?" She said that Mr. Glazier responded: "What piece or paper?"—or something like that."

Then she quoted Mr. Freeman as saying: "You know what I mean—the $1,000 for Yankel."

She said that Mr. Glazier then promised to get the check in the mail the following day, and was "reprimanded" by Mr. Freeman for the delay.

On another occasion, she said that Mr. Sarelas came into the office carrying an envelope to pass on to Mr. Freeman, saying that it contained $1,000 and remarking that it was "going to the Hill."

She testified that Mr. Freeman entered the office later, picked up the envelope, retired to his private office and then made three telephone calls, one of them to Representative May. She could not identify the other two.

She said that Mr. Freeman left the office for a short time later, telling her that he was going to see Representative May.

There were frequent telephone conversations, she said, between Representative May and Mr. Freeman, even when Representative May was out of town. She testified that Mr. Freeman called Representative May "practically every other day" when he was at his home in Prestonsburg, Ky. She acknowledged that she didn't know what the conversations were about, but said she had the "impression they were about his elections."

Woman Also Says Arms Promoters Conferred on '$1,000 for Yankel'

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Senate investigators heard testimony today that Representative Andrew J. May, Democrat, of Kentucky, once inquired of a munitions sales representative, "What about that $3,000?" and was told that it would "be along in a day or so."

The same witness, a pretty ex-

Visit to Office

Mrs. Hall said that Representative May had visited the sales office on one occasion after Mr. Sarelas, answering a telephone inquiry on Mr. Freeman's whereabouts, had told Representative May that "Joe Freeman is in New York, making money for us."

Mr. Sarelas, on the witness stand yesterday, had acknowledged making such a response, and told the committee that he got "red all over" when he realized the implications of his remark.

It was after that occasion, declared Mrs. Hall, that Representative May cautioned office officials to guard their telephone conversations. She added that the Kentucky legislator "very carefully came at 6:30 p. m. when all the other offices in the building were closed. I had the feeling that no one was supposed to know he was there."

She related another occasion when, she said, Representative May called Mr. Freeman "as I recall it, something about lumber, about length and sizes." She said that conversation concluded with Representative May "rather gruffly inquiring: "What about that $3,000?"

Asked what Mr. Freeman's reply was, she said that it was to the effect that "it would be along in a day or so—as I remember, some kind of assurance that it was coming."

Testimony has been introduced that Representative May was listed as the Kentucky agent of the Cumberland Lumber Company—a concern to which two of the munitions companies advanced $48,000 for lumber which was never delivered.

Mrs. Hall declared that Mr. Sarelas had informed her that Albert Jacobson, former acting chief of the Chemical Warfare Service legal division, was being paid $20,000 a year "by the Garssons."

Henry Garsson and Murray Garsson, brothers, were among the promoters and officials of the combine. Murray Garsson, listed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as a onetime associate of gangster Dutch Schultz, is in Cuba claiming ill health. Henry Garsson, a former internal revenue agent who was dismissed after being acquitted on a bribery charge, refused to waive constitutional protection against being required to testify in a case which might incriminate or degrade him.

"I assume," said Mrs. Hall, "that Jacobson was doing something in the War Department that was worth $20,000 to the Garssons."

She said that Mr. Jacobson had called at the office "about once a week." This was in contradiction to his own testimony that he had gone there only twice to pick up rejected shells as souvenirs.

Mr. Jacobson, who resigned from the District of Columbia bar in 1938, got a job as a clerk-typist in the War Department and ultimately rose to a $9,975-a-year contract-approving post in the legal section, bitterly complained earlier in the day that he was being "maligned and castigated" before the committee.

JUL 18 1946

"I Never Came Here"

Mrs. Hall told the committee that Mr. Jacobson once had ordered her not to call him to the telephone if he was ever there when a phone call for him reached the office. "If a call ever comes" she quoted him as saying, "I'm not here. I never came here."

Asked what her reaction had been to that order at the time, she said that she merely commented "okay."

She said that she, herself, had delivered a silver vanity set to General Paul X. English, formerly in the Chemical Warfare Service, as a Christmas gift for Mrs. English at Mr. Freeman's instructions.

Under questioning, she said another set had gone to a "General Porter"—identified by Committee Counsel George Meader as a former chief of the Chemical Warfare Service. Other gifts of combination compacts and cigarette sets, she said, were sent to other officers' wives and government employees.

General English's name bobbed up again in her testimony. She testified that Mr. Sarelas had informed her that Mr. Freeman and Murray Garsson had arranged through Representative May to have General English transferred to Omaha, Neb. Asked why, she said she had the "impression" General English wasn't being "as co-operative as he should be."

Later, she said, she overneard a conversation between Mr. Freeman and Mr. Garsson in which they expressed sorrow that they had General English transferred because his successor was "even less co-operative."

At another point in her testimony, Mrs. Hall said Mr. Sarelas had told her that he had delivered a case of scotch as a Christmas present to a "General Waite," whom the committee identified as the present chief of Chemical Warfare Service.

Begged for Petty Cash

Turning to her own work in the office, she said that it was complicated by very "unbusiness-like" procedure, that it lacked a petty cash fund so that she had to dig into her own pockets for such items as stamps. And, she added, she had to do a "lot of begging" to obtain repayment.

She told the committee that she returned to the office after an illness and that Mr. Sarelas had informed her that her paycheck had come in blank from headquarters and thus had been returned. She said that Mr. Sarelas had remarked he felt sorry for her and gave her a check for $40 from his personal account—half the amount she would have received for the two-week period.

She testified that Mr. Sarelas admitted to her later that he had forged her name to the check and deposited the money in his own account. She said that she never had been paid the $40 balance.

"I presume," said Senator Mead, dryly, "that this young man, who had been working as a file clerk in the War Department, was embarrassed for lack of money when he was only getting $11,000 from this concern."

In discussing Mr. Sarelas's exit from the armed forces, she told the committee that he had told her first that he got his discharge because he had broken his arches on an obstacle course.

Mrs. Hall, a former employee in the F. B. I., testified that Mr. Sarelas later told her: "May got me out of the service after six weeks' service."

She told the committee that her husband was overseas in the service at the time of her employ. She said that she had written him about the way the office affairs were being conducted, and that he had replied with advice to quit her job as soon as possible.

Another Secretary Testified

Another former secretary for the combine, red-haired Mrs. Jean Bates, testified that she frequently made and received telephones calls from Congressional offices for Mr. Freeman.

Frequently, she said, she made those calls on her own in searching for Mr. Freeman. She listed these ofifces as those which she had called or from which she had received calls:

The Senate Democratic leader, Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky—She said calls from his office came from a Mrs. Chance, who she thought was Senator Barkley's secretary. She testified she did not know the nature of the calls nor whether Senator Barkley himself participated in them.

The House Democratic leader, Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts—"We called McCormack several times," she said, adding that she could not recall phone calls from his office. Later, she said, "I think he called on a few occasions."

Representative May—She said Mr. May called her office "two or three times a week" and that Mr. Freeman and Murray Garsson asked her to call Mr. May even more frequently.

Representative Adolph J. Sabath, Democrat, of Illinois, chairman of the House Rules Committee—She reported Mr. Freeman called Representative Sabath, "maybe once a week," and that the Illinois Congressman called Mr. Freeman "a couple of times."

Former Representative Samuel Dickstein, Democrat, of New York, who was chairman of the House Immigration Committee—She declared that Mr. Dickstein was called "quite frequently—maybe twice a month" and that Mr. Dickstein called her office "several times." Mr. Dickstein is now a New York State judge.

Senator Homer E. Capehart, Republican, of Indiana—She said she could remember phoning Senator Capehart once on Mr. Freeman's order.

Subsequently, Senator Capehart, taking the stand at his own request, testified that about three months ago he received a telephone call making an appointment for Murray Garsson to call on him to talk over licensing the "Challenge Company" to manufacture automatic phonographs. The Senator said that later Mr. Garsson visited him at his home and discussed "licenses from our company to his company." Government contracts were not discussed at all, Senator Capehart said. He testified that he referred Mr. Garsson to his attorney and has not seen him since.

Frequently, Mrs. Bates had difficulty, under questioning, in distinguishing whether the "Congressmen" were members of the House or Senate, but she declared that the telephone calls were made through the Capitol switchboard, which links phones in both sides.

She said she did not transact business on incoming phone calls, but transferred them to the person who was sought and promptly hung up. On top of that, she acknowledged hearing difficulty because her "right ear was kind of bad from swimming."

She testified that these phone calls occurred during the period from April 23, 1945, to June 15, 1946, when she was employed as secretary. She said she spent the greater part of her time answering the office's six telephones.

It was the first time that Congressmen other than Representative May have been brought into the public testimony. There was no immediate indication as to whether they would be "invited," like Representative May, to testify.

The committee, approaching the end of its list of witnesses, planned an executive session to determine what powers it has to summon Representative May. The Kentucky Congressman has demanded the right to have his attorney present, to cross-examine witnesses and to subpoena records as conditions for his appearance on the stand. The committee has turned down this request.

Chairman Mead summed up a twelve-point list of missing documents, memoranda and records with the observation: "It should be noted, last and not least, that Representative Andrew J. May, whose name has again and again been brought before this hearing, is missing from the committee hearing."

The committee has heard testimony that Mr. Freeman and Henry and Murray Garsson successfully called upon Representative May for help in their problems affecting contracts, advance payments, material and man power for a network of nineteen closely linked companies.

Representative May has acknowledged that he intervened with War Department officials in the interests of the combine, but has insisted that he did so solely for the war effort and that he received no personal profit.

Among the records which Senator Mead described as "mysteriously missing" are those of the Cumberland Lumber Company, for which Representative May was listed as the official Kentucky agent. Testimony has been introduced that Batavia and Erie Basin Metal Products Companies, two of the combine, carried on their books an account for $48,000 for lumber from Cumberland which was never delivered.

The War Department has prohibited its officers and employees from recording any more telephone conversations without notifying the other party that it is being done.

The order, issued by Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, followed up testimony before the Senate war investigating committee that recording devices were attached to many War Department telephones and that transcripts were made of calls by Congressmen.

The text of Mr. Patterson's order, dated July 12: "Although the usefulness of telephone recording machines is recognized in expediting the conduct of business, no officer or employee of the Army will make such recordings unless he informs the other party participating in the telephone conversation that the recording is being made."

ACCOUNTS OF 2 U.S. AGENCIES ARE ATTACKED

JUL 18 1946

Methods Of Maritime Commission And WSA Declared Inefficient

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Officials of the General Accounting Office testified today that wartime accounting methods of the Maritime Commission and the War Shipping Administration were inefficient.

They told the House Merchant Marine Committee that nearly $14,000,000,000 in adjustments had to be made in two annual accounts to make them balance.

Thomas H. Reavis, principal investigator for the accounting office, said the Maritime Commission's accounts in 1942 were so confused no audit could be made. To his knowledge, some $54,000,000 of adjustments still have not been properly accounted for, he added.

Demand Grand Jury Probe

Arthur P. Erb, head of the office's field auditing division, said the two agencies explained that they lacked enough competent accountants to keep pace with wartime activities.

Representative Weichel (R., Ohio) demanded that three examples of what Erb called slipshod accounting be investigated by a grand jury.

Two involved a Kaiser shipyard on the West Coast and the Worthington Pump Company. Erb did not identify the companies further.

He said in the Kaiser case $2,000,000 had been advanced by the commission for facilities but was listed on the books as expenses. In the Worthington case, $1,400,000 was advanced for machinery and again listed as expenses.

Money Was Paid Back

This, Erb said, resulted in the commission "losing control" of the accounts, although in each instance the money was paid back.

The third involved a tanker, torpedoed April 18, 1942. Two days afterward, Erb said, an East Coast port officer signed a certificate stating that the ship, which was damaged but able to move under its own power, was seaworthy.

The ship was sent to Baltimore for $1,500,000 worth of repairs, Erb said, and the company—unidentified by him—received $216,000 in charter fees while the ship was under repair. This money, he said, has been repaid to the Government but under protest.

SEES NO FRAUD IN SHIP BOARD

JUL 18 1946

But Auditor Tells Of Lax Accounting System.

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—E. W. Bell of the General Accounting Office testified today that the records of the Maritime Commission and the War Shipping Administration were incorrect and incomplete but that "on the face of the records that we have examined we have found no fraud."

Bell, chief of the auditing division, was the first witness before the House Merchant Marine Committee as it began an inquiry into the two agencies's accounting methods.

Bell said that, although the general accounting had not, at this time, found any indication of fraud it had found numerous instances of lax accounting methods in both shipping agencies. As illustrations, he offered the following instances:

The payment of $25,000 for a "memory course." He said this charge had been placed on a bill by a company which he did not name and that the company had been paid. This error he said was later discovered and the money returned. Bell did not specify who took the course or which agency received the bill.

A New Year's party was given by the War Shipping Administration for an unidentified ship to cheer up the passengers because the ship's departure was delayed. Bell said negotiations still are underway to get the money expended back because the accounting office felt that the Government should not have footed the bill.

The Maritime Commission was unaware for a year that it owned a warehouse in Emoryville, Cal., which held more than $2,000,000 worth of supplies.

Contractors, not receiving prompt payment on a first bill, sometimes would send a second one and discover that both were paid. In one case, Bell said, a contractor (whom he did not identify) returned $250,000 of such duplicate payments.

Bell said that the Washington records of the agencies were almost perfect. The laxity, he said, was found principally in the accounting methods of the field offices and in plants.

WSA Defends Operations.

The War Shipping Adminstration today took exception to a Government auditors' report that $8,000,000,000 turned over to the WSA and the Maritime Commission prior to July, 1943, has not been properly accounted for.

In a report submitted to the House Merchant Marine Committee, the War Shipping Agency said that the use of that phrase had caused a misconception as to the WSA's honesty, whereas it said the auditors had not actually made any charge of misappropriation of funds or similar irregularity.

There may have been some technical imperfections in its bookkeeping at the height of the war, the WSA said, but its operations were honest and effective.

Capt. Granville Conway, WSA administrator, gave the committee a copy of a letter he wrote Comptroller General Lindsay Warren, saying in part:

"I am certain that you will agree your (auditors') report was not intended to convey the impression that a total of $8,007,163,990.80, or any other part of the money appropriated for the use of the Maritime Commission and the WSA, has not been properly accounted for."

Generals Reveal Ends for Long-range Setup.

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—Plans for a permanent regular army of 1,000,000 men and officers confronted Congress today after a closed-door session of the Senate Military Committee. The pre-war 1939 strength was 188,000.

Senators who listened to top-ranking Army planners said the long-range setup calls for 400,000 in the Air Forces, 300,000 in the Ground Forces, 175,000 in the Service Forces, and 125,000 in training.

Lieut.-Gen. J. Lawton Collins, a ground troop leader in the last war, and Major-Gen. Lauris Norstad, who directed air operations, sat in the closed session with the lawmakers, some of whom have questioned the need for doubling the present strength of 25,000 regular Army officers to 50,000.

These Senators, who asked that their names not be used, objected that the War Department was asking for its long range post-war authority in pieces, instead of presenting an over-all picture.

Need 100,000 Officers.

Armed with carefully covered charts and detailed plans, the Army leaders explained that they would need not 50,000 but at least 100,000 officers to lead the peacetime forces.

In addition to the 50,000 professionals or career officers, they said another 50,000 would be obtained from the National Guard, organized reserve and similar units. These officers would be taken for three-year tours of active duty with some of them qualifying for regular places.

Army leaders also outlined plans for an organized reserve of 200,000 and National Guard units of 680,000, all fully manned and equipped for prompt call and duty.

The Air Forces plan seventy permanent groups with twenty-eight of them stationed in Panama, Hawaii and Alaska. Each overseas group would have from 5,000 to 8,000 men. Also located in these overseas bases would be four divisions of ground troops of 15,000 each.

Tighter Deferment Rules.

In September, men of 19 through 29 will have to be indispensable and irreplaceable to the national existence if they are to hope for draft deferment.

That was the word sent out to State draft directors yesterday by Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey, who said the Army wants 25,000 men in September. A holiday on all inductions is in force during July and August. The last call, in June, was for 50,000 men.

Hershey acted shortly after President Truman authorized induction of men in the 19-30 age span.

Exceptions to the tighter deferment rules are farmers and farm hands who, by congressional mandate, are virtually draft exempt.

Hershey also directed a review of men classified as unfit for service and reconsideration of certain low-point discharges.

Maritime Commission Planning to Relieve Metal Shortage

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP)—The former French liner Normandie, now the U.S.S. Lafayette, is slated to be broken up in the current drive to relieve the scrap-metal shortage, a Maritime Commission spokesman said tonight.

Sunk at a pier in New York after a fire on Feb. 9, 1942, the great vessel was salvaged, but never was refitted for use. At the time the ship sank, she was being converted into a troop carrier.

John R. Steelman, reconversion director, said on Monday that because a scrap-metal shortage threatened to curtail steel production the commission would be directed to list surplus ships for the scrap heap.

The commission spokesman said President Truman's permission had been asked to include the Normandie among the ships to be broken up.

Output of War Planes In June Dropped to 62

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP).—Military aircraft production totaled sixty-two planes in June, the lowest since October, 1939.

The Aircraft Industries Association, announcing the figures today, said that the June output included forty-three fighters, nine bombers, seven transports and three helicopters.

An industry spokesman said the low output was largely due to failure to receive engines for jet-propelled planes. He said the industry still hopes to reach the 1946 goal of around 2,000 military aircraft. Output in the first six months was 637.

The Commerce Department announced that May production of civil aircraft totaled 3,073 units having a value of $24,148,751.

REDS DROP CHARGES AGAINST EMBASSY AIDE

JUL 18 1946

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP) Russia has dropped charges of "hooliganism" against Waldo Ruess, 36, a clerk in the American embassy in Moscow, and has granted him permission to leave the country, the State department announced today.

Ruess left Moscow by plane today for the United States.

He had been charged with an unspecified type of "hooliganism" against a Soviet actress several months ago. Despite vigorous representations by the American ambassador, Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, who claimed diplomatic immunity for Ruess, the Soviet government had declined to drop the charges.

State department officials disclosed that the reason the Soviet government gave for yielding was that the actress withdrew her charges.

U. S. Envoy to Return To Yugoslavia

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—Richard C. Patterson, American Ambassador to Yugoslavia, will leave July 26 to return to his post in Belgrade, the State Department said today. Patterson has been conferring with State Department officials in Washington for the last three months.

The spokesman also disclosed that the United States has received no request from Yugoslavia to turn over Constantin Fotitch, former Yugosiav Ambassador here who was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment by a Yugosiav court. Fotitch, who is now in Washington, was tried in absentia on charges of treason.

Truman Sees New Envoy to Australia

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—Robert Butler, the first United States Ambassador to Australia, called at the White House today to thank President Truman for naming him to the post. The St. Paul (Minn.) shipbuilder, banker and construction executive said he would spend the next month being briefed on his duties before leaving for Australia.

Truman Nominates Gen. Lewis

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP).—President Truman sent to the Senate today the nomination of Brigadier General Henry B. Lewis as assistant adjutant general of the army for a four-year-term. He succeeds Brigadier General Thomas J. Davis, who is retiring.

Army Ordered to Stop Secret Phone Recording

JUL 18 1946

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The War Department has prohibited its officers and employes from recording any more telephone conversations without notifying the other party that it is being done.

The order, issued by Secretary Robert P. Patterson, followed up testimony before the Senate War Investigating Committee that recording devices were attached to many War Department telephones and that transcripts were made of calls by members of Congress.

The text of Mr. Patterson's order, dated July 12, was as follows:

"Although the usefulness of telephone recording machines is recognized in expediting the conduct of business, no officer or employe of the Army will make such recordings unless he informs the other party participating in the telephone conversation that the recording is being made."

Army Picks Winter-Test Chiefs

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP)—Col. William H. Wood, former head football coach at West Point, will command Army "Task Force Williwaw" in a grueling test of winter operations at Adak in the Aleutians, the War Department said tonight. The "Williwaw" group is one of three forces, totaling 4,500 officers and men, which will test winter equipment and tactics under varying conditions. Williwaw is the name of a windstorm prevalent at Adak, Col. Paul A. Reichle was named commander of "Task Force Frigid" at Ladd Field, Alaska, and Col. Rudolph W. Broedlow of "Task Force Frost" at Camp McCoy, Wis.

Truman Not Flying to Coast

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP).—President Truman said today he does not plan to fly to San Francisco on Monday to attend an Army Air Forces celebration and a Shrine convention. Hamilton Air Field officials at San Francisco had reported that he was planning such a trip and reporters told the President of this report. Mr. Truman replied that there was nothing to it and that he was not going. He was contacted by news men in the White House lobby as he returned from lunch with employees of the Executive offices. Previously, the President told a news conference that the pressure of affairs at Washington would not permit his attending the Shrine meeting, much as he would like to.

ABSENTEES BLOCK CONFERENCE VOTE ON OPA REVISION

JUL 18 1946

Senator Barkley Sees No Hope of Decision Before Friday.

TOBEY DEMANDS SPEED

Rep. Spence Promises to Act 'When the Time Comes.'

WASHINGTON, July 17. — (AP)

A Senate-House conference on the OPA bill virtually marked time today and Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) reported action unlikely before Friday on modifications the Administration seeks.

NIGHT

With Barkley himself and other senators absent, the House conferees, who have taken a stand against the specific ceiling exemptions which the Senate voted, submitted no formal compromise proposals.

JUL 18 1946

Accused of 'Dawdling'

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) reported they appeared unwilling to do so with senators absent but Senator Tobey (R-NH) accused them of "dawdling" and told reporters that "all they want to do is talk."

"Feelings are tense," he added. "The time has come to fish or cut bait."

Rep. Spence (D-Ky), head of the House conferees, said that "we will make a move when the time comes. Nobody can put the chips down faster than we can."

The sane situation apparently will prevail tomorrow.

In the forenoon the conference committee will take up an unrelated bill dealing with the price of silver, on which the Senate and House have long been in dispute. Barkley said he will be absent in the afternoon because of another engagement.

Asked whether the delay on pressing to a vote on the provisions of the OPA bill is intentional, Barkley declared that "there is no significance" to it.

Discussion General

The provisions of the measure were discussed in general terms at today's meeting.

The session finally broke up when senators were called to the floor for a vote on another matter.

Meanwhile there was a fresh indication of Mr. Truman's displeasure with the measure as it stands.

The White House released a report of the War Reconversion Advisory board calling for a bill which would renew price controls for a year while "simplifying present procedures and liberalizing existing standards." A White House statement releasing the report added:

"This action shall in no wise be construed as an endorsement of the proposed legislation now pending before Congress."

Taft Refuses to Yield

House conferees sought to get the senators to agree to abandon provisions exempting meat, milk and other items from price ceilings as the sessions continued behind closed doors. But Senator Taft (R-Ohio) told reporters he is unwilling to yield an inch, and "if the President wants to veto it, then let him veto it."

30.24-4197

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) nevertheless voiced hope for quick action.

Mr. Truman was represented in some Capitol quarters as having in effect offered his own compromise, by which he might accept some provisions of the Senate bill which he considers objectionable if price controls are restored on the food items.

The forenoon conference session was given over principally to an argument between Barkley and Taft on formulae for allowing price increases based upon increased production costs.

Members of the War Reconversion Advisory board include Eric Johnston, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Ed O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Albert Goss, master of the National Grange; James G. Patton, head of the Farmers union; William Green, A.F.L. Chief, and Philip Murray, C.I.O. president.

The board said abandonment of OPA will leave the country unprotected "against a dangerous rise in prices in the interval before economic forces are working."

BARKLEY SAYS OPA DEADLOCK MAY BE BROKEN BY TONIGHT

JUL 18 1946

Downey Also Sees Chance of Accord—House Conferees Demand Food Controls.

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—Optimism that the price control deadlock may be broken before nightfall was voiced by Senate Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky today after a Senate-House committee canvassed the possibilities of compromise.

Senator Downey (D.-Cal.), another member of the fourteen-man committee, told reporters "there is a possibility" that an agreement can be worked out "before the day ends." They talked to reporters when the committee recessed its deliberations for lunch.

It was learned that at the meeting, House members insisted that the Senate drop the bans in its new bill against price controls of meats, butter, eggs and a long list of other items of the housewife's market basket.

Word circulated that President Truman probably would veto any measure which came to him with these exemptions.

Board Asks Controls Be Kept.

While the conference committee was at work, the White House made public a declaration from the War Reconversion Advisory Board that abandonment of price controls will leave the nation unprotected "against a dangerous rise in prices in the interval before the normal economic forces are working."

"Proper provision should be made to extend the life of OPA for a period not to exceed one year," the board said in a report to President Truman.

At the Capitol, there were reports that Mr. Truman's stand was this: He would sign the new bill, overlooking other objections, if Congress knocks out the exemptions of meat and other foods from price controls. House members of the conference committee were reported urging that as a basis for compromise.

Downey told reporters that "if Senators Tobey (R.-N. H.) and Radcliffe (D.-Md.) will agree" to the House members' proposal "this conference can end quickly." The Californian added that Senators Barkley and Wagner (D.-N. Y.) would go along with such a compromise.

Thinks Truman Would Sign.

"That would not be a good bill even then," the Californian said, "but I believe the President would sign it."

The conference committee comprises these members:

Senators Barkley, Wagner, Downey, Radcliffe, Taft, Tobey and Milliken (R.-Col.).

Representatives Spence (D.-Ky.), Brown (D.-Ga.), Patman (D.-Tex.), Barry (D.-N. Y.), Wolcott (R.-Mich.), Crawford (R.-Mich.) and Gamble (R.-N. Y.).

The Reconversion Advisory Board indorsed continued price control last April and its new report was a reaffirmation of that stand. It advised that this was the unanimous sentiment of the board as embodied in a resolution adopted yesterday. The board includes representatives of business, agriculture and labor.

Its resolution asserted that the unanimous sentiment developed after "months of discussion and consideration, and despite widely varying viewpoints and differences of opinion" in the past.

"It is essential that the termination of price control be brought about without unnecessary delay, yet in an orderly manner," it said. "This can be accomplished only through the adoption of a positive program embracing timely measures of decontrol and gradual discontinuation of cost-of-living subsidies together with the maintenance of courageous fiscal and monetary policies to combat inflation."

Members of Advisory Board.

Members of the board include Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange; Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union; Labor Leaders William Green, Philip Murray and T. C. Cashew; Anna M. Rosenberg, Nathaniel Dyke Jr., Eric A. Johnston and George M. Mead.

The board said of its resolution: "This action shall in no wise be construed as an indorsement of the proposed legislation now pending before the Congress."

The board said it was "also essential" that during the period of the extension of the OPA's life "the inequities and obstacles to maximum production must by administrative action be reduced to the minimum by simplifying present procedures and liberalizing existing standards."

INVENTORY CURBS IMPOSED BY CPA

Manufacturers Barred from Holding Finished Goods Off Market.

WASHINGTON, July 17 — (AP) To prevent hoarding at the factory of scarce household appliances and other goods in hopes of higher prices, the Civilian Production administration tonight clamped stern inventory controls on manufacturers.

The anti-withholding order limits to a supply of 30 days or less the stocks of nearly a score of finished products which may be held in factories or warehouses. The rest must be moved to market.

Furniture Included

The goods affected include furniture, refrigerators, washing machines, electric ranges, sewing machines and vacuum cleaners, cameras and photographic equipment and some building materials.

Simultaneously CPA tightened its control on the supplies of 27 materials and parts which manufacturers may keep in inventory. This is to prevent firms from buying them up and holding them as a hedge against rising raw materials prices.

"What we are after is to see that scarce materals go to the manufacturer whose finished products go immediately to the consumer, rather than to those who plan to withhold manufactured products awaiting possible price increases," said CPA Administrator John D. Small in a statement.

First Controls

The action is the first inventory control ever applied to finished consumer goods, except for the curbs imposed in May on men's clothing and women's hosiery. The reason was similar — to prevent manufacturers' withholding which was prevalent, a CPA spokesman said, because of expectations that price control would be killed.

Little hoarding is known to exist in the household goods industries covered today, this official said, "but we want to eliminate the possibility of it."

The order specifies that a manufacturer may not hold in inventory more than 30 days' output of his goods, or not more than a "practicable minimum working inventory," whichever is less.

"This means that if a manufacturer now has an excess inventory of any of the listed manufactured products, he has the choice of either increasing his sales or curtailing production," Small explained.

Aug. 15 Deadline

Manufacturers have until Aug. 15 to bring their inventories into line with the new ruling, which was issued as an amendment to Priorities Regulation 32.

The action is one of the measures intended by CPA to keep intact its controls over the flow of essential supplies should price control not be restored. The first, an order forbidding any seller from quoting a higher price to a priority holder than to any other buyer, was issued two weeks ago.

A third action, limiting exports, may be taken. Some officials fear that exporters, with their ceilings removed, may ship out a flood of goods needed by the domestic economy.

"Amazingly little evidence" of such a flood has developed so far, Small told reporters yesterday. Perhaps no such action will be taken—certainly not, he said, if Congress passes a new OPA act.

Besieds the goods named, the new anti-withholding order covers bed springs, matresses, metal beds and other bedding products; galvanized ware; miscellaneous electrical appliances; and the following building materials; asphalt and tarred roofing, building board made from woodpulp, pressed paper, or vegetable fibers; gypsum board; gypsum lath, metal windows; cast iron soil pipe; metal plastering base; insect screen cloth.

Imports Climb in April But Export Figures Drop

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP).—The Census Bureau reported today imports in April totaled $406,000,000, up $22,000,000 from March, while exports fell from $815,000,000 in March to $758,000,000 in April.

The rise in imports was attributed to increased shipments from Japan, Mexico, Canada, Chile and Brazil. A drop of $51,000,000 in exports to Europe was declared the principal cause of the decline in total exports.

April exports to the United Kingdom and France, then awaiting major loans from the United States, declined by $22,000,000 (to $62,000,000) and $10,000,000 (to $77,000,000) respectively.

Imports from the United Kingdom declined about $3,000,000 (to $11,000,000) while imports from France rose $1,500,000 (to $5,000,000).

Exports to Russia fell almost $2,000,000 (to $30,000,000) while imports from Russia rose over $3,500,000 (to $7,700,000).

Imports from Japan jumped from $220,000 in March to $11,000,000 in April as a result of arrival of increased raw silk shipments.

April exports of $104,000,000 to Canada were $6,000,000 above March. Imports from Latin America rose $4,000,000 in April to a $151,000,000 level, with gains of $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 each in imports from Mexico, Brazil, Chile and Argentina.

U.S. Pay Roll Drops By $13,000,000,000

JUL 18 1946

Decline Since V-J Day Is on Annual Basis

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP).—Federal pay rolls—military and civilian—have dropped $13,000,000,000 on an annual rate basis since V-J Day, Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace said today.

His report listed government wage and salary payments, figured on an annual rate basis, as military, $17,000,000,000, down $11,000,000,000 due to demobilization of 9,000,000 persons, and civilian, $12,000,000,000, down $2,000,000,000 due to a drop of more than 500,000 workers.

Private industry wage and salary payments were unchanged at $84,000,000,000. By categories, they were down one-third in durable goods manufacturing, up one-seventh in non-durable goods manufacturing, and 15 per cent higher in non-manufacturing industry.

The average weekly wage of individual jobholders was "about the same" in the April-through-June period as in the same months of war-time 1945, "since the reduction in hours and in overtime premium pay and shifts to lower-paying jobs have been almost exactly offset by increased wage rates," Mr. Wallace said.

Gross average hourly wages in private industry, Mr. Wallace said, increased seven per cent from April, 1945, to April this year, with increases of thirteen per cent in non-durable goods manufacturing industries and ten per cent in durable goods manufacturing.

CONGRESS TO GO HOME BUT WILL KEEP DOOR OPEN

JUL 18 1946

Washington, July 17—(AP)—Congress is planning to go home soon, but it probably won't lock up shop for the year.

The program now being discussed, key legislators said today, is to try and quit July 27, or soon thereafter.

But instead of adjourning sine die (finally), they plan to take an indefinite recess so that they can reassemble without the need of a Presidential proclamation if any major problem should develop before the new Congress meets in January.

House Republican Leader Joseph Martin of Massachusetts said his party probably will accept whatever plan best suits the House leadership.

Veterans Incorporation Bill Passed By Senate

Washington, July 17 (AP)—The Senate passed and sent to the House today a bill which would grant incorporation to the American Veterans of World War II.

This is the first World War II organization to win such action.

The Judiciary Committee reported it has 730 posts with 65,000 members.

Veterans' Insurance Bill O.K.'d By Senate

Washington, July 17 (AP)—The Senate today approved a bill to liberalize the life insurance plan for service men of World War II. The measure was returned to the House for action on changes.

Senator Johnson (D., Col.) said veterans' organizations asked modifications that would cost $2,215,000,000, the House approved changes that would cost $1,817,000,000, and the Senate proposed $1,685,000,000.

Among the other things, the bill would make certain that step-parents designated as beneficiaries would be paid. In addition, it would cancel lapses of policies which resulted when the insured was discharged to accept a commission, was restored to active duty after being a.w.o.l., or was put back on active duty, required to fight or died in combat after being court-martialed.

HOOVER SEES FOOD RISE

JUL 18 1946

'Acute' Shortage in Starving Areas Near End, He Says

CHICAGO, July 17 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover, who recently completed a survey of the world food situation at President Truman's request, said today he expected "acute" food shortages in "the starving countries" to be ended by August.

Mr. Hoover, stopping off in Chicago en route to his home in Palo Alto, Calif., told newsmen the crop situation in the Northern Hemisphere was good, and added: "I expect the acute situation in the starving countries to be over by August, when the Northern Hemisphere crops are in."

"The situation will be tight for another year, but it will not be acute," he said. "Very heavy United States shipments of food should cease after about mid-August. Mass starvation, meaning starvation of whole villages and towns, has been prevented, something I didn't think last February could be done."

Mr. Hoover said countries situated in the Southern Hemisphere were just planting now, "but under favorable conditions."

DEPORTATION CASE MEETS NEW DELAY

JUL 18 1946

RENO, Nev., July 17 — (AP) Deportation proceedings against Mrs. Jean Carbone Beschen, pretty English war bride, today were in abeyance pending arrival of affidavits from London attesting to her good moral character.

There are other things too that Mrs. Beschen, who got into difficulties by joining an air corps captain instead of her husband on arrival in this country, must prove when hearings are resumed, her attorney, John Robb Clarke, admitted today.

Clarke won a contested Reno divorce for his client two weeks ago from Harold Carbone of Rochester, N. Y. Now she must prove she did not deceive the immigration service by ignoring her husband for Capt. Darrell Beschen of Dubuque, Ia.

She also must prove that Beschen, whom she married after divorcing Carbone, can support her.

Clarke said the immigration officers here have agreed to transfer her case file to Shreveport, La., where Beschen is stationed, if it is so desired.

The attorney predicted the proceedings will wait until next January. Then, if she is ordered deported, he intends throwing the case into Federal court "where it can stay until eternity," he said.

R.A.F. PLANES ARRIVE

MITCHEL FIELD, N.Y., July 17 (AP)—Sixteen Lancaster bombers of the Royal Air force landed on schedule at 4 p.m. (EDT) today to begin a 30-day goodwill tour of the United States under the auspices of the Army Air Forces.

The planes will fly in review over Manhattan at noon tomorrow. The 207 officers and men of the crews will leave Saturday for Scott field, Ill., second scheduled stop on the tour.

G. I. Is Shot Dead By Fort Dix M. P.'s

Fort Dix, July 17 (A. P.).—The public relations office of Fort Dix announced yesterday that Pfc. Albert Hodge, 22 years old, of Closplint, Ky., had been shot to death in an attempt to escape from the custody of two military policemen who were escorting him to a detention barracks.

The Army reported that Hodge served overseas from January 8, 1946, to June 29, 1946, and had been stationed before that at Fort Wadsworth, N. Y., after entering the Army on August 10, 1944. It gave no further details.

Anglo-U. S. Pooling Of Radar Data Asked

Buffalo, July 17 (A. P.).—Sir Robert Watson-Watt, British pioneer in the development of radar, says the United States and Great Braitain must pool their knowledge of radar to develop a system to benefit all mankind.

"It is too expensive and impractical to maintain separate radar systems between the two countries," he said in an interview yesterday. The British scientist, who is deputy chairman of the radio board of the British Cabinet, was in Buffalo to witness a demonstration of marine radar equipment aboard a Great Lakes vessel.

KAMIKAZE PILOTS FLY FOR BRITISH IN FRENCH INDO-CHINA

JUL 18 1946

NEW YORK, July 17. —(AP) Japanese Kamikaze fliers who did not get a chance to blast themselves into Shinto heaven against Allied warships have been spending the postwar months piloting British army personnel in French Indo-China, says Hassolt Davis, author and explorer, who has just returned from the Far East.

Davis, Boston-born veteran of the Free French army, campaigned with British and French forces against the Viet Minh, Indonesian independence movement, before a peace treaty was signed last March 5.

At that time, he said, "big and tough and surly" ex-Kamikazes were employed extensively in ferrying British and French troops into the interior for operations against "Japanese-led bandits" associated with the Indo-China nationalists. He believes the Japanese suicide pilots are still helping disarm approximately 7,000 Japanese who he said continue to aid Indo-China bandits in the back country.

"The Kamikazes are good pilots. I rode with them on three long flights without any suggestion of trouble," said Davis in his trophy-lined flat on lower Fifth avenue. Still in the uniform of the French army, which he joined in Africa early in the war, the 39-year-old author of "Half Past When" and other works of exploration and adventure was about to leave for Maine to complete a new book on his Far East experiences.

"Most of the Japanese prisoners in Indo-China are servile little chaps," he said. "But the Kamikaze pilots are big — some of them about six feet — and they're arrogant. But the British pay them good money for flying their planes on non-military operations."

With Brig. Gen. "Moke" Murray, British commander, Davis flew from Saigon to Angkhor Wat last February. "Our pilot was a Kamikaze flying a British bomber," said Davis. "He could not speak English and communicated with no one. But he did his job well. Murray said the fellow had been captured in Indo-China."

"Come to think of it," the explorer remarked, "you'd think they might seize the chance to crash with a plane load of Allied 'brass', but so far as I know such a thing has never happened. Maybe they want to live, just like everyone else."

LONDON, JULY 17-(AP)-LONDON NEWSPAPERS TODAY EXPRESSED AN EDITORIAL WELCOME TOWARD A PROPOSED GOVERNMENT INQUIRY INTO OWNERSHIP OF THE BRITISH PRESS AND THE EXTENT OF FINANCIAL AND ADVERTISING INFLUENCE ON ITS PRESENTATION OF THE NEWS.

HERBERT MORRISON, LORD PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL IN THE LABOR GOVERNMENT, TOLD THE HOUSE OF COMMONS LAST NIGHT THAT THE GOVERNMENT HAD DECIDED AN INQUIRY INTO THE PRESS WAS "WORTH CONSIDERATION."

"THE PRESS HAS NEITHER THE RIGHT NOR REASON TO SHUN DISPASSIONATE INQUIRY," SAID THE TIMES IN ITS LEADING EDITORIAL. THE TIMES WARNED, HOWEVER, THAT IT WOULD BE DIFFICULT WITH THE BEST INTENTION TO FRAME ANY REMEDIAL LEGISLATION WITHOUT STRIKING "AT A PRIMARY LIBERTY OF THE PEOPLE TO READ WHAT THEY LIKE."

THE DAILY MAIL SAID THE SUGGESTION OF AN INQUIRY IN ITSELF WAS "PERFECTLY HARMLESS" BUT DECLARED IT WAS SYMPTOMATIC OF "AN ANTAGONISM TO FREE SPEECH."

THE DAILY GRAPHIC SAID THE MOVE FOR AN INQUIRY WAS "IN THE HOPE THAT BY SO DOING THEY (THE GOVERNMENT) WILL DIVERT SOME OF THE INDIGNATION ROUSED BY A SUCCESSION OF MUDDLES AWAY FROM THE PROPER TARGET, WHICH IS THE GOVERNMENT."

GOVERNMENT SOURCES SAID PRIME MINISTER ATTLEE HAD NOT MADE UP HIS MIND THAT AN INQUIRY WAS NECESSARY, BUT "THE CABINET HAVE COME TO A GENERAL CONCLUSION THAT THERE MAY BE A CASE FOR INVESTIGATION IN VIEW OF THE RESOLUTION PASSED BY THE NATIONAL UNION OF JOURNALISTS."

IF AN INQUIRY IS LAUNCHED, IT WOULD BE BY A ROYAL COMMISSION HEADED BY A HIGH COURT JUDGE, THIS SOURCE SAID.

THE NATIONAL UNION OF JOURNALISTS AT ITS CONVENTION IN LIVERPOOL IN APRIL URGED AN INVESTIGATION INTO THE OWNERSHIP, CONTROL AND FINANCING OF BRITISH NEWSPAPERS.

NEW YORK, JULY 17-(AP)- THE UNITED NATIONS INTERNATIONAL HEALTH CONFERENCE VOTED TODAY TO ADMIT NEW MEMBERS BY A SIMPLE MAJORITY AFTER OVERRIDING RUSSIAN [redacted] DEMANDS FOR A TWO-THIRDS APPROVAL. THE VOTE WAS 25-22.

JUL 18 1946

THE DECISION MEANS THAT THE 51 UNITED NATIONS AND 16 OBSERVER

NATION COUNTRIES AUTOMATICALLY QUALIFY FOR THE WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION NOW BEING SET UP BUT THAT ALL OTHER NATIONS, INCLUDING SPAIN, MUST BE APPROVED VOTED UPON BY A MAJORITY.

THIS STEP FOLLOWED DEFEAT OF A PROPOSAL TO ADMIT ANY COUNTRY WHICH MERELY AGREED TO ACCEPT THE CONSTITUTION OF THE GLOBAL HEALTH AGENCY.

DR. G.B. CHISHOLM OF CANADA EXPRESSED OPPOSITION TO DISCRIMINATION AGAINST COUNTRIES ON POLITICAL GROUNDS "SINCE THE WORLD CANNOT AFFORD TO HAVE GAPS IN ITS DEFENSE AGAINST DISEASES."

JUL 18 1946

DR. N.T. EVSTAFIEV OF WHITE RUSSIA EXPRESSED SURPRISE THAT SPAIN SHOULD EVEN BE CONSIDERED SO LONG AS GENERALISSIMO FRANCO REMAINED IN POWER. SUCH ENTRY HAD BEEN ADVOCATED BY PARAGUAY, ARGENTINE AND CHILE.

DR. FEDOR KROTOV OF RUSSIA, WHO STRONGLY SUPPORTED THE TWO-THIRDS VOTE, SAID HE WONDERED WHY DELEGATES ADVOCATING THE ADMISSION OF SPAIN DID NOT ALSO SPEAK FOR THE ENTRY OF JAPAN AND GERMANY.

"AS FAR AS THE USSR IS CONCERNED," HE SAID, "MY GOVERNMENT IS NOT OPPOSED TO THE ADMISSION OF SPAIN SO LONG AS ITS REQUEST FOR MEMBERSHIP IN THE WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION IS MADE BY A DEMOCRATIC SPANISH GOVERNMENT."

(RUSSIA HAS SUPPORTED THE SPANISH REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT IN EXILE, HEADED BY PREMIER JOSE GIRAL).

THE W.H.O. OFFICIALLY WILL COME INTO BEING WHEN 26 OF THE UNITED NATIONS ACCEPT THE CONSTITUTION NOW BEING DRAFTED. UNDER PRESENT PROVISIONS SPAIN MAY THEN APPLY FOR MEMBERSHIP AND CAN BE ADMITTED BY THE MAJORITY VOTE.

THE YOUNGEST OF 21 NAZI DEFENDANTS TOLD THE COURT THROUGH HIS COUNSEL DR. FRITZ SAUTER, THAT HE HAS REALIZED HIS MISTAKE IN GIVING BLIND LOYALTY TO A "MAN WHO DIDN'T DESERVE IT."

SAUTER RECALLED THAT SCHIRACH WAS HIDING IN THE TYROL AFTER GERMANY'S CAPITULATION WHEN THE ALLIED RADIO ANNOUNCED THAT PARTY LEADERS WOULD BE PLACED ON TRIAL AND THAT HE SURRENDERED VOLUNTARILY TO TAKE FULL RESPONSIBILITY AS THE CREATOR OF THE HITLER YOUTH.

KILIAN'S LAWYER THEN CHALLENGED BOTH THE PROSECUTOR, MAJOR JOSEPH S. ROBINSON OF NEW YORK CITY, AND THE COURT'S LAW MEMBER, COL. WILLIAM H. BECK, JR., OF GRIFFIN, GA. THE COURT REFUSED, HOWEVER, TO REMOVE EITHER OF THEM FROM THE CASE.

ALL THIS HAPPENED IN ONE DRAMATIC HOUR THAT BROUGHT TO A CLIMAX DISPUTES WHICH HAVE KEPT THE KILIAN TRIAL IN TURMOIL FOR WEEKS--BOTH INSIDE AND OUTSIDE THE COURTROOM.

SWEENEY, READING A PREPARED STATEMENT, TOLD THE COURT THAT, ALTHOUGH HE DENIED ANY BIAS, "INASMUCH AS I AM CONSIDERING PREFERRING CHARGES AGAINST THE TRIAL JUDGE ADVOCATE (PROSECUTOR), I CONSIDER IT IMPROPER FOR ME TO CONTINUE ANY LONGER AS A MEMBER OF THIS COURT. I ASK THAT I BE PERMITTED TO WITHDRAW WITHOUT PREJUDICE."

JUL 18 1946

"THE COURT SUSTAINS THE CHALLENGE AND COLONEL SWEENEY WILL WITHDRAW," ANNOUNCED THE COURT PRESIDENT, BRIG. GEN. ROBERT MONTAGUE OF LOUISVILLE, KY.

SWEENEY, A GREY-HAIRED REGULAR ARMY VETERAN, SERVED ANGRY NOTICE ON ROBINSON LAST SATURDAY THAT HE CONTEMPLATED SIGNING COURT MARTIAL CHARGES ACCUSING ROBINSON OF "CONDUCT UNBECOMING AN OFFICER" AND OF BRINGING FALSE ACCUSATIONS AGAINST HIM IN CONNECTION WITH ROBINSON'S TWO PREVIOUS CHALLENGES OF SWEENEY'S IMPARTIALITY.

"I BEAR NO ANIMOSITY TOWARD THE TRIAL JUDGE ADVOCATE," SWEENEY TOLD THE COURT. "HOWEVER, CERTAIN OFFICIAL STEPS HAVE BEEN TAKEN AGAINST ME WHICH ARE WITHOUT BASIS IN FACT OR FICTION AND HAVE LED TO EMBARRASSMENT AND HUMILIATION ON MY PART.

JUL 18 1946

"IN PREPARING THE CHARGES AGAINST THE TRIAL JUDGE ADVOCATE I SEEK ONLY TO VINDICATE MY OWN REPUTATION. I DO NOT SEEK REVENGE."

AFTER HE WAS EXCUSED FROM THE COURT SWEENEY WALKED OVER TO ROBINSON WITH A SMILE AND SHOOK HIS HAND.

ROBINSON HAD ACCUSED SWEENEY OF CONCEALING A LONG FRIENDSHIP WITH KILIAN, FORMER LICHFIELD COMMANDER, AND WITH HOSTILITY TOWARD THE PROSECUTION.

IN DEMANDING BECK'S REMOVAL FROM THE COURT, THE DEFENSE ATTORNEY, LT. COL. RAYMOND E. FORD OF FORT PIERCE, FLA., ACCUSED THE LAW MEMBER OF "HOSTILITY TOWARD THE DEFENDANT AND FRIENDSHIP AND CLOSE ASSOCIATION WITH THE PROSECUTION."

HE PUT BECK ON THE WITNESS STAND AND QUESTIONED HIM ABOUT HIS LEGAL RULINGS, WHICH HE COMPLAINED BECK HAD REPEATEDLY REFUSED TO EXPLAIN.

"ISN'T IT A FACT THAT YOU WERE STRETCHING THE LAW AGAINST THE ACCUSED?" FORD ASKED.

"NO," BECK ANSWERED EMPHATICALLY. "I HAVE CALLED THEM AS NEAR AS I COULD SEE THEM AS I UNDERSTOOD THE LAW."

IT TOOK THE COURT ONLY 10 MINUTES IN SECRET SESSION TO UPHOLD BECK AND DENY THE CHALLENGE.

JUL 18 1946

THE COURT DID NOT EVEN BOTHER TO GO INTO SECRET SESSION TO DISMISS FORD'S CHALLENGE OF THE PROSECUTOR.

WITH SWEENEY'S REMOVAL, THE TRIAL WILL CONTINUE WITH ONE BRIGADIER GENERAL AND SIX COLONELS CONSTITUTING THE COURT, WHICH NUMBERED NINE OFFICERS AT THE OUTSET. ONE OFFICER WAS REMOVED PEREMPTORILY EARLY IN THE CASE.

DNEPR DAM, JULY 15-(DELAYED)-(AP)-RUSSIANS WORKING ON THE LARGEST SINGLE RECONSTRUCTION JOB IN POSTWAR EUROPE HOPE, WITH THE HELP OF AMERICAN EQUIPMENT, TO START PRODUCING ELECTRICITY FROM THE RESTORED DNEPER RIVER DAM BY NEXT DECEMBER.

HOWEVER, FEODOR LOGINOV, IN CHARGE OF THE GIANT RECONSTRUCTION PROJECT, SAID AMERICAN FIRMS WERE CHARGING DOUBLE PREWAR PRICES FOR SOME ELECTRICAL UNITS AND THAT RUSSIA MIGHT HAVE TO OBTAIN THE EQUIPMENT ELSEWHERE UNLESS SOME SORT OF PRICE AGREEMENT WERE EFFECTED.

"AT THAT RATE OF BARGAINING, THEY ARE TRYING TO TAKE OUR CLOTHES OFF," LOGINOV SAID AT SPECIAL PRESS CONFERENCE FOR THE FIRST GROUP OF FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS TO VISIT THE DAM SINCE IT WAS BLOWN UP IN 1941.

SOME AMERICAN EQUIPMENT ALREADY HAS ARRIVED HERE, HE SAID, BUT IF UNITED STATES FIRMS CONTINUE TO ASK HIGH PRICES, THE SOVIET UNION MAY MANUFACTURE MUCH OF THE MATERIAL WHICH SHE HAD HOPED TO PURCHASE FROM AMERICA. HE ADDED THAT SOME EQUIPMENT MAY BE BROUGHT FROM BRITAIN BECAUSE THE UNITED STATES CANNOT MEET CERTAIN ORDERS WITHIN A YEAR.

FOR THE LAST 33 MONTHS, RUSSIAN WORKMEN HAVE BEEN AT WORK ON THE DAM AND HYDRO-ELECTRIC DEVELOPMENT--GREATEST IN RUSSIA--AFTER THE RUSSIANS THEMSELVES AND THEN THE GERMANS TOOK TURNS IN WRECKING IT.

A PEAK OF 14,000 PERSONS HAVE BEEN EMPLOYED ON THE PROJECT. MANY OF THEM WERE UNEXPERIENCED COLLECTIVE FARMHANDS WHEN THEY FIRST STARTED WORK HERE. APPROXIMATELY TWO OUT OF FIVE WERE WOMEN AND GIRLS.

THE CORRESPONDENTS FOUND THAT THE MAIN STRUCTURE OF THE DAM HAD BEEN FULLY RESTORED. THEY WALKED ACROSS THE TOP OF THE HUGE STRUCTURE AND DROVE IN AUTOMOBILES THROUGH TUNNEL ROADS EXTENDING THE FULL LENGTH OF THE DAM JUST BELOW THE WATER LEVEL.

WORKMEN ARE NOW REBUILDING THE POWERHOUSE WHICH TURNED OUT 3,000,000,000 KILOWATT HOURS OF ELECTRICITY ANNUALLY FOR FACTORIES, MINES AND COLLECTIVE FARMS IN THE UKRAINE AND ELSEWHERE IN SOUTHERN RUSSIA.

JUL 18 1946

A47

THE RIVER PORT AREA ABOVE THE DAM, WHICH HANDLED THE MAJOR SHARE OF THE DNEPR'S PRE-WAR FREIGHT OF ABOUT 2,000,000 TONS A YEAR, IS HIGH AND DRY NOW, BUT IS EXPECTED TO BE BUSY AGAIN BY NEXT APRIL, FOLLOWING THE IMPOUNDING OF THE DNEPR'S WATERS.

LOGINOV SAID THAT ONE OF THE NINE TURBINE-GENERATOR ASSEMBLIES WOULD BE WORKING BY DECEMBER, AND THE ENTIRE RESTORATION JOB WOULD BE COMPLETED BY 1948.

THE RUSSIANS HAVE BOUGHT THREE GENERATORS FROM GENERAL ELECTRIC AND THREE TURBINES FROM NEWPORT NEWS SHIPBUILDING AND DAY DOCK COMPANY, LOGINOV SAID. PART OF THIS EQUIPMENT ALREADY HAS REACHED THE DAM, AND PART IS NOW IN ODESSA HARBOR.

"WE HAVE BEEN TRYING TO GET THREE ADDITIONAL GENERATORS FROM AMERICA, MAKING SIX IN ALL, BUT COSTS ARE HOLDING UP THE DEAL," HE SAID.

30. 24-4203

NEGOTIATIONS NOW ARE UNDERWAY TO BUY SWITCHES AND OTHER SPECIALIZED EQUIPMENT FROM THE SWITZERLAND PLANT OF THE ENGLISH ELECTRIC COMPANY, HE SAID, BECAUSE AMERICAN FIRMS CANNOT MAKE DELIVERY OF THIS EQUIPMENT FOR 14 MONTHS.

THE DAM, ONE OF THE NAZI'S PRINCIPAL TARGETS WHEN THEY INVADED THE UKRAINE IN 1941, WAS COMPLETED IN 1932. IT IS SITUATED AT ZAPOROZHE, 145 MILES FROM THE MOUTH OF THE DNEPR. EIGHTEEN THOUSAND WORKMEN TOILED FIVE YEARS TO BUILD THE PROJECT, AND AN AMERICAN ENGINEER, COL.HUGH COOPER, SERVED AS TECHNICAL ADVISER.

JUL 18 1946

IT IS A CONCRETE AND STEEL STRUCTURE 200 FEET HIGH AND FIVE-EIGHTHS OF A MILE LONG.

WHEN THE GERMANS REACHED THE DAM IN THE MIDSUMMER OF 1941, THEY FOUND THAT THE RUSSIANS HAD DYNAMITED A GAP ALONG THE TOP, ABOUT ONE-FIFTH OF THE STRUCTURE'S LENGTH. THIS DID NOT SERIOUSLY DAMAGE THE MAIN PART OF THE DAM, BUT PREVENTED THE GERMANS FROM USING THE ROADWAY ACROSS THE TOP. IN ADDITION, THE RUSSIANS HAD DISABLED CONSIDERABLE ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT, ALTHOUGH THEY HAD NOT DAMAGED THE POWERHOUSE.

WHEN THE RED ARMY RECAPTURED THE DAM IN 1943, IT FOUND THAT THE GERMANS HAD DESTROYED THE PROJECT WITH MALICIOUS THOROUGHNESS.

LOGINOV, WHO ARRIVED AT THE SITE IN MARCH, 1944, SAID CONCRETE EQUAL IN HEIGHT TO AN 11-STORY BUILDING HAD BEEN BLOWN AWAY FOR THREE-FOURTHS OF THE LENGTH OF THE DAM. THE POWERHOUSE HAD BEEN RAZED BY EXPLOSIVES, AND ALL GENERATORS AND TURBINES HAD BEEN DESTROYED.

ONLY 10 CIVILIANS OF THE PREWAR POPULATION OF 80,000 CRAWLED FROM THE RUBBLE OF ZAPOROZHE, HE SAID.

"THAT MEANT AN ENORMOUS JOB IN GETTING MANPOWER TO REBUILD THE DAM," LOGINOV SAID. "THE COUNTRY WAS STILL AT WAR AND WE DID NOT WANT TO ASK THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT FOR ANYTHING WE DIDN'T HAVE TO. WE DID GET PERMISSION TO RECRUIT HELP FROM COLLECTIVE FARMS NEARBY AND TO BRING IN SOME EXPERIENCED CONSTRUCTION WORKERS.

"WE HAD NO HOUSES. WE SENT OUR PEOPLE UP TO BYELO-RUSSIA WHERE THEY CUT TIMBER AND FLOATED IT DOWN THE DNEPR.

"WE GOT HOLD OF AN 11,500-ACRE FARM AND STARTED CULTIVATING IT. NOW WE ARE ABLE TO GIVE OUR WORKERS 30 PERCENT FOOD OVER THE RUSSIAN NORM."

AMONG THE 12,914 WORKERS NOW EMPLOYED ON THE DAM ARE 865 ENGINEERS AND 1,200 GERMAN WAR PRISONERS, HE SAID.

WW602AED JUL 18 1946

DNEPR DAM, JULY 15-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE RUSSIAN ENGINEER IN CHARGE OF THE DNEPR DAM RECONSTRUCTION SAID TODAY THAT 1,200 GERMAN WAR PRISONERS WERE WORKING ON THE PROJECT AND DOING A GOOD JOB.

"THEY WORK WELL AND I HAVE NO COMPLAINTS," FEODOR LOGINOV TOLD A GROUP OF FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS.

IT WAS THE FIRST TIME THE CORRESPONDENTS--WHO RECENTLY HAVE TOURED A LARGE AREA IN SOUTHERN RUSSIA--HAVE HEARD A GOOD WORD CONCERNING THE WORK OF GERMAN PRISONERS FROM ANY SOVIET AUTHORITY. THE GERMANS CAN BE SEEN EVERYWHERE WORKING AT VARIOUS JOBS--USUALLY AT BUILDING STREETS--AND THE RUSSIANS FOR THE MOST PART HAVE DESCRIBED THEIR WORK AS POOR OR INDIFFERENT.

WW606AED

DNEPR DAM, JULY 15-(DELAYED)-(AP)-FEODOR LOGINOV, IN CHARGE OF THE RECONSTRUCTION OF THE DNEPR DAM, BEGAN A PRESS CONFERENCE HERE TODAY BY EXPLAINING THAT RUSSIANS PROUDLY CONSIDERED THE DAM TO BE ONE OF THE FIRST GREAT CONSTRUCTION ACHIEVEMENTS OF THEIR NATION.

"AND," HE ADDED SOFTLY, "I HOPE NO ATOMIC BOMBS WILL DESTROY IT."

EVERY JEWISH OPERATED ENTERPRISE--WITH THE EXCEPTION OF HOSPITALS, NEWSPAPERS AND THE MOST ESSENTIAL SERVICES--SHUT DOWN.

WASHINGTON, JULY 17-(AP)-AN INVESTIGATOR FOR THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON UN-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES WAS EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON TODAY WITH INFORMATION THAT REP.J.PARNELL THOMAS (R-N.J.) SAID MAY "BEAR HEAVILY" ON ATOMIC ENERGY LEGISLATION.

THOMAS, TOP-RANKING MINORITY MEMBER OF THE COMMITTEE, SAID HE EXPECTED THE INVESTIGATOR, ERNIE ADAMSON, TO REACH WASHINGTON DURING THE DAY. MEANWHILE, HE DECLINED TO DISCLOSE THE NATURE OF THE INFORMATION HE SAID ADAMSON HAS UNCOVERED AT THE OAK RIDGE,TENN., ATOMIC RESERVATION.

"IT WILL BEAR HEAVILY ON THE DEBATE," WAS ALL HE WOULD SAY.

A PRELIMINARY OAK RIDGE REPORT BY ADAMSON FIGURED PROMINENTLY IN THE BEGINNING OF HOUSE DEBATE YESTERDAY ON LEGISLATION WHICH, AS PASSED BY THE SENATE, WOULD SET UP A FIVE-MAN CIVILIAN COMMISSION TO CONTROL DOMESTIC USES OF ATOMIC ENERGY.

WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN FAVORING THE SENATE BILL WITHOUT CHANGE, ADMINISTRATION LEADERS ARE SEEKING TO SUBSTITUTE IT FOR A HOUSE MILITARY COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATION THAT AT LEAST ONE COMMISSION MEMBER BE DRAWN FROM THE ARMED FORCES.

ADAMSON'S PRELIMINARY REPORT, ASSERTING THAT SECURITY OFFICERS AT OAK RIDGE FEAR FOR THE NATION'S SECURITY AND THAT SCIENTISTS THERE HAVE BEEN IN COMMUNICATION WITH FOREIGNERS--WAS ASSAILED DURING YESTERDAY'S DEBATE AS "THE IMAGININGS" OF A "WARPED MIND."

THIS DESCRIPTION WAS APPLIED BY CHAIRMAN SABATH (D-ILL) OF THE RULES COMMITTEE, WHO TOLD THE HOUSE "EVERYTHING APPEARS RED" TO THOMAS AND ADAMSON.

SABATH SAID COL.DAVID E.SHAW, SECURITY OFFICER FOR THE ATOMIC PROJECT AUTHORIZED HIM TO SAY THAT SHAW DOES NOT CONSIDER THE PROJECT'S SECURITY IN JEOPARDY BECAUSE OF THE ACTIVITIES OF THE OAK RIDGE SCIENTISTS.

THOMAS LOST BY A STANDING VOTE OF 162 TO 35 A MOVE TO KILL THE SENATE BILL OUTRIGHT.

HE ARGUED THAT CONGRESS SHOULD NOT PASS ATOMIC ENERGY LEGISLATION UNTIL WORLD CONDITIONS ARE MORE SETTLED. TO ACT NOW, HE SAID, MIGHT ENDANGER THE SECRET OF THE ATOM BOMB.

THOMAS DECLARED ANDREI GROMYKO, SOVIET REPRESENTATIVE ON THE UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL, WANTS CONGRESS TO PASS A BILL "THAT WILL PASS ON TO THE OTHER NATIONS OF THE WORLD ALL THE SECRETS THAT WE HAVE."

"PASSAGE OF THIS BILL WOULD BE THE QUICKEST WAY POSSIBLE TO GIVE THE ATOMIC SECRETS AWAY," HE CONTENDED.

Austrian Property Seizure Stoutly Defended by Reds

LONDON, July 18 — (AP) A high authoritative source disclosed today that Russia has rejected American and British representations on seizure of Austrian property for reparations valued at $22,000,000 which the Vienna government claims will "lead to the complete alienation" of Austria's economy.

In a letter delivered to the Austrian government the Soviet occupation authorities in Austria made the Soviet occupaion authorities in Austria make plain that there is no change in their recent position in regard seizure of Austrian industrial plants and other property which were confiscated by the Germans following Anschluss of 1938.

Text Not Available

The text of the note was not available in London, but its essential points were known to authoritative sources who said it disagreed with almost every point in the American and British representations.

Edwin Pauley, President Truman's reparations expert with rank of ambassador, pausing here on his round-the-world fact-finding tour, declared that the United States remained ready to negotiate with other nations to renounce all claim to Austrian reparations, but was not prepared to renounce its equity unilaterally.

"Nor would we leave Austria at the mercy of, or to deal singly with, any one nations," Pauley said, adding: "You will note that I did not name any special nation."

Entitled to Plants

Pauley said the U. S. believed Austria was entitled to any industrial plants which were not purely war potential. He explained the United States would convey to Austrian trusteeship even those plants which were built by the Germans —such as the Hermann Goering steel plant—on the theory that they were constructed by Austrian labor with funds obtained by inflating Austrian currency.

This theory, which in general is supported by Great Britain, is unequivocally rejected by the Soviet Union.

Pauley said the divergent views might be resolved by the four power council of foreign ministers, and in any event would have to be settled before the Austrian peace treaty is signed.

He said the principle of reparations from "liberated" Nazi satellites was agreed upon by the major powers at Potsdam, but it would be incorrect to say that the Russians accepted anything specific in writing.

It is this difference of interpretation which now is involved in seizure of Austrian property.

Reds Seize Property

The controversy over seizure of Austrian property arose July 6 when the Soviet command in Austria announced that $22,000,000 worth of industrial property in eastern Austria had passed into Soviet ownership along with all other "German external assets" in the Russian zone.

The Russians acted without informing their allies. Austrian officials declared the Russians were claiming 75 per cent of the Republic's industrial capacity. The Russians contended it represented only about 10 per cent.

The Russians insist that property taken by the Germans after annexing Austria in 1938 is subject to seizure as German reparations under the Potsdam agreement.

The United States disputed this interpretation in the Allied Control Council, asserting that property forcibly confiscated by the Germans after 1838 could not be classified as German.

The Americans also set forth that they considered industrial plants and other assets, built under German orders by Austrian labor and with inflated Austrian funds, belong rightfully to Austrian economy and should not be taken.

Britain subsequently backed the American contention, and both nations made reparations to the Soviet command.

The Russians previously had rejected Austrian protests against Soviet interpretation of the Potsdam agreement. The Vienna government said proposed seizures would "lead to the complete alienation of Austrian economy."

Reds Reject Notes on Austria

Inform Vienna of No Change in Demand for German Assets Despite U. S. and Britain.

London, July 18 (A. P.).—Russia has rejected American and British representations on seizure of Austrian property for reparations, a high authority said today.

In a lengthy note handed the Austrian Government, the Soviet occupation authorities in Austria were said to have made it plain that there is no change in their recent position in regard to seizure of $22,000,000 worth of Austrian industrial plants and other property confiscated by the Germans following the anschluss in 1938.

The text of the note was not available in London, but its essential points were known to authoritative informants, who said it disagreed with almost every point set forth in American and British representations.

Also Ruled Out Plants.

The controversy arose July 6 when the Soviet command in Austria announced the property in eastern Austria had passed into Soviet ownership along with all other "German external assets" in the Russian zone. The United States disputed this interpretation in the Allied Council, asserting that property forcibly confiscated by the Germans after 1938 could not be classified as German under the Potsdam agreement.

The Americans also set forth that they considered industrial plants and other assets, built under German orders by Austrian labor and with inflated Austrian funds, belong rightfully to Austrian economy.

Britain subsequently backed the American contention and both nations made representations to the Soviet command. The Russians had rejected Austrian protests. The Vienna Government said the proposed seizures would "lead to the complete alienation of Austrian economy."

The Soviet seizures include certain oil fields northeast of Vienna.

Meanwhile the Foreign Office said Britain has sent a note of protest to Moscow, complaining of extreme and unwarranted interference in the internal affairs of Hungary.

A spokesman said the representation followed Russian demands for dismissal of the vice-minister of justice, and for withdrawal of immunity for three smallholder deputies whom the Soviets accused of anti-Russian statements.

RATIONING OF BRITISH BREAD HOLDS

Commons Votes Down Demand By Churchill For Rejection

London, Friday, July 19 (AP)—The Labor-dominated House of Commons voted down early today the plea of Winston Churchill, Conservative leader, to reject bread rationing in Britain amid signs of a breakup in the threatened widespread revolt of bakers against the Government plan to conserve wheat.

The decisive vote to cancel the rationing scheduled to begin next Sunday was beaten, 305 to 182, after a heated five-hour debate in which Churchill vitriolically disputed Food Minister John Strachey's stand that bread restriction was imperative because of the uncertain future supply of grains.

Termed Galling Burden

Churchill called the ration plan a "heavy, awkward, galling" burden, but advised rebellious bakers to "do their best to make whatever scheme is thrust upon them by the Government work as well as possible and let the scheme break down of its own inherent defects."

His advice and that of many newspapers appeared to be taking effect as reports last night indicated that the National Association of Master Bakers may relax its announced decision not to comply with the rationing order.

The Master Bakers Association received a message from its Croydon branch saying that it had decided to make the plan work to the best of its ability, and A. F. Tomlins, chairman of the London Master Bakers Federation, said, "My advice to London bakers is to make an endeavor to make the scheme work."

Second Clash Of Day

The former Prime Minister made his attack on the bread-rationing program in his second tangle of the day with the Labor Government that succeeded his wartime coalition.

Earlier, overriding Churchill's taunts, the Labor majority in the Commons ordered an investigation—carrying a threat of imprisonment—into the splashing of London walls last night with posters which read:

"The names of Ministers of Parliament voting for bread rationing in the Commons on Thursday will be published here as public enemies and dictators."

Gives Advice To Bakers

Declaring, "We cannot feel convinced that the imposition of bread rationing is necessary," Churchill said tonight:

"It would be much better in the public interest in the next few weeks for the Government to prepare a rationing scheme in full consultation with the trade and the bakers, but not to enforce it until the necessity is proved."

Strachey replied in his rejection speech that he knew "my friends the bakers"—who had denounced him as a "doughy dictator"—would find "if and when they try reasonably to work this, they will succeed in working it."

Points To Uncertain Future

To bakers who asked postponement if not abandonment of the rationing program, on the ground that it would entail enormous extra work. Strachey said the step was necessary because of uncertain future grain supplies, adding:

"Postponement would be the most illogical thing of all. It would mean the scheme had not served its purpose for safeguarding our position for the time of the year."

Before the House voted a probe of the overnight bill-posting, Herbert Morrison, majority leader, declared:

"If members of this honorable house in the High Court of Parliament are to be branded by irresponsible people as public enemies and dictators, it is certainly open to question whether the rights and authority and privileges of Parliament have not been affronted."

"You are already on the run," Churchill shouted at the Government benches in what Morrison called "an unhappy exhibition."

"I know you do not want free speech," the opposition leader cried. "You go further and further on the road to destroying it. We are not in Russia yet."

In a succeeding angry exchange across the floor of the House, Churchill shouted "absolutely false and a lying assertion" at Communist Willie Gallacher, who charged the Conservatives had incited opposition to bread rationing.

BRITAIN PLANS SHOWDOWN ON BAKERS' THREAT

Commons Votes Inquiry Into Placards Attacking Bread Rationing Proposal.

CHURCHILL TAUNTS LABORITES

Declares at Angry Session That They Don't Want Free Speech and Are Destroying It.

London, July 18 (A. P.).—The Attlee Government decided to stand fast today on its plan to ration bread despite a threatened revolt by nearly half the country's bakers, and the House of Commons in an angry session voted a formal investigation of street posters attacking the plan. Indignant Laborites forced through the investigation after Winston Churchill, leader of the Opposition, had taunted them with: "I know you do not want free speech. You go further and further on the road to destroying it. We are not in Russia yet."

In the course of another angry exchange across the floor Churchill shouted "Absolutely false, and a lying assertion!" when Willie Gallacher, Communist, declared that the Conservatives had incited the opposition to rationing.

The demand for the investigation of the posters was made by the Majority Leader, Herbert Morrison. Signed by "The Face-the-Facts Association," the posters appeared on London walls last night and declared that members of Parliament who supported rationing were "public enemies and dictators." The investigation will determine whether there has been any breach of members' privileges—similar to a contempt proceedings in the United States. Persons convicted of such a breach may be jailed until Parliament orders their release.

Cabinet Conference Held.

The Government's decision to stand steadfast was reported taken at a special Cabinet meeting which the Food Minister, John Strachey, attended this morning.

While the ministers conferred, a delegation waited to place before Strachey a resolution announcing the refusal of the Master Bakers' Association to collect bread tickets in the rationing scheme which becomes effective on Monday. After fifty minutes at the Cabinet session, Strachey met the delegation for a scheduled half-hour's conference which lasted more than two hours. A spokesman for the bakers who emerged was tight-lipped.

London streets and billboards were plastered with the placards promising to publish the names of "public enemies and dictators" who vote in Parliament to support the Government's decision. Newspapers, which have been extremely critical of the Government's plan to ration bread turned an equally critical eye on the bakers' threatened revolt.

Bakers in 'Complete Revolt.'

Representatives of nearly half the nation's bakers refused point blank at a meeting yesterday to accept rationing and thus handed the Government the greatest challenge to its authority in twelve months in office. Shouting and red-faced, the bakers declared they would go to jail rather than do the extra bookwork entailed in rationing. Some 1,500 delegates to a meeting of the National Association of Master Bakers turned own all suggestions that they modify their stand.

Aldred Bostock, chairman of the association's executive committee, declared that the bakers were in complete revolt. They were supported by 200,000 retailers and hundreds of thousands of housewives who have signed petitions against the Government's plan.

MONTY DEFENDS TALK WITH THOMA

London, July 18 (A. P.).—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, in one of his infrequent public speeches, disclosed today that he had obtained information from captured German Gen. Ritter von Thoma which "saved many British lives."

Addressing a luncheon after receiving the freedom of the City of London, Montgomery said that he invited Von Thoma to dinner after the German Afrika Corps commander's capture at El Alamein for the purpose of questioning him about the methods of German Field Marshal Rommel.

"There was, I think, certain criticism of this action," Montgomery said, "but I got from Von Thoma certain information about the character and military methods of Rommel, his superior commander, that stood me in good stead in later battles and which without question saved many British lives."

After [illegible] over the chairmanship from Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, who is leaving Friday to attend the Paris peace conference, the Brazilian naval scientist told reporters:

"I believe the Baruch plan should form the basis of discussions by the commission. It gives an excellent basis and is a complete plan."

Captain Alberto said he did not believe the question of outlawing the production of use of atomic weapons, as proposed by Soviet Russia, could be dealt with separately. He said it should be considered as part of a broader plan, as suggested by Bernard M. Baruch.

Asked about the veto question, Captain Alberto said this issue was not yet on the agenda. He added, however, that it appeared to him that many countries are against the veto on matters relating to atomic energy.

Control Vital Step

His press conference was held immediately after a meeting of the atomic commission at which he said the international control of atomic energy would be an important step toward the abolition of war.

"We must do away with every possible form of mass destruction including air raids and naval bombardment," he said. "We must stop killing innocent women and children. It is war we must do away with."

In his formal speech before the commission he said he was optmistic over the future work to be undertaken by the commission.

"However difficult it may be to keep up the schedule of work on the high level attained by Chairman Evatt," he said, "I shall do my best to preserve the flow of work without breaking its continuity."

Captain Alberto will head the 12-nation commission for one month under rotation. He also is chairman of the commission's important committee No. 2, which is charged with the task of drafting specific terms of an atomic control plan.

A few hours before the meeting of the Atomic commission, its newly-created 12-nation legal committee held a closed session and elected Paul Hasluck of Australia as its first chairman.

The primary task of this committee, next meeting July 29 or 30, will be to find solutions to such complicated legal problems as the veto question.

House Votes 127-96 to Seat Military Man on Atom Board

Override Administration's Wishes and Senate's Decision.

WASHINGTON, July 18 — (AP) The House voted today to seat military representatives on a five-man commission for domestic atomic energy controls, overriding the administration's wishes and the Senate's decision.

By a non-record vote of 127 to 96, the House upheld an amendment by its Military committee requiring the President to select one of the five commissioners from the armed forces, leaving him to name a second military man if he sees fit. The decision is subject to a roll-call vote later when the measure reaches the stage of final passage.

Conference to Decide

House adoption of the controversial provision probably will throw the matter into a Senate-House conference committee for decision. The bill by Senator McMahon (D-Conn) which the Senate passed provided that all five members of the commission should be civilians. This was endorsed by President Truman and approved by the heads of the Army and Navy.

The House earlier beat back attempts to kill the legislation outright, giving the administration a

The House recessed until tomorrow before taking up the controversial patents section of the bill.

Before quitting for the day, it adopted by voice vote another military committee amendment requiring the $14,000 a year head of the proposed military application division to be a member of the armed forces.

An amendment by Representative Mathews (R-NJ) to eliminate the power of the control commission to make grants for research work was adopted on a standing vote of 79 to 68.

Johnson Move Defeated

A move by Representative J. Leroy Johnson (R-Calif) to stipulate that no more than three of the five commissioners should be members of the same political party was defeated on a 33 to 69 standing vote.

Democratic Leader McCormack (Mass.) led the fight against the military representation amendments, telling the House it is "fundamental in a democracy" in time of peace for the government to be run by civilians and not by military men. The armed forces, McCormack insisted, should not be in a position to dominate control of atomic energy development in peacetime.

Representative Thomason of Texas, second-ranking Democrat on the military committee, also fought the changes, asserting that "the war is over" and the time has arrived to get "started on peaceful and human pursuits."

But Chairman May (D-Ky) and other Military committee members countered with the argument that the presence of one, or even two, military members on the commission would not militarize it.

Representative John E. Rankin (D-Miss), who startled the House yesterday by claiming spies now are inside the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic reservation, spearheaded the "sudden death" assault on the bill.

Telling his colleagues the United States should secure the peace of the world before "we begin to give away the weapons"—which he said the bill might do—Rankin moved to strike out the enacting clause.

The effect of that parliamentary maneuver, had it succeeded, would have been to kill the bill. It lost by a standing vote of 131 to 102 after Chairman May (D-Ky) of the Military committee pleaded with the House not to "go haywire."

HOUSE READY TO TAKE VOTE ON ATOM BILL

Fight Over Military Member on Control Board Continues Unabated

Washington, July 18—(AP)—Atomic energy legislation reaches a vote in the House today, with someof its most ardent supporters conceding "trouble" ahead.

While there seems to be only a slim chance that the legislation will be killed outright, the fight over the issue of civilian versus military control continuel unabated.

The first test comes on a House Military Committee recommendation that at leastone of the five membersof the proposed Atomic Energy Control Commission be a representative of the armed forces, and that the director of military uses of the new energy also be a military man.

In making that recommendation the committee overrode provisions of a Senate bill—endorsed by President Truman—setting up a five-member civilian control commission and topping the military application division with a civilian.

Administration leaders said they would fight all the committee amendments and try to push through the legislation in the exact form it passed the Senate.

Monopoly Issue Spreads

An equally intense but less noisy controversy has developed over a section giving the Government a irtual monopoly oer inventions in the atomic energy field.

This section has been attacked as a stride toward Socialism and Sovietism. Its supporters contend it is necessary to prevent "leaks" that might endanger national security.

Overshadowing debate on actual provisions of the bill are claims of opponents of all-civilian control that Communists are interested in having the measure passed as it went through the Senate.

Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R-N. J.) told the House yesterday that Andrei Gromyko, Soviet representative on the U. N. Security Council, "couldn't have drawn a better bill for Russia."

And Rep. John E. Rankin (D.-Miss.) startled his colleagues by declaring there are spies at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic plant.

Rankin and Thomas are leading the fight to kill the bill outright, a course they say is necessary to insure the secret of the atom bomb. This secret, they contend, is safe as long as it remains with the Army.

Truman Picks Austin to Head U.N. Delegation

Lists Connally, Vandenberg, Mrs. Roosevelt, Bloom for Session of Assembly

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—President Truman announced at his news conference today that Senator Warren R. Austin, Republican, of Vermont, would be nominated as ranking member of the United States delegation to the United Nations Assembly meeting at New York Sept. 23. Senator Austin has been designated as United States member of the United Nations, effective next year.

Other members of the delegation to the assembly, the President said, will be Senator Tom Connally, Democrat, of Texas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan; Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Representative Sol Bloom, Democrat, of New York, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

In the absence of either the President or Secretary of State, James F. Byrnes, Mr. Truman said, Senator Austin will be in active charge of the delegation. He added that while he had no plans to go to the meeting, Mr. Byrnes would attend.

As alternates to the United Nations Assembly meeting, Mr. Truman named John Foster Dulles, a Rpublican foreign policy expert; Adlai E. He added he had not yet had a chance to talk to Mr. Byrnes about the organization of a delegation to the Paris peace conference opening July 29.

On another aspect of foreign relations, Mr. Truman indorsed Secretary Byrnes's report, Monday, on the Paris foreign ministers' conference and also called attention to the address of Senator Vandenberg in the Senate on Tuesday.

French Union Leaders Call Mass Demonstration

Paris, July 18 — (AP) — Leaders of France's General Confederation of Workers (C.G.T.), which claims a membership of 5,000,000, announced today plans for a mass demonstration Friday in support of the union's demands for a general wage increase of 25 per cent.

Rallies were held in various factories in the Paris region last night by union members, who repeatedly chanted "raise our salaries."

President Georges Bidault announced two days ago that the government could not see its way clear to granting a general wage increase of more than 15 per cent.

EAST ORANGE G. I. SEIZED IN FRANCE

Paris, July 18 (A. P.).—T/5 Joseph A. Polvere of East Orange, N. J., was arrested at Le Havre in April as he was about to return home and was returned here for court-martial on a charge of embezzling $58,000 from the Central Disbursing Office, where he had been a clerk, it was disclosed last night when Lieut. Ernest H. Fiedellow of Huntingdon, L. I., said that he had been removed as Polvere's attorney and transferred to another post in France.

Fiedellow said that Polvere was apprehended as the result of an inquiry begun after a French chambermaid had found 100,000 francs under a pillow in Polvere's billet. At an interrogation, the lieutenant added, two French girl friends of the defendant, testified that he had given them costly presents.

The attorney said also that Polvere charged that he was beaten during an investigation by two Criminal Investigation Department agents, who claimed that Polvere admitted he had sources of income he declined to divulge.

Fiedellow said the Army turned down his request to continue as Polvere's counsel at the court-martial. He observed that several other persons had had access to the Central Disbursing Office, where the monthly turnover was from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000.

Army press officials reported that two other clerks have been detained as material witnesses. They were not identified.

30 FARBEN PLANTS TO BE AUCTIONED

Berlin, July 18 (A. P.).—As another step in the four-Power program of dissolving what was once the largest chemical trust in the world, the American military government announced today that between thirty and thirty-five smaller plants of the I. G. Farben Industries will be sold on the open market as far as possible into private hands.

These plants are located in all four occupation zones and are of a type which can be operated independently without detriment to the technical production of chemicals reserved for post-war German economy after reparations. Representing only a small fraction of the huge Farben combine's assets, the plants are unaffected by questions of patent and trademark rights which will be settled later.

However, the sale is important in that it is expected to set a precedent for further measures to liquidate I. G. Farben, which had ownership of, or participation in, more than 600 plants, the bulk in the Russian occupation zone. James S. Martin, American member of the four-Power I. G. Farben Control Commission, said that the United States was insisting that the plants in the present sale should be sold into private hands.

U. S. Officer Denies Top-Heavy Demands On Food In Germany

Frankfurt, July 18—(AP)—Six out of every 10 loaves of bread baked in American-occupied Germany are made from wheat grown in the United States, Col. William Dawson, military governor of Wuerttemberg Baden, told the German news service DANA at Stuttgart today.

Denying rumors that American food imports were counterbalanced by Army requisitions of German food, Dawson said:

"We do supplement our rations with some vegetables and fruits grown here. This supplement represents, however, only 5 to 10 per cent of the indigneous production."

STRIKE CLOSES ITALY PAPERS

Premier Says Unrest Threatens Vital Coal Mines

Rome, July 18 (AP)—A strike of 100,000 mechanical employés tonight shut down almost all of Italy's 200-odd newspapers for 24 hours even as Premier Alcide de Gasperi told an alarmed Constituent Assembly that spreading labor unrest was threatening to close vital coal mines in Sardinia.

The Premier described the situation as a national emergency and called out the army, navy and police to help end the strikes which continued to spread throughout the country. General strikes are gripping several cities.

Employés of private printing shops, paper factories and related industries joined printers in to night's walkout, called in an effort to force employers to standardize wages throughout the country at the highest levels prevailing in Milan, Turin and other northern Italian cities.

Denies Armed Seizure

Workers in the northern cities, even though they sought no pay boosts themselves, walked out in solidarity with the printers in the rest of the country, and editorial employés of Rome newspapers voted an expression of sympathy with the strike.

De Gasperi said that miners at the Mussolini-built "model city" of Carbonia in Sardinia had threatened to strike. These miners produce 90,000 tons of coal a month for Italy's fuel-short industry.

Denying that armed Turin workers had occupied factories, as some dispatches had reported, the Premier said the government was following the strikes closely and hoped for an early settlement.

He expressed the hope that no "extraordinary measures" would be required to meet the threat to the nation's economy and said the Government was asking capital and labor to "avert grave consequences" by exercising a sense of responsibility.

De Gasperi also promised an early payment of the "Award of the Republic" decreed soon after the monarchy was voted out. This award consists of bonuses ranging from 1,000 to 3,000 lire for low-income bracket workers. [The lire has an exchange rate of 225 to the American dollar.]

It was the refusal of the employers to grant advances against this award which touched off the Turin strike.

De Gasperi's call to the army, navy and police to act, if necessary, to end the strikes constituted the most vigorous step yet taken by the Premier. A Cabinet minister said the action had the support of the Socialists, but that the Communist position was not known.

Armed Services' Report

De Gasperi aimed his action particularly against the strike of some 7,000 petroleum workers, who have tied up vital operations and paralyzed UNRRA transport.

Reports tonight said that the armed services—with the help of some strikers co-operating on a limited basis—had supplies going normally to hospitals, fire departments, UNRRA and the like, and hoped for similar results in Rome tomorrow.

Sicilian oil strikers, however, took heated exception to the intervention of the military there, telegraphing General Confederation of Italian Headquarters here a protest against the "arbitrary attitude of the armed forces."

The Premier, who also holds the portfolio of Minister of the Interior, conferred with labor leaders here last night, asking them to get their men back to work. He then sent telegrams to all prefects and police headquarters in the country and to navy, army and aviation authorities, telling them to request labor leaders to get their men back on the job.

To Be Arrested And Fined

If any responsible leaders refused, de Gasperi directed that they be arrested and fined.

He further instructed the navy to assume control, where necessary, of the distribution of oil in ports, and directed the army, air force and carabinieri to take over distribution in the interior and to resume immediate delivery to UNRRA, the armed forces and other emergency operations.

The Premier's action—in which he directed officers to proceed "with the utmost rigor and energy"—was taken after UNRRA officials had notified the Italian Government that a UNRRA ship was incurring demurrage charges of $120 per hour because oil workers refused to unload it.

Petroleum workers are striking for a 30 per cent wage increase and other benefits.

In industrial Turin, meanwhile, a general strike which started yesterday spread today and included public services.

Both in Turin and in Cuneo workers occupied factories as they did in the days that preceded the rise of Mussolini's Fascists.

A Turin dispatch to Rome's Risorgimiento Liberale said groups of armed workers had installed themselves in some factories and the city's telephone service was cut off from outside contact.

PREMIER HOPES TRIESTE PLAN WILL BE VETOED

ROME, July 18 — (AP) Premier Alcide De Gasperi said today that Italy was hopeful that the forthcoming Paris peace conference would veto the four-power foreign ministers council's proposal to internationalize Trieste.

"Italy expended 600,000 casualties in the last war defending Trieste," he said in an interview. "I have a very great fear that the new republican government will not survive if the (proposal) is formalized at the peace conference."

De Gasperi described the internationalization plan as a "solution" which would satisfy neither Italy nor Yugoslavia, and added that he doubted that Yugoslavia, which also claims Trieste, would accept the "solution."

(A dispatch from Belgrade quoted Vice Premier Edvard Kardelj as telling the Yugoslav Parliament that his government "cannot and will not agree to the Paris settlement of the Trieste question." The important Adriatic port is claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia.)

De Gasperi said that the proposed internationalization was "easy to understand from an international point of view," but that the city "is Italian from the point of view of its population and it is supremely important to a nation in such desperate economic straits as this country is now."

The Premier said that his countrymen were very disappointed with "American promises" which caused Italy to wage war on the side of the Allies.

"When the Americans entered Italy, we were told that if we fought beside you that this and that and the other thing would be considered in the final peace treaties," he said. "Instead, what? We lose Trieste, an Italian city."

De Gasperi said that "true internationalization" of the area would necessitate international control of railways and communications extending all the way to the Danube.

Asked if he considered that any ethnic line existed on which a boundary could be drawn, he replied in the affirmative, but said it would cut across an aqueduct, communications of the city and hydro-electric power lines.

Border Changes Hit

The Premier also described changes in the Italian-French border, approved by the four-power ministers, as "a humiliation."

He said he recently had proposed to the French Government that the Moncenisio area, awarded to France, be turned into a joint pool of hydro-electric power for both France and Italy, but that the French had replied the suggestion came "too late."

"Italians understand that, having once been enemies, some punishment will be forthcoming," he said. "We have accepted the loss of our colonies, fleet and reparations. But the minor change in frontier is not a just punishment. It is merely a humiliation."

Meanwhile, Italy protested to the four-power ministers, that she had been given insufficient time to gather data requested on the Italian-Yugoslavia frontier. The information was requested for the deputy foreign ministers, now in session in Paris.

An Italian Foreign Ministry communique said that the government was not informed until Monday night that a special commission named by the ministers desired an Italian commission to appear before it yesterday. An Italian delegation headed by Mello Lupi di Soragna, Italian ambassador to France, arrived in Paris by plane yesterday afternoon and is slated to be heard today on Trieste.

One member of the delegation said that the presentation of the Italian viewpoint on Trieste "does not mean that we are accepting" the decision to internationalize the city.

Trieste Is Held Vital To New Italian Republic

De Gasperi Expresses Disappointment in 'American Promises,' Warns Government Won't Survive Port's Internationalization—Pins Hopes on Paris Parley

Rome, July 18—(AP)—Premier Alcide De Gasperi, expressing disappointment in "American promises," said today he feared the new Italian republic would fall if Trieste were internationalized as recommended by the Four-Power Foreign Minister Council.

The premier described the Trieste compromise as a "solution" which satisfied neither Italy nor Yugoslavia, and said that Italy was pinning her hopes on the forthcoming Paris peace conference to veto the internationalization proposal.

"Italy expended 600,000 casualties in the last war defending Trieste," he said in an interview. "I have a very great fear that the new Republican government will not survive if the compromise is formalized at the peace conference."

He added with a wry smile that he doubted if Yugoslavia would accept the "solution" either.

'An Embarrassment'

"In fact it isn't a solution," De Gasperi said. "It is only an embarrassment."

Duce's Nephew Pardoned By Italian Amnesty Order

Rome, July 18—(AP)—Vito Mussolini, nephew of the former Duce and one-time publisher of his newspaper, Popolo D'Italia, was pardoned today under the terms of the general political amnesty granted by the Italian Republic.

Vito Mussolini was sentenced last December by a Milan court to 14 years imprisonment for helping to maintain Fascism. The order for his release was sent to the prison island of Procida in the Bay of Naples, where he has been imprisoned.

BORDER MENACED, FRANCO CHARGES

MADRID, July 18 — (AP) General Francisco Franco, referring to an "international campaign against Spain, accused the outside world today of perpetual hypocrisy and loss of moral sensitivity, and contended that "menaces of the frontier" had compelled his country to keep a "larger than normal" army.

In an interview with the Falange party newspaper "Arriba" on the 10th anniversary of his revolt against the Spanish republic, Franco said that "declared war" is over but "there exists a mute war and when there are no guarantees on frontiers nations must take natural precautions. That is the case of Spain, which since the end of her conflict has had menaces on her frontiers which obliged her to keep under arms a number of effectives which are larger than normal."

"If Spain committed some venial sin during these recent years," he added, "it does not admit comparison with the most grave sins which during the past war were committed against the peace and internal order of our nation and which today, in peace, continued to be committed."

Franco suggested that his country take as its motto: "What others spend in killing and destroying one another, we spend in the resurgence of Spain and social justice."

'Frontier Menaces' Require Big Army, Says General Franco

Madrid, July 18—(AP)—Generalissimo Franco declared today that "menaces on the frontier" since the civil war had compelled Spain to maintain a "larger than normal" army.

In an interview published in the Falange organ Arriba on the 10th anniversary of his revolt against the republic, Franco defended his administration and accused the outside world of "perpetual hypocrisy" in its attitude toward Spain.

He suggested the country take as its motto: "What others spend killing and destroying one another, we spend in the resurgence of Spain and social justice."

"If Spain committed some venial sin in recent years," he added, "it does not admit comparison with the most grave sins which during the past war have been committed against the peace and internal order of our nation and which today in peace continue to be committed."

SPAIN ASKS DEATH IN REBELLION CASE

Madrid, July 18 (A. P.).—The prosecution at Coruna has asked the death penalty for Mrs. Enriqueta Otero Llano and three men accused of being leaders of the Communist party in Lugo province.

Lesser sentences were demanded for fifty-two others tried jointly with the four leaders on charges of "military rebellion." The Government said a list of 140 persons marked for assassination had been found among the accused and that some already had been killed. The police said the defendants caused terrorism, possessed arms and explosives and distributed subversive propaganda.

Mrs. Llano, a former school teacher, was accused of being finance secretary of the Communist party in Lugo province. She appeared in court on crutches. She was wounded when arrested and told the court she fired on police because they were in plain clothes.

Earlier Generalissimo Franco declared that "menaces on the frontier" since the civil war had compelled Spain to maintain a "larger than normal" army.

In an interview published in the Falange organ Arriba on the tenth anniversary of his revolt against the republic, Franco defended his administration and accused the outside world of "perpetual hypocrisy" in its attitude toward Spain.

He suggested that the country take as its motto: "What others spend killing and destroying one another, we spend in the resurgence of Spain and social justice."

ALLIED OBSERVERS AT POLLS SOUGHT BY POLISH FACTION

L. ALLEN

WARSAW, July 18—(AP) Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajcyk—waging what he terms is a battle "for the freedom of men"—and millions of his Polish Peasant party followers are hoping that, if necessary, the United States, Britain and Russia will supervise the Polish general election tentatively slated for November.

Mikolajczyk and his supporters, who he claims number 60 per cent of Poland's 24,000,000 population, say they are going to try to have proper safeguards inserted into the election laws to guarantee a "free and unfettered" expression of the will of the people.

Observers Only Hope

But, they add, if that fails, then the only hope is for the United States, Britain and Russia to send in observers and supervisors to see that the election is conducted according to the Yalta and Potsdam directives.

Poland's temporary parliament—the National Council of the Homeland— is expected to be convened in August to enact laws governing the general election. Mikolajczyk already has made it clear that those laws must be far different from the rules that governed the June 30 referendum, which asked if a one-house parliament was desired, whether the people approved nationalization of industry and spliting up of large estates, and whether the populace approved establishment of Poland's western frontiers along the Baltic and the Oder and the Neisse rivers.

He has charged categorically that the referendum was "fraudulent" and has asked the government to declare it invalid. But Waclaw Barcikowski, commisioner-general for the referendum, said investigations have disclosed that Mikolajczyk's charges generally were not substantiated by facts.

Charges Mass Arrests

Mikolajczyk, also minister of agriculture, said that in all but three of Poland's 16 provinces members of his party were denied the right to act as polling commisioners. He coupled this with charges of mass arrests of more than 5,000 party members by the ministry of public security. He also contended that his party was denied the right to wage an infensive campaign, as did the four so-called government-bloc parties.

He says his party wants the right to advertise, freedom from the rigid government censorship which keeps much news out of the peasant press and equal representation with the nation's five other political parties at every polling place in the country.

Meanwhile, the bloc parties, headed by the Communist-backed workers, the Socialists, the Democrats and the Peasant party (which is not connected in any way with Mikolajczyk's party) are exerting pressure upon the Catholic-backed Labor party to join a proposed single bloc ticket for the election.

Simultaneously, Labor party headquarters reported that security police had seized Franciszek Dudek, the party's president in Krakow, and two assistants.

Polish Government Said Violating World Promises

Warsaw, July 17—(Delayed)—(AP)—Karel Popiel, president of the Catholic backed Lobar Party, declared today the Provisional Polish Government had violated "its international commitments concerning political freedom in Poland" by banning the party's congress, which was scheduled to open Friday.

Popiel, in a prepared statement, accused the government of prohibiting the congress because the Labor Party has consistently sided with Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's Polish Peasant Party, which has been critical of the administration.

CZECH PARLIAMENT VOTES

David, National Socialist, Chosen as Permanent President

PRAGUE, July 18 (AP)—Joseph David, National Socialist, and a popular figure in Czechoslovak politics, was elected permanent President of Parliament today, becoming, after President Eduard Benes, the second highest official of the Republic. M. David held the post in the Provisional Parliament.

The regular Parliament, after the election of May 26, chose Communist Antonin Zapotocky, a Communist, who now resumes his old post as president of the trade union organization.

REDS CRITICIZE AMG IN KOREA

Izvestia Declares Hunger Prevails in U. S. Zone.

Moscow, July 18 (A. P.).—The Government newspaper Izvestia said today that hunger prevails in the American occupation zone of southern Korea. Russia occupies the northern part of the former Japanese-ruled mainland peninsula.

"Rice reserves are going everywhere except into the stomachs of Koreans," the newspaper added.

"The American Military Governor (Major-Gen. Archer L.) Lerch has made one of the greatest discoveries in economics: In his opinion, hungering people are themselves to blame on account of their boundless appetite."

Izvestia said that the Governor, by calling on the people to eat less, "thereby gained political advantage from the situation which he himself created."

Accuse U. S. on China

Russia Charges Move to Establish American Rult in East

MOSCOW, July 18 (AP).—The Russian publication "New Times" said today the United States intends to create strategic military bases in China "for establishing American rule in the Far East."

"The action of American military authorititis in China witnesses that they are ready for serious operations," the article said.

"The American 7th Fleet is concentrated in Tsingtao in a district where war clashes are exptcted. The commander of American marines in Tsingtao stated his intention to help Chinese government forces. An American fleet is cruising the Yangtze River to help the Chinese government under the pretext of 'upholding order.'"

Americans In Moscow Checking Up On Relief

Moscow, July 18 (AP) — Seven Americans have arrived in Moscow to find out first hand just what use was made of $90,000,000 worth of supplies which the American Society for Russian Relief shipped to the Soviet Union during the last five years.

The delegates arrived from Prague by plane and were quartered in a hotel across the street from the Kremlin. The Soviet Society for Cultural Relations and the Soviet Red Cross have made appointments for them and have drawn up a tentative itinerary.

Peter Grimm, president of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, heads the group.

REJECT EAM PROPOSAL

Athens, July 18 (A. P.).—All parliamentary parties in Greece either ignored or rejected today a proposal by the left wing EAM (National Liberation Front) that the differences of left and right wing groups be bridged by the granting of "equality" and a general annesty.

Acting Premier Stilianos Gonatas termed the offer "propaganda based on treachery" and said the EAM hoped to prevent the execution of emergency measures designed to wipe out armed Communist bands which he accused of terrorizing various sections of Greece.

The Populist party flatly refused to consider the proposal and spokesmen for the Venizelist Liberals, Socialists, Democrats and Liberals said their parties had rejected it.

The Ministry of Public Order, meanwhile, said a Communist band had attacked a village near Edessa yesterday, killing four rightists.

Greece's Bread Ration To Be Increased August 1

Athens, July 18—(AP)—The Greek bread ration will be increased from eight to 10 ounces daily per person effective August 1, the Ministry of Supply announced today.

The announcement said the increase was made possible by the excellent Greek wheat crop, which this year equals pre-war production.

Inonu Says Turkey Compelled To Keep Its Army Mobilized

Istanbul, July 18—(AP)—President Ismet Inonu told the nation last night that while Turkey desires "the establishment of a prompt, definite peace" she feels compelled to keep her army fully mobilized as it has been for the last three years.

In a radio broadcast asking support for his People's Party in next Sunday's national elections, Inonu emphasized the uncertainty of the future and suggested the possibility that questions concerning the Dardanelles and the "security" of Istanbul might arise soon.

(Russia has indicated her desire for a revision of the status of the Dardanelles, which connect the Black Sea with the Mediterranean.)

EGYPT WANTS CONTROL OVER TROOP ENTRIES

Asks Right to Decide Future British Use of Soil, Source Says

Cairo, July 18—(AP)—Authoritative sources said today that the Egyptian government had taken the position that this country must be the sole judge in future years as to when British troops shall be permitted to operate from Egyptian soil.

Egyptian representatives negotiating for revision of the 1936 treaty with Britain have agreed, these sources declared, that Egyptian roops will fight alongside British forces if this country or a neighbor — such as Palestine — should be attacked.

They have taken the stand, however, that the treaty must reserve to the Egyptian government the decision as to whether any emergency warrants the presence of British forces in Egypt.

Hence the Joint Defense Council on which the treaty negotiators have agreed would be purely consultative and would not have the power to re-open Egyptian territory to British troops once they have departed.

The negotiators were said to have agreed that the new treaty would incorporate a clause providing for the evacuation of British forces now in Egypt within a specified time, but were said to have disagreed on a date.

The British were reported asking for five years to complete the evacuation while the Egyptians were insisting on one.

FORMER JEWISH TROOPS LAUNCH SETTLEMENT

JERUSALEM, July 18 — (AP) Hundreds of Jewish colonists from all parts of northern Palestine and numerous Arab guests were present at a ceremony today establishing a new settlement for demobilized Jewish soldiers.

The village, in the hills of lower Galilee, was named "Kfar Kisch," Commemorating the late Brigadier Frederick Herman Kisch, chief engineer of the Eighth army, who died in action in the Tunisian campaign.

One of the Arabs among the guests, Shiekh Ibrahim Muhammed El Tahib, ended his speech with a wish for good neighborhood and peaceful relations with the Jewish settlers.

Palestine Officer Flies To London For Parley

Jerusalem, July 18—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Sir Alan Cnuningham, British High Commissioner for Palestine, departed by plane for London today for conferences with Minister of State Phillip Noel-Baker on the Palestine situation.

An offiical announcement said the talks probably would last for only a few days and that Cunningham would then return to Palestine.

PALESTINE SETUP SCORED BY MEAD

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—Senator Mead (D.-N. Y.) protested before the Senate today what he called "the cruel actions" of the British Government in Palestine.

Asserting that the British Army "is engaged in a campaign of terrorism" in Palestine, Mead told his colleagues that the United States should send no troops there.

"The British Army is not in need of American reinforcements for the purpose of breaking down the Jewish national home in Palestine," he said. "It is for the people of this country to tell the British Government that it must stop this ghastly mockery."

MARSHALL PLANS TO TALK TO CHIANG IN NEW PEACE TRY

NANKING, July 18 — (AP) General Marshall today flew to Kuling with Dr. John Leighton Stuart, the new American ambassador, to meet Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in a new effort to resolve the Chinese political deadlock which is rapidly deteriorating into widespread armed conflict.

30.24-423

Dr. Stuart is expected to present his credentials to Chiang at the Chinese leader's summer residence Friday.

Marshall's special American envoy assigned to try to bring peace to China, was expected to use his persuasive powers on Chiang in an attempt to win concessions leading to settlement of the difference between the Chinese government and Communist factions.

There was no word whether Marshall had any particular program in mind, however. He is expected to return to Nanking in two or three days.

Fierce Fighting Rages

Pro-government dispatches said fierce fighting raged around Tsiyang, 25 miles north of Tsinan, in Shantung province. The government has reported 40,000 Communists launched an attack on the government garrison there three days ago.

The Communists broadcast from their Yenan headquarters a long report that government troops were pressing a big-scale offensive in Shantung and Shansi provinces and particularly along the Kiangsu-Anhwei border just north of Nanking and Shanghai.

The Communist radio was making capital of the slayings of two members of the third-party Democratic League in Kunming within the past week. The broadcasts blamed government secret police for shooting Li Kung-pu and Wu Yi-tu, and said Communist Leader Mao Tse-tung had sent telegrams of condolence to the survivors.

Lo Lung-chi, Democratic League leader who also has blamed secret agents for the assassinations, made a new protest to General Marshall just before the Americans took off for Kuling.

RIVAL CHINESE ARMIES MARCH ALONG YANGTZE

Maneuvers and Clashes Pose Threat of Open Civil War.

FOES ACCUSING EACH OTHER

Gen. Marshall Flies to Summer Capital to Renew Talks With Chiang Kai-shek.

Nanking, July 18 (A. P.).—Rival Chinese Government and Communist armies were on the march along the mighty Yangtze River today and clashes north of this vital artery of China posed a threat of full-scale civil war.

Gen. Chou En-lai, leader of the Communist delegation in Nanking, charged the Government with "aggressions" and told a press conference that "local conflicts are [illegible] rapidly into civil war."

Peng Hsueh-pei, Minister of Information, denied this and asserted that Communist armies instead were marching from the north upon the Yangtze, along whose banks lie Nanking and the great port of Shanghai.

"If we permit them to advance to the Yangtze unopposed," Peng declared, "we had better start considering moving the capital back to Chungking."

Gen. Marshall, special United States envoy, flew to the summer capital at Kuling to confer with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and presumably gave him the latest account of the deteriorating situation. His headquarters said only that Marshall was accompanying Dr. John Leighton Stuart, new United States Ambassador, who will present his credentials to the Generalissimo. Marshall is expected to return to Nanking within two or three days to resume the deadlocked negotiations.

Quiet in Manchuria.

There was an ominous quiet in Manchuria, but from reports pouring in little remained in China proper of last January's cease-fire agreement which Marshall hoped to use as a foundation for a permanent peace.

Chou said fighting now was concentrated north of Shanghai and northeast of Nanking in northern Kiangsu province, in strategic Shantung on the seaboard further north, in northern Hupeh, which embraces Peiping and Tientsin, and south Shansi, just west of Hupeh.

Chou added, however, that unless the fighting were checked in this string of eastern provinces the "whirlpool of war" would draw into its vortex all Manchuria and adjacent Jehol province.

Sees Marshall as Key to Peace.

San Francisco, July 18 (A. P.). Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's right-hand man in military affairs, Gen. Ho Ying-chin, thinks the ultimate peace of the world depends on the outcome of Gen. Marshall's efforts to restore peace among China's bickering millions. And to this end, he said, the generalissimo and the Chinese Government will bend every effort. But, he added, the Generalissimo would deal in a political manner with all political questions in China.

"The success of Gen. Marshall," Ho said, "is the success of China. Peace in China is closely connected with stability in the Far East and with the peace of the world."

Asked if he thought Chinese Communism was connected in any way with Russian Communism, the former Chinese Chief of Staff replied tartly:

"Better ask the Chinese Communists that."

New U. N. Delegate.

En route to a new job as Chinese representative on the United Nations Military Committee, Ho praised the close co-operation of the Chinese and Americans in the past.

"I hope the cordial co-operation between the two peoples continue for the peace of the world," he said. "But a mutual understanding is not enough. I hope the Chinese and American people see more of each other so that a more thorough understanding of each other may be gained. We invite Americans to come to China and stay a long time, study us and remember not to consider all local problems as applying to all of China."

PEACE AND WAR MEET IN CHINA

Nanking, July 18 (A. P.).—A scene at the Nanking airport today presented a clearer picture of the Chinese situation than could a column of words.

President Truman's envoy, Gen. Marshall, was about to board a United States Army plane for the summer capital at Kuling to renew peace talks with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Roaring down the runway came Chinese fighter planes, each with five bombs under the wings, machine guns loaded and ready.

Marshall was on a peace mission; the fighter planes were off on armed reconnaissance or strafing missions against Communist positions. Had he been elsewhere, Marshall might have seen Communist troops on the offensive.

SCORES LAGUARDIA ON RELIEF TO CHINA

Shanghai, July 18 (A. P.).—The Far Eastern Council of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in a resolution today took Director-General LaGuardia to task for cutting relief supplies to China drastically without consulting the council.

The Russian delegate abstained from voting on the resolution, which was submitted by P. J. H. Stent, delegate for the United Kingdom.

In debate over the resolution, T. F. Tsiang, Director-General of CNRRA, declared heatedly that "it would be an intolerable situation if one man by dictatorial action, could stop supplies to any receiving country."

Donald S. Gilpatric, the United States delegate, objected to Tsiang's remarks but said La-Guardia's method was "unfortunate."

The resolution expressed the hope that the Far Eastern Council henceforth would be kept fully informed and its advice sought as to the time when shipments to China are resumed.

ATOM-DRIVEN SHIPS IN 5 YEARS FORECAST

SYDNEY, Australia, July 18—(AP) Steamships running by atomic energy within the next five years were forecast today by Dr. Karl T. Compton, one of leaders of the American party at the Bikini atomic bomb tests.

Discussing in an interview the possible application of atomic energy to peacetime uses, Compton said he could see no immediate application other than steam ship propulsion. With the use of new energy, space occupied by coal bunkers could be used for cargo, he said.

Members of the party will leave Saturday for Bikini.

PLOT IN SIAM IS CHARGED

Premier Cites Discovery In Connection With Arrest

Bangkok, Siam, July 18 (AP)—Premier Pridi Phanamyong announced today a plot to overthrow constitutional Government in Siam had been discovered.

The disclosure came when the premier answered a request by Khuang Aphiwong, former premier and newly named representative to the United Nations, for the release of Liang Chayakarn, member of Parliament, who is now under arrest. The Premier said police had found certain documents revealing a plot to overthrow the constitutional régime.

Pridi did not specifically link Liang with the plot.

King's Death Involved

Liang, a representative of the Obon district of northeastern Siam, was arrested a week ago on a charge of being tied up with a political ring distributing anti-Government leaflets and spreading false reports that the Premier was responsible for the death of King Mahidol.

Khuang was named yesterday to present Siam's case against France before the United Nations Security Council. He had requested the release of Liang as one of the conditions on which he would represent Siam in presenting its side in the Indo-China border dispute with France.

Liang is a member of the Democratic party led by Khuang which represents the opposition to the Pridi government.

Asia's Urgent Rice Need Puts Siam in Favored Spot

BANGKOK, July 18 (AP)—Hungry Asia's need for rice has transformed Siam from a defeated debtor nation into the best economic prospect of any southwest Asiatic country.

In the next year Siam is scheduled to accumulate something like $72,000,000 in foreign credits. Britain is sending her 5 million yards of textiles, a commodity urgently needed in every Asiatic area east of India. British and American military, transport, farm and economic experts are working to wipe out the effects of Japanese occupation. The United States has made available $15,000,000 credit for rolling stocks, trucks and other surplus army equipment.

Situation Changes

Only six months ago Siam was faced with economic stagnation. A Japanese satellite whose only excuse was that a government "not representative" of her people had declared war on Britain and the United States, she had agreed in a peace treaty signed in January to give the British, without charge, "up to 1,500,000 tons" of rice, her chief export crop. At the end of April only 165,000 tons of the Siamese cereal had been exported in seven months. Famine was rife in China, India and Malaya.

British food officials conceded there was little the Siamese government could do about the situation. Much rice was being held by Chinese merchants awaiting higher prices payable in something other than Siam's devaluated currency. Siam's internal transportation was seriously disorganized; replacement locomotives, freight cars, trucks, gasoline and bridges were not available. Farmers didn't want money; they were waiting for textiles, cigarettes and other scarce consumer goods.

Rice Agreement Aids

The Anglo-American-Siamese rice agreement, signed May 9, changed all that. Siam's currency was pegged at 40 ticals to the pound sterling. Payment was guaranteed for 1,200,000 tons of rice to be exported in the next year. The price later was raised to double the prewar figure. Textiles were ordered in; the arrival of 22 million cigaretts deflated the price 75 per cent. Serums and hypodermics were flown in to check a serious epidemic that was killing off water buffalo. The military replaced two railway bridges needed to restore land communication with Malaya and 800 railway cars and locomotives—captured Japanese equipment—are due from Malaya.

Along with these dollar and cent aids, Siam is getting export Anglo-American advice on increasing rice acreage and production.

To critics who question such aid to a nation which was an active enemy, attaches of the combined rice commission reply that rice is urgently needed and that they are getting it the cheapest possible way. Rice could have been delivered under the January treaty, they say, only by occupying the country with great numbers of troops who would have to take the cereal away from farmers and merchants by force. They believe that such procedure would have ended future export production for a long time.

Long Japan Occupation Desirable, Romulo Says

Tokyo, July 18—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine delegate to the United Nations, said in an interview today that "the longer the occupation of Japan continues the better for security in the Pacific."

Romulo, who fought on Bataan with General MacArthur, said he was visiting Japan to see conditions at first hand to help him as the republic's representative on the Far Eastern Commission.

"The American GI," he said, "has an initial role to play in the bloodless occupation and in the democratization of Japan. America and democracy are being judged by the Japanese people watching the GI's behavior."

Air-Conditioning Delays Jap Trial

Tokyo, July 18 A. P.).—Sir William Webb, president of the International Tribunal for the Far East, said today that it appeared unlikely the trial of former Premier Tojo and twenty-six other high Japanese could be resumed before Monday because of a breakdown in air-conditioning in the court room.

Gurkha Tradition Gives Heroic Flare To Picture Posing

Kure, Japan, July 18—(AP)—A group of Indian Gurkahs freshly arrived in Japan for guard duty drew the interest of Associated Press Photographer Charles Gorry because of the big, wicked knives they all carried.

Gorry wanted a picture, and innocently asked a couple of the big fellows to pose with knives drawn.

After much discussion among themselves, the Gurkahs appointed one of their number. He drew a knife and posed.

But as soon as the picture was taken the Gurkhas gathered around the subject and rushed him to a hospital.

He had slashed his thumb in order not to violate the tradition that the weapon, once drawn, is never sheathed until it draws blood.

Missing G. I. Found Strangled in Japan

Kyoto, Japan, July 18 (A. P.).—The body of a soldier who had been missing since June 12 was found today stuffed in a foot locker in a small storage building near a barracks, Fifty-eighth Signal Battalion Headquarters announced. T/4 Vernon W. Butler of Santa Paula, Cal., made the find. The soldier, whose identity was withheld, had been strangled.

PHILIPPINES PLAN REQUEST TO U. N. FOR NEW ISLANDS

Manila, July 18—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Elpidio Quirino said today that the Philippines would ask the United Nations for one group of French-claimed islands and several British-leased islets flanking British North Borneo.

Quirino told a press conference the Philippines Republic would ask for sovereignty over the Shinan Gunto islets, 200 miles west of the southwestern Filipino Island of Palawan, and the Turtle Islands off Borneo's northeast coast.

At the same time, Quirino said the Philippines would investigate the claims of nine Filipino heirs of the late Sultan of Sulu that they were the legal heirs of British North Borneo because the British hadn't paid their rent.

The Shinan Gunto group long has been a subject of dispute between France and Japan.

Quirino asserted the Philippines had the best claim because the group was closer to the republic than any other land and was needed for national defense.

The Turtles, he declared, long had been a source of trouble for the Philippines because they served as a jumping off point for smugglers, opium runners and illegal immigration and should return to the Philippines' jurisdiction "n the nterests of orderly administration."

OFFERS TO CANCEL LAND SALE TO BURT

Manila, July 18 (A. P.).—The Philippine Congress prepared today to begin an immediate investigation of the sale by a Catholic hospital association of the great 840,000-acre Buena Vista estate to Brig.-Gen. Ernest H. Burt, U. S. A., retired, and Mgr. Jose N. Jovellanos, ecclesiastical governor of the diocese, offered to cancel the sale and reinstate a pre-war Government option to buy the land for 3,000,000 pesos ($1,500,000) if the Government would make good its arrears on the option, in the amount of $250,000, which was badly needed, he said, to rebuild the San Juan de Dios Hospital.

Meanwhile Mgr. Sovellanos prepared to confer with President Roxas, who had threatened to expropriate the land, if necessary, to block the conveyance.

Burt, who was scheduled to become the first witness at the congressional investigation, had arranged to purchase the estate for $2,500,000, and a smaller one for $625,000. He said he represented a syndicate of investors who would sell the land at less than market value to the tenants and divide the profit between the syndicate, the hospital and the Government's Old Age Benefit Fund. Peron Favors U. S. as Ally

Tells Congress Argentina Would Aid In Next World War

BUENOS AIRES, July 18 (AP).—President Juan Peron was quoted by the newspaper "La Prensa" today as declaring in a recent speech that in event of another world war, Argentina must enter it quickly on the side of the American republics.

The report said the new president, speaking to Peronista members of the Congress, said "his government desired to remain at the side of other nations of the hemisphere, especially the United States."

Text of the speech has not been published.

BRAZIL TO OPEN DOORS TO DISPLACED FAMILIES

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 18—(AP) Joao Alberto Lins Barros, Brazilian immigration director, declared today at a news conference that 100,000 displaced persons in Europe might find a haven in Brazil if the United States woud furnish transportation.

He said such a mass migration would cost $1,000,000. He added that a mixed commission of British and American tehnicians would arrive late this month to survey the prospects here.

The director said Brazil was interested only in family groups and would not accept several hundred thousand Polish soldiers recently reported desiring to come to Brazil.

Reds In Canadian Espionage Report Leaving Country

Ottawa, July 18—(AP)—The 17 Russians named in a government report as having engaged in espionage activities either have already left the country or will depart in the immediate future.

Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King told Parliament yesterday that 11 of the 17 had departed before publication of the report Monday by a two-man Royal commission, and that he had been assured the others "will be leaving immediately."

The Russians were officials or employes of the Soviet Embassy here.

CORAL TO SPEED SHOCK OF NEW BLAST AT BIKINI

Effect Will Be One of Most Crushing Blows in History

H. Blake Lee

Aboard The USS Appalachian, July 18—(AP)—The world's first underwater atomic bomb at Bikini July 25 will strike the coral atoll the most crushing blow in the earth's history, excepting only a few volcanic explosions.

The mechanism on which this gigantic blow is based is the speed of sound. In the air that speed is a mile in five seconds; in water a mile in little over one second, but in coral it is more than two miles a second.

The shock, or blast, travels in water and in coral at these same terrific speeds. This means that the crushing effect of shock goes nearly five times farther in water than in air. In coral the crushing goes 10 times farther.

This might mean catastrophe for Bikini atoll if the entire energy of the bomb exploded under water goes into the water the same as the entire energy goes into the air from an air burst.

Some Energy Wasted

But not nearly all the atomic energy gets into the water at Bikini. The exact percentage is both a military secret and a matter of scientific controversy.

Half of the nuclear fission power in the underwater blast may go into the water. That will be enough for an entirely unprecedented shock. Furthermore, it is possible that the underwater bomb may be more efficient than the air bomb. This second bomb can possibly explode with the force of 50,000 tons of TNT.

This shock, passing through the water, does not stop when it hits the coral. It merely enters the coral and doubles its speed.

Official estimates are that the shock may tear a hole in the coral 50 feet deep directly below the underwater bomb.

Coral, because it is full of holes, will rob this shock of some of its crushing force. Nevertheless, the shock is expected to hit the rock top of the submarine mountain on which the atoll stands.

That mountain top is estimated to be very sturdy. It appears to be table-top in shape, 20 miles by 10, and to be made of rock about 8,000 feet thick.

If these estimates are right, the mountain top is a capstone in which the atomic bomb shock may well be expected to die without further damage.

May Wreck Atoll Sides

However, the outer side of the coral atoll may be wrecked, at least in a space a few miles from the center of the explosion. As the shock wave passes seaward through the coral it will come to the water on the ocean side.

The shock will not stop, but will enter the ocean. At that point the shock wave will slow down from two miles a second to under one mile. This abrupt slow-down may tear loose some coral and also is expected to send century-old deposits on the outer slopes of the otoll sliding down deep under the water.

If enough of these deposits go down, scientists predict the slide will cause a small tidal wave. They insist such a wave will be harmless.

TEST OFFICERS PATROL BIKINI SEEKING RAYS

Young Ensigns and Lieutenants Have Say on Safety

Aboard Flagship Mt. McKinley July 18—(AP)—The fate of some of the guinea pig ships in the atomic bomb tests in Bikini Lagoon rests upon the word of a dozen junior officers.

These youngsters—lieutenants and ensigns whose average is 22 years—are the radiological monitors, the men who venture into the atom-bombed target areas to decide whether water and ships are "hot" with deadly radioactivity.

Ships set afire or broken by the bomb test may burn or settle toward the sinking point, but until the monitors decide they are safe to board, no salvage party may fight the fire or send off flooding holds.

Their chiefs, Col. Stafford Warren and Comdr. Draper L. Kauffman, send along word to the Task Force High Command only after they have had the reports and recommendations of the monitors. The lads all volunteered for their dangerous jobs.

Lt. (j.g.) Francis A. Carrier of Pawtucket, R. I., says the first test produced no difficulties. He hopes the second will be as easy to monitor, but isn't sure.

More Loose Ships

For one thing, Carrier says, the expected extensive destruction of test "Baker" probably will produce large amounts of floating debris—a hazard both from radiological and navigational standpoints. Moreover, ships torn loose from moorings may drift haphazardly.

The radiological safety patrol in the lagoon operates in progressive stages. At the outset, remote-control launches are sent in to sample the water.

Six monitor teams, traveling in groups of three or four boats each, with eight or 10 men including crewmen, then origin feeling for the "hot" spots.

They have their own safety standards. Under them the maximum amount of radioactivity to which they (or anyone else) may subject themselves in any one day is one-tenth of a roentgen, a unit used in measurement of X-rays. Actually, 10 roentgens are considered tolerable amounts in many hospitals and laboratories.

While reconnoitering after the first bomb burst July 1, one of the monitor teams encountered an area showing 6.5 roentgens on the Geiger counter, the device by which the X-rays are detected. The team left the spot fast—and a red mark showed on the chart immediately.

Monitor team leaders say their men generally exhibit little apprehension over their jobs.

However, Lt. (j. g.) William B. Davis of Gallatin, Mo., says he has one man who "keeps one eye on his steering wheel and the other on the Geiger counter, and just about dies if the needle starts swinging over on the counter. He's going home to get married after this is over."

DIVER REPORTS ON SHIPS SUNK

Tells How Bomb Wrecked 5 Vessels at Bikini.

E. Fay

Aboard the U. S. S. Mount McKinley, July 18 (A. P.).—A diver at Bikini lagoon told today how the might of the atomic bomb was stamped on the wrecks of five ships sunk July 1. Lieut.-Commander J. T. Simpson of Lynchburg, Va., one of a handful of men who have seen the maximum effect of the bomb on shipping, gave reporters a description of the damage he and his nine divers inspected.

The transport Gilliam lost its entire superstructure "and wreckage is strewn about like all the steel from Pittsburgh was thrown on the bottom." The destroyer Lamson, which capsized and sank a few hours after the explosion, had "her fantail bent sharply up for fifty feet forward and a large wrinkle in the hull as if squashed down like a sandwich," Simpson said.

He reported to Vice-Admiral William H. P. Blandy, task force commander, that he found no fusing effect from the heat of the bomb. Asked about any lingering radioactivity, Blandy said equipment brought to the surface from one of the sunken ships still was dangerous ten days later.

The task force command is getting its technical information on the sunken ships from detailed descriptions of divers and from photographs taken by underwater cameras.

Task force ships began moving out of the lagoon during the day in preparation for the dress rehearsal Friday (Thursday, New York time).

BIKINI REHEARSAL MAKES 'LOUD POP'

Try-Out for July 25 Atomic Test a Success, Says Blandy —Photo Flash Premature

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18 (AP)—A rehearsal for the earth's first under-water atomic bomb test next week went off on schedule and with a "loud pop," a pooled radio broadcast heard here tonight quoted Vice Admiral William H. P. Blandy, commander of Operation Crossroads at Bikini Atoll, as saying.

A flash bomb was exploded twenty minutes prematurely by a short circuit in the dress rehearsal, which had been set for 8:35 A. M. Friday, Bikini time [5:35 P. M. Thursday, Eastern daylight time], said a broadcast recorded by the American Broadcasting Company.

Admiral Blandy explained, according to a statement monitored by the American Broadcasting System, that the "premature" explosion was the detonating of a device to test camera equipment. He said it 'had no significance with regard to the actual bomb.'

The rehearsal bomb was set at the exact position to be occupied by the atomic bomb on July 25 (July 24, United States time).

Army Specialists Study Films of Atom Bomb Test

ST. LOUIS, July 18—(AP) The mysteries of Bikini's first atomic bomb test currently are the concern of Task Unit 152—a team of 80 scientists and Army specialists. This force, working in the Army Air Forces' aeronautical chart plant here, is poring over more than 1,000 pounds of film exposed during the test bomb drop.

"Every imaginable type of picture—still, strip, motion picture, color, black and white, infra red—was employed to obtain complete coverage of the burst and the resulting phenomena," said Lt. Col. Richard S. Leghorn, commander of Task Unit 1.52.

"In the first 10 seconds, for example, enough motion picture film was exposed to equal three full-length movies. Ten photographic planes, eight B-29s and two C-54s, in addition to photographically equipped drones, circled the area during the experiment. In Army Air Forces planes alone, 328 cameras were in action during the mission."

Leghorn, with many others of the group here, participated in filming the bomb drop.

Tasks Named

Among the tasks of the unit are:

1. A study or radar scope photography of the test.
2. Examination of the effects of radioactive particles on film of varying sensitivity.
3. Bomb damage studies based on film exposed aboard ships and on the atoll during and after the explosion.
4. Preparation of a complete motion picture story of the Army Air forces' participation in the operation.
5. Assembly of various highly secret data.

Photographs of the operation, flown back to various laboratories throughout the country for development, arrive almost hourly at the chart plant.

Special types of film such as that taken from a shutterless blur camera, exposed at the rate of 400 feet a minute and covering a 10-mile field, and film from B-17 robot planes, exposed at the rate of 10,000 frames a second while the planes were traveling through the bomb cloud, are among those being studied.

The photographic mission was carried out without a single hitch, Leghorn said, "perhaps because of the intense preparation in which seven complete photo dress rehearsals were flown involving 8,000 man hours."

ELECTRON BEAM OPENS NEW WAY FOR ATOM STUDY

URBANA, Ill., July 18—(AP) A 22,000,000-volt free electron beam which can be used to "penetrate the core of an atom and study the nucleus in a way never before possible," has been produced at the University of Illinois, the school announced today.

The beam, described by the scientists as a "new tool for which atomic and medical scientists have long waited," comes from the university's 22,000,000-volt betatron which had been used previously only to produce high voltage X-rays.

New Cancer Aid

It opens entirely new ways, the scientists added, to: (1) Study the inside of the atom; (2) Study the behavior of electrons; (3) Create artificially radioactive substances, and (4) Attack deep-seated cancer.

Production of the beam is the fruition of nine months of cooperative research at the school by Prof. Donald W. Kerst, who invented the betatron in 1940; Prof. Gerald M. Almy; L. H. Lanzl, a graduate student; and Dr. Lester S. Skaggs, physicist of Michael Reese hospital, Chicago.

Although theoretical calculations indicate that the beam might disclose important advantages over X-rays in the treatment of deep-seated cancer, Dr. Skaggs said from three to five years of further study might be required before such a powerful force can be turned on a living human being for tests on patients.

The scientists point out that artificial radioactivity is not new but that its creation by electrons with such a powerful energy is. Whether the two are different is another question they now hope to answer.

Pro[illegible]

The betatron beam, they explained, is composed of high-energy negative electrons and has "greatly different properties and possibilities from the high-energy beams of the much heavier positive ions, such as come from a cyclotron."

Work on the previous maximum free electron stream of 4,000,000 volts indicated unexpected effects, the scientists found, but added that the energy was not great enough to study and explain them. The slower electrons are bounced off by atomic forces, which increase tremendously as the nucleus is approached.

Although electrons are charged particles while X-rays are waves, experiments with the lower energies indicate they have similar effects. The scientists said that by study of the new beam they hope to ascertain whether the two also produce similar effects at the higher energies.

Scientists Hit Rankin's Atomic Control Stand

Oak Ridge, Tenn., July 18 (AP)—The Association of Oak Ridge Scientists and Engineers tonight accused Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) and other House members who have spoken out against legislation for civilian control of atomic energy of "maliciously trying to mislead their fellow congressmen."

The accusation was made in a telegram sent to House Speaker Rayburn (D., Texas) by Chairman E. E. Minett, who said the association was "deeply concerned over the recent outbursts of irresponsible statements on the House floor concerning the atomic energy legislation now being considered."

Rankin charged yesterday in a House speech that "there are spies" now inside the atomic plants here and that investigators for the House Committee on Un-American Activities are after them.

"If Representative Rankin actually has information concerning spies at Oak Ridge, it is his duty as a citizen to turn such information over to the FBI and to the security division of the Manhattan district," the scientists' statement, released by Minnett, said.

Senate Conferees Reject Plea to Keep OPA Food Controls

WORK IS STARTED ON COMPROMISE FOR ACTION TODAY

C. I. O. Calls for Buyers' Strike, Immediate Increases in Pay.

ECONOMY PARLEY ASKED

Truman Advocates Year's Postponement of Big Shipbuilding Job.

WASHINGTON, July 18—(AP)—While Senate-House conferees argued in virtual stalemate today over terms on which OPA might be revived, the C.I.O. called for a buyers' strike, immediate pay raises to meet rising costs and a national conference to stabilize the economy.

At the same time President Truman recommended a year's postponement of a big shipbuilding job, attributing his move largely to the effects of the proposed materials purchases on prices.

Negotiations Halt

The congressional negotiations on OPA jolted to a halt when Senate conferees turned down a House proposition to allow restoration of price controls on meat, butter, eggs and other foods. Coupled with that suggestion was a proposal that 'manufacturers' price increase formula in the senate bill be made mandatory by removal of discretionary authority for OPA.

The debate went forward in what one conferee, who would not be quoted by name, called a "complete stalemate." Others in the compromise-seeking group, however, were less pessimistic.

Meanwhile the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported a fractional decline for the day in its index of 28 basic commodities, the first such decrease since price controls expired the first of July. The index dropped .4 per cent to 248.8, still showing a rise of 24.8 points this month. How much of the increase resulted from removal of subsidies on various items was not discussed by BLS.

[illegible] prices for hogs, steers, corn and flour declined, while cotton rose a cent a pound.

3 Per Cent Gain

At the same time the BLS weekly index for 900 per cent increase during the week ended July 13. This figure stood at 120.7 per cent of the 1926 average, up seven per cent for July and 14 per cent since the end of the war in August, 1945.

The C.I.O., in a statement from its executive board complained of what it called a 25 per cent rise in essential living costs in the two weeks since OPA lapsed, and 40 per cent in the two months since congressional debate over the agency's continued life heated up.

It asserted that those figures "clearly" show failure to keep a "pledge and assurance" that the price line would be held.

It said such a promise was part of the deal for current labor contracts and added that the last two weeks' increases wipe out the pay raises won by labor this year.

The statement called on Congress to "enact a price control bill which will give firm promise of keeping the cost of living down."

It urged President Truman to veto "any bill which would be a "fraud on the American people."

Consumers Action Urged

It called on consumers "to mobilize for defensive action to refrain where possible—individualy and in organized fashion—from avoidable purchases to demonstrate their opposition to profiteering."

It demanded immediate increases in pensions and other fixed incomes.

It concluded with a call to the President to summon labor and industry representatives to a meeting "to the end that the demand and need for immediate wage increases may be given full and official recognition and to the end that the crisis created by the drive to cripple and destroy price control may be met quickly through adequate guarantees for a stabilized national economy."

The C.I.O., attributed the drive against OPA to "a reckless group in congress led by such individuals as Senator Taft of Ohio" whom it called "spokesmen for the monpolists and profiteers."

Philip Murray, C.I.O., president, told a news conference later that the labor group had little hope for become law.

The C.I.O. chief said the union organization would be willing to discuss a no-strike pledge as part of the proposed stabilization talks, but said that under existing conditions the C.I.O. was "not prepared to give a no-strike commitment." Nor can it say now how much pay raise it wants, for the same reason, he added.

The shipbuilding delay was urged on the Maritime commission in connection with proposals to build two big liners for the South American trade at a cost of $34,800,000.

Year's Delay Wanted

John R. Steelman, reconversion director, wrote the commission that the President wanted the project put off "at least a year." He said the big reason "is the possibility that the Congress will fail to extend effective price controls."

In Congress, meantime, Chairman Spence (D.-Ky.) of the House Banking committee reported that "the prospects are dark for the restoration of any effective price controls."

Spence, chairman of the House conferees, talked to reporters after the Senate's agents, by a 4 to 3 vote, had turned down the House plan on ceilings for major food items.

One conferee, who cannot be named, described the situation as a "complete stalemate." However, a sub-committee composed of Senators Taft, Tobey (R.-N. H.) and Radcliffe (D.-Md.) went to work in an attempt to have a counter proposal on the foods controls ready for a meeting of the conference committee tomorrow.

President Truman has indicated he will not sign a bill which prohibits controls on major food items. Administration forces have also wanted to give OPA leeway in granting price increases on manufactured articles.

Taft, target of bitter criticism from Mr. Truman because of a pricing amendment he sponsored in the OPA bill which the President vetoed last month, wanted the discretionary authority taken out of the new measure. Such a change would bring it nearer to the Taft pricing amendment in the vetoed bill which drew the President's fire.

In the face of a threatened hopeless deadlock on OPA legislation, Representative Barry (D.-N. Y.), a member of the House-Senate committee, issued a statement saying that if no compromise is reached he will introduce a bill intended to empower the President to restore price controls by executive order if price increases warrant such action. Barry viced fear that "prices of many essential commodities will go skyhigh without OPA.

OPA SHOWDOWN DELAYED FOR ANOTHER DAY

Barkley Sees Committee Vote Unlikely Before Tomorrow

Washington, July 18—(AP)—OPA got elbowed out of the legislative picture today by unrelated fights over women's rights and the price of silver.

Senator Barkley (Ky.), the Democratic leader, told reporters a showdown on attempts to write a compromise price control bill that President Truman will sign is unlikely before tomorrow.

Yesterday's session of the Senate-House conference committee considering the measure produced a lot of talk and no little confusion. It finally broke up for lack of a quorum as senators drifted away to debate and proposing a constitutional amendment to guarantee women equal rights with men.

That debate goes on today.

Also, before the conferees can get back to the subject of OPA they planned another effort to break a weeks' long deadlock over Senate-House differences on the price of silver. A prior engagement will keep Barkley away from the afternoon OPA session. Hence prospects are dim for an agreement today.

No votes were taken yesterday on any part of the Senate bill, which Mr. Truman has hinted strongly he will veto if it lands on his desk with its current bans on price ceilings for meat, butter, eggs, milk and several other grocery store items.

However, House conferees were reported waiting only for a propitious moment to propose to the senators that they back down on the food list amendments. Mr. Truman was represented in some Capitol quarters as ready to overlook other objections if the price lid is put back on the market basket.

Tempers Hot

But even in the absence of any parliamentary maneuvering within the conference, tempers apparently got hot.

Senator Tobey (R-N. H.) emerged from the committee room declaring

(Please Turn to Page Two)

"the House conferees want to talk, but won't take any position. The time has come to fish or cut bait."

Chairman Spence (D-Ky.) of the House Banking Committee told newsmen a moment later "the House will make a move when the time comes. Nobody can put the chips on the table faster than we can."

The early committee sessions covered a wide range of discussion on the differences between the new Senate bill and the OPA measure Mr. Truman vetoed.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), whose pricing amendment in the vetoed bill was roundly criticized by the President, held firm against a compromise. "Let the President veto it if he wants to," he said.

The Ohioan served notice he will ask the conference to erase from the bill the discretionary power given OPA in applying the new pricing formula. This formula was written by Barkley as a substitute for the provision Mr. Truman objected to.

It now says that price ceilings for manufacurers, producers, processors, service and transportation industries must be high enough to return on the average the 1940 price plus any cost increases since then. But OPA could make "reasonable adjustments" to meet abnormal production conditions.

BOWLES'S POST TO DEPEND ON NEW OPA BILL

Truman Says Appointment of New Stabilizer Hinges on Price Measure.

DOUBTFUL ABOUT CONGRESS

Conference Committee Meets for Third Day, With Two Possibilities Open.

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—A successor to Economic Stabilizer Chester Bowles will be named, President Truman said today, when he can get an OPA law under which a successor can function.

Asked at his news conference whether he thinks he will get such a law from Congress, he told a reporter, your guess is as good as mine.

Efforts are underway on Capitol Hill to work out a law revising price control to substitute for the legislation the President recently vetoed. However, there was a temporary lull in these efforts today.

Mr. Truman said rising prices—he called them substantial—had followed the collapse of price control and predicted they would go higher unless controls are reinstituted.

Picture in the Shadow.

Sketchy outlines of a possible compromise OPA bill began to take form as a House-Senate conference committee met for the third day.

While no one could say what ultimately will come from the committee, members said the idea shaped up like this:

1. That the Senate yield to President Truman's insistence on removal of bans for further price ceilings on meat, butter, eggs and other food items. The House conferees are supporting the President's position on this point.

2. That the conferees then follow the proposal of Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) and strike from the bill a provision that would give OPA discretionary power in applying a new pricing formula that would mean price increases for many manufactured and agricultural items.

Senator Millikin (R.-Col.) said, however, the conferees are in "a state of undefined disagreement" although he reported evidence of a determination to produce an OPA bill that Mr. Truman will sign.

The President has been represented on Capitol Hill as willing to sign the Senate bill—overlooking some other objections—if it restores price control on market basket items.

President Truman told his news conference that he would name a three-member Economic Advisory Council just as quickly as he can.

STRIKE EFFECT ON MEAT SEEN

Consumer Resistance Causing Lower Prices, Union Says

Detroit, July 18 (AP)—The CIO United Auto Workers reported today that meat prices throughout the country "are beginning to crack under the strain of the strike against meat purchases called by the UAW-CIO and other groups."

Walter P. Reuther, in his initial report since the UAW appealed Tuesday for a week-long embargo on meat purchases by its members and other consumers, said the campaign was progressing well.

The UAW president declared, "America's 140,000,000 consumers are tasting the powers they hold to bring profiteers into line. The UAW-CIO has urged all of its regional directors and local union officers to take all necessary steps to intensify the meat buying strike this week end.

Big Meat Price Cut Seen

"Our goal is to reduce meat purchases to none at all on Friday and Saturday, the heavy week-end shopping days. The increasing momentum of the meat strike indicates that this goal will be reached.

"The consumers of America, by continuing increasingly to withhold their purchasing power, can reduce meat prices by more than 20 cents a pound on the average. There is easily that much margin to spare and more between the increased prices paid to farmers and the increased retail prices to consumers," Reuther added.

A consumers "slowdown" was reported under way here in protest against high meat prices.

4,000 At South Bend Rally

"They are buying only the barest of necessities in meat markets," Sidney Black, of the Detroit Retail Meat Merchants Association said. "I wouldn't say it is a boycott, but certainly it is a slowdown."

Meanwhile, an estimated 4,000 unionists attended a South Bend (Ind.) rally today and heard Richard T. Leonard, UAW vice president, declare, "rising prices will bring industrial strikes, consumer strikes and political opposition to an unfaithful Congress."

The rally was held during a two-hour "labor holiday" called at principal industrial plants in the South Bend area.

At Elkhart, Ind., the Elkhart County CIO Council disclosed plans for a Monday night demonstration against increased prices.

Denver Buyers Stay Away

At Salt Lake City, the Utah Retail Grocers Association said there was a "definite slackening off" in sales of meat and butter with supplies backed up as far as the wholesaler.

Manager Sherman P. Lloyd attributed the nonbuying to normal reaction to the buyers' strike and one large meat retailer said sales were off 30 per cent within the past week.

At Denver, heads of the major chains said buyers are expressing dissatisfaction with high prices by staying away from meat counters. A spokesman for one chain said it will quit selling meat until prices go down. An organized buyers' strike was planned for July 23 by the "Colorado anti-inflation council."

Consumer Resistence High

At San Francisco, E. F. Forbes, president of the Western State Meat Packers' Association, said meat supplies have increased so much during the past two weeks of free prices that "consumer resistence is developing and meat is backing up from retail shops to slaughterhouses."

At Grand Rapids, Mich., Charles Pastor, a packing house official, said the meat-buying strike has cut sharply into his business. He reported that much of his concern's output is shipped to New England and Middle Atlantic states.

Meat Prices 'Beginning to Crack' Under Buyers' Strike, Says UAW

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The C.I.O. United Auto Workers reported Thursday that meat prices throughout the country are "begining to crack under the strain of the strike against meat purchases called by the U.A.W.-C.I.O. and other groups."

Walter P. Reuther, in his initial report since the U.A.W. appealed Tuesday for a week-long embargo on meat purchases by its members and other consumers, said the campaign was progressing well.

The U.A.W. president declared, "America's 140,000,000 consumers are tasting the powers they hold to bring profiteers into line. The U.A.W.-C.I.O. has urged all its regional directors and local union officers to take all necessary steps to intensify the meat buying strike this weekend.

"Our goal is to reduce meat purchases to none at all on Friday and Saturday, the heavy weekend shopping days. The increasing momentum of the meat strike indicates that this goal will be reached.

"The consumers of America, by continuing increasingly to "withhold their purchasing power, can reduce meat prices by more than 20 cents a pound on the average. There is easily that much margin to spare and more between the increased prices paid to farmers and the increased retail prices to consumers," Reuther added, in a statement released at his Detroit office.

Meanwhile, an estimated 4,000 unionists attended a South Bend, Ind., rally Thursday and heard Richard T. Leonard, U.A.W. vice-president, declare, "rising prices will bring industrial strikes, consumer strikes and political opposition to an unfaithful congress."

The rally was held during a two-hour 'labor holiday' called at principal industrial plants in the South Bend area.

Truman Rules Out U.S. Loan For Russia Before Next Year

President Says He Has No Intention of Asking This Session of Congress for Credits for Foreigners.

JUL 19 1946

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—President Truman actually ruled out today a $1,000,000,000 loan to Russia before next year, saying that he had no intention of asking Congress at this session for more funds for foreign financing. On another aspect of foreign relations, Mr. Truman indorsed Secretary of State Byrnes's report on Monday describing the Paris Foreign Ministers Conference, and also called attention to the address of Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) in the Senate on Tuesday.

In a fast-moving news conference, Mr. Truman announced also that Senator Austin (R.-Vt.) would be nominated as ranking member of the United States delegation to the United Nations Assembly meeting at New York on September 23. Austin has been designated as United States member of the United Nations, effective next year.

Other members of the delegation to the assembly, the President said, will be Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Vandenberg, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late President, and Chairman Bloom (D.-N. Y.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. In the absence of either the President or Secretary of State Byrnes, Mr. Truman said, Austin will be in active charge of the delegation. He added that while he had no plans to go to the meeting, Byrnes would attend.

The subject of foreign loans came up when Mr. Truman was asked if he had any intention of asking Congress for additional funds to finance foreign credits, now that the $3,750,000,000 loan to Britain has been completed. He said no.

Since Congress probably will adjourn late this month, Mr. Truman was asked if his answer meant that an indicated request for $1,250,000,000 of additional lending authority for the Export-Import Bank would come up right away. He said that as he understood it the matter would come up automatically in the next Congress.

The increase would be necessary to finance a $1,000,000,000 loan to Russia. The State Department and Moscow have held preliminary negotiations on a credit of that amount. Asked about the status of the Russian loan, Mr. Truman replied that he knew of no plan for immediate Russian loan action.

As alternates to the United Nations Assembly meeting, Mr. Truman named John Foster Dulles a Republican foreign policy expert; Adlai E. Stevenson of Chicago, who served with the United States delegation at the London U. N. meeting, and Representatives Eaton (R.-N. J.) and Helen Gahagan Douglas (D.-Cal.). He added he had not yet had a chance to talk to Byrnes about the organization of a delegation to the Paris peace conference, opening on July 29.

U.S. RELIEF AID $536,000,000 IN 3 MONTHS

Europe Given Three-Fourths of Total, Commerce Dept. Reports

Washington, July 18 —(AP)— The United States provided $536,000,000 in relief aid to other countries during the first three months of this year.

The Commerce Department reported today that $454,000,000 was in the form of civilian relief supplies, $2,000,000, in relief services, and $80,000,000 in cash.

Europe got more than three-fourths of the total.

Of the supplies furnished, food constituted 62 per cent and clothing, textiles and footwear 15 per cent.

The U. S. Government's overall expenditures on foreign relief and rehabilitation from July 1, 1940, through March 31 this year totaled $2,305,000,000, of which $2,125,000,000 was in supplies.

By July1, 1947, the total probably will exceed $4,500,000,000, the department estimated.

Italy Gets Biggest Share

Italy drew the greatest amount of relief aid, getting since July 1, 1940, supplies valued at $570,000,000.

The Balkans got $430,000,000, France $225,000,000, Belgium and the Netherlands $140,000,000 each, Czechoslovakia $85,000,000, Russia $60,000,000, and Germany and Austria together got $100,000,000, the department estimated.

The Pacific and Oriental areas received $149,000,000 in relief supplies. The Philippines got $74,000,000 worth, two-thirds of it in food; China $45,000,000, half in food and one-fourth in clothing; and Japan and Japanese possessions, $30,000,000, four-fifths in food.

GARSSON PROBE TO BE REOPENED

Congressmen McCormack And Sabath To Be Heard

Washington, July 18 (AP)—House Democratic Leader McCormack, of Massachusetts, and Representative Sabath (D., Ill.) volunteered today to appear before the Senate War Investigating Committee to answer testimony about wartime telephone calls between their offices and the Washington headquarters of a munitions combine.

The committee promptly reopened its public hearings with a decision to call McCormack and Sabath, chairman of the House Rules Committee, at 10 A.M. tomorrow. Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) said that former Representative Dickstein (D., N.Y.) had also requested an opportunity to testify, but would be unable to appear tomorrow.

The names of the three were drawn into the inquiry Wednesday in testimony of two former secretaries of the combine's sales offices here. They recalled telephone conversations between the congressional offices and that in which they had been employed.

No Word From May

There was still no indication that Representative May (D., Ky.) would appear. The name of the Kentucky congressman, chairman of the House Military Committee, has figured prominently in the inquiry.

The two former secretaries told yesterday of telephone calls between their office and that of Senate Majority Leader Barkley (D., Ky.). It was brought out during the testimony, however, that the calls from Barkley's office were from a secretary, whose husband was employed by the combine.

The announcement of the hearing tomorrow followed disclosure that the committee had unearthed "new evidence" in its inquiry. There was no indication, however, that this development was linked in any way with the voluntary action by McCormack, Sabath and Dickstein.

Statement By Mead

Chairman Mead issued the following statement in announcing resumption of hearings:

"Congressman John W. McCormack, of Masachusetts, and Congressman Adolph J. Sabath, of Illinois, have requested the committee to reopen its public hearings on the investigation of Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., and allied companies for the purpose of hearing them.

"In the testimony before the committee on Wednesday, July 17, 1946, one of the witnesses from the Washington office of Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., mentioned certain telephone calls made to the offices of the above-mentioned Congressmen. The witness was unable to explain the nature of the calls.

"Judge Samuel Dickstein, of the Supreme Court of New York, a former member of Congress, who was also mentioned as having received telephone calls from the Washington offices of Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., has also requested an opportunity to appear before the committee. However, Judge Dickstein is presently at Lake Placid, New York, and because of the lack of transportation facilities cannot be present at tomorrow's hearing. He has stated that he is willing to appear at any later date at the convenience of the committee.

Secret Session Held

"The committee had closed its hearings, but, at the request of these congressmen will hold a public hearing at 10 A.M. tomorrow, July 19, 1946, in Room 318 of the Senate Office Building."

Before the decision to hear from the new witnesses, the committee had devoted a secret session to consideration of newly discovered information. That business temporarily sidetracked consideration of means to bring Representative May (D., Ky.) to the stand for a sworn explanation of his wartime activities in behalf of the combine.

Francis Flanagan, assistant committee counsel, announced the surprise discovery of the "new evidence" at the close of an hour-long session behind closed doors, during which members studied the knotty legal problems involved in forcing May's personal appearance.

Evidence Not Divulged

Neither Flanagan nor Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) would divulge the nature of the evidence, nor whom it concerned. But both were sufficiently impressed by its importance to acknowledge a "possibility" it may require resumption of public hearings.

May himself appeared determined to stand pat on his refusal to appear unless guaranteed the right to recall and crossexamine previous witnesses and to subpoena additional witnesses and documents.

The committee remained equally adamant in its insistence that May, chairman of the House Military Committee, come under its own conditions or not at all. This leaves a stalemate which seems likely to remain unbroken before Congress adjourns.

Police To Protect Woman

The drive for adjournment in itself raised a strong barrier against the possibility of a successful effort to force May's personal appearance, for it would require both House and Senate approval, a time-consuming process.

Meanwhile, at Flanagan's request, police were ordered to keep a protective eye on the home of Mrs. Eleanor Hall, brunette former secretary in the Washington office of the mid-West industrial combine under investigation.

Flanagan took the step after a husky, swarthy-complexioned woman—later identified as the sister of Louis Sarelas, manager of the Washington office—lunged toward Mrs. Hall, screaming denunciations of her character and testimony.

Key witness in the inquiry, Mrs. Hall testified to overhearing conversation about money between May and her boss, Joseph Freeman, and quoted the Kentucky Congressman as warning office employes to guard their telephone talk because "the wires may be tapped."

May has acknowledged aiding the combine — nineteen closely linked concerns which Mead has described as a "paper empire" which indulged in "the worst kind of war profiteering"—but he has denied that he profited personally.

Murray W. Garsson Sued

New York, July 18 (AP)—Murray W. Garsson, identified only as a munitions figure, and Marshall Martin were named defendants in a $45,000 suit filed in State Supreme Court by Samuel Greenfield as assignee of the First Pan-American Mercantile Corporation.

Greenfield charged misrepresentation in connection with purchase of the Green Brier mining property in West Virginia.

The complaint contended the defendants in March, 1941, represented to Pan-American that Martin, who was not further identified, and others had an option on the Green Brier property and "falsely and fraudulently represented . . . that there was then on the mining property mined manganese of the value of approximately $50,000.

McCormack And Sabath to Testify Today

To Talk at Profits Inquiry on Report of Telephone Calls From Arms Firm

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Representative John W. McCormack, Democrat, of Massachusetts, the House majority leader, and Representative Adolph J. Sabath, Democrat, of Illinois, volunteered today to appear before the Senate War Investigating Committee to answer testimony about war-time telephone calls between their offices and the Washington headquarters of a Mid-West munitions combine.

The committee promptly reopened its public hearings with a decision to call Representative McCormack and Representative Sabath, chairman of the House Rules Committee, at 10 a. m. tomorrow. The Senate Committee chairman, Senator James M. Mead, Democrat, of New York, said that former Representative Samuel Dickstein, Democrat, of New York, now a New York State judge, had also requested an opportunity to testify, but would be unable to appear tomorrow.

5 OUSTED BY ARMY TO GUARD SECURITY

Government Employes From Aberdeen Proving Ground Are Union Officials

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July [illegible]—The War Department said today five officials of a local union at the Army's Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland have been discharged as Government employes "in the interest of national security."

The action was announced by Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, director of the department's Bureau of Public Relations.

J. H. Mason, an assistant to Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson in charge of industrial relations, said that the discharge of the employes had "no connection whatever with their union activities."

The five, described as officers of Local No. 250 of the United Public Workers of America, CIO, were identified by the War Department as: Harry Spector, Irving Spector, Abraham Kotelchuck, Phil Weiss and Rheabel Mendelsohn. The last named is a woman.

In Aberdeen, Harry Spector identified himself as president of the local.

He, Irving Spector, Kotelchuck and Rheabel Mendelsohn and five unidentified members of the union held what Kotelchuck described as a closed "executive meeting to discuss what's happened." Later Harry Spector said:

"Statements will have to come through our national president, Abram Flaxer. This is strictly a union matter."

General Parks told reporters that the five were discharged, effective June 26, under provisions of Public Law No. 808 which empowers the Secretaries of War and Navy to remove any employe "in the interest of national defense."

Stating that the law had been used "very sparingly," Mr. Mason added that "only a few dozen" of about 2,000,000 persons who have been employed by the War Department during the war had been removed under its provisions.

"This ought to show that the War Department has not gone off half-cocked to 'witchhunt, red bait, or to bust' unions," he said.

General Parks and Mr. Mason declined to specify what led to the discharge of the five.

Aberdeen is the Army Ordnance Department's headquarters for experiments in all kinds of weapons, including rockets, guided missiles, and big guns.

Mr. Mason said that the five were not mere routine workers but some were "physicists or chemists."

General Parks said that a delegation headed by Arthur Stein, international vice president of the United Public Workers, had demanded vainly for the last two days to see Secretary Patterson at the War Department, but that Mr. Patterson had taken the position that he would not "prejudice" an appeal from the discharge action. The statute allows thirty days for such an appeal to the Secretary of War.

Abram Flaxer, national president of the United Public Workers, told a reporter the discharge of the five union officers was "an obvious union-busting device."

He said it was "curious" that the five were discharged only now, "almost a year after the war."

The United Public Workers is a new union, organized last April by the merger of two other unions of Governmental employes.

Mr. Flaxer said the union is completely in the dark as to what the five union officers are charged with.

When asked whether the union will appeal the discharges, he said:

"We will certainly insist on written charges, a fair hearing and a fair trial. We are trying to get written charges now.

"Our union isn't going in blindly to defend every single person discharged by the Federal Government. Our union will not defend any person proven to be guilty of an offense against national security. However, I have confidence that Federal employes are patriotic and loyal until they are proved otherwise."

Mr. Flaxer didn't know exactly what jobs the five persons held at Aberdeen. He said he had been told that one was a war veteran and two others had been deferred from the draft at the request of the War Department.

Mr. Flaxer's headquarters is at New York. He is here for a meeting of the CIO executive board, of which he is a member.

U.S. Protests Soviet Demands On Hungary

Washington, July 18 (AP)—The United States has protested to Russian representatives in Hungary over what it considers a number of unilateral Russian demands on the Hungarian Government.

Government officials disclosed today that the American representative on the Allied Control Commission in Budapest, Brig. Gen. Benjamin F. Weems, delivered the complaint to the Russian chairman Monday.

The American protest is understood to have maintained that Russia should have consulted British and United States representatives before demanding that the Hungarian Government disband certain youth organizations and curb representation by the Majority Small Holders party.

Russia put forth its demands several weeks ago on the grounds that the organizations it referred to were engaging or had engaged, in Fascist activities.

Pearl Harbor Dissent

Keefe, of Joint Inquiry, Will File Separate Statement

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Representative Frank B. Keefe, Republican, of Wisconsin, said today that when the Senate-House Committee investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster issues its report he will file a separate statement of his views.

He told the House he could not agree with the report as a whole, so he signed it "with reservations." The reservations, he added, will be listed in a separate statement filed with the report.

The present deadline for filing is Monday.

TRUMAN REAFFIRMS STATUS OF TAYLOR

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—President Truman reiterated at a news conference today that Myron Taylor will remain at the Vatican as a special presidential envoy until the peace treaties are completed. Also asked whether Bishop Shiel of Chicago was in Rome on a mission for the White House, Mr. Truman said that he didn't even know the clergyman was abroad.

As a matter of fact, the President added, he hasn't seen Shiel since he returned from Rome after being made a Cardinal. Reporters were convinced that the President had confused Shiel with Cardinal Stritch, since Shiel was not one of the American prelates elevated last spring at Vatican ceremonies.

ALIEN PROPERTY PLAN DENOUNCED

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—Proposed methods for disposal of a billion dollars worth or more of German and Japanese property, seized by this country during the war, came under attack today before a Senate judiciary sub-committee.

Charles I. Carroll, New York city, appearing for the National Foreign Trade Council, urged Congress to delay action on legislation sought by the Custodian of Alien Property.

Under these, Carroll testified, the custodian could grant or deny claims if "he did not like the color of a fellow's hair or eyes."

In general, the legislation would est up administrative procedures for claims on recovery of seized properties, either in kind or money, including compensation for loss or damage.

John Schwieters, appearing for the New York City Board of Trade, testified the proposal would discourage international trade and possibly produce retaliation from now friendly neutrals.

Richard Kulze, also of New York city, testified that Americans now have more than $10,000,000,000 of foreign investments. He said these might be seized, as Mexico once seized American property, unless friendly and neutral aliens are granted a chance to recover and reclaim properties seized during the war.

PACT WITH SWEDEN ON GERMAN ASSETS

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—The United States, France and Great Britain announced today an agreement with Sweden whereby approximately 74 per cent of the total German assets in Sweden will be turned over to the three Allies. The assets were estimated at $104,000,000, of which the western Allies will get approximately $77,000,000.

State Department officials said that this was a somewhat better deal than the American, British and French governments got out of Switzerland on German assets. The western Powers' share in that case was held to 50 per cent, although they started off by claiming that the Swiss had no right to keep any German wealth.

In addition, the official announcement said, the Swedish Government has agreed to restore about seven tons of gold, valued at about $8,000,000 toe the Bank of Belgium from which it was taken by the Germans.

On its part, the United Staets agreed to unblock more than $200,000,000 of Swedish funds in this country according to procedure designed to prevent release any ex-enemy wealth hidden under Swedish accounts.

June Surplus Disposal Sets 278-Million Peak

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—The War Assets Administration reported today that it disposed of a record amount of surplus property in June when goods which cost the government $829,000,000 brought a cash return of $278,000,000. This realization was on actual sales on $701,000,000 worth of goods. The balance of $128,000,000 represented miscellaneous disposals, including abandonments, donations and transfers without reimbursement.

W. A. A. said June disposals topped the total for May, the previous record month, by $25,000,000.

The agency added that acquisition of property by W. A. A. during June fell below a billion dollars for the first time since last August. June acquisitions totaled $863,000,000, compared to $1,060,000,000 during May. The decline, W. A. A. said, is due to the fact that the services now have little surplus property to declare.

2d Division Association Opens Annual Meeting

Plans to Select Memorial for Its World War II Dead

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—The 2d Division Association of World War I and II began today its twenty-fifth annual convention with more than 900 to 6,000 members on hand for the reunion.

Ralph O. Lundgren, secretary, told reporters that the main business before the convention will be selection of a memorial in honor of the division's World War II dead.

Several memorial proposals, he said, will be voted on by the members Saturday, concluding day of the three-day session. Election of officers also will be held that day, he said.

The association tomorrow will pay tribute to its dead at the 2d Division monument at Seventh and Constitution Avenue, at which time the guidon of the division's World War II commander, Major General Walter Robertson, will be presented to the association. General Robertson is now head of the military government of Bulgaria.

U.S. ORDER BARS HOARDING GOODS

Seeks to Force Products Out of Warehouses.

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—The Government set out today to squeeze hard-to-get goods like washing machines and refrigerators out of factory stock rooms and into retail stores. At the same time it stood ready to man the export gates against a possible outgoing flood of shipments to foreign buyers who never heard of OPA ceilings.

The factory-to-main street order was issued by the Civilian Production Administration last night in fear that some manufacturers might be tempted by the current OPA uncertainty to hold back their finished products in the hope of getting higher prices.

The anti-hoarding order covers refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, washers, sewing machines, electric ranges, electrical appliances, galvanized ware, bedding products, photographic equipment, and certain scarce building materials. Manufacturers are forbidden to keep on hand more than thirty days' output of those items or a practical minimum working inventory, whichever is less.

Producers Face Choice.

John D. Small, CPA Administrator, said that manufacturers with bulging storerooms have the choice of "either increasing sales or curtailing production." This must be done by August 15 or raw materials and tools will be cut off.

"What we are after is to see that scarce materials go to the manufacturer whose finished products go immediately to the consumer," Small explained, "rather than to those who plan to withhold manufactured products awaiting possible price increases."

The proposed export order, which would put a blanket limit on the quantity of scarce consumer goods being sent abroad, is understood to be ready in draft form. It will not be issued, however, unless a flood of exports develops and threatens to starve American markets, Small has said. If experts increase only gradually, CPA now believes, the shipments overseas can be controlled by the present system of requiring individual export licenses for specific products. If price control is restored, there probably will be no export action at all.

TRUMAN HALTS LINER PLANS

Asks Maritime Commission To Postpone Two Big Ships

Washington, July 18 (AP)—President Truman today asked the Maritime Commission to hold up the proposed construction of two large liners to help conserve both Federal funds and short materials.

30.24 4219

John R. Steelman, reconversion director, wrote the commission that the President wants the construction awards postponed for "at least a year."

Price Control Factor

Vice Admiral Smith, chairman of the Maritime Commission, said later in a statement that the commission will comply with Steelman's recommendation.

Steelman said the material required for ship construction "is still in acutely short supply."

But the most decisive factor in the request for the delay, Steelman said, "is the possibility that the Congress will fail to extend effective price controls."

"This makes even more imperative the drastic curtailment of unessential expenditures by the Federal Government, a policy highly important to the defense against inflation," Steelman wrote W. W. Smith, chairman of the commission.

For South American Run

The two ships would cost $34,800,000 and be operated at an annual loss estimated at $2,800,000, Steelman said.

He added that they would be constructed entirely with Government funds and would be chartered to the Moore-MacCormack lines for operation between this country and South America.

First Ambassador Arrives From Philippine Republic

Washington, July 18—(AP)—Jaoquin Miguel Elizalde, first Ambassador of the Republic of the Philippines to the United States, arrived early today from Manila.

Accompanying him were Narcisco Ramos, minister counselor; Dr. Urbano Zafra, commercial attache and formerly economic adviser to Philippine President Manuel Roxas, and Lt. N. Valeriano, military attache.

HOGS, CATTLE DIE IN INTENSE HEAT AT MARKET JAM

CHICAGO, July 18—(AP) Livestock prices slumped heavily today at most markets and for most kinds and weights. The sharpest decline was in hogs, which sold as much as $2.50 under yesterday's best figures. Cattle were down 50 cents to $1.50 a hundred pounds.

Some markets, notably Omaha, Neb., and Sioux City, Ia., had such a large influx of animals and so few cattle cars to ship them out in that large numbers died from some of the hottest weather of the season.

Omaha reported temperatures up toward 100 by afternoon and Chicago reached above 99. Dodge City, Kans., reported 101.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture said the numbers of cattle and hogs dying were "not unusual" for the time of year, considering the large receipts.

Livestock which dies because of the heat classed as "unfit for human consumption" and is sent to rendering plants, the USDA representative said.

Car Shortage Spreads

The car shortage spread over most of the Middle Western markets, said the department of agriculture representative. It resulted, he said from heavy outbound shipments last week to the East and West coasts, and the empties had not yet been moved back.

Other markets reporting lower prices included Omaha, with hogs down as much as $2.00 at the opening and romping later to $2.50 to $3.00 lower than Wednesday. St. Paul, Minn, reported hogs down $2.00 and cattle unevenly off 50 cents to $1.50. Hogs at St. Louis, Mo., sold as much as $2.50 down and cattle sharply lower in a dull market.

Sioux City, Ia., brought in the largest number of hogs for sale with 25,000 head, followed by Chicago, 15,000; Omaha, 12,000; Indianapolis, Ind., 12,000, and St. Paul, 10,000. The total for 12 leading terminals was 126,400 today, compared with 91,900 yesterday, 120,256 a week ago, and 40,916 a year ago.

Omaha Leads in Cattle

The biggest influx of cattle was at Omaha with 11,500, with Chicago next with 11,000. Total for the day at the 12 terminals was 67,200, compared with 74,100 yesterday, 36,885 a week ago, and 25,148 a year ago.

Retail meat supplies were reported slowly getting back to meeting broad consumer demand. New York City industry members said stocks were now about 80 per cent of the wartime average but only about 35 to 40 per cent of the prewar normal.

"This situation will clear up automatically over the week end," the USDA man said.

Some 4,000 hogs were held over at Chicago's Union Stockyards along with a "liberal" holdover of steers, yearlings, and cows without bids. About 2,000 head of hogs had been held over Wednesday.

Besides the car shortage there was talk in Washington that OPA price controls might be restored to foodstuffs in the Senate-House Conference committee's legislative recommendations. Retail customers objected to paying new high prices, some butchers reported, and this also tended to roll back price spirals through the jobbers, wholesale and producers levels of the meat industry.

Top price on cattle at Chicago was $25.65 paid for strictly choice steers, compared with a top of $26.35 paid Wednesday, the all-time record high. Other classes were down even more, however, with medium and good fed steers and heifers dropping a full $1.50 a hundred pounds.

RUSSIAN ATTACK AGAINST FRANCO RAPPED BY PRIEST

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 18—(AP) The Rev. Lodge Curran of Brooklyn, outspoken foe of Communism, today denounced what he termed "the attempt of Red Fascist Russia to destroy Christian civilization in Spain.

Father Curran told the 63rd national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in a prepared address that "Franco has more right to be in Spain than Stalin has to be in Poland or Lithuania or Latvia or Esthonia or anywhere else in the Baltic or the Balkans."

Declaring that "Stalin is coequally guilty with Hitler of the crime of starting World War II," Father Curran added that "Stalin should have been tried side by side with von Ribbentrop as a war criminal in the war trials at Nuernberg."

Urges U. S. Hands Off

Father Curran, president of the International Catholic Truth Society, called upon the U. S. government to "keep out of Spain and to have nothing to do with the Communist inspired campaign of hatred and agitation against Spain."

Convention delegates elected Michael A. McGrath of Cleveland as national president for a two-year term over Representative John J. Rooney, Brooklyn Democrat, by an 11-vote margin. A total of 482 valid votes were cast. McGrath succeeds Joseph E. Kerrigan of Lawrence, Mass.

Elected without contest were John J. Lawless, Dorr, N. H., vice president, and Judge John J. Smith, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canadian vice president.

National directors chosen included William P. Looney, New Haven, Conn.

U. S. Air Defense Plans Outlined

Navy May Use Submerged Carriers to Offset Atom

OMAHA, July 18 (AP).—Two of the Army and Navy's top air officers looked tonight to the nation's defense in an atomic war, with Major General Curtis LeMay setting forth a swift counter-attack as "the only promising, indeed the only possible" solution.

At the same time, Vice-Admiral George D. Murray speculated that naval aircraft may be based on vast, submerged carriers as part of an underseas fleet.

They expressed their views in addresses prepared for delivery before the National Aeronautic Association convention here.

General LeMay, whose bombers dropped the two atomic bombs on Japan and who is now deputy chief of air staff for research and development, declared "the Army assumes that if the United States is attacked again, the attack will be by long-range bombers."

Furthermore, he added, if another war comes "we will be the first, instead of last, to be attacked."

The bomber expert asserted that the best way to prevent such attack is to develop such power of retaliation that the potential enemy hesitates to make the attack in the first place.

Failing that, and should an attack come, General LeMay declared "the only promising, indeed the only possible . . . solution is by counter-attack, to defeat all fighter defense and to destroy the industrial potential of the enemy nation."

"It is our intention to have the aircraft, the equipment, the personnel and the weapons to insure the success of our attack if it should ever have to be made," he added.

Admiral Murray, first naval aviator to command the vast 9th Naval District, said "no one can accurately foretell the future of the Navy or of military aviation."

"It may be that our Navy will go under the surface of the sea to be safe from atomic attack," he declared. "It may be that our naval aircraft will be mothered by submerged carriers. It may be that piloted planes will have less and less military use."

WAR REPORTERS RECEIVE VIEMAN HARVARD AWARD

THE MOSCOW RADIO BROADCAST ANOTHER IN A SERIES OF ARTICLES IN THE GOVERNMENT NEWSPAPER IZVESTIA BY EHRENBURG BASED ON HIS RECENT UNITED STATES TOUR.

EHRENBURG ATTRIBUTED THE SPIRITUAL CULTURAL DEVELOPMENT TO FRANKLIN D.ROOSEVELT.

"THOUGHTFUL PEOPLE CAPABLE OF ESTIMATING THE PROGRESS OF HISTORY RALLIED AROUND ROOSEVELT," HE WROTE. "EVEN IF THEY HAVE BEEN REMOVED OR HAVE RESIGNED, THE LATE PRESIDENT'S ACTIVITIES HAVE NOT DISAPPEARED WITHOUT A TRACE...AN AMERICAN INTELLIGENTSIA HAS ARISEN. IT IS STILL WEAK AND DIFFIDENT. IT IS AS THOUGH IT WERE HIDING FROM T NEON LIGHTS AND JUKE BOXES, FROM THE CHURCH PREACHERS WITH THEIR ALLUSIONS TO COMMERCIAL FIRMS AND FROM THE ADVERTISEMENTS WITH BIBLICAL QUOTATIONS; IT HIDES IN A GLOOM WHICH RECALLS GOGOL.

"BUT AMONG THAT INTELLIGENTSIA ONE FINDS MORE AND MORE GOLD PEOPLE WHO UNDERSTAND THAT SALVATION DOES NOT LIE IN RUNNING AWAY OR ISOLATION BUT IN RAISING THE SPIRITUAL LEVEL OF THE AVERAGE AMERICAN TO THE TECHNICAL CIVILIZATION WHICH ACCOMPANIES HIM FROM THE MATERNITY HOME TO THE CREMATORIUM."

EHRENBURG SAID HE WAS IMPRESSED BY THE STANDARDIZATION OF TOWNS AND CITIES, MAIN STREETS, TROUSERS, COFFEE POTS AND ARM CHAIRS. HE CONCLUDED, THAT "THERE IS A CERTAIN SKILL IN SUCH MONOTONY" AND ADDED HE COULD NOT AGREE WITH THOSE "EUROPEANS WHO SNEER AT THE STANDARDIZATION OF THINGS IN AMERICA."

"LET THE SUITS BE IN THE SAME STYLE--ON THE OTHER HAND THEY ARE WITHIN EVERYONE'S REACH," HE SAID. "SOME EUROPEANS RIDICULE AMERICA FOR HER CULT OF TECHNIQUE. NOW THE SAME EUROPEANS FAWN UPON THE AMERICANS, HOPING TO RECEIVE FROM THEM SOME OBSOLETE MACHINE OR OLD-FASHIONED SUIT."

HE CONDEMNED WHAT HE TERMED "CERTAIN MORAL STANDARDIZATION" HE FOUND IN THE VIEWS, FEELINGS AND CONDUCT OF AMERICANS, COMMENTING THAT "THE PRESS AND CINEMAS ARE DEPRIVING THE PEOPLE OF INDIVIDUALITY."

BY CHARLES A.GRUMICH

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK, JULY 18 DAY (AP)-CAPTAIN ALVARO ALBERTO, BRAZILIAN NAVY SCIENTIST AND EXPLOSIVES EXPERT, FORMALLY TOOK OVER THE CHAIRMANSHIP OF THE UNITED NATIONS ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION TODAY WITH THE ASSERTION THAT NOT ONLY ATOMIC WAR BUT ALL WAR SHOULD BE OUTLAWED.

"THE OUTLAWING OF WAR IS A NOBLE IDEA," HE SAID, "PERHAPS THE GREATEST AND NOBLEST OF ALL IDEAS."

HE SUGGESTED THAT INTERNATIONAL CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY WOULD BE AN IMPORTANT STEP TOWARD THE ABOLITION OF WAR.

CAPTAIN ALBERTO WILL BE CHAIRMAN OF THE 12-NATION COMMISSION FOR ONE MONTH UNDER A ROTATION PLAN. HE SUCCEEDS AUSTRALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER HERBERT V.EVATT, WHOSE CHAIRMANSHIP DURING THE FIRST MONTH OF U.N. ATOMIC DELIBERATIONS WAS MARKED BY SEVERAL VERBAL CLASHES WITH SOVIET DELEGATE ANDREI A.GROMYKO.

EVATT HAS CONSULTED AT LENGTH WITH CAPTAIN ALBERTO AND YESTERDAY THE AUSTRALIAN POSTPONED UNTIL FRIDAY HIS DEPARTURE FOR THE PARIS PEACE CONFERENCE.

CAPTAIN ALBERTO, IN HIS INAUGURAL ADDRESS TO THE 12-NATION COMMISSION, COMMENTED ON THE ASSERTIONS OF BOTH GROMYKO AND POLISH DELEGATE OSCAR LANGE AGAINST THE USE OF MASS DESTRUCTION WEAPONS.

HE SAID THERE EXISTS A UNIVERSAL SENTIMENT THAT ATOMIC ENERGY SHOULD BE USED TO BENEFIT MANKIND AND SHOULD NEVER BE EMPLOYED "FOR MASS DESTRUCTION, PARTICULARLY NOT OF CIVIL POPULATIONS, AS MR.GROMYKO HAS SO STRONGLY ADVOCATED IN HIS PLAN."

"IS IT NECESSARY TO ENUMERATE THE TERRIBLE LOSSES OF LIFE EXPERIENCED DURING THE LAST WAR," HE ASKED, "AND IN PARTICULAR THOSE MENTIONED BY PROFESSOR LANGE, WHEN HE MOVED US WITH THE ACCOUNT OF THE SACRIFICE OF A FOURTH OF THE ENTIRE POPULATION OF POLAND?"

CAPTAIN ALBERTO PRAISED THE PROGRESS OF THE PRELIMINARY ATOMIC DELIBERATIONS UNDER DR.EVATT'S LEADERSHIP AND SAID HE WAS OPTIMISTIC OVER THE FUTURE WORK TO BE UNDERTAKEN BY THE COMMISSION.

"HOWEVER DIFFICULT IT MAY BE TO KEEP UP THE SCHEDULE OF WORK ON THE HIGH LEVEL ATTAINED BY CHAIRMAN EVATT, I SHALL DO MY BEST TO PRESERVE THE FLOW OF WORK WITHOUT BREAKING ITS CONTINUITY," HE SAID.

THE COMMISSION'S 12-NATION LEGAL COMMITTEE MET EARLIER IN THE DAY TO BEGIN THE LONG-RANGE STUDY OF THE CONTROVERSIAL VETO AND TREATY QUESTIONS.

MEANWHILE, THE DRAFTING X X X THIRD GRAF PMS BUDGET.

NEW YORK, JULY 18-(AP)-THE UNITED NATIONS ATOMIC COMMISSION'S LEGAL EXPERTS WADED INTO LONG-RANGE CONSIDERATION OF THE CONTROVERSIAL VETO AND TREATY QUESTIONS TODAY WHILE THE COMMISSION PREPARED FOR A PUBLIC SESSION THIS AFTERNOON TO HEAR THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS OF ITS NEW CHAIRMAN.

CAPTAIN ALVARO ALBERTO, BRAZILIAN NAVY SCIENTIST AND EXPLOSIVES EXPERT, TAKES OVER THE CHAIRMANSHIP FOR A MONTH UNDER A ROTATION PLAN, SUCCEEDING AUSTRALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER HERBERT V. EVATT, WHO HAS POSTPONED HIS DEPARTURE FOR THE PARIS PEACE CONFERENCE.

MEANWHILE, THE DRAFTING OF A SUMMARY OF ALL ATOMIC CONTROL PROPOSALS PUT FORWARD TO DATE WAS HELD IN ABEYANCE AT THE REQUEST OF THE UNITED STATES AND RUSSIA, WHICH HAVE PRESENTED PLAN AND COUNTER-PLAN FOR ATOMICS.

SOVIET DELEGATE ANDREI A. GROMYKO FIRST BLOCKED A PROPOSAL TO CALL ON THE SECRETARIAT TO COMPILE A SITUATION REPORT ON THE COMMISSION'S PROGRESS.

HE TOLD YESTERDAY'S SESSION OF ATOMIC COMMITTEE NO. 2 THAT HE HAD SOME OBSERVATIONS TO MAKE ON A RECENT UNITED STATES MEMORANDUM PROPOSING AN AGREEMENT BY TREATY NOT TO USE THE VETO ON ATOMIC MATTERS BUT WOULD RESERVE HIS COMMENT UNTIL THE COMMITTEE MEETS AGAIN NEXT WEDNESDAY.

JOHN HANCOCK OF THE AMERICAN DELEGATION ALSO OPPOSED SUCH AN INFORMATIONAL ROUNDUP AT THIS TIME, DECLARING THE UNITED STATES HAD FURTHER EXPLANATORY MEMORANDA YET TO BE GIVEN OUT AND THAT HE WAS NOT SURE THE OTHER 11 DELEGATIONS FULLY UNDERSTOOD THE AMERICAN POSITION.

THE NEXT AMERICAN MEMORANDUM IS EXPECTED TO DETAIL PROPOSED TIMETABLE UNDER WHICH THE UNITED STATES WOULD GRADUALLY DEAL OUT THE ATOMIC KNOW-HOW AND EVENTUALLY DISPOSE OF THE ATOM BOMBS UNDER TREATY TERMS WHEN ALL THE CONTROLS ARE IN OPERATION.

GROMYKO, WHOSE RUSSIAN PROGRAM INSISTS ON RETENTION OF THE VETO AND DEMANDS DESTRUCTION OF ATOMIC BOMBS BEFORE THE CONTROLS ARE SET, YESTERDAY AGREED TO A COMMITTEE DECISION GIVING PRIORITY TO CONSIDERATION OF THE AMERICAN PLAN.

THE CONFEREES AGREED TO DISCUSS THE AMERICAN PLAN AS QUICKLY AS POSSIBLE, BEGINNING NEXT WEEK, AND THEN TURN TO CONSIDERATION OF THE RUSSIAN PLAN, WHICH HAS BEEN DENOUNCED AS "IMPOSSIBLE" BY EVATT.

PARIS, FRIDAY,JULY 19-(AP)-OVERRIDING THE OBJECTIONS OF FRENCH COMMUNISTS, THE CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY UPHELD TODAY BY A VOTE OF 311 TO 132 THE RIGHT OF PRE-WAR PREMIER EDOUARD DALADIER TO SIT AS A DEPUTY.

THE VOTE FOLLOWED 10 HOURS OF BITTER DEBATE DURING WHICH DALADIER CHARGED THAT RUSSIA WAS TO BLAME FOR THE OUTBREAK OF THE SECOND WORLD WAR IN EUROPE.

THE COMMUNISTS HAD CHALLENGED DALADIER'S RIGHT TO SIT BECAUSE OF HIS ROLE IN THE MUNICH PACT AND OTHER DIPLOMATIC EVENTS OF THE 1938-1940 PERIOD. COMMUNIST LEADER JACQUES DUCLOS TOLD THE ASSEMBLY: "A VOTE FOR DALADIER IS A VOTE FOR MUNICH." THE COMMUNISTS WERE ALONE IN OPPOSING DALADIER.

THROUGHOUT THE LONG DEBATE DALADIER REPEATEDLY RECALLED THAT RUSSIA, BRITAIN AND FRANCE WERE ON THE VERGE OF CONCLUDING A MILITARY PACT IN AUGUST, 1939 JUST BEFORE THE RUSSIAN-GERMAN TREATY WAS ANNOUNCED.

DIRECTING HIS REMARKS TO THE COMMUNIST BENCHES IN THE ASSEMBLY, DALADIER DECLARED:

"THERE WAS A MOMENT IN EUROPE WHEN AN AGREEMENT AMONG THE THREE GREAT POWERS (FRANCE, BRITAIN AND RUSSIA) WAS POSSIBLE AND WOULD HAVE AVOIDED WAR X X X BUT ALREADY YOUR GRAND COUNTRY (RUSSIA) WAS NEGOTIATING WITH GERMANY."

EARLIER, DALADIER BROUGHT THE ASSEMBLY TO ITS FEET CHEERING WHEN HE SAID THAT THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN "BORE THE WEIGHT OF THE WAR AND SAVED THE LIBERTY OF THE WORLD."

THE ONLY MEMBERS OF THE ASSEMBLY WHO REMAINED SEATED WERE COMMUNISTS WHO HAVE CHALLENGED HIS RIGHT TO SIGHT IN THE LEGISLATURE BECAUSE OF HIS PART IN THE MUNCH PACT OF 1938.

ROME, JULY 18-(AP)-STRIKES CONTINUED TO SPREAD THROUGHOUT ITALY TODAY AS PREMIER ALCIDE DE GASPERI, IN THE MOST VIGOROUS ACTION HE HAS YET TAKEN, CALLED UPON THE ARMY, NAVY AND POLICE TO END--IF NECESSARY--A PETROLEUM STRIKE THAT HAD DEVELOPED TO A POINT DESCRIBED BY THE PREMIER AS A NATIONAL EMERGENCY.

A CABINET MINISTER SAID THAT DE GASPERI'S ACTION HAD THE SUPPORT OF THE SOCIALISTS, BUT THAT THE COMMUNIST POSITION WAS NOT KNOWN.

THE STRIKE, INVOLVING SOME 7,000 WORKERS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY, TIED UP VITAL OPERATIONS AND PARALYZED UNRRA TRANSPORT.

DE GASPERI, WHO ALSO HOLDS THE PORTFOLIO OF MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR, CONFERRED WITH LABOR LEADERS HERE LAST NIGHT ASKING THEM TO GET THEIR MEN BACK TO WORK. HE THEN SENT TELEGRAMS TO ALL PREFECTS AND POLICE HEADQUARTERS IN THE COUNTRY AND TO NAVY, ARMY AND AVIATION AUTHORITIES, TELLING THEM TO CONTACT LABOR LEADERS AND ASK THEM TO GET THEIR MEN BACK ON THE JOB.

IF ANY RESPONSIBLE LEADERS REFUSED, DE GASPERI DIRECTED THAT THEY BE ARRESTED AND FINED. HE FURTHER INSTRUCTED THE NAVY TO TAKE OVER, WHERE NECESSARY, THE DISTRIBUTION OF OIL IN PORTS.

HE DIRECTED THE ARMY, AIRFORCE, AND CARABINIERI TO TAKE OVER DISTRIBUTION IN THE INTERIOR AND TO RESUME IMMEDIATE DELIVERY TO UNRRA, THE ARMED FORCES AND OTHER EMERGENCY OPERATIONS.

DE GASPERI'S ACTION--IN WHICH HE DIRECTED OFFICERS TO PROCEED "WITH THE UTMOST RIGOR AND ENERGY"--WAS TAKEN AFTER UNRRA OFFICIALS HAD NOTIFIED THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT THAT A UNRRA SHIP WAS INCURRING DEMURRAGE CHARGES OF $120 PER HOUR BECAUSE OIL WORKERS REFUSED TO UNLOAD IT.

PETROLEUM WORKERS ARE STRIKING FOR A 30 PER CENT WAGE INCREASE AND OTHER BENEFITS.

A TURIN DISPATCH TO ROME'S RISORGIMENTO LIBERALE SAID THAT GROUPS OF ARMED WORKERS HAD INSTALLED THEMSELVES IN SOME FACTORIES AND THE CITY'S TELEPHONE SERVICE WAS CUT OFF FROM OUTSIDE CONTACT.

Moscow, July 18-(AP)-The Russian magazine New Times asserted today that "monopoly trusts are owners of atomic energy."

"International radium and uranium concerns are the actual possessors of all deposits of uranium ore in the capitalist countries," the article said, "They control the production of atomic bombs from their very source, and as well have the right to sell or refuse to sell the means of their production to whomever they wish."

JUL 1 1949

The magazine asserted that the duPont "chemical trust" in the United States directly or indirectly controlled a great part of the American war industry and "is inseparably connected with the most important international cartels."

"The participation of duPont representatives in the leadership of scientific research work on atomic energy is one of the most important guarantees of a secret agreement securing dupont a monopoly on the production of atomic bombs and the peaceful use of atomic energy," the magazine continued, "So has been strengthened the rule of trusts in the matter of development and use of atomic energy."

New Times asserted that the United States (Baruch) plan for the international control of atomic energy would create ~~an~~ authority into "some kind of international cartel which would have a monopoly on the possession of all deposits of ~~munumumpumumum~~ uranium, thorium and other materials which could be the source of atomic energy in the whole world."

Commenting on the Baruch proposal to change the veto ~~power~~ in the United Nations security council, New Times said "the new international organ would ~~will~~ be actually dependent on the security council and would also be ~~dependent~~ dependent on the American trusts and serve them as their weapon in international politics in guarding their monopoly interests."

"Capitalistic monopolies are trying to turn the greatest discovery of modern science, which could become helpful for humanity, into a weapon in the struggle for world power," the magazine charged.

STALINGRAD, JULY 11-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE PATTERN OF SOVIET RECOVERY WITH ITS STRESS ON REBUILDING OF HEAVY INDUSTRY IS ETCHED CLEARLY IN THIS WAR-SHATTERED CITY, WHERE A HALF MILLION GERMANS DIED IN THE WINTER OF 1942-43 IN A VAIN ATTEMPT TO RETURN THE TIDE OF WAR IN HITLER'S FAVOR.

TODAY THE RED OCTOBER STEEL PLANT IS TURNING OUT STEEL AT THE RATE OF 600,000 TONS A YEAR, ITS CHIEF ENGINEER SAYS. THAT AMOUNTS TO THREE-FIFTHS OF THE NORMAL PEACETIME PRODUCTION.

MUCH OF THE STEEL, WHICH IS LATER MADE INTO SOVIET TRACTORS, WAS RECLAIMED FROM THE WRECKED GERMAN TANKS AND OTHER MILITARY VEHICLES THAT STILL LITTER THE ENTIRE CITY AND COUNTRYSIDE.

30.24 4225

THE STALIN TRACTOR PLANT IS PRODUCING 20 TRACTORS DAILY FROM A FACTORY, WHICH LIKE THE STEEL MILL, WAS WRITTEN OFF AS 100 PERCENT RUINED IN THE FIERCE STALINGRAD FIGHTING WHICH ENDED IN RUSSIAN VICTORY IN FEBRUARY, 1943.

SMOKE CAME ALSO FROM THE CHIMNEYS OF THE NEARBY RED BARRICADE ENGINEERING WORKS, THE KEY PLANT FOR HEAVY INDUSTRY IN SOUTHERN RUSSIA.

I WAS WITH A GROUP OF THE FIRST FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS TO VISIT STALINGRAD IN MANY MONTHS, AND WE TOURED THE CITY'S MAIN STREETS AND SAW THE INDUSTRIAL PLANTS.

STALINGRAD ISN'T MUCH LIKE THE CITY OF 500,000 WHICH EXISTED BEFORE THE GERMANS CAME.

IT IS EVEN LESS LIKE THE CITY OF 15 TO 20 YEARS IN THE FUTURE WHICH THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT HAS CHARTED IN THE GREATEST DETAIL. THAT WILL BE A METROPOLIS OF 800,000 WORKERS WHO WILL LIVE IN DISTRICTS CAREFULLY ZONED FOR SIZE AND STYLE OF HOMES, WHICH WILL BE BUILT BETWEEN WIDE BOULEVARDS AND GREAT SQUARES DEDICATED TO THE GLORY OF RED ARMY HEROES.

EVERYTHING WILL BE DONE IN THE MOST CLASSIC GREEK AND ROMAN STYLE.

BUT NOW STALINGRAD IS A CITY OF HALF REBUILT FACTORIES, SET IN A RUBBLE WHICH STRETCHES FOR 40 MILES ALONG THE VOLGA--A STRANGELY SHAPED CITY WITH ONE MAIN STREET.

TEMPORARY WOODEN HOUSES AND A FEW REPAIRED BRICK BUILDINGS PROVIDE EACH RESIDENT WITH TWO OR THREE SQUARE YARDS OF LIVING SPACE.

TROLLEY CARS, BUSSES, TRAINS AND RIVERBOATS ARE RUNNING. THERE IS BREAD IN THE STORES AND CUSTOMERS LINE UP IN FRONT OF THEM. ACROSS THE STREET FROM THE CENTRAL RAILROAD STATION 15 MOVIE THEATERS ARE OPERATING. BY AUG. 1 THERE WILL BE 41 SCHOOLS READY TO RECEIVE STUDENTS.

AT THE STALIN TRACTOR WORKS ASSISTANT DIRECTOR YURI GROZNY TOOK THE CORRESPONDENTS ON THE TOUR OF THE PLANT HE ESTIMATED WAS NOW 60 PERCENT RESTORED.

THE CORRESPONDENTS SPENT HOURS IN THE TRACTOR WORKS AND THE STEEL MILL TALKING TO WORKERS, WHO INCLUDED VETERANS OF THE BATTLE OF STALINGRAD AS WELL AS YOUTHS ONLY A FEW MONTHS AWAY FROM COLLECTIVE FARMS.

OF 12,000 WORKERS AT THE TRACTOR PLANT 55 PERCENT WERE WOMEN. THEY AVERAGED VERY YOUNG, SOME AS LOW AS 16 YEARS. CORRESPONDENTS WERE TOLD THEIR WAGES VARIED FROM 350 TO 4,000 RUBLES MONTHLY DEPENDING ON THE WORKERS' CATEGORY AND OUTPUT.

Ehrenburg Sees Birth Of U.S. Spiritual Culture

Russian Says It Will Grow 'Great and Independent'

LONDON, July 18 (AP).—Ilya Ehrenburg, Russian journalist, declared today in a broadcast article that the spiritual culture of the United States is "only just beginning," but will become "great and independent."

The Moscow radio broadcast is another in a series of articles in the government newspaper "Izvestia" by Ehrenburg based on his recent American tour.

Ehrenburg attributed the spiritual culture development to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"Thoughtful people capable of estimating the progress of history rallied around Roosevelt," he wrote. "Even if they have been removed or have resigned, the late President's activities have not disappeared without a trace. . . . An American intelligentsia has arisen. It is still weak and diffident. It is as though it were hiding from the Neon lights and juke boxes, from the church preachers with their allusions to commercial firms and from the advertisements with Biblical quotations; it hides in a gloom which recalls Chekov.

"But among that intelligentsia one finds more and more good people who understand that salvation does not lie in running away or isolation, but in raising the spiritual level of the average American to the technical civilization which accompanies him from the maternity home to the crematorium."

NITE LEAD ATOMIC

BY ELTON C. FAY

ABOARD THE U.S.S. MOUNT MCKINLEY,JULY 18-(AP)-TASK FORCE SHIPS MOVED OUT OF BIKINI LAGOON TODAY IN PREPARATION FOR FRIDAY'S DRESS REHEARSAL OF THE UNDERWATER ATOMIC BOMB EXPLOSION.

SEVENTY-FIVE TARGET SHIPS, RANGING FROM SMALL CRAFT TO AIRCRAFT CARRIERS AND BATTLESHIPS, HAVE BEEN SET UP FOR THE UNDERWATER TEST WHICH WILL DETERMINE WHETHER THEIR HULLS CAN WITHSTAND THE TERRIFIC PRESSURE OF THE EXPLOSION.

THE UNDERWATER BOMB, SUSPENDED FROM A SPECIAL RAFT IN THE CENTER OF THE TARGET FLEET, WILL BE DETONATED ACCORDING TO PRESENT PLANS AT 8:35 A.M., JULY 25 (4:35 P.M., EST, JULY 24, U.S. TIME).

IT WILL BE SET OFF BY A YOUNG CORNELL PHYSICIST, DR. MARSHALL HOLLOWAY, FROM A SECRET SHIP IN THE TASK FORCE OUTSIDE THE LAGOON.

THE UNDERWATER EXPLOSION IS EXPECTED TO CREATE "FAR MORE DAMAGE" TO THE TARGET SHIPS THAN DID THE JULY 1 AERIAL BOMB, IN THE OPINION OF REAR ADM. W.S. PARSONS AND OTHER HIGH NAVY MEN AND OCEANOGRAPHERS.

IT IS THEIR CONSENSUS, REPORTED AP CORRESPONDENT CHARLES MCMURTRY AT KWAJALEIN, THAT THE EXPLOSION MIGHT HURL HUGE SHIPS, SUCH AS THE AIRCRAFT CARRIER SARATOGA AND THE PATTLESHIP ARKANSAS, INTO THE AIR. OTHERS MIGHT BE SUNK WHEN THE TERRIFIC PRESSURES CRUSH THEIR HULLS.

SUBMERGED SUBMARINES, HOWEVER, WERE EXPECTED TO WITHSTAND THE CONCUSSION FAR BETTER, THESE SOURCES SAID. SOME HEAVILY DAMAGED AND BADLY LISTING VESSELS WERE EXPECTED TO REMAIN AFLOAT BECAUSE WAVES IN THE LAGOON'S QUIET WATERS LACK THE PUNCH TO CAPSIZE THEM.

THE FORCE OF THE UNDERWATER BLAST IS EXPECTED TO BE SO GREAT THAT NO SHIPS AT THE IMMEDIATE TARGET CENTER ARE CONCEDED A CHANCE TO SURVIVE, MCMURTRY'S SOURCES SAID.

A42KX

OF THE THREE HEAVY WARSHIPS TO BE ANCHORED NEAR THE DETONATION POINT, THEY GAVE THE JAPANESE BATTLESHIP NAGATO THE BEST CHANCE TO REMAIN AFLOAT. PROVIDING SHE IS MOORED AT A SUFFICIENT DISTANCE FROM TME CENTER TO ESCAPE THE HUGE WATER GEYSER EXPECTED TO BE THROWN UP. THE NAGATO HAS AN EXTREMELY STURDY, STRONGLY RIVETED HULL.

THE SARATOGA, WHICH HAS A BATTLE CRUISER HULL, IS BELIEVED TO HAVE A RESISTANCE COMPARABLE TO THE ARKANSAS.

AMONG OTHER SHIPS AT THE CENTER OF THE TARGET FLEET, THE CRUISER PENSACOLA HAS THE NEXT STRONGEST HULL. SHE IS RATED AS CAPABLE OF WITHSTANDING TWICE AS MUCH SHOCK AS DESTROYERS, BUT ONLY A THIRD AS MUCH AS A BATTLESHIP.

GREAT RIVALRY WAS REPORTED AMONG THE CREWS THAT PREPARED THE TARGET VESSELS FOR THE TEST. OFFICERS ABOARD THE NAGATO PREDICTED IT WOULD REMAIN AFLOAT UNLESS SHE CAPSIZED DUE TO HER HEAVY SUPERSTRUCTURE.

EVEN THE CREW OF THE SUBMARINE SKATE, HEAVILY DAMAGED IN THE JULY 1 TEST, WAS OPTIMISTIC.

"SHE'LL RIDE OUT THIS ONE TOO AND THEN WE'LL GO TO HONOLULU UNDER OUR OWN POWER," THEY SAID.

ABOARD THE U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, JULY 18-(AP)-THE UNDERWATER ATOMIC BOMB EXPLOSION IS EXPECTED TO TURN BIKINI LAGOON'S BLUE WATERS INTO A MONSTROUS BATTERING RAM POWERFUL ENOUGH TO CRUMPLE THE STEEL SIDES OF OLD BATTLESHIPS.

THE STRUCTURAL DAMAGE TO THE 75 TARGET SHIPS SET UP FOR THE MIGHTY BLAST JULY 25 (JULY 24, U.S. TIME) IS A MATTER OF KEENEST INTEREST TO SCIENTISTS AND NAVAL ARCHITECTS.

LT. COMMANDER NORMAN MYRICK, MEMBER OF THE TASK FORCE, EMPHASIZED AT A PRESS CONFERENCE SEVERAL POSSIBLE KINDS OF DAMAGE.

THESE INCLUDED HOLES BLOWN IN THE SIDES OF SHIPS, DESTRUCTION OF SHIPS' MACHINERY, STEEL PLATES WRENCHED LOOSE AND HURLED AS PROJECTILES, VIOLENT SHAKING OF THE SHIPS, FIRES AND RADIOACTIVITY.

WHILE THE SHIPS IN THE JULY 1 MID-AIR ATOMIC BOMB EXPLOSION WERE SUBJECTED TO HEAT AND BLAST, VESSELS IN TEST "BAKER" WILL BE PUNISHED BY AN UNDERSEA SHOCK, CREATING SUDDEN AND VIOLENT STRESSES AND STRAINS.

THE MOST MODERN VESSEL IN THE TARGET FLEET IS THE GERMAN CRUISER PRINZ EUGEN. THE MOST MODERN UNITED STATES SHIP IS THE CARRIER SARATOGA, WHICH HAS THE HULL OF A BATTLE CRUISER.

CAPT. FITZHUGH LEE, PRESS OFFICER OF THE TASK FORCE AND NAVY VETERAN, SAID THE EXPLOSION "MAY CRUMPLE THE HULLS OF SOME SHIPS."

A TORPEDO EXPLOSION CREATES A SUDDEN PRESSURE ON ONE PART OF A SHIP'S HULL, LEE SAID, BUT THE ATOMIC BOMB WILL APPLY VIOLENT AND INSTANTANEOUS PRESSURE OVER THE ENTIRE HULL, POSSIBLY POWERFUL ENOUGH TO BUCKLE THICK STEEL PLATES SUCH AS THOSE PROTECTING BATTLESHIPS.

THE BOMB WILL BE TOUCHED OFF BY DR. MARSHALL HOLLOWAY, YOUNG CORNELL PHYSICIST, FROM A SECRET SHIP IN THE WAITING FLEET OUTSIDE BIKINI LAGOON.

HOLLOWAY, A FIELD GROUP LEADER IN THE LOS ALAMOS, N.M., ATOMIC EXPERIMENTS, WAS CHOSEN FOR THE HONOR BY VICE ADM. WILLIAM H.P. BLANDY, TASK FORCE COMMANDER.

THE BOMB WILL BE DETONATED ANYWHERE FROM 18 TO 120 FEET BELOW THE LAGOON'S SURFACE BUT THE EXACT DEPTH IS A UNITED STATES SECRET.

PALESTINE TALKS PROCEED RAPIDLY

Sub-Committee Studies Plan Offered by British-U. S. Committee.

R wheeler

LONDON, July 19 — (AP) An authoritative source said tonight British-American talks on admission of 100,000 Jews to the Holy Land were proceeding rapidly and without hitch, but that no concrete proposals for any specific Palestine plan had yet come under discussion.

NIGHT

Negotiating sessions have been suspended, pending sub-committee inquiry into all 10 points of the British-American committee recommendations. The sub-committee drafts may be considered by the full delegations next Monday.

Meanwhile, the British War office issued a formal denial of a London newspaper report that advance elements of the British First armored division had arrived in Palestine."

Both British and American sources deprecated speculation that either Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist federation, or Sir Alan Cunningham, high commissioner for Palestine, would be invited to join the British-American discussions.

The aging Jewish leader remained in seclusion in London, after arrival from Palestine, but issued a statement declaring "the situation can only be normalized by the immediate release of the Zionist leaders and other detainees, and by opening the doors of Palestine to the 100,000 refugees from Europe, and hastening a positive solution."

A spokesman for the Jewish agency said Dr. Weizmann would not seek interviews with either Prime Minister Attlee or Colonial secretary George Hall as long as Jewish leaders are detained.

Dr. Weizmann Reaches London From Palestine

R wheeler

London, July 19—(AP)—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Federation who arrived here from Palestine yesterday, remained in seclusion today and a Jewish agency spokesman said that any initiative for a conference with Prime Minister Attlee would have to be taken by 10 Downing Street.

Sir Alan Cunningham, high commissioner for Palestine, was expected in London today to report to the British Cabinet on the Palestine situation. There was some speculation that the Colonial secretary would invite comment from Dr. Weizmann.

Meanwhile, a news blackout covered deliberations of British and American negotiators discussing long-term policy involved in implementing the British-American report calling for the immediate entrance of 100,000 Jews to the Holy Land. Reports from sub-committees were reported ready for submission to the full group.

MOST BRITISH BAKERS IN LINE ON BREAD PLAN

Number Signing Petitions Of Protest On Rationing Near 400,000

London, July 19 (AP)—Most of Britain's bakers reluctantly fell in line with the Government's "must" bread rationing program today but the number of those signing petitions of protest neared 400,000 and the Conservative party still frowned on the scheme.

The plan received approval from the House of Commons early this morning and bread rationing is scheduled to start Sunday. The vote was 305 to 182—one of the smallest Government majorities in the twelve-month administration of the Laborites.

NIGHT

In a [illegible] on the issue David Low, the Evening Standard cartoonist, today pictured bakers in their tall white caps, wielding rolling pins and marching into 10 Downing street, while John Strachey, Food Minister, and other members of the Goverment were being herded into a patrol wagon.

The cartoon was slanted at the threatening revolt yesterday by the National Association of Master Bakers, most of whose 12,000 members backed down after the House of Commons upheld the rationing plan.

Churchill, Shawcross Trade Verbal Blows

London, July 19 (AP)—Winston Churchill and Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross swapped verbal blows tonight over a proposed Government investigation into the ownership of British newspapers and newspaper chains.

The leader for the Conservative opposition in a byelection rally speech at Bexley, asserted the Labor Government was "already reaching out their hands against the freedom of the press."

Churchill charged that the Government leaders "do not like to be criticized. I am for free speech and think that people should say what they like. I do not think our masters and rulers ought to be so thin-skinned as they are."

Shawcross, supporting the investigation proposed by the National Union of Journalists, in a similar speech at Bexley, assailed what he called "the campaign of calumny and misrepresentation which the Tory party and the Tory stooge press have been directing against the Labor Government." He added:

"I don't think myself that there is any legal remedy for that because we must maintain the fullest freedom of discussion in this country.

"All that we can do is to make sure that everybody understands just how the press is organized, that everybody realizes that behind many of the great national newspapers and an increasing number of the provincials there is merely a handful of men who represent nobody but themselves, who are unable or unwilling to express their views publicly or personally in the Legislature, but who use their newspapers as a vehicle of propaganda to foist their veiws upon the public."

No decision has been announced by the Government on the holding of an investigation.

ATOMIC MOTOR JUST A FRAUD

London, July 19 (A. P.).—John William Wilson was sentenced to twenty-one months in prison today for fraud in connection with his alleged "discovery" of an atomic-powered automobile. He was convicted by a jury of obtaining $1,000 by fraud from Frederick Heaton Collier to manufacture the car.

The prosecutor told the court that the 63-year-old defendant duped his backer by operating the automobile with gasoline secreted in some part of the mechanism.

British Act Against Auto Black Market

London, July 19 (AP)—British automobile dealers acted today to check a black market in which buyers of new cars resell them overnight at prices up to 200 per cent over the list price.

The Motor Trades Association to which most dealers belong announced all new car buyers after August 15 must sign contracts pledging they will not resell within six months. Violators of the agreement must pay 45 per cent of the list price plus purchase tax "as liquidated damages" to the dealer who sold the car.

Inflated prices are being paid by many buyers because new cars are hard to buy at this stage of Britain's reconversion program and all-out export drive.

Britain Reports June Export Drop

Decline in Total Is Laid to Holiday in Month

LONDON, July 19 (AP).—British exports for June were £20,200,000 ($80,800,000) below those for May, it was reported today by the Board of Trade which attributed the decline to V Day and Whitsun holidays.

Total value of June exports was £65,000,000 ($260,000,000).

June imports totaled £102,500,000 ($410,000,000), and re-exports were £3,700,000 ($14,800,000).

Exports for the second quarter of 1946 were valued at £219,500,000 ($878,000,000), an increase of £35,400,000 ($141,600,000) over the first quarter.

Gromyko Says Exchange Data Should Be Discussed

E. Carpenter

New York, July 19 (AP)—Andrei A. Gromyko, of Russia, declared today that "nobody is asking for secrets" in the exchange of scientific information involved in framing a world atomic control charter.

Gromyko, sitting on the scientific and technical committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission until Russia's scientific representative arrives from the Bikini atomic bomb tests, said, however, that the methods of exchange of scientific information on the peaceful uses of atomic energy were ripe for discussion.

Gromyko's remark was contained in a statement issued by the United Nations after the closed first meeting of the scientific and technical committee.

Proposal Voted Down

From authorized sources it was learned that the committee had voted down a proposal by Gromyko to have the committee chairmanship rotated between the Netherlands and the Polish representatives. Ten members voted for a proposal for a single chairman and Dr. Hendrik Anthony Kramers, foremost Netherlands scientist, was chosen temporary chairman. The negative vote was not taken but Gromyko did not vote for the proposal and Poland's representative abstained from voting, it was said.

The whole question of chairmen for the three committees set up by the atomic energy group will be discussed at the next meeting of the commission's working committee next Wednesday, it was said.

Sees No Conflict With Baruch

Gromyko said his proposals for the exchange of scientific information, contained in his statement of Russia's position on the atomic energy question made last month, did not conflict with a statement by Bernard M. Baruch, United States representative, on July 12 when the working committee set up the scientific and technical committee.

Baruch at that time said "it is not contemplated that, in these discussions, further information now held as secret would be disclosed."

"On the other hand," he added, "it is believed that a careful organization and explanation of material now available would be helpful in creating understanding of the proposals and in establishing procedures of collective discussion and agreement which may be useful later."

Information Made Available

Dr. Richard C. Tolman, a member of the United States delegation, told the committee that the United States had made available information on the peaceful uses of atomic energy and further information of a non-secret character was being published.

On the motion of Dr. Kramers, the committee agreed to hold informal meetings at which scientists would discuss the various problems involved. At such meetings, scientists would speak as scientists and not as government representatives, the United Nations statement pointed out. The committee will hold an informal session July 25.

FRENCH ASSEMBLY VOTES DALADIER SEAT AS DEPUTY

Paris, July 19—(AP)—France's constituent assembly, overriding Communist opposition, upheld by a vote of 311 to 132 yesterday the right of pre-war Premier Edouard Daladier to sit as a deputy. The vote climaxed 10 hours of debate, during which Daladier said Russia was to blame for the outbreak of World War II.

Directing his remarks to the Communists in the assembly, Daladier declared:

"There was a moment in Europe when an agreement among the three great powers (France, Britain and Russia) was possible and would have avoided war (August, 1939) . . . but already your grand country (Russia) was negotiating with Germany."

Earlier the former premier brought the assembly to its feet cheering when he said that the United States and Britain "bore the weight of the war and saved the liberty of the world."

The Communists, who were alone in opposing Daladier, had challenged his right to sit because of his role at Munich and in other diplomatic events betwen 1938 and 1940.

AMERICANS SPLIT ON PW TRANSFERS

GI Clash On Policy For Occupied Germany Also Reported

R. O'REGAN

Frankfurt, Germany, July 19 (AP). Several high United States officers said today that a disagreement which they described as "the most fundamental difference in fourteen months of occupation" developed in Gen. Joseph T. McNarney's headquarters recently over the pending transfer into German hands of up to 68,000 American-confined Nazis.

A clash of principles in American administrative policy for occupied Germany also was said to have arisen over a speedup in the release of the German civilian internees, 26,000 of whom have been freed in recent months.

NIGHT

The differences of opinion, the officers said, arose mainly between the military government headed by Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay in Berlin and the strictly operational army agencies which conduct the military operation of Germany.

The officers at United States Army headquarters in Europe asserted unofficially that Lieutenant General Clay had "exercised strong personal pressure on the military agencies, persuading them to approve the transfer of lesser Nazis to German control.

The result was a July 13 directive issued for McNarney, ordering internees in eighteen camps charged with having fostered or furthered the Nazi ideology turned over to the Germans.

DAY

Germans Can Free Them

Under the decision, the Germans themselves will have the authority to release prisoners. German guards will man prison watchtowers.

When General Clay's military government proposed the camp turnover three months ago it was greeted with disapproval by many officers in army headquarters at Frankfurt, it was stated.

The principle that thousands of internees, believed to have been arrested unjustly or against whom there was insufficient evidence, should be released was not disputed by USFET officers, but these questions developed:

Was it safe to turn over major offenders to German civilian authorities? Were the Germans capable of administering the camps and would they be free from corruption?

Called "Biggest Blunder"

"Many agencies believed the proposal was the biggest blunder of the occupation," one officer said. "Virtually everybody at headquarters felt the Germans would mishandle the job and that our security might be endangered."

The directive provided that the United States Army would hold only an estimated 10,000 internees arrested as war-criminal suspects and witnesses, members of indicted Nazi organizations such as the SS and others wanted for security, interrogation, exploitation or otherwise.

Shift Due September 1

The remaining 58,000 now in camps will pass into German control September 1, and to speed up their release German officials will set up a prosecutor and a trial tribunal at each camp.

The prosecutors will analyze each case and decide whether to:

1. Hold the prisoner for trial under denazification laws at the camp.

2. Release him for voluntary return to his home for trial by his local denazification court, or

3. Turn him loose.

The military government's attitude toward the transfer was that it contributes toward giving the Germans fuller self-government, that it will lessen the dwindling United States Army's personnel problems, and that the forced detention of large numbers of internees constitutes a greater long-term threat than their immediate transfer and release.

NAZI DEFENSE CLAIMS HELP TO NETHERLANDS

NUREMBERG, Germany, July 19 (AP)—The defense attorney for Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart declared before the International Military Tribunal today that the former Reich Commissioner for the occupied Netherlands had interceded with the German Army to protect the Netherlands.

Dr. Gustav Steinbauer, Vienna attorney, told the tribunal, now hearing defense attorneys' pleas for twenty-two Nazis on trial that Seyss-Inquart at one time "achieved the cutting down of 500 hostages originally demanded by Heinrich Himmler to 117."

The attorney asserted that his client attempted to safeguard art treasures, cooperated with the local administration to help agriculture survive the war, was extremely conscientious in the application of the right to pardon and restricted capital punishment as much as possible.

GESTAPO LOOT FOUND IN CELLAR HIDING PLACE

LUENEBURG, Germany, July 19—(AP) The British announced today that "millions of pounds worth of property, including jewels and negotiable bonds confiscated throughout Europe by the Gestapo," had been discovered last year in boxes hidden in the cellar of a house near Lueneburg.

A lengthy examination revealed their "almost priceless value," the announcement said. The Nazi loot was taken to Hannover to be returned to owners.

The brief announcement, prominently displayed in all Soviet-controlled newspapers here, did not disclose now many Germans the Russians hold.

SICILIAN DISTURBS ITALIAN ASSEMBLY

Separatist Leader Accuses U.S. And Britain

Rome, July 19 (AP)—Almost everybody took turns shushing fiery Sicilian Separatist Leader Andrea Finocchiaro Aprile on the floor of the Constituent Assembly tonight, but before they could get him to stop talking he had make charges that:

1. The United States and Great Britain sought quietly to take over Sicily and Sardinia last year, on the pretense of dimilitarizing them, to build secret air and naval bases.

2. Russia's demand for the administration of Italy's Libyan colony was originally a counterbalance to persuade the two Western Allies to get out of that part of the Mediterranean. It was only because of Russia's demand at the September, 1945, Foreign Ministers meeting that the two islands were returned to Italy.

3. Charles Poletti, American military governor successively of Palermo, Rome and Milan, came to him shortly after the Allied landings in Sicily in 1943 to urge the necessity of keeping the House of Savoy on the throne of Italy.

Twice Called To Order

4. Christian Democrats were returned to the assembly in such large numbers "because they got votes of the Monarchists."

5. The Socialist party was compeled to split in two with part of its membership going to Communists and the rest to the center.

6. The promises of the Government to do something about Sicilian autonomy were "as empty as all others."

In the course of his long tirade, punctuated by stinging epithets he tossed at cabinet ministers and deputies and the cries of "liar" and catcalls from his victims, the Sicilian was twice called to order sharply by Assembly President Giuseppe Saragat and threatened once with expulsion.

Scolded By De Gasperi

At one point, only the intervention of assembly guards saved Finocchairo Aprile from manhandling by irate Christian Democrats aroused by his linking them with the Monarchists.

After the flare-up, Premier Alcide de Gasperi scolded him sharply for language he had used. The Premier said he had listened to the Sicilian's "unsubstantiated charges" against the Government with "extreme bitterness."

A Christian Democrat woman deputy, Angela Maria Guidi, gave him a verbal spanking for what she called insults to Italian womanhood. Salvatore Aldisio, new minister for the Merchant Marine, threatened to sue him.

ITALIAN FIRMS BID FOR PEACE

Industry Willing To Raise Pay, Opposes De Gasperi Stand

J. McKnight

Rome, July 19 (AP)—Management challenged today Premier Alcide de Gasperi's announced policy of fighting inflation by holding the line of wages while reducing living costs.

Officials of the Italian petroleum industry informed the Government they were prepared to resume negotiations with their workers who struck all over Italy three days ago to protest delay in reaching agreement on their four-month-old 30 per cent pay increase demands.

NIGHT

Willing To Raise Wages

Further, the petroleum officials said, they were able and willing to grant certain increases.

A source in hour-to-hour touch with the oil strike situation—which until the armed forces intervened yesterday at the Premier's orders had tied up UNRRA transport and other vital services—said de Gasperi was at first reluctant to see the conversations reopened if wage increases were in prospect, but later agreed to consider the proposal.

The four-party de Gasperi Government—the republic's first—took office July 14 after Communist insistence on immediate pay boosts all through the industry had been overridden in interparty conferences.

Communist Moves Hinted

Rome newspapers, however, have hinted that the strikes now popping up throughout Italy are evidence that the Communists are carrying on their fight for higher wages "by other means."

With the great majority of oil workers acceding to the Premier's request that they co-operate with the armed forces to keep emergency services operating, reports tonight were that the situation was in hand over most of the country.

At Bari, traditional center of left-wing sentiment, workers at first balked at unloading UNRRA petroleum for Italy—although they consented to unload a consignment for Yugoslavia—but this was soon straightened out.

Printers' Strike Ends

A nation-wide strike of printers, which left Italy with almost no papers for 24 hours, ended at 10 o'clock tonight and Rome morning papers had full crews on deck.

A one-hour "folded-arms" strike, to show labor's solidarity in their demands, gripped Milan from 10 A.M. until 11 A.M. today.

A nationwide petroleum strike also continued despite Premier De Gasperi's rigorous order that workers return to their jobs. Supplies for UNRRA—whose transport was tied up by the strike—were being delivered in Lombardy under military supervision, and similar distribution was to be made today in Rome and tomorrow in Naples.

Some workers returned to their jobs under military control.

In Rome, the Ministries of Finance, Treasury, Industry and Commerce and Labor were conferring on how to meet the strikers' demands for pay increases.

Government food inspectors today announced they would call a nation-wide strike July 22 if their demands for a pay increase were not met by July 21.

STRIKES HALT PUBLICATIONS IN ROME

Vatican City Organ Only News—Labor Unrest Gripping Italy

Rome, July 19—(AP)—The Vatican City organ Osservatore Romano was the only newspaper to appear in Rome today as a strike of 100,000 mechanical employes closed down most of the country's publishing plants.

DAY

The workers walked out last night in a strike called in an effort to force employers to standardize wages throughout the nation at the high wage levels prevailing in Milan, Turin and other large cities in Northern Italy. Employes in paper factories and related industries joined the printers in a sympathy strike.

Labor unrest gripping the nation threatened meanwhile, to spread to vital coal mines in Sardinia. Premier Alcide De Gasperi told the Constituent Assembly last night that he feared a strike of miners at Carbonia, which contributes 90,000 tons of coal a month to Italian industry.

A general strike continued for the third day in Turin. Labor representatives of the city were in Rome conferring with the Ministry of Labor in an effort to find a solution.

Pattern of Soviet Recovery Etched Clearly in Stalingrad

By REMPERT JAMES

STALINGRAD, July 11—(Delayed)—(AP) The pattern of Soviet recovery with its stress on rebuilding of heavy industry is etched clearly in this war-shattered city, where a half million Germans died in the winter of 1942-43 in a vain attempt to turn the tide of war in Hitler's favor.

Today the Red October Steel plant is turning out steel at the rate of 600,000 tons a year, its chief engineer says. That amounts to three-fifths of the normal peacetime production.

Steel Once Tanks

Much of the steel, which is later made into Soviet tractors, was reclaimed from the wrecked German tanks and other military vehicles that still litter the entire city and countryside.

The Stalin tractor plant is producing 20 tractors daily from a factory, which like the steel mill, was written off as 100 per cent ruined in the fierce Stalingrad fighting which ended in Russian victory in February, 1943.

Smoke came also from the chimneys of the nearby Red Barricade Engineering Works, the key plant for heavy industry in southern Russia.

I was with a group of the first foreign correspondents to visit Stalingrad in many months, and we toured the city's main streets and saw the industrial plants.

Stalingrad isn't much like the city of 15 to 20 years in the future which the Soviet government has charted in the greatest detail. That will be a metropolis of 800,000 workers who will live in districts carefully zoned for size and style of homes, which will be built between wide boulevards and great squares dedicated to the glory of Red army heroes.

Everything will be done in the most classic Greek and Roman style.

But now Stalingrad is a city of half rebuilt factories, set in a rubble which stretches for 40 miles along the Volga—a strangely shaped city with one main street.

Temporary wooden houses and a few repaired brick buildings provide each resident with two or three square yards of living space.

Trolleys, Busses Run

Trolley cars, busses, trains and riverboats are running. There is bread in the stores and customers line up in front of them. Across the street from the central railroad station 15 movie theaters are operating. By Aug. 1 there will be 41 schools ready to receive students.

At the Stalin Tractor works Assistant Director Yuri Grozny took the correspondents on the tour of the plant he estimated was now 60 per cent restored.

The correspondents spent hours in the tractor works and the steel mill talking to workers, who included veterans of the battle of Stalingrad as well as youths only a few months away from collective farms.

Of 12,000 workers at the tractor plant 55 per cent were women. They averaged very young, some as low as 16 years. Correspondents were told their wages varied from 350 to 4,000 rubles monthly depending on the workers' category and output.

Grozny said American equipment and German reparations machinery were expected shortly for installation, but neither in large quantity.

Now it's up to the peasant. How well he works, how carefully he harvests, will determine the amount of bread available to eat next winter.

The Soviet press has complained that some collective farms were working badly, particularly where grain was moved by hand resulting in many heads falling to the ground where they were trampled and lost.

Russian Peasants Begin Harvest of Wheat Crop

STALINO, Ukrainian S.S.R., July 13 (Delayed)—(AP) Russian peasants bending their backs at wheat harvest in fields from the Romanian border to central Asia hold the answer to the question of how well the Soviet Union's 190,000,000 persons will eat next winter.

An airplane flight over Russia's largest wheat farm, east of Rostov, and hundreds of other farms across the lower Don basin gave a group of touring foreign correspondents some idea of the magnitude of the harvest job.

Some farms had harvester combines, mowers, threashers and grain trucks. At others, work was being done by hand. Many threashers were powered by horses instead of machines.

The correspondents, flying from Stalingrad to Rostov-on-Don, crossed Russia's greatest state growing farm—"the giant." The farm, which the Russians say measures 370,000 acres, stretched out for golden miles beyond the horizon on the Salsk steppes east of Rostov.

It had excellent equipment. Numerous power machines were working in fields.

Between Rostov and Stalino, the correspondents, traveling in a fleet of two-seater planes at very low altitude, crossed hundreds of other grain fields, but the story was different.

Peasants with pitchforks worked in many fields with only horses or cows to pull wagons and to power threashers and other machines.

Wheat stocks in the fields of the giant farm lay close together indicating a good yield, but the Don basin crops appeared at closer view to have only a fair yield.

Nature, it seemed, had done its share of providing weather for a reasonable crop. The Kremlin gave strong agricultural leadership and lavish advice to farmers, together with all the equipment Soviet factories and skill could collect.

Hungarians Yield to Soviet

Nagy Accedes to Demands Boy Scouts and Catholic Groups Be Abolished.

Budapest, July 11 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The Hungarian Government yielded today to Russian demands and promised to disband the Boy Scouts, certain Roman Catholic and other organizations which the Soviet commander had denounced as Fascist.

Hungary also called on the Roman Catholic clergy to refrain from any anti-Russian propaganda.

A document signed by Premier Ferenc Nagy and addressed to Lieut.-Gen. V. P. Sviridov, acting chairman of the Allied Control Commission, promised to break up the Boy Scouts, a student union, three Catholic youth groups and the K. I. O. E., an organization similar to the Y. M. C. A.

Sviridov had presented a lengthy list of accusations and demands to the Hungarian Government on June 28, accusing the Boy Scouts of Fascist activities and the Catholic clergy of carrying out "propaganda against the Soviet Union and the Red Army."

Nagy said that the "Government will publicly call upon the Catholic priesthood that, in the interest of good relations between the two countries, it strictly refrain from any anti-Red Army or anti-Soviet Union propaganda."

Resignation Alternative.

Nagy's letter promised that Hungary also will fulfil other demands.

A prominent Hungarian, whose name may not be used, said the Government acceded to the Russian demands because had they been refused, the present Government probably would have had to resign.

"The Russian Hungarians would probably have attempted to take over the Government," he said. "That could cause disturbances. It would have given the Russians a chance to say at the peace conference that they could not leave Hungary because they were necessary to preserve order."

Nagy's letter said that the Small Holders' party, of which he is the leader, had acceded to another demand of Sviridov and had replaced the entire management of its youth organization. The Small Holders' party is not conservative by definition, but is far to the right of the Communists.

Nagy said, moreover, that he would carry out other Russian demands by discharging four chief prefects (similar to county judges) to whom the Russians and pro-Russian Hungarian elements objected.

Bank Ousts Officials

BUDAPEST, July 10 (Delayed) (AP).—A high Hungarian source said today that two of the three National Bank officials whose arrest and trial were demanded by the Russians last month—in connection with what the Russians called a ruble swindle — have left the bank and are "on vacation."

It was learned on June 17 that Soviet General Sviridov had written the government that several million rubles were missing from the bank. At the same time financial sources said a Russian major who had been "supervising" the National Bank had been removed.

It is not known whether the two "vacationing" officials will be brought to trial. They are both prominent in Hungarian financial circles.

BEGS FOR MERCY IN DEATH OF 250

Vienna, July 19 (A. P.).—Dr. Ernest Illing, 42 years old, a psychiatrist, pleaded for mercy today after an Austrian court sentenced him to hang for murder in the death of 250 mentally or physically handicapped children in a provincial hospital.

The prosecution had produced evidence that euthanasia was practiced at the hospital for several years by means of drug injections. Victims ranged up to 18 years of age.

Defense lawyers argued that "mercy deaths" were ordered secretly by Adolf Hitler while Austria was a part of Germany and that the doctors, under their oath of allegiance, were bound to carry out his program.

Dr. Marianne Tuerk, 32, an assistant, was sentenced to ten years. Another assistant, Dr. Margarethe Huebsch, 43, was acquitted.

Czechs Create 2 Ministries

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 19 (AP)—The Czechoslovak Parliament today created two new Ministries, which President Edvard Benes assigned to Cabinet members who had been without portfolios. Alois Voahlik of the People's party will head the new Ministry of Reconstruction, while Mikulas Hranek, Slovak Democrat, has been named Minister of Coordination.

Bulgaria Sets Date For Referendum

Sofia, July 19 (A. P.).—The Government today set September 8 as the date for a referendum on whether Bulgaria will be a kingdom or a republic.

Premier Of Iceland Calls Parliament To Study U. N. Bid

Reykjavik, Iceland, July 19—(AP)—Premier Olafur Thors said today that the Althing (Parliament) had been summoned to meet Monday to consider a government-sponsored bill under which Iceland would apply for membership in the United Nations.

Thors, who is minister of foreign affairs, said that the cabinet and the Althing Foreign Relations Committee were unanimously in favor of joining the world peace organization.

The newspaper Morgubladid, in commenting on the matter, said that "of course Iceland will have obligations to fulfill, but an even more severe task awaits her if she does not become a United Nations member."

(Iceland's request for membership would be the sixth pending before the world organization. The others are from Albania, Siam, the Mongolian People's Republic (Outer Mongolia), Afghanistan and Transjordan. The U. N. Security Council fixed July 15 as the deadline for the submission of applications to be considered at the September meeting of the General Assembly. However, this deadline could be changed by the Council.)

ALLIES REOPEN SHIPYARDS

Troops in Trieste Area Act to End Three-Day Lockout

TRIESTE, July 19 (AP)—Allied military authorities took over the Monfalcone shipping yards today to end a three-day lockout. American and British flags were hoisted.

Fifty American and British soldiers were posted outside the shipyards. Lieut. Col. J. E. Foden of Britain, chief industrial officer of the Military Government, said that "anyone who wants to work will be able to work." Maj. Kenneth Nooper of Robertsdale, Ala., his deputy, was placed in charge of the yards.

The shipyard management had ordered the lockout to halt clashes between non-strikers and workers, who were returning after having abandoned a general strike.

CHINA RIFT WIDENS AS MISSION FAILS

NANKING, July 19—(AP) Although there has been no formal announcement that General Marshall's peace mission has failed, it was agreed generally today in this capital city that there is little left for China's opposing factions to discuss.

The daily rift between the Communists and the Central Government is widening under repeated impacts of military clashes and political assassinations disagreements.

Communist and Government spokesmen agreed the situation today is far worse than it was at the end of last year.

General Marshall is spending a few days at the summer capital at Kuling with the new U. S. ambassador to China, Dr. John Leighton Stuart, but it is unlikely he will be able to hold successful conferences with his neighbor, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. Stuart, meanwhile, presented his credentials at Kuling today.

Neither is it likely that Gen. Chou En-lai, chief Communist negotiator, will visit Kuling. One high official offered this cryptic explanation:

"There's nothing left to talk about."

Marshall's efforts to bring the two factions together hit their latest snag over the question of Communist evacuation of certain "liberated areas," which constitute the government's price for a general agreement.

End ChinaHunt for Marines

Truce Team Negotiates for Release of Seven Held

TIENTSIN, July 19 (AP).—United States Marines called off today their search for seven marines held prisoners by a band of Chinese to permit a truce headquarters team to negotiate for their release.

The Marine Corps has been scouring the country north of Chinwangtao since the detachment was captured by a band of eighty armed Chinese a week ago. The marines, members of a unit guarding a bridge on the Peiping-Mukden railway, were taken prisoner in a near-by village where they had gone to buy rice.

Nationalist sources asserted the captors were Communists, but Major General Keller E. Rockey, China Marine commander, has refused to identify them. Rockey likewise has declined to discuss the search or information on the safety of the captured men.

FRENCH CLAIM REPORTED

$2,000,000,000 Demanded for Far Eastern Losses

SAIGON, Indo-China, July 19 (AP)—France has submitted an "approximate provisional" estimate of reparations, totaling about $2,000,000,000, which she claims from Japan for war damage in the Far East, it was reliably learned today.

In a claim submitted in Washington to the Far Eastern Commission, France demanded an immediate advance on the reparations, including shipment of railway transport and cotton goods to revive the economy of Indo-China, informants said.

The preliminary French claim also includes a demand for war damages from Siam, which will not be large beyond the return of two border territories, it was said.

G. I. and Two Japanese ImproveGasoline Engine

Use Junkers Injectors in Place of Carburetor

TOKYO, July 19 (AP).—A Yale-educated G. I. engineer and two Japanese university professors today announced they had developed a method of increasing the efficiency of gasoline engines. They substituted improved German Junkers injectors in place of the usual carburetor in introducing gas mixtures to the engine.

The three are Technician Fifth Grade Val, D'Ancona, of New York, and Professors Fujio Hago and Shuinichi Oshigashi, of Kyoto Imperial University. They began their work in February, and made five separate experiments before developing an injector that functioned properly.

They started, they said, with Junkers injectors originally designed for Diesel engines to deliver a fan-shaped spray of fuel to the cylinder head. The adjusted injector, applied to a gasoline engine, provided better atomization of fuel and permitted a richer mixture to be used, they asserted, with the result that the engine developed greater horsepower, ran more smoothly and had a lower fuel consumption per horsepower developed.

B-29s to Fly Over Japan

Aug. 1 Flight Just a Year After 868-Plane Attack

TOKYO, July 19 (AP).—Giant formations of B-29 Superfortresses, staging in the Marianas and Okinawa, will fly over Japan in a great triangle course Aug. 1, Army Air Forces Day.

Lieutenant General Ennis C. Whitehead said today the big planes will fly low over the course, which will take in atomic-bomb-devastated Nagasaki and Hiroshima and the Tokyo-Yokohama area.

The flight will come just one year after a tremendous heavy bomber formation of 868 planes criss-crossed the war-weary empire with cascades of fire bombs.

NO CLUES FOUND IN GI MURDER AT KYOTO, JAPAN

Kyoto, Japan, July 19—(AP)—Army investigators failed today to turn up a clue in the death of a 58th Signal Battalion soldier whose nude body was discovered yesterday stuffed in a foot locker.

Lt. Leland R. Brown, of Detroit, head of the investigating detachment, said no evidence had been found of a struggle in the small building where the body was discovered and none in the man's barracks. The soldier had been slugged in the back of the neck before being strangled.

The dead man's name was withheld.

Philippine Fight With Huks Near Crisis; Clashes Continue

Manila, Saturday, July 20 (AP)—Months of sporadic fighting between Government forces and armed peasants in central Luzon approached a crisis today with the latest flareup taking an undetermined [illegible] lives.

An official report to President Roxas late Friday said one military police officer and two enlisted men had been killed and eleven military policemen wounded in a continuing clash only 35 miles northwest of Manila.

Casualties among the opposing Hukbalahaps (armed peasants) were undetermined, said the report from the provost marshal general, Col. Mariano Castaneda, but they were believed to be "heavy."

12 Companies In Clash

Twelve MP companies equipped with mortars, armored cars and machine guns had been fighting for two days with an estimated 500 to 600 peasants armed with machine guns and rifles. At last reports the fighting was still in progress.

Castaneda reported the Huks had retreated to fish ponds and swamps near Malolos, capital of Bulacan province, and assured Roxas Manila was in no danger. Manila police, however, searched arrivals from central Luzon for firearms.

Luis Taruc, slightly built leader of the Huks, said in Manila the situation "fast was approaching a crisis" and that he would seek a conference with Roxas in an effort to avoid further bloodshed.

"The Government is not following its own pacification campaign in central Luzon," Taruc charged at his press conference, held in a dusty room of an obscure building in the heart of the city.

"Our people are being hunted down like animals. The fighting also is resulting in the killing of many innocent peasant women and children because of the mortar shelling of Bulacan barrios (villages)."

Taruc said there still was time to halt the fighting if Roxas and his leaders would meet with the PKM (peasant union) and Hukbalahap leaders. M. Forolan, press secretary, said at Malacanan Presidential Palace that Roxas would not comment until he has a direct request from Taruc for a conference.

Blames Outbreaks On Killings

Taruc said the latest outbreak of fighting was the "direct result of the slaying of former Mayor Pablo Roxas of Bulacan and two others at a wedding party last Sunday."

He denied that the Huks were responsible.

The military police meanwhile had arrested 61 members of a Huk squadron "directly responsible" for the wedding slayings, Colonel Castadena reported to Roxas. He said they had evidence showing that certain prominent members of the Huks were primarily responsible for the lawlessness and that their arrest within a few days was expected.

FILIPINO FACTIONS IN STIFF BATTLE NORTH OF MANILA

Manila, July 19—(AP)—Twelve military police companies of the Philippine Army, equipped with mortars, armored cars and heavy machineguns, were fighting a stiff battle today with more than 400 Hukbalahaps (armed peasants) some 35 miles northwest of Manila.

The latest outbreak in a series which has taken hundreds of lives occurred three miles southeast of Malolos, capital of Bulacan Province. The Hukbalahaps, armed with .50 caliber machineguns, were holding the villages of Santos and Niog against night-long shelling.

In Manila, Hukbalahap leader Luis Taruc, meantime, told newsmen the situation was "fast approaching a crisis in central Luzon." He said he would ask a conference with President Manuel A. Roxas tomorrow to avoid further bloodshed.

"Our people are being hunted down like animals," the guerrilla said. He spoke in a dusty room of an obscure building in the heart of the capital. "The fighting is resulting in the killing of many innocent peasant women and children because of the mortar shelling."

Atomic Bomb Detonator Is Tested at Bikini Lagoon

ABOARD U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, July 19—(AP) Despite the distraction caused by the premature flash of a 100-pound flare, a successful test was conducted today of the intricate mechanism to be used July 25 in detonating the first atom bomb ever exploded under water.

Because an electronic device was substituted for the bomb, only a radio 'blip' marked the moment of detonation at Bikini lagoon, culminating the use of radio impulses from a distant ship.

Tried out for the first time, the complicated mechanism worked perfectly, Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy announced from his flagship, the Mt. McKinley.

Flare Ahead of Schedule

The flare which went off 51 minutes ahead of schedule, startling onlookers, was being used to synchronize cameras and lacked the elaborate safeguards used in the bomb-firing circuit.

"The atomic bomb positively will not fire prematurely," Blandy said.

In a 700-mile radio interview, spanning the distance between his flagship and this press ship, Admiral Blandy foresaw as 50-50 the chances that the underwater burst would occur on schedule at 8:35 a.m. July 25 (4:35 p.m. Eastern Standard Time July 24, U. S. date.)

Blandy, commander of "Operation Crossroads," said bad radioactivity after the burst was not expected to last more than five days.

Aside from the damage that will be done to ships' bottoms, the great mystery of this second Bikini test is how much water will emit X-rays, and for how long, and how lethal they will be.

Water May Emit Rays

The admiral expects dangerous rays from the water on the day the bomb is exploded. Some parts of the lagoon, he said, probably would be radiating intensely but he predicted it would be possible to send in a few small craft, adequately shielded, for examinations and other work of immediate urgency. Some of the circulating waters, however, may remain radioactive for five days.

If the underwater bomb mechanism fails to detonate the nuclear material, risks will be minimized to the disarming crew by use of remote control. What these remote control devices are, Blandy did not state. But, in view of experience gained with the remote control of the underwater damage to the target fleet would not be made public, but the press would be informed whether the damage is serious, moderate or light.

"Too early to say," Blandy replied when asked what would have happened to crews on the target fleet July 1 had they been aboard in wartime positions. But he pointed out that conclusions might be drawn from the fact that 15 per cent of the animals which substituted for men are dead.

Blandy said that pig 311, sole survivor of the sunken cruiser Sakawa, is in good condition.

"But," added the admiral, "his disposition is bad. He is pugnacious."

Medically speaking his disposition is probably a good sign—an indication that this pig, which was pulled from the waters of the lagoon after the blast, is going to pull through.

Flash Bomb Explosion Startles Bikini Force

E. Fay

Aboard USS Mt. McKinley, July 19—(AP)—A large magnesium flash bomb used to synchronize cameras went off 51 minutes prematurely today during a rehearsal for the underwater atomic bomb test, but Vice Adm. W. H. P. Blandy quickly gave assurances the same thing could not happen with the real atomic explosive.

The flash startled the crossroads task force but caused no damage or casualties.

Admiral Blandy said the exact cause of the premature detonation was not yet determined but that the 100-pound flash bomb was set off entirely differently than the atomic bomb, and the public should have no fear of danger to personnel participating in next Wednesday's blast.

"The atomic bomb positively will not fire prematurely," he declared.

Cause Not Known

The magnesium bomb was mounted on a ship far removed from the vessel which set it off. "The exact cause of this premature flash is not known at present," Admiral Blandy said, "but it has no significance with respect to the actual atomic bomb since it was operated on the camera-actuating circuit. This circuit does not have the elaborate safeguards installed in the bomb-firing circuit."

Blandy disclosed that a dummy, non-explosive depth charge, which represented the atomic bomb, was planted underneath the guinea pig fleet for practice purposes today and emitted a radio sound precisely at the intended time.

Watchers on this flagship were startled to see the flash and miniature bomb cloud soar over the target fleet almost an hour before the scheduled time.

Blandy declared the accidental firing of the flare "simply cannot happen to the atomic bomb." Precautions are so elaborate, he said, "not even lightning" could set it off before all hands are miles away in safety.

Bad Weather

Bad weather also complicated the dress rehearsal, forcing a half hour postponement of the zero hour.

Rain and clouds forced cancellation of plans to use Navy drone planes in the rehearsal, although Army aviation based on distant islands took part.

Vice Admiral Blandy requested that the story of the premature flash be held up until an official explanation could be prepared more than an hour later. The explanation has not yet been received.

Meanwhile, confusion regarding Blandy's request resulted in radio reports being transmitted to the United States.

CLOSE-RANGE VIEW OF BIKINI BLAST ASKED

Texas Scientist Wants to Remain on Atoll for Observation

Kwajalein, July 19—(AP)—A group of scientists wanted to stay on Bikini through the first atomic bomb test, and at least one would like to sit out the second—tidal wave or no tidal wave.

Berin Brixner, El Paso, Texas, leader of the Los Alamos, N. M., optics group, officially requested permission to remain on Bikini Atoll through both the first test and the [illegible] blast July 25.

Dr. William W. Runison, Manhattan District radio-chemist, and many other Manhattan and Los Alamos scientists asked to be there for the first explosion.

Rear Adm. W. S. Parsons, assistant task force commander, said he believed it would be safe to remain on Bikini for the aerial drop but Vice Adm. William H. P. Blandy, task force commander, played it safe and denied all requests.

Topping all in daring was Capt. Rene Dussaq, a deep sea diver who wound up as a parachute trooper in the European and China-Burma-India theaters.

It was disclosed today the Dussaq was so determined to ride a flying fortress drone through the atomic cloud July 1 that his commanding officer assigned military police to watch his movements.

It was feared that Dussaq would try to stow away on one of the bombers, which were flown by remote control. He was found in the drone parking area an hour before the take-off and was ordered away.

Dussaq, an Army Air Forces cameraman, had weighed his chances and had requested officially for permission to ride a drone through the deadly cloud to make pictures obtainable no other way.

His request quoted Dr. Runison's estimate that he would take no more than a few seconds of radiation which probably would not be fatal.

Dussaq further pointed out he had lived a full life globe-trotting, including more than 80 parachute drops, had no family and offered to sign a waiver freeing the government of all responsibility.

May Is Silent on Whether He Will Take Stand at Profits Inquiry Tuesday

Three in Congress Appear Voluntarily

Barkley, McCormack and Sabath Deny Any Deals; Dickstein Joins in Wire

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 19.—A subpoena was served on Representative Andrew J. May, Democrat, of Kentucky, today by the Senate war investigating committee, which has received testimony linking his name with financial deals and influence on behalf of an Illinois munitions combine.

Representative May made no comment on accepting the subpoena from a committee representative in a corridor of the new House Office Building, although earlier he had shown signs of ignoring such a subpoena. Officials said the House would have to grant him special permission before he could testify under compulsion.

Three other Congressmen named in testimony appeared before the committee voluntarily during the day and denied under oath that they gave the munitions firm any assistance. They were the Senate and House Democratic leaders, Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, and Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, and Representative Adolph J. Sabath, Democrat, of Illinois, chairman of the House Rules Committee. Former Representative Samuel Dickstein, Democrat, of New York, now a New York State judge, filed a similar denial by telegram from Lake Placid, N. Y.

Sabath Tells of "Guilt"

Mrs. Jean Bates, former secretary in the combine's Washington office, had testified of telephone calls to or from the Congressmen's offices.

Senator Barkley and Representative McCormack said they personally had no dealings with the munitions makers. Representative Sabath said he was "guilty" of sitting in pinochle games with two of them, Joseph Freeman and Murray Garsson.

The chairman of the investigating committee, Senator James M. Mead, Democrat, of New York, signed the subpoena for Representative May with a dramatic flourish at an open committee session and said the committee expects Representative May to appear Tuesday. Senator Homer Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, declared the committee will take "every step the Constitution allows" to bring Representative May before it for questioning.

Question of Immunity

Once Congress adjourns, as it expects to do shortly, Senator Ferguson said, a Federal statute making it a crime to ignore a subpoena of a Congressional committee could be invoked.

A Senator or Representative has constitutional immunity from arrest during a Congressional session, or while traveling to or from one, except on charges of treason, felony or breach of the peace.

Representative May has denied profiting personally from his connections with the Erie Basin Metal Products Company, Batavia Metal Products Company and seventeen allied firms that gathered in some $78,000,000 in war contracts. He has said he was promoting the war effort by activities in their behalf.

The latest testimony concerning Representative May and the combine was taken Wednesday from Mrs. Eleanor Hall, former secretary in the Erie-Batavia Washington office.

She said that on one occasion Representative May "gruffly" inquired by telephone "about that $3,000." She quoted her employer as replying that "it will be along in a day or two. The remarks were made, she said, during a conversation about lumber.

On another occasion, Mrs. Hall testified, she heard her employer ask a combine official about "that $1,000 for Yankel"—a Yiddish nickname for "yokel" which her bosses frequently applied to Representative May.

While Representative Sabath was on the stand, Senator Owen Brewster, Republican, of Maine, testimony in secret session which indicated that the first meeting between Henry Garsson, one of the chief promoters of the combine, and A. B. Gellman, president of Erie, was in Representative Sabath's office in the Capitol.

Senator Brewster read testimony of Leo Stone, attorney for Mr. Gellman, to the effect that both Henry Garsson and Mr. Gellman were waiting in an anteroom to Representative Sabath's office and that the Congressman introduced them.

Humphrey S. Shaw, secretary of the Rules Committee, testified today he knew of no such meeting. At another point, he testified that Mr. Freeman had been to the office, maybe for some "after hours" pinochle games.

Tells of the Garssons

Murray Garsson, Representative Sabath said, once was employed as an investigator for a House Committee looking into bondholders' protective committees. Representative Sabath was chairman of the committee.

He said Henry Garsson had served the committee as an analyst and was "very capable." Mr. Freeman, he testified, "volunteered" to help with investigation in California, but he could not recall the committee's ever having put him on the payroll.

Murray Garsson had a letter of recommendation from the late Secretary of Labor William Doak and Mrs. Doak, Representative Sabath recalled.

"I'll say this," he declared, "he was a good investigator. He was fearless and naturally made a lot of enemies."

Then, of the Garssons and Mr. Freeman, he declared:

"I never interceded for them in Washington with anybody at no time. I never was in their office. I never was in their plant. I didn't go to any of their parties or luncheons.

"But I am guilty of playing pinochle when they coudn't get a third hand."

Sometimes Mr. Dickstein arranged pinochle games, Representative Sabath added.

In his telegram to the committee, Judge Dickstein said his telephone dealings with the Washington office of the munitions concerns had been "strictly social" and "had nothing whatever to do with business transactions in any manner or form."

He declared he never interceded for the combine or any one else for war contacts or contracts.

Senator Barkley said the only calls his office placed to the Washington agency of the combine were made by Mrs. Charles Chance, of his secretarial staff. He said she had no occasion to transact any business, but merely was trying to locate her husband who had been seeking employment.

Senator Barkley volunteered that his son had gone to work for Batavia after the war when the company was turning toward the manufacture of farm equipment.

Senator Barkley said he had met Murray Garsson—he thought Mr. Doak had made the introduction years ago. He said this Garsson brother found out his son was looking for a job after leaving the Army Air Forces and that the hiring was done quickly. The son, he said, had nothing to do with any war contracts.

Later, Senator Barkley said, he got a Dun & Bradstreet appraisal of the company and it was rather good.

He denied that any of the Garsson-Freeman interests had a key to a room assigned to him in the Senate office building.

McCormack's Denial

When Representative McCormack took his turn on the witness stand he was reminded of testimony of Mrs. Bates that she thought he had called the Erie-Batavia Washington office several times.

"There's no foundation in that testimony," he said. "The witness is mistaken."

He said his office got a large volume of calls about House business, because of his position, but that none of his staff could recall any calls to or from Batavia.

"I know I never received any," he said. "I made no calls out."

Senator Barkley and Representatives Sabath and McCormack had asked for a chance to testify. Senator Barkley insisted on being sworn as a witness, although Senator Mead told him that was unnecessary. Representatives Sabath and McCormack did the same.

Senator Mead said the committee had given Representative May "ample opportunity" to appear and was resorting to a subpoena "only because it is absolutely necessary for us to do so."

Representative May had indicated last week he might appear before the committee voluntarily if it would give him the right to call or cross-examine witnesses or subpoena records. The committee refused to accede to such terms.

McCormack Also Refutes Link of Witness—Sabath to Testify

BULLETIN

Washington, July 19—(AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) testified today that the Garsson munitions combine never asked his help in getting war contracts.

Immediately afterward, House Democratic Leader McCormack (Mass.) also testified to the Senate War Investigating Committee that he never received any calls from the Washington office of the Illinois combination, or made any calls to that office.

The two had requested that they be allowed to appear. Also waiting to testify voluntarily was Chairman Sabath (D-Ill.) of the House Rules Committee.

Washington, July 19—(AP)—Two top-ranking members of Congress offered to testify before the Senate War Investigating Committee immediately today, as a result of evidence linking their names with a wartime munitions combine.

They are Representative McCormack of Massachusetts, House Democratic leader, and Representative Sabath (D-Ill.), dean of the House and chairman of its Rules Committee.

Chairman Mead (D-N. Y.) announced the War Investigating Committee's public hearings, closed yesterday, would be reopened today to hear the two at their request.

Senators Subpoena May; A Second Congressman Is Under Inquiry by Mead

Former Representative Dickstein (D-N.Y.), whose name also was linked with telephone calls to and from the Washington office of the munitions combine, will be heard, at his request, when he can obtain transportation from Lake Placid, N. Y. Dickstein, now a New York State Supreme Court Justice, was chairman of the House Immigration Committee at the time of the phone calls.

McCormack Mentioned

Mrs. Jean Bates, former secretary for Joseph Freeman, Washington representative of the war contracting combine under investigation, testified yesterday that "we called McCormack several times," but she did not know why.

She said Freeman called Sabath "maybe once a week," and that Sabath called Freeman "a couple of times."

Dickstein, she said, was called "quite frequently—maybe twice a month," and he called Freeman's office "several times."

The committee still is pondering ways of compelling the appearance of Chairman May (D-Ky.), of the House Military Committee, whose name has been mentioned frequently as a go-between for the combine and the War Department.

May, who has disclaimed any personal profit, has been invited twice to testify, but he wants an attorney with power to cross examine witnesses, and this the committee has declined to promise.

Broader Inquiry Possible

As it reassembled to hear Sabath and McCormack, the committee threatened to broaden its inquiry to take in the activities of Washington's busy war contract brokers.

Senator Ferguson (R-Ill.), a committee member, told newsmen that preliminary evidence already has been obtained in "any number of cases that have challenged our attention." He said the committee definitely will not stop with the current inquiry.

Ferguson, a white-thatched former district judge who won prominence as Detroit's "one-man grand jury," said he and his colleagues are determined to trace the "pattern" of war brokers who—minus factories, industrial know-how or capital—obtained Government contracts.

The committee sent investigators out to run down leads suddenly opened by mysterious "new evidence" in what Chairman Mead has described as "the worst kind of war profiteering."

From sources close to the committee, it was learned that former Army officers who quit the service to take lucrative jobs with the munitions combine may be called to the stand later.

Garsson Named In Suit

New York, July 19—(AP)—Murray W. Garsson, identified by his attorney as the "munitions man whose name has been appearing in all the papers," was named a defendant yesterday in a $43,000 suit filed in Supreme Court.

The suit, filed by Samuel Greenfield as assignee of the First Pan-American Mercantile Corporation, charged misrepresentation in connection with purchase of the Green Brier mining property in West Virginia.

It also named as defendant Marshall Martin, who was not further identified. Garsson's attorney entered a general denial.

The complaint contended that Garsson and Martin in March, 1941, represented to Pan-American that the latter and others had an option on the Green Brier property and "falsely and fraudulently represented . . . that there was then on the mining property mined manganese of the value of approximately $50,000.

Under the option, the complaint continued, $40,000 was needed to acquire title and that the option showed Garsson advanced $5,000. Pan-American put up an additional $35,000 to the West Virginia Manganese and Iron Corporation, organized in April, 1941, and the latter company gained title, the complaint asserted.

The complaint said, however, that Garsson had not advanced the $5,000 listed in the option.

The second cause of action said that Pan-American had advanced an additional $8,000 to the West Virginia Manganese and Iron Corporation for "miscellaneous working and operating expenses" and that that sum had not been recovered.

Connally Hopes for Peace To Aid in Rebuilding Europe

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) Senator Connally (D-Tex) held out hope today to Germany and Austria for a "real and enduring peace" in which their peoples will have the opportunity "to rebuild their shattered fortunes and to restore their economy."

The chairman of the Foreign Relations committee told the Senate in a review of the Paris conference that while "the council of foreign ministers has travelled a hard road," the American delegation "this time did not come home empty-handed" from the negotiations with Britain, Russia and France.

Conceding that the Paris statesmen thus far have "merely skirted the edges of Europe's peace problem," Connally declared that the calling of a 21-nation peace conference for July 29 on five proposed treaties was an "outstanding achievement."

Will Oppose Cruel Peace

The United States will oppose there and elsewhere, he said, any "cruel and brutal terms of peace," but will insist upon "terms that shall mean real and enduring peace and the extirpation of armed aggression."

Concerning the Austrian and German problems to be settled later, Connally said:

"We want the peoples even of the enemy states to have an opportunity to rebuild their shattered fortunes and to restore their economy. We want to take arms out of their hands and replace them with implements of industry and agriculture.

"We want to drive from their minds dreams of aggression and conquest and turn them to the adoption of free and democratic institutions and to respect for the rights of other nations and their peoples."

Connally's statement was regarded as indicating that American leaders are not seeking for the principal Axis enemies the "hard" peace under which some persons have urged that these countries be reduced to the status of almost purely agricultural states.

Must Assert U. S. Rights

To attain a peace of the kind he outlined, Connally said the United States must continue to assert and enforce its rights "with firmness and resolution.

"We shall not tolerate any form of aggression, whether by armed might or more subtle infiltration or insidious attack upon our system of government and free institutions," he added.

"Whether it be Russia or the Republic of Panama, whether it be Great Britain or New Zealand, we shall respect their rights and shall expect and demand that they recognize and respect ours. We shall court the friendship and goodwill of all nations."

To this end, he said the United States must "pin its faith and its hope on the United Nations." As a means of demonstrating that the country stands "wholeheartedly back of the United Nations Charter," he suggested the following seven-point course:

Must Back U.N.

1. "In our dealings with other nations we must stand firmly on those principles of law and justice expressed in the Charter. We should expect other nations to do the same."

2. "We should unhesitatingly make available to the Security council our full quota of the troops, planes and ships necessary for the maintenance of world peace."

3. "We must maintain a strong army, navy and air force so that we may protect our land and our people and fulfill our obligations under the Charter."

4. "We must put into treaty form the inter-American machinery contemplated in the Act of Chapultepec and make it one of the permanent pillars in the temple of peace built at San Francisco."

5. "We should accept the compulsory jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice over those strictly legal disputes which affect the United States and any other state which has accepted the compulsory jurisdiction of the court."

6. "We should do our utmost to secure at the earliest practicable time complete agreement with respect to the control of atomic energy and other weapons of mass destruction.

7. "We should lend our full support to the economic, social and humanitarian program of the United Nations and thus help establish those conditions in the world which are essential for enduring peace."

WORLD PEACE PLAN OFFERED BY CONNALLY

Calls It 'Rank Insanity' to Desert Objectives of United Nations.

FOR STRONG ARMY AND NAVY

To Fight for Peace With Weapons of Reason and Logic in High Hope and Trust.

Washington, July 19 (A. P.).—Senator Connally (D.-Tex.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, outlined today a seven-point program for United States action to prevent the what he called "unthinkable tragedy" of a third world war.

In a report on the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference at Paris, Connally told the Senate that it would be "rank insanity" for any of the great world Powers to desert at this time the objectives of the United Nations.

None of the major nations want war, the Texan said. Urging this country to pin its hope and faith in the United Nations, Connally proposed:

1. That in international dealings we must stand firmly on those principles of law and justice expressed in the charter and "expect other nations to do the same."

2. "We should unhesitatingly make available to the Security Council our full quota of troops, planes and ships necessary for the maintenance of world peace."

3. "We must maintain a strong Army, Navy and Air Force so that we may protect our land and our people and fulfill our obligations under the charter."

4. "We must put into treaty form the inter-American machinery contemplated in the act of Chapultepec."

5. "We should accept the compulsory jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice over those strictly legal disputes which affect the United States and any other State which has accepted the compulsory jurisdiction of the country."

6. "We should do our utmost to secure at the earliest practicable time complete agreement with respect to the control of the atomic energy and other weapons of mass destruction."

7. "We should lend our full support to the economic, social and humanitarian program of the United Nations and thus help establish those conditions in the world which are essential for enduring peace."

Conally told his colleagues that, while difficulties had been encountered in reaching agreements among the Foreign Ministers of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and France, "we shall not dispair."

"We will fight for peace with the weapons of reason and logic," he declared. "We shall fight for it with all the bloody memories of the tragedy and misery in the centuries that have gone. We shall fight for it in high hope and trust in the years to come."

Excerpts From Connally's Speech on Peace

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP) Following is a partial text of the speech delivered in the Senate today by Senator Tom Connally, Democrat, of Texas, on the Paris meeting of Foreign Ministers and general international affairs:

The Council of Foreign Ministers was established at the Potsdam conference. * * * Later at the Moscow conference, attended by the Foreign Ministers of the United States, Russia and Great Britain, it was agreed that the Council of Foreign Ministers should prepare treaties of peace with Italy, Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

It was further agreed that when the preparation of these drafts had been completed, the Council of Foreign Ministers would convoke a peace conference for the purpose of considering the treaties of peace with these five countries, and that the conference should consist of the five members of the Council of Foreign Ministers, together with the members of the United Nations which actively waged war with substantial military force against the European Axis states.

It was also agreed that after the conclusion of the deliberations of the conference and upon consideration of its recommendations, the states singatory to the terms of the armistice with such nations will draw up the final texts of the peace treaties. These treaties, when signed by the appropriate states, will be submitted for ratification and will come into force immediately after such ratification by the Allied states signatory to the respective armistices.

Hails Peace Conference

It was under these authorizations that the Council of Foreign Ministers met in London in September, 1945, where their labors were carried on for many months through their deputies. It was under this same authority that the first Council of Foreign Ministers to be convened at Paris, met on April 15, 1946. * * * It will be remembered that little positive or definite results were obtained at the conference.

It was then determined that the Council of Foreign Ministers should again convene in Paris on June 15, 1946. The Council labored diligently for four weeks. During its sessions, substantial progress was achieved toward the agreement upon and the drafting of peace treaties for the five nations already mentioned. * * *

According to my view the outstanding achievement of the council was the calling of a peace conference to be attended by representatives of the twenty-one nations who were at war with the Axis powers and who are vitally concerned with the treaties. It is so fundamental that the nations who made war and shed their blood as comrades in the mighty holocaust and whose wounds we are undertaking to heal, should in fact and in truth determine the terms of peace, that no argument is required to establish the soundness or the justice of such a procedure.

Under the leadership of Secretary Byrnes, the American demand for the calling of a peace conference was put clearly and firmly before the Council. * * * In the Moscow Agreement it had been stipulated that a peace conference would be called by May 1, 1946. * * * It was felt that the Council could not break faith with the twenty-one nations involved and that its solemn pledge should be redeemed.

We may therefore look forward with hope and expectation to the convening in Paris of the accredited representatives of the twenty-one nations involved. There, in a free and open forum, the views and attitudes of the various nations may be made known and the various political, economic and territorial aspects of the peace settlement shall be given full and complete consideration * * *.

Trieste Proposal Defended

It is inconceivable that the Council of Foreign Ministers will arbitrarily disregard the recommendations and decisions of the peace conference. The twenty-one nations represented there will make their own rules of procedure and will not be hampered by any rule of unanimity or veto. The conference should, and I feel hopeful will, constitute a truly democratic assembly with freedom of expression and debate. The peace treaties, unless they reflect the real views and wishes of the nations affected, can never form the basis for a permanent and satisfactory peace.

The Council of Foreign Ministers have furnished and will continue to furnish leadership and direction. The final determination, however, must rest with the peoples of the nations affected. In their judgment alone, in their decision alone, in their wishes alone, can properly be constructed lasting, genuine treaties of peace.

The disposition of Trieste was a most difficult and perplexing problem. It was not without long and stubborn controversy that it was resolved. * * *

The plan adopted will contribute to the continued development of Trieste as a port and a commercial metropolis to serve, not alone Yugoslavia, but Austria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Danubian territories. To have awarded Trieste to either Italy or Yugoslavia would probably have precipitated a continuous political and racial agitation with accompanying bitterness and danger to the peace of that area.

It is the belief of the American delegation that the solution adopted is best for the future welfare of Trieste and its people and will contribute to the welfare of the world in preventing bitter and provocative controversy that might result in bloodshed and war.

The placing of responsibility for the selection of the Governor and for guaranteeing the protection and security of Trieste upon the Security Council of the United Nations will add greatly to the prestige and power of the United Nations. It will afford the Security Council a splendid opportunity to demonstrate its high functions of preserving the peace and in vetoing war before it engulfs innocent peoples in misery and blood. It will also enable the Security Council to work out and develop policies and methods with which it can deal with similarly troublesome and dangerous situations.

Says U. N. Gains Prestige

Final disposition of the Italian colonies—a problem that promised serious difficulty—was postponed on the suggestion of Secretary Byrnes. * * * Agreement was eventually reached upon a plan whereby final disposition of the colonies should be determined by the four principal Allied powers who were to take into account the desires and ultimate welfare of the people involved, as well as the situation of neighboring and other interested governments. If no agreement is reached by the four principal Allied governments within a year after the effective date of the treaty, they are obligated to accept the recommendations of the General Assembly of the United Nations as to the final disposition of the colonies.

Here again is invoked the power of the United Nations. Again its prestige and its possibilities for high service are enhanced and strengthened. The sanction of fifty-one nations is to approve and ordain international settlements in behalf of concord and peace. The crystallized public opinion of peace-loving nations of the world will impart dignity and respect and strength to such settlements. * * *

The Soviet Union made a claim for reparations against Italy in the sum of $100,000,000. While it was agreed that such reparations should be granted, there was sharp division of views respecting the sources from which they should be derived. * * * The United States was successful in its views with respect to this controversy. * * *

The Council reached no agreement with regard to the German and Austrian questions. However, exhaustive discussion of the problems which took place was not without value. A better understanding of the various aspects of the questions with which the Council will be required to struggle at a later date was made clear. * * *

It had been determined at Potsdam that Germany was to be administered as an economic whole. But, in fact, under the present arrangement providing for four-power control, this plan is not being so administered. The present lack of cooperation among the four Powers is not contributing to the reconstruction or the recovery of commerce and industry in Germany. It was not possible to reach an agreement for the rectification of this situation. * * *

Calls Germany Key to Peace

Whatever success we may have had at Paris, we must remember that the twenty-one nation conference will be only one step down the long and rocky road to a final peace. Above all, we must never lose sight of the fact that Germany remains far and away the most important single element in the peace settlement. Thus far we have merely skirted the edges of Europe's major peace problem.

A number of other questions upon which agreement was reached must also be submitted to the peace conference to receive approval or rejection and appropriate recommendations to the Council by the conference. It is possible that the Council of Foreign Ministers will meet either contemporaneously with the peace conference or shortly thereafter to receive the recommendations of the conference and to make final draft of the treaties for submission to the various governments for their signature and ratification.

These processes may seem long and intricate. However, they possess valuable qualities. Through the interchange of views among the Foreign Ministers and at the peace conference, every phase of these difficult problems is illuminated and discussed. It makes for better understanding and contributes toward agreement on the problems that vex so many nations of the world.

This fact was made apparent at the recent meeting of the Foreign Ministers. The April conference was disappointing and disheartening. When we left for Paris in June there were those who felt that the signs pointed toward another rather dismal failure. We were determined to exhaust every resource to secure results.

Our quest for peace must be persistent and continuous. The stakes are so important that even repeated rebuffs must not deter us. No effort must be relaxed as we struggle to find a workable compromise to enable us to project our gallant comradeship of war into a comradeship of peace.

Lists Paris Accomplishments

This was the thought that was uppermost in our minds as we left for Paris. And our determination to do everything within our power to bring about peace was not without avail. This time we did not come home empty-handed. I quote Secretary Byrnes:

"Now the prospects for peace treaties with five nations are bright. We are on the road back to peace."

The Council did not reach agreement on all questions, but it did achieve substantial and important results and set in motion plans for the ultimate settlement of remaining problems. Peace conferences usually require much time. * * * Time is precious, but it is not too precious to be devoted to the cause of peace and the adjustment of quarrels that may disturb that peace.

What were the main achievements of the Council? They might be listed as follows:

(1) The calling of the peace conference on July 29.

(2) The agreement to accord to the twenty-one nations at the conference complete freedom of discussion and recommendation.

(3) The development of a better understanding among the great powers.

(4) The draft treaty with Italy, including the internationalization of Trieste, reparations, and agreements with respect to the disposition of the Italian colonies and the award of the Dodecanese Islands to Greece.

(5) Real progress with respect to the treaties with the ex-satellite states—Hungary, Finland, Rumania and Bulgaria.

(6) The decision to submit to the peace conference all questions upon which the Council of Foreign Ministers could not reach agreement.

(7) The tentative understanding that Austria and Germany shall be considered later in the year by the Council of Foreign Ministers.

Calls Compromise Necessary

I make no claim that the settlements reached were in each case the most desirable. They were not perfect, but they were settlements. It must be remembered that all of them were the result of compromise. The United States alone could not enforce its own views in each particular. There has also now negotiations are adjusted [illegible] to be reworn [illegible] be reconciled only through the process of compromise.

During the Paris sessions my thoughts frequently were carried back to the Constitutional Convention which met during the summer of 1787. Seemingly insuperable differences of opinion among the delegates arose. The contentions of the big states and the small states, sectional differences, political and industrial questions vexed and harassed the participants.

However, through compromise and the supreme will to agree, the Constitution emerged from the convention as the result of compromise and the adjustment of views. One hundred and fifty years of history have nobly demonstrated the sublimity of the Constitution as a charter of governmnet.

The Council of Foreign Ministers has traveled a hard road. Representing the nations which played the dominant part in the war and upon whose resources the world must depend for the maintenance of peace, they had at the same time to mediate among the conflicting claims of the nations affected by any settlement and to make that settlement just and fair in the interests of world peace and security. Europe was still torn by hunger and strife and some of the countries had no representative Government. A beginning at peacemaking had to be made wherever it could be made.

Wants Aggression Ended

The United States delegation will pursue the consideration by the peace conference of all the issues coming before that body and aid in their adjustment. We shall cooperate in the Council of Foreign Ministers in drafting the final treaties and submitting them to the interested states for their signature and ratification.

We shall then undertake to aid in the solution of the Austrian and German problems with the complex and difficult questions involved. We want to see the state of war brought to an end. We want the peoples even of the enemy states to have an opportunity to rebuild their shattered fortunes and to restore their economy.

We want to take arms out of their hands and replace them with implements and tools of industry and agriculture. We want to drive from their minds dreams of aggression and conquest and turn them to the adoption of free and democratic institutions and to respect for the rights of other nations and their peoples.

We do not want to impose cruel and brutal terms of peace but we mean to impose terms that shall mean real and enduring peace and the extirpation of armed aggression.

At the meetings in Paris the views of the United States were respected and given recognition. The other powers were convinced that the United States was serving no selfish purpose. They were aware that the United States was demanding no territories; that it was demanding no reparations; that it was seeking the peace of the world and peace alone. This knowledge gave an eloquent and convincing appeal to the voice of the Secretary of State as he advanced the views of the United States.

The representatives of the three other Governments knew that the United States had made the most tremendous financial sacrifices of all the Allied powers in waging the war against the Axis. They knew that the United States had generously, through lend-lease, sent arms, food, and supplies to the Allied armies. They knew of the huge armies which the United States had raised, armed, equipped and sent across the seas to wage war against the minions of aggression and conquest. They knew how the United States had spanned the oceans and sent its heroic fighting men from the far-flung Pacific to Europe, Africa and the Middle East.

They knew that these tremendous exertions, that these sacrifices greater than had ever been made in the history of warfare, were expended solely in the interest of world peace and the suppression of armed aggression and conquest, over the innocent and peace-loving peoples of the earth.

Praises Political Unity

They knew that we had sent hundreds of millions of dollars for food and relief in Europe and that many other millions will follow. The other nations know that the United States believes that Europe's recovery is necessary for the welfare of the world. They know that we do not believe this is any time for the assessment of monstrous and crushing reparations.

The fact that the program of the United States is not tinged with political partisanship gives us strength in the councils of the nations. The happy situation that our people are not divided on international issues by narrow and selfish partisanship drowns any hope among foreign interests that through division and schism our people can be weakened or undermined. This was made abundantly apparent at the Paris conference. Entire and complete unity made unassailable the American position.

And what shall be our course in the future toward our Allies and associates—both the great powers and the small powers?

The United States must maintain and pursue its traditional and historical international policy toward all nations. Our rights must be asserted and enforced with firmness and resolution. We shall not tolerate any form of aggression, whether by armed might or more subtle infiltration or insidious attack upon our system of government and free institutions.

Whether it be Russia or the Republic of Panama, whether it be Great Britain or New Zealand, we shall respect their rights and shall expect and demand that they recognize and respect ours. We shall court the friendship and good-will of all nations.

We pray God that we shall never again be forced to draw the sword in defense of our security. All the world knows that we want to live in peace. All the world knows that we can wage war. All the world knows that we shall not refuse to fight when attacked or when our security is threatened. While tenaciously attached to peace we must not and shall not neglect our national defense.

The United States must maintain an adequate Army, highly trained and properly equipped. It now has the greatest and most powerful Navy on the planet. It must continue to possess such a Navy. The United States Air Forces are now superior to any in the world. These forces must be preserved and maintained.

Says World Wants Peace

These weapons on the land, on the sea and in the air shall not be provided for aggression or conquest. They are to be provided for the national defense and the preservation of peace—to arrest aggression and to strike the sword from the hand of would-be conquerors.

It is not an easy task to reach agreement among the representatives of many foreign Governments. Nations differ in historical background. They differ in language. They differ in customs. They differ in race.

However, all peoples know the miseries of war. All of them know of bloodshed and disaster. All of them know of ravaged lands and violated homes. Therein lies our hope for restoring the peace of the world. Therein lies the strength of our position. If we may convince them—and we have convinced them—that our purposes are unselfish and that we seek alone the welfare and the happiness of peoples everywhere, we may succeed.

Someone may inquire why the United States should participate in a Council of Foreign Ministers concerning itself with Italian colonies in Africa, the settlement of the question of Trieste and other questions in a distant continent. Someone may ask what difference does it makes to us whether Trieste belongs to Italy or Yugoslavia. Why are our interests affected by the allocation of Italian colonies? What is our concern in all these matters that are not of primary interest to our people?

Our reply is that our interest is in peace alone. We have no direct interest in Trieste or the Italian colonies as such, but we do have an overpowering interest in preserving peace on the globe. We cannot forget that World War I had its beginning in a quarrel in an obscure town in the Balkans. We do not fail to recall that the tragic war that has just come to an end had its beginning in a quarrel over Danzig on the Baltic.

We are concerned in preventing the existence of any festering sore in Europe or elsewhere that may provoke another war and plunge the earth in blood. These are the reasons for our action. These are reasons mightier than all the wealth of the territories affected. These are reasons more powerful than all of the nationalistic pleas of sections and areas.

HOUSE PROPOSES DEATH FOR BARING U. S. ATOMIC DATA

Ban on Sharing Information on Energy for Industry Also Voted

JUL 20 1946

BOMB MAKING APPROVED

Amendment Gives President Power to Authorize Manufacture of Weapons.

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) The House wrote a death penalty provision into atomic energy legislation today, paved the way for the army to manufacture atomic bombs, and rewrote the controversial patent section.

Then it put off a final decision on the legislation, passed unanimously by the Senate in different form more than a month ago, until tomorrow NIGHT

Subject to Roll Call

The death penalty, the army bomb production, and the patents amendments were approved by standing votes still subject to roll-call counts if enough members demand them.

Rep. Sumners (D-Tex) was author of the section setting up the death penalty for violators of security regulations. Also tentatively adopted was an amendment by Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va) making the minimum sentence in such cases 10 years.

The action came during the fourth day of consideration of the bill. Still ahead is a drive to send it back to the House Military committee for further consideration, a move which, if successful, would kill the bill until next year.

The measure proposes to set up a five-man commission for the domestic control of atomic energy development and writes rules for the commission's operations.

A five-vote margin, 99 to 94, struck from the bill today a Senate section that would have allowed the commission to share with other nations, under certain conditions, information on the use of atomic energy for industrial purposes.

Provides Guidance

The section eliminated directed that in handling information the commission should be guided by this principle:

"That information with respect to the use of atomic energy for industrial purposes may be shared with other nations on a reciprocal basis only after the Congress declares by joint resolution that effective and enforceable international safeguards against the use of such energy for destructive purposes have been established."

It was eliminated on motion of Rep. Elston (R-Ohio), who claimed it amounted to an advance promise to share industrial secrets with other nations.

The votes carried on a trend toward secrecy and military participation begun earlier with adoption of amendments giving the armed forces greater voice in control of the new energy that the Senate had provided.

Army Gets Power

Today's main development on the military aspect was adoption of an amendment aimed at letting the army keep on making atomic bombs.

That provision, favored by the House Military committee, went in on a 102 to 72 standing vote.

Under the amendment the President would have discretionary power to direct the proposed atomic control commission to allow the armed forces to make atomic weapons. Without such a provision, military committeemen had contended, the armed forces would be unable to make atomic bombs under any conditions.

The House trend set in yesterday with adoption of amendments requiring that one member of the control commission be a member of the armed forces, and that the head of the division of military application should be a military man.

As passed by the Senate the measure, which provides for domestic control of atomic energy, called for an all-civilian commission.

The Administration had endorsed that theory, urging that in time of peace the American tradition is to keep civilians in control.

Patent Section Revised

The Senate's patent section, which gave the government a virtual monopoly on all patents and inventions in the field of atomic energy, was toned down sharply.

A substitute section, offered by Rep. Lanham (D-Tex.), was adopted by a 121 to 57 vote. Its major provisions is a requirement that any patents acquired by the commission through condemnation, purchase or otherwise, revert to the original owner after the commission no longer needs them, with the owner being compensated meanwhile for any damages he may have suffered.

Other amendments approved during the day:

Elimination of authority for the commission to establish information services, publications and libraries to provide for dissemination of information.

Removal of a provision requiring the commission to set up appeal procedure for persons dissatisfied with commission action in distributing fissionable or byproduct materials or denying or revoking licenses. The effect of the elimination of this section is to permit court appeals under the existing administrative procedure law.

Addition of a section requiring the commission to withhold contracts or licenses until applicants have been given a character clearance by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

HOUSE GROUP SPURS ATTACK ON ATOM BILL

Opponents of Present Measure Seek to Put It on Shelf

Washington, July 19—(AP)—Rallying behind demands for Army retention of atomic energy control, a group of House members spurred a drive today to shelve the Administration's civilian control bill.

Failing by only 29 votes yesterday in a preliminary attempt to kill the legislation outright, opponents closed ranks for a roll-call vote on a motion to send the bill back to the Military Committee for "further study."

If successful, this would have the effect of putting the legislation on ice until next year.

Representative Short (D-Mo.) who told reporters he would seek the roll call vote at the conclusion of today's debate, said:

"This legislation shouldn't be considered until after the war is officially ended or the peace treaties are written. Things are too uncertain now."

Chances Seen Good

Short said the chances "are good" for recommitting the bill, which the House amended by standing votes yesterday over Administration opposition.

The changes were designed to carry out Military Committee recommendations that at least one of the proposed atomic control commission, as well as the head of the division of military application, shall be members of the armed forces. (The division of military application would deal with atomic bombs and other destructive forces, as distinguished from peaceful uses of the new energy).

Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts, echoing President Truman's endorsement of the bill as it passed the Senate, called the military amendments contrary to the fundamentals of democracy in time of peace.

The Senate measure, drafted by a special committee headed by Senator McMahon (D-Conn.), provided for a five-member civilian commission, and a civilian director of the military application division.

There was no immediate reaction to a telegram from the Association of Oak Ridge Scientists and Engineers accusing House opponents of civilian control of "maliciously trying to mislead their fellow Congressmen."

The telegram, sent to Speaker Rayburn last night, took note of statements by Representative Rankin (D-Miss.), that "there are spies" in the Oak Ridge atomic plants. It said:

"If Representative Rankin actually has information concerning spies at Oak Ridge, it is his duty as a citizen to turn such information over to the FBI and to the security division of the Manhattan District."

World Peopled by 'Lana Turners Seen by Mrs. Luce in Atom Talk

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) The prospect of a world peopled only by "Lana Turners" and "New Deal Bureaucrats" was held out to the House today by Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R-Conn.).

It might be done with atomic energy radioactive elements, the blonde congresswoman said in a speech that had legislators rocking with laughter.

She referred to an earlier suggestion by Representative Judd (R-Minn.) that radioactive elements might be used to "transmute the species."

If the atomic energy commission decided to transmute the female of the species, Mrs. Luce said, "they would make them all Lana Turners."

As for the males, she believed the commission might hit upon a creature with "a very large head, one eye, an ear bent permanently to receive a telephone call, one hand with only a thumb and forefinger so it can sign checks and documents, no legs, and a very large bottom to sit in a swivel chair."

In short, she concluded, it might turn all the men into "New Deal bureaucrats."

FOR BIG STANDING ARMY

State Army, Navy Union Also Asks Atom Bomb Be Secret

ALBANY, July 19 (AP)—The New York Department of the Army and Navy Union demanded today that the United States maintain a standing army large enough to defend this country should the United Nations fail to "keep peace."

Three hundred delegates to a four-day convention unanimously adopted a resolution asking the National Union commander to sponsor Congressional action to that end.

Another resolution called for United States ownership and control of the atomic bomb and other war weapon secrets.

The delegates also moved to petition President Truman for a conference of investment, industrial, agricultural and labor leaders "to bring about speedy peacetime economic recovery."

A foreign-policy resolution recommended deferral to Congress of "all matters providing for use of our armed forces in foreign countries where not affecting the rights of American citizens and property of America."

PAULEY PREPARES REPARATION FACTS

Will Report to Truman on Data Collected in Far East, Europe.

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) Edwin W. Pauley returned tonight to deliver a report to President Truman on his world reparation studies which officials expect to lead to sterner opposition to Russian reparation policies.

"This was a fact-finding mission and we got the facts," he told reporters at the airport at the end of his 40,000-mile mission which began May 4. He declined to elaborate pending his report to the President.

U. S. Policy Stiffened

There already has been a noticeable stiffening of American policy all along the line so far as Russia is concerned. Particularly strong opposition has appeared against two relatively new Soviet demands: Foreign Minister Molotov's insistence on $10,000,000,000 reparations for the Soviet Union from Germany, and Russian moves to take industrial equipment from their zone in Austria in the face of Austrian claims that the plan would wreck the country's economy.

Diplomatic authorities here contend that the Russians are using reparations as a means of exercising direct economic control and therefore indirect political control in various countries. It has worked out that way in the Balkan states, these informants say, and the Russians appear to be trying to make it work out that way in Germany and Austria.

Visited Japan, Korea

Pauley visited among other areas Japan, Korea, Manchuria, the Philippines, Germany and Austria. He called also at London and Paris.

On orders from President Truman he set out to determine what reparations Japan might pay in the form of factories and other removable equipment and what might be done about taking Japanese-owned equipment out of—or possibly putting equipment from Japan proper into—Korea and Manchuria.

Effects on the economy of eastern Asia were a prime consideration in areas outside the Japanese home islands. This meant that Pauley had to determine what is the condition of industries in Korea and Manchuria, partly as a result of Allied military destruction but even more as a result of seizures by the Russians.

The problem of the United States, largely on the basis of evidence which Pauley may supply, is to try to figure out how much of the seized Asiatic equipment should be counted as reparations and checked off against what the Russians might otherwise claim from plants in Japan proper.

MERGER MEASURE WILL BE SHELVED UNTIL NEXT YEAR

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) Navy boosters ran up a victory flag today at word that President Truman has agreed to drop his demand for congressional action this session on the Army-Navy merger.

"This is a big victory for the Navy," commented Senator Robertson (R-Wyo.). He and other naval committee members have been backing the Navy department in its long fight against consolidation with the War department in a single defense department with land, sea and air branches under one cabinet secretary.

News of the changed White House position came from Chairman Elbert Thomas (D-Utah) of the Military committee, one of the leaders in the move for the single defense department plan.

Thomas said he had asked Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) to get a "green light" for the merger bill at the Monday conference of congressional leaders with the President.

"But I got a red light instead," Thomas told reporters after a closed session of the committee.

Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) and House Democratic Leader McCormack (Mass.) informed the President and Senate leaders that the House membership is opposed to action on the merger now, Thomas explained.

Thomas said Mr. Truman sent word through Barkley that he still is very much interested in unification of the armed forces. Thomas announced he will reintroduce the merger bill at the next session.

But Robertson predicted support for the merger plan will diminish with time and through increased cooperation and coordination of the armed forces already underway.

"The Navy admirals have not been able to say much since the latest Presidential orders," Robertson said. "But they still are properly opposed to any plans that would cost the Navy its traditional cabinet post, or take away its land-based air power."

Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the Senate Naval committee said the delay will "be most helpful in bringing about ultimately a merger that will be acceptable to both the Army and Navy."

An attempt to push the bill now, Walsh said in his statement, "would lead to a prolonged debate and discussion" and "create unpleasant relations between the departments and possibly lead to a final decision that would not be conducive to constructing a unified organization."

NO DATA ON SECRET PACT

State Department Has No Report on Soviet-Mongolian Treaty

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The State Department said today that it had no knowledge of any secret treaty between Russia and the Mongolian People's Republic that would permit the stationing of Soviet troops in Mongolia.

Dispatches from Manila had said Chinese Government officials there believed such a treaty existed.

Officials here said the Mongolian Republic and Russia had signed a treaty Feb. 27, which pledged each country to remove troops on the other's territory "without delay" when not needed for military help.

BRITISH HONOR 14 OF U. S.

They Are Decorated for Service to London War Missions

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Fourteen Americans were the recipients today of British decorations for services as British missions employes in the United States during the war.

Lord Inverchapel, British Ambassador, presented the decorations in the name of King George VI. Among the recipients were:

Honorary officer of the Civil Division of the Order of the British Empire—Clarence V. Beaton of 28 Prescott Road, White Plains, N. Y.

Honorary member of the Civil Division of the Order of the British Empire—Malcolm Graham of 9 Woodside Drive, Millbrook, Greenwich, Conn.; Arthur Vicary Hostler of 302 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn.

The British Empire Medal, Civilian Division—Thomas Joseph MacStoker of 7402 Eleventh Avenue, Brooklyn.

The King's Medal for service in the cause of freedom—John Hart, New York.

CONFERS WITH TRUMAN

Washington, July 19 (A. P.).—Dr. Armand Hammer, distiller and art dealer, conferred with President Truman today, preparatory to a trip to Europe in the interest of increasing American contributions of food to famine areas.

He told reporters that he wanted to get business men behind the drive to continue to feed hungry people overseas "until they are able to take care of themselves."

Hammer, president of the United Distillers of America, said the distilling industry bought 50,000,000 pounds of grain for distribution through UNRRA. In addition, he said, he had personally contributed 1,000,000 pounds.

Dr. Hammer, who is also head of the Hammer Galleries in New York, said he had conferred with former President Hoover, honorary chairman of the President's Famine Emergency Committee.

Food Mission to Argentina

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP).—The International Emergency Food Council officially announced today it is sending a mission to Buenos Aires to investigate the possibility of purchasing fats and oils for world distribution. Great Britain, France and the Netherlands will represent the council on the mission. Dennis A. Fitzgerald, United States representative on the I. E. F. C., said the mission will have no purchasing powers and will be authorized only to survey Argentina's supply situation with a view to possible future purchases by the council.

UNRRA FUND BAN IS WATERED DOWN

Washington, July 19 (A. P.).—The House accepted today a Senate modification of an original House ban against use of UNRRA funds in countries which permit censorship of news reports on the relief agency's activities.

The ban was placed in a deficiency supply bill, appropriating funds for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. The two houses still are in disagreement over other provisions.

As originally written by the House, the legislation would have prohibited UNRRA relief in countries refusing to permit properly accredited American press representatives to report without censorship on UNRRA activities. Opponents contended this would be an affront to Russia.

Known as the "free press" amendment, the prohibition was diluted by the Senate to permit the Secretary of State to make the final determination of whether "a reasonable number" of accredited press representatives are permitted to report on UNRRA operations without censorship restrictions.

NAVY WASTE SLIGHT

Washington, July 19 (A. P.).—A House naval affairs subcommittee reported today the the Navy has wasted relatively little food.

The committee conducted an investigation in response to congressional complaints that the Navy was wasting food. A summary of its findings said

"Food wastage which has occurred under naval jurisdiction has been relatively minor compared with the volume of food handled and the intensity of the demobilization program. Publicity focused on this wastage has had a salutary effect in making the Navy more completely food conscious and in reducing still further the previous instances of waste.

The two-member subcommittee, Representatives Rivers (D.-S.C.) and Hess (R.-Ohio), said that it would keep an eye on the situation and report to Congress if there is "any relaxation of the present strict conservation."

BOARD DROPS PLAN TO BUILD 2 LUXURY SHIPS

Truman Request Causes Abandonment of $34,800,000 Maritime Project

Washington, July 19—(AP)—The Maritime Commission abandoned today, at President Truman's request, immediate plans to spend $34,800,000 for construction of two luxury liners to operate between this country and South America.

Reconversion Director John R. Steelman advised the commission the President wanted the construction awards held up for at least a year. Vice Adm. W. W. Smith, commission chairman, said last night the recommendation would be followed.

The liners would have been built entirely at Government expense and chartered to the Moore-MacCormack lines. The annual loss in their operation had been estimated at $2,800,000.

Steelman said that not only were materials for ship building still in "acutely short supply" but that failure of Congress so far to extend price controls "makes even more imperative the drastic curtailment of unessential expenditures by the Federal Government."

Smith said the commission would proceed, however, with reconditioning of the SS Brazil, SS Uruguay and SS Argentina for use in the South American trade. They were wartime troop transports.

PROPAGANDA BAN PLACED BY SENATE IN OPA FUND BILL

$75 Millions for Expenses Available if Agency Is Revived.

CONFERENCE STALLED

Afternoon Parley Deadlocked, New Session Called Today.

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) A ban on government "propaganda in support of price control" was voted by Congress late today, while Senate-House conferees labored without success to agree on a bill reviving OPA.

"We're getting nowhere the fastest I ever saw," was the glum comment of Senator Barkley (D-Ky), a leader in the attempt to write a bill that President Truman won't veto.

NIGHT

An afternoon session of the conference got nowhere and another meeting was set for tomorrow. Barkley announced that "we will work as long as there is any hope."

An apropriation bill the Senate passed and sent to the White House granted OPA $75,000,000 for expenses during the present fiscal year—if the agency is revived, but stipulated that none of the money shall be used for "general propaganda in support of price control."

The $75,000,000 was a compromise between the $106,000,000 the House had voted before the price control agency legally died July 1, and the $56,650,000 the Senate had voted to allow if it is revived by pending legislation.

The two houses also voted to cut out of the measure a proposed $50,000 appropriation for a joint committee to report on economic prospects, a setup provided under the recently-enacted employment bill.

Reject Senate Proposal

As for the argument over reviving OPA, conferees for the House flatly refused to accept any Senate proposal that does not assure restoration of price ceilings on milk meat, eggs and other foods.

That decision drew still tighter the deadlock over what sort of OPA—if any—shall get a new lease on life and prompted Barkley to say the prospect for an OPA revival agreement "doesn't look so good." Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the House Banking committee commented that the outlook for restoring effective price controls "is dark."

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said: "The deadlock remains."

Refusing to budge from their insistence on putting basic foods back under price controls, the House members of the Senate-House conference committee turned thumbs down on a proposed compromise submitted by a Republican-dominated Senate sub-committee of Senators Taft, Toby (R-NH), and Radcliffe (D-Md).

This proposal would have left to a three-man board, with higher authority than OPA, the decision whether food price ceilings should be restored.

Return of Meat Ceilings Blocked

Yesterday the Senate conferees rejected a House proposal that would have put the food items back under ceilings.

The committee agreed today to make another effort at a compromise. President Truman has indicated he will veto any bill that does not control food prices.

Spence dismissed the Senate proposal as "silly," telling reporters its effect would be to declare a policy of Congress "that it is all right for prices to jump."

Under the proposition made by Taft and the other two senators, the board, appointed by the President subject to Senate approval, would put price ceilings back on livestock and edible products there-of, poultry, eggs, cottonseed, soybeans, milk, petroleum, grains or tobacco, if the board found:

1. That the price of such commodity has risen unreasonably above a price equal to the lawful ceiling price in effect on June 30, plus the amount per unit of any subsidy paid prior to June 30.

2. That the commodity concerned is in short supply and that recontrol is practicable and enforceable.

3. That the public interest will be served by such recontrol.

REVIVAL HOPES FOR OPA HIT LOWEST LEVEL

Senate Conferees Reject Plea to Restore Ceilings on Basic Foods

Washington, July 19—(AP)—OPA revival prospects hit a new low in Congress today as the CIO called for a national buyers' strike and for a new round of wage increases.

Chairman Spence (D-Ky.) of the House Banking Committee told newsmen "the prospects are dark for the restoration of effective price controls."

His comment came after Senate members of the joint conference committee seeking an OPA compromise rejected a House proposal to revoke the Senate's bill ban on any future ceilings for such essential market basket items as milk, meat, eggs and cheese.

Counter Plan Due

The Senators agreed to present a counter proposal today. But it was being drafted by a Republican-dominated subcommittee.

Also defeated by the conferees late yesterday was an attempt to revive the Taft industrial pricing amendment in modified form. The original pricing formula by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) bore the brunt of President Truman's ire in his veto of the original OPA extension bill.

Meanwhile, there were these other fast-moving developments on the OPA-economic-labor front:

1. The CIO executive board, declaring that price increases since OPA died June 30 have wiped out the pay raises won by labor this year, called upon Mr. Truman to arrange a labor-management conference for the presentation of demands for new wage boosts. The CIO said essential living costs have jumped 40 per cent in two months—25 per cent in the last two weeks.

2. Mr. Truman asked for a year's postponement of a multi-million dollar passenger shipbuilding job in order to conserve Federal funds and short materials and to remove some of the pressure on the price of materials. A statement said the most decisive factor "is the possibility that Congress will fail to extend effective price controls." The Maritime Commission announced immediately that it would comply with the recommendation.

July and 14 per cent since the end of the war, last August.

However, the bureau reported a fractional decline yesterday in its index of 28 basic commodities, the first decrease since price controls expired. The drop was .4 per cent to 248.8, which is an increase of 24.8 per cent for the first 18 days of July. BLS did not estimate how much of the increase resulted from subsidy removals.

The Congressional efforts to break the OPA deadlock pivoted on the counter-proposal to be offered today by a subcommittee of the Senate conferees. The members are Senators Taft, Tobey (R-N.H.) and Radcliffe (D-Md.).

As passed by the Senate the revival bill excludes from any further price controls livestock, meat, poultry, eggs, milk, butter and dairy products; cottonseed, soybeans and their products, grain and livestock or poultry feed made from it; tobacco and its products; and petroleum and its products so long as gasoline and oil supplies equal demand.

There was some speculation that the Senate group might suggest putting all the foods back under ceilings except meat, poultry and eggs.

A second possibility was that the committe might propose vesting recontrol authority in the decontrol board setup in the bill.

The conferees apparently sidestepped one threat of a new veto yesterday when the committee rejected a proposal to restore the food price ceilings but at the same time divest OPA of any discretionary power in applying the price boosting formula for manufactured products.

With OPA denied this flexibility the pricing provisions of the new bill would resemble in many respects those objected to by the President in his veto.

GOP OPEN FORUM FAVORS CONTROLS

49% Vote for A Checkrein On Prices, 45% Against

Washington, July 19 (AP)—Republican Open Forums, organized by Harold E. Stassen, announced today that a preliminary count of their June-July balloting give an edge to those favoring some degree of price control.

The organization, which conducts small group forums and polls on current subjects each month, took its latest ballot on "what shall our price-control policy be?"

It reported that 49 per cent votoed to keep some degree of control, 45 per cent wanted controls taken off, and 6 per cent failed to answer.

40% Would Restrict Credit

"It is highly improbable," the announcement said, "that ballots yet to arrive could cause a substantial shift in percentages."

It added that despite the support given to continuing controls, more than 75 per cent of the forum members "do not believe that price control alone can be effective in controlling present inflationary pressures."

As a supplementary anti-inflation step, it said, there is a "strong 71 per cent support for rigid economy in Government spending," while 40 per cent wish to see credit restricted and 30 per cent believe the "present high tax rates should be maintained."

Balloting by women showed 57 per cent in favor of price controls; by men, 45 per cent.

Recontrol Suggestions

Among the 49 per cent wanting continuation of controls, 69 per cent believe it should be kept only on goods where the shortages are serious and where the goods are important factors in the cost of living. The other 31 per cent want control on all goods in short supply.

As for specific measures of control, 69 per cent oppose re-establishment of rationing 67 per cent oppose Congress appropriating more funds for drives on black markets, and 59 per cent are against leaving decontrol in the hands of the Administration without congressional supervision.

Forty-five per cent want prices set at levels permitting reasonable profits to the company or industry on the basis of total operations, while 34 per cent favor prices permitting a profit on each item sold.

Wallace Finds Business Now in 'Rising Phase'

Calls 2d Quarter Turning Point When the Economy Showed Sharp Expansion

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP).—Secretary of Commerce Wallace said today "a turning point in economic activity was experienced in the second quarter of 1946 and business is in a rising phase."

The decline that followed V-J Day was reversed during the first quarter of this year, he said in a statement, "and during the second quarter the economy expanded sharply under the impact of increased consumer spending and huge business capital outlays."

Mr. Wallace observed that the total value of all goods and services produced declined from a record annual rate of $208,000,000,000 during the second quarter, 1945, to $181,000,000,000 during the first quarter of this year. In the second quarter of this year it rose to $185,000,000,000.

Cited by Mr. Wallace as the outstanding economic trends since V-J Day were:

1. A drop in the annual rate of government "war expenditures" for goods and services—from $86,000,000,000 in the second quarter, 1945, to $26,000,000,000 in first quarter, 1946, and an estimated $22,000,000,000 in the second quarter this year.

2. A continued rise in private business expenditures for construction, equipment and inventory, plus net exports—from annual rate of $7,000,000,000 in the second quarter, 1945, to $19,000,000,000 in first quarter, 1946, and an estimated $25,000,000,000 in second quarter, 1946. Construction was a major factor in the 1946 upswing.

3. Continued uptrend in consumer expenditures, although there has been a slackening in the sharp rise that followed V-J Day. The annual rate in second quarter, 1945, was $102,000,000,000. In first quarter, 1945, it was $120,000,000,000; in second quarter, 1946, it was $122,000,000,000.

4. Prices dropped slightly after V-J Day, but turned upward last October and have continued to rise steadily since. The Bureau of Labor Statistics' index of consumer prices has been rising 0.5 per cent a month, or 1.5 per cent from the first to the second quarter of this year. Farm prices have increased even more rapidly. The sharp upsurge in prices following the termination of O. P. A. on July 1 is, of course, not reflected in these seasonal quarter figures.

ABERDEEN UNION DEMANDS HEARING FOR OUSTED GROUP

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) A hearing for five civilian employes dismissed from the Army's Aberdeen (Md.) proving ground was demanded today by the president of their union.

A statement from Brig. Gen. Alfred B. Quinton, Jr., commander of the proving ground, said at the same time that they have the right to appeal by July 26 but no such action has been taken.

Quinton's statement added that they were dismissed upon orders from the War department under a law which bars the employment of Communists or members of "an organization which has as one of its tenets the overthrow of the United States government."

Charges 'Spy Scare'

Abram Flaxer, president of the C.I.O. United Public Workers of America, declared that "The War department is attempting to create a scandalous 'spy scare' on the eve of the vote in the House on the bill determining the control of atomic energy." He also accused the department of "an all-out union-breaking campaign."

The day's debate on the atomic control bill brought an assertion by Rep. Rankin (D-Miss.) that "foreign spies" are operating at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and "the same thing has been going on" at Aberdeen.

Quinton announced, however, that none of those dismissed "were working on any classified secret projects."

The workers are Harry Spector, president of Aberdeen Local 250 of the UPWA; his brother, Irving Spector; Rheabel Mendelsohn, Phil Weiss and Abraham Kotelchuck.

Flaxer's statement said Harry Spector was an ordnance engineer, Miss Mendelsohn a statistician, Weiss a research and development physicist in electronics, Irving Spector an engineering aide training to be a meteorologist and Kotelchuck a physicist.

Protests Lack of Charges

Flaxer protested that the five had no specific charges presented to them either verbally or in writing, that "no witnesses were brought in to testify and none of the judicial rules of evidence or trial have been followed."

"Therefore," he added, "the United Public Workers of America is demanding that these employes be given their full rights as American citizens before being accused and convicted. These rights include the presentation of specific charges in writing, the right to confront and cross-examine witnesses and the right to a hearing before an impartial tribunal."

Secretary of War Patterson said at White Sands, N. M., that he is awaiting written appeals from the discharged employes before taking any further action.

New Yorker Gets Honor Medal

Sgt. J. E. Muller Is Posthumously Cited by Congress for Heroism on Okinawa.

Washington, July 19 (A. P.).—The Congressional Medal of Honor has been posthumously awarded to Sgt. Joseph E. Muller, 73 Third avenue, New York, who is credited with killing thirty-five Japanese in single-handedly repulsing a fierce attack on Okinawa, the War Department announced today.

The 38-year-old combat infantryman of the Seventy-seventh Division, a spray painter in his civilian days, sacrificed his life to save two comrades by throwing himself on a grenade. The nation's highest military award will be presented shortly to his mother, Mrs. Mary St. Germain, 538 South Summer street, Holyoke, Mass.

Sgt. Muller was acting squad leader of Company B, 305th Infantry Regiment, when his squad ran into an enemy force, armed with rifles and machine guns, that sought to prevent the company's advancing attack. Tech. Sgt. Carl F. Anderson, 604 Penn street, Williamsport, Pa., related that he saw Muller deploy his squad to points where they could cover his advance as he crawled forward alone.

"He threw grenades at the Japs, forcing them into the open where they were cut down by his men. Four Japs manned a light machine gun. Muller rushed the position and fired his rifle, killing all four," Anderson said.

The company, commanded by Capt. Hugh A. Plowden Jr. of Manning, S. C., took the ridge, which was the day's objective, and at night dug in expecting a counter-attack. The first attack at about 10 P. M. was repulsed, but the Japs came back about 1 A. M.

Once more Sgt. Muller crawled out to attack, and he again routed the Japs with grenades and furious rifle fire. He had just returned to his foxhole when a Jap feigning death, jumped up and threw a grenade into the fox hole. Sgt. Muller threw himself on it just as it went off. His surviving two foxhole mates called a medico, but Muller died a short time later.

His citation states that "heroically sacrificing his life to save his comrades, he upheld the highest traditions of the military service."

ROCKET EXPLODES OVER PATTERSON

War Secretary In Group Viewing V-2 Tests

White Sands, N.M., July 19 (AP)—A German V-2 rocket launched by army ordnance experts blew up behind a cloud bank today five miles above the heads of Robert D. Patterson, Secretary of War, and a party of official observers.

Lieut. Col. Harold R. Turner, commandant at the White Sands Proving Grounds, attributed the explosion to a structural defect of the same type encountered by the Germans in wartime tests.

While witnesses were unable to see the blast, they heard a terrific roar and saw huge fragments hurtle to earth within about 2,000 yards.

Watch from Blockhouse

Colonel Turner said the party was at no time in danger.

He explained that the rocket's curved trajectory actually placed it 4 or 5 miles north of the launching platform at the time of the explosion. In addition, most observers watched from the safety of a thick-roofed blockhouse.

Launched at 12.13 P.M., the missile was in the air 27 seconds before it exploded. It soared an estimated 25,000 yards, which was far short of the record 83.5-mile altitude reached in a similar launching ten days earlier.

Carried 9½ Tons Of Fuel

Fuel tanks of the rocket, carrying nine and a half tons of liquid oxygen and alcohol, ruptured to cause the explosion, Colonel Turner said.

He reported the instrument-jammed nose came down intact and all the equipment was salvaged.

Today's launching was the eighth in a series being conducted by the Army in its guided missiles research program. Another test was scheduled for July 30.

Secretary Patterson pronounced it "a good example of the research and development work being carried on by the Ordnance Department."

Developments of rockets capable of carrying an atomic bomb halfway around the world is the goal of the Army's guided missile program, Patterson had told newsmen.

"I haven't heard of any practical tests of rockets with atomic warheads, but that's part of the program," Patterson added.

Are In Their Infancy

He arrived at El Paso, Texas, last night and visited Fort Bliss and William Beaumont General Hospital this morning before flying to White Sands for the noonday launching.

Major Alexander P. de Seversky, one of the nation's foremost aeronautical authorities, witnessed the firing as a guest of Patterson. "Rockets are in their infancy, but extraordinary work is being done with them," he observed afterward.

Other observers included Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, 4th Army commander; Brig. Gen. Harry B. Sayler, assistant chief of ordnance; Col. W. H. Brucker, Army Ground Forces; Col. A. Robert Ginsburgh, executive assistant to Patterson; Col. U. M. Exton, another aide, and William S. Gaud, special assistant.

FORESEES TRUE SPACE SHIPS

General Arnold Says They Can Spread Disease, Starvation

Los Angeles, July 19 (AP)—Foreseeing "invasion of the stratosphere" by "true space ships able to spread disease, starvation and death upon entire nations," Gen. H. H. Arnold tonight declared this country's security depends on "complete integration" of all armed services.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences, the wartime chief of the air forces also urged a "federalization of military and civilian resources" to continue scientific and industrial advances made by the military during World War II.

Talks To Aviation Engineers

Arnold told 200 aviation and research engineers attending the institute's two-day session on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California:

"You and I know that . . . there is a real possibility of developing a rocket-propelled vehicle which will climb above the atmosphere and accelerate to such a velocity that its centrifugal force balances the attraction of gravity, enabling it to become a true satellite, capable of one or more trips around the world. I am told this velocity is of the order of 26,000 feet per second—but five times that already attained by the V-2 German rocket bomb."

PRICES LEVEL OFF FOR ALL OF LIVESTOCK

Grain Futures Fall Permissible Limits On Board Of Trade

Chicago, July 19 (AP)—Sharply declining livestock prices leveled off somewhat today and at some of the nation's markets actually reversed their trend as some bearish influences were dissipated.

Cattle at Chicago Union Stockyards dropped another 50 cents to a dollar today, compared with a decline of 50 cents to $1.50 a hundred pounds yesterday. Hogs were down about 25 to 50 cents today, but sank as much as $2.50 yesterday.

Indianapolis and Sioux City, Iowa, reported hog prices were 50 cents to $1 higher than the last session, and St. Louis listed values up strongly to mostly 25 cents a hundred. St. Paul, on the other hand, reported hogs about $1 lower.

Lack Of Cars A Factor

One factor influencing the sharpest drop in history was lack of cars in which to ship animals to the East and West Coasts. However, empties were reported streaming back to the car-hungry central west this week end. Another influence was said to be that Washington reports of OPA legislation continued to exempt meat from price controls.

Heavy receipts early in the week were the final major factor in the price break, traders said. Supplies filled distribution channels at inflated prices paid for livestock since July 1, but consumers refused to absorb everything offered.

Receipts Of 466,200 Hogs

The news quickly filtered back to the stockyards. Prices broke. And receipts today and those estimated for tomorrow slumped far below expectations as farmers again held back deliveries.

Market analysts said if a tight supply picture continues into next week, prices again may be expected to spiral upwards.

Receipts at a dozen markets for the week rose to 466,200 hogs, estimated, compared with 333,556 actual numbers on sale last week. Cattle received this week were 329,800 head, compared with 280,899 last week.

Grain futures tumbled permissible limits on the Board of Trade today as heavy movement from the country created a large volume of selling.

Opening weaker, the market ran into successive selling waves, the last of which developed just before the close. This sent corn contracts down 5 cents, the daily limit, and oats down 2¾ to 5 cents. It was the largest decline in several months for oats.

Shell Eggs Futures Drop

Final price on January corn was $1.56 while July oats closed at 78 to 78⅛ cents. The former OPA ceiling on corn was $1.46½ and on oats 88 cents.

In addition to large movement of grain from the country, traders attributed the break to favorable crop-growing weather, prospects of a record-breaking corn crop and recent declines in livestock prices.

In the cash market wheat and corn were steady, while oats were 1 to 2 cents a bushel lower.

Shell eggs futures dropped a cent or more a dozen today before recovering somewhat, and cash butter slipped 1½ to 2 cents as retail supplies continued to back up in distribution pipelines.

Reason For Egg Decline

Net losses for the day in egg futures trading were about ¼ to ½ cents a dozen, leaving October deliveries at slightly more than 38½ cents.

Butter at 69.5 cents for top grade was 4¾ cents under the current highest price set a week ago. This compared with an OPA ceiling price last month of 57 cents on the same grade, not counting a Federal subsidy of 14 cents.

Traders attributed the decline in eggs to unfavorable storage movements, weakness in other commodities, and a denial by Government officials of any contemplated purchase of dried whole eggs. Week-end covering erased most of the decline before the session's close, however.

EISENHOWER TO MEET GIRL WHO LOST A BET

MANITOWOC, Wis., July 19 (AP)—A letter written to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower on a bet more than a year ago paid off today to Jacqueline Halverson, 18, in the form of an invitation to visit the Army's Chief of Staff at his Minocqua vacation headquarters. The invitation was extended to Miss Halverson by telephone and was accepted promptly. She and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Halverson, will drive to Minocqua on a date undisclosed at the General's request.

The letter was written to General Eisenhower in May, 1945, when Miss Halverson's uncle, Roland R. Nelson of Manitowoc Rapids, then a sergeant with the Army in Germany, bet her $1 a letter sent by her to the Allied Commander in Chief in the ETO would receive an answer. Unconvinced but willing to try, Miss Halverson penned a missive.

Much to her surprise, the General responded.

"I appreciate your note and good wishes," he wrote. "It was most kind of you to write."

Miss Halverson replied and last Christmas she received a greeting from the General with best wishes for the holiday season.

DEVERS SURE OF PEACE IF U.N. BECOMES STRONG

MOUNT KISCO, N. Y., July 19—(AP) Gen. Jacob L. Devers said tonight that "if the United States can remain at peace until the United Nations is sufficiently strong to stand guard, the world can remain at peace."

Gen. Devers made the assertion in an address before the Westchester County American Legion convention.

"In time, I am sure, the United Nations will demonstrate its ability to preserve the peace. But until that time we must be unceasing in our vigilance," said the commanding general of army ground forces.

London, July 19-(AP)-Conservatives renewed their attack in the House of Commons today on the $3,750,000,000 loan from the united States, and one member asked the labor government to consider revaluation of the pound to protect the United Kingdom against world inflation.

The conservatives called the loan, already approved by both countries, a British "monetary Munich" and a threat to British foreign trade.

Robert Boothby, an industrialist, led the attack and suggested a revaluation of the pound, now valued at $4.04.

"Prices all over the world are beginning to rise against us," he said. "If we revalued sterling, it would mean in the future we should get them for our own goods a great amount of goods from America."

He criticized the loan because "we are committed in principle to the elimination of imperial preference." He asserted that rising prices in the U.S. already had cost the United Kingdom more than $100,000,000 of the vast credit.

Glenvil Hall, financial secretary to the treasury, described as "regrettable x x x the recriminations and queries about the bona fides of the United States."

Boothby told the laborites, who outnumber the conservatives roughly two to one:

"The problem that confronts us is quite frankly whether we shall be be able to discharge our obligations in respect of this loan. If prices continue to move against us, there will be no hope of our discharging them."

Beverley Baxter, another conservative, said:

"If the government tries to eliminate imperial preference, a number of us will conduct such a nationwide campaign in this country that it will light the very beacons on the hills. We will raise the whole country against it in a crusade which will overcome this government because we will not have it."

Hall said that without the loan, there would have been "a pretty extens trade war between ourselves and our great allies across the Atlantic." He said nothing in the loan agreement threatened the bonds of empire. #

Paris, July 19-(AP)-Lt. Ernest F. Fiedellow of Huntington, L.I., N.Y, said today he had asked for an army discharge to enable him to defend properly a former disbursing clerk accused of embezzling $58,500 government funds.

The accused man is former T/5 Joseph A. Polvere of East Orange, N. J. Criminal investigation department officers said the crime was committed in the army's central disbursing office here. Fiedellow asserted that "the army doesn't want" Polvere defended properly. He continued:

"The army wants a scrapegoat to whitewash the general disbursing office."

He protested that the army would not allow him to defend the enlisted man, but that he hoped to do so as a civilian.

Western base public relations officers said in a terse handout that Fiedellow was not considered "a very desirable type to be a defense counsel and is not qualified to make any criticism of the army's judicial procedures."

Fiedellow graduated from Harvard college.

STALINGRAD (600)
BY REMBERT JAMES

STALINGRAD, JULY 12-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE PLANNED ECONOMY OF THE SOVIET UNION IS EXPECTED BY RUSSIAN LEADERS TO REACH ITS PEAK IN REBUILT STALINGRAD 15 TO 20 YEARS HENCE.

IT WILL BE A CITY OF STEEL WORKERS' DWELLINGS BETWEEN WHOLE ROWS OF WIDE BOULEVARDS, A CITY OF SQUARES LINED WITH STATUES AND MARBLE HALLS IN THE CLASSIC GREEK AND ROMAN MANNER GLORIFYING HEROES OF THE GREAT PATRIOTIC WAR AND THE SOCIALIST REVOLUTION.

NINETY-EIGHT PERCENT DESTROYED DURING THE WINTER OF 1942-43, ACCORDING TO SOVIET ESTIMATE, STALINGRAD HAS ONLY BEGUN TO REBUILD. THE MAIN FACTORIES ARE WORKING AND 300,000 RESIDENTS ARE BACK OUT OF A PREWAR POPULATION OF ABOUT 500,000. BUT THEY ARE LIVING MOSTLY IN TEMPORARY HOUSES. THE REAL REBUILDING MUST COME LATER.

A GROUP OF FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS VISITING STALINGRAD TOURED THE 40-MILE LENGTH OF THE CITY, STRETCHING ALONG THE HIGH WEST BANK OF THE VOLGA. THEY HEARD FROM THE DEPUTY CITY ARCHITECT, PETER BUCHLEV, FUTURE PLANS FOR WHICH BILLIONS OF RUBLES WERE SET ASIDE AFTER THE DESIGNS HAD BEEN APPROVED BY THE STATE PLANNING COMMISSION.

THE PLANS ENVISION A CITY OF 800,000 PERSONS OCCUPYING THE SAME NARROW 40-MILE AREA ALONG THE VOLGA. THREE MAIN BOULEVARDS WILL PARALLEL THE RIVER, ONE ALONG THE EMBANKMENT, ONE IN THE CENTER OF CITY AND ONE ON THE OUTSKIRTS.

THE SQUARE OF FALLEN HEROES, WHICH IS THE PRESENT CENTRAL SQUARE WILL BE RINGED BY BUILDINGS OF THE HOUSE OF SOVIETS, THE PANTHEON FALLEN FIGHTERS AND OTHER STRUCTURES AND SCULPTURAL GROUPS, EMBELL WITH LAWNS AND FOUNTAINS.

THE STALINGRAD DEFENSE MUSEUM, THE MAJOR BUILDING, WILL BE ERECTED ON A NEW SQUARE NEAR THE VOLGA, STALINGRAD OFFICIALS, SAID. THIS BUILDING EVENTUALLY WILL HOUSE THE GREAT TWO-HANDED SWORD WHICH WAS FORGED AT THE COMMAND OF KING GEORGE VI AND PRESENTED BY WINSTON CHURCHILL TO GENERALISSIMO STALIN AFTER THE GERMAN SURRENDER OF STALINGRAD. KNOWN AS THE STALINGRAD SWORD, IT IS NOW KEPT TEMPORARILY IN THE CITY HALL, WHERE CORRESPONDENTS SAW AND HANDLED IT ALONG WITH THE GOLDEN SHIELD GIVEN THE CITY BY EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE.

A4 MAMAEV HILL, HIGHEST POINT IN THE CITY, WILL BE CROWNED BY A BUILDING HOUSING THE PANORAMA OF THE DEFENSE OF STALINGRAD, SET IN A PARK EXTENDING TO THE RIVER A MILE AWAY.

ON AN ISLAND IN THE VOLGA, OPPOSITE MAMAEV HILL, WILL BE ERECTED A WHITE COLUMN 250 FEET TALL TOPPED BY AN ELECTRIC BEACON GUIDE FOR SHIPS.

BUCHLEV SAID THE NATURAL LIE OF THE LAND AND MANY RAVINES WOULD BE UTILIZED IN THE PLANNING. THERE WILL BE A NETWORK OF SHADED WALKS AND CHILDREN'S PARKS.

"RIGHT NOW WE ARE BUILDING UP OUR CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRY -- WE MUST HAVE BRICK FACTORIES, LUMBERYARDS, TRUCKS, TRACTORS AND ALL KINDS OF TOOLS FOR REBUILDING," BUCHLEV SAID.

"WE ARE BUILDING PLANTS TO TURN OUT 2,000 PREFABRICATED HOUSES YEARLY. BY THE END OF 1946 WE EXPECT TO HAVE A 200,000,000 ANNUAL BRICK OUTPUT, WHICH IS SUFFICIENT," HE SAID.

"WE ARE GOING TO GRIND UP BRICKS FROM OTHER BUILDINGS AND REUSE IT AS BUILDING MATERIAL."

BUCHLEV SAID IT WAS PLANNED THAT EACH RESIDENT EVENTUALLY WOULD HAVE TEN SQUARE YARDS OF LIVING SPACE. RESIDENTS WILL LIVE IN FOUR OR FIVE STORY APARTMENT HOUSES DOWNTOWN, WITH THE SIZE OF THE BUILDINGS GRADUALLY DIMINISHING SO THAT NEAR THE OUTSKIRTS DWELLINGS WILL BE THE SMALL SINGLE-FAMILY TYPES.

HE SAID THERE WOULD BE GARAGE SPACE IN BASEMENTS AND DISTRICT GARAGES FOR OVERNIGHT AUTO PARKING WITHIN A FIVE-MINUTE WALK OF ANY HOUSE IN TOWN. NOBODY WOULD LIVE MORE THAN THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILE FROM A SCHOOL.

"OUR MAIN DIFFICULTY IS GETTING MATERIALS TO WORK WITH," BUCHLEV STATED. "WE HAVE PLENTY OF MANPOWER."

BUCHLEV SAID IT MIGHT APPEAR THAT THE REBUILDING PACE WAS NOT AS FAST AS DESIRED, BUT DECLARED A VAST CHANGE WOULD BE EVIDENT AS SOON AS THE BASIC CONSTRUCTION WAS FINISHED.

"WE DO NOT EXPECT TO FINISH STALINGRAD FOR 15 OR 20 YEARS," HE SAID. "BUT IT WILL BE ONE OF THE WORLD'S SHOWPLACES WHEN IT IS FINISHED."

THE BATTLE THAT WRECKED STALINGRAD AND TURNED THE TIDE OF WAR IN RUSSIA ENDED WITH THE SURRENDER OF THE GERMANS, FEB. 2, 1943, AFTER A CAMPAIGN ESTIMATED TO HAVE COST HITLER 500,000 MEN FROM THE TIME HIS TROOPS CROSSED THE DON RIVER TO THE WEST AND DROVE TOWARD STALINGRAD.

TOKYO, JULY 19-(AP)-JAPANESE GUNFIRE FLARED IN TWO SECTIONS OF TOKYO TONIGHT. IN ONE INCIDENT, AT LEAST THREE KOREANS WERE REPORTED SHOT NEAR SHIBUYA STATION AS THEY RODE IN TRUCKS BEING ESCORTED BY AMERICAN MILITARY POLICE.

DAY

NO CASUALTIES WERE REPORTED IN THE OTHER INCIDENT.

T/4 REUEL BENNETT OF INDIANAPOLIS, WHO WAS UNINJURED ALTHOUGH HIS JEEP TOP WAS PUNCTURED BY THREE BULLETS, SAID JAPANESE POLICE USING SMALL-CALIBER PISTOLS FIRED ON THE KOREANS FROM AMBUSH.

HE SAID THE FIRST SHOTS SEEMED TO COME FROM THE PORCH OF THE POLICE STATION. AN MP JEEP STOPPED. WHEN THE AMERICANS RAN AROUND IN THE LIGHTS THE FIRING STOPPED.

WHEN THE FIVE-TRUCK CONVOY HAD PROGRESSED A FEW HUNDRED YARDS, BENNETT SAID, FIRING BROKE OUT FROM BOTH SIDES OF THE ROAD.

JUL 20 1946

"I SAW AT LEAST THREE OCCUPANTS OF THE TRUCKS FALL OFF, AND ONE OF THEM I COULD SEE HAD A BULLET HOLE IN HIS BACK. THE TRUCKS SPEEDED UP AND WENT AROUND A CURVE."

ALTOGETHER, ABOUT 200 SHOTS WERE FIRED, BENNETT SAID.

AT ALMOST THE SAME MOMENT MACHINEGUN SHOTS WERE FIRED FROM THE ROOF OF A BUILDING SEVERAL MILES AWAY, IN THE SHIMBASHI STATION AREA, BUT THERE WAS NO IMMEDIATE REPORT OF CASUALTIES.

GANG WARFARE THERE BETWEEN CHINESE AND KOREANS, WHO ALLEGEDLY ATTEMPTED TO "MOVE IN" ON JAPANESE STALL OPERATORS, ALREADY HAS COST THE LIFE OF ONE JAPANESE.

IT WAS LEARNED THAT SEVERAL HUNDRED PERSONS, MOSTLY JAPANESE, GATHERED IN A SCHOOLHOUSE AND SOME SET UP MACHINEGUNS ON THE ROOF IN ANTICIPATION OF AN ATTACK. ONE GUN EVIDENTLY WAS FIRED BY ACCIDENT, CAUSING CONSIDERABLE EXCITEMENT.

AMERICAN MILITARY POLICE ROUNDED UP ABOUT 150 JAPANESE AT SHIMBASHI FOR QUESTIONING.

(THERE WAS NO EXPLANATION AS TO HOW THE JAPANESE CAME INTO POSSESSION OF MACHINEGUNS.)

FIGHTING ALSO WAS REPORTED AT FOUR OTHER BULUCAN PROVINCE VILLAGES. MPS SAID THEIR CASUALTIES WERE LIGHT AND THOSE OF THE HUKBALAHAPS HEAVY, BUT NO FIGURES WERE AVAILABLE.

TARUC SAID THE NEWEST OUTBREAK WAS THE "DIRECT RESULT OF THE SLAYING OF FORMER MAYOR PABLO ROXAS OF BULACAN AND TWO OTHERS AT A WEDDING PARTY ON SUNDAY." HE DENIED HIS MEN WERE RESPONSIBLE BUT THAT THE MPS HAD SEIZED UPON THE INCIDENT AS "AN EXCUSE TO WIPE OUT THE HUKBALAHAPS."

THE GUERRILLA LEADER SAID THERE STILL WAS TIME TO STOP THE FIGHTING IF PRESIDENT ROXAS AND HIS LEADERS WOULD AGREE TO CONFER WITH THE HUKS.

WASHINGTON JULY 19-(AP)-AMERICAN OFFICIALS ARE CONSIDERING PLANS FOR EARLY ESTABLISHMENT OF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH AUSTRIA, IN LINE WITH A NEW FOUR POWER AGREEMENT GIVING GREATER FREEDOM OF ACTION TO VIENNA GOVERNMENT.

THE TEXT OF THIS AGREEMENT WAS MADE PUBLIC BY THE STATE DEPARTMENT TODAY. ITS SUBSTANCE HAD BEEN REPORTED FROM VIENNA WHEN IT WAS SIGNED JUNE 28.

ONE OF THE PROVISIONS IS THAT THE AUSTRIAN GOVERNMENT MAY UNDERTAKE TO ESTABLISH NORMAL DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH OTHER GOVERNMENTS. AT PRESENT THE UNITED STATES HAS A POLITICAL REPRESENTATIVE, JOHN G. ERHARDT, IN VIENNA. HE HOLDS THE PERSONAL RANK OF MINISTER.

WASHINGTON, JULY 19-(AP)-THE STATE DEPARTMENT DISCLOSED TODAY THAT SECRETARY BYRNES HAD RECEIVED ASSURANCES FROM A RANKING BULGARIAN OFFICIAL THAT BULGARIA WOULD HOLD "FREE AND OPEN ELECTIONS" WITHIN THREE MONTHS.

THE DEPARTMENT ALSO REPORTED THAT BYRNES HAD STRONGLY REAFFIRMED AMERICAN OPPOSITION TO PRESENT POLITICAL CONDITIONS IN BULGARIA.

THE INFORMATION CAME OUT IN THE AFTERMATH OF THE FOREIGN MINISTERS CONFERENCE AT PARIS WHICH DRAFTED A BULGARIAN PEACE TREATY THAT IS EXPECTED TO BE SIGNED WITH THE PRESENT COMMUNIST-DOMINATED GOVERNMENT OF BULGARIA.

THE PURPOSE OF TODAY'S DISCLOSURES, MADE IN ANSWER TO QUESTIONS, APPEARS TO BE TO MAKE PLAIN THAT WHILE THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT HAS TO DEAL WITH THE BULGARIAN REGIME IT DOES NOT APPROVE OF IT. THE QUESTIONS WERE PROMPTED BY PRESS DISPATCHES FROM SOFIA SAYING GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS THERE HAD INTIMATED THE UNITED STATES DID APPROVE THE REGIME.

AT PARIS, THE STATE DEPARTMENT DISCLOSED, BYRNES HAD A TALK WITH VASIL KOLAROV, PRESIDENT OF THE BULGARIAN NATIONAL ASSEMBLY.

BYRNES, THE DEPARTMENT SAID, DECLARED THAT THE AMERICAN PEOPLE COULD NOT "UNDERSTAND OR APPROVE ANY SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT WHERE THE OPPOSITION IS PERMITTED TO HAVE NO PRESS, WHERE POLITICAL ARRESTS ARE CONTINUALLY TAKING PLACE AND WHERE THERE IS NO POSSIBILITY FOR PEOPLE FREELY TO EXPRESS THEIR WILL IN ELECTIONS."

"IN CONCLUSION," THE STATE DEPARTMENT SAID, "KOLAROV HAVING STATED THAT WITHIN THREE MONTHS BULGARIA WOULD HOLD FREE AND OPEN ELECTIONS WITH ADEQUATE GUARANTEES FOR A CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY THE SECRETARY EXPRESSED PLEASURE AT THE STATEMENT X X X."

Congress Committee Splits Over Action Of Roosevelt, Aides

JUL 21 1946

Majority Praises Late President and Rakes Charges Diplomacy Tricked Japs Into War—Minority Says Washington Must Share Responsibility—Hawaiian Commanders Hit for Failures of Judgment

Washington, July 20—(AP)—A majority of the Congressional Pearl Harbor Committee, laying solely to military men the failures which contributed to the 1941 disaster, declared today that the late President Roosevelt and his cabinet "discharged their responsibility with distinction, ability and foresight."

That finding in an eight-man report—signed by two Republican House members—brought a sharp dissent, however, from Republican Senators Ferguson (Mich.) and Brewster (Maine) of the 10-member committee.

In a separate report, they asserted that Mr. Roosevelt "was responsible for the failure to enforce continuous, efficient and appropriate co-operation" in Washington "in evaluating information and dispatching clear and positive orders to the Hawaiian commanders."

The majority hit vigorously at assertions they said had been made that Japan was "tricked" into her December 7, 1941, attack.

Contending the President and then Secretary of State Cordell Hull "made every possible effort" to avert war, the report said:

"The committee has found no evidence to support the charges, made before and during the hearings, that the President, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War, or the Secretary of Navy tricked, provoked, incited, cajoled, or coerced Japan into attacking this nation in order that a declaration of war might be more easily obtained from Congress."

The majority, although saying there were failures among the military men in both Hawaii and Washington, voiced no criticism in their conclusions of Gen. George C. Marshall, 1941 Army Chief of Staff, or Adm. Harold R. Stark, who was Chief of Naval Operations.

But Ferguson and Brewster named both. They declared:

"The failure to perform the responsibilities indispensably essential to the defense of Pearl Harbor rests upon the following civil and military authorities:

"Franklin D. Roosevelt—President of the United States and Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy.

"Henry L. Stimson—Secretary of War.

"Frank Knox—Secretary of War.

"George C. Marshall—general, Chief of Staff of the Army.

"Harold R. Stark—admiral, Chief of Naval Operations.

"Leonard T. Gerow—major general, assistant chief of staff of War Plans Division."

Kimmel and Short Blamed

Both the majority and minority reports agreed that Adm. Husband E. Kimmel and Lt. Gne. Walter C. Short, Navy and Army commanders in Hawaii, had not measured up to the responsibilities given them.

Their commands were acknowledged not to have been on an all-out alert when Japanese bombers, winging from carriers at sea, roared over the Hawaiian base early Sunday, December 7, 1914, knocked out eight battleships and 10 lesser craft of the Pacific fleet and killed 3,435 Americans.

(Please Turn to Page Two)

The majority reported, howeevr, that "the errors made by the Hawaiian commands were errors of judgment and not derelictions of duty." Thus it rejected a finding of "dereliction of duty" made by a presidential commission, headed by then Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, which conducted an investigation in the weeks immediately after the disaster.

The majority, in their conclusions, named no names of military men in Washington who in their opinion fell short in performance. But the report criticized the intelligence and war plans divisions of both the Army and Navy.

Gerow, singled out by name in the Ferguson-Brewster report, headed Army war plans and Brig. Gen. Sherman Miles headed Army intelligence. Rear Adm. R. Kelly Turner was head of Navy war plans and Rear Adm. Theodore S. Wilkinson was head of naval intelligence.

JUL 21 1946

'Not Sufficiently Alerted'

The majority also made this general observation:

"Notwithstanding the fact that there were officers on 24-hour watch, the committee believes that under all of the evidence the War and Navy Departments were not sufficiently alerted on December 6 and 7, 1941, in view of the imminence of war."

On the point of Army and Navy failures in Washington, the majority report said the War Plans Division of the War Department "failed to discharge its direct responsibility" to advise Short that he had not properly alerted his command. Short had reported "alerted against sabotage."

And it said the War Plans and Intelligence Divisions of both War and Navy Departments failed to "give careful and thoughtful consideration" to decoded Japanese messages disclosing Tokyo interest in where American warships were berthed in their Pearl Harbor base. Nor were they "properly on the qui vive" (on the alert) on December 7 for intercepted messages, it said.

Recommendations Made

Their report made these recommendations:

1. Immediate action to insure unity of command at all military and naval outposts.

2. "A complete integration of Army and Navy intelligence agencies in order to avoid the pitfalls of divided responsibility."

3. Effective steps "to insure that statutory or other restrictions do not operate to the benefit of any enemy or other forces inimical to the nation's security and to the handicap of our own intelligence agencies." Congress, it was added, should study changes in the espionage laws and in the Communications Act. The latter law prohibits wire-tapping by military intelligence officers as well as by others.

4. That an appropriate Senate or House committee investigate "the activities of Col. Theodore Wyman Jr., while district engineer in the Hawaiian Department." Wyman was in charge of defense and other Army construction in Hawaii at the time of the Japanese attack. Much of this construction was behind schedule. It was touched on but not developed in detail by the Pearl Harbor committee.

5. That the War and Navy Departments consider adopting 25 "supervisory, administrative, and organizational principles" which were set forth. Indicating belief that organizational "deficiencies"—in effect the "system"—made Pearl Harbor possible, the majority said the changes were proposed "in the earnest hope that something constructive may be accomplished that will aid our national defense and preclude a repetition of the disaster."

Eight-Month Inquiry

The two reports completed an inquiry which bean last November 15 and was preceded by heated debate in Congress on the question whether the full story of Pearl Harbor had been told.

Representatives Gearhart (R-Calif.), and Keefe (R-Wis.), joined six Democrats in signing the majority report. The Democrats are Senators Barkley (Ky.), chairman, Lucas (Ill.), and George (Ga.), and Representatives Cooper (Tenn.) vice chairman, Clark (N.C.), and Murphy (Pa.).

However, Keefe filed a statement of additional views in which he said, "I cannot suppress the feeling that the committee report endeavors to throw as soft a light as possible on the Washington scene."

If Short and Kimmel are to be criticized for believing Hawaii would not be attacked, Keefe said, the same criticism "should apply to the high command in Washington." He expressed the opinion that "high civilian and military officials in Washington" after the attack "skillfully maneuvered Kimmel and Short into the position of exclusive blame."

"I further conclude," Keefe said, "that secret diplomacy was at the root of the tragedy. The United States had warned Japan that an advance to Malaya or the Dutch Indies would mean war with this nation. The President gave Great Britain assurances of our armed support in such event. What Japan and Britain knew, our commanders in the field and our own people did not know. . . .

"With full knowledge of Japan's intentions prior to the attack, Washington had one plain duty to the American people. That duty was to inform them of their peril. This was not done."

While the majority found Hull's actions beyond criticism, Ferguson and Brewster had this to say:

"Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who was at the center of Japanese-American negotiations, bears a grave responsibility for the diplomatic conditions leading up to the eventuality of Pearl Harbor but he had no duties as a relevant link in the military chain of responsibility stemming from the commander in chief to the commanders at Hawaii for the defense at Pearl Harbor. For this reason and because the diplomatic phase was not completely explored we offer no conclusions in his case."

Urge Intelligence Experience

In proposing integration of Army and Navy intelligence agencies, the majority recommended that officers selected for that work be continued in it "for an extended period of time."

"The assignment of an officer having an aptitude for such work should not impede his progress nor affect his promotion," the report added.

The committee received testimony that naval intelligence officers had to serve tours of sea duty if they hoped to win promotions.

Among organizational changes recommended were more centralization of authority and more clear-cut allocation of responsibility. The majority said, too, that there should be more checking of whether subordinates are taking the proper course and less assumption that they are.

Under the heading "an official who neglects to familiarize himself in detail with his organization should forfeit his responsibility," the majority recalled in its organizational recommendations that Admirals Stark and Turner testified they "thought" Kimmel was receiving "magic," as intercepted Japanese messages were called. Actually, Kimmel was not.

The majority also recommended "close correlation of responsibility and authority." It said witnesses had testified as to what their responsibilities were but "it does not appear that any of them, except the highest ranking officers, possessed any real authority to act in order decisively to discharge their responsibilities. . . . To vest a man with responsibility with no corresponding authority is an unfair, ineffective, and unsatisfactory arrangement."

There was no reference to any particular situations in this connection.

Warning Delayed

However, the testimony developed a story of delays in sending a warning to Hawaii the morning of December 7 because of the hesitancy of other Army officers to act in the absence of General Marshall.

The question of a warning arose when intercepted messages disclosed instructions for the Japanese ambassadors to give Secretary Hull at 1 P. M. (Washington time) a note breaking off "peace negotiations." This information was available before 9 A. M. but Marshall was out horseback riding and could not be reached.

It was about noon by the time Marshall, having arrived and familiarized himself with the intercepts, got off a message to Short. The communication encountered delays and was not delivered until after the attack.

Commenting on that morning's developments, Ferguson and Brewster said:

"There is no excuse for the failure of General Marshall and Admiral Stark to be on the alert early Sunday morning or for their failure, after they did meet near the middle of the morning, to reach the outpost commanders with a definite war-warning message before the Japanese attack came at Pearl Harbor."

The two Republican senators, naming President Roosevelt and his so-called "war council," also said "there was no excuse for the failure of these high authorities to assemble on the evening of December 6, inquire into the defensive preparedness of our outpost commanders, and send peremptory directives to them."

Jap Break Known

The first 13 parts of Japan's 14-part statement breaking off negotiations had been intercepted and translated Saturday night, Cmdr. L. R. Schulz, a witness before the committee, testified he took them to President Roosevelt and the chief executive exclaimed in substance, "This means war."

The President's "war council" was composed of Secretaries Hull, Stimson and Knox and General Marshall and Admiral Stark.

In its investigation, the committee heard 44 witnesses and in addition had transcripts of testimony taken in seven earlier inquiries. These included those by the Roberts commission, by an Army board, and by a Navy court.

Ferguson and Brewster said, however, that when all these documents "are reviewed, it becomes apparent that the record is far from complete."

They said President Truman put difficulties in the committee's way by an order last August restricting information regarding decoding results, and that a later modification of the order "left much to be desired."

Furthermore, they said, the Democratic committee majority restricted inquiries by individual members and hence "everything that has since developed must be viewed in the light of this iron curtain."

They also complained that:

Secretary Stimson "did not answer" many questions submitted to him in writing by Ferguson. (Stimson did not appear before the committee, sending word he was too ill to testify.)

JUL 21 1946

"Many messages, perhaps several hundreds, between Winston Churchill and President Franklin D. Roosevelt received prior to December 7, 1941, were not available to the committee, although there is good reason to believe that they bore on the gathering crisis."

"The whole question of whether or not it would have been possible to avoid war by proper diplomatic action and thus avert the Pearl Harbor tragedy was left largely unexplored."

Hull Draft Scrapped

In that connection, they recalled a proposed modus vivendi which Hull drafted in November, 1941, but finally decided against offering to the Japanese. This would have been a sort of temporary understanding running for three months.

Ferguson and Brewster raised the question whether war might not have been averted if the modus vivendi had gone through. This was on the premise that Japan, seeing the German offensive in Russia collapse in December, 1941, might have decided against hostilities.

The majority report, touching on the same point, declared, "there is no possibility whatever that the modus vivendi would have been accepted by the Japanese."

Diplomacy Reviewed

The majority report, comprising 492 printed pages including appendices and Keefe's additional views, devoted 133 pages to a review of the diplomatic developments, it said:

"It is concluded that the diplomatic actions of the United States provided no provocation whatever for the attack by Japan on Pearl Harbor. It is further concluded that the Secretary of State fully informed both the War and Navy Departments of diplomatic developments and that in a timely and forceful manner he clearly pointed out to these departments that relations between the United States and Japan had passed beyond the stage of diplomacy and were in the hands of the military."

Ferguson and Brewster argued that President Roosevelt knew Hawaii lacked reconnaissance planes and should not have kept the fleet based there, but should have based it on the West Coast.

The majority said: "It remains a debatable question as to whether the Pacific fleet was exposed to any greater danger by reason of the fact that it was based at Hawaii. . . . There is a strong possibility that Japan would have taken the Hawaiian Islands by amphibious operations as she did in the case of so many other outlying Pacific islands had the fleet not been based at Pearl Harbor. Furthermore, had the fleet been based on the West Coast a raid on our West Coast cities and the Panama Canal could not have been entirely repulsed."

U. S. People Defended

Keefe, in his additional views, and Ferguson and Brewster leveled an attack at an assertion by President Truman that "the country is as much to blame as any individual in this final situation that developed in Pearl Harbor."

Mr. Truman made a remark to that effect last year when releasing reports on army and navy investigations.

He said President Roosevelt had been confronted with the difficulty that "the country was not ready for preparedness."

Keefe said "the people's representatives in Congress" gave the Army and Navy in the fiscal years 1934 to 1941 $1,256,667,926 more in appropriations than President Roosevelt recommended in his budget messages. That, he said, "should dispose" of Mr. Truman's statement.

Ferguson and Brewster said "the American people had no intimation whatever of the policies and operations that were being undertaken" and asked:

"How could the American people be responsible for the warlike operations conducted from Washington over which the people had no control and about which they were never informed?"

GEN. SHORT SAYS REPORT CLEARS HIM OF BLAME

Dallas, July 20—(AP)—Gen. Walter C. Short, retired Army commander at Pearl Harbor when the Japanese attacked, said here today the Pearl Harbor report "fully absolved me from any blame and I believe such will be the virdict of history."

"As I have stated before," he said in a prepared statement, "my conscience is clear."

He said a fair and impartial trial which "is the right of every American" had been denied him for four years.

Further, he said, quoting Representative Keefe, "Kimmell and Short (had been maneuvered) into the position of exclusive blame."

Opinion Highest Tribunal

His full statement says:

"It is the right of every American to have a fair and impartial trial. This was denied me for four years. At long last I was given an opportunity to present my side of the controversy before the highest tribunal in America—American public opinion.

"The majority of the investigating committee rejected the finding of 'dereliction of duty' by the Roberts commission but did find 'the Hawaiian commanders guilty of an error in judgment.

"This finding was made in spite of their statement that the war plans division of the War Department 'failed to discharge its direct responsibility to advise Short that he had not properly alerted his command.' Short had reported 'alerted against sabotage'."

Additional Views

"Representative Keefe in his statement of additional views said, 'High civilian and military officials in Washington after the attack skillfully maneuvered Kimmel and Short into the position of exclusive blame.'

"The majority members of the investigation committee are entitled to their point of view, but I am satisfied that the testimony presented at the hearings fully absolved me from any blame and I believe such will be the verdict of history. As I have stated before, my conscience is clear."

Kimmel Silent

Bronxville, N. Y., July 20—(AP)—Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, Navy commander at Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japanese attack, said today he had seen the congressional committee's report on the disaster but had no comment. He added that he might make a statement later.

Gerow Comment Deferred

Fort Leavenworth, Kan., July 20—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, former head of the War Plans Division of the War Department, said today he had no comment on a Senate-House investigating committee minority report placing on him a share of the blame for "the failure to perform the responsibilities indispensably essential to the defense of Pearl Harbor."

Maj. Henry Triesler, public relations officer at the fort, said General Gerow might comment later after he has read the official reports.

General Gerow is commanding general of the fort and commandant of the Command and Staff College.

Washington, N. Y., July 20—(AP)—Former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said tonight that he had read the reports issued by the congressional Pearl Harbor committee and that he regarded the majority findings as "a very fair report."

'Winds Message' Dismissed In Pearl Harbor Report

JUL 21 1946

Washington, July 20 (AP)—The "winds message" which blew up a heavy storm during the Pearl Harbor committee's hearings was dismissed as an unimportant issue in its final report.

The majority said there never was a "genuine message" and, if there had been one, it would have made no difference.

It was established that Tokyo had arranged to broadcast a false weather report, "east wind, rain," in event other means of communications with Japanese envoys abroad failed and United States-Japanese relations became serious.

Navy Captain L. F. Safford testified such a message was intercepted December 4, 1941, and it "meant war."

But all other army and navy witnesses said they never saw it. And Japanese language expert testified the code did not mean war but only that relations were in a serious stage.

The majority report said:

"In view of the preponderat weight of evidence to the contrar it is believed that Captain Saffo is honestly mistaken when he i ists that an execute (winds) me sage was received prior to Dece ber 7, 1941. Considering the peri time that has elapsed, this m ken impression is understand ble.

"Granting for purposes of d cussion that a genuine execute m sage applying to the winds co was intercepted before Decemb 7, it is concluded that such f would have added nothing to w was already known concerning critical character of our relati with the Empire of Japan."

REPORTS END EIGHTH CHECK INTO DISASTER

JUL 21 1946

Roberts Commission Found 'Dereliction of Duty' by Kimmel and Short

Washington, July 20—(AP)—The Congressional Pearl Harbor inquiry was the eighth separate investigation into circumstances of the 1941 disaster.

Relatively broad scale inquiries were made previously by a presidential commission headed by Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, by an Army board, and by a naval court of inquiry.

In addition, two Army officers and two Navy officers, acting under orders from superiors, made investigations.

Duties Cited

Investigating immediately after the attack, the Roberts Commission made its report January 24, 1942. It found there was "dereliction of duty" on the part of Lt. Gen Walter Short and Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, Army and Navy commanders in Hawaii, in not conferring on warnings from Washington. The board held that Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox, Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, and Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, fulfilled their obligations.

The Army board and the Navy court were appointed under terms of a Congressional resolution adopted June 13, 1944. They completed their investigations the following October but, because the war was still on, their reports were not released until last August 29.

Each confined its investigation to its own service, so far as military men were concerned.

Army Criticizes Three

The Army board found Short failed to alert his command adequately, but also said that Marshall and Maj. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, chief of the war plans division, failed to keep him adequately informed or to send him sufficient instructions.

It also said that Secretary of State Hull failed to tell Stimson promptly about some diplomatic developments.

(Stimson took exception to the criticism of Marshall and Secretary of State Byrnes went to the defense of former Secretary Hull, disputing the board's findings.)

Navy Clears Its Men

The Navy court in effect exonerated all naval personnel, holding there were no offenses committed or serious blame incurred by anyone in the sea service. This was on the premise that the defense of Pearl Harbor was primarily any Army responsibility.

However, Secretary of the Navy Forrestal directed that neither Kimmel nor Stark should in the future hold a post requiring "the exercise of superior judgment."

Japanese Made A Pre-Potsdam Peace Overture

JUL 21 1946

Asked Russian Mediation; Story of Tokyo's Side of the War Told by Navy

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP).—The story of the Pacific war from the Japanese side—the fantastic blunders, the secret negotiations, the fatal weaknesses—was told in statements made public today by the Navy.

Highlights of interrogations of Japan's top planners and fighters, conducted last fall in Tokyo by the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, included these revelations:

1. The Japanese tried to negotiate for peace through the Russians before Potsdam.

2. The cream of Japanese naval pilots were lost at Midway and in the Solomons, a compounded loss that crippled the fleet for lack of carrier protection and from which it never recovered.

3. Even as early as Guadalcanal top Japanese Navy officers realized victory was impossible.

4. A merger of the Japanese Army and Navy was contemplated, but the Navy spiked the idea.

30.24425.1

5. The American drive up through the Solomons, which cut Japan off from her vital oil and materials, surprised Japanese strategists, who expected a great fleet-to-fleet slugging match in the central Pacific. Incidentally, the vaunted bastion of Truk in 1943 had fewer than 1,000 potential defenders, and the main fleet was ready to run in case of an American landing because its carriers had been stripped of planes.

6. The material cost of modern war far exceeded anything the Japanese had foreseen, and acute shortages of oil, steel and ships developed almost at once, aggravated by "most effective" American submarines.

The inside story of the bid for peace was told in a statement obtained from Admiral Toyoda, chief of the Japanese naval general staff.

The plea to the Kremlin to serve as a go-between was filed before the Potsdam conference of Russian, British and American chiefs of state. The response, weeks later, was a break in Soviet relations with Japan.

Toyoda said that as far back as May, 1945, the Supreme War Guidance Council discussed peace. Negotiations started in June in both Tokyo and Moscow, Toyoda, one of the six council members said, but after twenty days "nothing was accomplished."

In July, Toyada related, "the Russian Ambassador in Tokyo was reported ill and the Foreign Office was having difficulty in maintaining contact with the Russian Embassy here, so it was decided to send instructions to our Ambassador to submit to the Russian government our proposal to send a special ambassador there.

"Our Ambassador Sato in Moscow approached the Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs with this proposal and when asked, 'For what purpose are you sending the ambassador—to ask us to intervene with a view to bringing about peace?' Our Ambassador replied that such was the case.

"That was about the 13th of July that this conversation took place in Moscow and the answer given was that since Stalin and Molotov were both about to depart for Potsdam, they promised to give an answer upon their return to Moscow.

"The actual answer that our government did get from Moscow on Aug. 8 was breaking of diplomatic relations with Japan. That was the answer. Thus, our efforts to bring the war to end with the intervention of Russia ended in a flat failure.'

Pearl Harbor Report: Excerpts From the Majority and Minority Conclusions

JUL 21 1946

From the Herald Tribune Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Excerpts follow from the majority report and minority views of the joint committee of Congress on the investigation of the Pearl Harbor attack:

JUL 21 1946

Majority Report

Conclusions and Recommendations

CONCLUSIONS WITH RESPECT TO RESPONSIBILITIES

1. The Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor was an unprovoked act of aggression by the Empire of Japan. The treacherous attack was planned and launched while Japanese ambassadors, instructed with characteristic duplicity, were carrying on the pretense of negotiations with the Government of the United States with a view to an amicable settlement of differences in the Pacific.

2. The ultimate responsibility for the attack and its results rests upon Japan, an attack that was well planned and skillfully executed. Contributing to the effectiveness of the attack was a powerful striking force, much more powerful than it had been thought the Japanese were able to employ in a single tactical venture at such distance and under such circumstances.

3. The diplomatic policies and actions of the United States provided no justifiable provocation whatever for the attack by Japan on this Nation. The Secretary of State fully informed both the War and Navy Departments of diplomatic developments and, in a timely and forceful manner, clearly pointed out to these Departments that relations between the United States and Japan had passed beyond the stage of diplomacy and were in the hands of the military.

4. The committee has found no evidence to support the charges, made before and during the hearings, that the President, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War, or the Secretary of Navy tricked, provoked, incited, cajoled, or coerced Japan into attacking this nation in order that a declaration of war might be more easily obtained from the Congress. On the contrary, all evidence conclusively points to the fact that they discharged their responsibilities with distinction, ability, and foresight and in keeping with the highest traditions of our fundamental foreign policy.

5. The President, the Secretary of State, and high Government officials made every possible effort, without sacrificing our national honor and endangering our security, to avert war with Japan.

6. The disaster of Pearl Harbor was the failure, with attendant increase in personnel and material losses, of the Army and the Navy to institute measures designed to detect an approaching hostile force, to effect a state of readiness commensurate with the realization that war was at hand, and to employ every facility at their command in repelling the Japanese.

7. Virtually everyone was surprised that Japan struck the fleet at Pearl Harbor at the time that she did. Yet officers, both in Washington and Hawaii, were fully conscious of the danger from air attack; they realized this form of attack on Pearl Harbor by Japan was at least a possibility; and they were adequately informed of the imminence of war.

8. Specifically, the Hawaiian commands failed—

(a) To discharge their responsibilities in the light of the warnings received from Washington, other information possessed by them, and the principle of command by mutual cooperation.

(b) To integrate and co-ordinate their facilities for defense and to alert properly the Army and Navy establishments in Hawaii, particularly in the light of the warnings and intelligence available to them during the period Nov. 27 to Dec. 7, 1941.

(c) To effect liaison on a basis designed to acquaint each of them with the operations of the other, which was necessary to their joint security, and to exchange fully all significant intelligence.

(d) To maintain a more effective reconnaissance within the limits of their equipment.

(e) To effect a state of readiness throughout the Army and Navy establishments designed to meet all possible attacks.

(f) To employ the facilities, materiel, and personnel at their command, which were adequate at least to have greatly minimized the effects of the attack, in repelling the Japanese raiders.

(g) To appreciate the significance of intelligence and other information available to them.

9. The errors made by the Hawaiian commands were errors of judgment and not derelictions of duty.

10. The War Plans Division of the War Department failed to discharge its direct responsibility to advise the commanding general he had not properly alerted the Hawaiian Department when the latter, pursuant to instructions, had reported action taken in a message that was not satisfactorily responsive to the original directive.

11. The Intelligence and War Plans Divisions of the War and Navy Departments failed:

(a) To give careful and thoughtful consideration to the intercepted messages from Tokyo to Honolulu of Sept. 24, Nov. 15, and Nov. 20 (the harbor berthing plan and related dispatches) and to raise a question as to their significance. Since they indicated a particular interest in the Pacific Fleet's base this intelligence should have been appreciated and supplied the Hawaiian commanders for their assistance, along with other information available to them, in making their estimate of the situation.

(b) To be properly on the qui vive to receive the "one o'clock" intercept and to recognize in the message the fact that some Japanese military action would very possibly occur somewhere at 1 p. m., Dec. 7. If properly appreciated, this intelligence should have suggested a dispatch to all Pacific outpost commanders supplying this information, as General Marshall attempted to do immediately upon seeing it.

12. Notwithstanding the fact that there were officers on twenty-four hour watch, the Committee believes that under all of the evidence the War and Navy Departments were not sufficiently alerted on Dec. 6 and 7, 1941, in view of the imminence of war.

JUL 21 1946

RECOMMENDATIONS

Based on the evidence in the Committee's record, the following recommendations are respectfully submitted:

That immediate action be taken to insure that unity of command is imposed at all military and naval outposts.

That there be a complete integration of Army and Navy intelligence agencies in order to avoid the pitfalls of divided responsibility which experience has made so abundantly apparent; that upon effecting a unified intelligence, officers be selected for intelligence work who possess the background, penchant and capacity for such work; and that they be maintained in the work for an extended period of time in order that they may become steeped in the ramifications and refinements of their field and employ this reservoir of knowledge in evaluating material received. The assignment of an officer having an aptitude for such work should not impede his progress nor affect his promotions. Efficient intelligence services are just as essential in time of peace as in war, and this branch of our armed services must always be accorded the important role which it deserves.

That effective steps be taken to insure that statutory or other restriction do not operate to the benefit of an enemy or other forces inimical to the nation's security and to the handicap of our own intelligence agencies. With this in mind, the Congress should give serious study to, among other things, the Communications Act of 1934; to suspension in proper instances of the statute of limitations during war (it was impossible during the war to prosecute violations relating to the "Magic" without giving the secret to the enemy); to legislation designed to prevent unauthorized sketching, photographing and mapping of military and naval reservations in peace time, and to legislation fully protecting the security of classified matter.

That the activities of Colonel Theodore Wyman jr., while district engineer in the Hawaiian Department, as developed by the Army Pearl Harbor Board, be investigated by an appropriate committee of the Senate or the House of Representatives.

That the military and naval branches of our government give serious consideration to the twenty-five supervisory, administrative and organizational principles hereafter set forth.

Supervisory, Administrative, and Organizational Deficiencies in Our Military and Naval Establishments Revealed by the Pearl Harbor Investigation.

1. Operational and intelligence work requires centralization of authority and clear-cut allocation of responsibility.

Reviewing the testimony of the Director of War Plans and the Director of Naval Intelligence, the conclusion is inescapable that the proper demarcation of responsibility between these two divisions of the Navy Department did not exist. War Plans appears to have insisted that since it had the duty of issuing operational orders it must arrogate the prerogative of evaluating intelligence; Naval Intelligence, on the other hand, seems to have regarded the matter of evaluation as properly its function. It is clear that this intradepartmental misunderstanding and near conflict was not resolved before Dec, 7 and beyond question it prejudiced the effectiveness of Naval Intelligence.

In Hawaii, there was such a marked failure to allocate responsibility in the case of the 14th Naval District that Admiral Bloch testified he did not know whom the commander in chief would hold responsible in the event of shortcomings with respect to the condition and readiness of aircraft. The position of Admiral Bellinger was a wholly anomalous one. He appears to have been responsible to every one and to no one. The pyramiding of superstructures of organization cannot be conducive to efficiency and endangers the very function of our military and naval services.

2. Supervisory officials cannot safely take anything for granted in the alerting of subordinates.

The testimony of many crucial witnesses in the Pearl Harbor investigation contains an identical note: "I thought he was alerted"; "I took for granted he would understand"; "I thought he would be doing that." It is the same story—each responsible official seeking to justify his position by reliance upon the fallacious premise that he was entitled to rely upon the assumption that a certain task was being performed or to take for granted that subordinates would be properly vigilant. This tragic theme was particularly marked in Hawaii.

The foregoing was well illustrated in Admiral Kimmel's failure to appreciate the significance of dispatches between Dec. 3 and 6, advising him that Japanese embassies and consulates, including the Embassy in Washington, were destroying their codes. Navy Department officials have almost unanimously testified that instructions to burn codes mean "war in any man's language" and that in supplying Admiral Kimmel this information they were entitled to believe he would attach the proper significance to this intelligence. Yet the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet testified that he did not interpret these dispatches to mean that Japan contemplated immediate war on the United States. That the Navy Department was entitled to rely upon the feeling that Admiral Kimmel, as a responsible intelligent commander, should have known what the burning of codes meant appears reasonable; but this is beside the point in determining standards for the future. The simple fact is that the dispatches were not properly interpreted. Had the Navy Department not taken for granted that Kimmel would be alerted by them but instead have given him the benefit of its interpretation, there could now be no argument as to what the state of alertness should have been based on such dispatches. With Pearl Harbor as a sad experience, crucial intelligence should in the future be supplied commanders accompanied by the best estimate of its significance.

3. Any doubt as to whether outposts should be given information should always be resolved in favor of supplying information. . . .

4. The delegation of authority or the issuance of orders entails the duty of inspection to determine that the official mandate is properly exercised.

Perhaps the most signal shortcoming of administration, both at Washington and in Hawaii, was the failure to follow up orders and instructions to insure that they were carried out. The record of all Pearl Harbor proceedings is replete with evidence of this fundamental deficiency in administration. . . .

5. The implementation of official orders must be followed with closest supervision.

In the Nov. 27 warning sent General Short he was ordered "to undertake such reconnaissance and other measures as you deem necessary" and to "report measures taken." The commanding general reported: "Re your 472. Department alerted to prevent sabotage. Liaison with Navy." This message from General Short was not clearly responsive to the order. Yet during the nine days before Pearl Harbor not one responsible officer in the War Plans Division of the War Department pointed out to the commanding general his failure to alert the Hawaiian Department consistent with instructions. As a matter of fact, it does not affirmatively appear that any one upon receipt of General Short's reply "burdened" himself sufficiently to call for message No. 472 in order to determine to what the report was responsive.

6. The maintenance of alertness to responsibility must be insured through repetition.

It has been suggested, in explaining why additional warnings were not sent to Admiral Kimmel and General Short, that it was desired to avoid crying "wolf" too often lest the department commanders become impervious to the significance of messages designed to alert them. The McCollum message, for example, was not dispatched for the reason that overseas garrisons were regarded as fully alerted. Admiral Noyes is alleged to have referred to the proposed dispatch as an insult to the intelligence of the commander in chief inasmuch as he felt Admiral Kimmel had received adequate information. Although the exact provisions of the McCollum dispatch are unknown, it would seem to have been a safer practice to have sent this additional warning to intensify and insure alertness over a period of time through repetition, particularly under the critical circumstances prevailing between Nov. 27 and Dec. 7, 1941. . . .

7. Complacency and procrastination are out of place where sudden and decisive action are of the essence.

Beyond serious question Army and Navy officials both in Hawaii and in Washington were beset by a lassitude born of twenty years of peace. Admiral Kimmel admitted he was affected by the "peace psychology" just like "everybody else." As expressed by Admiral McMorris, "We were a bit too complacent there." The manner in which capable officers were affected is to a degree understandable, but the Army and the Navy are the watchdogs of the nation's security and they must be on the alert at all times, no matter how many the years of peace.

As indicated in the body of this report, there was a failure in the War and Navy Departments during the night of Dec. 6-7 to be properly on the qui vive consistent with the knowledge that the Japanese reply to our government's note of Nov. 26 was being received. The failure of subordinate officials to contact the chief of staff and chief of naval operations on the evening of Dec. 6 concerning the first thirteen parts of the fourteen-part memorandum is indicative of the "business as usual" attitude. Some prominent military and naval officials were entertaining and, along with other officers, apparently failed to read into the thirteen parts the importance of and necessity for greater alertness.

Of a similar tenor is the remark of Admiral Kimmel with respect to the "lost" Japanese carriers—"Do you mean to say that they could be rounding Diamond Head . . .?" Or the observation attributed to General Short with respect to the transcript of the "Mori" conversation—that it looked like quite an order and was nothing to be excited about.

The people are entitled to expect greater vigilance and alertness from their Army and Navy—whether in war or in peace.

8. The co-ordination and proper evaluation of intelligence in times of stress must be insured by continuity of service and centralization of responsibility in competent officials.

On occasion witnesses have echoed the sentiment that the Pearl Harbor debacle was made possible, not by the egregious errors or poor judgment of any individual or individuals but rather by reason of the imperfection and deficiencies of the system whereby Army and Navy intelligence was co-ordinated and evaluated. Only partial credence, however, can be extended this conclusion inasmuch as no amount of co-ordination and no system could be effected to compensate for lack of alertness and imagination. Nevertheless, there is substantial basis, from a review of the Pearl Harbor investigation in its entirety, to conclude that the system of handling intelligence was seriously at fault and that the security of the nation can be insured only through continuity of service and centralization of responsibility in those charged with handling intelligence. And the assignment of an officer having an aptitude for such work over an extended period of time should not impede his progress nor affect his promotions.

The professional character of intelligence work does not appear to have been properly appreciated in either the War or Navy Departments. It seems to have been regarded as just another tour of duty, as reflected by limitations imposed on the period of assignment to such work, among other things. The committee has received the distinct impression that there was a tendency, whether realized or not, to relegate intelligence to a role of secondary importance. . . .

9. The unapproachable or superior attitude of officials is fatal; there should never be any hesitancy in asking for clarification of instructions or in seeking advice on matters that are in doubt. . . .

While there is an understandable disposition of a subordinate to avoid consulting his superior for advice except where absolutely necessary in order that he may demonstrate his self-reliance, the persistent failure without exception of Army and Navy officers, as revealed by the investigation, to seek amplifying and clarifying instructions from their superiors is strongly suggestive of just one thing: That the military and naval services failed to instill in their personnel the wholesome disposition to consult freely with their superiors for mutual good and success of both superior and subordinate. One witness, upon being asked why an explanation was not requested replied, in effect: "Well, I have found the asking is usually the other way"; that is, the superior asking the subordinate. Such a situation is not desirable, and the services should not be prejudiced by walls of "brass."

10. There is no substitute for imagination and resourcefulness on the part of supervisory and intelligence officials. . . .

11. Communications must be characterized by clarity, forthrightness and appropriateness. . . .

Admiral Kimmel was ordered to execute an appropriate defense deployment. Every one in Washington in testifying before the committee seems reasonably certain as to just what this meant; Admiral Kimmel did not feel that it required his doing anything greatly beyond what he had already done, even though he knew that Washington knew what he had previously done. In using the words "this dispatch is to be considered a war warning" every one in Washington felt the commander in chief would be sharply, incisively and emphatically warned of war; Admiral Kimmel said he had construed all the messages he had received previously as war warnings. Every one in Washington felt that upon advising Hawaii the Japanese were destroying their codes it would be understood as meaning "war in any man's language"; Admiral Kimmel said that he did not consider this intelligence of any vital importance when he received it.

The War Department warned General Short that hostilities were possible at any moment, meaning armed hostilities; General Short felt that sabotage was one form of hostilities and instituted an alert against sabotage only. Washington ordered the commanding general to undertake reconnaissance; the latter took for granted that the War Department had made a mistake and proceeded in effect to ignore the order on the basis of this assumption. General Short was instructed to report the measures taken by him pursuant to departmental orders. He replied that his department was alerted against sabotage and that he had effected liaison with the Navy; the Director of War Plans saw the reply and took for granted the commanding general was replying to a different warning concerning subversive activities, at the same time suggesting that some of his subordinates may have interpreted the reply to mean that, in effecting liaison with the Navy, General Short had necessarily carried out the order to conduct reconnaissance.

General Short said he thought the order given Admiral Kimmel to execute a defensive deployment necessarily required distant reconnaissance; the commander in chief did not so interpret the order. Admiral Kimmel saw the warning General Short received and took for granted the Army would be on a full alert designed to protect the fleet base.

As has been seen, an objective consideration of the warnings received by the Hawaiian commanders indicates they were adequate. But on the basis of the disaster, in the future adequacy cannot be regarded as sufficient. Dispatches must be unmistakably clear, forthright and devoid of any conceivable ambiguity.

The committee feels that the practice, indulged by the Navy, of sending to several commanders an identical dispatch for action, even though the addresses may be located in decidedly different situations, is distinctly dangerous. In the preparation of messages to outposts the dispatch to a particular officer should be applicable to his peculiar situation. What may well be characterized as the "lazy" practice of preparing a single dispatch should be replaced by a more industrious and effective system whereby a separate "individualized" dispatch is sent to each commander whose particular situation varies greatly from that of another commander or there may be reason for him because of distance or other factors to believe so.

It is believed that brevity of messages was carried to the point of being a fetish rather than a virtue. Dispatches must be characterized by sufficient amplitude to be meaningful not only to the sender but, beyond reasonable doubt, to the addressee as well.

12. There is great danger in careless paraphrase of information received, and every effort should be made to insure that the paraphrased material reflects the true meaning and significance of the original. . . .

13. Procedures must be sufficiently flexible to meet the exigencies of unusual situations.

Reviewing the Pearl Harbor evidence there are, in both the War and Navy establishments, several illustrations of inflexible procedures that could not be or at least were not subjected to sufficient alteration to satisfy the exigencies of the situation. Everything seems perforce to have followed a grooved pattern regardless of the demands for distinctive action. The idea of proceeding "through channels" was carried to an extreme. . . .

14. Restriction of highly confidential information to a minimum number of officials, while often necessary, should not be carried to the point of prejudicing the work of the organization.

The Magic intelligence was pre-eminently important and the necessity for keeping it confidential cannot be overemphasized. However, so closely held and top-secret was this intelligence that it appears the fact the Japanese codes had been broken was regarded as of more importance than the information obtained from decoded traffic. The result of this rather specious premise was to leave large numbers of policy-making and enforcement officials in Washington completely oblivious of the most pertinent information concerning Japan.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, for example, was charged with combating espionage, sabotage, and un-American activities within the United States. On Feb. 15, 1941, Tokyo dispatched to Washington a detailed outline as to the type of espionage information desired from this country. The F. B. I. was never informed of this vital information necessary to the success of its work, despite the fact that the closest liaison was supposed to exist among the F. B. I., Naval Intelligence, and Military Intelligence.

General Hayes A. Kroner, who was in charge of the intelligence branch of G-2, has testified that he at no time was permitted to avail himself of the Magic. And this despite the fact that to effectively perform his work he should have known of this intelligence and one of his subordinates, Colonel Bratton, was "loaned" to General Miles to distribute Magic materials to authorized recipients. . . .

15. There is great danger of being blinded by the self-evident.

Virtually every witness has testified he was surprised at the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. This was essentially the result of the fact that just about everybody was blinded or rendered myopic by what seemed to be the self-evident purpose of Japan to attack toward the south—Thailand, Malaysia, the Kra Peninsula, and perhaps the Philippines and Guam. Japan had massed ships and amphibious forces, had deployed them to the south, and had conducted reconnaissance in that direction. So completely did everything point to the south that it appears everyone was blinded to significant, albeit somewhat disguised, handwriting on the wall suggesting an attack on us elsewhere.

The advice of the Army lieutenant to the radar operators to "forget it" when they informed him of the approach of a large number of planes appears to have been based on the self-evident assumption that the planes were Army or Navy craft on patrol or the expected B-17's due to arrive from the West Coast.

16. Officials should at all times give subordinates the benefit of significant information.

Before the committee Admiral Turner testified that he regarded an attack on Pearl Harbor as a 50-50 possibility. Assuming this to be correct, there can be little doubt, considering the position he held as Director of War Plans in the Navy Department, that he could have given the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet the benefit of his conclusion had he been disposed to do so. As a matter of fact

JUL 21 1946

30.24 4253

Admiral Turner had the principal hand in preparing the Nov. 27 "war warning." . . .

17. An official who neglects to familiarize himself in detail with his organization should forfeit his responsibility.

It would seem that War and Navy Department officials both in Washington and Hawaii were so obsessed by an executive complex that they could not besmirch their dignities by "stooping" to determine what was going on, or more especially what was not going on, in their organizations. Examples should illustrate this observation.

Admirals Stark and Turner both have testified they "thought" the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet was receiving the Magic intelligence. Yet in a period of over six months, with relations between the United States and Japan mounting in tenseness and approaching a crisis, neither of these ranking officers determined for a fact whether the fleet was receiving this information.

In the case of Hawaii, the evidence indicates failures on the part of the commanding general and the commander in chief to actually determine what was going on in their organizations. Additionally, in a command by mutual co-operation it was as important that Admiral Kimmel know what General Short was doing, and vice versa, as that he know what the fleet itself was doing. But, as has been heretofore pointed out, neither of these officers really verified whether his assumptions concerning what the other was doing were correct.

18. Failure can be avoided in the long run only by preparation for any eventuality.

The record tends to indicate that appraisal of likely enemy movements was divided into probabilities and possibilities. Every one has admitted that an attack by Japan on Pearl Harbor was regarded as at least a possibility. It was felt, however, that a Japanese movement toward the south was a probability. The over-all result was to look for the probable move and to take little or no effective precautions to guard against the contingency of the possible action. . . .

19. Officials, on a personal basis, should never countermand an official instruction.

On Oct. 16, 1941, the Chief of Naval Operations sent to the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet a dispatch concerning the resignation of the Japanese Cabinet, pointing out, among other things, that "since the United States and Britain are held responsible by Japan for her present desperate situation there is also a possibility that Japan may attack these two powers." But on Oct. 17, referring to this dispatch, Admiral Stark, in a letter to Admiral Kimmel, said: "Things have been popping here for the last twenty-four hours but from our dispatches you know about all that we do. Personally I do not believe the Japs are going to sail into us and the message sent you merely stated the 'possibility'; in fact, I tempered the message handed to me considerably."

It appears to have been a generally accepted practice in the Navy for the Chief of Naval Operations to supplement official dispatches by correspondence of a quasi-personal nature. Despite this fact, it is regarded as an extremely dangerous practice for the Chief of Naval Operations to express an opinion on a personal basis to an outpost commander which has the inevitable effect of tempering the import of an official dispatch. Were it not for the fact that Admiral Stark supplied the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet highly pertinent and significant information after his letter of Oct. 17 and before Dec. 7, the manner in which he emasculated the Oct. 16 dispatch would be inexcusable. However, as has been seen in this report, some of the most vital intelligence and orders relating to Japan were supplied Hawaii during November and December of 1941.

20. Personal or official jealousy will wreck any organization. . . .

The whole story of discussions during 1941 with respect to unity of command is a picture of jealous adherence to departmental prerogatives and unwillingness to make concessions in the interest of both the Army and Navy. The same comment is applicable to the near-dispute between Admiral Kimmel and General Short as to which of them should command Wake and Midway when the marines were replaced by soldiers. It is proper to suggest that had both the commanding officers in Hawaii been less concerned between Nov. 27 and Dec. 7 about preserving their individual prerogatives with respect to Wake and Midway and more concerned about working together to defend the Hawaiian Coastal Frontier in the light of the warnings they had received, the defensive situation confronting the Japanese on the morning of Dec. 7 might well have been entirely different.

21. Personal friendship, without more, should never be accepted in lieu of liaison or confused therewith where the latter is necessary to the proper functioning of two or more agencies.

One of the more "human" aspects of the testimony of both Admiral Kimmel and General Short is the manner in which each sought to bring out their personal friendship for the purpose of demonstrating the close relationship that existed between them. They played golf together; they dined together—but they did not get together on official business in such manner as to insure that each possessed the same knowledge of the situation as the other and to effect coordination and integration of their efforts.

22. No considerations should be permitted as excuse for failure to perform a fundamental task.

Both the commanding officers in Hawaii have offered as explanation and excuse for failure to perform various supervisory and administrative responsibilities in their commands the fact that they had countless and manifold duties in their respective positions as commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet and commanding general of the Hawaiian Department. . . . The most fundamental responsibility that both commanders had under the circumstances, however, was to make certain beyond any reasonable doubt that there was an integrated and co-ordinated employment of defensive facilities consistent with the principle of command by mutual co-operation. . . .

23. Superiors must at all times keep their subordinates adequately informed and, conversely, subordinates should keep their superiors informed.

In Washington, Admiral Wilkinson, Director of Naval Intelligence, and Captain McCollum, Chief of the Far Eastern Section of that Division, were not adequately and currently informed as to the nature of the dispatches being sent to our outposts emanating from the War Plans Division. Subordinate officials in both the War and Navy Departments failed to appreciate the importance and necessity of getting to both General Marshall and Admiral Stark the first thirteen parts of the Japanese fourteen-part memorandum immediately on the evening of Dec. 6. Colonel French did not inform the Chief of Staff that he had been unable to raise the Army radio in Hawaii on the morning of Dec. 7.

In Hawaii, Admiral Kimmel failed to insure that Admiral Bellinger, who was responsible for Navy patrol planes, knew of the war warning of Nov. 27. Admiral Newton, as previously pointed out, was permitted to leave Pearl Harbor with a task force completely oblivious of any of the warning messages. General Short, construing the caution to disseminate the information in the warning of Nov. 27 to "minimum essential officers" in a too-narrow manner, failed to inform the essential and necessary officers of his command of the acute situation in order that the proper alertness might pervade the Hawaiian Department.

24. The administrative organization of any establishment must be designed to locate failures and to assess responsibility.

The committee has been very much concerned about the fact that there was no way in which it could be determined definitely that any individual saw a particular message among the magic materials. It does not appear that any record system was established for initialing the messages or otherwise fixing responsibility. The system existing left subordinate officers charged with the duty of disseminating the Magic at the complete mercy of superior officers with respect to any question as to whether a particular message had been delivered to or seen by them.

25. In a well balanced organization there is close correlation of responsibility and authority.

Witnesses have testified rather fully as to what their responsibilities were, both in Washington and at Hawaii. However, it does not appear that any of them, except the highest ranking officers, possessed any real authority to act in order decisively to discharge their responsibilities. It cannot be presumed that it will be possible to meet the exigencies of an emergency if the officer charged with the duty of acting at the time the emergency arises does not possess the necessary authority to follow through on the situation. There should be a close correlation between responsibility and authority; to vest a man with responsibility with no corresponding authority is an unfair, ineffective, and unsatisfactory arrangement.

ADDITIONAL VIEWS OF MR. KEEFE

. . . I think it is true that none of the military chiefs at Washington or Hawaii thought the attack would come at Pearl Harbor. I conclude that they all thought it would come first in the Far East. Obviously this was a fatal mistake, and I agree that the mistake was without proper justification and that neither Hawaii nor Washington should be excused from criticism for having made it. I think that the facts in this record clearly demonstrate that Hawaii was always the No. 1 point of danger and that both Washington and Hawaii should have known it at all times and acted accordingly. Consequently I agree that the high command in Hawaii was subject to criticism for concluding that Hawaii was not in danger. However, I must insist that the same criticism with the same force and scope should apply to the high command in Washington. It is in this respect that I think the tenor of the committee report may be subject to some criticism. . . .

The committee report, I feel, does not with exactitude apply the same yardstick in measuring responsibilities at Washington as has been applied to the Hawaiian commanders. I cannot suppress the feeling that the committee report endeavors to throw as soft a light as possible on the Washington scene. . . .

Despite the elaborate and labored arguments in the report and despite the statements of high ranking military and naval officers to the contrary, I must conclude that the intercepted messages received and distributed in Washington on the afternoon and evening of Dec. 6 and the early hours of Dec. 7, pointed to an attack on Pearl Harbor . . .

As a result of his conversation with the President late Saturday night Dec. 6, Admiral Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, did receive notice of [illegible] in Japanese-American relations (R.14757-14759). Even if it be assumed that he had no inkling until that time of vital information which had been available to him for at least six hours, the call from the President should have provoked his active and immediate efforts to elicit from his subordinates the data which they possessed as to the immediacy of war. He failed to make such efforts. Sunday morning, when the Saturday messages are known to have come to his attention together with the 1 p. m. message, he again did not take action, despite the recommendations of the Chief of Naval Intelligence that a warning be sent to the Fleet. He failed to exercise the care and diligence which his postion required.

General Marshall, Chief of Staff of the Army, had the "Pilot Message" available to him on the afternoon of Saturday, Dec. 6. This placed on him an obligation to make sure he would promptly receive the subsequent information which the Pilot message indicated would be soon forthcoming. He did not do so. In placing himself outside of effective contact with his subordinates for several hours on Sunday morning, he failed to exercise the care and diligence which his position required. . . .

General Short and Admiral Kimmel were not informed about the most important diplomatic steps in 1941. They were not informed of the parallel action agreement at the Atlantic Conference or the warning to Japan which followed. They were not informed of the significant terms of the American note to Japan of Nov. 26. They were not informed of the commitment made to Great Britain, as set forth in the Brooke-Popham telegram of Dec. 6. They did not receive the vital intercepted Japanese messages or any condensation or summary of them. . . .

On the evening of Dec. 6, in response to Secretary Stimson's request and at the direction of Secretary Knox, the Navy Department compiled from its records a summary showing that all the major ships of the Pacific Fleet were in Pearl Harbor. At this time the information available in Washington showed that war was only hours away. Yet the two Secretaries and the high command made no effort to direct any change in the dispositions of the fleet as shown in the Navy Department summary.

They took no steps to furnish Admiral Kimmel the information which they possessed as to the imminence of war. Consequently they deprived him of any chance to alter his dispositions in the light of that information. I conclude that Secretaries Stimson and Knox and the high command in Washington knew that the major units of the fleet were in Pearl Harbor on Dec. 6-7, 1941, and were satisfied with that situation. . . .

The high civilian and military officials in Washington who had skillfully maneuvered Kimmel and Short into the position of exclusive blame knew at the time all the hidden facts about Pearl Harbor, at least as much and probably more than this investigation has been able to uncover. As the two-year statutory period for instituting court-martial proceedings was about to expire, Kimmel and Short were requested by the Secretaries of War and Navy to waive the statute of limitations. Admiral Kimmel did so but with the provision that any court martial be held in "open court" (exhibit 171). General Short did likewise (R. 8496-8499). Similar requests were not made of other officers, not even of those who, before this committee, publicly accepted responsibility for certain failures of the high command in Washington. . . .

The record of the high military and civilian officials of the War and Navy Departments in dealing with the Pearl Harbor disaster from beginning to end does them no credit. It will have a permanent bad effect on the morale and integrity of the armed services. The Administration had ample opportunity to record and preserve all the facts about Pearl Harbor, even if their public disclosure needed to wait upon the war's end. This was not done. The policy adopted was to place the public responsibility for the disaster on the commanders in the field, to be left there for all time. The policy failed only because suppression created public suspicion, and the Congress was alert.

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

. . . On the evidence before us I concur in the findings of the committee with respect to responsibilities of our commanders in Hawaii. I believe that the "mistakes of judgment" referred to in the committee report are directly related to the failures of the high commands in Washington to have their organizations fully alerted and on a war footing and that those in command at the Washington level must bear their full share of the responsibility for the tragedy of Pearl Harbor.

I further conclude that secret diplomacy was at the root of the tragedy. The United States had warned Japan that an advance to Malaya or the Dutch East Indies would mean war with this nation. The President gave Great Britain assurances of our armed support in such event. What Japan and Britain knew, our commanders in the field and our own people did not know. Washington feared that national unity could not be attained unless Japan committed the first overt act. Accordingly, the Army in Hawaii was put on an anti-sabotage alert, a defensive posture containing the least possible risk of incident in Hawaii which Japan might claim was an overt act by the United States. The mobilization of American public opinion in support of an offensive by the Pacific fleet against Japan was to be accomplished, if at all, by a message to Congress "at the last stage of our relations, relating to actual hostilities." This message was to be the prelude to hostilities by the United States if Japan attacked the British and the Dutch at the outset of the war and did not attack this nation. A direct attack by Japan against the United States at the outset of hostilities would make such a message unnecessary. Mr. Simson's diary describes the plan succinctly: "The question was how we should maneuver them into the position of firing the first shot without allowing too much danger to ourselves." In formulating this plan undoubtedly Washington was influenced by public promises to keep us out of war unless attacked.

With full knowledge of Japan's intentions prior to the attack, Washington had one plain duty to the American people. That duty was to inform them of their peril. This was not done. Washington had a further duty to make sure that our forces were ready to meet the attack by furnishing their commanders afield and afloat with all available information, or by evaluating that information and giving them appropriate clear and categoric instructions. . . .

In the future the people and their Congress must know how close American diplomacy is moving to war so that they may check its advance if imprudent and support its position if sound. A diplomacy which relies upon the enemy's first overt act to insure effective popular support for the nation's final war decision is both outmoded and dangerous in the atomic age. To prevent any future Pearl Harbor more tragic and damaging than that of Dec. 7, 1941, there must be constant close co-ordination between American public opinion and American diplomacy.

Minority Views

We, the undersigned, find it impossible to concur with the findings and conclusions of the committee's report because they are illogical, and unsupported by the preponderance of the evidence before the committee. The conclusions of the diplomatic aspects are based upon incomplete evidence.

We, therefore, find it necessary to file a report setting forth the conclusions which we believe are properly sustained by evidence before the committee.

Difficulties Facing the Joint Committee and Incompleteness of the Record

. . . Even before the committee commenced its work, it was confronted with an order issued on Aug. 28, 1945, and signed by President Truman, which severely limited the power of the committee to gain access to the full facts. The order is as follows (Tr., Vol. 1, p. 26):

Aug. 28, 1945.

"Memorandum for—The Secretary of State.
"The Secretary of War.
"The Secretary of the Navy.
"The Attorney General.
"The Joint Chiefs of Staff.
"The Director of the Budget.
"The Director of the Office of War Information.

"Appropriate departments of the government and the joint chiefs of staff are hereby directed to take such steps as are necessary to prevent release to the public, except with the specific approval of the President in each case, of—

"Information regarding the past or present status, techniques or procedures, degree of success attained, or any specific results of any cryptanalytic unit acting under the authority of the United States government or any department thereof.

HARRY S. TRUMAN."

"Restricted."

It was not until Oct. 23, 1945, that President Truman made the order less stringent by a new order. The modification left much to be desired.

The application of the new order was limited to the State, War and Navy Departments. It relaxed the secrecy of records only so far as "the joint committee" was concerned, while it continued to prevent "individual" members of the committee from searching records as responsible members of Congress either alone, in groups, or even when accompanied by committee counsel. By one way or another, control over papers, records and other information remained in the hands of the majority party members.

The President's October order also contained the unfortunate phrase "any information in their possession material to the investigation," which provided a cloak for those reluctant to yield information requested by members of the committee. It was always possible to confront individual members with the view that the papers, data and information desired was not "material to the investigation." Decisions were made by the majority ruling out evidence as "not material to the investigation" without members of the committee ever seeing the material about which the decision was made.

No subsequent modifying orders wholly removed these restrictions. In an order of Nov. 7, 1945, President Truman relaxed restraints on executives of the government in order that they may speak freely to individual members of the committee, but the order closed with the direction: "This does not include any files or written material."

In this fashion every facility and concession afforded to members of the joint committee was hedged about with troublesome qualifications and restraints. The relaxation of restraints was often publicized while the continuing qualifications were but little discussed. The effect was to restrict individual members of the committee in practice while the appearance of their freedom of operations was held out to the public. In justice to committee counsel and to individual majority members of the committee, efforts made by them to overcome these restrictions should be recognized. It is a great tribute to their fairness that the committee did not break up over this issue but continued to work despite the handicaps which were never wholly removed. . . .

This firm refusal by the committee majority, consisting of six Democrats as against four Republicans, at the very outset to allow the scope to individual members even with every safeguard proposed against the alleged danger of abuse was both unfortunate and disquieting.

Everything that has since developed must be viewed in the light of this iron curtain that was thus imposed.

Permission was asked to conduct exploration for certain missing records. Vigorous and public denial was made—presumably on Executive authority—that any records were missing. Subsequently it developed that several records were missing, and most inadequate explanations were supplied. How any public interest could possibly have been prejudiced by affording any opportunity to examine the manner of keeping records of this character has never been satisfactorily explained.

These incidents revealed a disquieting determination to keep entire control of the investigation in the hands of the committee majority, who were thus put in the unusual position of arrogating to themselves the capacity of conduct an impartial and adequate investigation of their own administration. The history of human conduct furnishes few precedents to justify such confidence. . . .

The former Prime Minister of Great Britain was in this country not on official business while hearings of this committee were going on. His intimate knowledge of affairs leading up to Pearl Harbor would have cleared up many gaps in the evidence. By majority vote, a request for the appearance of Mr. Churchill was refused.

President Roosevelt's secretary, Miss Grace Tully, was permitted to determine for himself and the committee and the country what portions of the official correspondence of the late President had any relevancy to Pearl Harbor. This could hardly be a satisfactory substitute for the responsibility placed upon this committee. . . .

The whole question of whether or not it would have been possible to avoid war by proper diplomatic action and thus avert the

CONCLUSIONS OF FACT AND RESPONSIBILITY

1. The course of diplomatic negotiations with Japan during the months preceding Dec. 7, 1941, indicated a growing tension with Japan and after Nov. 26 the immediate imminence of war.

2. By Nov. 7, 1941, President Roosevelt and his Cabinet had reached the unanimous conclusion that war tension had reached such a point as to convince them that "the people would back us up in case we struck at Japan down there (in the Far East)." They then took under consideration "what the tactics would be" (Tr., Vol. 70, p. 14415). Unless Japan yielded to diplomatic representations on the part of the United States, there were three choices on tactics before the President and the Cabinet: they could wait until Japan attacked; they could strike without a declaration of war by Congress, or the President could lay the issue of peace or war before Congress (Tr., Vol. 70, p. 14415 ff.).

3. So imminent was war on Nov. 25, that the President, in a conference with Secretary Hull, Secretary Knox, Secretary Stimson, General Marshall and Admiral Stark, "brought up the event that we were likely to be attacked perhaps (as soon as) next Monday" (Dec. 1); and the members of the conference discussed the question "How we should maneuver them (the Japanese) into the position of firing the first shot without allowing too much danger to ourselves" (Tr., Vol. 70, p. 14418).

4. Having considered without agreeing upon the proposition that a message on the war situation should be sent to Congress, the President and the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War, and the Secretary of the Navy pursued from Nov. 25 to Dec. 7 the tactics of waiting for the firing of "the first shot" by the Japanese.

5. The appropriate high authorities in Washington had the organization for working in such close co-operation during the days immediately prior to the Japanese attack on Dec. 7 that they had every opportunity to make sure that identical and precise instructions warranted by the imminence of war went to the Hawaiian commanders.

6. Through the Army and Navy intelligence services extensive information was secured respecting Japanese war plans and designs by intercepted and decoded Japanese secret messages, which indicated the growing danger of war and increasingly after Nov. 26 the imminence of a Japanese attack.

7. Army and Navy information which indicated growing imminence of war was delivered to the highest authorities in charge of national preparedness for meeting an attack, among others, the President, the Secretaries of State, War and Navy and the Chief of Staff and the Chief of Naval Operations.

8. Judging by the military and naval history of Japan, high authorities in Washington and the commanders in Hawaii had good grounds for expecting that in starting war the Japanese government would make a surprise attack on the United States.

9. Neither the diplomatic negotiations nor the intercepts and other information respecting Japanese designs and operations in the hands of the United States authorities warranted those authorities in excluding from defense measures or from orders to the Hawaiian commanders the probability of an attack on Hawaii. On the contrary, there is evidence to the effect that such an attack was, in terms of strategy, necessary from the Japanese point of view and in fact highly probable, and that President Roosevelt was taking the probability into account—before Dec. 7.

JUL 21 1946

10. The knowledge of Japanese designs and intentions in the hands of the President and the Secretary of State led them to the conclusion at least ten days before Dec. 7 that an attack by Japan within a few days was so highly probable as to constitute a certainty and, having reached this conclusion, the President, as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, was under obligation to instruct the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy to make sure that the outpost commanders put their armed forces on an all-out alert for war.

11. The decision of the President, in view of the Constitution, to await the Japanese attack rather than ask for a declaration of war by Congress increased the responsibility of high authorities in Washington to use the utmost care in putting the commanders at Pearl Harbor on a full alert for defensive actions before the Japanese attack on Dec. 7, 1941.

12. Inasmuch as the knowledge respecting Japanese designs and operations which was in the possession of high authorities in Washington differed in nature and volume from that in the possession of the Pearl Harbor commanders it was especially incumbent upon the former to formulate instructions to the latter in language not open to misinterpretation as to the obligations imposed on the commanders by the instructions.

13. The messages sent to General Short and Admiral Kimmel by high authorities in Washington during November were couched in such conflicting and imprecise language that they failed to convey to the commanders definite information on the state of diplomatic relations with Japan and on Japanese war designs and positive orders respecting the particular actions to be taken—orders that were beyond all reasonable doubts as to the need for an all-out alert. In this regard the said high authorities failed to discharge their full duty.

14. High authorities in Washington failed in giving proper weight to the evidence before them respecting Japanese designs and operations which indicated that an attack on Pearl Harbor was highly probable and they failed also to emphasize this probability in messages to the Hawaiian commanders.

15. The failure of Washington authorities to act promptly and consistently in translating intercepts, evaluating information, and sending appropriate instructions to the Hawaiian commanders was in considerable measure due to delays, mismanagement, non-co-operation, unpreparedness, confusion, and negligence on the part of officers in Washington.

16. The President of the United States was responsible for the failure to enforce continuous, efficient, and appropriate co-operation among the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, the Chief of Staff, and the Chief of Naval Operations, in evaluating information and dispatching clear and positive orders to the Hawaiian commanders as events indicated the growing imminence of war; for the Constitution and laws of the United States vested in the President full power as Chief Executive and Commander in Chief, to compel such co-operation and vested this power in him alone with a view to establishing his responsibility to the people of the United States.

17. High authorities in Washington failed to allocate to the Hawaiian commanders the material which the latter often declared to be necessary to defense and often requested, and no requirements of defense or war in the Atlantic did or could excuse these authorities for their failures in this respect.

18. Whatever errors of judgment the commanders at Hawaii committed and whatever mismanagement they displayed in preparing for a Japanese attack, attention to chain of responsibility in the civil and military administration requires taking note of the fact that they were designated for their posts by high authorities in Washington—all of whom were under obligation to have a care for competence in the selection of subordinates for particular positions of responsibility in the armed forces of the United States.

19. The defense of Hawaii rested upon two sets of interdependent resonsibilities: (1) The responsibility in Washington in respect of its intimate knowledge of diplomatic negotiations, widespread intelligence information, direction of affairs and constitutional duty to plan the defense of the United States; (2) the responsibility cast upon the commanders in the field in charge of a major naval base and the fleet essential to the defense of the territory of the United States to do those things appropriate to the defense of the fleet and outpost. Washington authorities failed in (1); and the commanding officers at Hawaii failed in (2).

20. In the final instance of crucial significance for alerting American outpost commanders, on Saturday night, Dec. 6, and Sunday morning, Dec. 7, the President of the United States failed to take that quick and instant executive action which was required by the occasion and by the responsibility for watchfulness and guardianship rightly associated in law and practice with his high office from the establishment of the republic to our own times.

21. The contention coming from so high an authority as President Truman on Aug. 3, 1945, that the "country is as much to blame as any individual in this final situation that developed in Pearl Harbor," cannot be sustained because the American people had no intimation whatever of the policies and operations that were being undertaken.

JUL 21 1946

SUMMARY OF RESPONSIBILITIES

Having examined the whole record made before the joint committee and having analyzed the same in the foregoing conclusions of fact and responsibility, we find the evidence supports the following final and ultimate conclusion:

The failure of Pearl Harbor to be fully alerted and prepared for defense rested upon the proper discharge of two sets of interdependent responsibilities: (1) responsibilities of high authorities in Washington; and (2) the responsibilities of the commanders in the field in charge of the fleet and of the naval base. (See Conclusion No. 19.)

The evidence clearly shows that these two areas of responsibilities were inseparably essential to each other in the defense of Hawaii. The commanders in the field could not have prepared or been ready successfully to meet hostile attack at Hawaii without indispensable information, material, trained man power and clear orders from Washington. Washington could not be certain that Hawaii was in readiness without the alert and active co-operation of the commanders on the spot.

The failure to perform the responsibilities indispensably essential to the defense of Pearl Harbor rests upon the following civil and military authorities:

Franklin D. Roosevelt—President of the United States and Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy.

Henry L. Stimson—Secretary of War.

Frank Knox—Secretary of the Navy.

George C. Marshall—General, Chief of Staff of the Army.

Harold R. Stark—Admiral, Chief of Naval Operations.

Leonard T. Gerow—Major General, Assistant Chief of Staff of War Plans Division.

The failure to perform the responsibilities in Hawaii rests upon the military commanders:

Walter C. Short—Major General, Commanding General, Hawaiian Department.

Husband E. Kimmel—Rear Admiral, Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet.

Both in Washington and in Hawaii there were numerous and serious failures of men in the lower civil and military echelons to perform their duties and discharge their responsibilities. These are too numerous to be treated in detail and individually named.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who was at the center of Japanese-American negotiations, bears a grave responsibility for the diplomatic conditions leading up to the eventuality of Pearl Harbor, but he had no duties as a relevant link in the military chain of responsibility stemming from the Commander in Chief to the commanders at Hawaii for the defense at Pearl Harbor. For this reason and because the diplomatic phase was not completely explored we offer no conclusions in his case.

BRITISH FOOD RATION LIST BROADENED

JUL 21 1946

Cereal Products Added To Bread And Flour, Effective Today

London, July 20 (AP)—The Food Ministry in a midnight announcement tonight added oatmeal, wheat porridges, macaroni, spaghetti, pudding and cake mixtures, pearl barley and a number of other cereal products to the rationing program which begins tomorrow.

"This is necessary," said the Food Ministry, "because of bread and flour rationing."

Bread Scramble Rush

Today thousands of British housewives on the last day to obtain unrationed bread waited in long lines before bakeries, whose supplies dwindled rapidly under the buying crush.

One baker, reporting a terrific rush on bread and cakes, said "everyone is taking twice as much as usual."

In London's West End, Isobella Thomason, 66-year-old owner of a small grocery, took her own life because, witnesses testified at an inquest, she was worried over the prospects of bread rationing.

Three Bye Elections

The bread ration varies from five ounces daily for children under four to nine ounces daily for a normal adult, and fifteen ounces for a manual worker.

An estimated 1,500 bread deliverymen in Northern Ireland at a mass meeting in Belfast tonight voted not to operate under rationing. With only one dissenting vote they resolved not to deliver bread Monday.

Food-Spoilage Threat

London, July 20 (AP)—More than 100 tons of perishable food at the Bishopsgate depot was threatened with spoilage today by a spreading strike of freight handlers protesting the prosecution and dismissal of two workmen accused of stealing two tomatoes.

Between 250 and 300 porters at the Liverpool street parcels depot joined the work stoppage today and union leaders appealed to porters at other depots for their support.

Strikers claimed that the prosecution of the two workmen on charges of stealing the tomatoes violated a local agreement providing petty cases shall be dealt with "by domestic disciplinary means."

Fifteen hundred workers, including women porters, reported as usual at the Bishopsgate depot, punched time clocks, and then stood about idly in an attempt to force employers to reinstate the two employés and to drop the prosecution.

JUL 21 1946

Bread Scramble

London, July 20 (AP)—British housewives besieged bake shops and rushed delivery trucks today in a mad scramble to buy bread before it joins the list of rationed foods Monday.

In some bakeries the loaves were sold as they left the ovens and supplies were exhausted quickly by women who bought as many as ten loaves and piled market baskets high with cakes and cookies.

Sales of flour, also to be rationed, were more than trebled and some shops were drained of supplies well before noon.

"This reckless buying means that others are having to go without," said one baker. "Many women are buying double the quantity they need for the week end."

JUL 21 1946

RATIONING ISSUE IN BRITISH LABOR ELECTION TESTS

London, July 20—(AP)—The effect of bread rationing on the popularity of Britain's Labor government will be tested in three bye elections next week to fill vacancies in the House of Commons.

Heartened by clamorous protests that followed the bread rationing announcement, the Conservatives unlimbered their biggest guns, including Winston Churchill, in districts which normally have cast a heavy labor vote.

The Conservatives are on the alert for any signs of defection within Labor ranks after a year of Socialist government. Food is one of the principal issues in the bye election campaign, which has also touched on a number of other domestic issues including shortage of housing and a proposal to investigate the British press.

Churchill toured Bexley, South England city of nearly 33,000, in support of Lt. Col. J. C. Lockwood. Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross spoke for Labor's Maj. E. A. Bramall.

OPENS ATTACK ON CHURCHILL

JUL 21 1946

Attlee Likens Him to Cheap Newspaper Editor.

Durham, England, July 20 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Attlee today attacked Winston Churchill and the Conservative party, declaring that Churchill's party is "bankrupt of any thought-out policy whatever," and that Churchill himself has ceased to be a statesman and has become rather like some of our brighter and cheaper newspaper editors." Attlee spoke before a crowd of nearly 200,000 persons at a Durham miners' festival.

Churchill "goes in for a series of stunts," he said, and added: "As soon as one fails, he goes in for another. He is trying to make party capital out of national necessity."

From the same platform United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman made his first major address since his arrival in England as Ambassador. He assured the British nation that Britain and America "are going to be partners in the future world."

JUL 21 1946

Pushes Free Press Issue.

London, July 20 (A. P.).—Winston Churchill and Attorney-General Sir Hartley Shawcross clashed verbally last night during by-election campaign speeches at Bexley over a proposed Government investigation of the ownership of British newspapers.

Asserting that the Laborite government was "already reaching out their hands against the freedom of the press," Churchill declared that Government leaders do not like to be criticized.

"I am for free speech," he said "and think that every one should say what they like."

Favors Public Opinion.

Meanwhile today the Liberal weekly Economist joined the critics of the newspapers, but suggested that the Government leave the correction of their faults to education and public opinion. Arguing for the adoption by the press of the principle of trusteeship, it added: "When the evidence is examined, it is not the organization of local papers in chains that is objectionable, but the power that the existence of a chain gives to a single autocratic proprietor to extend his personal influence. A newspaper should be owned by people who regard their ownership as a trust for something other than their own gain or power."

Conceding that certain papers "exaggerated out of all proportion quite minor public grievances," the Economist warned that it was, after all, the duty of newspapers to "defend the citizen against the public on precisely this type of issue," and that "the best way to draw attention to a case is to begin by overstating it."

Britain Sends Stiff Protest To Egypt

JUL 21 1946

London, July 20 (AP)—A Foreign Office spokesman said today that Britain had sent a "very strong" note to Egypt, protesting against continued attacks on British soldiers.

The spokesman said although the Government was aware that hostile acts were inspired by persons desiring bad relations between the two nations, it also was concerned with the Egyptian Government's handling of conditions described as "intolerable."

Anxious Over Mufti

The spokesman added that Britain took the view that the Egyptian Government had not taken actions which she could and should have taken to safeguard the lives of British soldiers.

The Foreign Office also disclosed British anxiety over lack of Egyptian assurances against political activities by the Mufti of Jerusalem, who sought refuge with King Farouk after fleeing France. The spokesman observed that the situation is not and cannot be satisfactory so long as the Mufti remains in Egypt.

Van Kleffens Assumes New Council Post

JUL 21 1946

Hollander Brings Independent Judicial Mind to U. N. Presidency

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

New York, July 20—(AP)—The latest president of the United Nations Security Council is a slender Hollander who never joined any political party but who repeatedly has been entrusted by his country with important assignments.

He is Dr. Eelco N. Van Kleffens, Minister Without Portfolio and Netherlands delegate to the Council, who took the chair this week in the monthly rotation of the office.

From the Summer of 1939, just before World War II, until last February, Van Kleffens was Foreign Minister of the Netherlands Government, both in exile and in liberated Holland. He was the only member of the exile government named to a cabinet post in the post-liberation government.

Appointed Minister Without Portfolio, Van Kleffens now is in effect the Netherlands Ambassador to the United Nations.

NIGHT

He has considerable experience with the United Nations. He was chairman of the Netherlands delegation to the first meeting of the General Assembly in London.

Van Kleffens has gained repute among Council members and observers as a delegate who listens closely, sums up the position in clear, logical fashion and votes only after full consideration of the question and its related issues.

He comes by his logical approach to questions honestly, being in fact a lawyer with a doctor of laws degree from the University of Leiden. He is a Protestant.

Sound Thinker

While in New York, Van Kleffens lives with his wife in a Manhattan penthouse. They have no children.

Besides never having become directly affiliated with any political party, he consistently has followed the line he thought best for Holland's interests, going neither to the right nor to the left unless he thought such a course the most advisable.

Van Kleffens was born November 17, 1894 in Heerenveen in the Province of Friesland in the northern part of the Netherlands. After receiving his law degree in 1918, he adjusted shipping questions which arose for Holland out of the First World War.

From 1919 to 1921 he was a member of the secretariat of the League of Nations.

In 1921 he became secretary to the directorate of the Royal Dutch Shell Oil Co. in London.

In 1923 he was appointed deputy-chief of the legal section of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in the Hague. He became deputy-chief of the diplomatic section of the Netherlands Foreign Office in 1927 and its head two years later.

Called to the cabinet as Minister of Foreign Affairs in 1939, he visited the United States twice during the war years. Before Pearl Harbor he flew to the Netherlands East Indies.

Firm Position

Perhaps the most important days for Van Kleffens so far in the Security Council came in London last February when the Ukraine, backed by Russia, charged that the action of British troops in Indonesia was a threat to international peace. The Ukraine demanded that the council send a five-power investigating commission to Indonesia.

The Soviet delegate, Andrei Vishinsky, argued that war was being waged against the people of Indonesia and that this "might light a spark" to set off a new world war.

That affected Van Kleffens directly. He declared stoutly that alarm existed only in Vishinsky's imagination. He said that he was willing to have a commission investigate British military action but he could not approve its delving into internal affairs.

The council finally refused to send a commission and the incident was closed.

In the New York sessions, Van Kleffens has voted to hear Iran's complaint against Russia and has sided with the United States and Great Britain in keeping that case on the Council agenda.

On Poland's charges against Spain and its demand for a diplomatic break with Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Van Kleffens has made known his dislike of Franco's Government but has presented the view that a break in relations was not the way to oust Franco.

In the showdown vote in June, he alone sided with Britain in the British effort to have the whole case sent to the General Assembly without a recommendation by the Council.

Van Kleffens was the only member of the Council to abstain from voting when the majority approved a resolution calling for the General Assembly to order a break with Franco or take such other action as it saw fit. That resolution, however, was killed by a Russian veto.

Van Kleffens told the Council that the case would get to the General Assembly in September anyway because it must be included in an annual or special report from the Council to the Assembly required by the United Nations Charter.

Rabbi Lazaron Urges United Nations Action

London, July 20 (AP)—An American Jewish leader proposed today that Britain and the United States place their joint recommendation on Palestine before the United Nations Security Council or General Assembly, to enlist world support in a final solution of the Jewish problem.

Rabbi Morris Lazaron, of Baltimore, speaking at a London synagogue, asserted that admission of 100,000 Jews to Palestine—as recommended by an Anglo-American committee of inquiry—would constitute "no threat to the Arab position."

"The Palestine problem is a segment of the world problem and must be considered in the setting of all the complex factors—economic, national, political and religious—which are drawn into it," Rabbi Lazaron said.

Rabbi Lazaron said every consideration of humanity "demands that something be done to alleviate the misery of these stricken people" who await admission to Palestine, but he added:

"Extremist demands by Zionist or Arab should be ignored."

'No One Asking Atom Secrets': Gromyko

JUL 21 1946

C. Gromyko

New York, July 20 (AP)—Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko, playing a stand-in role among the scientific advisers to the United Nations Atomic Commission, was on record today as saying that "nobody is asking for secrets" of atomic know-how at this stage of atomic control discussions.

The remark was given emphasis by the fact that the five quoted words were the only ones given in direct quotation in a 700-word official United Nations report of yesterday's secret meeting of the new twelve-nation scientific and technical advisory committee on atomic energy.

DAY

Question of Chairmanship

The only reported point of conflict yesterday arose over Gromyko's proposal that the scientific committee chairmanship should pass back and forth between the representatives of the Netherlands and Poland. This was authoritatively said to have been beaten by ten votes, with Poland abstaining.

Dr. Hendrik Anthony Kramers, of the Netherlands, was named temporary chairman.

Gromyko, who represents Russia in all political deliberations on atomic control, turned up among the scientists as a substitute for the Soviet scientific representative, who is now observing the Bikini atom bomb tests.

In the official version of yesterday's meeting, the Soviet delegate said "nobody is asking for secrets" and then was indirectly quoted as saying the time was ripe for discussion of the methods of exchange of scientific information on the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Gromyko also told the scientists that his proposals for exchange of information, as stated more than a month ago in the presentation of Russia's counterplan for handling atomic energy, were in no way in conflict with the views expressed by Bernard M. Baruch, of the United States, in a supplement July 12 explaining one phase of the proposed American program.

On the contrary, Gromyko said, Russia's proposals were well within the framework of the Baruch statement.

Same Processes

Dr. Richard C. Tolman, the United States scientific representative, told the committee that information on peaceful uses and dangerous activities of atomic energy are inseparable because up to a certain point the same processes are used in both fields of research.

Dr. Tolman said the exchange of information would increase apace with the progress made in establishing an international atomic development authority proposed by the United States to set up an inviolable control.

Mr. Stinebower, a native of Eureka, Mich., will assist John G. Winant, United States representative on the council and will represent the United States at council meetings in Mr. Winant's absence.

The President also named Representative Joseph F. Acting [illegible] from Washington, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, United States commander in Europe, placed the proposal for a single economic Germany before the four-power Allied Control Council in an attempt to break the long-standing deadlock on the Reich's economic future.

NIGHT

But he warned that the United States would find a merger with any one zone preferable to the present system of four air-tight compartments and its noncomitant trade barriers.

Unprecedented Step

Reiterating the offer made by James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, to the Paris Foreign Ministers conference, McNarney proposed to join his zone with any or all of the others—French, Russian or British—to form an economic whole.

Then, in an unprecedented step, the United States military government made McNarney's statement public immediately—even while the Control Council, closed to the press, still was in session.

"The United States Government proposes this arrangement," McNarney told the council in the 400-word statement, "because of its belief that Germany can no longer be administered in four air-tight compartments without free economic interchange, unless economic paralysis is to result.

Colleagues' Views Welcomed

"The United States Government is unwilling to permit creeping economic paralysis to grow if it is possible to attain economic unity between its zone and any other zone in Germany as a prelude to economic unity for all Germany.

An American spokesman said after the brief meeting that the three other delegations said they would refer the proposal to their respective governments.

Communique Session Lengthy

The meeting of the control council today lasted exactly eight minutes.

Then the communiqué writers settled down to the task of telling what the meeting was all about. The Russian representatives balked on interpretation of the phrase "economic unification."

The session of the communiqué writers lasted four hours.

"The United States representative would be glad to receive the views of his colleagues."

McNarney pointed out repeatedly that the administration of Germany as an economic entity was a clear provision of the Potsdam agreement and that the United States expected the agreement to be fulfilled.

The deadlock on central economic administration first was precipitated by the French, who were not signatories at Potsdam and who insisted that first the Reich's western boundaries should be settled. Later the Russians, who occupy the richest zone in the country, contended that the Germans were not yet already for central administration.

Ready For Co-Operation

McNarney's statement pleaded for a union of all four zones to break down the trade barriers raised by zonal boundaries, but he added that the economic fusion of any two zones would be better than the current stalemate under which, he said, the American and British zones are the chief sufferers because they are less self-sufficient than the Soviet zone.

"The United States Government is of the view that no zone of Germany is self-sustaining, and the treatment of two or more zones as an economic unit would improve conditions in the zones concerned," the American statement said.

"While the United States would prefer quadripartite agreement to implement the Potsdam decision for the establishment of central German administrative agencies for Germany as a whole, its representative is prepared to co-operate with the representatives of any or all of the other occupying powers in Germany in establishing administrative arrangements to secure economic unity.

Exploratory Talks Expected

"The United States delegation would propose to enter into administrative arrangements in the fields of finance, transportation, communications, industry and foreign trade, which would assure the economic unification of the zones entering into such arrangements. It would propose arrangements which the support of all occupying powers could develop into central German administrative departments, headed by state secretaries, as agreed in the Potsdam decisions."

Exploratory talks are expected here soon between economic chiefs of the American and British military governments to effect a union of those two zones of Germany should that step become necessary.

Russians Report Kaltenbach, Accused As Traitor, Is Dead

S. Kaltenbach

Berlin, July 20 (AP) — Fred W. Kaltenbach, Iowa-born "Lord Hee Haw" of the Berlin radio, who was sought by American authorities for treason, died last October in a Soviet detention camp, the Russians notified United States Army headquarters today.

The one-time Dubuque (Iowa) school teacher, one of eight Americans indicted June 26, 1943, by a District of Columbia grand jury for treasonable broadcasts of Axis propaganda during the war, died of natural causes somewhere in the Soviet occupation zone, the Army was informed.

NIGHT

Sought [illegible] August

Kaltenbach, seized by the Russians almost immediately after the end of hostilities in Berlin, had been sought by the Americans ever since August, 1945, when the first of many requests was made to the Red army for his custody. The Russians replied that they were unable to locate Kaltenbach.

Last month American authorities were told by the Russians that they believed they had located Kaltenbach and probably would deliver him within a week or ten days.

"We don't doubt that Kaltenbach is dead, for we knew he was ill," a high American officer commented, "nor do we doubt the Russian authorities had trouble locating him because, after all, he was arrested by combat troops only a week after the fighting stopped, and after a short detention in Berlin was whisked off somewhere into, the zone. We would prefer to see the camp records, but apparently there are none."

Inactive Near War's End

Kaltenbach broadcast, made speeches and wrote pamphlets for the Nazis from 1937 until 1942, but in the latter years of the war he lapsed into relative inactivity because of poor health. He was known to have been ill of a heart ailment and asthma for at least eighteen months prior to his arrest by the Russians on May 15, 1945.

Not only were the Russians unable to produce any camp records on Kaltenbach's case, but they also failed to inform the American authorities on the cause of death. The letter bearing the news of the propagandist's passing, signed by a Red Army major general, said only that "Kaltenbach's death of natural causes has been confirmed by statements of several former inmates of the camp where he died."

Widow Believed In Berlin

The letter made no mention of the disposition of the body.

Kaltenbach's widow, the former Dorothea Peters, of Koeslin, Pomerania, still is believed to be a resident of Berlin, where last July she said in an interview that she had heard nothing from her husband since he was taken away by the Russians.

Mrs. Kaltenbach, who married the broadcaster in 1939 when she was a secretary in the office of a German magazine, said Kaltenbach came under the influence of Nazi propaganda after studying the terms imposed upon Germany by the Versailles treaty after World War I.

"Fred was pro-German but he never joined the National Socialist party," she said at the time. "Nor was I a Nazi, although American newspapers have called me that."

Kaltenbach Dead, Russ Report

JUL 21 1946

S. Kaltenbach

Berlin, July 20 (AP)—The Russians informed United States headquarters today that Fred W. Kaltenbach, 51-year-old Iowan long sought by the Americans as a traitor for broadcasting Nazi war propaganda from Germany, died last October in a Soviet detention camp.

A Red Army major general transmitted the information in a letter to the American intelligence section, which had previously tried in vain to learn his fate after his arrest by the Russians more than a year ago.

DAY

Kaltenbach, the "Lord Hee Haw" of Radio Berlin, died of natural causes at a camp in the Soviet occupation zone of Germany, the letter said. The exact cause was not specified, but it was known that he had been ill with a heart ailment and asthma for at least eighteen months before Germany fell.

One Of Eight Indicted

Kaltenbach was one of eight Americans indicted June 26, 1943, by a District of Columbia Grand Jury on charges of treason for broadcasting Axis propaganda during the war.

A native of Dubuque, Iowa, he held a Master of Arts decree from the University of Chicago and a Doctorate of Philosophy from the University of Berlin. He specialized on affairs of Germany, where both his parents were born.

Married German Girl

[He was discharged as a high school teacher in Dubuque after he organized a Nazi group among the students, according to information in Washington. He was an army officer in the first World War, but after going to Germany he married a German girl and took up support of Hitler's cause.]

His widow, the former Dorothea Peters, of Koeslin, Pomerania, said at her Berlin apartment last July that Kaltenbach became a tool of Nazi propaganda through a whim which led him to study the terms imposed on Germany by the Versailles Treaty. She said she had heard nothing from him since Russian officers took him away.

"Not A Party Member"

"Fred was pro-German, but he never joined the National Socialist party," she said. "Nor was I a Nazi, although American newspapers have called me that."

She was married to Kaltenbach in 1939 while she was a secretary in the office of a German aviation magazine.

The Russians said there were no camp records available on the case but that "Kaltenbach's death of natural causes has been confirmed by statements of several former inmates of the camp where he died."

No mention was made of disposition of the body. Kaltenbach's widow is believed to be still living in Berlin.

Located In June

The Russians informed United States officials in mid-June that they thought they had located Kaltenbach, and planned to deliver him in a week or ten days. Then came the notification that the American was dead.

A high United States officer commented:

"We don't doubt that Kaltenbach is dead, for we knew he was ill. Nor do we doubt the Russian authorities had trouble locating him because, after all, he was arrested by combat troops only a week after the fighting stopped, and after a short detention in Berlin was whisked off somewhere into the zone. We would prefer to see the camp records, but apparently there are none."

M'NARNEY URGES GERMAN ENTITY

JUL 21 1946

Berlin, July 20 (A. P.).—Acting on instructions from Washington, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, American Military Governor, told the four-Power control council today that the United States would join its zone of Germany with any or all the other three zones to form an economic unit. In a move to break the long-standing stalemate of treating Germany as an economic whole, McNarney reiterated the offer made by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes at the Paris Foreign Ministers' conference.

DAY

McNarney told his Russian, British and French colleagues on the council:

"The United States Government proposes this arrangement because of its belief that Germany can no longer be administered in four air-tight compartments without free economic interchange unless economic paralysis is to result. The United States Government is unwilling to permit creeping economic paralysis to grow if it is possible to attain economic unity between its zone and any other zone in Germany as a prelude to economic unity for all Germany. The United States representative would be glad to receive the views of his colleagues."

McNarney thrice pointed out that it was a clear provision of the Potsdam agreement that Germany should be administered as an economic entity.

U. S. ESTABLISHES RUSSIAN ARREST OF LOST OFFICERS

Berlin, July 20—(AP)—The head of the American criminal investigation department in Berlin said tonight that he had established that Russian authorities arrested Capt. Harold Cobin of New York and Newark, N. J., and Second Lt. George Wyatt of Oklahoma City, Okla., on July 4 at Birkenwerder in the Russian zone just north of Berlin.

DAY

The chief of the U. S. Army Intelligence section, however, said he knew of no progress having been made in efforts to explain the disappearance of the two officers nor in effecting their return.

Russian headquarters officially stated three days ago that they had been unable to locate Cobin and Wyatt in their zone.

WAC Capt. Durant To Be Charged

JUL 21 1946

Frankfurt, Germany, July 20 (AP). United States Army Headquarters announced today that charges would probably be filed early next week against WAC Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant and Major David F. Watson, two of the three principals in the $1,500,000 Hesse family jewel theft.

DAY

The announcement did not mention Col. J. W. Durant, Captain Durant's husband, also held in the investigation of the theft of the jewels from Kronberg Castle.

Army officers said the Durants were separated recently and placed on different hotel floors "because they probably will be tried individually."

The nature of the charges to be placed against the three officers has not been disclosed. Some Army officials predicted the trials would begin late this month or early in August.

Frankfurt, Germany, July 20 (AP). United States Army search teams are hunting Europe from Gibraltar to Murmansk, questioning villagers and looking into local records, for bodies of 18,191 soldiers, in a job expected to take five years.

Eight thousand United States and Allied personnel make up the teams. There are clues to the locations of most of the corpses, but the whereabouts of some 3,820 are unknown. The total includes 6,977 flyers who were shot down or crash-landed, and several hundred intelligence agents.

POPE ADDRESSES AMERICAN GROUPS

JUL 21 1946

Discusses Great Difficulties Of Reconstruction

J. McKnight

Vatican City, July 20 (AP)—Pope Pius, in audiences with American leaders, today said that while the physical conditions of many in Europe are deplorable, even more deplorable was the spiritual lot of multitudes who "crave the consolations of religion and in many lands find it difficult to obtain them."

NIGHT

He urged the Americans—homecoming members of a group which attended the Philippines presidential inauguration—to share the experiences of their journey around the world, so that men would understand more fully "the havoc wrought by war and the tremendous difficulty of reconstruction."

Views On Nationalization

In another papal pronouncement, published in the Vatican newspaper, Osservatore Romano, the Pontiff said programs of nationalization such as that being discussed now in France would be less advantageous than "the institution of associations or corporative units in every branch of the national economy."

The Pope's views on nationalization were in the form of a letter, written in French to Charles Flory, president of "Semaines Sociales de France," on the occasion of the thirty-third "social week" soon to be held at Strasbourg.

Benefit Questionable

"Our predecessors and ourself," the letter said, "have more than once touched upon the moral side of this measure. Now it is still evident that instead of mitigating the mechanical character of life and work in common, this nationalization, even when it is legally authorized, risks aggravating it even more, and that consequently the benefit it brings to a true community—as you understand it—is very questionable.

"We hold that the institution of associations or corporate units in every branch of the national economy would be far more advantageous to the end you are pursuing, more advantageous at the same time for a better yield from the enterprises."

Tydings In Group

The Pontiff received the Americans in two groups, the first introduced by Franklyn C. Gowen, aide to Myron C. Taylor, President Truman's representative in the Vatican, and the second by Taylor himself.

ler, California, and J. Weldon Jones, assistant director of the Budget Bureau.

In the second were Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, W. E. Symington, assistant secretary of war for air, United States Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, and Gael Sullivan, second assistant postmaster general.

The Pontiff urged the first group not to lock away "in idle memory" what they have seen of war's devastation and its disastrous effects on normal human relations."

Reconstruction Difficulties

Rather, he said, "you should share this information with the peoples and government both of your own and other lands."

"This diffusion of knowledge will help men to realize more fully that which you now understand so well—the extent of the havoc wrought by war and the tremendous difficulty of reconstruction," he said.

To the second group the Pope said:

"Truly piteous is the physical conditions of multitudes today: More piteous by far the spiritual. Thousands crave the consolations of religion, and in many lands find it difficult to obtain them. Most piteous of all are the children, who, if deprived of instruction in their faith, will be stunted in their moral growth and warped in their spiritual outlook."

and Gael Sullivan, second assi postmaster general. The Pop addressed this group in Eng

Spiritual Aid Held Nee

"Truly piteous," said the P "is the physical condition of tudes today, more piteous by the spiritual."

Thousands, he said, craved the consolations of religion, and "in many lands find it difficult to secure them."

Members of the first group, introduced by Myron C. Taylor, presidential representative to the Vatican, were: Senators Allen J. Ellender, of Louisiana; Hugh Butler, of Nebraska; Representatives J. William Robinson, of Utah; Fred L. Crawford, of Michigan; George P Miller, of California, and Presidential Representative J. Waldson Jones.

Destruction Cited

The text of the Pope's first address, in part, follows:

It is a real pleasure to us to welcome you, gentlemen, members of the Senate and of the House of Representatives of the United States of America now engaged in a study of the conflicting currents of events, weighing their effects on the future of nations and striving to guide them aright. . . .

You have traversed a wide expanse in your journey but, alas, it is largely one of destruction. . . . The evidence of the destructive engines of war is deeply engraven on the landscape . . . areas of industry have been obliterated. . . . Far more disastrous than all, however, is the havoc wrought in the lives of men by the violence done normal human relations. . . .

Blessing Asked

This spectacle can never be forgotten. . . . You should share this information with the peoples and governments both of your own and of other lands.

The diffusion of this knowledge will help men to realize more fully that which you now understand so well: the extent of the havoc wrought by war. . . .

On you, on those whose thought is ever present to you, on all who help their fellow men to rise from this disaster, we pray the blessing of the omnipotent God of Heaven. . . .

Cites Rich Reward

The Pope addressed the second group, in part, as follows:

Welcome visitors indeed to our Vatican City state are you, gentlemen, who seek to learn how you may best be of assistance to those whom the ravages of war have thrown on the mercifulness of their fellow men.

In this ministry of helpfulness our blessed Lord is our inspiration and our guide. . . . How rich the promised reward! His life was a succession of good deeds, His death the greatest of these. Yet He necessarily proclaimed the needs of the soul to be greater than those of the body.

Truly piteous is the physical condition of multitudes today; more piteous by far, the spiritual. . . . Most piteous of all are children who if deprived of instruction in their faith will be stunted in their moral growth and warped in their spiritual outlook. No education is really such if it omit religion; no training is complete which does not develop the whole man. . . .

While you give thought therefore to material rehabilitation, and laudably so, set your hand and your hearts definitely to secure this more necessary spiritual reconstruction.

Then you will have wisely built for the future and upon firm foundations.

There is a good God in Heaven, gentlemen, who regards your kindly deeds with favor. May He bless you and all whom you treasure. May He above all bring your generous efforts to full fruition.

Strikes Ebb, Wage Issue Stirs Italy

JUL 21 1946

Rome, July 20 (AP)—Strikes were easing today throughout Italy, but the fundamental problems of low wages and high living costs, which have caused hundreds of thousands of workers to lay down their tools, still threatened renewals and new outbreaks.

DAY

Newspapers reappeared in Rome and throughout the country, following a 24-hour news blackout caused by a strike of some 100,000 mechanical workers.

Turin Strike Ends

A general strike ended in Turin following an agreement whereby heads of families were to receive a bonus of 1,800 lire ($18) and other workers lesser sums.

The National Council of the Italian Chamber of Labor ended a four-day conference in Rome late last night with adoption of a resolution demanding increase of salaries and measures to lessen the cost of living.

The council demanded immediate aid for the hardest hit classifications of labor and energetic measures to cut prices and to curb speculators.

Petroleum and supplies for UNRRA were being handled under army supervision.

Lesser Strikes Reported

Lesser strikes and disturbances were reported from various parts of Italy.

A general strike, excepting public services and food stores, was called in Varese and a walkout also was scheduled in Mola di Bari.

Petroleum workers, meeting in Florence, adopted a resolution asserting that the Army and police control ordered by Premier Alcide de Gasperi was a violation of the right to strike.

Ansa reported that several persons were injured when a grenade was thrown at Gallipoli during a fight between Communists and Christian Democrats.

Vatican Denies It Intervenes for Clemency for Greiser

WARSAW, July 20 (AP).—Arthur Greiser, former Nazi leader at Gdansk (Danzig), who has been sentenced to be hanged at Poznan for war crimes, will be executed tomorrow, was announced officially tonight.

NIGHT

The official Polish press agency said today that the Vatican had asked executive clemency for Greiser, and that Poles were amazed at the Vatican intervention.

[At Vatican City, a responsible source denied Saturday that Pope Pius XII had intervened in an effort to stay Greiser's execution. The source said there was "no way" the Vatican could intervene.]

Poles Reject 'Vatican Plea'

JUL 21 1946

Warsaw, July 19 [Delayed—AP]. The official Polish press agency asserted today that the Vatican had asked executive clemency for Arthur Greiser, former Nazi leader in Gdansk (Danzig) who has been sentenced to be hanged in Poznan for war crimes.

The press agency said Poles could find no sympathy for Greiser who "in a [illegible] mathematical way killed thousands" and that Poles were amazed at the Vatican intervention.

DAY

The agency continued that justice would be administered and that Greiser probably would be executed this week end.

Message Quoted

The press agency gave this as the text of the Papal message to the Polish Government:

"Mr. Arthur Greiser, sentenced to death, beseeched in a message sent the Holy Father to grant him highest protection that his life should be spared. The above mentioned had been one of the most severe foes of the church in Warthegau, where he was Governor. Despite this, his holiness, following the divine example of our Lord, who on the Cross prayed for His executors, accepts the sentenced man's plea and addresses to the proper authorities his paternal request to spare his life."

Catholic-Backed Laborites Charge International Accords Broken

J. Otto

Warsaw, July 20—(AP)—The Catholic supported Labor Party eliminated itself from Polish political activity for an indefinite period today after its president, Karol Popiel, charged that the present provisional government denied it freedom of action promised under the Yalta and Potsdam agreements.

NIGHT

Several other members of Parliament resigned in protest against the banning of the party congress by Premier Edward Osubka-Morawski. The party's headquarters here said 40 members had been arrested in Upper Silesia.

Popiel said that the price for continuation of the party's activities was participation in the proposed single bloc ticket for the general elections promised by the Warsaw regime for sometime this Fall. The single bloc is being urged by the Communist-backed Socialist and workers' organizations.

The Labor Party's withdrawal leaves the Peasant party, headed by Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk as the sole principal opposition party to the provisional government. Mikolajczyk charges that his organization is being dissolved piecemeal by the arrest of members by the government secret police.

Russ In Austria Frame 7-Point Claims List

J. Lodge

Vienna, July 20 (AP)—An Austrian source said today the Soviet command had rejected the Western Allies' definitions of seizable German assets in eastern Austria and claimed as her own for reparations virtually everything which passed into German hands before or after the 1938 Anschluss.

Property which formerly belonged to citizens of neutral or United Nations countries was included, this informant said.

The Soviet definition made exceptions for cases in which it could be proved by documentary evidence that the Germans had acquired property or assets by violence or without paying a reasonable pricfe, it was added.

Letter To Chancellor Figl

The text of the new Soviet definition was reported sent as a letter from Russian Deputy Commander Tsiniev to Austrian Chancellor Leopold Figl early this week. Austria, which is known to regard all but the first point (A) under the seven-point Russian definition as unacceptable, is expected to reply to the note next week end. The Russian points:

"A. The Soviet command considers transferred into property of the Soviet Union all German titles and assets in East Austria which were such before March 15, 1938," and in addition

"B. (All property) which by any means whatever passed over to Germany from her allied states and satellites after, as well as before, 1938.

"C. (Property) which passed over to Germany and German citizens and associations after 15 March, 1938, on a unilateral, purchase-sale basis from firms or citizens of the neutral and United Nations as well as from Austrian owners.

Patents And Trademarks

"D. All rights reacquired by German firms and private persons after 1938 to the exploitation of the natural wealth of the country, and all enterprises that came into existence and were developed after that year on the basis of German investments.

"E. Patents and trademarks of German legal and physical persons.

"F. Deposit sand securities of all possible types in Austrian financial credit institutions belonging to German legal and physical persons.

"G. Property of German imperial public organizations and the private property of German citizens in so far as it is not proved that it had been taken away by means of violence from its old owners."

GREEK OFFICIAL SEES PLOT

Says Armed Bands Are Supplied From Abroad to Cause Strife

ATHENS, Greece, July 20 (AP)—Spyros Theotikis, Minister of Public Order, said at a press conference today that the existence of outlaw bands was part of an apparently carefully prepared plan to provoke a state of strife in Greece and that arms were being sent from abroad for that purpose.

NIGHT

The Minister would not specify from which countries the arms were coming but he insisted that they came "from certain camps that have been obviously hostile to Greece."

Sixty-six bands operated in Greece during May, he said, and that figure jumped to seventy-eight in June. He said the ratio of Leftist bands to Rightist was twelve or fifteen to one.

Greek Leftist Leader Killed Battling Police

Athens, July 20 (AP)—The Ministry of Public Order announced today that a "notorious left-wing band leader," Capthin Baroutas, was killed yesterday in a three-hour battle with gendarmerie near Verria.

DAY

The minister said Baroutas, on whose head it had set a large reward, had organized and led an attack in March on the gendarmerie station at Litochoron, at the foot of Mount Olympus, in which eighteen policemen were killed.

His band was also charged with slaying 23 soldiers near Khilkis recently, the ministry said.

Bill Proposes Referendum On Abolishing Monarchy

Sofia, July 20 (AP)—A bill for a referendum September 8 on the question of abolishing the monarchy and declaring Bulgaria a people's republic was introduced in Parliament today.

Under the measure, 9-year-old King Simeon II and the Coburg dynasty would be deprived of all rights and title to the Bulgarian throne if the people vote for a republic. The present Parliament would cease functioning after election on October 27 of a grand constituent assembly to write a new constitution. A two-thirds vote by the present Parliament is necessary to pass the referendum measure.

Pro-Government Press

The entire Bulgarian press, including the one opposition organ, Svoboden Narod, today greeted with praise an earlier announcement that the referendum measure was being prepared.

PRE-ELECTION TERROR FATAL TO FOUR TURKS

Violence Preceding Vote Today Reported To Be Increasing

E. Greenwald

Istanbul, July 20 (AP)—Four persons were shot to death and violence swelled on a mounting tide of tension, opposition reports said today, as Turks prepared to vote tomorrow to determine the fate of President Ismet Inonu's Government.

NIGHT

Members of the opposition Democratic party said they had received reports of increasing violence and terrorism throughout the nation, and in Istanbul, the military commander issued a directive warning that no election disorders would be tolerated.

Three of the four men reported killed were said to have been slain while sitting in a village coffee house at Izmir. One of them was identified as the president of the village branch of Jelal Bayar's opposition Democratic party.

Government Police Accused

The fourth man, described as a member of the opposition Restoration party, was killed near Istanbul by a gendarme who sought to question him, these reports said.

The opposition Democrats accused the Government police of beating party members and applying pressure against them, but a Government spokesman dismissed these accusations as "ridiculous."

Tomorrow's election is the result of a Government decision last December to lift the prohibition against the opposition parties in the 23 years since the revolution, there had been only one legal permanent party in Turkey.

Government Held Safe

It was conceded in most quarters that President Inonu's Government would be retained. Democratic party spokesmen in Ankara claimed their party would capture from 120 to 150 of the Assembly's 460 seats, but members of Inonu's Republican People's party said the Democrats could win no more than 50 seats, with possibly twenty others going to Independents

Most sources said, however, that the real significance of this election lay in the fact that for the first time in Turkish history an opposition party was in a position where, conceivably, it could rise to power through the orderly process of the ballot box.

Reserves Reported In Izmir

Detachments of police reserves were reported in the press to have been moved into Izmir, and the military was o nthe alert in Istanbul, still under the state of siege to which its citizens have become inured during the past few turbulent years. These two points form the keystone of Celal Bayar's opposition Democratic party which by far is the strongest of the newborn political parties opposing Inonu.

Observers saw little possibility that the Democrats could unseat the Inonu Government but the opposition was expected to gain a loud voice in the new assembly, which will sit for four year.

First Real Election Due

Tension mounted as Turkey prepared to vote in her first great experiment in democracy tomorrow. The military commander at Istanbul issued a directive warning he would tolerate no disorder of any nature.

The election is a result of a Government decision last December to lift the ban against opposition parties. There has been only one legal permanent party in Turkey since the revolution 23 years ago.

Violence Reported

Members of the opposition Democratic party said they had received reports of increasing violence and terrorism throughout the nation. They also asserted that Government police had beaten members of the party and had applied pressure and vexation."

These accusations were described as "ridiculous" by a Government spokesman.

Most sources conceded that President Inonu's Government would be retained in office.

Both Sides See Victory

They said, however, that the significance of the election was that for the first time in Turkey's turbulent history an opposition party conceivably could rise to power through the ballot box.

Democratic spokesmen in Ankara estimated their party would capture 120 to 150 of the Assembly's 460 seats. Members of Inonu's Republican People's party, however, said the Democrats would win not more than 50 seats, with possibly twenty others going to independents.

PALESTINE RULE EASED

British Drop Order Requiring Troops To Carry Arms

Jerusalem, July 20 (AP) — A month-old order making it mandatory for British soldiers to carry arms while outside their barracks in the Holy Land was withdrawn today, but officers were still required to wear sidearms.

The Palestine government announced meanwhile that it would be at least a week before the bulk of 2,000 Jews arrested in widespread British military operations on June 29 would be released. A previous announcement had said their release was being speeded.

NIGHT

To Free 138 This Week

Today's statement said that 136 detainees would be freed Monday and Tuesday "provided that current investigations reveal nothing in respect of them which justified their being kept in custody any longer."

Among the 138 will be 50 women, 63 former members of the Jewish Brigade and 25 persons "under 16 or over 45 years of age." The statement added that "it is anticipated that on Friday, July 26, it will be possible to start releasing all those detainees, whom, as a result of the investigation, it is not intended to detain further."

Approximately 1,700 detainees are at Rafa in southern Palestine and another 400, including Jewish agency leaders, at Latrun, near Jerusalem.

BRITISH LIFT ARMS RULE IN PALESTINE

JUL 21 1946

Jerusalem, July 20 (A. P.)—The British Army lifted today its month-old order requiring all British soldiers to carry arms while outside their barracks in Palestine. The order was invoked the day after five British officers were kidnaped by the Irgun Zvai Leumi underground organization in Tel Aviv, June 18. Officers still are required to wear sidearms.

DAY

Reports continued to circulate here, despite official denials, that advanced elements of the British First Armored Division had arrived in Palestine, and that the rest of the division was due soon.

Military sources said the story might have gained circulation because a contingent of armored vehicles, "belonging to a division already here," arrived at a camp being built between Gaza and Rafa, in Palestine's south coastal area.

Dr. Stuart, returning from the summer capital of Kuling, where he presented his credentials to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, declined other comment, saying he first intended to acquaint himself fully with all phases of the situation.

Pessimistic View

NIGHT

Other quarters here and in Shanghai, took a pessimistic view and pointed to increased troop movements by both the National Government and the Communists.

Some, who claimed to know, said that General Marshall, special American envoy assigned to try to reconcile the Chinese factions, planned to return to the United States in mid-August after one final effort to stave off full-scale civil war.

In the rumor category were persistent whispers that Marshall had averted a planned Government attack on the Communists some weeks ago but that this campaign now had been rescheduled for September and that if Marshall withdrew from China, American forces soon would follow.

Marines Reported Freed

Reports from Shanghai said 3,000 Government troops left there Friday for the "front" on the north side of the Lower Yangtze River to forestall any Communist attempts to cross to the Shanghai and Nanking side. There were vaguer reports of Communist movements, but the broad stream itself is a considerable barrier.

Meanwhile, unconfirmed and unofficial reports from Mukden said that seven United States Marines who were kidnapped by Chinese on July 13 had been released.

Government quarters have laid the kidnapping to Communist guerrillas, but Marine headquarters at Tientsin have merely called them armed Chinese.

Communists Push Campaign

While the report of their release was not confirmed, the extensive air and ground search for the men in the Chinwangtao area was cancelled Friday.

Diplomats Grow Pessimistic Over Peace Project In China

Nanking, July 20 (AP)—Failure of the prolonged American efforts to bring peace to China was conceded privately by diplomatic and other qualified sources tonight, although Dr. John Leighton Stuart, new United States Ambassador, declared hope still existed for resuming negotiations.

against the Government, charged that Government secret police kidnapped a prominent member of the Democratic League in Peiping on Tuesday.

The Communist radio, which has blamed similar agents for the recent assassination of two Democratic League members in Kunming, said the Peiping leader, Sun Chung-Huan, was snatched into a car in broad daylight while Peiping city police stood by idly.

The broadcast declared that other leaders of the Democratic League, China's third party, were on a Government blacklist.

MARSHALL IS SAID TO HAVE FAILED IN CHINA EFFORT

JUL 21 1946

Nationalist and Communist Forces Reported Moving to Increase Conflict.

S. Moosa

Shanghai, July 20 (A. P.).—Diplomatic informants privately agreed today that Gen. George A. Marshall's peace mission to China had failed. Seemingly confirming the opinion, the Nationalist Government began moving more men toward the fighting fronts and the Communists were reported reinforcing their positions.

DAY

Marshall was believed unlikely to have the opportunity to confer with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in the summer capital at Kuling, where the General went with United States Ambassador Dr. John Leighton Stuart.

A similar pessimistic attitude was expressed at the Communist headquarters in Nanking, where a check was made on whether or not Communist chief negotiator, Gen. Chou En-lai, would visit Kuling to talk with Chiang. The official asked the question countered with the comment: "There's nothing left to talk about."

Marshall May Return to U. S.

Meanwhile, quarters professing to be "in the know" predicted Marshall would return home around the middle of August, after making a final best effort to retrieve the steadily deteriorating situation. This view coincides with the persistent reports that the Government has abandoned all hopes of a peaceful settlement and intends to launch an all-out attack against the Communists in September.

Rumors also are persistent that the attack would have been mounted some weeks ago, save for the vigorous protestations by Marshall. It is predicted that if the United States envoy abandons the peace mission as a bad job, American forces in China will speedily be withdrawn.

Nationalist troops on the move today included reinforcements for the north bank of the lower Yangtze River to safeguard river communications between Shanghai and Nanking and to forestall any possible Communist attempt to cross the waterway to menace the Shanghai-Nanking railway.

Three thousand Nationalist troops left here Friday morning and others were reported en route to the fronts. The size and destination of Communist movements were not reported.

New Kidnaping Reported

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20 (AP).—The Communist New China News Agency, in a broadcast from Yenan, China, today charged that Sun Chunk-yuan, a member of the new Democratic League peace negotiation committee, has been kidnaped by government secret police at Peiping.

The broadcast, heard by the Associated Press listening post here, said that Peiping police watched without any show of interest as kidnapers drove up and forced Sun into an automobile on a busy Peiping street the afternoon of July 16.

The news agency called the alleged kidnaping "the third strong-arm incident within a week to quell liberal forces in China," and added, "it is believed the incident forms part of Chiang Kai-shek's secret police scheme to put out of the way black-listed liberal leaders and to quell the popular movement for peace and democracy in China."

Two Democratic League leaders, Li Kung-pu and Professor Wen Yi-tu, were assassinated at Kunming recently.

The league, a combination of minor parties, has worked to prevent a resumption of the civil war and for revision of the single-party Kuomingtang (Nationalist party) government.

Prosecution May Rest Jap Case In 60 Days

Honolulu, July 20 (AP)—Joseph B. Keenan, chief prosecutor of Japan's top war leaders, hopes to rest the case within 60 days.

Keenan said he would return to Tokyo "to speed up the prosecution as much as possible without sacrificing sound procedure."

He has been in Washington for three weeks assembling data to substantiate charges that Japan deliberately plotted warfare in violation of international law.

Border Strife Is Found Still Raging in Siam

JUL 21 1946

Reporter Says Annamites There Hate French and Won't Go Back to Laos

By Stanley Swinton

THA BO, Siam, July 17 (delayed) (AP).—Behind the uneasy tension along the northeastern Siamese border touching French Indo-China lies the story of 14,000 Annamites who sought sanctuary in Siam rather than accept return to French rule in Laos.

To learn at firsthand the situation in this remote frontier area of paddy fields and water buffalo, I flew from Bangkok to Udon, bumped across a mud road to Nongkai, then rode a Mekong River boat to Tha Bo. The journey was arranged privately and was completely unannounced, and no effort was made to conceal the true picture.

These points stand out:

Bangkok's announcement of French troops firing almost daily across the Mekong into Siam is not exaggerated, although the French have not actually crossed the border since May, when a force of 200 men shot up three villages. The French say these shootings have been provoked by refugees raiding across the Mekong into Indo-China.

Village Gives Its Version

Residents of this village gave a version of the May 24 French "invasion" different from accounts that reached the outside world at the time. Questioning of Siamese, Chinese and Annamite inhabitants indicates the French did not bomb Siamese villages from the air or shell them wtih anything heavier than mortars. All evidence tends to show that the crossing was ordered by the French local commander rather than by officials at Saigon or Paris.

According to the villagers, the French troops crossed the Mekong in two groups. One Siamese customs inspector was shot for attempting to stop them.

Approaching from the north, one group fired six mortar shells which ripped still visible holes in the roofs of thatched shacks and wooden houses. Concentrated mortar and small-arms fire was laid upon empty buildings, which refugee leaders of the Loatian independence movement had left several days earlier. A light machine gun sprayed the downtown area.

The villagers charged that the French looted shops, and members of a Chinese mechant's family said one of the soldiers shot and killed the merchant after finding him in hiding. The French continued their house-to-house clean-up, the villagers added, and killed five Annamite refugees. Similar expeditions attacked two other villages two days later, residents said.

I talked with more than thirty Annamite refugees in border villages. Without prompting or official in terference all told similar stories. The great majority are not revolutionists. The largest number are women and children. The men are mostly merchants and farmers. They have a deep hatred of the French colonial regime and the methods used by French troops to oust the Free Laos government. They declare that they will never return to Indo-China while the French remain in power.

"If possible I would fight the French again," said a young farmer, who was a former Free Laos soldier. "They machine-gunned us after we were taken prisoners. When our families tried to cross the Mekong into Siam for safety, Spitfires strafed them. We found comrades who had been put into sacks and thrown into the river."

Emerald Buddha Siam Row Factor

JUL 21 1946

Saigon, French Indo-China, July 20 (AP)—The border is not the only current point of dispute between Siam and France. The Siamese say the French are trying to take away their famed "Emerald Buddha."

The 23-inch image, enshrined in one of Siam's most magnificent temples, is known as "The Soul of Siam." It is not really emerald, but green jasper [illegible] form of quartz.

NIGHT

The French claim, incorporated in a still unsigned proposal for postwar agreement between the two countries, is based on the ground that Siam originally obtained the idol from the Kingdom of Luang Prabang, which now is a French protectorate in the Indo-China province of Laos.

The Siamese counter with the claim that the image was brought to Siam more than a century ago when Luang Prabang became a Siamese dependency. They add that Luang Prabang itself should be returned to Siam, since it was ceded to France in 1893 only under military pressure.

Prince Agrees with French

SAIGON, French Indo-China, July 20 (AP).—Crown Prince Savang of Laos said today in an interview that the Laotian government agreed with the French position that Siam's 1941 annexation of Laos territory west of the Mekong River must not be recognized.

DAY

Territories annexed by Siam "are populated only by Laotians and are an integral part of the kingdom," the Crown Prince said. "These territories, taken so unjustly without consultation with the people, and without the assent of the Laotian government, must be returned to us."

Japs Face 2-Billion Bill From France

Saigon, Indo-China, July 20 (AP)—Authoritative sources said today that France had submitted an "approximate provisional" estimate of reparations, totaling about $2,000,000,000, which she claims from Japan for war damage in the Far East.

DAY

These sources said the French Government submitted the claim in Washington to the Far Eastern Commission and that it sought an immediate advance on the reparations, including shipment of railway transport and cotton goods to revive the economy of Indo-China.

Annamese Crush Opposition

JUL 21 1946

SAIGON, French Indo-China, July 20 (AP)—A Viet Nam communiqué from Hanoi today said that 200 arrests had been made in a roundup of opposition leaders. The announcement said that in a recent raid on headquarters of one major opposition party, the VNQDD, the bodies of seven Annamese were found in a "torture chamber." The Viet Nam Republic apparently is making vigorous efforts to unify or drive underground all opposition to the Government.

Marines Freed, Mukden Hears

JUL 21 1946

Mukden, June 20 (AP)—Nationalist sources here reported unofficially today that seven United States Marines who were captured a week ago by an armed band near Chinwangtao had been released by "Communists."

DAY

Yesterday in Peiping, Marine headquarters called off a search by two regiments of air-supported Marines in the Chinwangtao area to permit negotiations for release of the men by a truce team.

The Marines did not, however, identify the captors as Communists.

The men were taken prisoner by armed Chinese when they went to a village north of Chinwangtao to purchase ice.

Nationalists said the band consisted of 200 "Communists."

Nationalist sources immediately charged that Communists had seized the Americans, and Government troops assisted in the search.

The ice detachment's jeep was found in the village, the only announced clue that has been unearthed. One man of the group escaped capture by being hidden in the icehouse by friendly Chinese.

Cholera Wave Reported In 10 Manchurian Cities

Mukden, July 20—(AP)—The Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration office here reported today that 10 Manchurian cities are in the grip of a cholera epidemic which already has caused 270 deaths.

Cases here have reached 38 with 12 fatalities, while there have been 42 cases reported in Changchun with 32 deaths, the report said.

Tokyo Group Considers Protest To MacArthur

I. Lambert

Tokyo, July 20 (AP)—Casualties caused the closing tonight of Tokyo's lucrative market stalls in the Shimbashi and Shibuya sectors and a controlling Japanese organization, bossed by the widow of a slain black-marketeer, considered a protest to General MacArthur.

Members of the organization Matsuda Gumi [illegible] they were told by police that the closing order came from MacArthur's provost marshal for Tokyo.

Chinese Blame Matsuda Gumi

Chinese merchants, two of whom were killed and 21 wounded in shootings last night, blamed Matsuda Gumi for the troubles, charging the organization rented stalls to Chinese, then started tearing down Chinese shops and assaulting operators.

Crouched on the floor at his headquarters beneath a picture of Giichi Matsuda, the black market boss who was assassinated recently in gangland style, the only English-speaking member of Matsuda Gumi carefully crossed his legs to preserve the crease in his white duck trousers and said:

"We think the markets are necessary for the Japanese people We are thinking of appealing to general headquarters.

Six Officers Reported Wounded

"Japanese police station master told us late this afternoon to close shops so we closed. We will not open until authorities say so. Somebody with police master say we might be closed one month, two months. We don't know."

Chinese, blaming Japanese police for last night's shootings, urged that MacArthur disarm them but the police director, Nobure Tanikawa, countered that such a step would deter the campaign against black markets. Tanikawa said six policemen already have been wounded and many slightly injured because of their efforts.

"But the people just stand by without giving co-operation," he complained.

Tokyo Police Disarming Asked After Mart Clash

Tokyo, July 20 (AP)—Chinese nationals, counting two deaths in the struggle for commercial rights in Tokyo's flourishing Shimbashi market area, urged today that General MacArthur be asked to disarm Japanese police.

The Japanese police countered with a declaration that they were staking their lives to control black market operations.

DAY

The nationals asked the Chinese Mission to relay their request to MacArthur after four truckloads of Chinese had been fired upon last night as they passed the Shibuya police station.

23 Are Wounded

Twenty-one Chinese and two Japanese policemen were wounded in the affray, which a mission spokesman blamed on uniformed Japanese and "Japanese rascals in green uniforms."

30.24-4261

Japanese police said they had been warned to expect an attack and that the Chinese shot first.

Meanwhile, a Japanese police official expressed amazement when told that three Japanese machine guns and a truckload of knives, swords and clubs had been seized by United States military police from Japanese who had gathered in a school near the market area.

Peasants' Leader Warned By Roxas

Manila, July 20 (AP)—President Roxas, whose military police are clashing with armed peasants (Hukbalahaps) throughout Central Luzon, bluntly told the peasants' leader at a three-hour conference today, "I will not trade concessions for observance of law."

The President demanded "immediate cessation of lawlessness, banditry and resistance to peace forces of the Government."

The Huk leader, Luis Taruc, declined comment on leaving the meeting but it was regarded as significant that both he and an aide, Juan Feleo, planned to leave immediately for trouble scenes in Rampanga and Nueva Ecija provinces.

The peasants have contended that land ownership underlies the situation. Their leaders charge that reactionary provincial governors, acting on behalf of large land owners, seek by the use of military police to reduce them to peonage.

Today a Malacanan Palace spokesman said Roxas had assured Taruc that the peasant leader's suggestions for agrarian reforms "would receive careful study and consideration."

Situation Worsens

The situation between the peasants (Hukbalahaps) and the MP's has been growing steadily worse and it was considered doubtful whether Taruc, wartime underground peasant leader, would be able to avert large-scale fighting. Privately, both the Government and peasant factions have expressed slight hopes of peace.

Taruc blamed the "double policy" of the Government for the continuation of the fighting. Although Roxas and Zulueta have announced a bloodless pacification plan for the central provinces, they continue to perimt the reactionary governors of Pampanga and Nueva Ecija to send out raiding bands of MP's against the peasants, he charged bitterly.

Because of the dual policy, the peasants have become so distrustful they have banded together in determination to sell their lives as dearly as possible in face of the mounting concentration of military police, Taruc said.

The Manila press reported that 10,000 Hukbalahaps were massing in Nueva Ecija in the path of an MP armored column which is pursuing a Huk squadron retreating northward after a recent battle at Bulacan.

The peasant leader declared the root of the problem is economic and pointed out that one per cent of the population owns 99 per cent of the land in Pampanga province and that less than five per cent of the population owns more than 98 per cent of the other Central Luzon provinces.

Feudal Plans Charged

The big hacienda owners have been backing the provincial governors in their "mailed fist" program, Taruc asserted, adding that the landowners wished to return to the semi-feudal practices of pre-war days. However, the Huks learned of freedom during the war and will not go back into semi-slavery, he declared.

Spokesmen for the plantation owners denied feudalistic desires, however, and asserted that the bulk of the peasants were peaceful and were being continually stirred up by roving lawless bands who preferred their wild raiding to settling down to peaceful farming.

The operators declared that the "wild bands" must be eliminated before the provinces can settle down.

Huks, M.P.'s Clash Throughout Luzon

Manila, July 20 (AP)—Sporadic fighting between armed Hukbalahap peasants and military police was reported today over the entire central Luzon area.

Luis Taruc, peasants' supreme leader, scheduled a conference with President Manuel Roxas as a prelude to returning to the provinces to make a personal appeal for an end to the bloodshed.

Taruc was closeted for four hours with Interior Secretary José Zulueta and afterward announced that an offer he had tendered to make last-minute peace appeals had been accepted by the secretary. Taruc will be accompanied on the mission by a member of the Interior Department with an escort of Philippine Army military police.

HOMEBOUND G. I.'S IGNORE STORM

Manila, July 20 (A. P.).—Eleven United States enlisted men who had to be in Manila tonight to sail for home refused to be stopped by 457 landslides and twelve washouts.

The men were in Baguio when the typhoon hit this week and knocked out the road to Bauang, on the main Manila highway. So the men walked the thirty miles to Bauang and hitch-hiked the rest of the way.

The walkers included Cpl. Albert Torres, New York city.

BLAST GAUGES USED ON JAPS

JUL 21 1946

Instruments Parachuted Over Two Cities Of Nippon

C. McDuffy

Kwajalein, Sunday, July 21 (AP)—The Japanese who reported after the Hiroshima and Nagasaki atomic bomb raids that the bombs were parachuted and that more than one bomb was dropped were not imagining things. But they were mistaken.

John C. Wieboldt, 24, leader of the Los Alamos (N.M.) blast gauge group NIGHT here for the Bikini tests, related the story today, eleven months later.

Blast gauges were parachuted over both Japanese cities. The Japanese saw the chutes and erroneously concluded they carried bombs.

Relay Data To Plane

The blast gauges—electronics instruments—relayed to the plane by radio data on the snock area shape, pressure and duration. These readings were recorded on film aboard the plane.

Film of the aerial drop July 1 in the first test at Bikini was sent to the United States to be developed and is expected back in the Marshalls for study.

After the July 25 underwater test, Wieboldt's group will go to Los Alamos to continue study of the air burst film and interpret the film of the underwater test.

Wieboldt said that his group "never completely analyzed the Hiroshima or Nagasaki films because they were made as much for a test as to get quantitative data. After all, who cared as long as the bombs worked?"

Bikini Check On Physics

JUL 21 1946

Kwajalein, July 20 (AP)—Dr. Royal M. Frye, Boston University spectroscopist, said today that the Bikini atom bombings are providing data for checking the physical laws "as we know them."

He was unable to forecast, however, whether any revisions would be necessary as a result of the tests. He said he expects to spend at least two years studying spectrographs of the tests before drawing any conclusion.

Personally, Dr. Frye said, he would like DAY another aerial drop because "we could profit from our own experiences, but I doubt that any scientist has the nerve to suggest such a tremendous expenditure."

He said he doubted that the spectroscopists would learn much from the underwater detonation, because there will not be enough light if the bomb is set much below the surface.

The exact depth has not been announced.

"I don't think," Frye said, "that we have any new elements (created by the aerial detonation), but some of the old ones are in very unusual condition, which will take some time to analyze."

BIKINI RADIO TO FUNCTION

Staff Officer Says No Blackout Is Planned in July 25 Test

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MOUNT McKINLEY, Sunday, July 21 (AP)—Navy Capt. K. M. Gentry, communications officer of the Crossroads Task Force, said today there would be no shutdown of news and radio circuits during next Thursday's underwater atomic bomb test.

The possibility of a radio blackout had been raised because a stray radio signal was blamed for the premature explosion of a magnesium bomb during last Friday's rehearsal for the Baker Day test.

Some suspicion has been directed at the radio equipment aboard two target ships, the battleship Pennsylvania and the destroyer Rhind. Both ships' transmitters are used to send sounds of metronomes and underwater and surface explosions. Both will be silenced during the actual atomic bomb tests.

TARGET SUBS TO SINK EMPTY

JUL 21 1946

Know-how for Bikini Test Learned Off Portsmouth.

H. Blakeslee

Aboard U. S. S. Appalachian, July 20 (A. P.).—Tricks learned in a secret test during the recent war will be used by the Navy to submerge empty submarines for the underwater atomic bomb test at Bikini lagoon.

Early in the war, President Roosevelt gave the Navy permission to depth bomb and otherwise shoot up three American submarines off Portsmouth, N. H. So the Navy knows just how to go about preparing the target subs for the approaching atomic experiment. DAY

First the subs will be taken outside the lagoon and put into deep dives. During these dives, some of the tanks inside the hull, fore and aft, will be filled with water. This maneuver assures that the submarine will be balanced on even keel when under water.

Rises With Tanks Full.

With these tanks filled, the craft still can rise to the surface. Crews will run them back into the lagoon and debark. Next, steel bridles will be hung across both bow and stern. To these bridles will be attached thirty-ton concrete weights.

As the last step, a submarine rescue ship will attach long hose lines to valves opening tanks of the submarines and let water in. As the water enters, the subs will sink steadily. But at the moment the concrete weights touch bottom, each craft will be relieved of sixty tons of weight and stop sinking. Then the valves will be closed.

May Resist Shock.

If the submarines are not sunk by the bomb they will be brought to the surface by the rescue ship. This can be done by blowing high pressure air into the water-filled tanks of the subs.

Submarines are many times stronger than other kinds of warships in resistance to underwater shock.

It's predicted that the underwater explosion on July 25, Bikini time (July 24, United States time), may merely blow some submerged subs to the surface, and leave them floating there not too badly damaged.

JUL 21 1946

20 Army Crewmen Believed Killed In Oversea Collision

Panama, Panama, July 20 (AP)—Twenty crewmen aboard two United States Army Flying Fortresses were believed to have been killed today when the planes collided near Coiba Island, off the Pacific coast of Panama, and plunged into the sea.

An Army announcement said that First Lieutenant Elmer Drolshagem, who was flying in the same formation, circled the scene for three hours without sighting any survivors.

Later, three unidentified bodies were recovered.

One Breaks Up, Other Explodes

Army headquarters said one bomber appeared to break in half before plummeting into the ocean and submerging immediately. The other lost part of the right wing and appeared to explode when it hit the water.

The planes were part of a formation based at Rio Hato Air Base, which was searching for three United States pursuit planes reported lost in a storm Thursday morning and which are already two days overdue at Talara, Peru.

The Army said the collision occurred when the bombers swept down to investigate what appeared to be a life raft floating on the water. Four Navy amphibian planes and surface craft are now at the scene.

Mackenzie King Off To Peace Conference

Halifax, Nova Scotia, July 20 (AP). Prime Minister Mackenzie King embarked last night on the liner Georgic for the Paris Peace Conference which he said, he hoped would "be the beginning of a series which will bring about the final peace."

King said that further conferences would be held at some future date concerning Japan and Germany, and added that he intended to talk with Allied leaders in Berlin.

JUL 21 1946

Year's OPA Revival Sees Vote Conference

RESUMPTION OF CONTROLS SOUGHT AUG. 20

JUL 21 1946

Plan Creates Decontrol Board—Old Rent Ceilings Provided

Washington, July 20—(AP)—Senate-House conferees agreed tonight on compromise legislation to revive OPA until next Junt 30, with a complex formula for handling price controls for various major food items.

In agreeing on the bill, Sen. Alben Barkley said the conferees voted to restore Federal rent controls without change. Previously the Senate had voted to end Federal controls where states had entered this field, but the conferees struck this out.

In announcing the end of a stalemate over a bill to put OPA back in business, Barkley said this would be done with major food items which the Senate had proposed to remove entirely from price controls.

Controls would go back automatically on August 20 on meats, dairy products, grains, cottonseed and soybeans, and food and feed products made from them unless a three-man decontrol board decided before then that they should be reimposed sooner—or should remain free of controls. If the board fails to act, the controls are reinstated.

Immediate Ceilings

Price ceilings on general commodities would go back into effect immediately after the bill became law, at the level fixed by the OPA.

Poultry, eggs and tobacco would remain free of ceilings until the Secretary of Agriculture and the proposed new decontrol board agree that controls on them should be restored. Petroleum also remains free of controls until the decontrol board and the OPA administrator agree to restore ceilings on it.

Shortly before the committee completed its work an influential official said President Truman had indicated he reluctantly would accept such a compromise.

Whether the ceilings would be those in existence on last June 30, when OPA expired, or whether they would be fixed at some other level would be up to the price administrator to determine, Barkley said.

The conferees agreed also that the administrator, in establishing maximum prices for wholesalers or retailers, should permit the current cost of purchase to them plus the percentage mark-up or discount in effect on May 31, 1946. That represented a change in the date, from June 29.

Standards Set

Standards set up for the decontrol board would let it restore controls if:

The price of a food item as risen unreasonably above the ceiling price in effect June 30, plus the amount per unit of any subsidy paid prior to June 30.

The commodity concerned is scarce and recontrol is "practicable and enforcable."

The public interest will be served by such recontrol.

The compromise version of the bill will go first to the House for its consideration. Previously the House had voted a 20-day extension of the OPA authority which expired July 1 with President Truman's veto of an extension bill.

The Senate-House committee also made a minor change in a pricing provision the Senate had inserted in the bill as a substitute for the amendment by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) which President Truman had criticized as the "most damaging" of the sections of the original extension bill he vetoed June 29.

As it came out of the conference, this provision still contained discretionary authority for the OPA against which Taft had protested vigorously in the Senate. Under it the agency could make "reasonable adjustments" to meet abnormal production. In cases where ceilings were high enough to cover costs, it could refuse to raise them if this would not boost production or would reduce production of other necessary items.

Taft told reporters the agreement within the Senate-House committee on the final terms of the measure, which is expected to go before the House for action there Tuesday, was by no means unanimous.

Doubts G. O. P. Acceptance

He said he doubted that Republican members of the House group would sign the report, and that he thought Senator Millikin (R-Colo.), might also disagree with it. Taft added that while he believed he would subscribe to it, he was not certain he would do so.

Barkley said in response to a question that he hopes President Truman will find the measure acceptable, but he added he did not know what Mr. Truman's views on it are.

"I have every hope that he will sign it," he said, adding: "That is based on my desire as much as on anything else."

"Do you think this is a better bill than the one that Mr. Truman vetoed?" a reporter asked.

"Well," Barkley said, "I don't know."

He said the conference group will meet at noon (E. D. T.) Monday to look over the legislative counsel's draft of the bill and give its final approval to the language of the measure.

Taft noted that one essential of the bill was that the decontrol board should act speedily with regard to the major products upon which ceilings otherwise would be placed. He said the August 20 date for the return of these controls, if the board does not act to stop such a course, was the shortest time the committee believed it would be possible to get the board organized and into operation.

Barkley said the bill required that the board hold hearings at which the affected industries would be represented.

He and Taft agreed that the price ceilings to be restored on these major items, if the board permits controls to be reinstated, would be fixed by the OPA.

Some legislators indicated a belief that the decision to return many controls might cause a selling wave of products which would force prices down.

The Senate had passed a bill banning price controls for major food items such as meat, poultry, eggs, butter, milk, grain, and other commodities such as tobacco.

The influential official, who declined to permit use of his name, said the terms of the compromise proposal had been communicated to the President by OPA Administrator Paul Porter.

Porter, who remained at the Capitol most of the day, was reported to have recommended that Mr. Truman accept the compromise as the best that could be obtained under present legislative circumstances.

As the compromise proposal now is drawn, it would establish a three-member decontrol board, to be named by the President and confirmed by the Senate, which would be empowered to lift ceilings off individual commodities after all had been automatically returned to controls 30 days after enactment of the bill.

New OPA Bill Provisions

Washington, July 20—(AP)—Here are major provisions of a compromise bill to revive OPA until June 30, 1947:

1. Restores controls August 20 over meats, dairy products, grains, cotton-seed and soybeans and food and feed products made from them unless a three-member decontrol board decides before then they should remain free of ceilings.

2. Leaves poultry, eggs, food and feed products made from them, tobacco and its products free of ceilings unless the Secretary of Agriculture and the decontrol board act affirmatively to restore controls.

3. Leaves petroleum free of ceilings unless the decontrol board and the OPA administrator act affirmatively to restore them.

4. Revives without change the Federal rent controls which expired June 30 with President Truman's veto of the original OPA Extension Bill.

5. Provides for "reasonable profit" to manufacturers in a pricing formula based on the industry-wide average in 1940, plus industry-wide average cost increases then.

6. Fixes March 31, 1946—instead of June 29 as the Senate had voted—as the basis for percentage discounts and markups to be allowed wholesalers and retail distributors in setting their maximum prices.

7. Transfers price controls over farm commodities to the Secretary of Agriculture.

8. Grants an additional $1,000,000,000 for subsidies but bans any food subsidies after April 1.

9. Guarantees automobile and appliance dealers full prewar margins and discounts until sales return to the 1939-41 average.

10. Kills OPA's maximum average price regulation, intended to assure a supply of low-priced clothing.

Porter Predicts Setback Even If OPA Returns

Washington, July 20 (AP)—OPA Administrator Paul Porter said today that even if price controls are restored "perhaps some of the damage of the last three weeks cannot be repaired."

Porter declared in a radio address that, while OPA is "hard at work on plans to recover some of the ground that has been lost . . ., even with the best of (price-control) bills it isn't going to be an easy job putting the eggs back in the basket."

Hopes For Some Recovery

Asserting it "won't be a case of Humpty-Dumpty, whom all the horses and all the men couldn't put back together again," Porter added:

"Some of the eggs are smashed and perhaps some of the damage of the last three weeks can't be repaired. But I feel confident, with effective authority from Congress, that we can recover a lot of the eggs that have rolled out of the price-control basket—and put a stop to other price increases that are threatening."

Porter's doubt about whether "ground lost" can be recovered raised the question whether he still feels that all June 30 price ceilings can be re-established if controls are revived.

When they expired July 1, Porter said flatly that if Congress did not specifically provide for previous ceilings in any revival bill, OPA would restore them by a general order.

Cites Hide Prices

Porter cited an increase of 68 per cent in hide prices since the removal of controls. He said that unless something is done to prevent it "we may see (prices for) shoes and luggage and ladies' handbags move up still further."

Already there is some concern in OPA whether it will be possible to maintain June 30 ceilings on these items if controls are restored.

Porter disclosed that if they are revived, "OPA expects to be ready with an important list of items that can be taken out from under controls."

"Won't Set Off Inflation"

"I don't need to tell you," he added, "that these items won't be the kind that will set off a chain reaction of inflation. We've seen too much of that happening in the last three weeks without controls."

The OPA chief said also that "when and if legal authority to control prices and rents is restored, we expect to be ready to move on a whole series of pricing actions in the building materials field" in order to increase home construction.

Other OPA officials said the contemplated actions in this field are price increases above June 30 ceilings.

Says Meat "Flood" Can't Last

As for the increased flow of meat to market since the expiration of ceilings, Porter said he hopes "nobody gets the idea" this will continue "with or without price controls."

He said the "present flood" of live stock includes "a great many cattle and hogs which were withheld in May and June when Congress was debating price-control legislation."

The flow of animals "can't last," Porter continued, because "grain is critically scarce today" and without it "you can't continue to expect large quantities of meat."

Not Criticizing Congress

Referring to the months of debate in Congress on extension and then revival of price controls, Porter said:

"I don't want to give the impression, by anything I say, that I am critical of the Congress in its careful, painstaking exercise of its constitutional functions.

"If we were living in a totalitarian system, where every kind of opposing view is held down and suppressed, we could have price control tomorrow if we wanted it. We could get it by an edict or fiat or a stroke of the pen. But I am sure we wouldn't want it that way.

"What we are witnessing is the democratic process at work. . . .

"Whatever the policy is that Congress finally evolves—whatever policy finally is approved by the President—it's going to be the duty of every American to go along with it and make it work, whether we all like it or not."

JUL 21 1946

OPA Employment Trend Normal

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Uncertain future or not, OPA has added a few employés to its rolls since the expiration of price controls.

An official of the agency reported today that, even though there was no assurance when they could be paid, nineteen persons joined the OPA Washington staff during the two-week period which began July 1, when the price act went off the books.

Resignations About Normal

At the same time this official said resignations appear to be holding "at about the normal rate."

He said from July 1 to 15, a total of 56 out of 3,315 of the national-office workers quit their jobs. During the previous three months, the official said, the rate in Washington averaged 56.5 in each of six two-week periods.

In the national office and seven of OPA's nine regional offices there were a total of 21,840 employés on June 30 and 200 fewer on July 15. OPA does not have a report yet from its field offices.

No reports are available yet, either, on the employment picture in the OPA New York and Atlanta regions.

D.C. Turnover "Normal"

As for the net loss of 320 workers in Washington and the seven regions reporting, OPA estimates that is about normal turnover. Officials said the addition of nineteen persons to the Washington staff was considerably below the normal hiring rate, although they were unable to provide a figure.

Most of those hired had applied for jobs before July 1 and had been instructed before the expiration of price controls to report for work this month.

Congress took final action yesterday on OPA's appropriation for the fiscal year which began July 1. Provided price controls are restored, the agency will have $75,000,000 to spend, which is $67,000,000 less than it requested.

Hiring Under Truman Order

OPA now is operating under a presidential order from which, officials said, authority is derived to do what hiring there has been.

Congressional approval of a $75,000,000 appropriation gave rise to optimism in OPA that pay checks due about 18,300 of the agency's 34,000 employés next Wednesday will be ready on time. Others on the OPA staff—about 15,000 field workers—will receive in a few days a week's pay they missed last Wednesday.

Tideover Loans Planned

Before the pay assurances came, two loan funds were started to tide Washington OPA workers over checkless days.

Administrator Paul Porter's office got loan pledges of $3,000 and expected to raise the sum to $10,000 from better-off employés for relief of hardship cases. Another loan fund of more than $10,000 was arranged by the CIO United Public Workers of America, an official said.

OPA officials felt these amounts would be sufficient to care for any emergency cases and keep up the morale of workers.

Subsidies End A Goal Farmers Long Sought

JUL 21 1946

Washington, July 20 (AP)—The end of OPA's food subsidies has given farm-leader critics of these Federal support payments a victory for which they have been battling for more than a year.

Much of the criticism which such farm organizations as the National Grange and the American Farm Bureau Federation directed at the OPA was not concerned as much with price ceilings as with subsidies.

They contended that the payment of more than $1,500,000,000 a year in subsidies had the effect of giving consumers an "unrealistic" picture of food costs.

Effect On Purchaser

The subsidy program had the effect of dividing people's grocery bills. The consumer paid only a part when he bought food. The Government paid the remainder in subsidies and then collected it in taxes.

Farm leaders feared that if subsidies were continued until food supplies became plentiful, farmers would be forced not only to take a cut in prices but also would lose the subsidies. They argued that Congress would be unwilling to continue subsidies to help pay food-production costs after the war emergency was over.

Wanted "Real" Prices Known

The farm leaders wanted consumers to know the "real" prices of food, thinking they would have a better understanding of farm-price problems in the future, when plentiful supplies—and possibly surpluses—were again available.

In fighting subsidies, the farm organizations argued that the payments did not, in fact, save consumers anything. They emphasized that the subsidies were paid by the Government from taxes on the public and through borrowing which would later have to be retired by taxes.

Governmental proponents of subsidies have held that they were and are an essential instrument for stabilizing the cost of living and of preventing recurring demands for wage increases, with a resulting inflationary spiral.

Present Situation Discussed

Since the subsidies expired there has been an argument as to whether food costs are actually any higher than they were under the OPA, taking subsidies into account.

The Republican Congressional Food Study Committee reports that a survey in Washington shows that prices are a little less than they were under the OPA, plus subsidies. The committee took into account prices which it said were at "black market" levels under the OPA.

Citing sharp advances in prices of cattle, hogs, meats and butter since the OPA expired, Government food officials disagree with the Republican report. They contend that prices in general have advanced above the combined total of OPA prices and subsidies.

Officials have figured that the subsidies made the average consumer's grocery bill about $12 a year lower than it otherwise would have been.

Claims On Prices

The OPA and the Agriculture Department said the subsidies had been holding down retail prices by these amounts: Butter, 18 cents a pound; cheese, 8 cents a pound; milk, 2 to 3 cents a quart; wheat flour, 1 cent a pound; white bread, 1 cent a loaf; meat, 5 to 10 cents a pound; sugar, 1 cent a pound; coffee, 5 cents a pound; canned corn, No. 2 can, 1 cent; canned tomatoes, No. 2 can, 2 cents; dry edible beans, seven tenths of a cent a pound.

Subsidy proponents agreed with critics that the subsidies must be paid by taxes. But they said the bulk of the taxes would be paid by higher income-tax payers. Low-income consumers, they said, did save under subsidies, because the amount of taxes they paid was far less than the amount that subsidies saved them on foods—particularly in the cases of poorer people with large families.

2 DIFFERENCES TO HEAD STUDY IN CONFERENCE

JUL 21 1946

Senate, House Far Apart On Military Role And

Violation Penalties

JUL 21 1946

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Loaded with amendments, the Senate's McMahon atomic-energy control bill passed the House today.

Far from the shape in which President Truman indorsed it after unanimous Senate passage early last month, it headed into a Senate-House conference committee for adjustment of differences between the two NIGHT

The major differences are over the voice the military shall have in control of atomic-energy development, and the stiffness of penalties for violations.

House Voted Death Penalty

The Senate proposed a five-member civilian control commission; the House ordered that at least one, and not more than two, members be from the armed forces.

The Senate provided for a civilian director of the military application division; the House insisted that the director be a member of the armed forces.

The Senate approved top penalties of twenty years imprisonment and a $20,000 fine, the House voted the death penalty for major offenses deliberately committed and intended to aid another nation to the detriment of the United States.

265 To 79 Roll-Call Vote

The 265-to-79 roll-call vote that passed the bill was far from indicative of the fight it went through during almost five days of House debate.

The crucial vote was the one just before passage on an effort to send it back to committee. By that move opponents tried to kill the bill until next year. They failed by a count of 195 to 146. Their fight for the military representation and other amendments was won by the scant margin of 116 to 104.

The move to send the measure back to the military committee was engineered by Representative Short (R., Mo.). It was supported by 128 Republicans and 18 Democrats, but 150 Democrats, 43 Republicans and both minor party members joined to repulse them.

Luce Amendment Rejected

The Administration went through a hard fight to save the bill from recommital, Democratic Leader McCormack, of Massachusetts, pleading for the House not to take such action.

Short and his supporters insisted legislation should not be enacted until world conditions are more settled. The atom bomb, they argued, is safe now in the hands of the military and the secret might leak out if the legislation became law.

Before finally voting, the House turned down an amendment by Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) to limit the life of the proposed law to seven years, and upheld a technical objection that knocked out authority for the President to transfer to the new commission unexpended funds of the Army's Manhattan district, its atom-bomb project.

FBI Loyalty Investigations

By voice vote it wrote into the legislation a requirement that the Federal Bureau of Investigation make loyalty investigations of "all persons associated in any capacity with the development and control of atomic energy under the commission. The FBI previously had been given authority to investigate violations of the proposed act.

Stricken from the bill by a standing vote of 62 to 45 was a Senate provision for a $5,000 fine and two years imprisonment for violations of commission regulations dealing wtih reports, inspections, records and safety measures.

A new section defining nuclear fission was approved without discussion or contest, several members declaring that it was no more involved than other sections of the legislation.

Major Provision Of Bill

The House completely rewrote the Senate's patents section which would have given the Government, through the commission, a virtual monopoly on patents and inventions, both new and old, in the field of atomic energy. The House toned down the Senate language sharply, by a 151-to-90 vote, and required that patents or inventions acquired by the commission through purchase or condemnation be returned to the original owners when the commission no longer needs them.

As it passed the House the bill contained these major provisions:

Controls: By a five-member commission appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, with at least one of the members a member of the armed forces; the chairman would receive $17,500 a year, the other members $15,000; they would serve for five-year terms. (The Senate made no provision for a military member.)

Terms Of Office Indefinite

Organization: Under the control commission would be a $15,000-a-year general manager to handle administrative and executive functions. Appointed by the President with approval of the Senate, his term of office would be indefinite.

Four divisions would serve with the commission. They would deal with research, production, engineering and military application and each would be headed by a $14,000-a-year director appointed by the commission. The military application division would be headed by a member of the armed forces. (He would be a civilian under the Senate proposal.)

Provision For Research

The commission would have the assistance of nine civilians appointed by the President for six-year terms and paid $50 a day for time actually on duty as an advisory group.

Research: The commission would insure the continued conduct of research and development activities by private or public institutions or individuals and could arrange for research activities through contracts, agreements and loans. It also would conduct its own research program.

Production of fissionable material (used in releasing atomic energy): It would be unlawful for any person, except under rigid commission control, to own or produce fissionable materials or to own facilities for their production. The commission would be the exclusive owner of all important producing facilities except those used in approved research work.

Unless licensed by the commission, no person could legally manufacture, transfer, or acquire any productive facilities except for authorized research work. The commission would own all reserve deposits of fissionable material in public lands.

President's Approval Required

Military application: The commission could do research in the field of atomic weapons and produce such weapons with approval of the President. It would be required, if the President ordered, to allow the armed forces to make atomic weapons and to furnish the armed forces with necessary material. (The latter provision was put in by the House, its authors contending that without it the armed forces would not make atomic weapons at all.)

Utilization of atomic energy: Licenses would be required for the use of devices utilizing atomic energy; they could not be issued until Congress has had 90 days to study the projects involved. Licenses could not be granted to anyone if the interests of the United States would be jeopardized.

International arrangements: The proposed law would cease to have effect if at any time it conflicts with treaty or international agreements approved by Congress.

Maximum Penalty Of Death

Patents: Generally, the commission could obtain title to all patents and inventions, new or old, through purchase, condemnation or otherwise, in the field of atomic energy.

Penalties for violations: A minimum of a $5,000 fine and a maximum of death.

Judicial review: The general provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act, permitting appeals to the courts, would apply to commission actions.

General: The legislation sets up a joint atomic-energy committee of eleven Senate and eleven House members to make a continuing study of commission activities and problems related to the use, development and control of atomic energy.

Atom Workers' Loyalty Check Is Voted

JUL 21 1946

Washington, July 20 (AP)—The House shouted into atomic-energy legislation today an amendment requiring an FBI loyalty check for all persons connected in any way with atomic-energy development.

The amendment, proposed by Representative Dondero (R., Mich.), was approved by a thunderous voice vote amid fresh demands that the entire bill be sent back to the Military Committee for further study.

Dondero's amendment would require the FBI to apply a loyalty check to all persons associated in any capacity with the development and control" of atomic energy under the proposed five-member atomic energy control commission.

Follows Rankin Charge

Its adoption followed a declaration by Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) that Communists "are packed into every department of this Government" and the Committee on Un-American Activities "knows about it."

"They are packed into the War Department," Rankin said, and accused Congress of not having "been on the job."

"The first thing you know our people will be blown to pieces by this atomic bomb," he added.

Largely rewritten, the bill will face a Senate-House conference if it escapes the booby traps laid by its opponents. A motion to send the bill back to committee has been drafted by Representative Short (R., Mo.) and its adoption would put the legislation over until next year.

Death Penalty Inserted

Major changes made by the House would provide for military representation on the proposed control commission; permit the death penalty for security violations intended to harm the United States; make it possible for the Army to produce atomic weapons and completely rewrite the Senate's patents section.

The bill now contains these provisions:

OVERALL CONTROLS—By a five-member commission appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, with at least one member from the armed forces. The chairman would receive $17,500 a year, others $15,000, serving for five-year terms. The Senate made no provision for a military member.

JUL 21 1946

$15,000-A-Year Manager

ORGANIZATION—Under the control commission would be a $15,000-a-year general manager. Appointed by the President with the approval of the Senate, his term would be indefinite. Four divisions would serve with the commission, dealing with the research, production, engineering and military application and each would be headed by a $14,000-a-year director appointed by the commission. The military application division would be headed by a member of the armed forces under the House bill; by a civilian under the Senate proposal.

MILITARY LIAISON—To look after the military interests in the field of atomic energy, the Secretaries of War and Navy would designate representatives to consult with the commission on military matters. They would have no actual voice in commission proceedings, but the Secretaries could appeal to the President from any commission action in military matters.

Continuous Research

RESEARCH — The commission would operate to insure continued conduct of research and development activities by private or public institutions or individuals and could arrange for research activities through contracts, agreements or loans. It also would conduct its own research program.

PRODUCTION OF FISSIONABLE MATERIAL (used in releasing atomic energy)—It would be unlawful for any person, except under rigid commission control, to own or produce fissionable materials or to own facilities for their production. The commission would be the exclusive owner of all important producing facilities except those used in approved research work. Unless licensed by the commission, no person could legally manufacture, transfer or acquire any productive facilities except for authorized research. The commission would own all reserve deposits of fissionable material in public lands.

Could Be Made By Army

MILITARY APPLICATION — The commission could do research and produce such weapons with approval of the President. It would be required, if the President ordered, to allow the armed forces to make atomic weapons and to furnish the armed forces with necessary material.

UTILIZATION OF ATOMIC ENERGY—Licenses would be required for use of devices utilizing atomic energy, but they could not be issued until Congress had had 90 days to study projects involved. Licenses could not be granted to non-American individuals or interests, to foreign governments, or to anyone else if the interests of the United States would be jeopardized.

INTERNATIONAL ARRANGEMENTS—The proposed law would cease to have effect if at any time it conflicts with treaty or international agreements approved by Congress.

Provisions On Patents

PATENTS—Generally, the commission could obtain title to all patents and inventions, new or old, through purchase, condemnation or otherwise, if they are in the field of atomic energy. When the commission no longer has need for the patents or inventions, it would return them to the original owners, who would receive compensation for any loss or damages suffered.

PENALTIES FOR VIOLATIONS—A minimum $5,000 fine and a maximum of death. The Senate proposed a maximum penalty of twenty years imprisonment and a fine of $20,000.

Court Appeals Permitted

JUDICIAL REVIEW—General provisions of the Administration Procedure Act, permitting appeals to the courts, would apply to commission actions.

GENERAL—The legislation sets up a joint atomic-energy committee of eleven Senate and eleven House members to make a continuing study of commission activities and problems related to atomic energy.

SUPER-AIR FORCE IS URGED BY PROBE

JUL 21 1946

Single Cabinet Department Proposal Also Indorsed

Washington, July 20 (AP)—A civilian commission which studied the air war against Germany and Japan urged tonight that the United States establish a super-air force with broad responsibilities for rocket and other defense.

The commission's report to President Truman indorsed the proposal to set up a single Cabinet department to have jurisdiction over the Army, Navy and a separate air force, and recommended prompt action by Congress. But the air force it proposed would go beyond anything so far considered.

"Primary Responsibility"

It advocated that the third service "should be given primary responsibility for passive and active defense against long-range attack on our cities, industries and other substantial resources; for strategic attack, whether by airplane or guided missile; and for all air units other than carrier air and such land-based air units as can be more effective as component parts of the Army or Navy."

"The mission of such a new establishment," it added, "would differ considerably from that of an autonomous air force and would, in certain respects, require additional and broader experience than has heretofore been required by the Army Air Forces alone."

Headed By Franklin D'Olier

The commission, known as the United States Strategic Bombing Survey and headed by Franklin D'Olier, former national commander of the American Legion, also made three other recommendations:

1. Research to keep this country ahead of the world. "Expenditures for research and development on the order of $1,000,000,000 annually may be required to assure an acceptable degree of national security," it said. It noted that "we lagged behind Germany in advanced aerodynamics, jet propulsion and the development of guided missiles. In air armament and torpedoes, even the Japanese were ahead of us."

Better Intelligence Stressed

2. Better intelligence. The report declared that "the present lack of recognized responsibility for intelligence work by the various operating organizations and the present shortage of trained and competent intelligence personnel give cause for alarm and require correction.

3. Armed strength as a force for peace. "As one of the great powers," the report said, "we must be prepared to act in defense of law and to do our share in assuring that other nations live up to their covenant. The United States must have the will and the strength to be a force of peace."

Released Without Comment

The report, one of a series issued by the survey, was released by the White House without comment. In 30 pages of findings preceding the recommendations, it reviewed the growth of American air power in the Pacific, the decline of Japanese strength, and the detailed results of American aerial blows.

"With the benefit of hindsight," the survey found three matters to criticize in the actual conduct of operations:

1. The gasoline, supplies and effort that it took to operate Superfortresses from China in 1943-44 could have been better devoted to Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's 14th Air Force there.

2. More submarines should have been built and used.

3. Japanese railroads should have been more heavily attacked.

Decision Made In 1943

A decision was made in the fall of 1943 to attack Japanese industrial targets in Manchuria and Kyushu with Superforts based in China. This was before Guam, Saipan and Tinian, which later became B-29 bases, had been captured. Supplies for the China-based B-29's had to be flown from India.

"It appears that the over-all results achieved," the report said, "did not warrant the diversion of effort entailed and that the aviation gasoline and supplies used by the B-29s might have been more profitably allocated to an expansion of the tactical and anti-shipping operations on the 14th Air Force in China."

The report noted that of the 8,900,000 tons of Japanese merchant ships sunk or seriously damaged, submarines accounted for about 60 per cent up to the final months of the war, and for 54.7 per cent over the whole course of the war.

Would Have Been More Effective

"Had we constructed more submarines, earlier concentrated on tankers and more fully co-ordinated long-range air search and attack missions with submarine operations, the ship sinking program might have been even more effective," it commented.

In addition to the part played by submarines, 16.3 per cent of the merchant ship bag was attributed to carrier planes, 10.2 per cent to Army land-based planes, 4.3 per cent to the Navy and Marine land planes, 9.3 to mines, less than one per cent to surface gunfire, and the rest to accidents.

Of 549 Japanese warships totaling 1,744,000 tons which were sunk, however, roughly 625,000 tons were sunk by Navy and Marine planes, 375,000 by submarines, 183,000 by surface ships, 55,000 by army planes and the rest by various other agencies.

Japs Lost 50,000 Planes

All Japan's aircraft carriers were sunk by carrier-based planes or submarines except one which was finished off by surface ships after carrier planes had severely damaged it.

All Japanese plane losses were totalled at 50,000, against 27,000 American planes lost in the Pacific.

Analyzing the selection of bombing targets in Japan, the report found that "even though the urban area attacks and attacks on specific industrial plants contributed a substantial precentage to the over-all decline in Japan's economy, in many segments of that economy their effects were duplicative."

Links To Coal Mines

It added that "an attack on Japan's extremely vulnerable railroad network would have extended and cumulated the effects of the shipping attack already made."

It outlined how rail links to the principal coal mines could have been destroyed and contended that this "would have virtually eliminated further coal movement, would have immobilized the remainder of the rail system through lack of coal, and would have completed the strangulation of Japan's economy."

"This strangulation," it remarked, "would have more effectively and efficiently destroyed the economic structure of the country than individually destroying Japan's cities and factories."

Aerial Mining Program

Again in another section the report said that the strangulation of the Japanese economy could have been accomplished with less effort and duplication "by an earlier commencement of the aerial mining program, concentration of carrier plane attacks in the last months of the war on Japan's remaining merchant shipping rather than on her already immobilized warships, and a co-ordinated B-29 and carrier attack on Japan's vulnerable railroad system beginning in April, 1945."

The total tonnage of bombs dropped by Allied planes in the Pacific was put at 656,400, of which 160,800 or 24 per cent was dropped on the Japanese home islands. In Europe the total tonnage was 2,700,000, of which 1,360,000 fell in Germany.

Average Hits Below 10%

In discussing the B-29 operations, the report disclosed that in the early operations when the Superforts bombed from 30,000 feet "the percentage of bombs dropped which hit the target areas averaged less than 10 per cent.

On March 9, 1945, "a basic revision in the method of B-29 attack was instituted"—night raids with fire bombs from 7,000 feet.

At the lower altitudes "bombing accuracy increased substantially, and averaged 35 to 40 per cent within 1,000 feet of the aiming point in daylight attacks from 20,000 feet or lower."

WORLD COURT DELAY LIKELY

Dulles Proposals May Defer Senate Action.

Washington, July 20 (A. P.).—As a result of a series of surprise amendments proposed by John Foster Dulles the Senate may defer until next year any action on American adherence to the new World Court.

Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) said that Dulles had suggested in a letter to the Foreign Relations Committee several highly technical amendments which Vandenberg said went to the core of important questions.

Dulles, who was foreign affairs adviser to Gov. Dewey in the 1944 presidential campaign, has served as an adviser at Big Four Foreign Ministers conferences and was named by President Truman as an alternate American delegate to the September 25 meeting of the United Nations Assembly in New York.

Previously, Under-Secretary of State Dean C. Acheson had testified before the Foreign Relations group that the President and the Secretary of State have carefully weighed the proposal and have recommended that the United States should deposit its declaration and accept the jurisdiction of the court.

This would involve acknowledging the court's jurisdiction in such matters as the interpretation of treaties and the reparations to be demanded from treaty violators.

As an example of the importance of the changes Dulles proposed, Vandenberg said that one involves the possibility that the United States sometime might be arrayed before the court on an issue in which there were several other nations on the other side.

If all of these nations had said in advance that they, as well as the United States, were willing to accept the court's decision there would be no question of the tribunal's authority. But the Michigan Senator said that Dulles pointed out that one or more of the nations on the opposing side might refuse to submit to the court's verdicts. He said that Dulles proposed a technical amendment to meet such a situation.

China Demands Shipping Of Relief Be Resumed

Indirectly Blames U. N. R. R. A. for Delaying Supplies

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP).—The Chinese government demanded today that the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration resume suspended relief shipments to China and in a sharply worded statement it indirectly blamed the U. N. R. R. A. itself for delays in distribution of supplies.

U. N. R. R. Director F. H. La Guardia announced suspension of relief shipments two weeks ago, attributing the action to jammed warehouses in the China ports. He said the jam was due to the failure of the Chinese government to distribute the supplies.

Today the embassy said that smooth distribution had been "greatly handicapped by certain difficulties beyond China's control, such as lack of previous notice of procurement abroad, shipments without manifest or invoice, arrival of machinery not requested by China, or of machinery with vital parts missing."

"Large quantities of canned food already spoiled were received and had to be destroyed," the embassy declared.

The embassy argued that the great bulk of supplies received by sea at China ports had been redistributed and that food had gone to Chinese Communist as well as to government-controlled areas.

Major General Lowell Rooks, acting director of U. N. R. R. A., said the Chinese request had not yet come to him. The trouble General Rooks said, is that Shanghai docks are jammed with U. N. R. R. A. machinery shipments to China and once this jam is broken the suspension will be ended. Food, General Rooks said, is moving reasonably well from the port to the starving Chinese in the interior.

House Favors Continuance of Cultural Plan

Sanctions State Department Programs to Promote Understanding of U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP).—Legislation giving Congressional sanction to the State Department's cultural relations program was passed today by the House and sent to the Senate.

Stripped by the Foreign Affairs Committee of earlier provisions that had generated a storm of opposition, the measure slid through on a voice vote and with only a handful of members present.

Congress recently voted $19,000,000 for the program, which the State Department is extending from South America to other continents.

The legislation authorizes the department to arrange for the exchange of students, technicians and professors and other professional people between the United States and other nations; permits the training of foreign technicians in this country, and provides for establishment of libraries and information centers abroad.

It also allows the department to disseminate abroad information about the United States and its policies, through newspapers, radio and other methods.

To overcome objections of some members, the House wrote into the legislation a declaration of Congressional intention that private news agencies and individuals should be utilized as much as possible in the news dissemination program, and that the State Department should not operate its own news program where existing facilities are adequate.

30.24-4265

It approved also a ban against any State Department monopoly on short wave broadcasts or "any other medium of information" and directed that "outstanding private leaders in American cultural and informational fields" be invited to consult with the department on its cultural and news activities.

A third amendment requires that all propaganda material disseminated by the government must "be identified as to government or private source."

RUSSIAN EXCHANGE VISITS UNLIKELY

JUL 21 1946

Truman Says He's Willing But There's Only A 1-Way Street

Portland, Maine, July 20 (AP)—President Truman favors exchange visits of Russian and American officials and educators but feels that endeavors to that end have proved "it is only a one-way street."

This was disclosed today by Senator Owen Brewster (R., Maine) who made public a letter he had received from the President dated May 27.

The letter was in response to a suggestion by the Portland Young Men's Christian Association that such visits would improve mutual understanding between both nations.

Embassy Staff Accompanied

"We have been unable," said the President, "to get either newspaper publishers or professors from this country any travel rights anywhere in Russia. The members of our embassy staff are not allowed to go anywhere without being accompanied.

"We have had Russian newspaper men and Russian professors, and a great many other people of that nature over here, and have entertained them royally, but we never get a return engagement. We can't very well invade the country unless they want us to."

President Truman related that when Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University, was in Moscow with James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, he was invited to address the Russian Academy of Science but was never allowed to make the address.

A Molotov Joke

"Molotov asked him to make it and then asked Byrnes if he couldn't take a joke when asked when he wanted him to make the address," the President said.

The text of President Truman's letter:

Dear Owen:

"I appreciated very much your note inclosing a letter from the Portland Young Men's Christian Association in regard to the exchange of officials and educators of the Soviet Union. We have been endeavoring to do just that, but it is only a one-way street.

Can't Get Travel Rights

"When Dr. Conant was in Moscow with Secretary Byrnes he was invited to address the Russian Academy of Sciences but was never allowed to make the address. Molotov asked him to make it and then asked Byrnes if he couldn't take a joke when asked when he wanted him to make the address.

"We have been unable to get either newspaper publishers or professors from this country any travel rights anywhere in Russia. The members of our Embassy staff are not allowed to go anywhere without being accompanied. We have had Russian newspaper men and Russian professors, and a great many other people of that nature over here, and have entertained them royally but we never get a return engagement. We can't very well invade the country unless they want us.

"I am glad to hear from you—have wondered why I hadn't."

Inquiry Orders Files On Rep. Coffee Check

JUL 21 1946

Justice Department Data Sought—Congressman to Be Invited to Tell of Contractor's $2,500—Rep. May Refers Subpoena to Lawyer

Washington, July 20—(AP)—The Senate War Investigating Committee ordered the Justice Department today to deliver its files on a $2,500 check described by Rep. John M. Coffee (D-Wash.) as a "campaign contribution"—an explanation bluntly termed by Senator Brewster (R-Me.) a "belated alibi."

Brewster, a member of the committee, declared that Coffee would be asked for a formal explanation, saying that "the more quickly he appears, the better."

The senator said that Paul A. Olson, former secretary to the Washington legislator, probably will be asked to testify also.

The committee's attention fastened on the Coffee matter as it awaited, without much hope, several members said privately, a response from its summons to Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the House Military Committee to explain Tuesday his wartime intervention on behalf of a munitions combine.

Letters Disclosed

Brewster's office made public transcripts of two letters—as copied from photographs which appeared in the Tacoma, Wash., News Tribune on March 5 of this year—From Coffee and Olson to Elvind Anderson, contractor, dated in May, 1941.

Olson wrote that "John" was gratified "by reason of the assurances you gave at the foot of the stairs over in the Capitol building" and said that if a few more people showed the "same sense of appraciation and understanding . . . then the going for John as a member of Congress would be made a lot easier."

The secretary discussed the financial problems faced by a congressman and the various drains on his purse.

Coffee himself wrote 16 days later that "Paul showed me the slip of paper you sent him a few days ago. It is impossible for me to express adequately my deep feeling of gratitude for your helpful co-operation."

There was no mention of any exchange of money in either letter.

$2,500 Check Acknowledged

But in Tacoma, Wash., Coffee acknowledged that he was the recipient of a $2,500 check from Anderson, termed it a campaign contribution, and said that the Justice Department had investigated and found "no basis for action." He said he would "welcome" an inquiry.

Coffee said the matter was widely discussed in a mayoralty campaign in Tacoma in which Olson and Anderson were candidates. He said Anderson was eliminated, and characterized his action in disclosing the matter as "stooping to the lowest form of unscrupulous tactics."

Brewster called in committee counsel George Meader and Francis Flanagan, its ace investigator, and a short time later told a reporter that the Justice Department records were being sought, and that Coffee himself would be "invited" to explain.

"The right nostril of the committee has been very sensitive," he said. "The left one has just begun to smell." Asked for explanation of that remark, he declared that Coffee was on "the left fringe" of the Democratic Party.

'Worries Dispelled'

In his letter to "My Dear Anderson," Coffee wrote that "a considerable share of my worries over the situation Paul described to you have been dispelled. It said that "we were able to be of great help" to Anderson's son on a project, adding:

"It tickled me no end to wire him the good news following my insistent demands upon the USHA. (Apparently the United States Housing Administration) to do something about it. Count on me to be alert whenever your interests are involved."

Olson, too, emphasized in his letter anxiety to aid Anderson. "By now," he said, "I imagine you are in the thick of activity in connection with the contract. Both John and I are very hopeful and anxious that everything goes well for you from start to finish."

It recounted the financial woes of a member of Congress — "this financial strain and burden of putting on a campaign every two years, plus meeting all the demands heaped on a public official in way of tickets, donations, etc., along with the terrific cost of maintaining a family in the national capital.

"However," it added, "this does not deter any of us from making at all times the best fight we can in the interest of the Sixth District and the individual citizens like yourself who live in it."

The letter said it enclosed an announcement of "some more construction" just authorized by the War Department, commenting "it isn't so much, but you may want to bid anyway."

'No Parties Needed'

"This ought to be a simple case," declared Brewster. "It won't require any pictures of pretty women sitting on generals' laps, or of congressmen attending wedding parties."

He said he was referring to pictures, published today, of a wedding party attended by May and high ranking War Department officials. The party was put on by Murray Garsson, one of the promoters of an industrial combine which May has acknowledged aiding.

May, himself, remained mum on the question of whether he would heed the committee's summons. Some committee members have acknowledged lack of power to force him to appear while the Congress was in session.

May later announced to reporters that he has referred to his counsel, Warren Magee of Washington, technical questions raised by the Mead Committee's subpoena.

Because of the pressure of pending Congressional business, May said, he has been unable to handle such matters himself.

Garsson May's Host, Asserts N.Y. Paper

JUL 21 1946

New York, July 20 (AP)—The Daily News says in a copyrighted dispatch that Representative Andrew J. May (D., Ky.) and several high-ranking army officers whose names have been linked with the Garsson munitions combine in testimony before the Senate War Investigating Committee, attended a lavish party at the Hotel Pierre January 2, 1944, given by Murray W. Garsson.

The News, which printed ten pictures of the sumptuous affair, says the party was arranged to celebrate the marriage of Garsson's daughter, Natalie Garsson Kaye, to Major Louis Herman Klebenov, of the Chemical Warfare Service.

The News says that among those present were Maj. Gen. William N. Porter, then chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, and as such Klevenov's superior officer; Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitte, Porter's successor as chief of the CWS; Albert W. Jacobson, civilian consultant in the legal division of the CWS, and Brig. Gen. Paul X. English, former division chief in the office of the chief of the CWS.

WAR SURPLUS LAG LAID TO 'MUD SLINGING'

JUL 21 1946

Gregory Says It Obstructs Disposal Of Property

Washington, July 20 (AP)— Lieut. Gen. Edmund B. Gregory, retiring war assets administrator, declared today that "mud slinging" and pressure groups are obstructing disposal of surplus property.

In a blunt, sharply worded statement issued on the eve of his departure from Government service, the former quartermaster general of the army said:

"Imminent danger threatens our national reconversion if the surplus-disposal agencies are not given the co-operation and support required to maintain an orderly flow of the Government's vast surplus stock pile into normal trade channels."

"Selfish Criticism"

"'Mud slinging' is the proper name for the selfish criticism which is throwing obstacles in the way of the surplus disposal program and can demoralize surplus disposal altogether.

"Special interests have exerted great pressure to open the floodgates of surplus for their own purposes, to the detriment of priority holders and of regular markets. Others seek to lock up surplus goods which may compete with their own interests, despite the existence of legitimate demand, if not critical need."

Gregory, retiring at his own request after 46 years in military service, said in elaborating his statement that by mud slinging he meant "all the comparatively unimportant little incidents (in connection with surplus disposal) which have been magnified into monuments of inefficiency and graft."

"Political Football"

"What did you mean by a comment that surplus disposal must not become a political football?" he was asked.

"Well," Gregory replied, "a congressman has a right to protest to us if a constituent complains about disposal.

"But if a congressman writes a letter and puts it in the Congressional Record before it ever gets to me, that's a political football."

Gregory urged the public to give his successor, Maj. Gen. Robert M. Littlejohn, former chief quartermaster in the European theater of operations, "all the co-operation and assistance necessary to bring the nation's vast surplus disposal program to a swift and efficient completion." Littlejohn will take over his new post Monday.

$829,000,000 In June

Declaring that surplus disposal had increased from $303,000,000 in January, on the basis of original cost of goods, to approximately $829,000,000 in June, Gregory said:

"The War Assets Administration has made substantial progress in the disposal program, despite every conceivable obstacle and insistent false attacks from misinformed individuals.

"I want the American people to know that war surpluses—their property—will soon be moving into established trade channels at the rate of $1,000,000,000 or more each month. Every dollar of surplus disposed of in this way diminishes Government costs, helps fight inflation and aids the restoration of normal business."

Hope Of Longer Draft Holiday

JUL 21 1946

Washington, July 20 (AP)—New enlistment figures kindled hope in congressional quarters today that the Army may be able to prolong its voluntary induction holiday.

Latest returns showed that during June there were 62,493 enlistments in the Army, or more than 20,000 above what the War Department regards as its average monthly needs.

It may be, said Representative Short (R., Mo.), who made the figures public, that the new draft extension law will not have to be used at all or at least that the induction holiday in force during July and August can be continued.

June's Graduation Cited

The figures that Short said he received from the War Department showed that during the first week of June there were 11,745 enlistments. During the second week here were 12,319; the third, 13,093, and the fourth, 25,336.

While no enlistment figures for July are available the department informed Short that a falling off during the first week could be expected because of the holiday week end.

Army sources quickly pointed out that the heavy enlistment rate in June probably resulted from the graduation from school of thousands of teen-agers who assumed they would be drafted eventually or simply had been waiting for school's end to enlist.

Pay Raise Also Factor

Then, too, the fact that Congress was in the process of raising the pay of enlisted men 50 per cent, an Army spokesman said, "undoubtedly had much to do with the heavy enlistment rate in June."

"Many men had been waiting for Congress to give evidence that it was going to raise the pay," he said, "and in June it was apparent that the raises would be ordered."

Selective service has announced that it will call 25,000 men for induction in September, the first month after the current draft holiday.

JUL 21 1946

Delay Weakens Merger, Says Senator

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Senator Robertson (R., Wyo.) predicted today that shelving the Administration's army-navy merger legislation until next session will weaken its support.

News that President Truman has decided to recede from his demand for action in the fading present session was hailed by Robertson as "a big victory for the Navy." He contended that time and increased co-ordination of the armed forces now under way would diminish demand for the legislation.

Robertson is one of the naval committee members who have been on the Navy Department's side in its opposition to placing Army and Navy under a single defense department headed by one Cabinet member. Committee Chairman Walsh (D., Mass.) observed that delay would help in reaching "ultimately a merger that will be acceptable to both the Army and the Navy."

Navy Air-Power Issue

Robertson said that admirals were opposed "to any plans that would cost the Navy its traditional Cabinet post, or take away its land-based air power."

Mr. Truman's changed position was reported by Chairman Thomas (D., Utah) of the Senate Military Committee who said the President was informed that House leaders oppose any action on the merger now. The President sent word he was still very much interested in unification and Thomas said he would reintroduce the bill next session.

House Votes Overhaul Of U. S. Foreign Service

Raises Pay of Career Workers; Gives Ambassadors $25,000

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP).—The House passed by a voice vote today and sent to the Senate legislation providing for a broad overhaul of the State Department's Foreign Service.

Sponsors of the measure said it is needed to put America's Foreign Service on a par with those of other principal powers.

One of the chief provisions is to boost salaries of nearly all career workers, including an increase from $17,500 to $25,000 yearly for ambassadors. The proponents said this action would open foreign-service work to persons who are not financially able to accept such posts now.

The House also passed by voice vote another measure establishing an office of Under Secretary of State for Economic Affairs.

A major section of the reorganization bill would establish a Foreign Service Institute, making possible a post-graduate training school for Foreign Service officers similar to that now attended by Army and Navy officers.

Another provision would call for automatic retirement of officers not qualifying for promotion as often as specified in standards outlined. The bill's sponsors said this would permit the department to clean out "dead wood" among employees.

Other provisions would:

1. Create an office of Director General of the Foreign Service and set up a Foreign Service Board to advise the Secretary of State.

2. Require Foreign Service officers to spend at least three of their first fifteen years of work in the United States and to take home leaves every two years they are abroad to keep them abreast of affairs in the United States.

U. S. Gives East Indies Credit of $100,000,000

JUL 21 1946

Money Will Be Used for Army and Navy Surplus Goods

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP).—The Netherlands East Indies today was granted an American credit of $100,000,000 to purchase United States Army and Navy surplus property.

The agreement, the second largest yet negotiated for sale of surplus war equipment to a foreign country, provides that the Dutch must repay in seven years at an interest rate of two and three-eighths per cent. Interest begins July 1, 1947, payment on principal July 1, 1949.

Government officials disclosed that the East Indies government already had used $75,000,000 of the credit for purchases from Army stores in the Pacific.

The only surplus property credit to surpass this was the French agreement signed several months ago which allowed France to buy $300,000,000 of these supplies.

Army Suspends Request Assignments To Europe

Washington, July 20 (AP)—The Army has suspended specific assignment of individual recruits to Europe and the Mediterranean because occupation forces there are at full strength, War Department officials said today.

Regular Army volunteers signing up for three years had been given the choice of selecting these theaters for initial assignment. The privilege was suspended in May for Europe and last month for the Mediterranean, except for six groups of scarce specialists.

The occupation force in Germany and Austria is down to the quota of 307,000 set for July 1 by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Approximately 50,000 troops are in the Mediterranean, it was estimated.

Report Made On Army Banking At War Camps

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Intended as a time saver to military and civilian personnel at 300 major military installations, the War Department set up nonprofit banking facilities handling transactions involving over $307,000,000 monthly.

These temporary banking facilities, made possible through cooperation by local banks and the Treasury Department, did just about everything but lend money, the War Department said today.

The finance department estimated they cashed more than 2,000,000 checks monthly in the amount of $225,000,000. In addition, each month they furnished cash to meet payrolls amounting to $65,000,000, sold about $12,000,000 in war bonds, and handled deposits to individual accounts and organizational accounts of $2,000,000.

First Peace Maneuvers Being Planned By Army

JUL 21 1946

Will Stress Defense Against Possible Polar Attack

WASHINGTON, July 20 (UP).—The Army outlined plans tonight for extensive peace-time maneuvers, with the emphasis on training ground and air forces for defense against possible attack via the polar ice cap.

Other operations in the first large-scale maneuvers since World War II will provide training in amphibious and air-borne operations.

The winter maneuvers will be held at Adak and Ladd Field, Alaska, Camp McCoy, Wis., and Camp Carson, Col. They were designed both to train personnel and to test equipment for combat in sub-zero temperatures.

Besides the winter warfare maneuvers, the training program calls for:

1. A joint Army-Navy amphibious operation in the San Diego-San Climente Island area of Southern California, beginning next Sept. 1 and lasting for three months.

2. Maneuvers by the 82d Air-Borne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C.

B-29 To Continue Cosmic Ray Studies

Washington, July 19 (AP)—An Army B-29 bomber, converted into a flying laboratory, left Wilmington, Ohio, today, the War Department reported, on the first leg of a high-altitude flight to South America to continue studies of cosmic rays.

The plane, used by National Geographic Society and Army Air Forces scientists to discern the effects of the rays on radio transmission, electronics and human beings, was to fly at 35,000 feet nonstop to the Panama Canal Zone. It will operate from there in flights southward, some as far as Peru.

Service Insurance Bill Is Sent to White House

House Accepts Amendments to Liberalizing Measure

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP).—House acceptance of Senate amendments sent to the White House today legislation liberalizing war-service insurance for members of the armed forces and veterans.

The legislation is designed to give government service insurance for the same features as commercial policies. It permits lump sum payments, ends restrictions on the naming of beneficiaries, adds total disability coverage and provides a flexible system of conversion from military to civilian-type insurance.

The major Senate amendment permits trial by jury on contested claims.

Arnold Sees Polar Attack

Los Angeles, July 20 (AP)—Gen. H. H. Arnold, wartime chief of the Army Air Forces, says he believes any future blow against the United States "will come from across the Polar regions, not by way of the seas."

Predicting further atomic bombs "may well be 1,000 times as destructive" as those exploded over Japan, General Arnold countered an inquiry as to whether the United States could know if any other nation were secretly building atomic bombs with this question:

"Who knows what's going on deep inside Russia?"

Predicts Space Ship

Later, in a speech before the Institue of Aeronautical Sciences, he predicted "invasion of the stratosphere" by "true space ships . . . capable of one or more trips around the world."

"You and I know that this is not an idle fantasy," he told engineers attending institute sessions on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California. "There is a real possibility of developing a rocket-propelled vehicle which will climb above the atmosphere to such a velocity that its centrifugal force balances the attraction of gravity.

Urges Integration Of Services

"I am told this velocity is of the order of 26,000 feet per second—but five times that already attained by the V-2 (German rocket bomb)."

Arnold urged "complete integration" of all armed services—with air power granted "a place in its own right beside our ground and sea forces"—and a "federalization" of military and civilian resources to continue gains in science and industry achieved in the last war.

Army Measuring Long Noses As Future Gas-Mask Guide

JUL 21 1946

Fort Lewis, Wash., July 20 (AP)—The army long noses are being measured—right down to the tip.

And that tip may have something to do with the size, length and type of gas mask future GI's will wear—just as 63 other measurements being taken of 12,000 men at Fort Lewis may have a large scale effect on almost every describable piece of army equipment.

The Fort Lewis survey is being conducted by the "United States Army anthropometric survey (male), research and development branch, military planning division, office of the quartermaster."

5 Others Make Same Tests

Meanwhile, five other army posts in the United States—Forts Bragg, Beale, Dix, Meade and Sheridan—are taking the same measurements. The subjects are all men being discharged from the service.

In charge at Fort Lewis is Lieut. Edward Sims, of Larchmont, N.Y., and he has 31 men in his detachment. The measurements they take range from weight and stature to nose length, head circumference, ball foot circumference and sitting height.

All this material will be useful in outfitting and equipping future GI's, Lieutenant Sims explains.

"For instance," he said, "we will be interested in establishing new shoe and sock standards—the American male is larger today than he was 25 years ago, and present standards are inadequate."

Further, he said, seats in automobiles, tanks and other vehicles could stand some revamping to make them more nearly conform to average human proportions. Thus, the measurements may have an effect in vehicles on throttle placement, foot-pedal length, steering-column height and angles. And the results will be felt elsewhere. Table and chair heights may be altered, bunks lengthened or lowered, blankets changed.

The possibilities are vast, the lieutenant said, but so is the project—a total of 72,000 men will be measured in the six camps before any norm will be sought.

Non-Physical Characteristics

The survey also takes into consideration nonphysical characteristics. The birthplace of the subject and of his parents, his national extraction and his religion, even his civilian occupation and military specialty are recorded.

It'll be several months before the results of the test are catalogued and forwarded to headquarters at Camp Lee, Va., for final analysis.

Prisoner Of War Sues Japs For $1,000,000

Ogden, Utah, July 20 (AP)—Mark L. Streeter, of Ogden, a prisoner of the Japanese during the entire war, today asked $1,000,000 damages from the Nipponese.

Streeter's claim was filed with the United States Court of Claims, reparations department, at Washington by Attorney David J. Wilson.

Streeter, who was captured on Wake Island, December 23, 1941, based the claim on loss of construction equipment and wages, and asserted damages to his character and reputation.

The former prisoner of war was shipped to Japan and forced to prepare propaganda broadcasts, he charged. He was taken in custody by American forces after the war ended and investigated on orders from Gen. Douglas MarArthur. He was released, however, and returned to the United States recently.

POLETTI DENIES CHARGE

JUL 21 1946

Disputes Statement of Sicilian That He Backed Monarchy

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., July 20 (AP)—Charles Poletti, former United States military governor in Italy, denied today an assertion by Sicilian Separatist Leader Andrea Finocchiaro Aprile that Mr. Poletti told him in 1943 it was necessary to keep the House of Savoy on the throne.

Mr. Poletti, a former New York Governnor who returned to this country last fall after assignments at Palermo, Rome and Milan, said there was a "mistake" in the separatist leader's "recollection," made on the floor of the Constituent Assembly in Rome last night.

Mr. Poletti said he had served notice to the Sicilian and other political leaders shortly after the Allied landings in Sicily that they should not engage in political activities at that time, by order of the Allied command.

"We never took any position on the monarchy," Mr. Poletti said, adding that he had not the "slightest idea" of Signor Finocchiaro Aprile's reasons for having made the statement.

SUPER-CYCLOTRON BUILT

Navy Finances Research Project at University of Rochester

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 20 (AP)—A super cyclotron, capable of producing five times the maximum energy of any atom smasher now operating, will be constructed at the University of Rochester by the Navy's Office of Research and Invention.

The cylotron, to be used for fundamental nuclear research, will be the second largest in the world and will accelerate protons up to energies above 200 million volts, the university said today. The world's largest cyclotron, which will use deterons instead of protons, is under construction at the University of California.

Funds for the Rochester project will be supplied principally by the Navy, the university said, with the university constructing two buildings to house the equipment.

The magnet of the giant cyclotron will weigh 1,100 tons, as compared with the fifteen-ton magnet in the university's present seven-million volt apparatus. Magnet pole pieces will be about ten feet in diameter, in contrast to the twenty-seven-inch diameter of those in the cyclotron now in operation.

Navy Pilots Unhurt In 4 Crash Landings

JUL 21 1946

Downed by Bad Weather Near Cochranton, Pa.

MEADVILLE, Pa., July 20 (AP).—Four Navy fighter planes from Quonset Point, R. I., crash-landed in fields within a two-mile area near Cochranton today, but all four pilots escaped injury.

The pilots identified themselves as Lieutenants R. H. Cash, of Los Angeles; H. R. Drew, of Miami Beach; Carl L. Baker, of Amarillo, Tex., and J. R. Means, of St. Albans, Queens, N. Y.

Lieutenant Mean said the planes were forced down by bad weather and a dwindling gasoline supply. The propellers of all four planes were bent and the wing tips of one plane also were damaged.

Carrier Essex Retired

SEATTLE, July 20 (AP).—The aircraft carrier Essex, one of eight ships which received the Presidential unit citation a few days ago, has joined the nation's "Ghost Fleet." The veteran of major Pacific war engagements went into retirement with assurance from Rear Admiral George H. Fort, 13th Naval District commandant, that "if she is ever needed, she will fight again."

RUSSIAN-ATOMIC (600)
BY FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

NEW YORK, JULY 20-(AP)-ANDREI A. GROMYKO, SOVIET MEMBER OF THE UNITED NATIONS ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION, DECLARED TODAY THAT FULL COOPERATION IN THE EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION ON THE PRODUCTION AND USE OF ATOMIC ENERGY FOR PEACEFUL PURPOSES IS ESSENTIAL TO THE COMMISSION'S WORK.

WITHOUT SUCH COOPERATION, HE TOLD THIS CORRESPONDENT, THE WORK OF THE COMMISSION CANNOT BE ENTIRELY SUCCESSFUL.

THE SOVIET DELEGATE DID NOT NAME ANY STATES, BUT HE DID SAY THAT THE REPRESENTATIVES OF SOME COUNTRIES ARE VERY SENSITIVE ON THE POINT OF EXCHANGING INFORMATION.

HE EMPHASIZED THAT THE SOVIET PROPOSALS ADVANCED IN STATEMENTS TO THE COMMISSION PROVIDE FOR THE FULLEST POSSIBLE EXCHANGE OF SCIENTIFIC INFORMATION ON THE PRODUCTION OF ATOMIC ENERGY AND ITS USE FOR "PEACEFUL PURPOSES." HE GESTURED EMPHATICALLY WHEN HE SAID "PEACEFUL PURPOSES."

IT WAS THE FIRST TIME THAT GROMYKO HAD COMMENTED ON THE WORK OF THE COMMISSION SINCE THAT 12-NATION GROUP BEGAN LAST JUNE 14 ITS SEARCH FOR A MEANS OF CONTROLLING THE ATOM FOR PEACEFUL PURPOSES.

JUL 21 1946

THE SOVIET DELEGATE SAID IT WAS HIS IMPRESSION THAT THE QUESTION OF THE EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION WAS NOT ESTEEMED PROPERLY IN THE COMMISSION.

HE ADDED THAT THE SUCCESS OF THE WORK OF THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION WOULD DEPEND IN A GREAT DEGREE ON THE EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION ON ATOMIC ENERGY.

GROMYKO SAT WITH THE SCIENTISTS YESTERDAY AT THE FIRST MEETING OF THE COMMISSION SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE, HOLDING RUSSIA'S PLACE IN THAT GROUP UNTIL THE SOVIET SCIENTIST DESIGNATED FOR IT TAKES HIS SEAT. HE SAID HE HAD REPEATED HIS PROPOSALS AT THAT MEETING ON THE TASKS OF THE COMMISSION.

HE OUTLINED THEM AS:

1. CONCERNING THE CONTENTS OF SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERIES ON THE SPLITTING OF THE ATOMIC NUCLEUS AND OTHER DISCOVERIES CONNECTED WITH OBTAINING AND USING ATOMIC ENERGY;
2. CONCERNING THE TECHNOLOGY AND THE ORGANIZATION OF TECHNOLOGICAL PROCESSES FOR OBTAINING AND USING ATOMIC ENERGY;
3. CONCERNING THE ORGANIZATION AND METHODS OF INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION OF ATOMIC ENERGY AND THE USE OF THIS ENERGY;
4. CONCERNING THE FORMS, SOURCES, AND LOCATION OF THE RAW MATERIALS NECESSARY FOR OBTAINING ATOMIC ENERGY.

AS

HE SAID THE ABOVE-LISTED PROPOSALS DO NOT INCLUDE [illegible] FOR REVEALING SECRETS ON THE PRODUCTION OF THE ATOMIC BOMB.

JUL 21 1946

(THE STATEMENT ON THE MEETING ISSUED BY THE UNITED NATIONS CONTAINED A DIRECT QUOTATION ATTRIBUTED TO GROMYKO SAYING THAT "NOBODY IS ASKING FOR SECRETS." THIS STATEMENT ALSO SAID THAT THE RUSSIAN DELEGATE HAD STATED THE TIME WAS RIPE FOR DISCUSSING METHODS OF THE EXCHANGE OF SCIENTIFIC INFORMATION ON THE PEACEFUL USES OF ATOMIC ENERGY.)

GROMYKO DECLARED TODAY THAT REFERENCES WHICH ARE OFTEN MADE BY SOME PEOPLE TO THE NECESSITY OF KEEPING SECRET THE PRODUCTION OF THE ATOMIC BOMB MUST NOT BE USED AS A PRETEXT FOR PREVENTION OF THE EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION ON PRODUCTION OF ATOMIC ENERGY AND ITS USE FOR PEACEFUL PURPOSES.

WITHOUT AN EXCHANGE OF SCIENTIFIC INFORMATION IT IS IMPOSSIBLE

30-24-42-69

TO HAVE COOPERATION, HE SAID.
THEN GROMYKO TURNED TO REPORTS CONCERNING THE THREE-HOUR CLOSED MEETING OF THE WORKING COMMITTEE OF THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION ON JULY 12. HE SAID IT HAD BEEN REPORTED THAT HE HAD OPPOSED ESTABLISHING COMMITTEE NO. 2, WHICH DEALS WITH CONTROLS.
THE RUSSIAN DELEGATE SAID HE DID NOT OPPOSE SUCH A COMMITTEE. RATHER, HE SAID, HE OPPOSED THE FAILURE OF THE TERMS OF REFERENCE OF THE COMMITTEE TO INCLUDE THIS SPECIFIC STATEMENT WHICH HE PROPOSED:
1. THAT THE COMMITTEE'S TASK WOULD INCLUDE CONSIDERING MEASURES FOR THE PROHIBITION OF THE PRODUCTION OF ATOMIC WEAPONS AND THEIR USE.
GROMYKO SAID SUCH A TASK AS HE OUTLINED FOR THE TERMS OF REFERENCE IS ELEMENTAL IN THE DELIBERATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE.
THE TASKS OF THE COMMITTEE AS ANNOUNCED AFTER THE JULY 12 MEETING ARE:
"TO EXAMINE QUESTIONS ASSOCIATED WITH THE CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY ACTIVITIES INCLUDING ALL MEASURES DESIGNED TO INSURE THE PREVENTION OF THE USE OF ATOMIC ENERGY FOR PURPOSES OF DESTRUCTION, AND OTHER WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION, AND ALSO INCLUDING SUBJECT MATTERS OF POSSIBLE CONVENTIONS, SANCTIONS AND OBSERVANCE, AND TO MAKE SPECIFIC RECOMMENDATIONS ON THE SAID SUBJECTS."

BIKINI (550)

BY DON WHITEHEAD

ABOARD U.S.S APPALACHIAN, SUNDAY, JULY 21-(AP)-OPERATION CROSSROADS TODAY NEARED ITS SECOND CLIMACTIC TEST, WHICH WILL BE THE DECISIVE FACTOR IN DETERMINING WHETHER THE ATOMIC AGE HAS MADE PRESENT-DAY NAVIES OBSOLETE.

FROM THE TESTS CONDUCTED IN BIKINI LAGOON, THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF WILL MAKE THEIR DECISIONS AND DRAW A GREAT MANY CONCLUSIONS ON WHAT THE ATOMIC BOMB HAS DONE TO SHAPE NAVIES OF THE FUTURE.

THE SECOND TEST, SCHEDULED FOR JULY 25, BIKINI TIME (JULY 24, U.S. TIME), PERHAPS IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN THE FIRST, STAGED JULY 1, IN DETERMINING THE DESTRUCTIVE FORCE OF ATOMIC ENERGY LOOSED AGAINST NAVAL VESSELS. IT WILL BE A SHALLOW UNDERWATER EXPLOSION GREATER THAN MAN-MADE EXPLOSION IN MARINE HISTORY--THROWING FANTASTIC PRESSURES AGAINST SHIPS' HULLS.

THE FIRST TEST, IN WHICH THE BOMB BURST IN THE AIR ABOVE THE TARGET FLEET, PROVED THAT NAVAL ARCHITECTS MUST REDESIGN SUPERSTRUCTURES OF FUTURE COMBAT VESSELS. ON THE OLD SUPERSTRUCTURES, THE COMPARATIVELY FRAGILE MASTS, STACKS AND EXPOSED RADIO AND RADAR ANTENNAE, WERE TWISTED OR CRUMPLED INTO USELESSNESS BY THE FURY OF THE

30.24-4271

ATOMIC BURST.

THIS TIME THE DESTRUCTIVE POWER OF THE BOMB WILL BE PITTED AGAINST THE HULLS OF THE TARGET VESSELS. THIS EXPLOSION WILL PUT PRESSURE AGAINST THEM MUCH LIKE A GIANT RAMROD.

"WHAT CHANGES IN NAVAL STRATEGY AND TACTICS ARE NECESSARY WILL BE THE DECISION OF THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF," VICE ADM.W.H.P.BLANDY, COMMANDER OF THE TEST OPERATION, TOLD CORRESPONDENTS.

THAT THE ATOMIC BOMB WILL CHANGE NAVAL TACTICS AND STRATEGY AS WELL AS CONSTRUCTION IS A CERTAINTY. FOR NOT ONLY DOES THE BOMB CREATE A FANTASTIC SHOCK AND BLAST THREAT TO SHIPS, BUT DEADLY RADIOLOGICAL HAZARDS MUST BE RECKONED WITH.

JUL 21 1946

FIFTEEN PERCENT OF THE ANIMALS PLACED ABOARD SHIPS IN THE FIRST TEST WERE EITHER KILLED OUTRIGHT OR HAVE DIED SINCE. MORE OF THEM MAY DIE FROM EXPOSURE TO LETHAL RAYS. ADMIRAL BLANDY SAID HE CONSIDERED IT TOO EARLY FOR A FINAL ESTIMATE ON WHAT WOULD HAVE HAPPENED IF THE SHIPS HAD BEEN MANNED AS FOR COMBAT.

CROSSROADS PERSONNEL IS SET FOR THE SECOND TEST. THURSDAY'S REHEARSAL WENT OFF ON SCHEDULE AND WAS MARRED ONLY BY PREMATURE EXPLOSION OF A PHOTOGRAPHIC FLARE, BLAMED ON A STRAY RADIO IMPULSE.

THERE WILL BE HIGH DRAMA IN BIKINI LAGOON IN THE LAST HOURS BEFORE THE EXPLOSION. AFTER THE LAGOON IS DESERTED BY NON-TARGET SHIPS, A SMALL GROUP OF MEN WILL GO TO A SPECIAL RAFT IN THE CENTER OF THE TARGET FLEET.

THEY WILL PREPARE THE ATOMIC WEAPON, SUSPENDED FROM A BARGE AT A DEPTH THAT WILL REMAIN A SECRET. PLUTONIUM WILL BE PLACED IN THE BOMB CASING AND THE INTRICATE TRIGGER MECHANISM WILL BE SET.

WHEN EVERYTHING IS IN READINESS, THE MEN WILL LEAVE IN FAST BOATS. A SERIES OF CLOCKS AND RADIO IMPULSES WILL PREPARE THE BOMB FOR EXPLOSION AND THE FINAL RADIO IMPULSE WILL FIRE IT.

THIS TYPE OF LONG-DISTANCE FIRING BY RADIO IMUPLSE HAS NEVER BEEN TRIED BEFORE. BUT IN REHEARSAL IT ACTIVATED AN ELECTRONIC DEVICE STIMULATING THE BOMB TRIGGER MECHANISM, AND CROSSROADS OFFICIALS SAY IT WORKED PERFECTLY.

HOWEVER, IF THE DETONATING IMPULSE SHOULD FAIL, SCIENTISTS SAY THE BOMB WOULD NOT BECOME AN UNCONTROLLED WEAPON. IT WOULD BE DISARMED BY CLOCK MECHANISMS AND RENDERED HARMLESS FOR THE MEN WHO WOULD HAVE TO RETURN AND RESET THE TRIGGER FOR ANOTHER TRY.

Student Rebels Overthrow Bolivian Government; Assassinate President; Hang Body From Lamppost

JUL 22 1946

TOLL IN STREET FIGHTING SET AT 2,000; VILLARROEL PLOT TO ESCAPE FOILED

University And Courts Represented In New Government

JUL 22 1946

La Paz, Bolivia, July 21 (AP)—Revolutionists assassinated President Gualberto Villarroel and seized control of the Government today in a new uprising, the climax of three days of street fighting in which approximately 2,000 were reported killed or wounded.

The President's body was stripped of its clothes by angry mobs and hanged twice from a lamppost. The revolutionists then draped the body over a tank and paraded it through the streets.

Hurled From Balcony

The revolutionists credited this display with taking most of the fight out of Villarroel's followers, who had continued to resist.

Reports differed as to how the President met his death.

One source said that crowds surged into the presidential palace and found Villarroel hiding in the attic. Another report said he was wounded when he tried to escape through the palace corridors.

After his capture, he was hurled from a palace balcony onto the street, where his clothes were ripped off by the crowds.

Escape Plot Foiled

A dramatic escape plot, which involved flight from the country in a private plane, was foiled at the last minute.

The President's body, covered only by a sheet, was strung up on a tall lamppost. His official picture, a photograph, was pinned to the sheet, and one of his military boots was placed under his left arm.

Armed with weapons they had seized from Government strongholds, the revolutionists reployed throughout La Paz and its environs seeking other leading figures in the Villarroel government who had escaped. A revolutionist radio called on the students to organized armed crowds to prevent looting and barbarous actions.

New Government Formed

Even while fighting was continuing against scattered pockets of resistance, the revolutionists formed an institutional government. They also regrouped their forces to prevent a counter-revolution and released imprisoned political prisoners.

During three days of fighting, hundreds of people were believed killed or wounded. There were no exact casualty figures, but deaths were reported to have been high, particularly among the workers and students who made up the backbone of the revolutionary forces. Women and children also took part in the uprising.

Villaroel almost made good his escape. While the revolutionists were advancing toward the center of the city the radio station on the Government building asked the air base to send cars to pick up the President and some members of his Government and take them to the waiting plane.

Planned To Shoot Way Clear

This broadcast said the president's party would shoot its way clear with machineguns.

Quickly, the revolutionists erected barricades in adjacent streets and launched an attack on the government building.

Roberto Hinojosa, director general of propaganda, was among the government officials killed. Police Captain Humberto Carrasco was held under arrest at the government building. Major Jose Escobar, communications director; Police Captain Roberto Dominquez and numerous political supporters of Villarroel took refuge in embassies in the city.

Although Villarroel only yesterday had named a new cabinet composed entirely of military men, some units of the Bolivian Army joined the revolutionary movement which had been formed from various civilian groups.

Nestor Guillen, dean of the Superior Court of the District of La Paz, was one of the members of the new government selected by the revolutionists. A representative from the University of La Paz and a representative from the teachers' confederation also were named.

Radio America, where the emergency committee of La Paz University called for Tomas Monje Gutierrez, president of the district court, to deliver the provisional government to the revolutionists and appealed to the armed forces to isolate the Manzaneda zone, focal point of resistance by Villarroel's forces.

The Sucre and Loa regiments have joined the revolutionary movement, the broadcast continued, and have taken up positions on Avenue Arce.

Heavy Fighting At Arsenal

Heavy fighting occurred at the capital's arsenal before the revolutionary forces forced the backers of Villaroel to retire.

The revolutionists attacked the city hall and the traffic headquarters and after taking weapons from there they stormed the central jail and liberated political prisoners.

The police school and the streets of the central zone entering the Plaza Murillo where the Government building is located then were captured in heavy fighting. The Government building itself was entered.

Fighting still was going on against some centers of resistance.

Large stores of arms and ammunition were concentrated at the university where a regiment was formed to put down any attempt at a counter-movement.

Search For Party Leaders

The revolutionists commenced a search for Victor Paz Estenssoro and other leaders of the Nationalist Revolutionary Movement (MNR) who were reported to have escaped.

The MNR is the political organization which supported Villarroel. In addition to directing ths party, Estenssoro had served as Minister of Economy and Minister of Finance.

Presidency Won In 1943 By Revolutionary Movement

La Paz, Bolivia, July 21 (AP)—Gualberto Villarroel, Bolivian "strong man" overthrown and hanged in today's revolt, had gained the presidency December 20, 1943, also by means of a revolution.

He came to power after a group of army officers in co-operation with the National Revolutionary Movement (MNR) deposed the government of Gen. Enrique Penaranda and set up a junta.

Gained Assembly Majority

Later the junta was dissolved and replaced by a provisional government which Villarroel headed.

In the election of June 2, 1944, the MNR gained a majority in the constituent assembly, and one of the assembly's first acts was to elect Villarroel as constitutional president.

In a state of political turmoil for the past five weeks, Bolivia has had two revolts within that period.

Last Thursday and Friday, authoritative sources said, more than 100 persons were killed and more than 150 were wounded in clashes in La Paz between police and groups demonstrating against the virtual dictatorship of the Villarroel Government.

Entrenched At University

Government announcements and reports from near-by states indicated that students and teachers in La Paz University were the chief participants in the rebellion. On Thursday a large group of heavily armed students entrenched themselves on the university grounds, but surrendered that night, the Government said.

During the week end public indignation in Boliva was at fever pitch, one source said, because police had fired into a crowd of civilian demonstrators during the disturbance.

On June 13 the Government stamped out an attempted coup in which army flyers attempted to bomb La Paz. The Government announced later that five persons were killed in that revolt.

Army Numbers 15,000

Bolivia has a population of more than 3,500,000 and its chief source of income is mining. Its army has a total estimated enrollment of about 15,000, while the national police number about 12,000.

Before the news of today's uprising in La Paz reached Buenos Aires, observers in the latter city gave this picture of the Bolivian political situation:

Villarroel, by his action yesterday in forming a Cabinet made up of members of a secret military lodge, revealed that he was preparing to step down in favor of another military strong man.

Belmonte May Be Choice

This strong man, according to the military clique's plan, would be Major Elias Belmonte Pabon, who lived in exile in Germany, Spain and Portugal throughout the war after former President Enrique Penaranda branded him a "would-be quisling" in a Nazi-directed plot several years ago to seize power in Bolivia.

Belmonte now may be en route to Bolivia from Portugal, the Buenos Aires informants said. They recalled that the La Paz newspaper Ultimahora published a report July 11 that he had left Lisbon. Ultimahora, which with other La Paz newspapers was confiscated by the Government after last month's attempted revolution, was in the hands of Villarroel's regime when this dispatch was published, they pointed out.

Named In U.S. Blue Book

Belmonte served during the war as Bolivian air attaché in Berlin. He is described in the American State Department blue book on Nazi activities in South America as an active collaborator with the Nazis and an intimate associate of Nazi officials.

After Villarroel announced the formation of his new Cabinet yesterday, the observers in Buenos Aires said it was clear that all civilian elements not only were out of the government but actively were opposing it.

The steadily rising cost of living in Bolivia, believed to be probably the highest in the hemisphere, and currency inflation has added to the unrest in the country, it was said.

Political Feud Spurs Plea For Probe of British Press

JUL 22 1946

LONDON, July 21—(AP) A feud that had its origin in the bitterness of last summer's general election campaign will come to a head this week when a delegation from the National Union of Journalists presents its plea for an investigation of the British press to the sympathetic lord president of the council, Herbert Morrison.

More than 100 Labor members of Parliament are backing the trade unionists' move, which has the outspoken support of Sir Hartley Shawcross, the attorney general, and of Food Minister John Strachey. Several other ministers are inclined to favor it, but Prime Minister Attlee and the remaining members of his government have not yet committed themselves.

Newspapers Divided

The newspapers are divided on the merits of the proposed investigation by a royal commission. Some say they would welcome it, declaring they have nothing to hide. But the majority sees in the proposal the threat of government interference with traditional freedom of the press.

Well to the left of their employers politically, the journalists began talking of a "searchlight" on press ownership during the heat of the campaign that ousted Winston Churchill and set Clement Attlee, whose Socialist views are opposed by most newspaper owners, in his place.

They called for an investigation at their annual meeting in April, and the Labor M.P.'s followed through early this month by pressing for an inquiry into "the ownership and control of the press," any "monopolistic tendencies" and "the influence of financial and advertising interests" upon newspapers.

The energetic Morrison, who welcomed the idea in principle, already had accused the Conservative press of "suppressions, misrepresentations and inventions." He said he was "especially unhappy" about the Kemsley group of newspapers and wished the provincial cities that had Kemsley papers would "do something about it."

Shawcross, the government's legal adviser, spoke with equal sharpness, citing "numerous examples" from the election:

"You remember Lord Beaverbrook's definite and repeated assertion that if the Labor party were returned to power we should have a permanent and extended system of compulsory direction of labor," Sir Hartley said. "Quite untrue, but repeated day after day.

"And Mr. Churchill's talk about the Gestapo: His pretended fear that Mr. (Harold) Laski would really govern the country from behind the scenes. The minute the election was over, all these things disappeared from the press."

In a campaign speech in 1945, Churchill said no Socialist system, such as he said was being advocated by the Labor party, could operate without "some form of the Gestapo."

Churchill and Shawcross had a sharp tilt Friday night over the proposed press investigation during by-election campaign speeches at Bexley. The former prime minister asserted that the Labor government was "already reaching out their hands against the freedom of the press." He charged that the government leaders "do not like to be criticized" and were "thin-skinned."

Shawcross, defending the proposed investigation, said that "the fullest freedom of discussion" should be maintained but that everybody should understand "just how the press is organized."

Beaverbrook Is Target

Beaverbrook, a leading target of Labor criticism of the press, publishes The Daily Express which claims the world's largest daily circulation of 3,575,000 and is published simultaneously in Britain's major cities. Its Sunday edition circulation is 2,283,000.

Other chief targets of the Labor M.P.'s, many of whom are members of the journalists' union, include the Kemsley group, with five London and 15 provincial newspapers, and the News of the World, claiming a world record Sunday circulation of more than 4,000,000.

Critics of the newspapers make two principal complaints: Bigness and unfairness. They contend the great newspaper combinations squeeze out small competitors that are more likely to treat a Labor government sympathetically. They complain that the facts of Labor's program are not being presented.

Morrison has said that the "Tory" press gives the impression Parliament has been turned into a rubber-stamp. Strachey protested that the government's food program was consistently misrepresented, particularly the controversial bread rationing.

Strachey said the public was being given a false impression that the government was lax in getting food from Ireland. Shawcross charged that what he called the "gutter press" was inflating stories of anti-bread rationing petitions.

Newspapers Reply

Today's newspapers replied with with vigor, terming Shawcross' remarks "wildly abusive." Lord Kemsley's Sunday Times said that if Conservative newspapers were "tied," as it said the Labor party's organ, The Daily Herald, was "tied," then "freedom of political discussion in the press as we have known it would be destroyed."

"We appear to be entering on another great controversy about the freedom of the press, one that may be as important as some earlier struggles in that field which are now part of history," The Sunday Times said.

The News of The World commented that "the press of this country as a whole is used to being unjustly attacked and will be ready to defend itself against such ridiculous and unfounded allegations."

The Sunday Chronicle—a Kemsley newspaper, like The Sunday Times — concluded an editorial: "This newspaper insists upon the right to edit itself—it insists upon being allowed to think and speak in its own behalf. It rejects Mr. Morrison's apparent wish to do both for it."

FEDERAL PLAN FOR PALESTINE

more than a week.

"General support for a federal system in Palestine, on the lines of the proposed settlement in India," was reported by the Sunday Times political correspondent, and the Sunday Observer said some of the conferees "are coming around to the idea of a federal solution."

Government Silence Continues

Government officials, who have kept silent on progress of the negotiations, did not comment immediately on the reported Federal plan.

Such a solution, it was pointed out by British sources, could be squared with the Anglo-American Palestine inquiry committee's recommendation that Palestine be neither an Arab nor a Jewish state, and with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's remark at Bournemouth last month that "a Palestine state," representing both Jew and Arab, was needed.

Partition into separate states was recommended by a British royal commission before the war, but the recommendation — criticized both by Jews and Arabs—was not carried out.

With Central Administration

"What is envisaged," the Sunday Times said, "is the partition of Palestine into Arab and Jewish states with a central administration representing both sides, responsible for matters of joint concern."

The Observer said the experts feel it would be "very difficult to fit into certain recommendations put forward in the report, particularly the economic ones, while the structure of Palestine remains as it is at present."

There still was no official indication when the experts would finish their talks on implementation of the committee report, although British quarters expected the talks would end in time for Britain's Palestine policy to be announced before Parliament recesses, probably in mid-August.

Decision On Prisoners Due

A Cabinet decision is expected this week on whether to release all the 2,000 Jewish leaders under arrest in Palestine or to file charges against some of them. The Jews were seized in late June in a British military roundup in which offices of the Jewish Agency were occupied.

Sir Alan Cunningham, British High Commissioner in Palestine, arrived here yesterday by plane and began talks immediately with Government officials.

Bread Deliverers Rebel In Ulster

JUL 22 1946

Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 21 (AP)—Fifteen hundred delivery men who distribute most of Northern Ireland's bread rebelled against the rationing system that went into effect throughout the United Kingdom today and the Government took prompt action to see that Ulster's 1,200,000 consumers get their supplies.

The men complained that handling ration coupons and keeping accounts would take so much time they could not cover their routes and announced their refusal to carry out the distribution after a four-hour conference with Food Ministry officials.

Promptly the Ulster division of the Food Ministry announced that fifteen emergency bread-distribution centers, staffed by Ministry employés and volunteers, would be set up in Belfast schools, and that bread supplies would be rushed into every home, bakery and store that would handle it.

BRITAIN INITIATES BREAD RATIONING

JUL 22 1946

LONDON, July 21 — (AP) Britons began buying rationed bread today for the first time in their history but so few loaves were sold on the sabbath that the effect was not noticeable.

Baker's complaints that the rationing system is cumbersome and unworkable will not be tested until tomorrow or even later in the week, for millions stocked up yesterday in a nationwide rush to beat the deadline.

While most Sunday newspapers stood by their contention that bread rationing is unnecessary, Minister of Health Aneurin Bevan said in a speech that "if bread is not rationed the rich will have it all and the poor will have none."

A general expectation that rationing would not last many months was not discouraged by Bevan's statement "when the harvest comes along we shall have some idea how things are."

Nine ounces daily is the normal adult ration.

SOVIET TO TEACH GERMANS

'Democratic' Students to Receive Three-Year Courses

JUL 22 1946

LONDON, July 21 (AP)—Students "from the democratic sections of the German people" are to be trained as teachers in three-year courses at German universities in the Soviet occupation zone under an order of the Soviet commander in Germany, the Moscow radio said today.

The order said "children of peasants, workers and other poorer sections of the population" would be trained beginning this autumn.

Courses will be given free of charge, the radio said.

NO WORD YET OF 2 YANKS IN RUSSIAN ZONE

KASTCHKE

They Will Be Released 'When And If Found,' McNarney Assured

JUL 22 1946

Berlin, July 21 (AP)—Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, United States European theater commander, said today he had accepted an assurance by the Russians that they would return two missing American officers "when and if they are found in their zone."

McNarney added that he did not believe the pair—Capt. Harold Cobin of Newark, N.J., and Lieut. George Wyatt, of Oklahoma City, Okla.—had met with foul play.

The commander was questioned at length at a news conference on efforts to effect the return of the two officers who vanished July 4, reportedly on an unauthorized trip into the Russian occupation zone.

No Russians Held In U.S. Zone

McNarney was queried about many reports and rumors which have mushroomed about the case. One of these was a report that the Russians were holding the pair as "hostages" to effect the release of Soviet personnel believed being detained by the Americans.

McNarney answered this report with the statement:

"As far as I know, we do not hold a single Russian in detention in our zone."

On July 16, the Americans released to Soviet authorities three Russians officially described as "clandestine operatives in the United States zone of Berlin" after the Russians returned Warrant Officed Samuel L. Harrison, of San Antonio, Texas, and his wife, Helen, who had been held in the Russian zone since July 1.

Assurance From Russians

McNarney said he had not talked about the case of the two missing American officers with his Russian counterpart on the Allied Control Council, Marshal Vasilly Sokolovsky, since July 10.

He said no steps were under way to try to conduct an American search in the Russian zone for the officers and that the case had not been referred to higher authorities in Washington.

"Sokolovsky assured me ten days ago," McNarney said, "that any Americans in Russian custody would be released as soon as they could be located. All I can say is that the Russians have told us they don't have these officers and that when they find them they will return them.

"In view of the fact that a very senior Russian commander assured me of this, I must accept it."

Just A Question Of Waiting

He added that all that was definitely known about Cobin and Wyatt was that their chauffeur drove them to a railroad station in the French sector of the city, where they were apparently to head north. He said the pair were in uniform when last seen.

The head of the American criminal investigation department said last night, however, that he had definitely established that the two Americans were arrested by the Russians at Birkenwerder in the Russian zone July 4.

The American provost marshal's office also said today there was no news of the pair, and that it was just a question of waiting to see when and where they would turn up.

American Quizzed In Museum Looting

JUL 22 1946

O'REGAN

Frankfurt, Germany, July 21 (AP). United States Military Government officials said today an American officer had been questioned in connection with the unsolved disappearance a year ago of former treasures of the Frankfurt Art Museum reportedly worth hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The officials said nothing had been discovered, however, linking any American with the looting.

Mayor Tries To Implicate Yanks

An unknown number of paintings vanished in May, 1945, from the museum's wartime repository at Buedingen Castle, 40 miles from here. Months ago, after the apparent wartime looting was discovered, an American officer—now redeployed home—was interrogated, but he denied all knowledge of the missing valuables.

Recently, officials added, the former Mayor of Marburg attempted to implicate "every American he knew" in other looting when he was tried and sentenced to two years imprisonment for falsifying statements about Nazi connections.

"A lengthy investigation showed there was nothing in any way implicating any officer or enlisted man for looting of art treasures in the Marburg area," officials declared.

Photos Of Diseased Women Are Posted

Frankfurt, July 21 (AP)—The soldier newspaper Stars and Stripes reported from Hob that the 28th Constabulary Squadron had posted photographs of all German women in the area known to be carriers of venereal disease. The displays are shown indoors only.

"We're not taking this action to disgrace these women, but merely to protect the men unaware of the trouble latent in the nice looking girl he picks up coming back from town," said Major Thomas Stewart, of Atlanta, the squadron commander.

Visit Due To Peace Parley

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 21 (AP)—The Social Democrat newspaper Pravo Lidu said today that the journey of Prime Minister Klement Gootwald and Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk to Moscow was in preparation for the Paris Peace Conference, at which this country expects to make some "insignificant" territorial demands.

Some quarters believed one consequence of the trip would be a substantial Soviet loan to Czechoslovakia and equipment for the Czechoslovak Army.

Poland Honors American

WARSAW, July 21 (AP)—Premier Edward B. Osubka-Morawski has decorated Donald Castleberry of Minneapolis with the Order of Polonia Restituta in recognition of his services as director of the American Red Cross in Poland. Mr. Castleberry will return to America to resume his professorship at the University of Minnesota.

15,000 POLES WATCH GREISER EXECUTION

LAHEN

Throng Sees Former Gauleiter Hanged in Square in Posen for Crimes During War

JUL 22 1946

By The Associated Press.

POSEN, Poland, July 21 — Weak-kneed and solemnly mumbling prayers, one-time Nazi Gauleiter Arthur Greiser, who said he wanted to live "to tell the whole truth," was hanged from a newly erected scaffold in Citadel Place early today before a crowd of 15,000.

DAY

The swaggering former Nazi ruler of Posen Province and Nazi president of the pre-war Danzig Senate who sent thousands to death camps and collaborated in aggressive war against Poland, mounted the scaffold between two policemen at 7 A. M.

The black-garbed, white-gloved hangman quickly slung the noose around Greiser's neck, and the trap was sprung.

His hands and legs tied, Greiser was spared from looking into the faces of many whom he had persecuted as a black cloth was placed over his eyes. He wore the same neat suit he had worn daily during a fortnight's trial before the national tribunal.

The throng watched silently as Greiser went to his death—the first person in Poland to be executed on the basic charge of having waged aggressive war against the country.

Greiser, 49, a native of Sroda, Poland, ruled Posen with an iron hand throughout the German occupation.

He spent the last hours reading the bible before he stepped into the bright sunshine to face the hangman.

Greiser contended throughout his trial that he was innocent. He said he had been forced to obey orders given by Adolf Hitler and Heinrich Himmler, and he promised to serve Generalissimo Stalin the rest of his life if he were spared.

Intercession on his behalf, which the official Polish Press Agency claimed had been made by the Vatican, was refused, and President Boleslaw Beirut denied executive clemency. [In Vatican City, a responsible source denied Saturday night that the Pope had intervened in an effort to stay Greiser's execution.]

Two hours before the execution, the Warsaw newspaper Glos Ludu published the headline — "Pope defends Greiser" — and editorially criticized the Vatican.

"Flirtation continues between the Vatican and conquered Germany," the newspaper article said. "It is evident that the Holy Father defends Germany."

LA GUARDIA BARS UNRRA RELIEF BIAS

Says Conditions in Greece Have Been Corrected— Arrives in Rome

JUL 22 1946

ATHENS, July 21 (AP)—Fiorello H. La Guardia said today that, "regulations or no regulations, as long as I am director general of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration I will not stand for any discrimination in distribution of UNRRA goods on a basis of creed, color or politics."

Mr. La Guardia's statement came after a series of questions from Greek reporters implying that distribution by the Greek Government was based on political favoritism. He added that every complaint made to the UNRRA's mission to Greece had been taken up with the Government and "corrected," and that a delegation representing the Left-Wing Eam had told him yesterday that it was satisfied that any discrimination had been corrected.

Mr. La Guardia said that on the whole he was satisfied with the distribution, which was "much better than expected. If the Greek Government is such that it can't make a mistake, then it should leave its job and take charge of heaven," he said. "I've been trying to reform politics in my country for forty years, and your politicians are the same as ours."

He suggested that the Greek press start a campaign for lower interest rates for farmers. He said that the Bank of Greece charged 3½ per cent for farm loans, which are transferred to the Agriculture Bank, which exacts another 3½ per cent and that the cooperatives then get 1 per cent.

ROME, July 21 (AP)—Mr. La Guardia arrived here from Athens today for a four-day inspection of the UNRRA facilities in Italy.

PRAVDA DENOUNCES VANDENBERG VIEWS

Attacks Senator for 'Gloomy Pessimism' on Outcome of Peace Conference

JUL 22 1946

MOSCOW, July 21 (AP)—The Communist party's newspaper, Pravda, attacked Senator Arthur H. Vanderberg, Republican, of Michigan, today as a gloomy pessimist toward the forthcoming Paris peace conference in its international review by Boris Ilakov.

"Pessimists are specializing in gloomy predictions and comments on the impossibility of the great powers' reaching agreement concerning peace-treaty projects," the review said. It declared that Mr. Vandenberg was one of these.

"Vandenberg spoke in his customary role with an ardor worthy of being put to better use," the paper said of the Senator's recent speech reviewing the Foreign Ministers' conference in Paris. "He engaged in opposing the western powers to the Soviet Union and the countries of eastern Europe. The lengthy speech had a superfluity of all possible insinuations."

"It is not redundant to recall that Senator Vandenberg was one of those who predicted failure of the last session of the Foreign Ministers' Council and even published such predictions in the press despite his official position as a member of the American delegation," the paper continued, adding that it hoped that he would be proved a bad prophet.

Stalin Receives Iranian Princess

JUL 22 1946

Moscow, July 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Stalin had a busy week end, receiving Princess Ashfar Pahlavi of Iran and the Communist Prime Minister of Czechoslovakia, Klement Gootwald.

The Persian Princess was given a warm welcome when she arrived in Moscow three weeks ago.

Foreign Minister Molotov met Gootwald at the airport when the Czechoslovak delegation arrived and was present at Stalin's reception of both Gootwald and the Princess. Gootwald said he had come to discuss a series of questions on strengthening Soviet-Czechoslovak friendship and universal peace.

ARABS FROM PALESTINE CONFER WITH MUFTI

CAIRO, July 21. — (AP) Reliable sources reported today that Maj El Husseini, Mufti of Jerusalem, gave "several advices" to Palestinian Arab leaders when they visited him yesterday in Alexandria.

These sources did not disclose the nature of the "advices" but said their result "may become apparent in the near future."

Those who conferred with the Mufti were Tewfik Saleh Husseini, vice president of the Palestine Arab party, and Emile Ghouri, secretary. They have returned to Palestine.

Pasha Denies Complaint

Alexandria, Egypt, July 21 (AP)—Premier Ismail Sidky Pasha denied today a report published by the Arabic Weekly news magazine, Akbar El Yom, that Egypt had made representations to Russia expressing dissatisfaction with Communist activities in Egypt.

GANDHI COUNSELS JEWS

Says Non-Violence Tactics Will Aid Palestine More Than U. S.

BOMBAY, India, July 21 (AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi advised Palestine Jews today to abandon "naked force" as a weapon against British restriction of immigration and to adopt instead the "matchless weapon of non-violence."

Writing in his weekly newspaper Harijan, Mr. Gandhi observed that "one would have thought adversity would teach them (the Jews) lessons of peace."

"Why should they depend on American money or British arms to force themselves on an unwelcome land?" asked the leader emeritus of the Indian Congress party. "Why should they resort to terrorism to make good their forcible landing in Palestine?"

"If they were to adopt the matchless weapon of non-violence, whose use their best prophets have taught, * * * their case would be the world's and I have no doubt that among the many things that Jews have given to the world, this would be the best and brightest."

INDIAN OFFICIAL PREDICTS PEACE

JUL 22 1946

BOMBAY—(AP) One of India's best-known governmental administrators predicts that the racial and religious differences which now divide his country will disappear under the pressure of economic and social problems if independence comes Sir C. P. Ramaswami Aiyer, dewan (prime minister) of Travancore State, says that the Indian National Congress and the Moslem league would be too much occupied with overcoming mutual obstacles to expend energy on maintaining their present differences.

"Although at the present moment the questions of race and religion loom large," he said, "yet the moment the work of administration commences under an interim government and a permanent constitution is set up, the cleavage will soon become economic and social."

He said he believed disputes then would be "between capital and labor, industry versus agriculture, maritime interests against the interior," and the like.

CHINESE REDS CLAIM BAG OF 12,000 TROOPS

Prisoners Taken During Fighting Near Nanking, Communists Say

H. Mitks

Nanking, Monday, July 22 (AP)—Chinese Communists asserted today they had captured 12,000 Government troops, along with their general, in sweeping victories 60 to 100 miles east of Nanking.

Communist Spokesman Wang Ping-nan named the general as Wang Tien-han, who, he said, commanded the Government's 49th Army.

DAY

The surrenders came in the Taihing-Jukao area from 60 to 100 miles east of Nanking, the spokesman said, and 6,000 of them in the 19th Division of the 100th Army "threw down their arms in protest to the civil war" near Taihing, 60 miles east of Nanking.

Also Near Shanghai

Communist troops, according to Government accounts, were battering almost at the gates of Nanking and Shanghai. The Communists, on the other hand, said the Government was attacking north across the Yangtze River into Communist areas.

Correspondent's efforts to visit the supposed battle zones were balked by Government officials, who insisted the "front line" would be too hazardous.

The Government's central news agency described Communist military activity as "a full-blown offensive against the Yangtze towns of Luho, Yangchow and Nantung for the purpose of turning them into springboards to jump onto Nanking and Shanghai."

Said To Be "Smokescreen"

However, Communist spokesman Wang Ping-nan termed these reports a "fabricated smokescreen" designed to cover Government attempts to annihilate Communist forces in Kiangsu province from the Yangtze northward.

Wang said fourteen Government armies, numbering 400,000 men, were engaged in a major offensive northward from the Yangtze against two divisions plus one brigade of Communists, reinforced by local militia.

He said Government troops were striking along a 125-mile front from Laian to Nantung, opposite Shanghai, and that Communist lines had been penetrated to depths of nearly 50 miles at some points.

Strength Of Communists

Neutral observers expressed belief that the Communist forces in Kiangsu were substantially greater than Wang Ping-nan estimated, but still not sufficiently strong to threaten Nanking and Shanghai seriously, with the broad river intervening.

A battalion of Government infantry marched through Nanking this morning with full equipment, but the capital otherwise was without the slightest indication of a conflict within many miles.

Nanking received reports of fresh fighting in many other areas of China and in Manchuria as Dr. John Leighton Stuart, the new United States Ambassador, returned from the summer capital at Kuling after conferring with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Gen. George C. Marshall, presidential envoy.

Stuart said hope still existed for resumption of peace talks.

SEVEN MARINES FREED BY CHINESE CAPTORS

JUL 22 1946

PEIPING, July 21 (AP)—Seven U. S. Marines, captured July 13 near Chinwangtao by Armed Chinese, have been found unharmed at Lotinghsien village, 50 miles southwest of Chinwangtao, the Catholic newspaper Yi Shih Pao said today.

Marine headquarters declined to comment on the report. Search for the men was called off last Friday to permit a truce team to negotiate for their release.

SOVIET TRIES FOR JAP FAVOR

JUL 22 1946

U.S. Army Watching Open Propaganda Moves

R. BARNES

Tokyo, July 21 (AP)—Soviet officials in Japan have begun making open gestures towards the press in a new phase of the skirmishing with General MacArthur's headquarters which has been in progress for some months.

Headquarters officials are watching closely these latest maneuvers of the Russian liaison mission, for MacArthur is known to be determined to prevent the Russians from assuming control of the occupation or of Japan's masses.

Twice in the past fortnight the Russians have issued prepared statements on proposed labor policies to foreign and Japanese correspondents.

Previously they refused to meet reporters, but reliable informants said that for some time the Soviet views had been spread through certain branches of the Communist party of Japan.

Give 22-Point Program

Headquarters sources said the prepared Soviet statements did not violate MacArthur's recent order requiring prior approval by his chief of staff for dissemination of foreign propaganda, since MacArthur's directive did not apply to such "explanations."

On July 10 the Soviet mission proposed a 22-point labor program for Japan, and distributed it to surprised correspondents in advance of its presentation to the four-power council.

Last week MacArthur's economic and scientific section issued a reply asserting that "certain elements" were using propaganda, terrorism and untruths in efforts to seize control of the Japanese labor movement and establish "regimentation of the Japanese masses under leadership of the left."

On Tuesday the Soviet mission issued another statement, reiterating that the Soviet program calling for control and management of business by labor, would "assist in the speediest enforcement in Japan of progressive labor legislation based on the rich experience of democratic countries."

This statement was issued at the Soviet embassy at a press conference.

Although the Soviet mission originally sought to exclude the press from sessions of the four-power council, some observers expressed belief that additional press statements now could be expected to bulwark Lieut. Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko's future remarks to the Council.

American officials repeatedly have contended that the Russians were using the Council as a propaganda sounding-board.

DOIHARA PICTURED AS 'MASTER MIND'

JUL 22 1946

Chinese General Attributes Control of North China Aggression to Him

HENNESSY

TOKYO, Monday, July 22 (AP)—China's Vice Minister of National Defense told the International Tribunal today that Gen. Kenji Doihara, so-called "Lawrence of Manchuria," was the man who controlled Japan's aggression in North China.

"The Chinese Government, in seeking peace, made one compromise after another," said Gen. Chin Teh-chun, "yet the progress of aggression by Japanese militarists never ceased.

"It was Kenji Doihara who actually controlled the whole thing," General Chin declared in describing how the Japanese forced their will upon Chinese officials.

Testifying in the trial of Japan's top wartime leaders, which resumed today, General Chin said that Japanese officers and soldiers would provoke trouble by entering Chinese areas and, if questioned, would protest that they had been insulted. Thus, General Chin explained, the Japanese created a series of incidents through which they could make new demands on China.

General Doihara's demands included dismissal of some Chinese commanding officers, withdrawal of Chinese Army units, bans on migration of Chinese to North China and withdrawal of Chinese Government functions from zones Japan was grabbing, the Chinese general said.

General Chin testified that in 1935, Japan assigned one of its outstanding generals — defendant Iwane Matsui—to eradicate European and American influence from Asia. General Matsui conferred with Gen. Su Che-yuan, commander of the Twenty-ninth Army, of which General Chin was then deputy commander.

"Matsui advocated that Asia should be an Asia of Asiatics," General Chin recalled. "I smiled and replied that I was afraied that what he meant was actually an Asia of Japanese."

The tribunal, which resumed the trial after a twelve-day delay awaiting installation of air-conditioning equipment, lost the first hour today in a long debate over the translation of General Chin's testimony. The defense protested that General Chin's statements were being translated from Chinese to Japanese to English and contended that this permitted a possible loss of the witness' own thought.

The tribunal president, Sir William Webb, rebuked the prosecution for not providing translators able to translate Chinese directly into English. The prosecution reminded Sir William that it was the duty of the tribunal, not the prosecution, to supply court translators.

Maj. Gen. Myron Kramer, who will replace Massachusetts' Chief Justice John P. Higgins as the United States member of the International Military Tribunal in the Far East, arrived yesterday by air from the United States.

GURKHAS GUARD EMPEROR

Relieve Regiment of British at Imperial Palace

JUL 22 1946

TOKYO, Monday, July 22 (AP)—The guard was changed outside the Imperial Palace today—but Japanese were mere onlookers.

At the ceremony picturesque little Gurkha hillmen of the Fifth Royal Gurkha Regiment relieved the Dorsetshire Regiment, which for a month has been guarding important Tokyo points along with Americans.

3024-4275

Company A, under command of Maj. D. H. Houston of Ben Vista, Cullybackey County, North Ireland, staged the guard mount ceremony at the plaza.

Honor guards also are maintained at Empire House (British official residence), at the Canadian Legation, Crown Prince's palace, Yasakuni and Meiji Shrines and Ebisu Camp. United States and British units for the job are selected by competition from among outlying commands.

Slain Soldier Identified

KYOTO, Japan, Monday, July 22 (AP)—The soldier whose body was found stuffed in a footlocker near his barracks July 15 was identified by Army authorities today as T/4 Grant M. McClain, 20 years old, of Santa Paula, Calif. He disappeared from his barracks July 12. Investigators said that he had been strangled and that no clues had been uncovered thus far.

TEST PIG 311 SAGA EXPLODED BY DATA

JUL 22 1946

Animal Merely A.w.o.l., Not Miracle Survivor

McMURTY

Kwajalein, Monday, July 22 (AP). The amazing saga of Pig 311 was exploded today—he wasn't on the atomic bomb-blasted Sakawa after all.

It now appears that the pig was merely a.w.o.l. on the animal ship Burleson when the aerial atomic bomb was dropped July 1 and turned up the succeeding day.

This is the revised story:

Pig 311 was scheduled to be placed aboard the Japanese cruiser Sakawa. The cruiser sank 26 hours after the atomic blast.

Reappeared In Good Health

Some hours later, a small boat delivered a number of animals removed from target ships to the Burleson. About the same time, Pig 311 reappeared in obviously perfect health.

Immediately the story sprang up that 311 had abandoned the Sakawa and spent between six and 24 hours swimming in Bikini lagoon. In succeeding days, Burleson personnel began to wonder at the pig's endurance.

Pigs Don't Swim

Then they recalled these "established facts":

1. Pigs don't swim—one that fell from the Burleson drowned before it could be rescued.

2. Pig 311 was not wet when he reappeared.

3. Pigs generally were less resistant to radiation from the bomb than other animals tested.

4. No one was able to state positively that Pig 311 actually had been placed on the Sakawa.

The conclusion now generally accepted among Burleson radiologists is that Pig 311 must have gone a.w.o.l. aboard the ship when other animals were transferred to target vessels, voluntarily reappearing some 50 hours later.

'DRONE' WILL FLY OVER EXPLOSION OF SECOND A-BOMB

JUL 22 1946

KWAJALEIN, July 21 — (AP) A radio-controlled "drone" plane will fly at 5,000 feet directly over the explosion of the underwater atomic bomb at Bikini July 25 while a manned plane will pass over at 30,000 feet, Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner announced today.

Kepner, commander of the Army's share of Operation Crossroads, said at a news conference that since the subsurface detonation would affect the air less severely than did the aerial burst of July 1, all air craft would be able to go much nearer than before.

Even commercial planes will be allowed closer — they can come within 400 miles of Bikini rather than the 500-mile limit of July 1.

While the air forces in the next test will have nothing to do with actually discharging the bomb, Kepner said some 70 planes would be in the air at altitudes from six to 18,000 feet, plus the one at 30,000.

Photographic planes will take pictures at intervals throughout the day and night. This, he said, was intended to give a periodic check of the condition of ships, since radioactive waters are expected to prevent early inspection from the surface.

The underwater explosion is expected to be far more damaging to ship hulls than was the first test, and the task force wants to have a clear record of any such cases as the Sakawa, Japanese cruiser which remained afloat July 1 but sank the next day.

Kepner said that the first test, even though it failed to score a bull's eye, taught airmen many important lessons about atomic bombing, particularly the action of falling bombs. He did not explain, but it was the first bomb ever to have its entire course of more than six miles recorded by instruments.

"We gained some knowledge, too, on the subject of civilian protection against atomic bombs," the general said. "This knowledge is essential because it is likely we shall not have time to learn these things after a war starts."

There is still a possibility that the test scheduled for July 25 (July 24 U. S. time), may be postponed on account of weather. A turbulent tropical "front" is moving south of Bikini and may enter this area earlier than usual for this time of year. However, the weather need not be as clear as was required for the air bombing.

MAY DELAY TEST

WHITEHEAD

BIKINI LAGOON, Monday, July 22.—(AP) The atomic bomb test to measure the destructive forces of an underwater explosion may be delayed at least a week because of an adverse weather outlook. Vice Admiral William H. P. Blandy said today.

SLEEP ATOP BOMB FOR 'TRIGGER MAN'

JUL 22 1946

Holloway, Admiral and Aide to Spend Night With Missile Before Push-Button Job

FAY JUL 22 1946

ABOARD THE U.S.S. MOUNT McKINLEY, July 21 (AP)—Dr. Marshall Holloway, who will set off the next atomic bomb, is convinced that the age of push-button warfare is already here. He will not even see the show; he will be pressing a button in a room without portholes on a ship fifteen miles away from the blast.

Present plans are for Dr. Holloway to sleep on top of the bomb aboard the weapon craft the final night, along with Rear Admiral W. S. Parsons, deputy task force commander, and Herbert J. Hall of Los Alamos, N. M. They "expect a good night's sleep," Dr. Holloway said today.

They will get up about 4 A. M., Baker Day, and make a final check of the radio link for firing the atomic charge. Then a small boat will take them to the trigger ship the Cumberland Sound, which will be waiting at the entrance to Bikini Lagoon.

The Cumberland Sound will steam out to position while Dr. Holloway goes to his transmitting room deep in the hold and sits down before a walnut cabinet containing rows of buttons, each of which controls a sequence in the firing mechanism.

Following a split-second schedule, he will punch each button until he comes to the last, which is located in a distinctive position set off from the others.

At 30 seconds before explosion time his finger will go down on that button and the mechanism will take over.

"I will then sit back and wait to see what happens," said Dr. Holloway.

JUL 22 1946

Second Atomic Bomb Blast Will Test Hulls of Warships

ABOARD U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, July 21. — (AP) Operation Crossroads today neared its second climatic test, which will be the decisive factor in determining whether the atomic age has made present-day navies obsolete.

From the tests conducted in Bikini lagoon, the joint chiefs of staff will make their decisions and draw a great many conclusions on what the atomic bomb has done to shape navies of the future.

Shallow Underwater Blast

The second test, scheduled for July 25, Bikini time (July 24, U. S. time), perhaps is more important than the first, staged July 1, in determining the destructive force of atomic energy loosed against naval vessels. It will be a shallow underwater explosion greater than man-made explosion in marine history—throwing fantastic pressures against ships' hulls.

The first test, in which the bomb burst in the air above the target fleet, proved that naval architects must redesign superstructures of future combat vessels. On the old superstructures, the comparatively fragile mast, stacks and exposed radio and radar antennae, were twisted or crumpled into uselessness by the fury of the atomic burst.

This time the destructive power of the bomb will be pitted against the hulls of the target vessels. This explosion will put pressure against them much like a giant ramrod.

"What changes in naval strategy and tactics are necessary will be the decision of the joint chiefs of staff," Vice Admiral W. H. Blandy, commander of the test operation, told correspondents.

Change in Tactics Looms

That the atomic bomb will change naval tactics and strategy as well as construction is a certainty. For not only does the bomb create a fantastic shock and blast threat to ships, but deadly radiological hazards must be reckoned with.

Fifteen per cent of the animals placed aboard ships in the first test were either killed outright or have died since. More of them may die from exposure to lethal rays. Admiral Blandy said he considered it too early for a final estimate on what would have happened if the ships had been manned as for combat.

Crossroads personnel is set for the second test. Thursday's rehearsal went off on schedule and was marred only by premature explosion of a photographic flare, blamed on a stray radio impulse.

There will be high drama in Bikini lagoon in the last hours before the explosion. After the lagoon is deserted by non-target ships, a small group of men will go to a special raft in the center of the target fleet.

Will Prepare Bomb

They will prepare the atomic weapon, suspended from a barge at a depth that will remain a secret. Plutonium will be placed in the bomb casing and the intricate trigger mechanism will be set.

When everything is in readiness, the men will leave in fast boats. A series of clocks and radio impulses will prepare the bomb for explosion and the final radio impulse will fire it.

This type of long-distance firing by radio impulse has never been tried before. But in rehearsal it activated an electronic device stimulating the bomb trigger mechanism, and Crossroads officials say it worked perfectly.

However, if the detonating impulse should fail, scientists say the bomb would not become an uncontrolled weapon. It would be disarmed by clock mechanisms and rendered harmless for the men who would have to return and reset the trigger for another try.

BODIES OF FIVE U.S. FLYERS RECOVERED

Fifteen Missing In Collision Of Flying Fortresses Off Panama

JUL 22 1946

Panama, Panama, July 21 (AP)—A search continued today for fifteen crew members missing after a mid-air collision of two United States Army Flying Fortresses near Coiba Islands on the Pacific Coast of Panama.

Five bodies were recovered from the area where the planes plunged into the sea.

The planes collided yesterday afternoon while searching for three pursuit craft which were lost in a violent storm Thursday.

Four of the five bodies recovered were enlisted men whose names were being withheld until the next of kin in the United States are notified.

Names Of Seven Victims

Army authorities released the following names and home addresses of seven of the victims:

MAJOR LEONARD N. CAMPBELL, Roseville, Cal.

MAJOR HAROLD L. CHRISTMAN, Denton, Texas.

MAJOR PAUL J. HYDO, Perth Amboy, N.J.

FIRST LIEUTENANT JOHN R. FRYE, Wollaston, Mass.

FIRST LIEUTENANT RONALD C. MOREY, New Milford, Conn.

SECOND LIEUTENANT CLAIR V. BRANDHORST, Madison, Wis.

TECH. SERGT. HAROLD D. PARSONS, Hannibal, Mo.

All seven resided in Santa Clara Republic of Panama, with their wives, who were informed that their husbands were missing after the collision.

Army headquarters announced that the remaining fifteen included nine officers and six enlisted men.

One Appeared To Explode

Army headquarters said one bomber appeared to break in half before plummeting into the ocean and submerging immediately. The other lost part of the right wing and appeared to explode when it hit the water.

The collision, the Army said, occurred when the bombers swept down to investigate what appeared to be a life raft floating on the water.

The planes were part of a formation based at Rio Hato airbase.

TRUMAN INDICATES HE WILL APPROVE NEW OPA MEASURE

Reluctantly Prepares to Accept Compromise Plan on Price Controls.

PASSAGE EXPECTED

Conference Will Act Today to Send Bill to House and Senate

JUL 22 1946

WASHINGTON, July 21—(AP) A rebirth of OPA, with curtailed powers, seemed assured today as an influential official said President Truman had indicated he would "reluctantly" sign compromise legislation which leaves undecided whether controls will be restored on a list of major foods.

The measure opens the way for another 30 days of holiday on price ceilings for meats, dairy products, grains, cottonseed and soybeans and food and feed products made from them. There is no assurance control will be restored on these items at all.

Expects Passage

Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the House Banking committee, who led the Administration battle for a strong OPA, said:

"I don't think it is a very effective bill, but it is the best we can do. I think the House and Senate will pass it. I believe the President will sign it as a last recourse."

However, OPA Administrator Paul Porter declined to say whether he would recommend another veto. He told reporters "we are now working on an analysis of the bill's economic consequences for submission to President Truman."

The compromise finally arrived at last night by a House-Senate conference committee, breaking a five-day deadlock, does not restore price ceilings immediately on meats, dairy products, grains, cottonseed and soybeans and foods and feed products made from them.

However, it creates a three-man board with higher authority than OPA to determine whether these items shall be re-controlled. If this board fails to act by August 20, OPA then will have authority to restore the ceilings at its own election.

Differ on Terms

There was a difference of opinion among the conferees whether the bill they drafted would permit the control board to restore prices on these food items before August 20, under any circumstances. They will have another look at the measure tomorrow on that point, before tossing it to the House and Senate.

The board would, however, have authority to restore ceilings, prior to August 20 if it sees fit, on poultry, eggs, food and feed products made from them, tobacco and its products, and petroleum and its products.

This was the middle ground on the troublesome food issue arrived at after agents for the House vigorously insisted on erasing from the bill all the Senate bans on further price controls for major market basket items.

As the bill will go into the House and Senate Tuesday for showdown votes, here are the major provisions:

1. A year's continuation of modified price control, and rent authority unchanged. OPA would have all its old power to set rent ceilings, since the compromise knocks out a Senate bill provision that would have eliminated Federal controls where states had entered the rent field.

New Pricing Formula

2. A new pricing formula that will mean higher prices of many manufactured articles. This formula requires that producers, manufacturers and processors' ceilings be placed high enough to take care of the average increase in costs in their industry since 1940, although OPA is allowed some discretionary powers in making such increases. This was substituted for a provision in the vetoed bill, authored by Senator Taft (R-Ohio), which Mr. Truman labelled as the "most damaging" section of the measure.

3. A stipulation that price ceilings shall be lifted when supply of an article or product comes into balance with demand and normal competitive forces are restored.

4. Removal from OPA of the power of final determination when such items shall be decontrolled, lodging this authority in the three-man board to be appointed by the President subject to Senate confirmation. This is the same board that will determine whether meat and the other food items shall be placed back under controls. Agriculture Secretary Clinton P. Anderson is given a strong voice in determining when food items shall be decontrolled or when food ceilings shall be altered.

5. What the President called a "cost plus" provision for profits of automobile and appliance dealers, and an end to OPA's maximum average price regulation intended to force manufacturers to produce low price clothing.

6. Retroactivity of the act to June 30, but with the proviso that "no act or transaction occurring subsequent to June 30 and prior to the date of enactment of this act shall be deemed to be a violation" of price controls.

7. A requirement that in establishing maximum prices applicable to wholesale or retail distributors—on manufactured articles or agricultural products—OPA allow "The current cost of acquisition of any commodity, plus such average percentage discount or markup as was in effect March 31, 1946." This would stop a large portion of OPA's "cost absorption" program whereby distributors are required to accept lower profits so that not all of higher manufacturing costs is passed on to the consumer.

But OPA has been off 21 days, he said, and "none of the direful predictions of Chester Bowles or Administrator Paul Porter have come true."

Meat prices are "coming down," he said, and butter in Washington "is 69 cents a pound, exactly the old OPA ceiling plus the subsidy that was removed."

Taft said the proposed OPA bill is a "great deal like the one the Persident vetoed."

It contains the "Taft principle" that business is entitled to a return of cost plus a reasonable profit, he said, and mentioned that this was grounds upon which the President vetoed the original bill.

Rhode Island's legislature froze rents for 60 days from the expiration of OPA, while the Michigan legislature limited boosts to 15 per cent.

The Association said most of the city ordinances were phrased to expire within 60 days or upon the possible resumption of Federal rent control. Violations usually were made misdemeanors punishable by six months in jail, a $500 fine or both.

In Illinois, Gov. Dwight H. Green called a special session of the Legislature for Tuesday at which time the body may determine whether rent control legislation is necessary.

TAFT SEES END OF OPA BY SPRING

JUL 22 1946

WASHINGTON, July 21—(AP) Senator Robert A. Taft (R.Ohio) predicted today price control will be a thing of the past by spring.

This is "in accord with what the people are thinking," because they want an end to control as soon as the necessity for it has passed, he said in a radio address.

What the people "really are interested in" are food and rent controls, he said, adding they would have had them if President Truman had not vetoed the OPA extension bill.

Taft said he agreed that control is needed for a while longer, until production increases.

SEVEN CITIES ACT TO CONTROL RENTS DURING OPA LAPSE

JUL 22 1946

CHICAGO, July 21—(AP) Seven cities and eight states and the District of Columbia have taken official action to control rents during the price control lapse, while seven other cities have formed unofficial committees to publicize "flagrant" rent increases, the National Association of Housing Officials reported today.

San Francisco, Long Beach and Los Angeles, Calif.; Denver, Cincinnati; Newport and Covington, Ky., were the cities taking official rent action. San Francisco and Los Angeles, by adopting emergency ordinances, limited increases to 15 per cent above the June 30 OPA level.

Denver, establishing a three-man rent commission based upon a post-World War I statute, held increases to 10 per cent; while Cincinnati, Covington and Newport held rents to the June 30 level by emergency ordinances.

"Fair rent" committees to publicize unwarranted increases have been formed in Philadelphia, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Seattle, Miami Beach, Fla.; and Camden, N. J.

In Alabama, Iowa, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Connecticut, governors issued executive orders under their war powers either to freeze rents or to prevent evictions for refusals to pay increases. New York state and the District of Columbia were protected by local legislation when OPA expired.

U. S. MAY REVERSE POLICY IN CHINA

JUL 22 1946

Supply of Lend-Lease Weapons Leads Chiang to Renew Fighting.

WASHINGTON, July 21. — (AP) Top American officials have been considering a shutdown on shipments of arms and munitions to the Chinese government, it was learned today, in the hope that such a move might assist their efforts to unify China.

Possession of large quantities of American Lend-Lease weapons is reported here to have persuaded extreme nationalist elements of the government that they can smash the Communists in a six or eight weeks drive, and they want to try it.

Would Defeat U. S. Policy

That would mean full-scale civil war and a disastrous defeat for United States foreign policy aimed at creating a unified, strong China.

According to one report which responsible officials here consider accurate, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek himself has come to this point of view.

Chiang was said to feel that General George C. Marshall, President Truman's special envoy, might be eased out of China with much face-saving all around if he would accept some sort of "compromise peace" formula, which would in fact leave the government free to act against the Communists when ready.

Shipments Continue

It appears to have been largely in a mood of desperation that officials here took up the question of halting arms shipments to Chiang Kai-shek's forces. Chiang received Lend-Lease supplies throughout the war. After V-J day these continued so that his force might help deal with the defeated Japanese in China and reoccupy Chinese territory. Lately the shipments have continued, with the idea of strengthening China as a stabilizing force in Asia.

Altogether the Chinese probably have received more than $1,500,000,000 of Lend-Lease aid including arms. This went to the nationalist forces, not the Communists. The Communists have been fairly well armed with captured Japanese equipment which the Russians left around in Manchuria, but Chiang's troops are much better off.

DIPLOMATIC FACTS ON PRE-WAR YEARS ASKED BY SENATOR

JUL 22 1946

Ferguson Says Pearl Harbor Inquiry Should Have Supplement.

MORE DATA NEEDED

Prober Contends Official Roosevelt Correspondence Was 'Screened.'

WASHINGTON, July 21—(AP) Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) said today the State department should supplement Congress' Pearl Harbor reports with "diplomatic facts."

Ferguson said he was sure the joint committee which reported its findings on the Dec. 7, 1941 debacle last night did not get all the information to which the public is entitled about international negotiations bearing on the inquiry.

But the Michigan Republican said the six-months-long hearing went as far as a congressional committee could go. He foresaw no attempt to reopen it during this or the next session. "It would be useless to attempt it now or in the near future," he told a reporter.

Signed Minority Report

Ferguson, who signed a minority report differing with the majority on who was to blame, complained also that Miss Grace Tully, secretary to the late President Roosevelt, was permitted to "screen" Mr. Roosevelt's official correspondence to determine which parts of it related to Pearl Harbor.

"I feel the hearing was very beneficial," the Senator observed. "But I hope some day we will get all the diplomatic information. I would like to see the State department some day give out everything in relation to it."

The minority report, also signed by Senator Brewster (R-Me), contended that "the whole question of whether or not it would have been possible to avoid war by proper diplomatic action and thus avert the Pearl Harbor tragedy was left largely unexplored."

"We did not want the people and historians to believe we had all the facts," Ferguson said.

No Action Required

The majority report, signed by the other eight members of the committee, and the minority findings, are ready for the archives. They require no further action by Congress.

The majority laid sole blame on military men for the failures leading to the disaster. It declared that Mr. Roosevelt and his cabinet "discharged their responsibility with distinction, ability and foresight." It asserted that the President and Cordell Hull, his Secretary of State, made every possible effort to avert war.

The majority findings criticized the Pearl Harbor commanders, Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short and Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, and the war plans and intelligence divisions of the Army and Navy here.

Brewster and Ferguson contended responsibility should be shared by Mr. Roosevelt, Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox, Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, Admiral Harold C. Stark, chief of naval operations; Maj. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, chief of war plans, Short and Kimmel.

Writes Separate Opinion

Rep. Keefe (R-Wis), who signed the majority report, wrote a separate opinion contending that "secret diplomacy was at the root of the the tragedy" and that the report had sought "to throw as soft a light as possible on the Washington scene."

At Dallas, Gen. Short, Army commander at Pearl Harbor when the Japanese struck, said his conscience was clear and that the testimony had "fully absolved" him from any blame.

Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War, said at Huntington, N. Y., that he regarded the majority findings as "a very fair report." None of the others named in the report had any comment to make.

The majority added to its findings the recommendations that command be unified in military and naval outposts; Army and Navy intelligence agencies be integrated, an investigation be made of activities of Col. Theodore Wyman, Jr., in charge of prewar Army construction in Hawaii, and Army and Navy organizational principles be revised to meet "deficiencies."

Stand On Constitutional Rights Predicted By Colleagues

Washington, July 21 (AP)—House colleagues of Representative May (D., Ky.) said today they expect him to refuse—at least temporarily—to heed a Senate War Investigating Committee summons to explain his wartime intervention on behalf of an Illinois munitions combine.

These sources, declining to permit use of their names, reported that May, barring a change of mind over the week end, would stand on his constitutional rights as a member of Congress and say he is "too busy" with legislative duties to attend.

Groundwork for such a move on May's part was laid last night with an announcement that he had referred to an attorney the technicalities of the call to testify. The House Military Committee chairman said he had been too busy to attend to the matters himself.

May Appear After Congress Quits

Congressional associates of the Kentucky legislator said he was "considering" an offer to appear at some time in the indefinite future, probably after Congress adjourns, but stipulating again the right to have an attorney at his side and the power to call his own witnesses.

30.24-4277

The committee's subpoena directed May to appear for questioning Tuesday. No provision was made to meet the conditions he set up for his testimony.

Meanwhile, the committee called for Justice Department records of its inquiry into a $2,500 check described by Representative Coffee (D., Wash.) as a "campaign contribution" from Eivind Anderson, Washington defense confractor, in 1941.

Coffee Welcomes Probe

Senator Brewster (R., Maine) termed Coffee's explanation of the check a "belated alibi" and said the Washington legislator would be asked for a formal explanation. "The more quickly he appears, the better."

In Washington State, Coffee said he would "welcome" an inquiry into the whole matter. He added that the Justice Department already had investigated and found "no basis for action."

Refusal by May to present himself Tuesda would pose for the committee the question of whether it will draft a resolution for House and Senate approval ordering him to appear.

This, however, appeared unlikely in view of the approaching congressional adjournment and the likelihood that such a move would be delayed by legislation which still must be cleared through the House and Senate.

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) has taken the position that a Federal statute making it a crime to ignore a subpoena of a congressional committee can be invoked in May's case after adjournment.

A senator or representative has constitutional immunity from arrest during a congressional session, or while traveling to or from one, except on charges of treason, felony or breach of the peace. May has acknowledged aiding the munitions combine "for the good of the war effort," but has denied that he profited personally.

The legislation, broadly differing from the Senate's civilian control bill, appears certain to land before a conference committee for a compromise.

The House passed the bill, 265 to 79, yesterday, after changing it to provide military representation on a five-member control commission and the death penalty for deliberate major violations of atomic security rules intended to aid another nation to this country's injury. The House also specified the armed forces could make atomic weapons if the President ordered it.

Military Interests

The national committee contended in a statement that military interests already were adequately protected without the House amendments. It declared that "safeguards to protect scientists from arbitrary charges were stricken."

The committee, whose members include business men, educators, professional men and religious leaders, declared in a statement that legislation must be enacted this session "if the public is to realize the civilian benefits made possible by its $2,000,000,000 investment."

"Development of atomic energy has proceeded at a snail's pace since the end of the war awaiting adoption of the national policy through action by the Congress," the group declared. "Most competent scientists have left key posts of the Government's atomic project."

The group said that testimony it took "is sufficient to indicate the immediate necessity for certain action and to warrant further study and inquiry into the entire problem."

It specifically recommended that:

1. A special Federal commission be created to unify security and investigation work being done separately now by the various agencies.

2. Congress provide funds immediately to permit fingerprint and name checks of all government jobholders.

The report, made public by the full Civil Service committee, was compiled by Representative Combs (D-Tex), chairman; Fallon (D-Md) and Rees (R-Kans). Rees did not sign it, however, but filed a separate statement saying he thought it was not strong enough.

He said in a number of cases, employes were hired "subject to investigation" when there was grave question regarding their loyalty. A number of them are in Federal employment now.

"Immediate and thorough housecleaning of all those of doubtful loyalty is what is needed," he said.

ATOMIC MEASURE COMPROMISE SEEN

House Plan For Control Of New Power Criticized

JUL 22 1946

Washington, July 21 (AP)—The National Committee for Civilian Control of Atomic Energy today said the House's plan for control of the new power "is a challenge to the world for an atomic arms race."

'RACKET' CHARGED BY EDUCATOR IN GI JOB TRAINING

JUL 22 1946

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) Dr. Francis J. Brown, national authority on veteran education, said today some schools and employers are making a racket of the GI educational program in which $900,000,000 already has been spent.

Dr. Brown asserted in a report on veteran educational opportunities for the American Council on Public Affairs, that tighter controls are needed over a program in which he predicted 2,000,000 veterans will participate by the end of next year.

In an interview, Dr. Brown said some schools increase fees and offer questionable courses "to get all they can" from the government.

He asserted some employers look upon the GI apprentice and on-the-job training program as a "gravy train" through which they can draw government subsidies.

GI educational laws permit the Veterans administration regulate the veteran but not the school he attends, Dr. Brown said. He explained that the law leaves it to the states to inspect the schools receiving fees for GI training.

"But it fails to provide funds for this policing and therefore many states aren't doing it," he said.

"There already are more than 100,000 training establishments that the states have approved for veterans. You can see what a tremendous job it would be to inspect all of them."

Dr. Brown said it was impossible to say to what extent unscrupulous persons have profited through "questionable" practices but he said these methods had been found:

A flying school that split its training course into three parts so it could collect $500 per course for each veteran, a total of $1,500, instead of the $500 it had previously been charging for the entire training.

A shoe shop that hired men under the one-the-job training program, but gave the men no instruction other than what they were capable of picking up by watching.

"The government was paying that shoe shop a wage subsidy on each veteran it employed," said Dr. Brown. "The veteran was getting little good out of it."

Dr. Brown said the non-profit institutions, such as state colleges, are not involved but mostly the offenders are private trade schools.

DISLOYAL WORKERS ENDANGER NATION, HOUSE GROUP FIND

JUL 22 1946

WASHINGTON, July 21. — (AP) A House Civil Service sub-committee declared today the nation's security is threatened by presence of persons of "questioned loyalty" on Federal payrolls.

To permit them to remain "seriously endangers the security of our country," the subcommittee said in a report.

eral Government, which went deep into the hole.

Here's how the Treasury Department analysts figured they fared:

The Federal Government spent $365,000,000,000 and took in only $156,000,000,000 in taxes. It had a deficit of $209,000,000,000.

The State and local governments took in $58,000,000,000 in taxes, but spent only $50,000,000,000. They wound up about $8,000,000,000 ahead.

Individuals and corporations came out $201,000,000,000 better off. Their income was $713,000,000,000 after their taxes were paid and their other expenditures were $572,000,000,000.

The $8,000,000,000 surplus piled up by State and local governments and the $201,000,000,000 surplus accumulated by individuals and corporations exactly equaled the Federal deficit of $209,000,000,000.

That, the treasury men say, was no accident, since "total spendings and total income are really the same figures—they are the head and tail of a coin." In other words, one man's expenditure is another man's income.

All these operations explain the origin of a major national head-

Trillion Spent in Nation in 6 Years; Savings Equal the Federal Deficit

States and Local Governments Had Gain of 8 Billion and Corporations and Individuals Gain of 201 Billion

JUL 22 1946

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—Nearly a trillion dollars was spent in this country in the six defense and war years.

The exact amount, as computed by Treasury analysts, was $987,000,000,000, expended during the calendar years 1940 through 1945.

The Federal Government, carrying the burden of arming and fighting costs, spent $365,000,000,000, about three-eighths of the total.

State and local Governments, cities and counties, spent about $50,000,000,000.

Individuals and corporations spent about $572,000,000,000, of which $517,000,000,000 was for consumers' goods and services and $55,000,000,000 for production equipment.

Taken as a whole group and disregarding cases o individuals, corporations or governmental [illegible] all came out ahead except the sche, the enormous current Federal debt. The Federal Government had to borrow to pay the excess of its spending over its income.

It still owes that money, plus some extra borrowing and some pre-war debt, amounting in all to more than $268,000,000,000 with a reduction to about $267,000,000,000 scheduled for next month.

Just meeting the interest, $5,000,000,000 a year, is so costly that some government men fall back on an old saying:

"It isn't so much the initial cost—it's the upkeep."

Gen. Littlejohn Named Surplus Disposal Head

JUL 22 1946

Will Succeed Gen. Gregory in Charge of Sales

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—Major General Robert McG. Littlejohn takes over as head of surplus property disposal tomorrow, succeeding a long line of officials who found the job a headache.

General Littlejohn, a native of Jonesville, S. C., and former chief quartermaster in the European theater of operations, accepts the job from Lieutenant General Edmund B. Gregory, who quit after less than five months.

General Gregory, in a parting statement, said mudslingers with selfish purposes were throwing obstacles in the way of orderly surplus diposals and were threatening to demoralize the program altogether. "It's a damned-if-you-do-or-don't proposition," he said.

General Littlejohn, a regular army officer trained in procurement, will supervise the sale of an estimated $30,000,000,000 in government war surplus.

ARMY GETS REFUND ON WAR CONTRACTS

JUL 22 1946

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) Undersecretary of War Royall announced today that renegotiation of War department contracts for the fiscal years of 1942, 1943 and 1944 have been substantially completed with total refunds of $6,471,680,000 to the government.

A report from the War department price adjustment board said renegotiation connected with termination of war contracts is expected to be completed by November.

The War department also stated that as of June 30 the Navy and Treasury departments, Reconstruction Finance corporation, Maritime commission and War Shipping administration had completed renegotiation cases involving refunds of $3,165,191,000—thus a grand total of $9,636,871,000 in refunds.

A.V.C. Opposes Army Enlistment Ban On Negroes

JUL 22 1946

Washington, July 21 (AP)—The American Veterans Committee said today it will ask President Truman to revoke last week's order by the War Department suspending enlistment of Negroes.

Charles G. Bolte, national chairman, said A.V.C., challenged the Department's statement that the suspension was based on the Army's policy of limiting Negroes in the army to the ratio at which they occur in the civilian population, about ten to one. The Army said enlistments were at the rate of about five to one.

"The criterion for accepting an Army enlistment should be the individual's qualifications as a soldier, not his color," Bolte said.

He said the Army order was "unadorned discrimination."

Army Sets Up 6 Independent Defense Units

Is Giving More Power to Chiefs of 6 U. S. Areas, in Case of Atomic Attack

JUL 22 1946

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP).—The Army, looking to the possibility that a future attacker may try to paralyze the nation's defense with a surprise atom-bomb assault on top Army headquarters, has broken itself up into six self-sufficient units that can function independently if need be.

Reliable War Department sources said the pattern for defense in the atomic age was aimed at combating warfare such as has been envisioned by General H. H. Arnold, war-time chief of the Army Air Forces. General Arnold has said that any future blow against the United States would come by air a supersonic speeds "across the polar regions" and that the aggressor undoubtedly would use atomic bombs "1,000 times as destructive" as those exploded over Japan.

The Army's reorganized defense provides for six Army units which can function independently if any one or more is knocked out by surprise attack. Each of the six areas will be a complete combat military unit within itself.

Local Control Increased

The War Department is strengthening this defense setup by placing more and more control in the hands of the commanders of these units. Eventually they will have their own air forces to repel any air-borne or sea-borne invaders and will be empowered to call into instant defensive action any National Guard forces in their areas.

Military experts say that the atomic bomb has not outmoded the fundamental principles of strategy, but that it has put new emphasis on the need for speed and deployment.

A surprise atomic-bomb attack doubtless would be followed by attemps at air-borne invasion, they said. This would allow little time for mobilization, as in World War II.

The country must be ready for instantaneous defense and counter-blows, they reason.

Atomic scientists have said that one atomic bomb could wipe out the Pentagon building, seat of the Army's general staff and air staff. Likewise, they have said, an atomic-bomb attack could destroy any American city.

Six Army Areas

The six armies and their commanders are:

First Army, commanded by General Courtney H. Hodges, headquarters New York City, including Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware and New York.

Second Army, commanded by Lieutenant General William H. Simpson, headquarters, Baltimore, including Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

Third Army Area and 7th Army, commanded by Lieutenant General Oscar W. Griswold, headquarters, Atlanta, including North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi.

Fourth Army General Jonathan Wainwright, headquarters, San Antonio, Tex., including Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Fifth Army, Lieutenant General Walton H. Walker, headquarters, Chicago, including Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming and Colorado.

Sixth Army General Joseph W. Stilwell, headquarters, San Francisco, including Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Arizona, Nevada and California.

Need A Cadastral Engineer?— Well, You've Got One Anyhow

Washington, July 21 (AP)—This may come as a surprise to taxpayers, but they have a cadastral engineer working for them.

President Truman says so, and he ought to know.

There may be an idea that all Government workers are either (A) letter luggers, (B) stenographers, or (C) tax collectors.

But Mr. Truman says no. In addition to the cadastral engineer, there are 2,848,526 other employés.

Other Highfalutin Characters

These include such characters as olericulturists, psychometricians, mycologists and nematologists.

On a less highfalutin plane are the tea examiners, the vending stand specialists, the junior laborers and the experts hired by the Supreme Court. These fellows get $150 each year. They specialize in shoveling snow off the judicial sidewalks.

And don't forget the doorkeeper. He keeps door at the House of Representatives at $6,000 a year.

All these facts are in Mr. Truman's annual budget message. This bulky package has been around for quite a spell, but it takes time to study 976 pages of fine print.

This is the message, taxpayers may recall, in which Mr. Truman counted up the pocket change and said the United States would have to cut its household expenses to $35,860,000,000 in 1947.

This is the message, they may not recall, in which Mr. Truman said that exactly $3,860 of this $35,860,000,000 would be spent for a zymologist.

Mr. Truman didn't elaborate on what these people do for a living, but the dictionary gives some hints.

Cadastral Engineer — Surveys property for extent, value, ownership.

Olericulturist — A specialist on edible vegetables.

Psychometrician—Figures speed and precision of mental processes.

Mycologist — Studies fungi, or growths on plants.

Zymologist—Knows all the answers on fermentation.

Nematologist — An expert on round worms.

Welles Foresees Danger In Decision on Trieste

Hopes Move to Change Big Four Action Will Succeed

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP).—Sumner Welles, former Under Secretary of State, declared tonight he hoped earnestly that the Latin-American republics would sucuceed in their reported efforts to obtain a change in the Big Four decision to internationalize Trieste.

Welles, in his regular weekly recorded radio broadcast over station WOL, said the decision on Trieste "is the most dangerous yet made by the major powers."

"It can only bring trouble if it is carried out," he stated. "It cannot make for any durable peace."

Welles devoted his broadcast to a discussion of the forthcoming Paris peace conference, which he called the "most important" in modern history. He criticized the Big Four decision to delay formulating a peace with Italy.

Welles said "our best hope" for peace "now lies in the possibility that the concerted force of public opinion expressed through the smaller powers represented at the coming peace conference may still bring about at return to those principles of right and justice which have been so flagrantly disregarded in some compromises so far reached."

Russians' Veto Stand

JUL 22 1946

CARPENTER

New York, July 21 (AP)—Russia holds the firm and final conviction that the veto in the United Nations Security Council should stand unchanged, it was reliably reported in Soviet circles tonight.

This was the first Soviet reaction on the veto question since Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Foreign Minister, attacked the veto in a broadcast address last Monday.

Evatt, long a foe of the veto, also has formally requested the United Nations secretary-general to place the question on the agenda of the General Assembly meeting beginning here September 23.

Feels Unanimity Important

Reliable sources in Russian quarters said that the Soviet position on the veto is firm, no matter how many speeches are made on it in General Assembly debate or however it is attacked.

These sources emphasized that Russia feels the unanimity of the big powers is too important; that there should be nothing to minimize the importance of the United Nations charter as it now stands.

It is not yet known in Soviet circles just who will make up the Russian delegation to the United Nations Assembly. It was said that the delegation was not yet appointed.

There exists the possibility, however, that Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Foreign Minister, might come to the assembly meeting direct from Paris, if the forthcoming peace conference has finished its labors by that time.

Vishinsky May Take Place

In the event that Molotov decides not to make the trip, there is a possibility that the deputy Foreign Minister, Andrei A. Vishinsky, might head the delegaton to the Assembly.

Russia's reported determination to stand on the veto as is presents a sharp cleavage when the Assembly meets. Some smaller nations have indicated they will sound off against the veto at the Assembly meeting.

The Russians, it was said, would stand by the United Nations charter and by the statement made by the four sponsoring governments in San Francisco on June 7, 1945, on the voting procedure in the Security Council.

Article 27, of the charter provides that Security Council decisions on procedural matters shall be made by an affimative vote of any seven members of the Council.

On Matters Of Substance

It provides further that decisions on other matters—interpreted by the Security Council to be matters of substance—shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members "including the concurring votes of the permanent members."

This means that all five of the permanent members — France, China, Britain, the United States, and Russia—must agree on all questions of substance. The failure of one of the five powers to agree means that the question has been vetoed.

The veto has been used five times by Russia since the Security Council began operations in London last January.

Four Seek Membership

Meanwhile, preparations were under way for the Security Council to take up at its forthcoming meeting next Wednesday the applications of four nations for membership in the United Nations.

The four are Albania, the Mongolian People's Republican (outer Mongolia), Afghanistan and Trans-Jordan.

Siam has applied, but its papers were not yet formulated.

A Brunette From California— Truman Gift To U.N. Assembly

Russian circles in the United Nations assert she will stand firm on retention of the veto. Page 8

Washington, July 21 (AP)—The tall, good-looking brunette with upswept hair is President Truman's gift to the United Nation's Assembly.

She's Helen Gahagan Douglas, who's 45 and as fabulous as they come—from California.

The second woman to represent this country on the international assembly still lists her profession as "opera singer and stage star."

Wife, Mother, Congress Member

Mrs. Douglas's other careers: Wife of Screen Actor Melvyn Douglas, mother of two children, member of Congress from Los Angeles county.

President Truman's nomination came as climax to her freshman term in the House, where Mrs. Douglas is known on both sides of the aisle for looks, oratory and the intensity with which she takes up a cause.

With the mobile face of an actress and the carrying power of an opera singer, she's an effective speaker at the House Democratic microphone.

Classed in the less traditional wing of Democratic ranks, Mrs. Douglas has come forward recently as a champion of domestic civilian control of atomic energy and of OPA extension. Around the table of the Foreign Affairs Committee she took boot training for her new international post.

An alternate on the American

delegation, Mrs. Douglas will do committee work, attend Assembly meetings but will not vote in the forthcoming September meeting.

She's a long-time admirer and friend of her fellow woman member on the delegation, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The two women members believes Mrs. Douglas should go to the Assembly "as delegates first, women second."

Women can make their contribution to peace, she says, not by pushing their own special interests in the peace structure but "by their very nature as givers of life."

Her Job—And Millions Of Others

Proud of her new post, Mrs. Douglas refuses, however, to quote the old line about "biggest job of my life."

"My job," she says, "is no more important than that of millions of American women and men. Peace and democracy must both begin at the grass roots and there each individual has an equal responsibility."

Mrs. Douglas has a busy fall ahead. From the Assembly meeting at Flushing Meadows, N.Y., she must also keep tab on home, children and the congressional seat, where she hopes to win re-election in November.

Seismograph May Show Undersea Bomb Blast

New York, July 21 (AP)—The Rev. Michael Ahern, S.J., director of the seismological observatory at Weston (Mass.) College, said today the shock of the underwater test of the atom bomb July 25 may be strong enough to record on Atlantic Coast seismographs.

"We may get something from the underwater blast because we got recordings of every depth charge exploded off the New England Coast during the war," he said on his departure by plane for England, where he will attend the first International Conference of Christians and Jews.

He estimated that four hours would elapse from detonation of the bomb at Bikini before it could be recorded on the Weston seismograph.

LAST NAZI PRISONERS TO LEAVE U. S. TODAY

CAMP SHANKS, N. Y., July 21.—(AP) The final group of German prisoners-of-war to leave this country will embark from here tomorrow, Col. Harry W. Maas, camp commandant, announced today.

The shipment of about 1,400 prisoners tomorrow, which follows one today of 1,345 men, will leave fewer than 300 prisoners scattered throughout the country in hospitals and special detention camps who will be returned to Germany individually, Col. Maas said.

At one time there were more than 350,000 German prisoners held in the United States, of whom more than 292,000 have been processed through this camp on their return to Europe, according to Col. Maas.

BERLIN, JULY 21-(AP)-A TENTATIVE AMERICAN BLUEPRINT FOR ECONOMIC FUSION OF THE U.S. OCCUPATION ZONE IN GERMANY WITH ONE OR MORE OF THE OTHER THREE ZONES IS READY FOR DISCUSSION WITH THE OTHER ALLIED POWERS, GENMJOSEPH T.MCNARNEY, U.S. COMMANDER IN EUROPE, ANNOUNCED TODAY.

MCNARNEY'S ANNOUNCEMENT FOLLOWED SECRETARY OF STATE JAMES F.BYRNES' STATEMENT LAST MONDAY THAT U.S. MILITARY REPRESENTATIVES IN GERMANY WERE BEING INSTRUCTED TO "COOPERATE WITH ANY ONE OR ALL OF THE THREE GOVERNMENTS (BRITAIN, RUSSIA, FRANCE) IN ESSENTIAL ADMINISTRATIVE MATTERS." BYRNES ADDED THESE WOULD INCLUDE SUCH MATTERS AS FINANCE, TRANSPORTATION, COMMUNICATION, TRADE AND INDUSTRY.

V "AN AMERICAN STAFF OF EXPERTS HAS ROUGHED OUT TENTATIVE PLANS FOR AN ECONOMIC MERGER WITH ONE, TWO OR THREE OTHER ZONES," MCNARNEY SAID AT A NEWS CONFERENCE TODAY FOLLOWING HIS INVITATION YESTERDAY TO OTHER ALLIED CONTROL COUNCIL POWERS TO JOIN IN DISCUSSIONS OF THE PROPOSAL FOR ECONOMIC UNITY.

ZTHE SOONER WE CAN IMPLEMENT THAT PLAN THE BETTER," THE AMERICAN COMMANDER SAID.

JUL 22 1946

MCNARNEY ADDED THAT THE FRENCH, BRITISH AND RUSSIAN COUNCIL REPRESENTATIVES WOULD FIRST HAVE TO CONSULT THEIR GOVERNMENTS BEFORE ACCEPTING OR REJECTING THE PLAN TO POOL GERMAN ECONOMIC RESOURCES IN AN EFFORT TO MAKE THE COUNTRY MORE SELF-SUSTAINING.

LT.GEN.BRIAN ROBERTSON, DEPUTY MILITARY GOVERNOR FOR THE BRITISH ZONE, WAS EXPECTED TO FLY TO LONDON TODAY OR TOMORROW TO CONSULT HIS GOVERNMENT ON THE MERGER PLAN.

MCNARNEY SAID THE PROPOSAL WAS "PURELY ECONOMIC AND HAS NO POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS."

MCNARNEY DECLINED TO SPECULATE ON WHAT EFFECT AN ECONOMIC MERGER IN THE WEST AND THE ESTABLISHMENT OF TWO GERMANIES WOULD HAVE ON THE FOUR-POWER ADMINISTRATIVE SET-UP IN BERLIN. HE SAID HE COULD SEE NO REASON AT PRESENT WHY THE WESTERN POWERS SHOULD WITHDRAW FROM THE CENTRAL ADMINISTRATION IF THEY COULD AGREE ON AN ECONOMIC MERGER AMONG THEMSELVES.

THE AGREEMENT, HE CONTINUED, WOULD "EFFECT A FREE INTERCHANGE OF RAW MATERIALS." HE ADDED THAT GERMAN BUSINESS MEN COULD TRADE MORE FREELY AND MORE STEEL WOULD BE AVAILABLE FOR THE AMERICAN ZONE AND HENCE MORE ARTICLES FOR EXPORT.

"IT IS HOPED EVENTUALLY THERE WILL BE ENOUGH EXPORTS TO PAY FOR IMPORTS NEEDED TO INCREASE THE STANDARD OF LIVING AND SO FINALLY EASE THE LOAD ON THE AMERICAN TAXPAYER," MCNARNEY SAID. "ONCE THE ECONOMIC MERGER IS EFFECTED, THE COST OF OCCUPATION WILL PROGRESSIVELY BE REDUCED."

HE PREDICTED THAT IT WOULD BE 1948 OR 1949 BEFORE THE DEFICIT FOR OPERATING THE AMERICAN ZONE COULD BE ELIMINATED.

BERLIN, JULY 21-(AP)-GEN.JOSEPH T.MCNARNEY, U.S. EUROPEAN COMMANDER, SAID TODAY THERE WAS A GOOD PROSPECT THAT FOOD RATIONS IN THE AMERICAN ZONE OF OCCUPATION COULD BE INCREASED TO 1,550 CALORIES DAILY FOR THE NORMAL CONSUMER ABOUT OCT.1.

THE PRESENT RATION IS ABOUT 1,250 CALORIES.

MCNARNEY SAID THERE ARE SUFFICIENT STOCKS ON HAND, OR IN PROSPECT, TO MAINTAIN THE PRESENT RATION UNTIL THE HARVEST STARTS IN SEPTEMBER. HE ESTIMATED THAT THE HARVEST WOULD YIELD ABOUT 900 TO 1,000 CALORIES FOR THE NORMAL CONSUMER. THIS WOULD STILL REQUIRE IMPORTS FROM THE UNITED STATES.

"BUT WE AIM TO DO BETTER TO GET THE NORMAL RATION UP TO 1,550 CALORIES," THE COMMANDER SAID, "AND TO DO THIS WILL MEAN IMPORTS OF ABOUT 100,000 TONS MONTHLY. THE BIG AMERICAN HARVEST PROBABLY WILL PERMIT THIS.

"EVENTUALLY, WE WOULD LIKE TO GET THE RATION UP TO 2,000 CALORIES."

MCNARNEY SAID THIS WAS ALL PREDICATED ON THE AMERICAN ZONE STANDING ALONE. IF THERE IS AN ECONOMIC MERGER WITH THE BRITISH ZONE AS PROPOSED, THE TWO ZONES WOULD HAVE TO BE SHARED. HE SAID, FOOD OF THE RATION IN THE BRITISH ZONE IS SOMEWHAT LOWER.

BIKINI LAGOON, MONDAY, JULY 22-(AP)-THE PRESS SHIP APPALACHIAN ENTERED BIKINI LAGOON THIS MORNING, GIVING AMERICAN AND FOREIGN OBSERVERS THEIR FIRST LOOK AT THE ARRANGEMENT OF TARGET SHIPS FOR THE WORLD'S FIRST UNDERWATER ATOMIC EXPLOSION.
THE TARGET FLEET HAS BEEN SHIFTED INTO A COMPLETELY NEW PATTERN FOR THE SECOND TEST JULY 25 (JULY 24, U.S.TIME). THE SCARRED BATTLESHIP NEVADA, BULLSEYE FOR THE JULY 1 EXPLOSION, WON'T OCCUPY THE "HOT SPOT" THIS TIME. THE BATTLESHIP ARKANSAS AND THE CARRIER SARATOGA HAVE TAKEN ITS PLACE IN THE CENTER OF THE ARRAY.
THE SARATOGA IS SOUTH OF THE DETONATION CENTER AND, IN A SAFER POSITION FARTHER SOUTH, IS THE BATTLESHIP PENNSLYVANIA. WEST OF THEM ARE SIX SUBMARINES, SOME SUBMERGED, AND TO THE EAST RANGED SIX TRANSPORTS.

JUL 22 1946

THE GALLANT BATTLESHIP NEW YORK IS ON THE INNER CIRCLE OF SHIPS EAST OF THE BARGE FROM WHICH THE BOMB WILL BE SUSPENDED. BEHIND HER SIT FOUR LANDING CRAFT LIKE CHICKS WITH A MOTHER HEN.
ON THE NORTHERN RIM OF THE "DEATH CIRCLE" IS THE ARKANSAS, FLANKED BY A SUBMARINE, LANDING CRAFT AND A CARGO SHIP. BEHIND HER IS THE UGLY BATTERED, JAPANESE BATTLESHIP NAGATO. WEST OF THE NAGATO IS THE CRUISER SALT LAKE CITY, WHICH TOOK A TERRIFIC BEATING IN THE FIRST TEST.
NORTH OF THE NAGATO LIES THE NEVADA AND BEYOND HER IS STRUNG A ROW OF LANDING SHIPS. THE TRIM NAZI CRUISER PRINZ EUGEN ONCE AGAIN IS IN A FAVORED POSITION ON THE OUTER FRINGE OF THE TARGET ARRAY.
ON THE WESTERN SIDE OF THE INNER CIRCLE SIT THE CRUISER PENSACOLA AND CARRIER INDEPENDENCE, BOTH BADLY SMASHED IN THE FIRST TEST AND ONCE MORE IN A DANGEROUS POSITION.
ON THE WESTERN FRINGE OF THE ARRAY, TRANSPORTS ARE ANCHORED. AND THROUGHOUT THE TARGET FLEET ARE LIGHT CRAFT, A FLOATING DRY-DOCK AND A CONCRETE BARGE.

ATOMIC
BY HOWARD BLAKESLEE
ASSOCIATED PRESS SCIENCE WRITER

JUL 22 1946

ABOARD THE U.S.S.APPALACHIAN, JULY 21-(AP)-THE GALLANT AIRCRAFT CARRIER SARATOGA AND THE GRIMY, SMELLY OLD JAPANESE BATTLESHIP NAGATO WILL GIVE TWO REPORTS ON THE MILE-A-SECOND BLAST THAT HITS THEM.

THE FIRST REPORT ON THE UNDERWATER BLAST JULY 25 (JULY 24, U.S. TIME) WILL GO FROM THEIR DECKS BY AUTOMATIC WIRELESS ACTIVATED BY THE BLAST ITSELF, GIVING MEASUREMENTS OF THE TREMENDOUS SUB-SURFACE FORCE OF THE ATOMIC BOMB.

THE SECOND REPORT WILL BE ON THEIR OWN DAMAGE AND POSSIBLE SINKING. THE NAGATO HAS THREE WHIP-LIKE RADIO ANTENNAE STICKING UP OUT OF YELLOW BOXES ON HER DECK. THE SARATOGA HAS TWO SUCH BOXES ON HER DECK.

ON THE JAPANESE SHIP, THE CABLES FROM THE BOXES RUN BELOW. AT LEAST SOME OF THESE CABLES ON THE TARGET SHIPS GO OUT OF THE BOTTOM INTO THE WATER.

AT THEIR ENDS ARE TOURMALINE CRYSTALS. THESE CRYSTALS ARE AS HARD AS PRECIOUS STONES. SOME TOURMALINES ARE USED AS GEMS.

JUL 22 1946

THE PECULIARITY OF THE TOURMALINE CRYSTAL IS THAT WHEN SQUEEZED UNDER PRESSURE IT GIVES OFF AN ELECTRIC CURRENT. THE HIGHER THE PRESSURE, THE GREATER THE CURRENT.

THIS ELECTRIC CURRENT WILL RACE AT 12,000 MILES A SECOND TO THE RADIO AND FROM THE ANTENNAE WILL STREAM AT THE SPEED OF LIGHT TO THE RECEIVING SHIP.

IT WILL BE A RACE WITH TIME WHEN THE MILE-A-SECOND UNDERWATER BLAST FIRST SQUEEZES THE CRYSTALS UNDERWATER AND THE INSTANT WHEN THE BLAST DESTROYS THEM AND THEIR CONNECTIONS.

THE ELECTRICAL AND RADIO CIRCUITS ARE EXPECTED TO WIN, AND RECORD THE VAST ATOMIC PRESSURES BEFORE ANNIHILATION.

THE SARATOGA IS MUCH CLOSER TO THE BLAST CENTER THAN THE NAGATO. THE CARRIER IS ON THE VERY EDGE OF THE CIRCLE OF DEATH, WHICH TODAY IS A FLAT, EMPTY PANCAKE OF WATER. THIS PANCAKE IS NEARLY THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILE ACROSS IN ALL DIRECTIONS.

A153FX

ON BAKER DAY, THE PANCAKE WILL HAVE WHAT VERY MUCH RESEMBLES A HATPIN STICKING UP AT ABOUT ITS MIDDLE.

THIS IS NOT OFFICIAL BUT THERE IS NOW IN BIKINI LAGOON A QUEER-LOOKING CRAFT WHICH WILL BE THE BOMB-CARRYING SHIP.

THIS IS A LANDING SHIP, STUBBY AND STURDY. SHE BEARS THE TALLEST RADIO MAST IN THE FLEET, A LONG, SLENDER POLE WHOSE TOP AT THE CENTER OF THE DEATH CIRCLE WOULD TOWER HIGH INTO THE SUPER-STRUCTURE OF MOST OF THE TARGET SHIP ARRANGED CONCENTRICALLY ABOUT THE BOMB CENTER.

ON HER DECK IS A STRUCTURE THAT COULD BE USED TO SUSPEND THE WEIGHT OF THE ATOMIC BOMB DOWN THROUGH A WELL IN HER DECK. HER SINGLE, TOWERING RADIO MAST, WOULD SEEM TO INSURE A SAFE RECEPTION OF THE SIGNAL THAT TOUCHES OFF THE SECOND BIKINI BOMB.

THE SARATOGA LIES BROADSIDE TO THE CENTER OF THE ATOMIC BOMB POSITION.

SHE OUGHT TO SINK, IF PREDICTIONS CAN BE TRUSTED. YET THERE ARE OTHER TEST INSTRUMENTS ON HER DECK THAT MIGHT MEAN THERE ARE CHANCES SHE MAY REMAIN AFLOAT, AT LEAST FOR SOME TIME.

AMONG THEM ARE 20 BOXES OF SOAP POWDER. SOAP POWDER IS PECULIARLY SENSITIVE TO BECOMING RADIO ACTIVE. NO RADIOACTIVE RAYS FROM THE BOMB ARE EXPECTED TO HIT THE HIGH FLIGHT DECK, BUT RADIOACTIVE WATER MIGHT POUR DOWN ON THE SARATOGA BY THE TON.

JUL 22 1946

ALSO ON THE SARATOGA'S DECK ARE "TINY TIM" ROCKETS. AND BELOW DECK ARE MANY BIG LIVE BOMBS.

SHE CARRIES, EXPOSED, SEVERAL BOXES LABELED MEDICAL SUPPLIES. THESE PROBABLY ARE COMMON DRUGS THAT MIGHT BECOME DANGEROUS AFTER A SOAKING WITH RADIOACTIVE WATER.

FINALLY THERE IS A QUEER WHITE AND RED BLOCK OF LAMINATED WOOD, MARKED WITH A WARNING BY THE RADIOLOGICAL SAFETY SECTION. THIS BLOCK APPARENTLY CONTAINS INSTRUMENTS TO RECORD X-RAYS AND OTHER RAY DATA. THE THEORY SEEMS TO BE THAT IF THE SARATOGA SINKS, THE BLOCK WILL FLOAT UNTIL IT CAN BE RECOVERED.

THE NAGATO'S DECK ANTENNAE WILL HAVE A SPLIT SECOND LONGER THAN THE SARA'S ANTENNAE TO SEND SIGNALS, FOR THE JAPANESE SHIP IS NEARLY A HALF MILE FARTHER FROM THE CENTER OF DETONATION.

RIGHT ON THE EDGE OF THE DEATH CIRCLE IS THE SMALLEST SHIP OF ALL--THE SUBMARINE PILOTFISH. SHE, HOWEVER, MIGHT BE THE LAST TO SINK. SHE IS ONE OF THE STURDY-HULL TYPE AMERICAN SUBMARINES, AND HER SMALL SIZE ITSELF MAY BE AN ADDED PROTECTION.

BOLIVIA

BY JOHN WALLACE

JUL 22 1946

BUENOS AIRES, JULY 21—(AP)—A SECRET MILITARY LODGE HELD THE REINS OF THE BOLIVIAN GOVERNMENT TONIGHT AFTER AN ABORTIVE REVOLUTIONARY COUP AND INDICATIONS GREW THAT A FORMER EXILED MAJOR BRANDED AS A "WOULD-BE QUISLING" WAS LOOMING AS THE NEW STRONG MAN OF BOLIVIA.

QUALIFIED OBSERVERS HERE WHO ARE IN CLOSE TOUCH WITH BOLIVIAN AFFAIRS SAID PRESIDENT GUALBERTO VILLARROEL—IN THE FACE OF MOUNTING CIVILIAN OPPOSITION AFTER TWO AND A HALF YEARS IN OFFICE—HAD MOVED A STEP CLOSER TO RESIGNING IN FAVOR OF ANOTHER MILITARY STRONG MAN.

This was shown, the observers said, by Villarroel's action in forming a cabinet of members of the secret military lodge after two days of revolutionary fighting in [redacted] La Paz. The fighting developed after civilian groups, including students, demonstrated against Villarroel's virtual dictatorship. The demonstrators were put down.

JUL 22 1946

in the capital

The military lodge now was said to be growing more eager daily to take over power from Villarroel.

According to the informants here,

The strong man looming as Villarroel's successor, the informants here said, is Maj. Elias Belmonte Pabon, who lived in Portugal throughout the war after former President Enrique Penaranda branded him as a would-be quisling in a Nazi-directed plot to seize power in Bolivia.

JUL 22 1946

BELMONTE MAY BE EN ROUTE TO BOLIVIA FROM PORTUGAL, ACCORDING TO OBSERVERS HERE. THEY RECALLED THAT THE LA PAZ NEWSPAPER ULTIMAHORA PUBLISHED A STORY JULY 11 THAT HE HAD LEFT LISBON. THEY POINTED OUT THAT ULTIMAHORA, WHICH AS WELL AS OTHER LA PAZ NEWSPAPERS WAS CONFISCATED BY THE GOVERNMENT AFTER LAST MONTH'S ATTEMPTED REVOLUTION, IS IN THE HANDS OF THE GOVERNMENT WHEN THIS STORY WAS PUBLISHED.

JUL 22 1946

30.24-4283

BELMONTE SERVED DURING THE WAR AS BOLIVIAN AIR ATTACHE IN BERLIN. HE IS DESCRIBED IN THE AMERICAN STATE DEPARTMENT BLUE BOOK ON NAZI ACTIVITIES IN SOUTH AMERICA AS AN ACTIVE COLLABORATOR WITH THE NAZIS AND AN INTIMATE ASSOCIATE OF NAZI SICHERHEITSDIENST OFFICIALS.

THE BLUE BOOK SAID BELMONTE RECEIVED SIZEABLE AMOUNTS OF MONEY FROM [redacted] THE GERMAN FOREIGN OFFICE AND HEADED THE NAZI-CONTROLLED IBERO AMERIKANISCHE INSTITUT.

JUL 22 1946

BELMONTE'S GOAL, THE BLUE BOOK SAID, WAS TO ESTABLISH A NAZI-TYPE GOVERNMENT IN BOLIVIA. IT ADDED THAT BELMONTE TOOK REFUGE IN GERMANY THROUGHOUT THE WAR, LEAVING THERE IN NOVEMBER, 1944, TO TAKE UP RESIDENCE IN SPAIN.

ALTHOUGH ABROAD, BELMONTE WAS ELECTED AS A MEMBER OF THE BOLIVIAN CONGRESS WHICH [redacted] CONVENES NEXT MONTH.

BELMONTE'S ACTIVITIES ALSO ARE MENTIONED IN A BOOK PUBLISHED IN SANTIAGO, CHILE, BY ALBERTO OSTRIA GUTIERREZ, FORMER BOLIVIAN FOREIGN MINISTER, WHO EXPELLED ERICH MENDLER, GERMAN MINISTER TO LA PAZ.

[redacted] AND THE ANDES, [redacted]

AND POINTS OUT [redacted] ACTIVITIES [redacted] WERE UNCOVERED WITH THE ASSISTANCE OF SPRUILLE

JUL 22 1946

BRADEN, THEN U. S. AMBASSADOR TO BOGOTA, AND NOW ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE.

OBSERVERS POINTED OUT THAT [redacted] LT. GEN. ANGEL RODRIGUEZ, A FOLLOWER OF BELMONTE, NOW HOLDS THE KEY POST IN THE BOLIVIAN GOVERNMENT AS MINISTER OF DEFENSE IN THE NEW CABINET WHICH IS COMPOSED ENTIRELY OF MILITARY MEN.

RODRIGUEZ WAS IDENTIFIED BY THE AMERICAN STATE DEPARTMENT BLUE BOOK [redacted] AS A FASCIST AND A PRO-NAZI MILITARIST WHO WAS ONE OF THE LEADERS IN PLANS FOR THE NATIONALIST REVOLUTION WHICH PUT VILLAROEL IN OFFICE.

THE BLUE BOOK SAID THAT RODRIGUEZ AT THAT TIME REFUSED TO TAKE OFFICE AS PRESIDENT HIMSELF AT THE LAST MINUTE FOR FEAR OF COMPROMISING THE NEW GOVERNMENT IN VIEW OF HIS CONNECTION WITH BELMONTE.

JUL 22 1946

SCANT REPORTS FROM THE STRIFE-RIDDEN CAPITAL AT LA PAZ, SIPHONED THROUGH RIGID CENSORSHIP, SAID ORDER WAS RESTORED LAST NIGHT, WITH THE GOVERNMENT IN PRECARIOUS CONTROL OF AN EXTREMELY GRAVE SITUATION.

THE CENSORSHIP PREVENTED THE RECEIPT OF DISPATCHES FROM BOLIVIAN CORRESPONDENTS, BUT OBSERVERS IN BUENOS AIRES WELL ACQUAINTED WITH THE HISTORY OF THE COUNTRY PIECED TOGETHER BITS OF INFORMATION BROUGHT OUT OF THE NATION BY TRAVELERS.

THIS IS THE STORY TOLD BY THESE OBSERVERS:

ALL MEMBERS OF THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT OF BOLIVIA NOW, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF ONE, ARE MEMBERS OF THE MILITARY LODGE BEHIND THE REVOLU[illegible] OF DECEMBER, 1943, WHICH REMOVED PENARANDA AND PLACED VILLAROEL IN POWER.

THE EXCEPTION IS MINISTER OF FOREIGN RELATIONS COL. MAX ESPAÑA.

ESPAÑA IS BEING USED BY OTHER ELEMENTS OF THE ARMY WHO ARE OPPOSED TO THE LODGE AS A MEANS OF ACQUAINTING THE SECRET MILITARY CLIQUE WITH THE GENERAL OPINION OF THE ARMY ON HOW THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD BE RUN.

ESPAÑA'S INCLUSION IN THE NEW CABINET CAUSED SURPRISE IN THE ARMY WHICH NOW CONSIDERS HIM A TRAITOR TO THE ARMY AND AN INFORMER TO THE LODGE.

THE NEXT PLAY BELIEVED TO BE PREPARED BY THE LODGE IS TO TURN THE GOVERNMENT OVER TO BELMONTE.

JUL 22 1946

LODGE MEMBERS INTEND, IN THE OPINION OF THESE OBSERVERS, TO BREAK FROM THE POWERFUL NATIONAL REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT WHICH IS HEADED BY VICTOR PAZ ESTENSSORO WHO, AS FINANCE MINISTER, CONTROLLED THE ECONOMIC LIFE OF THE COUNTRY.

ON THE BASIS OF AN OFFICIAL TELEGRAM FROM THE GOVERNMENT AT LA PAZ, THE BOLIVIAN EMBASSY HERE LAST NIGHT ISSUED THIS COMMUNIQUE:

"ALL IS TRANQUIL, BUT IN VIEW OF THE EXISTENCE OF ARMED CIVILIAN FORCES WHICH ARE SEEKING TO DISTURB ORDER, THE PRESIDENT OF THE NATION DECIDED TO FORM A NEW CABINET COMPOSED EXCLUSIVELY OF MILITARY ELEMENTS".

ACCORDING TO AN AUTHORITATIVE SOURCE MORE THAN [redacted] WERE KILLED AND 150 INJURED THURSDAY AND FRIDAY IN LA PAZ CLASHES BETWEEN POLICE AND [redacted] GROUPS DEMONSTRATING AGAINST THE VIRTUAL DICTATORSHIP OF PRESIDENT [redacted] VILLARROEL.

THE UPRISING WAS THE SECOND SUCH ATTEMPT IN BOLIVIA IN FIVE WEEKS. LAST JUNE 19 THE GOVERNMENT CRUSHED AN ATTEMPTED COUP IN WHICH ARMY FLIERS ATTEMPTED TO BOMB LA PAZ. THE GOVERNMENT LATER ANNOUNCED THAT [redacted] FIVE PERSONS HAD BEEN KILLED IN THAT REVOLT.

MERGER

(ADVANCE)...WASHINGTON, JUNE 22-(AP)-PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S PROPOSAL TO UNIFY THE ARMED FORCES UNDER A SINGLE CABINET OFFICER RECEIVED A BELATED BOOST TODAY FROM THE CIVILIAN-DIRECTED UNITED STATES STRATEGIC BOMBING SURVEY. IT WAS BASED ON A DETAILED STUDY OF THE CONDUCT OF THE WAR IN THE PACIFIC.

JAPAN'S LACK OF COORDINATION AT TOP LEVELS CONTRIBUTED SUBSTANTIALLY TO HER DISASTROUS DECISION TO EMBARK ON A CAREER OF CONQUEST AND TO ULTIMATE DEFEAT, THE SURVEY GROUP FOUND.

ITS FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS WERE CONTAINED IN A BULKY REPORT RELEASED WITHOUT COMMENT BY THE WHITE HOUSE AFTER THE ADMINISTRATION DROPPED ITS FIGHT FOR ACTION ON THE MERGER AT THIS SESSION OF CONGRESS. CHAIRMAN THOMAS (D-UTAH) OF THE SENATE MILITARY COMMITTEE, SAID HOWEVER HE WILL INTRODUCE A NEW UNIFICATION MEASURE AT THE NEXT SESSION.

THE SURVEY COMMISSION REPORTED THAT "BUREAUCRATIC RIVALRY" BETWEEN JAPAN'S ARMY AND NAVY IMPEDED WAR PLANNING, PROPER EMPLOYMENT OF AIR POWER, DEVELOPMENT OF ADEQUATE LOGISTICS AND EFFICIENT USE OF HER ECONOMIC RESOURCES.

THE EXISTENCE OF SUCH JOINT AGENCIES AS THE SUPREME WAR COUNCIL "SERVED MAINLY TO HIDE THE FACT THAT REAL UNITY, INTEGRATION, AND COORDINATION WERE CONSCPICUOUSLY LACKING," THE SURVEY SAID.

IN ANY REORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN DEFENSES, HOWEVER, THE SURVEY RECOMMENDED THAT THE AIR FORCES BE BROADENED INTO A CO-EQUAL SERVICE WITH ADDED RESPONSIBILITIES FOR ROCKET AND OTHER DEFENSE.

IT PROPOSED THAT THIS SERVICE "SHOULD BE GIVEN PRIMARY RESPONSIBILITY FOR PASSIVE AND ACTIVE DEFENSE AGAINST LONG RANGE ATTACK ON OUR CITIES, INDUSTRIES AND OTHER SUBSTANTIAL RESOURCES; FOR STRATEGIC ATTACK, WHETHER BY AIRPLANE OR GUIDED MISSILE; AND FOR ALL AIR UNITS OTHER THAN CARRIER AIR AND SUCH LAND-BASED AIR UNITS AS CAN BE MORE EFFECTIVE AS COMPONENT PARTS OF THE ARMY OR NAVY."

SOME PASSIVE DEFENSE MEASURES CURRENTLY ARE BEING SHAPED BY THE ARMY AND NAVY MUNITIONS BOARD. ALL THREE SERVICES ARE WORKING ON GUIDED MISSILES, AND THE ARMY AIR FORCES AND THE NAVY ARE COMPETING FOR CONTROL OF SOME PHASES OF LAND-BASED AIR POWER.

30.24-4285

A78WX

THE SURVEY COMMISSION, HEADED BY FRANKLIN D'OILIER, FORMER NATIONAL COMMANDER OF THE AMERICAN LEGION, MADE THESE OTHER MAJOR RECOMMENDATIONS:

1. RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT. "IF THE UNITED STATES IS NOT TO BE FORCED TO HASTY AND INADEQUATE MOBILIZATION EVERY TIME THE THREAT OF AGGRESSION ARISES IN THE WORLD, IT IS ESSENTIAL THAT IN THE FIELD OF MILITARY WEAPONS AND TACTICS SHE BE TECHNICALLY NOT MERELY ABREAST OF, BUT ACTUALLY AHEAD OF ANY POTENTIAL AGGRESSOR. X X EXPENDITURES FOR RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT IN THE ORDER OF ONE BILLION DOLLARS ANNUALLY MAY BE REQUIRED."

JUL 22 1946

2. INTELLIGENCE. "GREATER CENTRALIZATION TO BE PROVIDED BY THE NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE AUTHORITY X X THE PRESENT LACK OF RECOGNIZED RESPONSIBILITY FOR INTELLIGENCE WORK BY THE VARIOUS OPERATING ORGANIZATIONS AND THE PRESENT SHORTAGE OF TRAINED AND COMPETENANT INTELLIGENCE PERSONNEL GIVE CAUSE FOR ALARM AND REQUIRE CORRECTION."

3. ARMED STRENGTH AS A FORCE FOR PEACE. "THE BEST WAY TO WIN A WAR IS TO PREVENT IT FROM OCCURRING," BUT "PREVENTION OF WAR WILL NOT BE FURTHERED BY NEGLECT OF STRENGTH. X X AS ONE OF THE GREAT POWERS WE MUST BE PREPARED TO ACT IN DEFENSE OF LAW AND TO DO OUR SHARE IN ASSURING THAT OTHER NATIONS LIVE UP TO THEIR COVENANT."

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE ATOMIC BOMB AND OTHER NEW WEAPONS AND THE "UNIQUE" NATURE OF THE PACIFIC WAR PROMPTED THE SURVEY COMMISSION TO CAUTION IN APPLYING THE WAR'S LESSONS TO THE FUTURE, BUT IT VENTURED THIS ADVICE:

1. CONTROL OF THE AIR IS OF EVEN GREATER SIGNIFICANCE SINCE THE ARRIVAL OF THE ATOM BOMB AND "THE MOST INTENSE EFFORT MUST BE DEVOTED TO PERFECTING DEFENSIVE AIR CONTROL BOTH BY DAY AND NIGHT."

2. OUR VULNERABILITY TO BLITZKRIEG ATTACK BY ROCKETS AND OTHER WEAPONS MUST BE MATERIALLY REDUCED BY PEACETIME PREPARATION OF A SYSTEM OF SHELTERS, AIR RAID WARNINGS, PLANS FOR EVACUATION OF CITIES, STOCKPILING CRITICAL MATERIALS AND DISPERSING KEY INDUSTRIES.

3. IN A FUTURE WAR, HEAVY BOMBERS WILL NOT BE ABLE TO OPERATE EFFECTIVELY MUCH BEYOND THE RANGE OF PROTECTING FIGHTERS.

IN ITS 20,000-WORD REVIEW OF THE PACIFIC WAR, THE SURVEY REPORTED THAT THE MISTAKES OF JAPAN'S LEADERS HELPED MAKE HER DOWNFALL CERTAIN, JUST AS GEN.DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER CONCLUDED IN HIS REPORT ON THE EUROPEAN CAMPAIGN THAT THE ALLIED VICTORY WAS AIDED BY NAZI MISCALCULATIONS.

A79WX

JUL 22 1946

WITH THE BENEFIT OF "HINDSIGHT" THE GROUP SUGGESTED THAT THE UNITED STATES DELAYED VICTORY BY ERRORS, BEGINNING WITH A FAILURE BY CONGRESS TO PROVIDE FOR STRONGER LAND, SEA AND AIR FORCES AFTER JAPAN'S 1931 MANCHURIAN VENTURE. LARGER OVERALL APPROPRIATIONS "MIGHT HAVE MADE WAR UNNECESSARY."

IN THE WAR, MORE SUBMARINES SHOULD HAVE BEEN BUILT AND USED AND BOMBERS SHOULD HAVE CONCENTRATED MORE HEAVILY ON JAPANESE RAILROADS, IT WAS SUGGESTED. FINALLY "WE CONTINUED ALL-OUT MOBILIZATION OF ALL RESOURCES X X BEYOND THE TIME WHEN THIS WAS STILL REASONABLY REQUIRED."

"IN ALL PROBABILITY PRIOR TO 1 NOV., 1945, JAPAN WOULD HAVE SURRENDERED EVEN IF THE ATOMIC BOMBS HAD NOT BEEN DROPPED, EVEN IF RUSSIA HAD NOT ENTERED THE WAR, AND EVEN IF NO INVASION HAD BEEN PLANNED OR CONTEMPLATED," THE REPORT CONCLUDED.

JAPAN'S TREACHEROUS PEARL HARBOR VICTORY WAS CHEAP, COSTING HER ONLY 29 PILOTS. AND TWO DAYS LATER THE BRITISH WARSHIPS PRICE OF

WALES AND REPULSE WERE SENT TO THE BOTTOM WITH THE LOSS OF BUT FOUR JAPANESE NAVY MEDIUM BOMBERS. BUT BY THE TIME OF THE SURRENDER,
ALL JAPANESE PLANE LOSSES WERE TOTALLED AT 50,000, AGAINST 27,000
AMERICAN PLANES LOST IN THE PACIFIC.
THE REPORT CREDITED SUBMARINES AND CARRIER-BASED PLANES WITH MOST OF THE HAVOC WROUGHT ON JAPANESE SHIPPING. OF 8,900,000 TONS OF MERCHANT SHIPS SUNK OR SERIOUSLY DAMAGED, SUBMARINES WERE FOUND TO HAVE ACCOUNTED FOR 54.7 PERCENT. PACIFIC.
CARRIER PLANES WERE CREDITED WITH 16.3 PERCENT OF THE MERCHANT SHIP
TONNAGE SUNK, 10.2 PERCENT TO ARMY LAND-BASED PLANES, 4.3 PERCENT TO NAVY AND MARINE LAND PLANES, 2.3 PERCENT TO MINES. THE SCORE IN WAR-SHIPS SUNK FAVORED THE NAVY MORE HEAVILY.
ON THE JAPANESE HOMELAND ISLANDS HOWEVER ARMY B-29S ALONE DROPPED
147,000 TONS OF BOMBS COMPARED WITH 6,800 TONS BY NAVY AIRCRAFT.

93 Dead or Missing in Jerusalem As Blast by Terrorists Shatters British Headquarters in Hotel

JUL 23 1946

Jewish Terrorists Blamed for Explosion Killing British Officers

JUL 23 1946

53 OTHERS HURT

52 Still Missing in Wreckage of Army Headquarters in Hostelry

O'CAGLIER'S

JERUSALEM, July 22—(AP) The Palestine government announced tonight that 93 persons, including 14 senior British and Palestine officers, were killed outright or are missing under a "huge pile of debris" in the bombing of the palatial King David hotel.

NIGHT

The official announcement of the casualties was made shortly after the Jewish agency expressed horror at the bombing and called upon the Jewish community in Palestine "to rise up against these abominable outrages."

Terrorists Blamed

Police attributed the attack to "Jewish terrorists."

Known casualties up to 9:30 p. m., the Palestine government said, were 41 dead, including eight unidentified bodies, 52 missing in the wreckage and 53 injured. The missing include 12 senior British officers of the government secretariat and two senior Palestine officers of the Attorney General's department.

The blast, which ripped through the secretariat and the headquarters of the British Army, destroyed 25 rooms on five floors and tore off a whole corner of the massive hotel.

A few hours after the blast, 20 bodies were removed from the wreckage.

Woman's Body Recovered

When the body of a member of the British Army Women's Auxiliary was brought out, several British soldiers were heard to say: "There'll be hell to pay about our girls."

An entire city block of St. Julian's Way in front of the hotel was littered with dust, broken glass and hundreds of beer bottlecaps which apparently were blown from the crowded barroom. Trees in front of the hotel were knocked down. There were dead birds in the gutter.

In the Y.M.C.A. across the street all the windows of the gymnasium wing were blasted out, and the building bears a huge bloodstain of a man's body hurled from an office in the hotel by the force of the blast.

Relatives and friends of those still missing lined up in the main lobby of the Y.M.C.A. waiting for some official word on their loved ones.

Statement Issued

The Jewish agency, a public body established for the purpose of advising and cooperating in the administration of Palestine in the interests of Jewish inhabitants, said in its statement:

"The executive of the Jewish agency and of the Jewish National council express their horror at the dastardly crime perpetrated by a gang of desperadoes who today attacked government offices in Jerusalem and shed the innocent blood of government officers and other citizens, British, Jewish and Arab.

"They extend their deepest sympathy to the relatives of those who have been murdered and those who have been injured. The Yishu (Jewish community in Palestine) is called upon to rise up against these abominable outrages."

Responsible Jewish sources promptly blamed the attack on "either the Irgun Zvai Leumi or the Stern gang," which they described as the more irresponsible of the three underground Jewish groups. Haganah, the third underground organization, was absolved of blame by both the Jews and the British.

Warning Telephoned

The explosion, touched off at 12:30 p.m., when the military and government staffs were at full strength, ripped out a corner of the hotel from the ground to the roof, wrecking a section about three rooms long and three wide. Witnesses to the explosion said a girl telephoned the hotel 15 minutes before the blast saying, "your building is about to be bombed."

Immediately after the explosion, the Jewish quarters of Jerusalem were placed under a strict curfew with none of the residents of those areas allowed on the streets. Fully-armed British soldiers by the truckloads, accompanied by Bren gun carriers, patrolled the city.

Malcolm P. Hooper, acting American consul general in Palestine, offered all the facilities of the consulate general and the use of the staff to the Palestine government. The British expressed appreciation of the offer and said they probably would take advantage of it.

Hooper, who has spent three and a half years in Palestine, also visited the homes of a number of Palestine government officials known to have perished in the bombing.

Guests Ousted

[redacted] officer, himself [redacted] those inside.

A high British [redacted] asked that his name not be [redacted] declared: "You see that wreckage? That's the wreckage of the Jewish state."

A reliable Jewish source said: "The Jewish reaction to this outrage is one of unspeakable horror and shock. There is no excuse for murder. This was done by a terrorist group that doesn't think like we Jews do."

The attack came just 23 days and eight hours after the British army occupied the Jewish agency and arrested Jewish leaders in what was officially described as an all-out campaign against terrorist activities in Palestine.

White Paper Authorized

(In London the British cabinet authorized a white paper, detailing evidence which the government says links Jewish leaders with Palestine violence.)

Eyewitnesses furnished this sequence of events:

At about 12:15 p. m. a girl telephoned the King David hotel and said, "Your building is about to be bombed." She then hung up abruptly.

The telephone operator at the hotel gave the alarm, a siren sounded and traffic was halted throughout Jerusalem. At the same time, a girl telephoned the French consulate, near the King David, to warn, "in a few minutes, there will be an explosion in your neighborhood. I suggest you open all your windows." The French consulate secretaries did so and there were no casualties there.

Explosions Occur

Fifteen minutes later, a grenade was thrown from a taxi in front of some shops 50 yards from the hotel, but failed to explode. Seconds later, two minor explosions occurred 100 yards on either side of the hotel, apparently as diversionary measures. Then another taxi containing eight young men, dressed as Arabs, stopped near the hotel and the occupants entered the building. They passed through a downstairs corridor and were stopped by a British major who regarded them as suspicious. One of the men wounded the major with a pistol shot.

While two of the intruders covered the major and hotel servants with pistols, the other six planted milk cans containing explosives in [redacted] conference, the hotel's night club and leading Jerusalem place of entertainment.

Meanwhile, a truck and two taxis containing a number of heavily armed youths stormed the south end of the hotel containing the secretariat offices and there exchanged gunfire with British soldiers until a heavy explosion wrecked the hotel wing. The youths fled on foot—some of them apparently wounded. Police reported they arrested two persons a short distance from the hotel, but would give no further details.

Jews Are Tense

According to reports reaching Jerusalem the Jewish population throughout the Holy Land was tense tonight. Most Jews were highly indignant concerning the attacks.

"This is no attack on the British, but on Dr. (Chaim) Weizmann," Zionist leader, one source declared.

Another Jewish source termed the attack "an attempt to discredit Weizmann in his present talks with the British and trying to prove they can get a Jewish state by force."

The blast, described by a British officer as equivalent to the explosion of a 500-pound bomb, broke windows throughout Jerusalem and injured a number of persons some distance from the hotel which stands atop a gradually sloping hill overlooking the business district of the city.

The only American known to be injured was Richard Mowrer, New York Post correspondent, whose leg was broken when he was hit by a falling stone while walking past the hotel.

Britain Authorizes Palestine White Paper

LONDON, July 22—(AP) The British cabinet announced tonight it had authorized a white paper detailing evidence which, the government said, links Jewish leaders with Palestine violence.

Meanwhile, Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine high commissioner, conferred with King George, and was understood to have given him a first-hand report on the tense situation, aggravated by the blast which wrecked British general headquarters in Jerusalem and killed at least 93 persons.

The Colonial office withheld comment immediately upon the new Jerusalem outbreak.

It was expected that the white paper would be issued almost immediately to allow debate in the House of Commons before the summer recess, expected about Aug. 1.

In the Commons debate which may come later this week, Prime Minister Attlee is expected to make a statement on public order in Palestine, including the fresh outbreak of violence, and express government views on probable long-term policy.

BRITISH TO PUBLISH DATA ON PALESTINE

JUL 23 1946

London, July 22 (A. P.).—The British Cabinet today authorized publication of a White Paper detailing the evidence which the Government says links Jewish leaders with Palestine violence. The action was taken almost simultaneously with the King David Hotel explosion in Jerusalem.

DAY

No date was set for publication of the documena, but it was expected to be issued almost immediately, to allow debate before Parliament recesses on August 1.

The Colonial Office withheld immediate comment on the latest violence in Palestine, but Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, High Commissioner for Palestine, who is in London, conferred with King George and was understood to have given him a first-hand account of the tense situation.

ers. A police communiqué gave the estimate of dead. Among the 60 reported unofficially as injured was an American, Correspondent Richard Mowrer, of the New York Post, who was reported to have suffered a broken leg while walking past the hotel.

A curfew was imposed. Pedestrians and traffic vanished from streets in Jewish quarters of Jerusalem. Tight cordons barred access to the King David Hotel, one of the finer in eastern Mediterranean countries, while soldiers dug into the rubble for more bodies and for wounded.

Veteran Postal Official Killed

Postmaster General G. D. Kennedy, a veteran of 25 years of Government service in Palestine, was known to have been killed.

The explosion was likened by a British army officer to the detonation of a 500-pound bomb. It shattered the uneasy calm of Jerusalem, torn by Jewish demands for more immigration and Arab opposition, at 12.30 P.M.

The curfew was imposed soon afterward while flames were licking parts of the wreckage of the right wing of the hotel. The secretariat appeared to have suffered more heavily than army headquarters. The military offices were on the upper floors. The secretariat occupied nine rooms. Pedestrians were permitted to move in certain areas, but no traffic was allowed on the streets except vehicles of troops and police.

Troop Trucks By Hundreds

Hundreds of truckloads of troops and Bren carriers moved through the city.

A military officer, who saw the attack, said a small bomb first exploded a block from the hotel, breaking windows. This was evidently a diversion.

Seconds later, a burst from a tommygun ripped out windows of the secretariat. A few minutes later a tremendous explosion blew the corner of the hotel—largest in Palestine—into rubble.

Blood On British "WAC's"

"I saw dead men lying on the streets," one eyewitness said. "There were several ATS (British Army Women's Auxiliary) girls covered with mlood from head to foot. One man wsa blown clear across the street and his body hit the side of the Y.M.C.A. building."

The Y.M.C.A. approximately 100 yards from the hotel, was blotched with a bloodstan one foot wide, but apparently was undamaged.

Warning Phoned

The telephone operator at the hotel said that fifteen minutes before the explosion she received an anonymous call saying the hotel was to be blown up. She was advised to flee.

Instead, she spread the alarm and many guests ran from the building. Others, accustomed to alarms, remained. As word of the mysterious call spread, air-raid sirens atop the hotel sounded and others throughout the city took up the eerie howl.

While an excited crowd was standing in the street outside the hotel, eighteen youths, six of them dressed as Arabs, appeared in a long corridor of the hotel basement. A British officer said the young men spoke in Hebrew.

Witnesses said they came from the kitchen and "everywhere" in the hotel.

British Major Beaten

A British major, suspecting their intent, shouted at the group to halt and reached for his revolver.

The youths dressed as Arabs fired at him and missed. Then they attacked him bodily, pinned him against the wall and produced tommyguns. His fate was not known.

A number of the raiders then ran into the La Regence basement night club beneath the wing of the hotel in which the British Army headquarters were located. There they placed their explosive. Within 90 seconds after they fled the terrific blast occurred.

Six Seen To Escape

Whether all the assassins escaped the explosion was not known. Six however, were seen to jump into an automobile which had been waiting. They escaped.

Part Of Group Flees After Leaving Explosives

JUL 23 1946

C. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, July 22 (AP)—Terrorists bombed and shattered part of the huge King David Hotel, headquarters of the British Army and the secretariat of the Palestine Government, today, killing at least 50 persons in a terrifying blast that shook the modern part of this ancient city.

The attack came 23 days after the British Army occupied the Jewish Agency and arrested 2,000 Jews and lead-

The explosion ripped out the corner of the hotel from the ground to the roof. It wrecked a section about three rooms long and three rooms wide, where clerical offices of the secretariat were located.

Most department heads were elsewhere.

The Palestine police communiqué identified the assassins only as "terrorists" and said the greater part of Government offices in the right wing of the hotel were blown up.

The staffs of both the Palestine Government and the British Army were at full strength, the communiqué said, and numerous visitors were in the offices.

The announcement said "not less than 50" persons died, and the victims were persons from all "communities" in Palestine as well as British military personnel.

Windows were shattered widely in Jerusalem. A number of persons some distance from the hotel were injured.

British Commander Rushes There

Maj. Gen. Sir Evelyn Barker, British commander in Jerusalem, was reported to have hurried to the hotel soon after the attack.

Sir John Shaw, chief of the Palestine Government' secretariat, escaped without injury.

Most of the casualties were soldiers.

Ambulances and taxis were pressed into service to remove the injured.

U. S. Capitalists Seek New War, Moscow Charges in Broadcast

JUL 23 1946

LONDON, July 22—(AP) Moscow radio broadcasts charged today that "capitalists" in the United States "wish for a new war," and that America was fostering civil war in China.

A broadcast quoting an article in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, said that "it is no wonder that American capitalist monopolies, which made fortunes out of the war, are by all and every means supporting actions of certain political groups engaged in propaganda for a new war, and in sowing discord and uncertainty."

Sees Military Plan

Earlier the Moscow radio, quoting the Soviet periodical New Times, said there were indications that American military authorities were preparing for major operations in China. This broadcast added that "the United States looks upon its economic predominance in China as a legitimate prize of war, and upon China as its new economic boundary." The Soviet public "cannot be indifferent to America's policy in China," the broadcast said.

The Pravda article by a Soviet economist, as quoted by the Moscow radio, said that the U. S. Congress's guarantee to corporations to return $30,000,000 in wartime taxes if 1946 profits fell below average for the three years ending 1939, "acquires extreme significance."

"It results in the fact that the government compensates corporations for losses caused by strikes and therefore it actually finances the capitalist monopolies in their struggle against the workers," the broadcast said.

Hits War Profits

"The problem of war profits is not only of internal American significance, it is an indisputable fact that a handful of corporations and a handful of wealthy men have become fabulously rich at the expense of the labor expended and blood shed during this war. Therefore we should not be surprised that they like war and that they wish for a new war."

The New Times review of American policy in the Orient said that events in China made it "ever more evident that the principal factor favoring fomentation of civil war is the support given by the United States to reactionary circles in the Kuomintang in their fight against the democratic movement."

The broadcast charged that America's present policy in China "differs radically from that pursued by the Roosevelt administration."

"As a result," the Moscow radio continued, "thousands of American troops have been forced to go on fighting an undeclared war on behalf of a reactionary and repressive regime.

"To judge by the actions of American military authorities in China they are preparing for major operations.

"The United States 7th Fleet is concentrated in Tsingtao, in which region military clashes are expected. The command of American Marines in Tsingtao has already declared its intention of helping Chinese Government troops. An American flotilla is cruising up and down the Yangtze to assist the Chinese Government, on the pretext of maintaining order.

The Russian Conclusion

"This recital of facts naturally compels the conclusion that the United States has no intention of changing its policy of interfering in internal affairs in China—a policy which unquestionably pursues far-reaching aims of furtherance of an ambition to create in China not only an economic and political but also a strategic base for establishment of American domination in the Far East.

"Such a policy is bound to excite most serious apprehensions in circles that strive to maintain and consolidate peace. For this reason and also because of sincere sympathy for the cause of the internal pacification of China, her unification and democratization, the Soviet public cannot be indifferent to America's policy in China.

"The Soviet public is unanimously of the opinion it is high time to proceed to a practical realization of all decisions of the Moscow conference of Foreign Ministers on China as they contain a minimum of prerequisites necessary for the successful conclusion of China's internal problems and the problems of insuring lasting peace in the Far East."

Soviet Hits Course Of U.S. In China

JUL 23 1946

London, July 22 (AP)—The Moscow radio accused America today of fostering civil war in China in order to assure economic and political dominance in the Far East, and asserted:

"The Soviet public cannot be indifferent to America's policy in China."

Quoting from a lengthy review on American policy in China by the magazine New Times, the broadcast declared:

"The United States looks upon its economic predominance in China as a legitimate prize of war and upon China as its new economic boundary."

Charges Reactionaries Aided

The review said events in China made it "ever more evident that the principal factor favoring fomentation of civil war is the support given by the United States to reactionary circles in the Kuomintang in their fight against the democratic movement."

The broadcast charged that America's present policy in China "differs radically from that pursued by the Roosevelt Administration." It explained that wartime efforts had been to unite China, but that American influence now was exerted toward strengthening Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek against Chinese Communist forces.

"As a result," continued Moscow, "thousands of American troops have been forced to go on fighting an undeclared war on behalf of a reactionary and repressive regime."

"Major Operations Planned"

"To judge by the actions of American military authorities in China," the broadcast added, "they are preparing for major operations.

"The United States 7th Fleet is concentrated in Tsingtao, in which region military clashes are expected. The command of American marines in Tsingtao has already declared its intention of helping Chinese Government troops. An American flotilla is cruising up and down the Yangtze to assist the Chinese Government, on the pretext of maintaining order.

"This recital of facts naturally compels the conclusion that the United States has no intention of changing its policy of interfering in internal affairs in China—a policy which unquestionably pursues far-reaching aims of furtherance of an ambition to create in China not only an economic and political, but also a strategic base for establishment of American domination in the Far East.

Madam Sun Says Reactionaries In China Incite U.S.-Soviet War

JUL 23 1946

Calls for Withdrawal of American Troops, End to Arms Shipments; Asks Coalition Regime; Both Sides Claim Big Military Victories

SHANGHAI, July 22—(AP) Madame Sun Yat-Sen, widow of China's revered revolutionary leader, today charged "reactionaries" with fomenting war between the United States and Russia and called for the immediate withdrawal of American troops and military supplies from China.

"The real flame of a world conflagration is burning in our land," she said. "It must be quenched lest the fire destroy the world."

Madame Sun came out of long semi-retirement with her challenging public statement at a moment when the Chinese Communists and the government of her brother-in-law, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, were claiming first class victories in the constantly-spreading civil conflict.

Agree on Location Only

The rivals agreed only on the location of the battles—in Kiangsu province on the north side of the Yangtze river within a few miles of Nanking and Shanghai.

Government quarters asserted 20,000 dead Communists had been buried by government soldiers after a series of engagements.

A Communist spokesman contended 12,000 government troops and the general commanding the 49th Army had surrendered to the Communists.

Each side accused the other of fabrications.

Voicing the darkest foreboding, Madame Sun called upon both sides to end the warfare and form a coalition government.

Reactionaries Blamed

She declared that reactionaries in the Kuomintang (the Government party) were inflaming the nation to civil war, which they could not win, "because they hope the civil conflict in China will incite the the war between America and the U.S.S.R. and thus at last crush the Chinese Communists."

She continued:

"The American people, who are the allies and long friends of China, must be clearly told of this road to disaster.

"They must be told that American reactionaries are teaming up with Chinese reactionaries, each encouraging the other.

"They must be told that the presence of United States armed forces on Chinese soil is not strengthening peace and order among the Chinese people.

Calls for Warning

"They must be warned that if America makes it plain that she will not supply munitions or military assistance, there will be no spreading of the Chinese civil war."

Insisting on agrarian reform, for which she praised the Communists and only a truly democratic coalition government, Madame Sun stated, "Free criticism must replace corruption, terrorism and political assassination.

"Unless the Kuomintang fulfills these tasks at once, it must bear the responsibility for provoking civil war."

In the war, she said, "we will see cities cut off from the countryside. The peasants will support the Communists, who have given them land and lower taxes."

"Where then will the Kuomintang cities obtain raw materials x x x or even food? Bayonets cannot gather harvests.

"The inflation that already devours the cities will increase a thousand-fold. The Kuomintang cannot win in such a war."

The cities-versus-country situation she predicted, was already evident to some degree in the statments of the rival armies.

Yangtze Separates Battlefields

The area of greatest present conflict was admittedly in the country north of the Yangtze, within 20 miles of Nanking and 60 miles of Shanghai, but with the broad river separating the cities and the battlefields.

Pro-government reports pictured the Communists as almost within the gates of these great cities and pressing offensives against the north-bank towns of Luho, Kiangtu (Yangkow) and Nantung with the aim of crossing the river.

The Communist spokesman, Wang Ping-Nan, said at Nanking that the government had thrown 400,000 men into an offensive along a 120-mile front from Nantung, northwest of Shanghai, to Lalan, northwest of Nanking.

Reds Have Two Divisions

Opposing this force, he said, the Communists had only two divisions, one brigade and some local militia.

Neutral observers expressed belief that the Communist forces were far larger, but that they still were no direct threat to Nanking and Shanghai because it would require a major amphibious operation to cross the river.

The Communist spokesman indirectly admitted this problem, saying the Communists "will not attempt to advance toward the Yangtze."

Both sides placed the scene of heaviest conflict around Taihsing, 70 miles northeast of Nanking. A government army spokesman said the government had broken a Communist siege of Luho, 20 miles north of Nanking, but that the Communists were trying to encircle Jukao, 100 miles northwest of Shanghai and 100 miles northeast of Nanking.

Manchuria Attack Reported

Pro-government newspapers said the Communists also were attacking in Manchuria in the Harbin area and along the Sungari river.

The Communist radio at Yenan said government forces were attacking but were losing heavily to the Communist Eighth Route army in Shansi and Honan provinces and that government aircraft were reconnoitering Yenan, the Communist stronghold in the northwest.

Mme. Sun Sees Russo-U.S. War Plot In China

JUL 23 1946

Shanghai, July 22 (AP)—Madame Sun Yat-Sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese Republic and sister-in-law of its present leader, Chiang Kai-shek, said today in a rare interview that a desire to promote war between the United States and Russia motivates Kuomintang (Government) reactionaries seeking to start civil war.

Inactive in politics for years, she came out of semi-retirement to urge immediate establishment of a coalition government and to appeal to the United States to foster such a move by cutting off all military supplies to China.

Hopes To Incite War

Madame Sun said Kuomingtang reactionaries were fostering a civil war they can't win "because they hope civil conflict in China will incite war between America and the USSR and thus at last crush Chinese Communists."

"The American people, who are allies and long friends of China, must be clearly told of this road to disaster," she said.

"They must be told that American reactionaries are teaming up with Chinese reactionaries, each encouraging the other. They must be told that the presence of United States armed forces on Chinese soil is not strengthening peace and order among the Chinese people.

U.S. Could Stop Strife

"They must be warned that loans should be given only to a reorganized and truly representative Chinese government. They must be told that if America makes it plain that she won't supply munitions or military assistance there will be no spreading of the Chinese civil war."

Madame Sun's statement, which some observers thought might mark

her active re-entry into Chinese politics, emphasized:

"We are threatened by civil war into which reactionaries hope to draw America, thus involving the whole world. Such a civil war, though undeclared, has already begun. This calamity must be stopped in its beginning.

Human Vs. Party Rights

"The present crisis is not a question of who wins—Kuomintang or Communist. It is a question of the Chinese people, their unity, liberty and livelihood. It cannot be settled by balancing armed forces or bargaining for this city and that territory. Not party rights but human rights hang in the balance."

Madame Sun said China needs the application of her late husband's three principles of people's nationalism, people's democracy and people's livelihood—and that people's nationalism meant neither Kuomintang nor Communist but one nation of one people.

Time To Elect Leaders

She explained that by people's democracy she meant the time of Chiang's Kuomintang tutelage is over; the time for constitutional government has been reached; every party must elect its own representatives; even Kuomintang representatives must be elected by membership and not appointed by a ruling group.

She said that people's livelihood meant that the people must no longer starve "while corrupt officials pile up fortunes and honest officials despair."

"Has not CNRRA's (Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration) director general recently stated that in Communist areas there is no famine? Why? Because they've followed Doctor Sun's program and given the land to the tillers."

Government officials declined t let American correspondents vis any of the scenes of reported figh ing, insisting it was "too dange ous."

Chinese Deny Reds' Claim Of Victory

Nanking, July 22 (AP)—Chinese Communists claimed a resounding victory today with the capture of 12,000 troops, unreatening the whole Government position on the vital coastal plain only 60 miles east of N[illegible].

Communist Spokesman Wang Ping-Nan asserted that 6,000 of the troops "threw down their arms in protest to the civil war" after they had been ordered to attack Communists lines near Taihing, 60 miles east of Nanking.

Captured in the battle, Wang added, was Gen. Wang Tieh-Han, who, he said, commanded the Government's 49th Army.

The bulk of the 26th and 79th divisions of General Wang's army followed him into captivity, the Communist spokesman said.

Nationalists Refute Claim

But a Government army spokesman declared Communist Wang's claims were "completely fabricated propaganda." The spokesman said telephone and telegraph messages were received from the forces which Wang claimed had surrendered and that Gen. Wang Tieh-han had telephoned that his command is intact.

The spokesman asserted the Communists were holding a line about 35 miles north of the Yangtze River near Jukao, which is 100 miles east of Nanking and the same distance northwest of Shanghai.

"They will not attempt to advance toward the Yangtze," Wang said.

The Government's Central News Agency alleged, however, that the Communists already were embarked on a "full-blown offensive" and would use gains there for "springboards to jump on to Nanking and Shanghai."

Called "Smoke Screen"

Wang replied that this was only a "smoke screen" for a Government attempt to wipe out Communist positions north of the Yangtze.

Neutral observers said Communist forces in this region were not strong enough to seriously threaten either Nanking or Shanghai.

Dr. John Leighton Stuart, new United States Ambassador to China, said on his return from presenting his credentials to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek at the summer capital of Kuling that he still saw hope of peace.

Chinese Reds Call Halt To Marines

Tientsin, July 22 (AP)—The Chinese Communist radio at Yenan today warned United States Marines that a search of Communist-held territory for seven Marines seized in North China July 13 was a violation of Chinese sovereignty.

The warning was made at a time when there were indications, not confirmed by the Marine Corps, that the seven have been found in a village 50 miles southwest of the port city of Chinwangtao.

"Widespread" Search Ends

Yenan radio said that unless the Leathernecks called off the hunt they must assume full responsibility for any clashes between Marines and Communists.

The Marines, however, said they had ceased the widespread search for the seven, captured by a band of 80 armed Chinese in a small village 22 miles southwest of Chinwangtao while going to buy ice. Although the corps would not confirm reports the seven have been found at the village of Lotinghsien, Marine sources did say that a special team was preparing to leave for that village.

BRITISH TROOPS DELIVER BREAD IN NORTH IRELAND

LONDON, July 22 (AP)—British troops distributed bread in Northern Ireland today after delivery workers voted 377 to 325 against giving the government's 24-hour-old bread rationing system a week's trial.

The "roundsmen's rebellion," affecting three-fourth of the six counties' 1,600,000 population, was the only widespread resistance to the rationing, which caused comparatively slight confusion in England, Scotland and Wales on its first weekday of operation.

A few store clerks quit their jobs, some housewives shopped too late to get bread, and in London, a young woman queuing for ration information fainted before the eyes of John Strachey, food minister and "father" of bread rationing, as he toured the crowded East End to see how the program was working.

Trucks Deliver Bread

Twenty-one trucks manned by soldiers rushed bread to emergency distribution centers in Northern Ireland's Belfast area, where most residents dependent on home delivery, got no bread because of the strike.

Food officials said troops would carry bread tomorrow to rural areas if dealers or deliverymen went along with the Belfast area workers in their protest against the extra work involved in bread rationing—clipping coupons and keeping records.

Bread queues in most of the United Kingdom were shorter than on Saturday, when housewives by the hundreds of thousands stocked up for several days.

Few of those shopping today appeared to understand the rationing system. Store clerks explained it.

Youngsters are Victims

Earliest "victims" of bread rationing were youngsters in the habit of buying a few buns on the way to school. They looked incredulous when bakers explained they now would have to surrender coupons. Many were late for school in the erroneous belief that the buns would come from somewhere if they waited long enough.

In Edinburgh, the city food officer, Maurice Shinwell, surprised bakers by allowing them to sell today's surplus without coupons.

He said the ration holiday would last only today, however, and emphasized that it was declared only to prevent waste after it became clear that bakers would have considerable stocks after midday.

In London, another petition urging cancellation of bread rationing "with the least possible delay" was presented to Parliament. Laborite T. C. Skeffington-Lodge called the presentations the "same old racket."

Army Manning Bread Trucks In Belfast

London, July 22 (AP)—Army trucks manned by 200 soldiers took over the distribution of bread throughout Belfast today when 1,500 northern Ireland delivery men refused to service their routes on the first business day of bread rationing.

Authorities mustered 21 trucks in Belfast, one for each emergency bread distribution center in the city. The Bread Servers Association had rejected a compromise to give the rationing a trial for a week by a vote of 377 to 325.

The full effect of the bread-delivery strike was not expected until Tuesday or Wednesday, for housewives in the city of 440,000 were reported to have stocked their shelves before rationing started yesterday.

Other Areas Threatened

Other parts of the six counties of northern Ireland with a population of 1,500,000 were likewise threatened with a bread shortage. Some suburban bread servers had decided to side with the Belfast association. Others decided to work, however. Whether troops would be used to carry bread to other parts of the country still was not decided.

In Edinburgh, Scotland, the city food officer surprised bakers by allowing them to sell surplus stocks of today's bake without coupons. The official said the ration holiday would last only through today, and emphasized that it was declared to prevent waste.

In London, another petition urging cancellation of bread rationing "with the least possible delay" was presented to Parliament. Laborite T. C. Skeffington-Lodge called the petition the "same old racket." Several such petitions were placed before Parliament last week.

Quiet Elsewhere

Except in northern Ireland, bread rationing was conducted quietly wtihout incident. Few bread queues were reported in London or other cities, perhaps because of large buying on Saturday, when housewives besieged the bakeries. One London bakery reported that a dozen clerks in retail stores quit rather than collect ration coupons.

Although rationing became effective yesterday, so few stores were open that sales were negligible.

Bakers have asserted that the program is cumbersome and unworkable. Under the system—first bread rationing in Britain's history—the average adult will receive nine ounces of bread daily, with heavy workers receiving as much as fifteen ounces.

SIAM ASKS U.N. TO DELAY CASE

Indo-China Border Conflict To Be Postponed

New York, July 22 (AP)—Siam officially requested the United Nations today to postpone consideration of its conflict with France over a border strip in Indo-China.

The United Nations announced that Arkady A. Sobolev, acting secretary general, had received a telegram from the Siamese chargé d'affaires in Washington, L. D. Bhakdi, requesting the postponement until the Siamese delegation has arrived from Bangkok.

There had been a possibility that Siam's case would be put on the agenda for the Security Council meeting set for Wednesday at 3 P.M., but the request from the chargé d'affaires caused the secretariat to leave it off.

Little Business Slated

The agenda as announced late today contained only a reference to consideration of credentials of some delegations, indicating there was little business to confront the eleven-member group when it meets.

The agenda made no mention of membership applications pending from Afghanistan, Outer Mongolia, Trans-Jordan and Albania. However, it was said in Council circles that the Council would take no action on them until a committee named to consider them has made its report.

The Secretary-General also announced there had been no objections received to his poll of the United Nations on the question of postponing the General Assembly from September 3 to September 23 because of a possible overlap by the Paris Peace Conference.

Date Is Set

Accordingly, it was said, the postponement is now official and preparations are under way to hold the first General Assembly of the United Nations in the United States on the World's Fair site in New York city on September 23.

Meanwhile, delegates attending the International Health Conference signed the new constitution of a world health organization which was framed at this conference.

The delegations from China and the United Kingdom were empowered to ratify the constitution on signature. It will require ratification by 24 other members of the United Nations to make the constitution effective.

Magna Carta For Health

Dr. Thomas Parran, president of the health conference and chief United States delegate, said the new world health organization is "our collective instrument to promote physical and mental vigor, to prevent and control disease, to expand scientific health knowledge and to contribute to the harmony of human relationships."

"In short," he added, "it is a powerful instrument which we have forged for peace."

Dr. Parran said "the nations represented here today are signing a Magna Carta for health, which will bring into being a world health organization unique in its scope, authority and functions."

The health conference was the first conference to be called by the United Nations. The new organization will be one of the so-called specialized agencies of the United Nations.

Firm Russ Stand On Veto Expected

New York, July 22 (AP)—Battle lines in the United Nations over the veto took more definite shape today with a reliable report in Soviet circles that Russia is standing firm on the veto system as it is presently constituted.

Soviet circles reported that it is the firm, definite and final conviction of the Russian Government that the veto should remain unchanged. It was said further that no matter how many speeches are made on the question in the General Assembly or however the veto is attacked, the Soviet Government would remain firm for the present setup.

Evatt Broadcast

This was the first Russian reaction on the veto question after the broadcast last Monday by Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Foreign Minister and United Nations delegate, in which he criticized the veto.

Evatt said that Australia has formally requested the United Nations to put the veto issue on the agenda of the General Assembly meeting which begins at the old World's Fair site here September 23.

London's Action On U.S. Reich Plan Awaited

Berlin, July 22 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Brian Robertson, deputy military governor for the British occupation zone, was expected to fly to London today to consult with his Government on an American plan which would permit economic fusion of the British and American zones.

Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, United States commander in Europe, announced yesterday that American experts had drawn up tentative plans for an economic merger with any one or all three of the other occupation zones.

McNarney Urges Speed

"The sooner we can implement that plan the better," McNarney declared in announcing the American proposal. His statement followed by less than a week Secretary of State James F. Byrnes's disclosure in Washington that United States military government representatives in Germany were being instructed to "co-operate with any one or all three" of the occupation governments "in essential administrative matters."

Byrnes added that these matters would include finance, transportation, communications, trade and industry.

The American proposals were presented to representatives of Britain, Russia and France over the week end. McNarney indicated that he did not expect any formal expression of opinion until officials of the occupying powers had consulted their governments.

Would Ease Shortages

He emphasized that the merger of two or more zones into a single economic unit would "effect a free intterchange of raw materials" which would ease critical shortages.

"Once the economic merger is effected," McNarney added, "the cost of occupation will be progressively reduced."

McNarney also announced yesterday that there was a good prospect that food rations in the American zone of occupation could be increased to 1,550 calories daily for the normal consumer about October 1. The present ration is about 1,250 calories.

Present Rate Till Harvest

McNarney said there were sufficient stocks in hand or in prospect to maintain the present rate until the harvest in September, which is expected to yield about 900 to 1,000 calories for the normal consumer.

He estimated that to increase the normal ration to 1,550 calories after the harvest is in would mean imports of about 100,000 tons of food monthly from the United States.

TAKES REDS' WORD ON 2 U. S. OFFICERS

Berlin, July 22 (A. P.).—Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, United States European theater commander, said yesterday he had accepted Russian assurances that American officers missing since July 4, are not being detained in the Soviet occupation zone.

McNarney also declared he did not believe the pair—Capt. Harold Cobin of New York city and Lieut. George Wyatt of Oklahoma City—had met with foul play. The two officers vanished after reportedly leaving on an unauthorized trip into the Russian zone.

Questioned concerning reports that the Russians were holding the pair as hostages to effect the release of Soviet personnel believed being detained by the Americans, McNarney declared:

"As far as I know, we do not hold a single Russian in detention in our zone."

McNarney said that when he last discussed the case on July 10 with Marshal Vasilly Sokolovsky his Russian counterpart, the latter "assured me that any Americans in Russian custody would be released as soon as they can be located. In view of the fact that a very senior Russian commander assured me of this, I must accept it."

U.S. Children in Germany Go Back to School Today

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 22—The first school for American children in the European theatre will open here tomorrow, with eighty-one youngsters of United States Army men enrolled.

The school is headed by an American WAC supervisor, but because of a shortage of American personnel, about ten young German women have been engaged as instructors and nurses. Children from 7 to 14 will attend afternoon classes; those 6 and younger will attend morning classes.

COURT IS URGED TO DELAY ACTION AGAINST BORMANN

NUERNBERG, July 22. — (AP) Defense counsel asked the International Military tribunal today to suspend proceedings against Martin Bormann until the missing former deputy to Adolf Hitler "is personally heard and can personally state his case."

Bormann, being tried in absentia for war crimes, has not been heard from since the fall of Berlin, and, while his counsel have been unable to prove that he is dead, there have been repeated reports that he perished in the ruins of the Third Reich.

Legality Disclaimed

Bormann's attorney, Dr. Friedrich Bergold, said that no proof ever has been submitted that Bormann was anything more than a secretary to Hitler, and contended that Bormann was "no more guilty than the stenographers who typed the orders he forwarded."

Counsel for former Nazi diplomat Franz von Papen and former Netherlands Gauleiter Arthur Seyss-Inquart attempted in their final summations today to absolve the two defendants of crimes against the Jews.

Dr. Egon Kubuschok, von Papen's attorney, said the diplomat did everything he could to prevent Hitler's rise to power, and that when he saw that he had failed, proposed to President Von Hindenburg in December, 1932, that the latter "rule with the aid of armed force, even if he thus caused a violation of the constitution and risked causing civil war."

Aid to Jews Recalled

The attorney said Von Papen was successful in protecting Jews in the early days of Hitler's campaign against them, and that the diplomat knew little of the measures taken against political opponents of the Nazis.

Seyss-Inquart's attorney, Dr. Gustav Stinbaur, said the former reichscommissioner for the Netherlands was innocent of all blame for the treatment of Dutch Jews, and that any measures he had promulgated against the Jews could be considered only as safety measures for the duration of the war.

Seyss-Inquart Counsel Holds Him Guiltless

Nuernberg, July 22 (AP)—Defense counsel for Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart contended today that the former Nazi commissioner in The Netherlands was innocent of all blame for the treatment of Jews in that country.

Dr. Gustave Steinbauer, concluding the final defense summary for his client before the international military tribunal trying 22 top Nazis, said Seyss-Inquart considered all measures against Dutch Jews as safety measures for the duration of the war only and that the exclusive handling of Jewish questions for "the entire sphere of German interests" had been transferred by Hitler to Himmler.

CAPTAIN LOSES FIGHT TO AVOID CRUELTY TRIAL

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, July 22—(AP) Capt. Joseph A. Robertson lost his legal battle today to escape trial on charges of aiding and authorizing cruelty to American soldier-prisoners in the Lichfield, England, detention camp, but he won a three-day postponement.

The Toledo, Ohio, officer won the postponement when the court agreed to let him seek additional defense witnesses which the Army has not yet brought here from the United States, and to obtain requested [illegible] evidence.

The [illegible] commanding officer of the company which administered the Lichfield guardhouse in late 1944 and early 1945, contended in vain that the Army had forfeited the right to try him by compelling him to give self-incriminating testimony as a witness in the companion trial of Col. James A. Kilian of Highland Park, Ill., two weeks ago.

The military court overruled motions to dismiss charges that Robertson permitted guards to beat and abuse prisoners.

Nine enlisted guards and two officers have been convicted in connection with the Lichfield cruelties, with two officers yet to be tried and Kilian's trial in recess.

MUST STAND G. I. TRIAL

Bad Nauheim, July 22 (A. P.).—Capt. Joseph A. Robertson of Toledo today lost a legal battle to escape trial on charges of aiding and authorizing cruelty to American soldiers imprisoned in the Lichfield, England, guardhouse.

Robertson contended in vain that the Army had forfeited the right to try him by compelling him to give self-incriminating testimony as a witness in the companion trial of the Lichfield commandant, Col. James A. Kilian, two weeks ago.

The military court overruled a motion to dismiss charges that Robertson permitted the guards to beat and abuse prisoners.

Nine enlisted men and two officers have been convicted in connection with alleged cruelties at Lichfield. Two officers remain to be tried and Kilian's trial is at present in recess.

The 42-year old Robertson was commanding officer of the company which administered the guardhouse in late 1944 and early 1945. Some of the convicted guards were members of his company.

SAYS NAZIS RULE REICH UNIVERSITY

Erlangen, Germany, July 22 (A. P.).—Two German medical students, backed up by an American Military Government officer, charged today that the faculty and student body of Erlangen University were in danger of becoming Nazi-dominated.

The students—Ottmar Bechen, 26 year old, and Richard Bar-tosch, 43 years old, said they had both been victims of Nazi political persecution and were being hindered in their studies by an almost complete lack of financial aid by German government or University authorities. They named three faculty members they said should not be allowed to teach.

The Military Government official, who declined to be quoted by name, said he had written a report six months ago on Nazi trends at the university where persecuted students were finding it almost impossible to continue their studies alongside former German Army officers and sons of officers.

This official said many students with pro-Nazi leanings wore almost complete German Army uniforms, had their identification pictures made showing iron crosses and lived comparatively luxurious live on money saved from Army pay.

Drowns After Dive From Hitler's Yacht

Frankfurt, July 22 (A. P.).—Lieut. Robert L. Creekmore of Tallahasse, Fla., drowned after he dived from Adolf Hitler's yacht July 18 for a swim in the Rhine River near Wiesbaden, the Army announced today. Efforts by S/Sgt. Chester Ostraszewski of Brooklyn, to save Creekmore failed.

GREISER IS HANGED AS 15,000 LOOK ON

Poznan, July 22 (A. P.).—Arthur Greiser, who sent thousands of Poles to Nazi death camps in the days of his ascendancy as gauleiter of Poznan Province, went to the gallows in prayerful terror yesterday while 15,000 persons, many of whom he had persecuted, watched silently in Citadel Place.

Although his neck was broken, Greiser's body continued to writhe for seven minutes before physicians pronounced him dead.

The 49-year-old Greiser, who, as president of the prewar Danzig Senate, collaborated in the Nazi invasion of Poland, was the first person to be executed in Poland on the basic charge of waging aggressive war against the country.

An appeal for clemency, which the official Polish press agency asserted had been supported by the Vatican, was refused by President Boleslaw Bierut.

[A responsible Vatican City source denied that the Pope had intervened in an effort to stay Greiser's execution.]

Pope's Plea Fails To Save Greiser

Vatican City, July 22 (AP)—A Vatican announcement today said Pope Pius had made a last-minute appeal to Polish authorities to spare the life of Arthur Greiser, former Nazi gauleiter in Poznan who was hanged yesterday.

Previously, Vatican informed sources had denied Polish press agency stories that the Pope had intervened but that there was "no way" he could intercede. This statement apparently was based on the lack of normal diplomatic relations between the Holy See and the Polish Government.

"Enemy Of The Church"

The announcement said the Pope, while noting that Greiser was a "vigorous enemy of the church," had yielded to entreaties of the condemned gauleiter and asked Polish authorities to extend clemency. It said Greiser's appeal was transmitted through the Polish Ambassador to Italy, Stanislaw Kot, to Msgr. Francesco Borgongini Duca, apostolic nuncio to Italy, and the Pope's answer was given through the same channels.

The Vatican announcement quoted a Moscow broadcast as saying the Pope's intervention had caused "a great stir in Warsaw."

PLEA MADE BY PO[illegible] TO SAVE GREI[illegible]

VATICAN CITY, July [illegible] (AP) Pope Pius XII intervened in an attempt to save the life of Arthur Greiser, who was hanged publicly at Poznan, Poland, yesterday, a Vatican announcement said today.

The Pontiff noted that Greiser, the Nazis' gauleiter for Poznan province, had been a "vigorous enemy of 'the church," the announcement said. It added that the appeal had been [illegible] the Pope by Monsignor Francesco Borgongini Duca, Papal nuncio to Italy, who was quoted as saying:

"His Holiness, following the example of the Divine Master, who on the cross prayed for his cruci-fiers, receives the appeal of a condemned man and thus returns to competent authorities his paternal prayer that his (Greiser's) life be spared."

30.24-4291

Greiser's appeal to the Pope was given the Nuncio by Stanislaw Kot, Polish ambassador to Italy.

The Vatican announcement was made following a Moscow broadcast which it quoted as saying that the reported intervention of the Pope had caused a "great stir" in Warsaw. Usually well informed Vatican sources Saturday night had doubted that the Pontiff had intervened, saying there was "no way" in which he could do so. Apparently, these sources referred to the lack of normal diplomatic relations between the Holy See and the present Polish government.

Greiser, 49, pre-war president of the Gdansk (Danzig) Senate who collaborated in the Nazi invasion of Poland, was hanged before a crowd of 15,000 persons yesterday, the first person to be executed in Poland on the basic charge of waging aggressive war against the nation. He had maintained in his trial that he had been forced to obey the orders of Hitler and the Gestapo.

LAGUARDIA HAS TALK WITH POPE

Vatican City, July 22 (A. P.).—Pope Pius XII today received Fiorello H. LaGuardia, director-general of the UNRRA, at a twenty-minute audience. LaGuardia introduced his son Eric to the pontiff.

He later said his audience was cordial and useful, adding that the Pope "knows thoroughly the needs of the populace for aid" and that he was "right up-to-date on the situation."

LaGuardia will tour UNRRA installations in the Rome area, including those at Frosione and Casino, tomorrow. He will interrupt his tour to attend a session of the Italian Constituent Assembly, where he is expected to reply to an address of welcome by the Assembly President, Giuseppe Saragat. LaGuardia plans to fly to Milan on Wednesday.

Polish Abortions Show Upward Trend

WARSAW (AP)—The newspaper Dzis I Jutro—Today and Tomorrow—says the 'fourth World War is raging."

The journal, worried about the Polish birth rate and the increase in abortions, cited these figures:

In Poland in 1934-35, there were 53,029 births in hospitals and 38,871 abortions. In 1938, there were 100,000 to 130,000 abortions, and "this number continues to increase."

The newspaper continued: "Before the war, Poland had 36,000,000 inhabitants. Now ther are 23,622,000."

The paper said: "It is a question of to be or not to be. Children are the future. What will there be tomorrow?"

Poles Reopen Span Over Vistula

It connects Warsaw with suburban Praga. The original quarter-mile-long steel and concrete structure was dynamited by the Nazis.

Inonu Concedes Big Opposition Vote in Turkey

Reported Running Sixth on List of Deputies, He Admits Democratic Gain

E. Greenwald

ISTANBUL, July 22 (AP).—A spokesman for President Ismet Inonu's Republican People's party conceded tonight that the newly formed opposition Democratic party apparently scored heavily in yesterday's general election.

Inonu Sixth, Democrats Say

At the same time, an official of the opposition Democrats declared that the President himself ran sixth in a field of seventeen deputies chosen in Ankara province. Turkey's chief of state is chosen from the ranks of the deputies in the National Assembly.

The Democrats, strongest of all Turkey's new-born opposition parties, showed surprising power in the first free general election in Turkish history. The party may have won as many as 100 or more Assembly seats on the basis of present tabulations.

Democratic Strength Conceded

This was conceded by a Republican People's party spokesman in Ankara, who declined to be quoted by name. He said that independent parties possibly had taken 50 additional seats.

Pre-election predictions by the People's party gave the Democrats no more than 50 of the Assembly's 460 seats.

No [illegible] were announced at a late hour tonight, and unofficially it was said that the formal announcement might not be made until late Tuesday.

This brought immediate charges from opposition groups that the Government was tampering with the vote.

Saracoglu Re-Elected

On the basis of its own tabulations, the Government party had comfortable margins, even in provinces where the Democrats had their strongholds. The opposition Democrats themselves conceded that Prime Minister Shukru Saracoglu was re-elected to the Assembly in Izmir.

Marshal Fevzi Chakmak, revered former army chief of staff, who ran as an independent candidate for deputy, declared in a formal protest to the Istanbul Election Association that votes given him as an Independent were being switched to his opponent. There was no comment from election authorities.

Celal Bayar, revolutionary hero, who founded the Democratic party, said in a formal statement that the forces of President Inonu's Government had exerted severe pressure against members of the opposition Democrats. He said many had been arrested and many had been driven from polling places, and added that others were told they would be punished if they supported the Democrats.

Pressure At Turk Polls Charged

Istanbul, July 22 (AP)—Former Premier Jelal Bayar today accused President Ismet Inonu's Government of exerting "severe pressure" in an effort to influence the outcome of yesterday's national election, the first free election in Turkish history.

The old revolutionary hero and founder of the new Democratic party asserted that many voters had been driven away from the polls and that others had been warned they would be punished if they voted the Democratic ticket.

Claim Strong Showing

Despite these charges, Democratic party officials maintained that their candidates had made a strong showing in the election, on which the first official returns may be available tomorrow.

Unofficial and incomplete tabulations compiled by the Democrats showed their nominees for the National Assembly leading in several provinces, including Istanbul, Izmir and Ankara.

The Democrats, who before the election had predicted they might win 150 of the Assembly's 460 seats, refrained, however, from estimating the number of seats they had captured.

Balloting Reported Quiet

The People's party, confident of retaining a substantial majority in the Assembly, made no comment on the Democratic figures.

The balloting itself was reported quiet, although pre-election clashes were climaxed by the killing of four persons Saturday. Strong detachments of police and troops guarded the polls.

As many as 95 per cent of those eligible were reported to have voted in some districts, contrasting with the municipal elections last May, which were boycotted by the opposition parties.

Four-Year Terms

The deputies elected yesterday will hold office for four years and will have a voice in the selection of the Cabinet, which is chosen from the Assembly members.

Bayar's charges of pressure at the polls were echoed by another popular figure, Marshal Fevzi Chakmak, former army chief of staff, who ran for deputy as an independent.

"This struggle may get fiercer," Chakmak warned. "The people may be pressed upon by much more illegal means, but those who will dare to do that will have to render an accounting."

VIENNA-BELGRADE FLIGHTS HALTED

U.S. Cancels Trips Following New Yugoslav Order

Belgrade, July 22 (AP)—All American military flights into Yugoslavia have been canceled as a result of a new Yugoslav ruling requiring Vienna-to-Belgrade planes to fly on a new course taking them over Hungarian soil, thus necessitating Russian clearance.

An official United States Embassy source said the military airlind which last March was making six flights weekly into Belgrade with no clearance needed, previously was required to fly from Vienna via Graz. This route kept planes clear of Hungarian frontiers.

Visas Were Required

The next development in flying restrictions was the insistence that American air crews be required to obtain Yugoslav visas and that each individual passport number plus the number of the aircraft be submitted 48 hours before the time American authorities expected to have planes land at Belgrade.

The Embassy source said efforts were made to obtain 30-day blanket clearances because Air Force officials anticipated that difficulties would arise from strict adherence to the plane number submitted in advance. For example, he said, mechanical failure could have necessitated substituting another plane at the last moment, or the illness of crew members would have resulted in the arrival in Belgrade of crewmen with improper clearances. This request was turned down, as was a later request for 10-day blanket clearances.

Must Go Via Subotica

The new order requires that all American planes fly from Vienna to Belgrade via Subotica, Yugoslavia. A straight-line flight from Vienna to Subotica would cross garian territory and would entail negotiation with Russian authorities for clearances.

The American request for permission to continue flights on the old route via Graz while negotiations for new clearances are under way was turned down, the Embassy source said. He added that as a result of Yugoslavia's ruling he does not expect another American flight into Belgrade for at least a month.

American planes are operated by the European air transport service which is attached to the American European command.

Chinese Factions Agree On Yellow River Plan

Relief Agency and Communists May Finish Project in '46

SHANGHAI, July 22 (AP).—An agreement aimed at completing by December the vast Yellow River relocation project, involving replacement of dikes dynamited during the war to slow up the Japanese, was reached today between Communist General Chou En-lai and T. F. Tsiang, director-general of Chinese relief work.

Tsiang also promised Chou he would ask the Chinese government to advance 15,000,000,000 Chinese dollars (approximately $7,500,000) for relief and rehabilitation in Communist areas.

The meeting followed the return to Shanghai of Chou, who visited the Yellow River area with United Nations Relief and rehabilitation Administration's chief engineer, Oliver J. Todd, of Palo Alto, Calif.

Chinese shipowners have formed a pool to transport U. N. R. R. A. supplies to inland river ports, taking over from British shipping companies whose contracts expired July 16.

P.).—Police reported today that ten Indonesians had been killed and several captured yesterday when they attempted an assault landing on a small island in the Karimoon group, sixty miles south of Singapore. Aussies Find Jap Explosives Cache

Sydney, Australia, July 22 (AP)—The Sydney Telegraph reported today that Australian troops had unearthed a "half-million ton" cache of Japanese explosives hidden in a maze of electrically lighted caves at Rabaul, New Britain.

Rabaul was used by the Japanese as an important air and naval base during the war in South Pacific.

Bombay Tied Up As 250,000 Strike

Bombay, India, July 22 (AP)—Approximately 250,000 business and industrial workers stayed away from their jobs here today in a one-day sympathetic strike, after other stoppages already had paralyzed telegraph and postal communications and brought bus and tram transport to a standstill.

Some incidents of violence were reported, but they were relatively few and not severe. A force of 4,000 British and Indian infantry was posted strategically with battle equipment in Bombay.

Elaborate police and military precautions were intensified, however, as strikers headed for a mass meeting.

Most shops were closed and the cotton and stock exchanges and the commodity markets suspended official trading for the day.

Businesses, plagued by the lack of mail and telegraph service and by congested long-distance telephone lines, looked hopefully to tomorrow's scheduled strike settlement conference called at Poona by Kirshna Prasaea, director general of posts and telegraphs.

Bombay Transit Is Threatened By Strike

Bombay, July 22 (AP)—Officials of the Bombay tram and bus system announced today that the stoning of vehicles and crippling of trolley wires by rioting strikers threatened to halt completely the public transport system.

Rock-throwing was also reported at the docks. Workers and others fought with knives at the Sewri Ordnance Depot, where truck drivers have gone on strike. Police armed with batons charged truck drivers picketing the Kolwada Ordnance Depot. Rioters also stoned a printing plant.

DAY

Troops Posted

A force of 4,000 armed British and Indian infantry was posted throughout Bombay in an effort to prevent a spread of the violence.

The strikes were called by the Trade Union Congress in sympathy with a thirteen-day strike by postal employés. All but nine of the city's 60 mills were closed.

All railway workshops shut down and students quit classes for the day in most of the city's institutions.

Telegraph Services Halted

The Bombay Central Telegraph office closed its doors with the announcement that it had no clerks to receive or deliver messages or telegraph operators to send them. A spokesman said the few non-striking operators could handle only the most urgent Government telegrams. The Inland Press Telegraph Service also was stopped.

Post offices, meanwhile, remained closed by order of authorities, who said they feared any attempt to operate them might provoke trouble.

Calcutta Hit By Strike

Calcutta, July 22 (AP)—About 16,000 postal, telephone and telegraph workers, striking for higher wages, were reported today to have almost completely stalled communications and seriously affected the commercial life of India's second largest city. The strike also covers Bengal and Assam.

Army Nurse Decorated in Korea

Capt. Lucka Wins Legion of Merit for Teaching Natives Health Methods—Spurns Discharge.

Seoul, July 22 (A. P.).—The American woman in Korea who draws the most grateful glances is an Army nurse with a shiny new Legion of Merit award pinned on her crisp blouse.

She is Capt. Mildred V. Lucka of Youngstown, Pa., who has declined a discharge in order to bring Koreans the scientific knowledge of modern nursing skill.

JUL 29 1946

DAY

Arriving here last October, Capt. Lucka began hacking away at prejudices against participation by Korean women in profession work. She introduced up-to-date nursing methods and enrolled Korean women in nursing classes. Graduates already are doing outstanding work in the provinces and contributing to increased respect for health measures.

Capt. Lucka was graduated from the Allegheny General Hospital school of nursing at Pittsburgh and also attended Western Reserve University at Cleveland and the University of Pittsburgh.

After coming here, she twice extended her stay, declining discharge. On July 20 she was presented the Legion of Merit by Major-Gen. Archer L. Lerch, United States Military Governor of Korea. She was the first woman in Korea and the sixth in the Pacific to receive it.

Mail Exchange Suspended

Seoul, Korea, July 22 (AP)—The weekly exchange of mail between the American and Russian occupation zones was suspended temporarily today at the request of the Soviet commander to prevent the spread of cholera.

JUDGE IS SEATED AS REPLACEMENT AT JAP WAR TRIAL

D. Howell

TOKYO, July 22. — (AP) Maj. Gen. Myron Cramer was seated today as the new United States member of the War Crimes tribunal only after a protracted argument in which the court itself divided on whether to declare a mistrial.

NIGHT

Cramer is the replacement for Justice John P. Higgins of Massachusetts, who resigned to return home.

Counsel for former Premier Hideki Tojo and 26 other accused Japanese war criminals disagreed among themselves on whether Cramer could be seated. Owen Cunningham of Des Moines, Iowa, counsel for Sadao Araki, moved that a change in judges would leave the trial "clouded with a substantial doubt as to its legality, fairness and impartiality."

Lt. Col. Franklin E. N. Warren, also of the defense staff, argued that seating Cramer was legal and said he was glad to see a second military man on the bench. The only other soldier judge is a Russian.

After prolonged discussion, the court decided to seat Cramer, but the president, Sir William Webb, pointedly remarked that this was a "majority decision," indicating some members opposed it.

The trial resumed after a 12-day recess during which air-conditioning was installed in the courtroom, but the argument delayed proceedings so that the only witness heard was Gen. Chin Teh-chun, Chinese vice minister of defense.

Chin testified that Maj. Gen. Kenji Doihara, Japan's famed undercover operator who is one of the defendants, was the instigator at the very beginning of Japanese aggression in China" and "should be held responsible for the war of aggression and various atrocities.

Chin also testified that the widely-publicized Marco Polo bridge incident near Peiping which marked the formal start of the war was entirely faked by the Japanese.

JAP LEADERS LOSE PLEA FOR MISTRIAL

JUL 29 1946

Tokyo, July 22 (A. P.).—Attorneys for Hideki Tojo, Japan's Pearl Harbor Premier, and twenty-six other accused top war criminals lost an hour and a quarter battle to have the proceedings declared a mistrial today because of a change in justices on the international tribunal.

DAY

Major-Gen. Myron Cramer was ruled seated as the United States member in place of Justice John P. Higgins despite strenuous defense objections on grounds that Cramer had missed almost a month of the testimony. Higgins had resigned.

President Sir William Webb, after a recess, announced a majority ruled in favor of Cramer, former United States Army Judge Advocate-General.

The motion for the mistrial was submitted by Owen Cunningham of Des Moines, Iowa., representing former War Minister Sadao Araki. Cunningham argued that the change in justices would leave the trial clouded with a substantial doubt as to legality, fairness and impartiality.

JAP TO FACE TRIAL FOR 13 BEHEADINGS

Tokyo, July 22 (A. P.).—The responsibility for the samurai sword killings of thirteen unidentified American flyers was charged to Uorikazu Ohsugi today by Gen. MacArthur's legal section. Ohsugi, Japanese vice-admiral, commanded the Celebes area.

DAY

Ohsugi will be prosecuted in a Manila trial by the man who investigated his case, Lieut. Morris Forkosch of 190 West Burnside avenue, the Bronx, New York city.

About October 1, 1944, a naval patrol bomber was shot down near Salabangaka, Dutch Celebes, and its nine-man crew was seized. Late that November they were killed with swords.

Ohsugi also is accused of ordering similar slayings for four airmen who survived the crash of a Liberator bomber near Pangkadjene, Dutch Celebes, in June, 1945.

FILIPINOS TO TRY LAUREL

He and 4 Other Puppet Officials Will Be Sent From Tokyo

TOKYO, Tuesday, July 23 (AP)—José P. Laurel, puppet President of the Philippines under the Japanese, will be turned over to the new Philippine Republic for trial at the request of President Manuel A. Roxas, Supreme Headquarters announced today.

Four other Filipinos who were caught in Japan after the occupation will be surrendered by the United States Government, the announcement said. The five, held in Sugamo Prison, will leave shortly for Manila under escort from Headquarters' legal section.

The four others are Mr. Laurel's son, José P. Laurel 3d, a colonel in the puppet Philippine Army and a former lieutenant in the United States armed forces in the Far East; Jorge B. Vargas, a puppet Ambassador to Japan; Beningno S. Aquino, Speaker of the puppet National Assembly, and Camilo Osias, puppet Minister of Education.

BEATEN OVER CARROT

Yokohama, July 22 (A. P.).—Possession of a carrot, some soybeans and a pair of pliers resulted in Japanese beatings of American war prisoners. The beatings were related today at the war crimes trial of Yasushi Kimura. He admitted he beat Staff Sgt. Harold T. Hedges of Oklahoma City, Okla., saying Hedges stole a carrot.

"If a Japanese soldier stole vegetables . . . he would have received the same treatment," Kimura said.

An affidavit by Lieut. Edmund G. Smith of Glenview, Ill., said that he and Lieuts. Donald A. Carlson of St. Louis and James Edwards of Scotland Neck, N. C., were beaten by Kimura for picking up soybeans from a gutter.

Affidavits of Staff Sgts. Gene D. Birdwell, Kansas City and William R. Liebold, North Hollywood, Cal., said that Navy Lieut. (j. g.) Harry Bladkin of Yellowstone Boulevard, Forest Hills, L. I., was beaten when found with a pair of pliers.

Japs Form Democratic League.

Tokyo, July 22 (A. P.).—More than 100 delegates from all parts of Japan established a Japanese Democratic Peoples League today on a platform espousing democratic government and opposing militarism.

Huks Reported Massing Again

Manila, July 22 (AP)—An end to the bloody clashes between armed peasants known as Hukbalahaps and the Philippines military police was foreseen today by a high Government official, but the Manila press did not share his optimism.

While Interior Secretary Jose Zulueta was pronouncing prospects of a peaceful settlement "very bright," the press reported that guerrillas were massing in Nueva Ecija and Pampanga provinces north of Manila.

Showdown "Imminent"

The Bulletin quoted an unnamed "high Government source" as saying that a showdown battle is imminent on the central Luzon plain —across which swept Japanese and American armies in turn during the war.

The Huks contend that landowners are trying to return them to their semi-slavery of prewar days and are aided by reactionary provincial governors.

Land Reforms Promised

President Roxas has promised land reforms but insists the Huks must cease resistance or be crushed and has set July 28 as the deadline.

Zulueta's optimism was based on reports of visits by Huk leaders and military police officials to troubled areas.

WEATHER OUTLOOK AT BIKINI IS GOOD

Conditions Threatening Test Ease—Submarines Submerge to Be Atomic Targets

E. Fay

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MOUNT McKINLEY, Tuesday, July 23 (AP)—The weather outlook brightened today for the earth's fifth atomic bomb, which will be exploded beneath the waters of Bikini Lagoon on Thursday (Wednesday, United States time).

JUL 29 1946

Weathermen said an "intertropical front" that had piled thick blankets of clouds over the target area for days, had moved more than 100 miles south and "operational weather" should be on hand for Baker Day.

RIGHT

The better turn in the weather came as the final command conference was held for the test, in which the hulls of seventy-five ships will be subjected to the unearthly pressures of the first underwater atomic bomb explosion.

Vice Admiral William H. P. Blandy, commander of Operation Crossroads, had said previously the test would be delayed if wind and cloud conditions were not right.

The final preparations included completion of the two-day task of submerging six submarines in the target fleet and the holding of a routine electronics rehearsal.

The Pilotfish Closest to Bomb

The final set-up in the lagoon showed the six submarines will be the closest of all target vessels to the detonation center and submarine commanders said any would be lucky to survive the underwater shock. They are the heavy-hulled Dentura, Pilotfish and Apogon and the light-hulled Skipjack, Tuna and Searaven. In addition, the heavy-hulled submarines Parche and Skate will be anchored on the surface.

30.24-4293

The Pilotfish will be the target ship closest to the bomb.

Nearly 25 per cent of the animals placed aboard ships in the first Bikini bomb test were killed outright or have since died from exposure to radio activity, a member of Admiral Blandy's staff said during the day. About one-third of the animals still living are now critically ill.

Capt. R. H. Draeger said the animals exposed July 1 suffered "no real pain."

The studies of the animals have disclosed, he continued, that if the ships had been manned by crews, most of the seamen would have survived and would have been handling ships not put out of action.

Captain Draeger estimated that about one-sixth of the animals made ill by exposure might have been saved had they received treatment. For scientific study, some animals were treated and others were not. All deaths were attributed directly to the effect of the atomic bomb.

8 Subs Facing Underwater Bomb Test

Aboard U.S.S. Mount McKinley, July 22 (AP)—Preparations for the under-water test of the atomic bomb will be completed tomorrow (Monday, United States time) when target submarines are submerged in Bikini Lagoon and an electronics rehearsal is staged.

Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, test commander, observed that the bursting of the bomb might be delayed at least a week because of adverse weather. He added, however, that meteorologists hoped a high-pressure area would shove an intertropical front southward and bring clear weather to the area.

Due Wednesday, U.S. Time

The test now is scheduled for Thursday morning, Bikini time (Wednesday afternoon, United States time).

Six submarines will be submerged tomorrow at a depth of 60 feet. Two others—the bomb-battered Skate and the Parché—will be anchored on the surface.

Sub commanders agreed that the submerged craft will stand little chance of surviving the terrific underwater blast, since they will be closest to the center of detonation.

Other Subs Being Used

Heavy-hulled submarines, besides the Skate and Parché, are the Dentuda, Pilotfish and Apogon. Light-hull cartf include the Skipjack, Tuna and Searaven.

Concrete blocks, anchored by bridles fore and aft, will hold the submarines at the desired depth. The boats can be raised by pumping air into them. (ADD)

Water A-Bomb to Hurl Dangerous X-Rays in Air

JUL 23 1946

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

ABOARD U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, July 22—(AP) X-rays from water are expected to be 1,000 times more dangerous from the underwater atom bomb than they were from the air burst.

Water rays of the air burst bomb set up a wall that for some hours, and in some spots for nearbly a day, kept salvage crews away from target ships. Had there been crews on the ships, these water rays might have handicapped some of them under harbor conditions. The same water rays probably would have been no hazard for ships under way in the open sea.

Salts to Become Hot

But the underwater bomb will throw an estimated millions of tons of water into the air. Much of it will be emitting X-rays and some other less dangerous rays. The water itself is not expected to become seriously radioactive, but salts and other common elements will become very "hot" with rays.

Great quantities of this water will deluge ships. No predictions are available on how far this lethal spray will be thrown. But, in addition, there will be at least a strong mist containing X-ray particles floating down wind and over ships in that direction.

Rear Admiral William S. Parsons of Santa Fe, N. M., who fused the Hiroshima bomb, says there will be a tremendous shower of salt water gamma rays. When this water evaporates from the ships, some of the gamma or X-ray particles may evaporate with the water, but more is likely to be left on the decks. Some may percolate through openings in the ships.

Cloud of Steam Expected

There also will be another gamma or X-ray hazard. This will come from a cloud of steam expected to shoot skyward a few seconds after the underwater burst. For some seconds, as this steam passes over the ships and condenses, the vapor will be a source of radioactive deposits on ships.

Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy said that some ships may be too hot with X-rays to be boarded soon after the underwater bomb. He expects that on the day of the bomb burst, it will be possible to make a quick dash by boats to two islands bordering the target area to recover film from cameras.

Samples of the first atomic bomb cloud have been flown to Los Alamos, N. M., for analysis. Other samples have been analyzed here. But all these analyses are secret.

These cloud samples illustrate one kind of the dangerous mists expected to be deposited on ships after the second bomb. Some of this radiating mist will be shot aloft and will drift away. But on this second test, the height of the radio-active cloud is predicted as probably not much more than half of the height of the air burst cloud.

This lower cloud may be less dangerous at long distances from the lagoon but a greater peril to ships of the target fleet.

QUARTER OF ANIMALS DIE IN BOMB TEST

O. Whitehead

BIKINI LAGOON, July 22.—(AP) Nearly 25 per cent of the animals placed aboard ships in the first atomic bomb test at Bikini were killed outright or died later from exposure to lethal rays, a member of Vice Admiral William H. P. Blandy's staff revealed today.

In addition, about one-third of the animals still living are critically ill.

Capt. R. H. Draeger of Blandy's staff told newsmen it would be months, before the full story of what happened to the animals could be told. He said the animals exposed July 1 suffered "no real pain."

Studies have disclosed, he continued, that if the ships had been manned by crews, most of the seamen would have survived and would have been handling ships not put out of action.

Draeger reported that of 3,353 animals aboard the target fleet, 2,732 were taken off alive. Another 275 died later, not including those killed for purposes of scientific study.

Draeger estimated that about one-sixth of the animals made ill by exposure might have been saved had they received treatment. For scientific study, some animals were treated and others were not. All deaths were attributed directly to the atomic bomb.

Bikini Goats Honored by Society

North Hollywood, Cal., July 22 (A. P.).—The San Fernando Valley Goat Society, holding its tenth annual show, tried to observe one minute of silence yesterday in honor of the atomic-bombed goats of Bikini.

Four-hundred goat owners stood silently at the bidding of President Frank Ecker, but the goat entries in the show kept on b-a-a-ing, perhaps in protest to the 98-degree temperature. Ecker told members that he had received hundreds of telegrams commending him for his stand in paying respect to the goats that died and are dying in the name of science and research.

Mexico Prepares Claim To U.S.-Held Islands

Mexico City, July 22 (AP)—Mexico's claim to nine islands off the United States' Pacific Coast is being prepared for presentation to Washington.

Replying to the International League of Mexicans Abroad, the Foreign Office reported that a commission appointed December 9, 1944, is completing its work so that the claim may be filed before a century of United States occupation might seem to settle the title.

The nine islands include the Farallones, off San Francisco; Santa Rosa; Santa Cruz; Santa Catalina, famous resort off San Pedro; Santa Barbara; San Nicolas, and San Clemente.

Mexico contends that Spain owned all these, called the Archipelago of the North, and that they became Mexican when Spain, December 28, 1836, recognized this country's independence.

Under the February 2, 1848, treaty settling the war with the United States, Mexico asserts that only continental territory was ceded, and not any of the islands.

HUNT 15 CREWMEN AFTER B-17S CRASH

JUL 23 1946

Balboa, July 22 (A. P.).—Air and surface craft continued to comb the waters off the Pacific Coast of Panama today for fifteen crew members missing after a collision of two United States Army Flying Fortresses near Coiba Island. Five bodies have been recovered from the area where the tragedy occurred.

The collision happened Saturday afternoon while the planes were searching for three pursuit craft which were lost in a severe storm Thursday. Army headquarters said the big bombers crashed when they swept down to investigate what appeared to be a life raft floating on the water.

Four of the five bodies recovered were those of enlisted men whose names were withheld until the next of kin in the United States could be notified. The fifth was Second Lieut. Clair V. Brandhorst of Madison, Wis., who resided with his wife at Santa Clara, Panama.

The wives of the following personnel residing at Santa Clara were notified by Army headquarters that their husbands were missing:

Major Leonard N. Campbell, Roseville, Cal.; Major Harold L. Christman, Denton, Tex.; Major Paul J. Hydo, 565 Harrington street, Perth Amboy, N. J.; First Lieut. John R. Frye, Wollaston, Mass.; First Lieut. Ronald C. Morey, New Milford, Conn., and Technical Sgt. Harold D. Parsons, Hannibal, Mo.

Perth Amboy, July 22 (A. P.).—Major Paul J. Hydo, among fifteen crew members missing in a mid-air crash on two United States Army Flying Fortresses, entered the Army as a flying cadet in 1940 and was commissioned in 1941. He was promoted to Major in 1944 and only recently received an appointment to the permanent rank of first lieutenant in the regular Army. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hydo and has three brothers, George Jr., Bernard and Emmerich.

He married the former Ann Kohut of Perth Amboy and they have one son, Ronald, age two.

May Delays His Appearance Before War Profit Probers' Due to 'Pressure of Duties'

JUL 23 1946

PLAN TO TESTIFY SOON IS VOICED BY CONGRESSMAN

Lawmaker Repeats Demand for Right to Question, Present Witnesses.

ISSUES STATEMENT

Senate Committee Begins Inquiry Into Coffee's $2,500 Check.

WASHINGTON, July 22—(AP) Representative May (D-Ky) declared today that because of the "press of constant legislative duties" he would be unable to appear before the Senate War Investigating committee tomorrow in response to its subpoena.

He said in a statement to newsmen, however, that "I feel I will be able to make this appearance at an early date." The statement added that "arrangements" for the appearance "are now under discussion."

NIGHT
Requests Rights

The chairman of the House Military committee, whose name has figured in numerous angles of the inquiry, reiterated that he feels entitled to be represented by counsel and to have the right to cross-examine witnesses and subpoena documents.

May previously had made this a condition for a voluntary appearance but the committee had turned him down. Whether he would continue to insist upon it was not clear from his statement, which follows in full:

"This is to answer numerous inquiries about my intentions in reference to the demand of the Mead committee, exercised through service of a subpoena on July 19 calling for my appearance on Tuesday, i.e. for my appearance on Tuesday, July 23, at 10 o'clock.

Desires to Reply

"Due to press of constant legislative duties, particularly those in relation to the Atomic Energy Control bill, I will not be able to appear before the committee on Tuesday, though there is no disposition on my part to unduly delay my appearance pursuant to the committee's subpoena and I feel I will be able to make this appearance at an early date.

"There is not and never has been an iota of doubt about my desiring an opportunity to reply fully to innuendos, insinuations, deductions, and the like which have resulted from the hearings before the Mead committee. My willingness to appear was clearly stated in my letter of July 13, in which, as in my letter of July 12, I asked to be granted an opportunity to cross-examine, present witnesses, and to have produced documents to be designated. There is established precedent for this in recent hearings incident to the Pearl Harbor inquiry, when the committee extended to witnesses privileges of the character that I have asked for myself, the right to cross-examine, to bring witnesses, and designated documents produced.

"Arrangements for my appearance without conflicting with my imperative legislative duties, and at the convenience of the committee, are now under discussion. When the day and time shall have been determined, the press will be notified promptly.

"A. J. May."

Mead to Cooperate

Senator Mead (D-NY), chairman of the Senate committee, told newsmen later that it would be "very happy to cooperate with the Congressman and arrange a time for his appearance."

"We hope that he will appear very promptly," he added.

The War Investigating committee announced tonight it has undertaken a "preliminary investigation" of a $2,500 check which Representative Coffee (D-Wash) acknowledged receiving from a Tacoma, Wash., defense contractor.

Coffee termed the check a "campaign contribution."

The committee's action came after Senator Brewster (R-Me) turned over a copy of the Tacoma News Tribune, dated March 5, 1946, containing purported photostatic copies of the check and correspondence of Coffee, Paul A. Olson, his former secretary, and Eivind Anderson, the contractor.

With May unavailable for examination, the committee tomorrow will call Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt, chief of the Chemical Warfare service, to explain what Chairman Mead (D-NY) calls a "whitewash" of the munitions combine under investigation.

Committee attaches have reported that Waitt turned over to Albert Jacobson, $9,975-a-year legal consultant, the job of preparing the preliminary report which, Mead said, almost stopped the investigation before it started.

Jacobson has conceded the report was lacking in many details—particularly those linking May to the combine.

Justice to Be Heard

Along with Waitt, the committee decided to hear New York Supreme Court Justice Samuel Dickstein, former chairman of the House Immigration committee, and to recall Jean Bates, red-haired secretary, and Joseph Freeman, her former boss and Washington sales agent for the combine.

From Mrs. Bates, the committee plans to seek details of a report that Freeman and Murray Garsson, one of the combine's promoters, attempted to persuade her to be "hazy" in her account of the 14 months she worked in the Washington office. The report was published by the Washington Times-Herald, which interviewed Mrs. Bates last week.

Freeman appeared previously. This time, however, committee members said they will question him not only about his conversation with Mrs. Bates, but also about wartime contacts with May put into the evidence since his testimony.

"Yankel" Questions Ready

These points will include the statement of another former secretary, Eleanor Hall, that she overheard Freeman ask an official of the combine for $1,000 for Yankel"—a Yiddish nickname she said her employers used in referring to May.

Dickstein's name was drawn into the investigation by the two secretaries, who told of telephone conversations between his office and that of Freeman and Murray Garsson, brother of Henry Garsson and also an official in the combine.

Committee attaches said they probably will put into the record pictures of many of the principals in the inquiry—among them May and Waitt—taken at a New York party for Murray Garsson's daughter.

Dickstein will appear before the committee tomorrow at his own request. He told newsmen that he "never had any business with those birds. It was just social."

Friendship Only Social

Just as Representative Sabath (D-Ill) testified earlier, Dickstein said that he or Sabath occasionally got in touch with Freeman or Garsson when they needed another hand for a "friendly" card game—one in which losers dropped "about $10 or $15."

"I used to get it here," said Sabath, smiling and pointing to the back of his neck.

Sabath disclosed that he will return to the Senate committee to testify that it "may have been" he who introduced May to A. B. Gellman, another of the promoters of the combine.

Sabath said he could not recall that introduction very clearly, however, because he was so busy at the time trying to get war work assigned to Chicago.

Dickstein said that he "didn't get four cents' worth of war work for my district."

Freeman Faces Recall To Stand In War Probe

Washington, July 22 (AP)—The Senate War Investigating Committee announced today that Joseph Freeman, Washington agent for a Midwestern munitions combine, will be recalled tomorrow for questioning about reports that he attempted to influence a witness in the war-profits inquiry.

Committee Counsel George Meader said the group also would hear several other witnesses tomorrow, including Representative Andrew J. May (D., Ky.), chairman of the House Military Committee, if May decides to answer a summons for his appearance.

Five On The List

On the list, in addition to May and Freeman, were:

New York Supreme Court Justice Samuel Dickstein, former chairman of the House Immigration Committee. Witnesses have told of telephone calls between his office and the Washington headquarters of the munitions combine.

Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitte, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service.

Jean Bates, red-haired secretary, who worked for fourteen months in the Washington office of the combine.

"Be Hazy" Report Up

Meader said that Freeman would be asked about published reports that he and Henry Garsson, one of the combine's promoters, requested Mrs. Bates to be "hazy" in her recollections about certain occurrences in the Washington offices.

The committee thus far has found it expensive to conduct its investigation and is ready to ask for funds to supplement the $85,000 previously received.

Three Factors Cited

Senator Brewster (R., Maine) said no amount has been decided upon yet but that the need for more money arises from these factors:

1. Unexpected expenses incured during the committee's current inquiry into a mid-Western munitions combine—an inquiry that has brought repeated references to May.

2. A projected investigation into the activities of Col. Theodore Wyman, Jr., along lines recomended by the Pearl Harbor Committee. Wyman, as the Army's district engineer in Hawaii, was in charge of construction work there prior to the Japanese attack.

3. Federal pay boosts, which have upset the committee's budget for salaries of its investigators and other employés.

Has Back Log Of Cases

In addition, Brewster said, the committee has "quite a backlog" of war contract cases on which it wants to hold public hearings during the interval between adjournment and the end of the legal life of the present Congress next January.

Included in this backlog is the reopened May case and one involving a $2,500 check from a defense contractor to the secretary of Representative Coffee (D., Wash.).

In Coffee's case, Brewster noted that the Washington representative had been quoted as saying that he would "welcome" an investigation. The Maine Senator added that he assumed the same formula would be applied in this instance as to May—the commitee first would allow Coffee a "reasonable" time to appear voluntarily. In the event he did not do so, it would send him a written invitation.

Bombing Survey Backs Armed-Forces Merger

Washington, June 22 (AP)—President Truman's proposal to unify the armed forces under a single Cabinet officer received a belated boost today from the civilian-directed United States Strategic Bombing Survey. It was based on a detailed study of the conduct of the war in the Pacific.

Japan's lack of co-ordination at top levels contributed substantially to her disastrous decision to embark on a career of conquest and to ultimate defeat, the survey group found.

Its findings and recommendations were contained in a bulky report released without comment by the White House after the Administration dropped its fight for action on the merger at this session of Congress. Chairman Thomas (D., Utah) of the Senate Military Committee said, however, he would introduce a new unification measure at the next session.

Lack Of Unity Was Screened

The survey commission reported that "bureaucratic rivalry" between Japan's army and navy impeded war planning, proper employment of air power, development of adequate logistics and efficient use of her economic resources.

The existence of such joint agencies as the Supreme War Council "served mainly to hide the fact that real unity, integration and co-ordination were conspicuously lacking," the survey said.

In any reorganization of American defenses, however, the survey recommended that the air forces be broadened into a coequal service with added responsibilities for rocket and other defense.

New Duties For Air Forces

It proposed that this service "should be given primary responsibility for passive and active defense against long-range attack on our cities, industries and other substantial resources; for strategic attack, whether by airplane or guided missile; and for all air units other than carrier air and such land-based air units as can be more effective as component parts of the Army or Navy."

Some passive defense measures currently are being shaped by the Army and Navy Munitions Board. All three services are working on guided missiles, and the Army Air Forces and the Navy are competing for control of some phases of land-based air power.

The survey commission, headed by Franklin d'Olier, former national commander of the American Legion, made these other major recommendations:

1. Research and development. "If the United States is not to be forced to hasty and inadequate mobilization every time the threat of aggression arises in the world, it is essential that in the field of military weapons and tactics she be technically not merely abreast of but actually ahead of any potential aggressor. . . . Expenditures for research and development in the order of $1,000,000,000 annually may be required."

2. Intelligence. "Greater centralization to be provided by the national intelligence authority. . . . The present lack of recognized responsibility for intelligence work by the various operating organizations and the present shortage of trained and competent intelligence personnel give cause for alarm and require correction."

3. Armed strength as a force for peace. "The best way to win a war is to prevent it from occurring," but "prevention of war will not be furthered by neglect of strength. . . . As one of the great powers we must be prepared to act in defense of law and to do our share in assuring that other nations live up to their covenant."

The devolopment of the atomic bomb and other new weapons and the "unique" nature of the Pacific war prompted the survey commission to caution in applying the war's lessons to the future, but it ventured this advice:

1. Control of the air is of even greater significance since the arrival of the atom bomb and "the most intense effort must be devoted to perfecting defensive air control both by day and night."

2. Our vulnerability to blitzkrieg attack by rockets and other weapons must be materially reduced by peacetime preparation of a system of shelters, air-raid warnings, plans for evacuation of cities, stockpiling critical materials and dispersing key industries.

3. In a future war, heavy bombers will not be able to operate effectively much beyond the range of protecting fighters.

In its 20,000-word review of the Pacific war, the survey reported that the mistakes of Japan's leaders helped make her downfall certain, just as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower concluded in his report on the European campaign that the Allied victory was aided by Nazi miscalculations.

With the benefit of "hindsight" the group suggested that the United States delayed victory by errors, beginning with a failure by Congress to provide for stronger land, sea and air forces after Japan's 1931 Manchurian venture. Larger overall appropriations "might have made war unnecessary."

In the war, more submarines should have been built and used and bombers should have concentrated more heavily on Japanese railroads, it was suggested. Finally "we continued all-out mobilization of all resources . . . beyond the time when this was reasonably required."

Would Have Quit By November

"In all probability prior to November 1, 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if the atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated," the report concluded.

Japan's treacherous Pearl Harbor victory was cheap, costing her only 29 pilots, and two days later the British warships Prince of Wales and Repulse were sent to the bottom with the loss of but four Japanese navy medium bombers. But by the time of the surrender, all Japanese plane losses were totaled at 50,000, against 27,000 American planes lost in the Pacific.

Subs Sank Most Shipping

The report credited submarines and carrier-based planes with most of the havoc wrought on Japanese shipping. Of 8,900,000 tons of merchant ships sunk or seriously damaged, submarines were found to have accounted for 54.7 per cent.

Carrier planes were credited with 16.3 per cent of the merchant ship tonnage sunk, 10.2 per cent to army land-based planes, 4.3 per cent to navy and marine land planes, 9.3 per cent to mines. The score in warships sunk favored the Navy more heavily.

On the Japanese homeland islands, however, army B-29's alone dropped 147,000 tons of bombs, compared with 6,800 tons by navy aircraft.

CONFERENCE GETS ATOM CONTROL BILL

Washington, July 22 (A. P.).—The Senate refused today to accept House changes in atomic control legislation and sent the measure to a conference committee to iron out differences between the two branches. Named as the Senate's representatives on the committee were Senators McMahon (D.-Conn.), Russell (D.-Ga.), Edwin Johnson (D.-Col), Vandenberg (R.-Mich), and Austin (R.-Vt.).

Bernard M. Baruch, United States representative on the Atomic Energy Commission of the United Nations, conferred today with President Truman. Secretary of State Byrnes, who participated in the fifteen-minute White House conference, said that Baruch gave Mr. Truman a report on the prospects for action on atomic energy controls. He did not elaborate.

Oak Ridge, Tenn., July 22 (A. P.).—House amendments to the atomic energy control bill are the result of "appalling ignorance of the facts of atomic energy," the Association of Oak Ridge Engineers and Scientists said today.

In a telegram to Representative Rayburn (D. Tex.) the House speaker, the association stated that the only permanent security this country can gain against atomic warfare is international agreement in the field of atomic energy.

Another Probe Of '41 Raid Looming

Washington, July 22 (AP)—A new Pearl Harbor investigation came into view today.

The Senate War Investigating Committee—taking its cue from the voluminous report assessing responsibility for the December 7, 1941, military debacle—decided to reopen its own inquiry into prewar delays in fortifying the Pacific bastion.

Senator Brewster (R., Maine) said a similar effort two years ago was blocked by refusal of the House Military Committee, headed by Representative May (D., Ky.), to release a key witness to the Senate group.

Brewster is a member of both the Senate-House committee which delved into the blame behind Pearl Harbor and of the Senate's special War Investigating Committee, now engrossed in an attempt to summon May for testimony concerning his relations with a mid-Western munitions combine.

Wyman Central Figure

Central figure in the projected new inquiry is Col. Theodore Wyman, Jr., army district engineer in the Hawaiian department when the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor. Five months later Wyman was assigned to the Canol oil project in Canada. That was an undertaking which the Senate committee, then headed by President Truman as a senator, declared in a December 23 (1943) report should never have been started.

Referring specifically to "the Wyman matter," the Pearl Harbor committee in its final report Saturday called for appropriate Senate or House committees to make a separate inquiry into delays in constructing Hawaiian defenses before the Japanese attack.

Brewster said Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) readily agreed to have the War Investigating Committee pick up the thread of its inquiry.

Subpoena Incident

Brewster said he had been informed by Senate committee aides that a subpoena had once been issued for a key witness. Brewster said this sequence of events was related to him:

When the Senate committee's process server approached the prospective witness, the latter asked time to telephone. This was granted and the witness disappeared. A short time later Senate committee counsel received a call from May committee aides stating that the witness in question was under subpoena by the House group and could not be released.

The House committee found in a report filed June 14, 1944, that "mismanagement" on Wyman's part contributed to delays in prewar defense construction at Honolulu.

Association With Rohl

Both the House group and subsequently the Pearl Harbor Committee looked into Wyman's association with Hans Wilhelm Rohl, a German who became a naturalized American citizen three months before the Japanese attack. Rohl was part-owner of Hawaii Constructors, defense-work contractors on the islands.

The House committee reported that Wyman and Rohl were often together on the latter's yacht the Ramona. It cited testimony about "wild drinking parties" at which "cheap-looking types of young girls paraded in and out all evening."

And it said that after Wyman's assignment to Canada as division engineer, the Rohl-Connolly Company and associated firms obtained a $11,000,000 road contract to the Canol project.

No Disciplinary Action

Last October, Secretary of War Patterson reported that the investigation had developed no indications that the conduct of Wyman or Rohl "contributed in any way to the Pearl Harbor disaster." Patterson added that "disciplinary action is not justified."

While the Mead committee's inquiry into the Wyman-Rohl case promised to be the first new investigation of any phase of the Pearl Harbor incident, the possibility that Congress might review the findings of the joint committee was not discounted.

Brewster, who once suggested that "it might be necessary for a Republican Congress to finish the job," said that if GOP members win control of the House in this year's election he would not be surprised by demands for a new inquiry.

Ferguson Differs

However, Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), who joined with Brewster in a minority report naming President Roosevelt as among those they felt should bear part of the direct blame, said he foresaw no try at a new hearing "now or in the near future."

Ferguson told a reporter he hoped the State Department would supplement the congressional report with "diplomatic facts."

Hungary Issues Hold Trouble For Byrnes

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Soviet political activities in Hungary led diplomats today to stress the struggle Secretary of State Byrnes still faces when he returns to Paris this week for more peace-making.

This Government is reported planning a sharp new protest to Moscow over what is considered here an oppression of Hungarian political freedoms. But the problem is considered typical of the conflict between Russia and the Western powers which is the backdrop for the Paris peace conference.

The conference is scheduled to open a week from today. Aides expect Byrnes to leave Friday or Saturday. It was little more than a week ago that he returned from Paris after the Big-Four Foreign Ministers finished drafting the treaties for Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Italy and Finland which are to be acted on by the peace conference.

Restrict Control Powers

The texts of these documents have not been published. It is known, however, that they are intended to give much greater power into the hands of the native governments and thus restrict the rights of the occupation and control powers. This more or less fixed a deadline by which the Russians must wind up their most direct methods of consolidating Communist power in the Balkan states.

Officials here are not sure of the connection between this fact and what is going on in Hungary, but some suggest that is is probably very close.

As a nation, Hungary has voted in a manner less acceptable to Russia's political commissars than perhaps any other in eastern Europe.

In the balloting last November, the Communists polled 17 per cent of the votes, Social Democrats 17 per cent and the relatively middle-of-the-road "Small Holders" party 60 per cent. Ever since, the Small Holders have been under heavy Communist pressure.

Party Purge

Earlier this year a "purge" resulted in the ouster of 20 party leaders as "reactionaries."

A few weeks ago Soviet Lieut. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, ignoring the required routine of consulting American and British colleagues on the Allied Control Commission, ordered the Hungarian Government to disband a group of organizations he accused of being "Fascist." On July 11, President Ferenz Nagy, chief of the Small Holder party, advised Sviridov he would meet the demand.

The organizations to be broken up are the Boy Scouts, a student union, three Catholic youth groups and an organization similar to the Y.M.C.A.

U.S. Protests

The United States has already lodged one protest based on Russia's action. The American member of the Control Commission, Brig. Gen. Benjamin F. Weems, told General Sviridov that Russia's single-handed approach to the Hungarian Government was a violation of Allied agreements to act jointly in political issues.

The next protest, according to preliminary indications, is to be based on the fact that Hungary was forced to yield to the Russian demand to break up organizations which American officials do not consider Fascist.

Officials said that in view of the Hungarian experience and the firm hold Russia appears already to have established over Romania and Bulgaria, it may be a long time before the political guarantees expected from the Paris peace treaties become real to the Balkan peoples.

U. S. ASKS PACTS BE MADE PUBLIC

Washington, July 22 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Byrnes sent a message to Foreign Minister Molotov, Bevin and Bidault today urging them to agree to immediate publication of the texts of European peace treaties that have been drafted.

The United States previously had sought full publicity of the treaty drafts for Italy, the Balkan States and Finland, but had been turned down by the other governments. One report here is that Russia objected to making the texts public prior to the peace conference at Paris on July 29.

In dispatches from Paris, the New York Herald Tribune said it had obtained texts of the treaties and published accounts of them. Byrnes subsequently renewed his publication proposal.

Byrnes probably will leave Saturday for the Paris conference opening on Monday. A State Department spokesman [illegible] this today, said the [illegible] hold a press c[illegible] day.

U.S.S. HUNTINGTON IS SENT TO TRIESTE

Washington, July 22 (A. P.).—The Navy disclosed today that the Huntington, a 10,000-ton cruiser, has been ordered to Trieste to join the Mediterranean Fleet. She will bring the United States naval strength in the Mediterranean up to two cruisers and two destroyers.

The Navy described the Huntington's movement as routine, and said that the orders were issued a month ago. The reason the Mediterranean Fleet is concentrated around Trieste, the Navy said, is that its duty is to support occupation troops, and Trieste has been a scene of disturbances recently.

The Mediterranean Fleet is commanded by Vice-Admiral B. H. Bieri. The other ships are the cruiser Fargo, and destroyers Small and Power. The Huntington is at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

Philadelphia, July 22 (A. P.).—The new light cruiser Huntington sails tomorrow for Trieste. On her way she will deliver two priceless art treasures lent to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, for its diamond jubilee.

A half-lifesize statue of the Good Shepherd will be returned to the Vatican. The statue was lent by Pope Pius XII. The other work, the famous Michelangelo bas-relief of the Madonna and Child, is to be returned to a museum in Florence.

AAF SEEKS TO UTILIZE ATOM POWER IN PLANES

WASHINGTON, July 22—(AP) The Army Air forces said today it is working with aircraft engine companies in a research program to find out how atomic energy can be used to propel airplanes.

A primary contract to supervise the work with other companies has been awarded to the Fairchild Engine and Airplane corporation of New York.

ISOTOPES TO BE SHIPPED

Oak Ridge to Send Radioactive Materials Out for Study

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson disclosed tonight that the first shipment of radioactive isotopes, elements that have been exposed to atomic energy, will be made next week from Oak Ridge, Tenn., for use in medical, biological and industrial research.

The Secretary said in a speech prepared for broadcast that the Army was eager for atomic energy to be applied as soon as possible toward realizing its maximum peacetime benefits and added that biological research appeared to be a promising field for this work.

FOUR GROUPS OPPOSE LATIN MILITARY HELP

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—Four organizations opposing President Truman's military standardization program for the American republics asserted before the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee today that the plan would undermine the United Nations.

The National Committee to Win the Peace declared that the Administration plan to equip and train Latin-American armies and navies "cannot but be interpreted by Latin-America and the rest of the world as testimony to our lack of confidence in the Security Council."

Spokemen for the Council for Pan-American Democracy, the National Committee for Martime Unity, affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the International Mill and Smelter Workers Union (CIO), took the same ground.

Mrs. Marion Bachrach, executive secretary of the Council for Pan-American Democracy and a former columnist for the Communist paper, Daily Worker of New York, was one of the speakers.

Editors Believe U.S. Must Keep Men in Europe

Adequate Occupation Force for Long Time Favored by Returning Delegation

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP).—A group of American newspaper editors returned today after a month's tour of Europe and generally expressed the view that the United States must keep an adequate occupation force in Europe for some time.

Members of the party arriving at National Airport said that redeployment hampered United States authorities in their job of teaching democratic ideals to the Germans.

"Most of our occupation forces are young men between the ages of eighteen and twenty," said Herbert F. Corn, managing editor of "The Washington Star." "It's hard for men that young to do the job of persuading the Germans Nazism is wrong and democratic principles are right. It's a terrific job for boys."

Mr. Corn and John C. Oestreicher, foreign editor of the International News Service, said that despite these handicaps American occupation authorities in Germany and in Vienna were "doing a fine job."

Roy W. Howard, president of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, observed that Europe's economic recovery would be delayed "until France and Russia are willing to join Britain and the United States in bringing about unification" of the four occupation zones.

"The American public has a stake in this," Mr. Howard said, "because as long as Germany fails to reach a position where she can sustain herself economically, the American taxpayer is going to have to foot the bill involved in preventing starvation and avoiding political and economic chaos."

The editors, guests of Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson at lunch, also included Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of "The New York Times"; Lyle Wilson, Washington bureau manager of The United Press; W. F. Christenson, editor of "The Omaha World Herald"; Ed Kilman, editor of "The Houston Post"; W. S. Gilmore, editor of "The Detroit News"; J. D. Ferguson, president and editor of "The Milwaukee Journal"; Lee Hills, managing editor of "The Miami Herald," and Hugh Robertson, editor in chief of the Macy Westchester Papers.

A twelfth member of the party, Ludwell Denny, editorial writer for Scripps-Howard Newspapers, remaine din Europe.

TRUMAN NAMES DUNN AMBASSADOR TO ITALY

WASHINGTON, July 22—(AP) Assistant Secretary of State James C. Dunn, veteran diplomat and a top advisor on American foreign policy for many years, was nominated by President Truman today to be ambassador to Rome.

He will succeed Alexander C. Kirk, 57, who is retiring after 31 years in the foreign service.

Diplomats said Dunn was taking over one of the hot spots of the future, in which he will be dealing with such problems as the reconstruction of Italy and the maintenance of the internationalization of Trieste, a sore point between Italy and Yugoslavia.

Italy Approves Dunn Choice

Rome, July 22 (AP)—The Italian Foreign Office announced today it had given its assent to the appointment of James C. Dunn, Assistant Secretary of State, as the new United States Ambassador to Italy, replacing Alexander C. Kirk.

Gen. Littlejohn Takes Oath As War Assets Chief

JUL 23 1946

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Robert McGowan Littlejohn today took the oath as administrator of the War Assets Administration—the surplus disposal job which his predecessor termed a "rather difficult and thankless task."

General Littlejohn, former chief quartermaster in the European theater, succeeds Lieut. Gen. Edmund B. Gregory, who resigned because of ill health.

Littlejohn, one time heavyweight wrestler at West Point, told 500 workers and officials assembled for the ceremony that he recognized the tough job ahead in disposing of an estimated $30,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000 of surplus war goods and plants.

Sales Up 37 P.C.

The WAA credited Gregory with increasing surplus sales 37 per cent in four months.

In a final statement, Gregory said "imminent danger" threatens reconversion if the surplus agencies are not given 'the co-operation and support required to maintain an orderly flow of the Government's vast surplus stockpile into normal trade channels."

The agency said that since WAA's establishment on March 25, surplus goods costing more than $2,000,000,000 have been sold. This represents more than half the total sold in two years of surplus operations.

Vets Get Bigger Share

"Veterans get a bigger share of the goods," the statement continued. "Disposals of surplus aircraft have amounted to $370,000,000.

"Some of the largest Government-owned war plants, including the huge Geneva steel mills and most of the surplus aluminum plants, have been sold or leased to private enterprise.

"Administrative procedures have been reorganized. Paperwork has been reduced and simplified. Authority has been greatly decentralized."

RETURN ASKED ON SHIPS' COST

WSA Overpayment Recovery Sought By House Unit

JUL 23 1946

Washington, July 22 (AP)—The House Merchant Marine Committee today recommended that the Justice Department take steps to recover alleged overpayments by the Government for three ships purchased from the Colonial Navigation Company.

A committee report, based on a subcommittee investigation, said the War Shipping Administration had paid $854,500 for the vessels, whereas their "sound condition replacement value" had been estimated by the appraisal committee and the director of maintenance and repairs of the WSA at $431,468.

Insurance Evaluation

The committee said the purchase price had been based on insurance evaluation, but that a breakdown of insurance policies showed that the vessels themselves had been insured for $705,000 and that $117,000 of insurance was carried for "disbursements" and "anticipated earnings."

The report criticized Thomas M. Torrey, former director of large vessels procurement for the WSA, for accepting insurance valuation as an indication of worth, for not having sought a breakdown of policies to learn that disbursements and anticipated earnings were included, and took Colonial Navigation to task for not having made these facts known to WSA.

Of the WSA's part in the transaction, the report said:

"No proof of fraud or personal gain on their part has been found. But the error of judgment involved, particularly when it is recalled that estimates by the War Shipping Administration evaluation experts showing that the ships had a value far less than that agreed upon were known to the negotiators, is one not easily excused."

New York-Providence Run

The three ships—the Arrow Comet and Meteor—had been operated by the company between New York and Providence, R.I., prior to their purchase by WSA in 1942, the report said.

The committee report, prepared by Representatives Donner (D., N.C.) and Hand (R., N.J.), commented as follows on the valuation of the vessels:

"Although the War Shipping Administration paid $822,500 (not including supplies) for these ships, their net book value of the date of requisition was only $68,232.

"To acquire these three ships . . . Colonial Navigation Company, had paid $269,801. Betterments on the vessels amounted to $109,203, from the time of acquisition (by the company) to the date of requisition while depreciation during that period amounted to $310,772, leaving the net book value of slightly in excess of $68,000. . . ."

The committee also was critical of the Navy and the Office of Defense Transportation for requiring WSA to prepare one of the ships—the Meteor—for service between Baltimore and Norfolk and Washington and Norfolk.

$742,216 For One Ship

The report said repairs totaling $742,216.93 had been required to make the ship suitable for use in Chesapeake Bay and added:

"After such repairs were made the Meteor was operated for about one year and was then laid up. Over and above the cost of operation of the ship during that period, therefore, the Government incurred an expense approaching $1,000,000 for the purchase and repair of a ship 43 years old at the time of requisition and which now probably can be used only for scrap."

AP MAN RESTORED AS ARMY WRITER

Senate Hears Eisenhower Has Lifted Ban on Kennedy for Reich Surrender Flash

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—Senator Sheridan Downey, Democrat, of California, told the Senate today that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had "removed any bar" that might prevent Edward Kennedy, who sent the first story of Germany's unconditional surrender, from working with the Army "in his profession as a writer."

Senator Downey said that he had asked General Eisenhower to review the action of Supreme Allied Headquarters in suspending Mr. Kennedy's press credentials for sending The Associated Press dispatch of May 7, 1945, disclosing the surrender prior to the official release.

"General Eisenhower agreed to do so and I am now happy to have the opportunity to announce that he has removed any bar which might prevent Mr. Kennedy from working with the War Department and the Army in his profession as a writer," said the Senator.

"General Eisenhower's action, as I understand it, does not rescind the decision of Supreme Headquarters in the case, which the War Department still believes was justified, but, nevertheless, restores to Mr. Kennedy the opportunity of resuming, without prejudice, his work as a military correspondent should he desire to do so in the future. General Eisenhower also has told me that he wishes Mr. Kennedy every success."

At the same time Senator Downey put into the record four documents which he described in a statement as follows:

"1. The text of the official German announcement of the unconditional surrender, broadcast publicly by the Doenitz government over the radio at Flensburg, Denmark, as monitored and distributed for immediate publication by the British Minister of Information.

"2. A War Department memorandum in which Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, who was Chief of Staff at Supreme Headquarters at the time of the surrender, states that the Flensburg announcement was made pursuant to orders from Supreme Headquarters that the German troops were to be informed by every possible means of the surrender and directed to cease resistance.'

"3. A letter from the War Department's Bureau of Public Relations to Representative Albert Gore (of Tennessee) establishing the fact that the Flensburg announcement was made one hour and fifty-four minutes before the Kennedy story of the surrender appeared on the news wire.

"4. A statement by Reiman Morin, a member of Mr. Kennedy's staff in Paris (Mr. Kennedy was chief of the Paris AP Bureau) that he was present at a conference at which Mr. Kennedy informed the Chief American censor at Supreme Headquarters that since the surrender had already been made public by the Germans, he considered the story released and intended to send his dispatch."

Kennedy Absolves Aide

In a statement here yesterday Mr. Kennedy said:

"The action of General Eisenhower speaks for itself. I also have asked General Eisenhower to take similar action in the case of Morton Gudebrod, who was in no way responsible to anyone but me for filing the dispatch, and I am confident General Eisenhower will do so."

Mr. Gudebrod, now a member of The Associated Press staff in New York, placed the telephone call to London to transmit Mr. Kennedy's flash on the signing of the surrender and subsequently he was disaccredited by Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Forces for "using an unauthorized means of communication."

Mr. Kennedy during recent months has been doing free lance work and writing a book.

At general offices in New York, The Associated Press said it had no comment.

Porter Backs OPA Bill In Discussion with Truman

White House Reports Rapid Price Rise Since End of Controls.

WASHINGTON, July 22 — (AP) Just after Senate-House conferees had completed a compromise forbidding ceilings on major food items for 30 days, Price Administrator Paul Porter told President Truman today that the new OPA bill is better than the one he vetoed in June.

Porter visited the President not long after the White House itself had gotten back into the price control fight with a report that prices have increased rapidly since OPA died. The report, from the Commerce department and unaccompanied by any comment from Mr. Truman himself, argued that prices would have risen even more were it not for efforts by OPA's foes to keep increases at a minimum until the fate of OPA is determined.

No Recommendation Made

The Price Administrator, leaving the executive offices, told newsmen he had made no recommendation on whether Mr. Truman should sign or veto the new bill if it passes. He said he would not do so until it arrives at the White House.

30.24-4297

He added, however, that he had told Mr. Truman "this bill is better in many important and material respects than the one he vetoed."

Meanwhile showdown votes on the new measure were arranged for tomorrow in both Houses.

The main argument presented by the Commerce department report issued by the White House was this:

"It is to the interest of those groups in the community who have been lobbying to end price control to keep price increases at a minimum during the interim while the fate of OPA is being decided by Congress. This consideration has undoubtedly motivated some of the voluntary 'hold-the-line' agreements which have been widely publicized by industry."

Roll Back Threat Cited

Another factor, the report said, has been the prospect of reimposition of OPA controls and a rollback to June 30 levels.

It said that a "striking aspect" of the "large increases" that have occurred has been that they came in the face of that outlook, and added:

"Without this prospect overhanging the market, price increases would most certainly have been greater and more general."

The study was based on Bureau of Labor statistics figures showing a 25 per cent increase in the daily spot market prices for 28 basic commodities in the first 16 days after controls lapsed June 30.

The report was issued shortly after the agents of the two branches of Congress put the final okay on a compromise to give OPA a new year of life under new rules for pricing in general and a prohibition against ceilings on meat, poultry, milk, eggs, grains and other basic foods before Aug. 20—if then.

Control Board Prepared

The committee left to a three-man control board, to be created with higher authority than OPA, the final determination whether any further price ceilings at all may be clamped on the food items. The bill continues rent control authority unchanged. Outside the list of decontrolled foods, ceilings could go back into force at once, but under the new rules.

Meanwhile, a group of Democratic leaders, calling at the White House, failed to get a definite commitment from President Truman whether he will approve or veto the bill if it passes. Some said privately, however, that they expected the House and Senate to pass it promptly, and Mr. Truman to sign it.

The Senate Democratic leader, Barkley of Kentucky, was one of the White House callers. He told reporters "the President gave no indication whether he would approve the bill, but I sure hope he will."

There were signs of floor battles in both Houses as three members of the 14-man conference committee refused to sign the bill. They were Senator Millikin (R.-Colo.) and Representative Wolcott (R.-Mich.) and Smith (R.-Ohio).

Bitter Fight Expected

Millikin said he expects "a bitter fight" in the Senate against the compromise. The Senate's bill had entirely forbidden ceilings on the list of foods.

Representative Wolcott (R.-Mich.), one of those opposing the compromise bill, told reporters, "I refuse to be a party to the almost inevitable confusion which will result from attempts to administer this bill."

He foresaw a possibility that some dairymen and other food producers might refuse to submit to further controls.

Also, Wolcott said, there is a danger of a "famine" in meat and other products before Aug. 20, with wholesalers and retailers refusing to buy from producers because of uncertainties about new price ceilings. "They would not want to get high cost foods on their shelves that they would have to sell at a loss," he said.

However, Senator Taft (R.-Ohio), who bore the brunt of Mr. Truman's criticism in his veto of the first OPA bill, approved the new measure. He predicted passage and presidential signatures. Others of the conference group approving were Barkley, Senators Downey (D.-Calif.), Radcliffe (D.-Md.), Wagner (D.-N. Y.), Tobey (R.-N. H.), and Representatives Spence (D.-Ky.), Brown (D.-Ga.), Patman (D.-Tex.) Barry (D.-N. Y.) and Gamble (R.-N. Y.).

JUL 23 1946

CONFEREES BAR FOOD CONTROLS BEFORE AUG. 20

Decide That OPA Ceilings Cannot Be Revived at Any Earlier Date.

Washington, July 22 (A. P.).—A House - Senate conference committee decided today that, in the revival of the OPA, price ceilings cannot be restored before August 20 on meat, poultry, eggs, milk and a list of other basic foods. Whether these foods can be controlled at all again will be left to the determination of a three-man board with higher authority than the OPA.

The conference committee completed the writing of the compromise OPA measure and tossed the issue again directly to the House and Senate for a showdown tomorrow.

The White House today made public a statement asserting that prices have risen rapidly since the OPA went out of existence despite efforts by price control foes "to keep prices at a minimum" until OPA's fate finally is decided. The statement, prepared by the Department of Commerce, asserted that the spurt in prices after the lapse of OPA controls on June 30 "boosted the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of daily spot market prices for twenty-eight basic commodities 25 per cent during the first sixteen days of July."

"Perhaps the most striking aspect of the recent behavior of prices is that the large increases occurred despite the prospect of the reimposition of OPA controls and of a rollback to June 30 levels," the statement said. "Without this prospect overhanging the market, price increases would most certainly have been greater and more general."

Earlier Senate Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky predicted at the White House that the House and Senate would approve the compromise promptly and expressed the hope that Mr. Truman will sign it.

The compromise bill was approved eleven of the fourteen Senate and House conferees who wrote it. The three declining to sign it were Senator Milliken (R.-Col.) and Representatives Wolcott (R.-Mich.) and Smith (R.-Ohio).

Barkley told reporters at the White House that he did not know whether Mr. Truman would sign the compromise revival bill.

Barkley, accompanied by Democratic chiefs of both houses, said Mr. Truman was not asked whether he would put his signature to the proposal which would greatly alter price control procedure.

"And he did not tell us whether he would," Barkley told reporters.

The President, he said, is having the legislation analyzed. Price Administrator Porter was to see Mr. Truman late today.

Subsequently Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross told a news conference he had "no prophecy to make" concerning the President's action on the OPA bill.

"I don't know what the President is going to do," he said.

He said that all the Federal officials concerned with stabilization would present their views to Mr. Truman, just as they did before he vetoed the last OPA compromise proposal.

The OPA drafted a report on the bill for Mr. Truman.

Porter said, "We are now working on an analysis of the bill's economic consequences for submission to President Truman," Porter would not say whether he would recommend another veto.

JUL 23 1946

President Silent On OPA Bill

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Senator Barkley (D., Ky.) said today as he left the White House that he did not know whether President Truman would sign compromise legislation to revive the OPA, but added "I hope he will."

The Senate Democratic leader, accompanied by Democratic chiefs of both houses, said Mr. Truman was not asked whether he would put his signature to the proposal which would greatly alter price control procedure.

"And he did not tell us whether he would," Barkley said.

Bill Being Analyzed

The President, he said, is having the legislation analyzed. OPA Administrator Porter will see Mr. Truman this afternoon.

Subsequently, Presidential Secretary Charle G. Ross told a news conference that he had "no phophecy" to make" concerning the President's action on the OPA bill.

"I don't know what the President is going to do," Ross said.

He said that all the Federal officials concerned with stabilization would present their views to Mr. Truman, just as they did before he vetoed the last OPA compromise proposal.

The OPA drafted a report on the bill for Mr. Truman.

The report presumably is intended as a sign-or-veto guide to the Chief Executive. However, one official in a position to know said Mr. Truman has already indicated a decision to approve the measure, "reluctantly."

There is a possibility of at least another four-week holiday from price ceilings on meats, dairy products, grains, cottonseed and soybeans and their food and feed products.

Up To Three-Man Board

Final determination whether these items shall be brought back under control August 20 is left to a three-man board with power to overrule the OPA on both decontrol and recontrol decisions.

This board will also decide whether ceilings shall be reimposed on poultry, eggs, food and feed products made from them, tobacco and its products and petroleum and its products.

Porter said "we are now working on an analysis of the bill's economic consequences for submission to President Truman."

Chairman Spence (D., Ky.) of the House Banking Committee, leader in the Administration's battle for a strong OPA, commented: "I don't think it is a very effective bill, but it is the best we can do. I believe the President will sign it as the last recourse."

Neither Spence nor Barkley would say whether the new bill is "better or worse" than the one Mr. Truman vetoed three weeks ago.

The compromise measure will go to the House and Senate floors tomorrow for showdown votes on acceptance. There appeared to be little doubt, however, that both bodies would approve it.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, July 22—The text of the bill for restoration of the OPA, as reported by the Senate-House conferees and presented for final ratification or rejection by the two houses, is as follows:

HJ Res 371.

In lieu of the Senate amendment insert the following:

That section 1 (b) of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, is amended by striking out "June 30, 1946," and substituting "June 30, 1947."

Sec. 2—Sec. 6 of the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, is amended by striking out "June 30, 1946," and substituting "June 30, 1947."

Sec. 3—Title I of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, is amended by inserting after Sec. 1 thereof a new section as follows:

"PURPOSES AND POLICIES IN THE TRANSITION PERIOD

"Sec. 1 A (a) OBJECTIVES—The Congress hereby affirms—(1) That because of abnormally excess spending power in relation to the presently available supply of commodities, rapid attainment of production equal to the public demand is one of the necessary and urgent objectives for the prevention of inflation and for the achievement of a reasonable stability in the general level of prices and rents, cost of living and costs of production (including labor costs) for the purposes set forth in Section 1 of this act and for the further purposes of protecting the real value of benefits provided by law for veterans and their dependents, of keeping faith with purchasers of United States war bonds and of making possible a successful transition to a peacetime economy of maximum employment, production and purchasing power under a system of free enterprise;

"(2) That unnecessary or unduly prolonged controls over prices and rents and use of subsidies would be inconsistent with the return to such a peace-time economy and would tend to repress and prevent the attainment of this and the other goods herein declared; and

"(3) That adequate prices are necessary stimulants to the production thus desired and the expeditious attainment of said goals.

"(b) DECLARATION OF DECONTROL POLICY—Therefore, it is hereby declared to be the policy of the Congress that the Office of Price Administration, and other agencies of the Government, shall use their price, subsidy, and other powers to promote the earliest practicable balance between production and the demand therefor of commodities under their control, and that the general control of prices and the use of subsidy powers shall, subject to other specific provisions of this Act, be terminated as rapidly as possible consistent with the policies and purposes set forth in this section and in no event later than June 30, 1947, and on that date the Office of Price Administration shall be abolished.

"(c) RECOMMENDATIONS BY THE PRESIDENT TO THE CONGRESS—(1) As soon as practicable after the enactment of this section and in any event on or before Jan. 15, 1947, the President shall recommend to the Congress such further legislation as in his judgment is needed to establish monetary, fiscal and other policies which are adequate to supplement the control of prices and wages during the balance of the fiscal year 1947, and to insure that general control of prices and wages can be terminated by the end of that fiscal year without danger of inflation thereafter.

Text of the Bill for Restoration of the OPA as Reported by Senate-House Conferees

"(2) On or before April 1, 194. the President shall report to the Congress what, if any, commodities or classes of commodities, including housing accommodations, are in such critically short supply as to necessitate, in his judgment, the continuance of the powers granted by this act as to them after June 30, 1947, together with his recommendations as to established departments or agencies of the Government (other than the Office of Price Administration) which should be charged with the administration of such powers.

"(d) DECONTROL OF NON-AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES—(1) On or before Dec. 31, 1946, the Administrator shall decontrol all non-agricultural commodities not important in relation to business costs or living costs, and prior to that date shall proceed with such decontrol as rapidly as, in his judgment, will be consistent with the avoidance of a cumulative and dangerous unstabilizing effect. In no event shall maximum prices be maintained after Dec. 31, 1946, for any non-agricultural commodity or class of commodities unless the same has been expressly found by the Administrator to be important in relation to business costs or living costs.

"(2) The Administrator shall provide for the prompt removal of maximum prices in the case of any non-agricultural commodity whenever the supply thereof exceeds or is in approximate balance with the demand therefor (including appropriate inventory requirements).

"(3) Whenever, after a reasonable test period, it appears that the supply of a non-agricultural commodity which has been decontrolled, is no longer consistent with the applicable decontrol standard, the administrator, with the advance consent in writing of the Price Decontrol Board established under Subsection (h), shall re-establish such maximum prices for the commodity, consistent with applicable provisions of law, as in his judgment may be necessary to effectuate the purposes of this act. The supply of a non-agricultural commodity shall be deemed inconsistent with the applicable decontrol standard in any case where the prices of the commodity have risen to and after a reasonable test period remain at unreasonable and inflationary levels.

"(4) Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to authorize the Administrator to impose or maintain price controls with respect to petroleum or petroleum products processed or manufactured in whole or substantial part from petroleum, except that, after Aug. 20, 1946, maximum prices with respect thereto may be re-established pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (3) of this Subsection (d), but only under the standards prescribed in paragraph (8) (c) of Subsection (c).

"(E) AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES—(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2) of this Subsection (e), no maximum price regulation or order shall be established or maintained which reflects a price for any agricultural commodity or product thereof (including livestock) less than the highest of the following prices for such commodity or product, as determined by the Administrator:

"(A) The parity price for such commodity or product.

"(B) The average price for such commodity or product during the period from January 1, 1942, to December 31, 1942, inclusive.

"(C) The average price for such commodity or product during the last completed calendar month for which data are available to the Administrator.

"(2) Paragraph (1) of this Subsection (e) shall not apply to any agricultural commodity or product thereof (including livestock) if the Administrator determines that the supply of such commodity or product is in excess of the demand therefor at prices equal to the highest of the prices specified in paragraph (1) of this Subsection (e), and that the placing in effect of such prices would result in materially increasing the cost of living of consumers generally.

"(3) Whenever the Administrator determines that the placing in effect of the highest of the prices specified in paragraph (1) of this Subsection (e) would result in materially increasing the cost of living of consumers generally, he shall certify such fact to the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Secretary of Agriculture shall thereupon recommend to the Administrator such action as he deems appropriate to prevent such increase in the cost of living, including the payment of subsidies. If the Administrator does not approve such recommendations, the Board may issue such order as it deems proper upon the record or may conduct a new hearing upon the petition before the Board.

Regional Committees

Sec. 4. Section 2 (a) of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "In administering the provisions of this subsection relating to the establishment of industry advisory committees, the Administrator, upon the request of a substantial portion of the industry in any region, shall appoint a regional industry advisory committee for such region."

Sec. 5. Section 2 (b) of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraphs:

"After the date upon which this paragraph takes effect, the Administrator, when establishing rent ceilings on hotels or when passing upon applications for adjustments of rent ceilings on hotels, is authorized to take into consideration the distinction between transient hotels and residential or apartment hotels, including the difference in the investment, operation, expenses, and mechanical details of operation between the transient hotels and the residential and apartment hotels, and is directed to classify separately by regulation (1) transient hotels, (2) residential and apartment hotels, and (3) tourists courts, rooming houses, and boarding houses.

"While maximum rents are in effect under this Act with respect to housing accommodations in any defense-rental area, such housing accommodations shall not be subject to rent control by any State or local government."

Limit on Buying for Resale

Sec. 6 (a) The last paragraph of Section 2 (e) of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended by the Stabilization Extension Act of 1944, shall not apply with respect to operations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1947, of the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation: Provided, That with respect to such corporations and such operations, the making of subsidy payments and buying for resale at a loss shall be limited as follows:

Payments and purchases may be made with respect to operations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1947, which involve subsidies and anticipated losses as follows:

"(1) With respect to rubber produced in Latin America and Africa, and with respect to sugar, and ment, is determined, under the applicable maximum price regulation or order, by the addition of a customary margin to the acquisition cost of such item.

"(p) After July 1, 1946, no maximum price regulation or order shall be issued or continued in effect requiring any seller to limit his sales by any weighted average price limitation based on his previous sales.

"(q) In the case of any retail industry, the principal sales of which consisted during the calendar years 1939 to 1941, inclusive, of sales of a commodity or commodities the production or retail distribution of which has been reduced, for a period of three years beginning on or after March 2, 1942, by 75 per centum or more below such production or retail distribution for the calendar years 1939 to 1941, inclusive, as a result of the operation of any governmental regulation or restriction, the Administrator shall not, in establishing maximum prices under this section, reduce established peacetime retail trade discounts or mark-ups or dealer handling charges for any such commodity before the retail unit sales of such commodity for a period of six months shall have reached the average annual retail unit sales thereof for the calendar years 1939 to 1941, inclusive.

"(r) In the case of any wholesale industry, the principal sales of which consisted during the calendar years 1939 to 1941, inclusive, of sales of a commodity or commodities, the production or wholesale distribution of which has been reduced for a period of three years begining on, or after, March 2, 1942, by 75 per centum or more below such production or wholesale distribution for the calender years 1939 to 1941, inclusive, as the result of the operation of any governmental regulation or restriction, the Administration shall not in establishing maximum prices under this section reduce established wholesale trade discounts or normal wholesale mark-ups for any such commodity prevailing on March 2, 1942, before the wholesale unit sales of such commodity for a period of six months shall have reached the average annual wholesale unit sales thereof for the calendar years 1939 to 1941, inclusive.

Protection for Discounts

"(s) No maximum price regulation or order shall require the reduction of the established peacetime discounts or mark-ups for the sale of any manufactured or processed commodity (treating as a single commodity for the purposes of this paragraph all commodities in a line of related commodities which, for the purpose of establishing manufacturers' and processors' maximum prices, have been placed by the Office of Price Administration under a single regulation) if the retail, wholesale, or other distributive trade selling such commodity shows that the commodity constituted approximately one-half or more of the gross sales income of a majority of the persons engaged in such trade in 1945 and that, in the first quarter of 1946, the deliveries of such commodity to such distributive trade were less than 100 per centum of the deliveries thereof in the corresponding quarter of 1945.

"(t). In establishing maximum prices applicable to wholesale or retail distributors, the Administrator shall allow the average current cost of acquisition of any commodity, plus such average percentage discount or mark-up as was in effect on March 31, 1946.

"(u) After the date upon which this Sub-section takes effect, no maximum price shall be established or maintained, under this Act or under any other provision of law, with respect to any new commodity when the Administrator upon application finds that its use, in the production, manufacturing, or processing of any commodity or commodities, without increasing the cost to the ultimate user, either increases the life or reduces the cost of production, manufacture, or processing of the commodity or commodities produced, manufactured or processed. As used in this Sub-section the term 'new commodity' means a commodity which was not commercially or industrially available prior to Jan. 30, 1942.

"(v). In the case of softwood logs and lumber, the maximum prices shall be established at a level which will permit producers of at least 90 per centum of the production of softwood logs and lumber to recover their current costs of production.

Curbs on Fixing Fabric Prices

"(w) In establishing maximum prices for sales of finished woven or knitted fabrics made primarily of cotton fiber or for the sales of apparel made therefrom it shall be unlawful for the Administrator to establish or maintain differentials in the method of determining the basic grey-goods cost or the finished-woven-fabrics or finished-knitted-fabrics cost to which a mark-up is to be applied based on the degree of integration of the seller.

"(x) Whenever the world price of a commodity essential to the economy of the United States (average price at which such commodity could be purchased when landed duty paid at any United States port of entry) exceeds the maximum purchase price established by the Administrator, and results in

"(1) an actual reduction of the importation of such commodity into the United States in an amount substantial in relation to the total consumption of the commodity in the United States; or

"(2) the substantial curtailment or restriction of the domestic trade in such commodity or products processed directly therefrom, the Administrator shall, in order to maintain and increase domestic production and employment, and to make possible the balancing of supply and demand, promptly remove maximum purchase prices from imports of such commodity and maximum prices from products processed directly therefrom, or increase the maximum prices of imports of such commodity and of products processed directly therefrom to the extent necessary to prevent such reductionn in importation or curtailment of domestic trade."

Base Period Will Be 1940

Section 11. The Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, is amended by inserting after Section 5 thereof the following new section:

"Section 6. (a) For the purposes of this Act and the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, the base period shall be the year 1940 with respect to any commodity above that which was paid or incurred, if the operations in effect on July 29, 1946, had been continued on the same basis.

"(B) When any direct or indirect subsidy to an industry is reduced or terminated, or upon re-control, is not restored, or is restored only in part, any maximum price applicable to the product affected shall be correspondingly increased, except in the case of transportation subsidies to high-cost producers, and premium payments under authority of the Veterans' Emergency Housing Act of 1946.

"(6) Where roll-back subsidies have previously been or presently are in effect, the industries which have received such subsidies shall be permitted to increase their ceiling prices at least an amount equivalent to the amount of the discontinued roll-back subsidy. Such price increase shall become effective either upon discontinuance of the roll-back subsidy or upon passage of this Act, whichever date is the later. For the purpose of this paragraph, the term "roll-back subsidies" means subsidy payments, or purchases and sales of a commodity at a loss by the Government of the United States (including any Government-owned or controlled corporation), or contracts therefor, which resulted directly or indirectly in the lowering of ceiling prices below the maximum price levels established by the Office of Price Administration prior to the institution of the subsidy payments or purchases sales at a loss, or the execution of the contracts therefor, whichever date is the earlier.

"(d) Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the provisions of Public Laws 30, 88, 164, and 328 of the Seventy-ninth Congress, or to prevent the use of the sums authorized in such loans to fulfill obligations incurred prior to July 1, 1946, with respect to operations prior to such date.

"(e) Notwithstanding any of the foregoing provisions of this Section 6, 1946 and 1947 crop program operations with respect to sugar, may, while maximum prices are in effect with respect to sugar, be continued until such crops are processed and distributed, and the cost of 1946 crop program operations with respect to sugar may be charged to the funds authorized by Public Law 30, Seventy-ninth Congress, as amended by Public Law 328, Seventy-ninth Congress. For the purpose of this Section 6, no subsidy program operation on sugar shall be considered to be a new subsidy, provided, that the Commodity Credit Corporation or any other Government agency shall not absorb any increase in the price paid for Cuban sugar over 3.675 cents per pound, raw basis, f.o.b. Cuba, as being paid for such sugar, in Cuba, on June 30, 1946.

Veteran Housing Curb Barred

"(f) Nothing in this section shall be construed as a limitation upon operations authorized by the Veterans' Emergency Housing Act of 1946 and nothing in this Act or in any other Act shall prohibit the establishment of maximum sales prices or maximum rents for housing accommodation for which materials or facilities are allocated, or priorities for delivery thereof issued, under said Veterans' Emergency Housing Act of 1946.

Sec. 7. Section 2(i) of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, is amended to read as follows:

"(i) For the purposes of this Act and the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, fish and other sea food shall be deemed to be agricultural commodities, and commodities processed or manufactured in whole or substantial part from fish or other sea foods shall be deemed to be manufactured in whole or substantial part from agricultural commodities: Provided, That the provisions of Section 3 of the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, shall not be applicable with respect to fish and other sea foods and commodities processed or manufactured in whole or substantial part therefrom, but the maximum price established for any fish or sea food commodity or for any commodity processed or manufactured in whole or substantial part therefrom shall not be below the average price therefor in the year 1942."

"(2) The Board shall appoint and fix the compensation of a secretary for the Board and such other officers and employes as may be necessary to enable it to perform its functions. The Board shall maintain an office in charge of its secretary in the District of Columbia, which shall be open on all business days for the receipt of petitions for review and the transaction of other business of the Board. The Board shall prescribe regulations and procedures for the conduct of its business which will provide for summary disposition, with the utmost expedition consistent with sound decision, of petitions filed with the Board.

"(3) A petition made under Subsection (g) (3) shall specifically state the grounds upon which the petitioning industry advisory committee believes that maximum prices on the commodity involved should be removed. A copy of such petition shall forthwith be served on the Administrator or the Secretary, as the case may be, who shall within such time as may be fixed by the Board certify and file with the Board a transcript of such portions of the proceedings in connection with the petition under Sub-section (g) as are material. Such transcript shall include a statement in writing of the Administrator's or Secretary's reasons for believing that maximum prices on the commodity involved should not be removed, together with a statement of any economic data or other facts of which he has taken official notice. At the earliest practicable time, the Board shall conduct a hearing upon the petition, at which the Administrator or the Secretary, as the case may be, and the committee shall be given an opportunity to present their views and argument orally, or in writing. If application is made to the Board by either party for leave to introduce additional evidence, the Board may permit such evidence to be introduced or filed with it if it deems it material and determines that such evidence could not reasonably have been offered or included in the proceeding under Sub-section (g). At the earliest practicable time after the hearing on any petition, the Board shall make and issue an order specifying the extent, if any, to which maximum prices on the commodity involved shall be removed. The Board shall order the removal of such maximum prices if and to the extent that in its judgment the standards of decontrol stated in Sub-section (d) or (e) have been satisfied with respect to the commodity involved. The Administrator shall remove maximum prices with respect to the commodity in question within such time and to such extent as shall be specified in the order of the Board. Orders of the Board shall not be subject to modification or review by any other Department or agency or by any court.

"(f) Saving provision. Nothing in this section shall limit the Administrator's authority to remove maximum prices for any nonagricultural commodity, or any agricultural commodity with the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture, at an earlier time than would be required by this section, if in his judgment or in the judgment of the Secretary of Agriculture, as the case may be, such action would be consistent with the purposes of this section.

"(g) PETITIONS FOR DECONTROL—(1) If in the judgment of the industry advisory committee appointed by the Administrator in accordance with Section 2(a) of this Act, to advise and consult with respect to a commodity, the standards set forth in this section require the removal of maximum prices for such commodity, it may file a petition for the removal of such maximum prices. In the case of any nonagricultural commodity, such petition shall be filed with the Administrator in accordance with regulations prescribed by him. In the case of agricultural commodities, such petition shall be filed with the Secretary of Agriculture in accordance with regulations prescribed by him and shall request that he make an appropriate certification or recommendation to the Price Administrator. The petition shall specifically state the grounds upon which the committee believes such action to be required and shall be accompanied by affidavits or other written evidence in support thereof.

Has Fifteen Days to Decide

"(2) Within fifteen days after receiving a petition filed in accordance with the provisions of this subsection, the Administrator or the Secretary of Agriculture, as the case may be, shall either grant the petition or inform the committee in writing why in his judgment the standards for decontrol stated in subsections (d) and (e) have not been satisfied with respect to the commodity involved. If the petition is not granted in full, the Administrator or the Secretary, as the case may be, shall, within ten days after the receipt of a request by the committee for further consideration of its petition, hold a hearing before himself or before a deputy administrator (or, in the case of the Secretary, before such officer as he may designate) at which the committee may present its argument in support of the petition. The Consumers Advisory Committee and the Labor Advisory Committee appointed by the Administrator shall be given notice of any such hearing and an opportunity to present their views with respect to the petition and may, not later than five days prior to such hearing, present in writing evidence relating thereto. Within fifteen days after such hearing, the Administrator or the Secretary, as the case may be, shall either grant the petition in full or furnish the industry advisory committee with a statement in writing of his reasons for denying it in whole or in part, together with a statement of any economic data or other facts of which he has taken official notice in connection with such denial.

(3) At any time within thirty days after the denial in whole or in part, following a hearing, of a petition filed under this subsection, the petitioning industry advisory committee may petition the Price Decontrol Board established under subsection (h) for a review of the action of the Administrator or the Secretary of Agriculture. If the Administrator or the Secretary, as the case may be, fails to act upon a petition within the time prescribed by Paragraph (2), the industry advisory committee may, at any time within thirty days after the expiration of the time so prescribed, petition the Price Decontrol Board for the removal of maximum prices on the commodity involved.

"(4) Nothing in this section shall be construed to take away or impair any right of any person to tion or order establishing a maximum price with respect to such commodity had been issued under this Act prior to April 1, 1946.

"(7) No maximum price and no regulation or order under this Act or the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, shall be applicable with respect to poultry or eggs or food or feed products processed or manufactured in whole or substantial part therefrom, or in the case of leaf tobacco or tobacco products processed or manufactured in whole or substantial part therefrom.

"(8) (A) No maximum price and no regulation or order under this Act or the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, shall be applicable prior to Aug. 21, 1946, with respect to livestock, milk, or food or feed products processed or manufactured in whole or substantial part from livestock or milk; with respect to cottonseed or soybeans, or food or feed products processed or manufactured in whole or substantial part from cottonseed or soy beans; with respect to grains for which standards have been established under the United States Grain Standards Act, as amended, or any livestock or poultry feed processed or manufactured in whole or substantial part therefrom.

"(B) The Price Decontrol Board shall proceed forthwith to consider whether the commodities listed in sub-paragraph (A) shall continue, after Aug. 20, 1946, to be free from regulation under this Act and the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended. Such Board, after due notice of a public hearing and full opportunity for representatives of affected industries, and consumers to present their views orally or in writing, shall have power to determine whether or not any commodity listed in sub-paragraph (A) shall be regulated after Aug. 20, 1946, under this Act and the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended. Such Board shall direct that any such commodity shall not be so regulated unless it finds:

"(I) that the price of such commodity has risen unreasonably above a price equal to the lawful maximum price in effect on June 30, 1946, plus the amount per unit of any subsidy payable with respect thereto as of June 29, 1946, and

"(II) that such commodity is in short supply and that its regulation is practicable and enforceable, and

"(III) that the public interest will be served by such regulation.

Maximum Price Applicability

"If, in the case of any commodity listed in sub-paragraph (A), such Board fails to direct, on or before Aug. 20, 1946, that such commodity shall not be regulated under this Act and the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, maximum prices and regulations and orders under such Acts shall be applicable with respect to such commodity without regard to this paragraph (8).

"(C) If, in the case of any commodity listed in sub-paragraph (A), such Board, on or before Aug. 20, 1946, does direct that such commodity shall not be regulated under such Acts, the Board may at any subsequent time direct that such commodity shall be so regulated if it finds:

"(I.) that the price of such commodity has risen unreasonably above a price equal to the lawful maximum price in effect on June 30, 1946, plus the amount per unit of any subsidy payable with respect thereto as of June 29, 1946; and

"(II.) that such commodity is in short supply and that its regulation is practicable and enforceable; and

"(III.) that the public interest will be served by such regulation. Thereafter, the provisions of such acts and regulations and orders thereunder shall be applicable with respect to such commodity without regard to this paragraph (8)

"(d) In the case of milk the board may consider and determine decontrol or recontrol on a regional basis.

Board Has Say on Subsidies

"(9) The Price Decontrol Board shall also have power to determine, when maximum prices are in effect with respect to any commodity listed in paragraph (8) (A), whether any subsidy or any part thereof in effect prior to June 30, 1946, shall be re-established in whole or in part; and the powers of the Administrator, the Commodity Credit Corporation, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to pay subsidies in connection with such commodity shall be limited in accordance with any order of the board.

"(10) Whenever maximum

MODITIES—(1) On the first day of the first calendar month which begins more than thirty days after the date of enactment of this section, the Secretary of Agriculture shall certify to the Price Administrator each agricultural commodity which such secretary determines to be in short supply. Thereafter, on the first day of each succeeding calendar month the secretary shall certify modifications of such certification by adding other agricultural commodities which have become in short supply and by removing from such certification such commodities which he determines are no longer in short supply. No maximum price shall be applicable with respect to any agricultural commodity during any calendar month which begins more than thirty days after the date of enactment of this section, unless such commodity is certified as being in short supply.

"(2) (A) Whenever the Secretary of Agriculture determines that maximum prices applicable to any agricultural commodity which is in short supply are impeding the necessary production of such commodity, he may recommend to the Price Administrator such adjustments in such maximum prices as the Secretary determines to be necessary to attain the necessary production of such commodity.

"(B) The Secretary of Agriculture, by Dec. 31, 1946, shall recommend to the Price Administrator the removal of maximum prices on all agricultural commodities, whether or not in short supply, not important in relation to business costs or living costs, and prior to that date shall make such recommendations as rapidly as, in his judgment, will be consistent with the avoidance of a cumulative and dangerous unstabilizing effect.

"(C) Within ten days after the receipt of any recommendation under this Sub-section for the adjustment of maximum prices applicable to any agricultural commodity, or for the removal of maximum prices on agricultural commodities not important in relation to business costs or living costs, the Price Administrator shall adjust or remove such maximum prices in accordance with such recommendations.

Secretary and Board to Cooperate

"(3) Whenever the Secretary of Agriculture determines that an agricultural commodity with respect to which maximum prices have been removed is in short supply and that the re-establishment of maximum prices with respect thereto is necessary to effectuate the purposes of this Act, the Secretary, with the written consent of the Price Decontrol Board, may recommend to the Administrator, and the Administrator shall establish, such maximum prices with respect to such commodity, consistent with applicable provisions of law, as in the judgment of the Secretary are necessary to effectuate the purposes of this Act.

"(4) For the purposes of this Section (except subparagraph (6) of this Sub-section (d))—

"(A) An agricultural commodity shall be deemed to be in short supply unless the supply of such commodity equals or exceeds the requirements for such commodity for the current marketing;

"(B) the term 'agricultural commodity' shall be deemed to mean any agricultural commodity and any food for feed products processed or manufactured in whole or substantial part from any agricultural commodity;

"(C) The term 'subsidy' means any subsidy or purchase and sale operations described in the last paragraph of Section 2 (e) of this act.

"(5) Notwithstanding any other provision of this or any other law, except as provided in Subsection (h), the Secretary of Agriculture, in exercising his functions under this Act, shall not be subject to the direction or control of any other appointive officer or agency in the Executive branch of the Government, and no such officer or agency shall undertake to exercise any direction or control over the Secretary of Agriculture with respect to the exercise of such functions. The Secretary of Agriculture may at any time withdraw his approval of any action with respect to which his approval is required under this Act, and upon the withdrawal of his approval such action shall be rescinded.

"(6) No maximum price and no regulation or order under this Act or the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, shall be applicable with respect to any agricultural commodity, or any service rendered with respect to any agricultural commodity, unless a regulation, currently or for the base period, the Administrator shall ascertain the costs of a reasonable number of typical producers, manufacturers, or processors and shall follow accepted methods of accounting and such fair and reasonable methods of calculation as he shall establish by regulation, including adjustments for temporary cost abnormalities which may be reasonably anticipated to be eliminated within the three months following the Administrator's determination, and adjustments for increases in the volume of production which may be reasonably anticipated to be experienced within such three-month period.

"(d) Maximum prices established hereunder shall not be held invalid on account of their failure to return his costs to any particular member of any group involved.

"(e) Nothing herein shall nullify the power of the Administrator to make reasonable adjustments and exceptions in individual cases under the provisions of Section 2 (e) of this Act.

"(f) If the maximum prices of a product on the average equal its average current total cost plus a reasonable profit, nothing herein shall require any further adjustment of such maximum prices for any period with respect to which it appears that a of this section the base period shall be the calendar year 1940, or in the case of an industry customarily keeping its accounts on a fiscal year basis, the industry's fiscal year 1940.

"(b) In order that adequate general price levels shall be established for all commodities to bring about maximum production and employment, no maximum prices shall be established or maintained for any product of a producing, manufacturing, or processing industry (including any industry furnishing service or transportation the charges for which are now subject to the Administrator's control) which do not return on the average to the industry not less than the average dollar price of such product during the base period, plus the average increase in cost of producing, manufacturing or processing the same accruing since the base period, but the maximum prices for a product shall be deemed in compliance with this standard if such prices on the average are equal to the average current total cost of the product plus the industry's average overall profit margin on sales in the base period.

To Reckon by Typical Firms

"(c) For the purpose of determining costs under this Section, substantial expansion in the production or use of the product would not be practicable or would be practicable only by reducing the production of at least equally needed products.

Styles Go Under "Product"

"(g) As used in this Section, 'product' shall mean any major item or any article different in character from other products of the industry; but all the styles, models or other varieties of any such item or article shall be considered as one product.

"(h) The provisions of this Section shall not apply with respect to any maximum price applicable to manufacturers or processors in the case of products made in whole or major part from cotton or cotton yarn or wool or wool yarn.

"(i) Nothing in this Section shall be construed to require any adjustment in maximum prices except pursuant to an application filed under this paragraph, or be construed to invalidate any maximum price, unless there is a failure to make adjustments, in accordance with the procedure prescribed in this paragraph, to such extent as may be required to comply with the standards set forth in this Section. Any industry advisory committee may apply to the Administrator for the adjustment of the maximum prices applicable to any product in accordance with the standards set forth in this Section, and shall present with the application comprehensive evidence with respect to costs and prices.

Sixty Days to Weigh Data

The Administrator shall consider the evidence so presented and all evidence otherwise available to him and, within sixty days after the receipt of such application, he shall make the adjustments in maximum prices required by this section, or, if he finds that no such adjustments are required, he shall deny the application.

If the Administrator neither makes the adjustments in the maximum prices for any product required by this section, nor denies the application for such adjustments, within the sixty-day period prescribed in this paragraph, the industry advisory committee concerned may petition the emergency court of appeals, created pursuant to Section 204 for relief; and such court shall have jurisdiction by appropriate order to require the Administrator to make such adjustments or deny such application within such time, not to exceed thirty days, as may be fixed by the court. If the Administrator fails to make such adjustments or deny such application within the time so fixed, no maximum price shall thereafter be applicable with respect to any sale of such product by any seller.

Extent of Seller Liability

Section 12. (a) The second sentence of Section 205 (e) of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, is amended to read as follows: "In any action under this subsection, the seller shall be liable for reasonable attorney's fees and costs as determined by the court, plus whichever of the following sums is greater: (1) Such amount not more than three times the amount of the overcharges, upon which the action is based as the court in its discretion may determine, or (') an amount not less than $25 nor more than $50, as the court in its discretion may determine: Provided, however, that such amount shall be the amount of the overcharge or overcharges if the defendant proves that the violation of the regulation, order, or price schedule in question was neither willful nor the result of failure to take practicable precautions against the occurrence of the violation."

(b). Section 205 (e) of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraphs:

Exceptions Are Specified

"The Administrator may not institute any action under this subsection on behalf of the United States, or, if such action has been instituted, the Administrator shall withdraw the same.

"(1) If the violation arose because the person selling the commodity acted upon and in accordance with the written advice and instructions of the Administrator or any regional administrator or district director of the Office of Price Administration; or

"(2) If the violation arose out of the sale of a commodity to any agency of the Government, or to any public housing authority whose operations are supervised or financed in whole or in part by any agency of the Government, and such sale was made pursuant to the lowest bid made in response to an invitation for competitive bids.

"The Administrator shall not institute or maintain any enforcement action under this subsection against any manufacturer of apparel items where the Administrator shall determine (1) that the transactions on which such proceeding is based consisted of the manufacturer's selling such an item at his published March, 1942, price list prices instead of his March, 1942, delivered prices, and (2) that the seller's customary pricing patterns for related apparel items would be distorted by a requirement that his ceilings be the March, 1942, delivered prices. The Administrator's determinations under this paragraph shall be subject to review by the Emergency Court of Appeals in accordance with Sections 203 and 204."

12-Month Suspension at Most

Sec. 13. The third sentence of Paragraph (2) of Section 205(f) of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, is amended to read as follows:

"If any such court finds that such person has violated any of the provisions of such license, regulation, order, price schedule, or requirement after the receipt of the warning notice, such court shall issue an order suspending the license to the extent that it authorizes such person to sell the commodity or commodities in connection with which the violation has occurred, or to the extent that it authorizes such person to sell any commodity or commodities with respect to which a regulation or order issued under Section 2, or a price schedule effective in accordance with the provisions of Section 206, is applicable; but no suspension shall be for a period of more than twelve months, and if the defendant proves that the violation in question was neither willful nor the result of failure to take practicable precautions against the occurrence of the violation, then in that event no suspension shall be ordered or directed."

Formula for Pricing

Sec. 14. Section 3 of the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"On and after the date of the enactment of this paragraph, it shall be unlawful to establish, or maintain, any maximum price applicable to manufacturers or processors, for any major item in the case of products made in whole or major part from cotton or cotton yarn or wool or wool yarn, unless the maximum price for such major item is fixed and maintained at not less than the sum of the following:

"(1) The cotton or wool cost (which must be computed at not less than the parity price or the current cost, whichever is greater, of the grade and staple of cotton or wool used in such item, delivered at the mill);

"(2) A weighted average of mill conversion costs; and

"(3) A reasonable profit (which shall not be less than a weighted average profit for each unit of such item equal to the weighted average of the profit earned on an equivalent unit of such item during the period 1939 to 1941, both inclusive)."

Section 15. The Secretary of Agriculture, through the Commodity Credit Corporation, or otherwise, is hereby authorized to allocate feed which he controls to feeders of livestock and poultry in domestic areas which he may determine to be in an emergency shortage condition with respect to animal and poultry feed.

Section 16. (a) In the event producers of wheat are required by an order issued pursuant to the Second War Powers Act, 1942, as amended, to sell all or any part of wheat delivered to an elevator prior to April 1, 1947, the Commodity Credit Corporation shall offer to purchase the wheat so required to be sold at a price determined as follows: The purchase price paid for the wheat shall be the market price at the point of delivery as of any date the producer may elect between the date of delivery and March 31, 1947, inclusive: Provided, however, That only one election may be made for each lot of wheat: And provided further, That the producer may not elect a date prior to the date on which he mails a written notice to Commodity Credit Corporation of his election. In the event the producer does not notify Commodity Credit Corporation in writing by March 31, 1947, of his election of a date for determining the market price, such date shall be deemed to be March 31, 1947.

Wheat Sales Provision

(b) Any producer of wheat who, prior to the date of enactment of this Act, has sold any wheat pursuant to the requirements of paragraph (1) of War Food Order Numbered 144, may, at any time within thirty days after the date of enactment of this Act, pay to the Commodity Credit Corporation a sum equal to the amount for which he sold such wheat. Any producer paying any such sum to the Commodity Credit Corporation shall be deemed to have sold and delivered to the Commodity Credit Corporation as of the date he pays such sum a quantity of wheat equal in grade and quality to the quantity sold by him pursuant to such requirements and the purchase price to be paid to him for such wheat shall be determined in the same manner as in the case of a sale of wheat to the Commodity Credit Corporation pursuant to the provisions of Subsection (A) of this Section.

Section 17. This Act may be cited as the "Price Control Extension Act of 1946."

Section 18. (1) The provisions of this Act shall take effect as of June 30, 1946, and (2) all regulations, orders, price schedules, and requirements under the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended (except regulations or requirements under Section 2 (e) thereof relating to meat, flour, or coffee), and the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, which were in effect on June 30, 1946, shall be in effect in the same manner and to the same extent as if this Act had been enacted on June 30, 1946, and (3) any proceeding, petition, application, or protest which was pending under the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, or the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, on June 30, 1946, shall be proceeded with and shall be effective in the same manner and to the same extent as if this Act had been enacted on June 30, 1946: Provided, That in any case in which the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended (except Sections 204 and 205), or the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended (except Sections 8 and 9), or any regulation, order, or requirement under either of such Acts, prescribes any period of time within which any Act is required or permitted to be done, and such period had commenced but had not expired on June 30, 1946, such period is hereby extended for a number of days equal to the number of days from July 1, 1946, to the date of enactment of this Act, both inclusive: Provided further, That no act or transaction, or omission or failure to act, occurring subsequent to June 30, 1946, and prior to the date of enactment of this Act shall be deemed to be a violation of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended, or the Stabilization Act of 1942, as amended, or of any regulation, order, price schedule, or requirement under either of such Acts: Provided further, That in so far as the provisions of this Act require the Administrator to make any change in any maximum price, such provisions shall not be deemed to require such change to be made before the thirtieth day following the date of enactment of this Act.

U. S. Survey of Price Trends

JUL 23 1946

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP).—Following is the complete text of a White House release of a Commerce Department statement on price rises following the lapse of the Office of Price Administration:

The spurt in prices following the lapse of O. P. A. controls at the end of June boosted the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of daily spot market prices from twenty-eight basic commodities 25 per cent during the first sixteen days of July. Farm products, foods and imported goods have generally shown the greatest to inflationary pressures. Only seven of the twenty-eight commodities showed no change in prices over this period—in the case of four of these seven commodities, prices are determined by the government.

As a result of the recent price spurt, the B. L. S. index has risen at a much faster rate since the Japanese surrender than during the comparable period after World War I when the country was experiencing a serious inflation.

As of July 16, the basic commodity index was 35 per cent above the level of last August. In October, 1919—also eleven month after the end of the first world war—the index was only 22 per cent higher than in the month of the armistice. About one-fifth of the increase since August, 1945, had already occurred by the end of June, due to the fact that prices had been steadily pushing upward even under the restraining influence of price controls.

The twenty-eight basic commodities index quoted above is a highly sensitive barometer of price change and does not measure the increase in the general price level. The B. L. S. wholesale price index—which covers the prices of about 900 commodities—rose half as fast as the basic commodity index during the comparable period. Following World War I the broader wholesale price index almost kept pace with the more sensitive daily index, suggesting that the present lag in general wholesale prices may only be temporary.

Silk Rise Is Sharpest

The largest percentage price rise so far this month is in the price of silk, which had risen more than 140 per cent by July 16. Other spectacular increases were recorded for shellac, hides, cocoa beans, and coffee, among the imports, and for hogs lard, tallow, butter, and corn among the farm products. Corn, selling at $2.27 a bushel, was actually priced higher than wheat.

Steel scrap, copper, tin, rubber, burlap and sugar were the only commodities in the index to show no price change since June 28. Such price behavior, however, was not a reflection of the operation of market forces. The prices of tin, rubber, burlap and sugar are, in effect, set by the government. Trading activity for the remaining commodities—copper and steel scrap—has been virtually at a standstill due to the many uncertainties in the current situation. If the above commodities are eliminated from the index, the price rise for the first sixteen days of July stands at almost 35 per cent rather than the 25 per cent indicated for all twenty-eight commodities.

A comparison of present prices with those after World War I reveals that the prices of corn, steers, butter, lead and zinc have already passed the highs of the earlier post-war period. Several other commodities are now selling at higher prices than in October, 1919.

Subsidies Called a Factor

The elimination of subsidy payments is, of course, a factor in the recent price rise, but the actual increases in prices have generally been greater than the former subsidy payments. This is particularly true in the case of livestock prices.

The impact of the removal of subsidy payments to non-ferrous metal producers cannot be gauged accurately, since, in general, the larger private sellers have not established free market prices for the products. Moreover, because the payments were made on marginal production, that is, production in excess of specific quotas established for the various producers, it cannot yet be determined to what extent the removal of the subsidy will reduce output and raise prices. A price increase applies to all production and benefits producers regardless of their production performance.

The full impact of the recent increases has not yet been transmitted through the price structure. Spot surveys of the Department of Labor on July 2 and July 9 indicated that retail food price increases were generally spotty, with many stable foods remaining unchanged in price. By the latter date, however, an increasing number of stores were charging substantially higher prices for meats and other foods. Many outlets for consumer goods advertised shortly after the demise of O. P. A. that they would follow a policy of maintaining ceiling prices; but, generally speaking, these statements were qualified either by statements that ceiling prices would be kept only for existing stocks or that prices would be increased only to cover higher costs.

O. P. A. Threat Gauged

Perhaps that most striking aspect of the recent behavior of prices is that the large increases occurred despite the prospect of the reimposition of O. P. A. controls and of a rollback to June 30 levels. Without this prospect overhanging the market, price increases would most certainly have been greater and more general.

There is another reason why the recent changes are not a fair test, price-wise, of what would happen if ceilings had been lifted under different circumstances. It is to the interest of those groups in the community who have been lobbying to end price controls to keep price increases at a minimum during the interim when the fate of O. P. A. is being decided by Congress. This consideration has undoubtedly motivated some of the voluntary "hold-the-line" agreements which have been widely publicised by industry.

Nevertheless, prices have risen at a very rapid pace, as was to be expected in view of the basic inflationary pressures in the economy—the heavy demands of businesses to replace and expand plant and equipment and to rebuild inventories, and the demands of consumers for long-awaited durable goods and for a variety of other goods which are in short supply relative to the total available purchasing power.

CORN, WHEAT CROPS MAY SET RECORDS

JUL 23 1946

Department of Agriculture Finds July 15 Prospect Far Ahead of That for July 1

EASING OF SHORTAGE SEEN

3,487,976,000 Bu. of Former, 1,132,075,000 of Latter Are Latest Figures

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—Record-breaking crops of both corn and wheat are indicated this year for the United States—pressed during the last few months to meet the domestic demand while aiding in the feeding of a hungry world. The Department of Agriculture, in a special mid-monthly report, said the indicated corn crop, based on July 15 prospects, would total 3,487,976,000 bushels, an improvement of about 146,000,000 bushels over July 1 prospects.

The expected wheat crop, also based on July 15 conditions, was forecast at 1,132,075,000, or about 42,000,000 bushels more than was indicated on July 1.

The previous record corn crop of 3,228,000,000 bushels was produced in 1944 while the previous all-time wheat crop of 1,123,143,000 bushels was harvested in 1945.

If the forecasts are borne out, they will go a long way toward meeting heavy demands not only in the United States but in famine areas abroad, not only for food, but for feed as well to build up meat animals and increase dairy and poultry supplies.

Meanwhile, a Department official—who asked that his name not be used—said that, if the excellent prospects are realized, it may mean that some domestic restrictions on the use of grain could be eased. Stressing that it was not a settled policy, he stated that it was dependent upon various other factors such as the amount of food and grains that will be exported.

Present regulations limit flour millers to produce not more than 85 per cent of the flour turned out last year for domestic consumption. Producers of beer and other alcoholic drinks are under restrictions on the use of grain for their products. Flour millers must grind 80 per cent extraction flour instead of the usual 72 per cent. Loaves of bread are now cut 10 per cent by weight.

The department official said easing of restrictions was possible because the prosepective wheat crop was roughly 135,000,000 bushels more than was called for in the Government's present program for both domestic and foreign needs.

Winter wheat production was placed at 865,465,000 bushels, compared with July 1 prospects of 857,163,000, while the spring wheat crop in the latest forecast was indicated at 266,610,000 bushels, compared with 232,929,000 indicated on July 1.

HOUSING DELAY LAID TO LOBBY

Wyatt Hopeful for Wagner-Ellender-Taft Bill.

Washington, July 22 (A. P.).—W. Wyatt said today that "very potent private 'lobby groups" were responsible for failure of the House Banking Committee to report out the Wagner-Ellender-Taft housing bill.

Wyatt, leaving a conference with President Truman, told reporters there still was a possibility of Congressional action on the bill before adjournment, but that he could not call it a "probability."

The long-range housing proposal has passed the Senate. Wyatt did not identify the "lobby" groups or explain how he felt they were to blame for House delay.

The administrator conferred with the President shortly after representatives of the National Public Housing Conference asked Mr. Truman to insist that Congress remain in session until after the bill's passage. Wyatt said opposition from the "private lobby groups" could be traced to a provision in the bill calling for 125,000 public housing units a year for four years.

"They overlooked the fact that nine-tenths of the bill is for private housing," Wyatt said.

William J. Guste of New Orleans, president of the National Public Housing Conference, told reporters that the President did not indicate what action he might take on the group's plea but Guste observed that the program has had Mr. Truman's support.

"Tactics of a small minority of the House Committee on Banking and Currency in raising long dormant legislative rules in an effort to delay the measure were deplored," a conference statement said.

"The group insisted that if the majority members of the committee wish to have housing for veterans they can assure it by attending committee meetings."

CONGRESS WIND-UP SET FOR NEXT WEEK

Barkley Lists as 'Musts' OPA, Atomic Control, Rail Aid, Terminal Leave, Civil Air Treaty

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—The middle of next week was tentatively set as the adjournment date of the weary Seventy-ninth Congress after a conference today of legislative leaders and President Truman.

Senator Barkley, the Majority Leader, told reporters after the meeting that the hoped-for adjournment this week was out, listing a number of pending bills which must be acted on first.

He omitted mentioning in this category two measures once near the top of the "must" list, emergency strike legislation and unification of the Army and Navy. Both now appear to be dead for this session. Another measure strongly urged by the Administration but apparently doomed now to lie over until next year is the proposal for compulsory health insurance.

Senator Barkley listed these measures on the "must" calendar before adjournment: renewal of the Office of Price Administration, domestic atomic energy control, terminal leave pay for enlisted men, expansion of railroad retirement benefits and a civil aviation treaty. Ratification of the last named concerns the Senate alone. All the others are nearing final action.

Senator Barkley also noted that the Wagner-Ellender-Taft long-range housing bill, passed by the Senate, was still pending in the House. It has been stalled there and its fate appears highly doubtful.

Additional measures which Senator Barkley did not mention but which appear likely of reaching a final vote before adjournment are bills to reorganize Congress and to freeze the Social Security tax at its present rate for another year.

Charles G. Ross, Presidential press secretary, was asked at a news conference whether the delay in Congressional adjournment would interfere with Mr. Truman's plans to fly to Kansas City on Aug. 3 to vote in the Democraic primary at Independence on Aug. 6.

It could have an effect on the President's plans, but he has not changed them so far, Mr. Ross said.

TRUMAN TO NAME ECONOMIC COUNCIL

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP) President Truman probably will announce appointment of an economic advisory council this week, White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said today.

Ross told a news conference that selection of the board is "still in the works" but that he thought the announcement will come this week."

The three-man board will administer the so-called full employment act.

G. I. Loans at $872,276,000

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP).—More than 188,000 veterans have borrowed a total of $872,276,000 under the G. I. Bill of Rights. Reporting this today, the Veterans Administration said 165,737, of the loans were made for homes, 16,215 for business purposes and 6,465 for farms.

Last Nazi POW's Leave U.S., Some Now Prefer Democracy

CAMP SHANKS, N. Y., July 22—(AP) Crowding silently aboard the harbor boat General Yates, the final contingent of German war prisoners left here today for the Brooklyn Army base and shipment.

The 1,385 men were the last of nearly 300,000 Germans to depart through Camp Shanks for their fatherland. The last man to board the boat was a 22-year-old mechanic from Heidelberg, who was captured in North Africa more than three years ago.

Many of the prisoners told American guards before departure that they had become convinced that democracy was better than dictatorship. Several expressed fear of the conditions they might find in Germany.

Col. Harry W. Maas, commanding officer of the camp, stood on the pier with a number of his officers and enlisted men, watching the departure.

Shipment of the prisoners was the last operation carried out by the Army at the camp, which was a staging area for the overseas movement of more than 1,300,000 U. S. soldiers during the war.

Col. Maas and a skeleton complement will remain at the camp for several weeks, completing records and disposing of supplies.

Parts of the installations are being demolished, and others are being made over as homes for veterans.

Greeks To Ask Advance From U.S. For Purchases

New York, July 22 (AP)—Nicholas G. Lely, Greek Minister of Information in the United States, said today his country would seek to obtain an advance of perhaps $500,000,000 from the United States on the $13,283,000,000 in reparations which Greece contends is due from Germany, Italy and Bulgaria.

A mission headed by Major Sophocles Venizelos, former Greek Premier, will arrive in this country Thursday to discuss the advance, Lely said in an interview.

If obtained, the money will be spent in the United States to relieve immediate needs of his war-torn land, the Minister added.

Lely said Greece was not seeking a loan. Germany, Italy and Bulgaria, all of which sent invading armies into Greece in the war, should bear at least part of the reconstruction costs, he asserted.

Jerusalem, July 22-(AP)-Jack Keegan, Palestine traffic manager for Transworld airlines, narrowly escaped today when terrorists bombed the King David hotel, blowing a hole through the wall of his office.

The office adjoins the wrecked secretariat of the Palestine government. Keegan said Sir John Shaw, chief secretary of the government, calmly walked through the hole in the wall and said "Good morning Keegan." Shaw then broke down another section of the wall to allow government workers through.

AS WORD OF THE MYSTERIOUS CALL SPREAD, AIR RAID SIRENS ATOP THE HOTEL AND THROUGHOUT THE CITY WERE TOUCHED OFF, SPLITTING THE PEACEFUL SILENCE WITH MOURNFUL WAILS.

WHILE AN EXCITED CROWD STOOD IN THE STREET OUTSIDE THE HOTEL, EIGHTEEN YOUNG MEN, SIX OF THEM DRESSED AS ARABS, APPEARED IN A LONG CORRIDOR OF THE BASEMENT OF THE KING DAVID.

THERE THEY PLACED THEIR EXPLOSIVE, AND APPROXIMATELY 90 SECONDS AFTER THEY HAD FLED THE TERRIFIC BLAST RIPPED UPWARD.

WHETHER ALL OF THE GROUP ESCAPED THE EXPLOSION IS NOT KNOWN, BUT SIX OF THE RAIDERS WERE SEEN TO JUMP INTO A WAITING AUTOMOBILE.

MOST OF THE DEPARTMENT HEADS IN THE MILITARY AND GOVERNMENT OFFICES WERE ELSEWHERE WHEN THE BLAST SHATTERED THE RIGHT WING OF THE BUILDING, BUT POSTMASTER G.D. KENNEDY WAS REPORTED UNOFFICIALLY TO HAVE BEEN KILLED.

A MILITARY OFFICER, WHO WAS AN EYE-WITNESS, SAID A SMALL BOMB EXPLODED A BLOCK FROM THE HOTEL JUST BEFORE THE MAIN BLAST, APPARENTLY A DIVERSIONARY. SECONDS LATER A BURST OF TOMMYGUN FIRE SMASHED THE KITCHEN WINDOWS UNDER THE SECRETARIAT OFFICES, FOLLOWED A FEW MINUTES LATER BY THE TREMENDOUS BLAST THAT BLOEW A CORNER OF THE HOTEL INTO RUBBLE.

JUL 23 1946

ONE EYEWITNESS SAID:

"I SAW DEAD MEN LYING IN THE STREETS, AND THERE WERE SEVERAL ATS (BRITISH ARMY WOMAN AUXILIARY) GIRLS COVERED WITH BLOOD FROM HEAD TO FOOT. ONE MAN WAS BLOWN CLEAR ACROSS THE STREET AND HIS BODY HIT THE YMCA BUILDING."

THE YMCA BUILDING, WHICH BEARS A FOOTWIDE BLOODSTAIN--EVIDENCE OF THE EYEWITNESS STORIES--WAS UNDAMAGED BY THE BLAST.

IT IS ONE OF THE MOST MODERN HOTELS IN THE MIDDLE EAST AND THE KING DAVID BAR IS KNOWN AS THE UNOFFICIAL "OFFICE" FOR MOST VISITING FOREIGNERS.

THE BOMB WAS SET OFF IN THE WING OCCUPIED BY THE PALESTINIAN CHIEF SECRETARY'S OFFICE.

MAJ. GEN. SIR EVELYN BARKER, BRITISH COMMANDER IN JERUSALEM, WAS REPORTED TO HAVE HURRIED TO THE HOTEL SOON AFTER THE ATTACK. THE SECRETARIAT WAS LOCATED IN ONE END OF THE HOTEL. SIR JOHN SHAW, CHIEF SECRETARY, ESCAPED WITHOUT INJURY.

MOST OF THE CASUALTIES WERE SOLDIERS.

PART OF THE HOTEL WAS DAMAGED BADLY. AMBULANCES AND TAXIS WERE PRESSED INTO SERVICE TO REMOVE THE INJURED. STRONG POLICE GUARDS PREVENTED APPROACHES TO THE WRECKAGE.

JUL 23 1946

EYE WITNESSES SAID THE ATTACK PARTY CONSISTED OF ABOUT FIVE MEN. THEY SHOT AT THE BRITISH OFFICER AT THE HOTEL GATE, WHICH THEY STORMED AND PASSED. HALL PORTERS AND OTHER EMPLOYES WERE FORCED TO THE WALLS.

AFTER PLACING EXPLOSIVES OUTSIDE THE RIGHT WING OF THE BUILDING, THE TERRORISTS RUSHED AWAY AND APPARENTLY ESCAPED.

PALESTINE (190)

LONDON, JULY 22-(AP)-BRITISH AND AMERICAN EXPERTS WHO HAVE BEEN HOLDING POLICY DISCUSSIONS HERE FOR MORE THAN A WEEK WERE REPORTED TODAY TO BE SERIOUSLY CONSIDERING A PLAN TO DIVIDE PALESTINE INTO SEPARATE ARAB AND JEWISH COMMUNITIES WITH A CENTRAL ADMINISTRATION.

BRITISH SOURCES POINTED OUT THAT SUCH A SOLUTION WOULD JIBE WITH THE BRITISH-AMERICAN INQUIRY COMMISSION'S RECOMMENDATION THAT PALESTINE BE NEITHER AN ARAB NOR A JEWISH STATE.

PARTITIONING OF PALESTINE INTO SEPARATE STATES WAS PROPOSED BY A ROYAL COMMISSION BEFORE THE WAR, BUT THE RECOMMENDATION -- CRITICIZED BY BOTH JEWS AND ARABS -- NEVER WAS CARRIED OUT.

THE SUNDAY TIMES SAID THE PLAN UNDER CONSIDERATION WAS ALONG THE LINES OF THE PROPOSED SETTLEMENT OF THE INDIAN PROBLEM, CALLING FOR A FEDERATION OF STATES WITH A CENTRAL ADMINISTRATION "REPRESENTING BOTH SIDES AND RESPONSIBLE FOR MATTERS OF JOINT CONCERN."

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS, WHO HAVE KEPT SILENT ON THE PROGRESS OF THE TALKS HERE, DID NOT COMMENT IMMEDIATELY ON THE REPORTS THAT A "FEDERATION PLAN" WAS UNDER CONSIDERATION.

LONDON, JULY 22-(AP)-THE FINANCE COMMITTEE OF THE INTERNATIONAL REFUGEE ORGANIZATION DISCLOSED TODAY THAT IT WAS PLANNING ITS 1947 BUDGET ON THE ASSUMPTION THAT 100,000 EUROPEAN JEWS WOULD BE ADMITTED TO PALESTINE.

THE AGENCY, WHICH COMES UNDER THE UNITED NATIONS AS PART OF THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL, ESTIMATED THAT 175,000 PERSONS WOULD EMIGRATE DURING 1947, INCLUDING 100,000 JEWS.

THE REFUGEE ORGANIZATION'S REPORT DID NOT SPECIFY THAT THE JEWS WOULD GO TO PALESTINE. HOWEVER, A SPOKESMAN FOR THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL SAID IT WAS UNDERSTOOD THAT THE AGENCY'S FIGURE CORRESPONDED WITH THE NUMBER OF JEWS WHICH THE BRITISH-AMERICAN INQUIRY COMMITTEE HAS RECOMMENDED SHOULD BE ADMITTED INTO PALESTINE.

NEXT YEAR THE REFUGEE ORGANIZATION EXPECTS TO SPEND $193,954,000 FOR OPERATIONAL EXPENSES, $60,000,000 FOR LARGE-SCALE RESETTLEMENT AND $4,800,000 FOR ADMINISTRATION, THE REPORT SAID.

THE UNITED STATES IS EXPECTED TO PAY 43 PER CENT OF THE OPERATIONAL AND LARGE-SCALE RESETTLEMENT COSTS AND 24 PER CENT OF ADMINISTRATION; GREAT BRITAIN 15 PER CENT OF OPERATIONAL AND RESETTLEMENT AND 14 PER CENT OF ADMINISTRATION; RUSSIA 6.8 PER CENT OF ADMINISTRATION, 6 PER CENT OF OPERATIONAL AND 4.3 PER CENT OF RESETTLEMENT; FRANCE 3.2 PER CENT OPERATIONAL AND RESETTLEMENT AND 5.6 ADMINISTRATIVE, AND CHINA 1.75 PER CENT OPERATIONAL AND RESETTLEMENT AND 6.4 ADMINISTRATIVE.

london, july 22-(ap)-herbert morrison, lord president of the council, promised today to take up with prime minister attlee and the cabinet a petition [redacted] of the national union of journalists for appointment of a royal commission to investigate the british press.

JUL 23 1946

"if any such inquiry [redacted] should be instituted," morrison said to the union deputation which presented the plea, "it would have as its object the furthering and making wider and more genuine the freedom of the british press."

the deputation, headed by fred treavett, president of the newspapermen's union, asked that "monopoly ownership" be investigated by a body [redacted] which could take sworn evidence, summon witnesses and order production of documents.

the [redacted] delegation's appeal said that freedom of the press from the government of the day "must not be choked by the concentration of the country's newspapers in the hands of two or three powerful [redacted] commercial groups."

30.24 -4305

the [redacted] delegation also asked that the inquiry determine "how far, if at all, was news suppressed or manipulated to serve a particular point of view," and whether advertising and financial interests exercised any influence over the editorial content of a newspaper.

JUL 23 1946

[redacted] morrison, replying, said that "neither i nor the government could be a party to [redacted] any interference with the traditional liberty of the press."

"you have expressed your concern at the development of newspaper combines and chains of newspapers which, in your judgement, tend to destroy the liberty of the journalist," he said. "the liberty of the individual journalist is, of course, one of the elements of the liberty of the press .

"many people are apprehensive about the mixture of views and news with the consequence, it is alleged, that the news columns are not always as impartial as they should be.

"i have a recollection of the famous c. p. scott of the manchester guardian once saying,'facts are sacred, but comment is free.' there would be much to be said for that admirable statement being hung up in every newspaper office.

"i will report your representations to the prime minister and my colleagues in the government. as you will appreciate, i am not in a position today to say whether the government will institute any inquiry or not."

ASSOCIATED PRESS SCIENCE REPORTER

ABOARD USS APPALACHIAN, TUESDAY, JULY 23-(AP)-THE TINY PELLETS OF MYSTERIOUS METAL, SMALL AS BIRDSHOT, THAT SHOWERED THE DECK OF THE PRINZ EUGEN DURING THE JULY 1 ATOMIC BOMB TEST ARE STILL EMITTING RADIOACTIVE RAYS.

SCIENTISTS WHO ARE STUDYING THE PELLETS EXPECT IT WILL BE WEEKS OR MONTHS BEFORE THEY CAN BE SURE OF THE METALLIC COMPOSITION. AT PRESENT THE PELLETS ARE EMITTING MORE THAN ONE KIND OF RAY.

DR. R.A. SAWYER, CHIEF OF THE SCIENTIFIC STAFF, AND MEN DIRECTLY IN CHARGE OF THE EXAMINATION HAVE CONCLUDED THAT THE PELLETS DID NOT COME FROM THE ATOMIC BOMB ITSELF. THE LITTLE PARTICLES, EVEN THOUGH SOME WERE ALMOST TOO TINY TO BE NOTICED ON THE DECK, ARE CONSIDERED TOO LARGE TO HAVE COME FROM THE BOMB.

PRESENT OPINION IS THAT THIS "ATOMIC BIRDSHOT" CAME FROM ONE OF THE TARGET VESSELS. THE PELLETS ARE SUPPOSED TO BE METAL THAT WAS EITHER MELTED OR VAPORIZED. THE THEORY FAVORS MELTING AS THE SOURCE.

PHOTOGRAPHERS JACK RICE AND CLARENCE HAMM ARE AP REPRESENTATIVES IN THE STILL PHOTOGRAPHIC POOL WHICH WILL SUPPLY PICTURES OF ALL ANGLES OF THE EXPERIMENT.

STORIES AND PICTURES WILL BE TRANSMITTED BY NAVY RADIO AND ARMY SIGNAL CORPS, WHICH HAVE IMPROVED ON THE COMMUNICATIONS ARRANGEMENTS DEVELOPED FOR THE FIRST TEST.

SOME FACTORS MAY DELAY OR INTERRUPT COMMUNICATIONS, HOWEVER. THE HOUR SELECTED FOR THE EXPLOSION IS A DIFFICULT ONE FOR RADIO TRANSMISSION FROM THE WESTERN PACIFIC. AS DURING THE PREVIOUS TEST, ATMOSPHERICS MAY DROWN OUT VOICE TRANSMISSIONS AND SLOW DOWN RADIO TELEGRAPH COMMUNICATION.

IN ORDER TO OVERCOME THESE DIFFICULTIES TO THE GREATEST POSSIBLE EXTENT, RELAYS HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED BY NAVY RADIO IN HONOLULU, WHERE MESSAGES MAY BE RECEIVED WITH GREATER DEPENDABILITY THAN BY MAINLAND STATIONS.

ALTHOUGH THE BOMB IS TO BE DETONATED BY RADIO IMPULSE, NAVY COMMUNICATIONS OFFICERS HAVE DECIDED THAT NO SHUTDOWN OF NEWS CIRCUITS WILL BE NECESSARY AT ANY TIME.

Palestine Case Put On U.N. Assembly Agenda by Egypt

Egypt Requests UN to Hear Palestine Case in September

F. Carpenter

NEW YORK, July 23. — (AP) The Egyptian government, acting in concert with the six other states of the Arab League, has formally requested that the United Nations General Assembly meeting in September consider the Palestinian situation, the United Nations secretariat announced today.

JUL 23 1946

Arkady A. Sobolev, acting secretary-general of the United Nations, made public a letter from the Egyptian Foreign Minister accompanying texts of notes on Palestine handed by Iraq and Egypt to the British ambassadors in Cairo and Baghdad last month.

NIGHT

The Egyptian foreign minister, Ahmen Lotfi El Said Pasha, informed the secretariat that the communications were sent "with a view of submitting the proposals therein set forth to the General Assembly of the United Nations at its next meeting."

It was also requested that the letters be curculated among the United Nations.

Under the United Nations charter the General Assembly can consider the case and make whatever recommendations it desires. Or it can submit the case to the security council for such action as the council may think necessary, if it feels that peace is threatened.

The Egyptian government in its letter dated June 20 to the British ambassador in Cairo called upon Britain to put an end to the "existing situation" in Palestine."

It also called for a "new regime" in Palestine "inspired by the spirit and principles of the (United Nations) charter."

The letter called upon the British to enter negotiations as soon as possible so that an agreement could be concluded before the assembly meeting in September and requested Britain "Not to take any step which might be contrary to the pledges contained in the white paper regarding the cessation of immigration and legal measures concerning the restriction of land sales."

The "white paper" was the British government declaration in 1939 fixing immigration quotas for a period of five years. The British and United States governments now are considering the report of a joint committee recommending the immigration of 100,000 Jews to Palestine.

Egypt formally expressed to Britain "its deep regret concerning the present situation in Palestine" and said it "wishes to express the necessity for complying with the national aspirations of the inhabitants of that country."

Egypt further said that the "actual conditions resulting from the mandate imposed upon Palestine and its practical application are contradictory to the provisions laid down in the charter and to the recognized rights of the inhabitants of that country at the time when the latter was detached from the Ottoman empire."

The Iraq note closely paralled the Egyptian communication. It was dated June 19.

The United Nations said the Egyptian letter and the two notes were received in the ordinary mail over the weekend. They have been forwarded to the United Nations members as requested.

tions on Palestine to Britain and the United Nations. The main Egyptian letter and the Iraqi memorandum were handed to the British Embassies in Cairo and Baghdad in June, and at the same time copies were mailed to the U. N. Secretariat in New York. Along with its main letter, Egypt sent the U. N. a covering letter indicating intent to raise the Palestine issue in the forthcoming meeting here of the U. N. General Assembly.

Egypt's Note to U. N.

MINISTRY OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS, DEPARTMENT OF ARAB AFFAIRS.

The government of Egypt presents its compliments to the secretariat of the United Nations and has the honor to inclose a copy of letter which has been sent to His Britannic Majesty's government.

It begs to draw the attention of the secretariat to the contents of this letter, with a view to submitting the proposals therein set forth to the General Assembly of the United Nations at its next meeting. At the same time it would be obliged if the secretariat would bring this letter to the knowledge of all members of the United Nations.

The government of Egypt takes this opportunity to renew to the secretariat the expression of its highest consideration.

Cairo, 25 June, 1946.

The Secretariat of the United Nations.

Egypt's Letter to Britain

Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Department of Arab Affairs, Cairo, June 20, 1946.

Your Excellency:

I have the honor to bring to the attention of your excellency the following facts:

The Egyptian government, anxious to see the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations wisely carried out in order that the objectives which it strives to attain may be achieved, cannot refrain from expressing

Text of Communications on Palestine

its deep regret concerning the present situation in Palestine and wishes to stress the necessity for complying with the national aspirations of the inhabitants of that country. However, he actual conditions resulting from the mandate imposed upon Palestine and its practical application are contradictory to the provisions laid down in the Charter and to the recognized rights of the inhabitants of that country at the time when the latter was detached from the Ottoman empire.

It is felt, therefore, that an end should be put to the existing situation and that a new regime should be installed, inspired by the spirit and the principles of the Charter. This is considered all the more necessary in view of the fact that the General Assembly of the United Nations, at its first session, took the decision to intrust to the nations directly concerned the task of initiating consultations with a view to the conclusion of the agreements referred to in the Charter.

The Egyptian government, which maintains direct relations with Palestine in the spirit of the Charter, is anxious—for this and for other paramount reasons—to fulfill the obligations imposed upon it under the Charter with regard to that country. Therefore the Egytian government, acting in concert with the other Arab nations—Syria, Trans-Jordan, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and the Yemen—has the honor to invite His Britannic Majesty's government to negotiate with their respective representatives an arrangement destined to end the present situation in Palestine and to install a new regime in accordance with the provisions and the aims expressed in the Charter of the United Nations.

Since it is felt that such negotiations should be initiated as soon as possible, the Egyptian government expressed the hope that they will take place at the earliest date, in order that an agreement may be concluded before the coming meeting of the General Assembly in September, 1946.

In the mean time, the Royal Government of Egypt requests the British government not to take any step which might be contrary to the pledges contained in the White Paper regarding the cessation of immigration and legal measures concerning the restriction of land sales. The provisions of the Charter of the United Nations as well as the official statement by the British government contained in the above-mentioned document would thus be respected.

The Egyptian government is convinced that the British government, desirous of carrying out the provisions of the charter and the aims therein expressed, will not fail to respond favorably to this invitation.

I request you to bring the foregoing to the knowledge of your government and avail myself of this opportunity to renew to Your Excellency the expression of my highest consideration.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs,
AHMED [illegible] EL SAID.

His Excellency,
Sir Ronald Ian Campbell,
K. C. M. G., C. B.,
H. M. Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary,
Cairo.

Iraq Memorandum

Ministry for Foreign Affairs,
Political Department,
Occidental Section,
Bagdad, 19th June, 1946.

The Ministry for Foreign Affairs presents its compliments to His Britannic Majesty's Embassy at Baghdad and has the honour to inform them that the Iraqi government, being anxious that the provisions of the United Nations Charter and its aims are properly carried out, begs to draw the attention of His Britannic Majesty's government to the provisions of the said charter, to the present state in Palestine and to the necessity of realizing the national aspirations of its legitimate inhabitants.

The actual state arising out of the mandate imposed on Palestine and the manner of its application are in conflict with those provisions and also with the right of the inhabitants of Palestine which was recognized at the time of the detachment of that country from the Ottoman state.

It is, therefore, imperative that the present state in Palestine be terminated and that country brought to a state conforming with the spirit of the Charter; especially that the General Assembly of the United Nations, had, in their first session, decided to request the states directly concerned to expedite the initiation of the negotiations and the conclusion of the agreements referred to in the Charter.

Being under the Charter, a state directly concerned in Palestine, and for other fundamental reasons, Iraq is anxious to perform the duties encumbent upon it by the Charter, and is glad to accede to the request made by the General Assembly of the United Nations.

In the circumstances, the Iraqi government, in conjunction with other Arab states, viz., Syria, Trans-Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Egypt and Yemen, has the honor to invite the British government to enter with it into negotiations for the purpose of concluding an agreement terminating the present state in Palestine and bringing that country to a state conforming with the provisions and the aims of the Charter.

As it is necessary to undertake the negotiations at an early date, the Iraqi government hopes that the said negotiations will commence as soon as possible so that a complete and proper agreement may be drawn up in time before the next meeting of the General Assembly, which will take place in September, 1946.

The Iraqi government requests that until the negotiations for the conclusion of an agreement are over, no steps or actions are taken by the British government in violation of the pledges given by it in the 1939 White Paper, particularly those pledges dealing with the cessation of immigration and the sale of land or other matters connected therewith, for this, besides being in contravention of the said White Paper, would contravene the United Nations Charter in letter and in spirit.

The Iraqi government is confident that His Brittanic Majesty's government, being desirous of carrying out the provisions and aims of the Charter, and of avoiding troubles in Palestine, and in view of the threat to security in the Arab countries of the Middle East, will respond to this invitation.

The Ministry avails itself of this opportunity to renew the expression of its highest consideration.

ATTLEE ASSAILS BOMB OUTRAGE IN JERUSALEM

Prime Minister Questioned by Eden in House of Commons.

SAYS STEPS WILL BE TAKEN

Declares Blowing Up of Hotel Is Worst of Many and Horrible Recent Offenses.

London, July 23 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Attlee told the House of Commons today that "of all the outrages in Palestine, many and horrible in the last few months, the blasting of the King David Hotel in Jerusalem yesterday was the worst.

Declaring that all available information was to the effect that the perpetrators of the crime were Jews, the Prime Minister continued: "As this House knows, his Majesty's Government are at this moment in consultation with the Government of the United States with a view to arriving at proposals for a just settlement of the Palestine problem, which will be placed before the representatives of both Arabs and Jews. His Majestys Government have stated and stated again that they will not be diverted by acts of violence in their search for a just and final solution of this problem."

Eden Asks Assurances.

Anthony Eden, speaking for the Opposition, asked Attlee for assurance that the Government intended to take "every step in their power and provide the local authorities with every sanction they might need" to prevent recurrences.

"Certainly," replied Attlee.

The majority leader, Herbert Morrison, announced later that the Government would accept debate on its Palestine policy next week, probably on Wednesday.

Samuel Silverman, Laborite, asked Attlee whether there was really credible evidence that the terrorists were Jews and whether the Government appreciated that the continued detention of Jewish leaders left the field free for others.

"Mr. Silverman does injustice to members of the Jewish Agency in suggesting that arrests made of a certain number of persons included the whole responsible leadership of Jewry itself," Attlee replied. "It is quite untrue."

Meanwhile today it was no secret that the new outbreak of violence has caused the gravest anxiety at the Foreign Office, and while official comment was withheld, the bombing appeared earlier today to have destroyed virtually all possibility of the early implementation of recent proposals for the admission of 100,000 European Jews to Palestine.

Foreign Office opinion was summed up authoritatively but unofficially in this fashion: The keystone of British policy in regard to the implementation of the Anglo-American committee's recommendation has been peace and public order in Palestine, but the bombing indicates that the illegal forces there intend to continue disorders in Palestine and that public order is more uncertain than ever.

JEWISH SOLDIERS ADMIT BOMBING PALESTINE HOTEL

Underground Organization Claims British Failed to Heed Phone Warning.

48 DEAD, 55 HURT

72 Persons Are Still Missing in Ruins of Jerusalem Building.

Jerusalem, July 23 (AP)—An announcement purportedly from the Jewish underground Irgun Zvai Leumi declared tonight that "soldiers" of that organization had staged the bomb attack on the King David Hotel which killed at least 48 persons and injured 55, with 72 others missing.

The statement, however, blamed the British for the loss of life, declaring the British ignored warnings given by telephone and by explosion of a warning bomb before the Irgun attack against "the conquering government."

The typewritten announcement in Hebrew was delivered to the Associated Press by a messenger boy, in the usual fashion of communiqués from the underground.

Deny Warning Was Given

Military headquarters issued a statement denying that Irgun had given warning of the explosion. "No warning of any kind of the impending explosion was received," the statement said.

A claim by Irgun that the French consulate was warned in advance was denied by a consulate spokesman who said a warning telephone call was received five minutes after the explosion occurred.

As British troops and Palestine police pressed a manhunt through closely guarded Jerusalem for the attackers, a police source said two more Jews—both of them wounded—were arrested tonight, bringing the number of Jewish suspects in custody to 29.

Search Ruins

Rescuers kept digging in the mass of ruins of the hotel's collapsed east wing, hoping to find more persons entombed alive.

Digging down more than eight feet, troops rescued Donald C. Thompson, 52, assistant to Sir John Shaw, chief Palestine secretary, who had been pinned between two huge concrete slabs for 31 hours. Thompson, apparently not severely injured, had directed the diggers, and had said earlier that a man near him still was alive.

Bodies Of Girls Seen

An Arab was rescued alive several hours before.

Bodies of two Arab girl secretaries could be seen below the site where Thompson was trapped.

The typewritten message, headed "notice," declared:

"On July 23, at 12.05 P.M. soldiers of Irgun Zvai Leumi attacked the central British administration, the secretariat of the conquering government, and headquarters of the conquering army.

"The attack was carried out with a fight with army patrols and a British police force.

Details Warning Given

"According to a plan that was thought out beforehand, the explosive was set to go off only half an hour (underlined) after it was brought into the building.

"Immediately after the explosive was placed, telephonic warnings were given to the main telephone exchange of the King David Hotel, to press bureaus, telegraphic agencies, and to the French consulate, which were in the vicinity of the hotel.

"In addition to these warnings, a warning bomb (unharmful) was placed in front of the square of the hotel in order to inform residents to remove the public from the surroundings.

Exonerates Jewish "Soldiers"

"The tragedy which occurred in the civilian offices of the conquering Government was done not by Jewish soldiers who performed their duty with might and self-devotion and who have kept with military strictness the instructions they were given as regards the time required for evacuation of civilian people from the buildings.

"The tragedy was done by the British themselves who paid no attention to the warnings and did not evacuate the building according to military 'specialists' advice, who had taken upon themselves the task of evacuating the bombing area—an area where the slightest touch might bring an explosion."

Condemned By Haganah

A broadcast by another Jewish underground, Haganah, condemned yesterday's bombings, and declared Jews would discard such methods in their continuing fight against British policy.

Police blamed the attack on "Jewish terrorists." Troops cordoned off the old city in their search for the raiders.

The military commander of the Jerusalem civil district imposed a strict 6 P.M. to 6 A.M. curfew, effective until further notice forbidding any one on the streets inside the municipal boundary without official permit.

Lieutenant General Sir Alan Cunningham, high commissioner for Palestine, sped back from London, cutting short his Palestine talks there. He was expected to confer immediately with Lieutenant General Sir Evelyn Barker, British commander in Palestine.

Barker, Dempsey To Confer

Barker himself was expected to confer in Cairo soon with General Sir Miles C. Dempsey, British commander in the Middle East.

Soldiers and Arab workers swarmed over the heap of ruins—all that was left of six luxurious floors in the east wing, which had housed British military headquarters—and coughed violently from the thick, white concrete dust as they worked amid a smell of death rising in the glaring heat of the sun.

Scores of persons were injured in the blast, and 50 were hospitalized.

Identified As Irgun Member

The body of a Jew found by police today in a schoolhouse in the old city was identified tonight as Aharon Abramovitch, 25-year-old member of the Irgun Zvai Leumi, who was released from prison last September. He was imprisoned after an attempt was made on the life of Sir Harold MacMichael, former commissioner of Palestine, a year and a half ago.

A wounded Jew found in the same school building was identified as Isaak Zedok, about the same age.

Police said they found two complete sets of Arab clothing, marked by bullet wounds, in the school.

Resentment On All Sides

On all sides—Christian, Arab and Jewish—deep resentment was expressed.

The Jewish Community Council for Jerusalem ordered a work stoppage from 3 P.M. to evening in mourning for the victims. During that time several funerals of Jewish victims were held at the Mount of Olives Cemetery.

Arab shops were closed from noon to 5 P.M., and services were held for Arab and British dead, with Jamal Husseini, vice president of the new Arab Higher Executive, among the chief mourners.

Barker supervised the rescue work throughout the day by soldiers.

Valuable Records Lost

The bodies of two British soldiers were exhumed near the top of the rubble head, one still in a sitting position. In the pile of debris below, the arm of a girl could be seen.

As British soldiers and Arab workmen laboriously removed debris into Arab baskets, Barker remarked bitterly:

"This is a terrific loss, not only of lives and property but in records and documents. Some of those records were compiled in the 25 years of the Palestine Government and cannot be replaced. And the bitter part of it is: there is no excuse—no reason—for it."

Civil service workers held a fifteen-minute period of silence at noon in tribute of those killed in the blast and discussed plans for a later memorial ceremony.

few minutes today when soldiers heard the faint mumblings of a man pinned under ten feet of reinforced concrete debris.

Conscious during the entire twenty-four hours since the blast occurred, Donald C. Thompson, assistant to the Chief Secretary of the Palestine administration, told a British major that his head was wedged between slabs but that otherwise he was all right.

The major said it would probably take another full day to reach Thompson because of the obvious impossibility of blasting. Widely known in Palestine, Thompson is considered one of the best linguists in the British Government, speaking nearly all Oriental and modern languages.

A Wog Named Thompson.

Soldiers who first heard his muttered cries asked him: "Are you a Wog (Arab worker)?"

"Yes, a Wog named Thompson," he replied. Then he said: "There's another man here. I believe he's alive. I can't see his face, but I can see his stomach moving."

It was impossible to send food to Thompson, but the major in charge of the rescue work said that the soldiers would keep talking to him to keep up his hopes.

All compressed air drills were shut off for the first talk. Thompson told his listeners: "I seem to be all right."

Then the dust-covered soldiers who had been working all night, went back to work.

Mowrer on Serious List.

Meanwhile today Richard Mowrer, correspondent of the New York Post, received penicillin treatments at a British Army hospital to prevent infection from the injuries he received when he was struck by chunks of flying concrete yesterday. His right thigh was fractured and he received severe lacerations below the right knee. Hospital attendants said he was resting easily, but was classified as a serious case because of the need for continued penicillin treatments.

Mowrer told a reporter he was walking along Julians Way when "I was knocked to the pavement, but I don't know whether by bricks or by concussion. All sorts of things started clattering down and odds and ends hit me. There was a big cloud of dust and smoke and people were running in all directions and shouting.

"Then the smoke and dust cleared and things stopped falling. From where I was the King David looked just like a lot of other bombed buildings I've seen in Poland and Germany. Its corner was sliced right off.

"Then I noticed my leg was all out of shape, like that of a Javanese dancer or something. My right thigh was bent and I knew my leg was broken. I sat up and looked around until I heard a Palestine policeman yell: 'Make that man lie still!' . . . I thought it was an anti-climax to be wounded after going through all th latest wars."

Outlawed Zionist Group Says Hebrew 'Soldiers' Set Off Bomb

Twenty Jews Are Rounded Up in Jerusalem —Toll of Dead and Missing Now Is 94 —First Funerals Are Held.

Jerusalem, July 23 (A. P.).—A message in Hebrew, signed by the outlawed Irgun Zvai Leumi organization, declared tonight that yesterday's bombing of the King David Hotel was carried out by "soldiers" of that group.

The message was handed to the Associated Press by an unidentified messenger boy. It asserted that the loss of life resulting from the terrorist attack was caused "by the British themselves, who paid no attention to warnings."

The Associated Press received similar typed messages when the Irgun Zvai Leumi attacked the Government on previous occasions, and there was no reason to believe that today's message was not authentic. It said:

"On July 22 at 12:05, soldiers at Irgun Zvai Leumi attacked the Central British Administration; the Secretariat of the conquering Government and headquarters of the conquering army. The attack was carried out with a fight with army patrols and the British police force.

"According to a plan that was thought out beforehand, the explosive was set to go off only a half hour (underlined) after it was brought into the building."

Twenty Jews Rounded Up.

Earlier today a police spokesman announced the detention of about twenty Jews in connection with the outrage, which left ninety-four persons dead or missing. The number of known dead was forty-eight.

The Palestine Government said that the missing include twelve senior British officers of the Government secretariat. Names are being withheld pending notification of their kin.

Military rescue crews continued toiling in the debris of the hotel, which housed British Army headquarters and the Secretariat of the Palestine Government. They reported that forty eight bodies had been recovered. Forty-six persons were still unaccounted for. Fifty more were still undergoing treatment for injuries, and dozens of others, the hospitals reported, have been treated for minor wounds.

Truck and Taxi Found.

The police spokesman said that, although most of the party which planted milk cans of explosives wore Arab dress, all the evidence indicated that they were young Jews. Eye-witnesses said the attackers spoke Hebrew. The spokesman said a search was "going on right now in the old city of Jesusalem."

A few hours later the authorities announced that two Jewish brothers, one of them dead and the other wounded, had been found in a school house in the old city. Their identity was not immediately disclosed.

A truck and a taxi, both stolen, which were abandoned by the attackers were searched for fingerprints and other possible clews.

Lieut.-Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, the British High Commissioner for Palestine, was en route here from London, having cut short his talks with British officials on the Palestine situation. He was expected to confer here briefly with his lieutenants and then fly to Cairo to confer with Lieut.-Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey, commander of British forces in the Middle East.

Truman Views Parley Peril

Washington, July 23 (AP)—President Truman said today such acts of terrorism as the bomb attack on the King David Hotel in Jerusalem might well retard efforts to settle the Palestine problem.

"Every responsible Jewish leader, I am sure, will join me in condemning the wanton slaying of human beings," the President said in a formal statement.

The statement follows:

"I have learned with deep regret of the destruction by a bomb of the building in Palestine in which were located the Palestine Government and the British military headquarters, resulting in the killing of approximately 50 men and women, soldiers and civilians.

Points To London Discussions

"Every responsible Jewish leader, I am sure, will join me in condemning the wanton slaying of human beings.

"At this time representatives of the United States Government are in London conferring with representatives of the British Government as to steps to be taken to implement the report of the Palestine committee which recommended, among other things, the immigration of 100,000 Jews into Palestine.

"Such acts of terrorism will not advance, but on the contrary might well retard, the efforts that are being made, and will continue to be made, to bring about a peaceful solution of this difficult problem."

BRITISH BUYERS STRIKE IN BREAD RATION PROTEST

LONDON, July 23—(AP) Many Britons refused to buy bread and cakes today, and a deliverymen's strike spread to two more areas amid mounting complaints against the three-day-old bread rationing system.

Food Minister John Strachey meanwhile promised consumers more sugar, beer and candy.

The buyers' strike left an increasing number of bakeries and stores with stale supplies of cakes and bread. Some stores sold them without coupons despite the possibility of legal action against them.

Two groups of British delivery workers at Camberwell and Stamford followed the example of Northern Ireland "roundsmen" and struck in protest against longer work hours caused by having to collect coupons for bread. Belfast bakers called a meeting to decide whether to join the protest.

In London, the National Association of Master Bakers over strenuous opposition withdrew its motion of last week threatening a "revolt" against rationing. It decided to try the plan, as its 12,000 members have been doing, and "let it collapse through its own defects."

Strachey, who has asserted that bread rationing was necessary to avoid gambling with Britain's future grain supply, announced these food and drink increases at a news conference:

Sugar—an extra pound per person during the week beginning Sept. 15. The present ration is half a pound a week.

Candy—half an ounce a week more beginning Sept. 15, bringing the monthly ration to one pound.

Beer—larger volume, but the already weak product will become even weaker.

CONSUMERS FIGHT BREAD RATIONING

London, July 23 (A. P.).—A buyers' strike threatened Britain's bread rationing program today and left Ministry of Food officials faced with the prospect of heavy losses of bakery products unless sales were permitted without ration coupons.

In west Scotland, housewives delayed their purchases until late afternoon in the hope that bread loaves and pastry would be sold off without coupons, but food officials announced that there would be no relaxation of the rules.

A number of London bakeries sold cakes without coupons. In one shop window piled high with drying loaves, a sign read "Owing to bread rationing, all this bread is wasted."

In northern Ireland the Ministry of Food set up twenty-one emergency distribution centers because of a strike of delivery men protesting against the extra work of collecting coupons.

New York Veteran Called Suicide

London, July 23 (A. P.).—Detective Sergt. William Head said today at the inquest into the death of Ralph Rose, 31 years old, of 25 South street, New York city, that Rose, a former American soldier, killed himself July 17 in an East London shooting gallery because the father of a British girl would not permit him to marry her. Police records show Rose returned to Britain as a stowaway, entered the country illegally in January.

The jury held that he committed suicide while the balance of his mind was disturbed.

Kleffens Takes Over

New York, July 23 (AP)—The United Nations Security Council goes back into session tomorrow with the question of new members the only major issue facing the body.

Dr. Eelco N. van Kleffens, delegate from the Netherlands, will take over as new chairman for the meeting, scheduled for 3 P.M.

A spokesman for the United States delegation said the Council would consider changes in a previous United States memorandum setting a July 15 deadline on applications and providing for a special committee to report on these requests by August 1.

Assembly Meets September 23

With postponement of the General Assembly meeting from September 3 to September 23, steps will be taken to set back dates in the memorandum, which was adopted by the Council. Under the charter the Assembly finally acts on the bids upon recommendations from the Council.

The September 23 Assembly date was made official today with dispatching of notification messages to the 51 member nations. The opening was postponed to allow diplomats to attend the peace treaty conference opening in Paris July 29.

Membership applications have been received from Albania, Afghanstan, Outer Mongolia and Trans-Jordan and Siam has announced it will file officially. Sweden and Iceland also have indicated they will seek entry.

Atomic-Energy Authority

Meanwhile, delegates to the Atomic Energy Commisison will begin consideration of a key step in the United States control plan—formation of an atomic development authority (A.D.A.).

This question will come before a closed meeting of Committee No. 2, scheduled for 10 A.M. tomorrow.

The committee earlier gave priority to the issue and one of the delegates said it would now seek a straight yes-or-no answer to the question. Soviet Russia's proposal for an international convention outlawing the production and use of atomic weapons was made a second point for discussion.

Gromyko Arguments Expected

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet delegate, indicated he would speak at length on the A.D.A. at the committee session and delegates hoped to speed a decision after hearing his arguments. He was expected to insist again that most of the power be vested in the Security Council, where the Big Five holds the right to veto, and not in the A.D.A. or any such agency.

The United Nations Site Commission continued a series of meetings with some decision on selection of a permanent site in the Westchester (N.Y.)-Fairfield (Conn.) area expected within a week.

FRENCH CHANGE SAAR BORDERS

Transfer 79 Districts From Rhineland.

Paris, July 23 (A. P.).—The French General Commissariat for German and Austrian Affairs said today that Gen. Pierre Koenig, French occupation commander, had ordered the transfer of eleven rural communes from the Rhineland to the Saar.

The French have demanded repeatedly that the Saar be annexed to France. French Military Government officials in Coblenz said the territory involved consisted of seventy-nine Rhineland districts totaling about 600 square miles. This would be nearly doubling the extent of the Saar.

The transfer is intended "to adapt the administrative organization of the Saar to economic reality," the commissariat's communique said. "The communes attached will enter, in effect, in the economic orbit of the Saar and a notable part of their inhabitants will work in the (coal) mines."

France Criticized.

Berlin, July 23 (A. P.).—The Russian licensed Berliner Zeitung accused France today of prejudicing four-Power discussions of Germany and "preparing to annex the Saar" through the incorportation of seventy-nine Rhineland districts into Saar territory. The newspaper, which often speaks for German nationalistic elements appearing to have Soviet support, stated:

"There is no doubt that, from the French side, this expansion of the Saar is planned as preparation for anschluss (union) of the Saar with France."

The Zeitung maintained that France, by thus touching Rhineland territory, was taking unilateral action which had not been approved by the Foreign Ministers Council at Paris and thereby was "prejudicing the problem of German unity."

"Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov has emphatically characterized any separation of Rhine and Ruhr territories as destructive," it said.

The new boundaries of the Saar are the Mosel River on the north and the Ruwer River on the East.

FRENCH ADMIT BRITISH PACT

Say Vichy Had Draft Of Secret Nonaggression Treaty

Versailles, France, July 23 (AP)—The first official French admission that the wartime Vichy regime had at least a draft of a secret nonaggression pact with Britain was made today as Pierre Etienne Flandin went on trial on charges of collaboration.

This draft existed before Flandin a prewar French Premier, undertook to head the Vichy Cabinet, the state said. Flandin held the Vichy post for a brief time.

Shown Documents By Petain

The state's bill of charges asked for "national disgrace" (suspension of civil rights) of the former Premier. The charges were limited largely to the fact that he had participated in the Vichy Government and to a description of allegedly compromising statements made at that time.

Mention also was made in the charges to Flandin's claim that Philippe Petain, Vichy chief of state, had shown him documents in which the Vichy Government was committed to abstain from any act of hostility against Britain and her allies and array the French Empire against Germany when the opportunity arose.

2 GET LEGION OF MERIT

Gen. McClure and Col. Boyle Win Honor for Work in AMG

BERLIN, July 23 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Deputy Military Governor of the United States occupation zone of Germany, today presented the Legion of Merit to two high officers of the Office of Military Government in ceremonies at American headquarters.

They were Brig. Gen. Robert A. McClure of Madison, Ind., director of the information control section, and Col. Marvin Boyle of Falls City, Neb., chief of the policy enforcement branch of the Military Government's civil administration section.

General McClure was cited for his service as military attaché to England in 1942, and Colonel Boyle for his work as director of civil operations and later as headquarters commandant of the Bremen Port Command from May, 1945, to February, 1946.

5 From Congress Arrive In Berlin

Berlin, July 23 (AP)—Senators Ellender (D., La.) and Butler (R., Neb.) and three congressmen, members of the first section of a joint congressional committee making an around-the-world tour, arrived here today for a two-day visit.

They will consult with military government leaders on occupation problems.

Members of the group flew in from Nuernberg where they visited the international war crimes trial after talking with Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, theater commander in Frankfurt. They planned to leave sometime tomorrow for Vienna.

Others in the party were Representatives Fred L. Crawford (R., Mich.), J. W. Robinson (D., Utah), George P. Miller (D., Cal.) and J. Weldon Jones, presidential adviser. This group formed part of the congressional delegation to the Philippines independence ceremonies at Manila and visited China and Japan.

Crawford expressed surprise at the extent of the bomb damage in German cities but commented that the "occupation forces in Germany have a relative picnic compared to the surroundings of some of our boys in the Far East, on Okinawa for instance."

Commenting on recent primary election results in the United States Crawford said: "The political situation seems so unpredictable that none of us know where he stands."

tary tribunal to read it later and consider it in establishing its verdict. He declared that without the basic weakness of the Weimar constitution, which he attributed to the Versailles treaty, there would not have been a Hitler.

Earlier, Dr. Hans Flaeschner, counsel for Albert Speer, former minister of armaments, said Speer conspired against Hitler in the last days of the war in an attempt to save industry throughout Europe despite the Fuehrer's direct orders. He said Speer considered the war lost in March, 1944, and had done everything he could to end hostilities, including the planning of a conspiracy in February, 1945.

In the morning session, the defense attorney for Franz Von Papen said his client had been interested only in peace and had accepted ambassadorial posts in Austria and Turkey only to work for peaceful settlement of European problems.

When Von Papen was sent to Ankara as Ambassador, the attorney said, it was with the clear objective of maintaining peace between Turkey and Italy—"a new task to which he believed it his duty to devote himself"—and in the end he prevented the war extending to Turkey and to more distant southeastern territories.

A party of five American Congressmen attended today's session of the trial. The party included Senators Ellender of Louisiana and Butler of Nebraska, and Representatives J. W. Robinson of Utah, Fred L. Crawford of Michigan and George Miller of California. They arrived this morning from Frankfurt and were scheduled to leave later today for Berlin, Prague, Vienna and Berchtesgaden.

Ex-German Foreign Minister Blames France for Hitler Rise

G. Hoodenfield

NUERNBERG, July 23 — (AP) Baron Otto Von Luedinghausen opened the final defense summation for Constantine Von Neurath at the war crimes trial of high Nazis today with a bitter attack on France, other western powers, and the Versailles treaty.

He said [illegible], who was Hitler's first foreign minister and later protector of Bohemia and Moravia, had agreed to serve in the Hitler cabinet only because of the insistence of the late President Paul Von Hindenburg and because Von Neurath wanted to devote his efforts toward avoiding war.

Von Luedinghausen could not finish reading his 30-page summary in court because of the lack of time, but he asked the international military tribunal to read it later and consider it in establishing its verdict. He declared that without the basic weakness of the Weimar constitution, which he attributed to the Nuernberg, July 23 (A. P.).—Counsel for Franz von Papen, Adolf Hitler's best known diplomat, described him today as a man interested only in peace, who accepted ambassadorial posts in Austria and Turkey only to work for an amicable settlement of Europe's problems. In concluding, his lawyer said that Hitler recalled von Papen from Austria before Anschluss (1938), because Hitler realized that von Papen would not follow a stern, radical political [illegible].

Von Papen hesitated about taking the post of ambassador to Austria in 1934, and accepted only because he felt that he alone would be in a position to fulfill the task within the framework of peace, the lawyer continued, adding, that von Papen advised against Anschluss but that Hitler had already "committed the madness of issuing the order to march in," and that von Papen was unpopular with Hitler after that and retired from public life for more than a year and was not called back until a situation arose where his appeasement policies were of value.

Amen to Represent Jewel Defendant

Nuernberg, July 23 (A. P.).—Col. John Harlan Amen, former Special Assistant to the Attorney-General of the United States and now assistant prosecutor at the war crimes trials here, announced today that he would represent Major David E. Watson of Burlingame, Cal., in the Hessian crown jewel theft case.

Amen said his principal legal assistant would be Lieut.-Col. Smith W. Brookhart Jr., son of the late Senator from Iowa. Brookhart is now assisting Amen at the Nuernberg trials.

MOST GERMANS FAVOR U. S. ECONOMIC PLAN

FRANKFURT, Germany, July 23—(AP) Many Germans in the U.S. zone favor America's plan for economic union of occupation zones in Germany, although some believe the U. S. proposals are a "threat to Russia," a military government public opinion survey revealed today.

Questioned on Gen. Joseph T. McNarney's project for economic merger, some Germans declared "dissension between the east and the west was increasing." "Others felt it a lesser evil to have an eastern and western Germany than the present division," the report said.

The report, which gave no percentages or number of persons interrogated by plainclothes questioners, said Germans generally regarded the U. S. plan as a "step forward in the reconstruction of Germany" and said "America was interested in putting Germany on a sound economic basis."

U. S. ARMY EXPELS 3 FROM GERMANY

Frankfurt, July 23 (A. P.).—Three American civilians have been expelled from occupied Germany for marrying German girls in violation of the United States Army's ban on German-American weddings, Army officials said today.

All are former soldiers whose marriages were revealed when they asked the Army to ship their wives to the United States as "war brides" at Government expense.

Army records identified the expelled civilians as Charles Quatt, 30 years old of Paterson, N. J.; Philip Haenze, 24, of Pittsburgh, and Ralph E. Hudspeth, whose home town was not listed here. They took War Department jobs in Germany to be with their wives after release from the Army.

Four other former soldiers also have applied for transportation for their German brides, but they are already in the United States.

Army officials said final action on the transportation applications for all seven German wives was being withheld, awaiting clarification of policy.

"We have nothing against her," Ann Quatt, sister of Charles Quatt, one of the Americans expelled from Germany for marrying a German girl, said today. The sister, who lives at 251 North Seventh street, Prospect Park, on the outskirts of Paterson, said her brother had met his wife, the former Lotte Nipgen, when he was a warrant officer in the Army. They were married, the sister said, before his discharge. She described her brother's wife—based on reports from him—as very pretty and about 25 years old.

Italy Assembly Hears Address By La Guardia

He Speaks in Italian, Urging Strong and Free Nation; Deputies Roar Ovation

ROME, July 23 (AP). — F. H. La Guardia addressed deputies of the Italian Constitutional Assembly in their own language today, urging an Italy "beautiful, strong, great and, by the will of its inhabitants, free and independent." And at the end, when he shouted: "Viva Italia!" the deputies rose and roared for a full minute.

The director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and former Mayor of New York spoke in the famed "Hall of the She Wolf" of Monte Citorio Palace. He bustled into the chamber accompanied by Premier Alcide de Gasperi, a tall man, and heartily embraced two old men about his own size—pre-Fascist Premiers Vittorio Orlando and Francesco Nitti, whom he knew while he was an aviation liaison officer in Italy in the first world war.

Assembly President Giuseppe Saragat introduced him as the "brother and faithful friend of Italians, both in blood and in sentiment."

"Some people call Italy the cushion between the east and the west," La Guardia said in response. "Be careful that you do not become the back-seat cushion in the automobile of some great power."

Reciting the accomplishments of U. N. R. R. A., which he said is "one of the most beautiful things of all times," La Guardia, who is in Italy on an inspection trip, told of the U. N. R. R. A. appropriation of $425,000,000 for Italy and commented in Italian: "That ain't hay."

Moisture, from perspiration or tears, coursed his cheeks as he implored Italy to "save the children." A forefinger stabbed the air as he declared Mussolini's attack on France was "against his own people."

He launched into a defense of democracy, urging the new Italian republic to learn "from the errors of all the others—including my own," and touched on foreign trade and the forthcoming peace treaty for Italy, urging that Europe "get together on free trade instead of creating new barriers."

When La Guardia had finished, Premier de Gasperi expressed his thanks and implored La Guardia and the United States to help soften the peace terms for Italy.

HOLLAND TO SEEK FRONTIER CHANGES

Limited Rectification of the Border With Germany Given as Objective by Queen

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, July 23 (AP)—Queen Wilhelmina told the new Parliament today that The Netherlands intended to seek a limited rectification of her frontiers with Germany.

No details were given.

Outlining Netherlands foreign policy, the Queen said:

"With the purpose of establishing international peace and freedom and to make atomic energy beneficial instead of disastrous to humanity, The Netherlands will strive for furtherance of good international relations on the basis of the Charter of the United Nations.

"The Netherlands favors the speedy realization of final peace treaties."

Touches Indonesian Problem

Speaking of the Indonesian problem and Dutch regions outside Java and Sumatra, the Queen said that proper conditions were still lacking on Java and Sumatra for fulfilment by peaceful and loyal means of the Indonesian national desires. She added, however, that she was "confident these conditions will soon be present." She continued:

"Final liquidation of the Japanese invasion and the return of law and order are essential conditions for The Netherlands to be able to give themselves fully to their vocation of building up, with the realm and together with the Indonesians, a self-government system for these peoples."

The monarch said socialization would be considered in Holland proper for public utility services and for other enterprises monopolistic in character, including mining and The Netherlands Bank.

She said measures would be considered to prevent thoughtless divorces.

Europe To Have New 'Tire Center'

Amsterdam, July 23 (AP)—American sources in Amsterdam said today the B. F. Goodrich Company of Akron, Ohio, and the Vredestein Company, Holland's largest rubber factory, would establish a European center for the manufacture of tires in the Netherlands sometime in August. The production goal for the first year has been set at 100,000 motor tubes and tires.

The company will be known as the Netherlands-American Tire Company Vredestein, Ltd. and will be headed by Goodrich experts under the general management of a Dutch board of directors. Half of the $2,260,000 capital will be owned by the company and half will be offered on the investment market.

Reasons for establishing a tire center in the Netherlands were attributed to "extraordinary production costs in the U.S.A., and the presence of a long-established rubber industry in Holland which has access to unlimited sources of natural rubber from the Dutch East Indies.

TSALDARIS IS SUSTAINED

Greek Parliament 137-97, Gives Premier Vote of Confidence

ATHENS, July 23 (AP)—Premier Constantin Tsaldaris, upon his return from conferences in Paris and London, demanded tonight a parliamentary vote of confidence in his Government and was sustained, 137 to 97. Premier Tsaldaris demanded the vote to avoid a vote of censure on Spyros Theotokis, Minister of Public Order.

The question of censure was raised by former Premier George Papandreu, who charged that M. Theotokis had failed to achieve order in Greece.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that six men and a woman were sentenced to death in Salonika today on charges of being members of the NOE, outlawed Macedonian autonomist organization.

Russia Reported Taking More Austrian Farms

Vienna, July 23 (AP)—An Austrian informant said today that the Russians had taken over 12,607 more acres of farmland in eastern Austria and six to eight local railroads in the section. The farms formerly were owned by Jews.

The informant said the railroads were privately owned before Germany absorbed Austria but were heavily in debt and were to have been taken over by the Austrian Government. The Germans seized them after the Anschluss.

Seek Leniency For Slovak Puppet

Prague, July 23 (A. P.).—Demands for leniency for Dr. Josef Tiso, priest and wartime President of Slovakia under the Nazis, appeared to be growing among Catholic laymen today as the date for Tiso's trial for treason approached.

This sentiment was reflected by Bishop Jan Vojtasak, prominent Czech prelate, who told a press conference that in his opinion Tiso is not a traitor. The trial is expected to start in August.

U. S. PLANES CANCEL YUGOSLAV FLIGHTS

Belgrade, July 23 (A. P.).—All American military flights into Yugoslavia have been canceled—probably for at least a month—as a result of a new Yugoslav ruling requiring Vienna-to-Belgrade planes to fly on a new course taking them over Hungarian soil, thus necessitating Russian clearance.

The cancellation was disclosed by a United States embassy informant, who said the new order requires that all American planes fly from Vienna to Belgrade via Subotica, Yugoslavia. A straight-line flight from Vienna to Subotica would cross approximately 165 miles of Hungarian territory and would involve negotiations with Russian authorities for clearances.

The embassy spokesman said the military air line, which last March was making six flights weekly into Belgrade with no clearances needed, previously was required to fly from Vienna to Graz, thus keeping the planes clear of Hungarian frontiers.

Polish Army Court Dooms 9

WARSAW, July 22 (Delayed) (AP).—A Polish military court at Bialystok sentenced nine men to death and fourteen others to from six to fifteen years imprisonment today for terrorist activities.

Attack U. S. Zone Camps

Russians Say Refugees Foster Anti-Soviet Campaigns

MOSCOW, July 23 (AP). — The Russian Army newspaper "Red Star" asserted today that former Gestapo agents and storm troopers are carrying on anti-Soviet campaigns "while fattening on United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration" bread and butter in American refugee camps outside Munich and Nuernberg.

"The Americans too often inspire Fascist elements in their zone, although issuing strict anti-Fascist decrees," the article asserted. "Around Munich and Nuernberg exists a thick network of camps of Poles, Ukrainians, Lithuanians, Yugoslavs and Czechs."

The article singled out one Karl Holte Kornitsky, a Pole whom "Red Star" accused of working three years for the Poznan Gestapo.

The story continued: "Munich now, as in the past, is becoming a place where real reactionary elements of all Europe are gathering. Who protects them?"

PREDICTS VICTORY FOR INONU'S PARTY

Istanbul, July 23 (A. P.).—A spokesman for President Ismet Inonu's People's party said today that an unofficial tabulation of returns from Sunday's election indicated that the party had won at least 335 seats in the 460-seat National Assembly.

There still was no official announcement, however, and it appeared unlikely that any figures would be available before tonight—a situation which brought from opposition groups charges that the Government was tampering with the returns.

The People's party spokesman conceded it was possible that the new Democratic party, together with lesser opposition groups, might have won approximately 100 Assembly seats—which would represent a remarkable showing of strength.

A Democratic leader asserted that Inonu himself had run sixth in a field of seventeen deputies chosen in Ankara previously, where the Democrats previously had claimed considerable strength.

Allies To Get 'Tough' At Trieste Is Hinted

Trieste, July 23 (AP)—Col. Alfred C. Bowman, of Los Angeles, senior allied civil affairs officer for Venezia Giulia, today hinted that the Allied Military Government henceforth would be tough rather than "try to please everybody as it has in past."

Colonel Bowman told a news conference at which there were representatives of pro-Italian and pro-Yugoslav newspapers as well as foreign correspondents that the "pattern had been formulated," and that the population of the region "should devote itself to the development of the region rather than engage in further political controversy."

CHINESE FIGHT IS INCREASING

Nears Full-Scale War As Parleys Continue

Nanking, July 23 (AP)—Bitter fighting, nearing the point of full-scale warfare, was waged by Communist and Nationalist forces in China's midriff today as Gen. George Marshall and the new United States Ambassador, John Leighton Stuart, conferred at length over an elusive peace.

The chief Communist negotiator, Gen. Chou En-lai, was expected to return tomorrow to the capital from Shanghai to resume peace talks which broke down when Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek left Nanking's summer heat for Kuling.

Anti-American pressure was rising once more as the negotiators were about to meet.

Marine "Invasion" Charged

Marines in North China stations, who sent detachments searching for seven kidnapped comrades, were accused by the Communists of "invading" Communist-held areas. They were flatly warned that "if conflict occurs, the responsibility will rest with the Marines."

Although ignored in the Chinese national press, Madame Sun Yat Sen's statement pleading for the immediate formation of a coalition Communist-Nationalist government and a halt to American military supplies to the Nationalist Government was regarded as another powerful pro-Communist move on the international diplomatic level.

Reaches Tass 4 Hours Earlier

Her statement for some unexplained reason reached the Soviet news agency Tass four hours before it was handed to American newspaper men.

The Communists claim that the Chinese National Air Force, using American lend-lease P-51 Mustang fighter planes, made more than 300 sweeps over Communist-held areas along the Tsingtao-Tsinan railway between June 18 and July 15. Towns and railway stations held by the 8th Route Army were said to have ben strafed and bombed with more than 300 casualties resulting. There was no Government verification of this report.

PROTEST ACTION BY U. S. MARINES

Chinese Reds Accuse Them of 'Invasions.'

Nanking, July 23 (A. P.).—The Communist New China News Agency said today that Communist Gen. Yeh Chien-yi has protested to Peiping Executive Headquarters over the repeated "invasions" of Communist-controlled areas by United States Marines. An agency dispatch reported that Marines along the Peiping-Mukden railroad entered more than ten villages near Changnee, with 300 in a group, it said that on July 14, the outskirts of Changnee were "invaded" by 150 Marines while seven American warplanes were overhead. The dispatch came from Tsunhwa, Hopei province, in a sector where seven Marines were kidnaped by an armed band of Chinese on July 13, precipitating widespread Marine searches.

The agency also alleged that on July 11 Marines stationed at a railway bridge sent nine tanks into the area near Tafuchwan, destroying many paddy fields. It said that Communists regarded such activities as "an unreasonable challenge of Chinese sovereignty" and warned that the Communists would take defense steps if they continued. It added that "if conflict occurs," the responsibility lies with the Marines.

Ignore Mme. Sun.

Shanghai, July 23 (A. P.).—Madame Sun Yat-sen's statement charging that Chinese "reactionaries" are trying to foment war between the United States and Russia and urging cessation of United States military assistance to China was ignored today by some Chinese newspapers. No mention of the statement was made in some papers controlled by the Kuomintang (Government party). Others published only excerpts.

Ta Kung Pao, rated as independent and liberal, published only the opening sentence of the Associated Press report on the statement. Foreign newspapers in Shanghai published it in full.

Her statement was not expected here to help arrest the swiftly spreading civil conflict. The area of greatest conflict appeared to be in Kiangsu province, on the north side of the great Yangtze River and not far from Shanghai and Nanking, both south of the river. Fighting also was reported in Manchuria. Government newspapers said Communists were attacking in the Harbin area and along the Sungari River to the south.

U. S. Army Surplus Is Sold to Siamese

SINGAPORE (AP)—Disposal of U. S. Army surplus property has been completed in the Singapore area, which embraces Malaya, the Netherlands East Indies, Siam, Burma and Indo-China.

The American taxpayer received back approximately $300,000 or 70 cents out of every dollar originally invested in property declared surplus, according to Maj. W. J. Skinner of Westchester, O., Foreign Liquidation Commission representative here.

The Singapore office also has contracted with Siam to fill a $10,000,000 order from stocks in the southwest Pacific Theatre. This order, linked with Siam's efforts to boost rice production for hungry Asia, will include locomotives, trucks and similar equipment.

Hopes Grow Viceroy Can Settle India Strike

New Delhi, India, July 23 (AP)—Viceregal intervention in the strike of postal and telegraph workers which has virtually paralyzed communications throughout India inspired optimism tonight in some official tonight in some official quarters that a quick settlement will be effected. The strikers are asking for higher wages.

Viceroy Lord Wavell apparently intervened shortly after the All-India Federation of Posts and Telegraph Unions, which claims claims 100,000 members, threatened to tie up India's communications solidly by joining more than 10,000 members of two other All-India Posts and Telegraph Unions already on strike.

6 HURT IN INDIAN RIOT

Madras, July 23 (A. P.).—Six persons were wounded here today when the police opened fire to disperse a mob which set fire to ten hand loom factories at Karur, weaving center near Trichonopoly, South India, destroying three of the plants. Sixty arrests have been made so far.

The trouble began over distribution of yarn by wholesalers to weavers. Distribution was prevented when 2,000 people blocked the streets by lying prostrate on the road. Policemen then charged in and dispersed the mob, which scattered and started firing the factories.

Chin Admits 1930 Power Of Generals

Tokyo, Wednesday, July 24 (AP)—General Chinteh-chun, Chinese Vice Minister of Defense, testified today that Chinese generals in North China during the 1930's were so powerful that it was impossible for the Government to transfer them.

General Chin admitted this fact under crossexamination during the trial of 27 accused Japanese war leaders. Defense lawyers sought to prove that the situation in North China and Manchuria at that time was so unstable that Japan was compelled to tke forceful steps to protect her nationals.

"Did not the Lytton report to the League of Nations say that transfer of Chinese generals was impossible due to the lack of authority?" asked Lieut. Col. Franklin E. N. Warren, defense attorney, of Tucumacari, N.M.

"In principle, I agree with the Lytton report," General Chin responded.

"It is not true that what prevailed in 1937 prevails to this very good day?" Warren asked.

General Chin avoided a direct answer. But he said that the facts in the Lytton report were "factually true." He added that at the time of the Marco Polo Bridge incident, which started the Sino-Japanese War, that "peace prevailed in the Peiping area under the Central Government's control."

Warren pressed General Chin repeatedly for a flat reply to his questions. By influence, the defense attorney contended that the Chinese Central Government had so little authority that Japan had to treat with North China and Manchurian generals to protect its nationals.

Japan Installs Economic Chief

TOKYO, July 23 (AP).—Labelled by one newspaper as the "champion of capitalists," Keinosuke Zen was invested at the Imperial Palace today in the presence of the Emperor as director general of the board which will co-ordinate Japan's economic policies. "Asahi," which gave him the label, said that Zen in 1932 was instrumental in shelving a labor-union bill, thus getting on labor's blacklist. He is a member of the House of Peers and a life-insurance company president.

ON MERCY MISSION

Tokyo, July 23 (A. P.).—The British destroyer H. M. S. Camperdown, left Yokohama today on a mission of mercy. She rushed a United States Army surgeon, Lieut.-Col. W. F. Bowers, to the aid of a dangerously ill American woman on the Army transport David C. Shanks, about 1,000 miles out of Yokohama. The woman's identity was not learned.

The destroyer should reach the transport tomorrow. The transport was too far at sea to risk sending a plane, an Army announcement stated.

In his eventful last hours on earth, he escaped his cage, entered a laboratory and overindulged in methyl alcohol, plunged through a window to a street, attacked several passers-by—and was shot by the police.

A-Bomb Underwater Test Is Scheduled for Today

Last Hour Preparations Made Under Wartime Secrecy.

H. Blake Lee

ABOARD THE U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, Wednesday, July 24—(AP) Vice Adm. W. H. P. Blandy gave the go-ahead today to the earth's first undersea atomic bomb blast as last-hour preparations were made under all the secrecy of war time.

The task force commander from the U.S.S. Mt. McKinley ordered the second atomic bomb explosion in Bikini Lagoon as soon as possible after 8:35 a. m., tomorrow (4:35 p.m., Wednesday, Eastern time.)

Good Weather

Associated Press Correspondent Elton C. Fay reported from the Mt. McKinley that Blandy said the weather forecast was "still moderately optimistic" but he was not completely confident in it.

Therefore, a weather check will continue all day and into the night with a postponement order still possible up until midnight tonight.

A tropical weather front was causing all the trouble, carrying low clouds and shifting winds over the Marshall islands.

The Appalachian sailed out of Bikini lagoon at 4 a.m. today, unexpectedly early. Her move was the last step before the start of secret maneuvers in which the bomb is to be put in place for underwater detonation tomorrow.

75 Target Ships

We sailed past the target fleet of 75 ships in the grey of the morning into a line squall coming up from the south toward the lagoon.

The storm did not close down until we had a last view of the fleet of five battleships, two carriers, three cruisers, 8 submarines, 11 destroyers and other vessels, some of which may be afloat for the last time.

The array even today constitutes an impressive fleet except for the still unrepaired scars of the air bomb, exploded July 1.

Maintain War Secrecy

Every sign points to the maintenance of secrecy in this last nuclear explosion of 1946 with wartime rigidity. A canvas shrouding the bomb is to conceal it today even from the eyes of the crew scheduled to submerge it. Only scientists from the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic laboratory will be permitted to look upon this last bomb.

There is no information whether the bomb is shaped like air bombs. Neither were definite information when this first great underwater test will be made with the bomb in contact with the water inside a caisson.

The observer ship Panamint, with scientists and foreign observers aboard and the U.S.S. Blue Ridge carrying military observers, did not even come to Bikini this time. They were at Kwajalein, nearly 200 miles distant.

The Appalachian proceeded outside the lagoon to take its position in an area called sector Marmon. Other ships will evacuate the lagoon later.

The target fleet as we last saw it was set in the form of a great wheel with six spokes. The lengths of the spokes were not equal. The shortest appeared to be well over a mile long, and the longest two miles from the target center.

This wheel shape is marred in one place by a long line of transports set across from one spoke to the next like a brace to a rickety farm wagon wheel. In addition to the 29 fighting ships, the water wheel is filled in with 46 other ships and small boats.

Around the great hub, or very close to it, were set all of the fighting ships except the German cruiser Prinz Eugen, which may be well over a mile distant. She lies out near the end of one spoke formed by a row of seven destroyers.

Estimates differ about the diameter of the almost circular area of water which forms the axle of this wheel. This area is certainly more than half a mile across. It is bare of everything except a few buoys. Somewhere within it a little landing ship will be stationed in the last hours to submerge the bomb and receive the radio signal that detonates it.

Around this axle are set as the inner ring of the hub the battleship Arkansas, the submerged Submarine Pilotfish, the Carrier Saratoga and the Cruiser Pensacola.

The second ring, only a few hundred yards back of this inner circle, contains the Battleship New York, the Carrier Independence and Japanese Battleship Nagato, both damaged in the July 1 test, and the cruiser Salt Lake City.

Completing the thick hub farther out are the badly damaged Battleship Nevada, bullseye of the air bomb test, and the Battleship Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania is farthest out. She presumably has one of the stronger bottoms since her compartments were modernized after she was damaged in the Pearl Harbor attack.

Saratoga Biggest Ship

The Saratoga looms at the edge of the inner ring, the biggest thing in the fleet. Oldest carrier in the fleet, the "Sara" is the bearer of great historical operations, including an enviable record in the war against Japan.

All but one of the eight submarines have long war records. With one exception they are set within or very close to the outer portion of the wheel hub. They are the Pilotfish, Skate, Parche, whose skipper received the Congressional medal, the Tuna, Apogon, Skipjack, Dentuda and Searaven.

The Dentuda, one of the newer submarines, had only one war patrol. The others sank more than 300,000 tons of enemy shipping and damaged upwards of 100,000 tons.

The Searaven rescued 37 Australian airmen from Timor and snatched three downed American airmen from under Japanese guns close to the shores of Truk.

The Pilotfish was in the initial occupation of Japan and the surrender ceremonies.

Some of the divers of operation crossroads are betting that no battleship will be sunk, not even the Arkansas which rumor says may be the closest to the detonation center.

The New York, for which the Empire State put in a bid to save, is at what might be a safe distance even though the Arkansas goes down.

In the mist this morning the battleships, seen prows on, looked so squat and wide that it was difficult to imagine anything really crumpling them.

BIKINI EXPECTS GOOD WEATHER

Winds From East Needed for Atomic Test.

Aboard the U. S. S. Mt. McKinley, July 23 (A.P.)—Good weather was forecast today for Thursday (Wednesday, New York time) when the first atomic bomb ever touched off below water, subjects seventy-five ships to man-made pressures never experienced before on earth.

As an "intertropical front" 100 miles to the south, carrying with it the clouds that have hung heavily over Bikini, scientists made up a pool and guessed how many of those seventy-five ships will perish in the lagoon. These guesses were not being given out but one scientist said the shock would be 100 times greater than that from the air blast July 1.

Dr. R. A. Sawyer, chief of the scientific staff, said there probably would be no flash of light visible in daylight from the underwater burst, and no goggles would be needed. Instead, he continued, a dome of water half a mile wide should rise above the explosion. The dome would be pierced by a water spout going up two or three miles high.

Forecasters believed that "operational weather" would be on hand for the test Thursday. A broken cloud cover will allow the detonation to be carried out on schedule. Bomb testers do not need the almost perfect conditions required for the air drop, but they do demand winds up to 20,000 feet blowing from the east to carry away contaminated spray or rain.

A reasonably clear spot in the sky also is needed to allow a photographic recording of the explosion and weather good enough for aircraft operation.

It was disclosed that four men were exposed to radioactivity from two to four times beyond the safety limit in the first test, but all are recovering. One was exposed in a plane which drew too near the atomic cloud, another was exposed on the Japanese cruiser Sakawa and two others stayed too long on radioactive ships.

taken, his skin was measured for radioactive rays, and other tests made.

The swimmer showed he had been exposed to rays but the amount absorbed was well below the possible danger limit. Reassured, the man recovered his composure, and enjoyed the role of hero his shipmates thrust upon him when he returned to duty.

Capt. G. M. Lyon said that had it not been for precautions on and after able-day it is likely not more than half of the Geiger counter crew would be available for the underwater test Thursday. Due to those precautions, none was dangerously exposed.

Colonel Warren said the radio active waters will be far different after the underwater bomb explodes. Masses of water will form like clouds, all radioactive. Nearby water may be only slightly radioactive and safe, but a boat proceeding only a few feet farther, into one of these water clouds, would pass into a highly dangerous area.

In other places, Warren said, radioactivity will spread through the water much the same as clouds dissipate. When spread, the rays will not be so dangerous.

The largest single cause of these rays will be sodium, or common salt, which is very susceptible to taking on the rays.

The money represented many months of saving.

Army Thunderstorm Test Ranked Second to Bikini

Experiments in Florida Seek to Make Flying Safer

ORLANDO, Fla., July 23 (AP).—The government lifted a curtain of secrecy today about a project important enough to rate a War Department priority second only to the Bikini atomic bomb tests.

It is a study of thunderstorms, a joint undertaking of the United States Weather Bureau and Army Air Forces being conducted at near-by Pinecastle Army Airfield.

Daily since June 25, a select group of A. A. F. pilots and radar observers have been taking a flight of five P-61s, the Army's Black Widow night fighter, into the summer storm clouds of this semi-tropical area in an attempt to learn all there is to know about storms and how they can best be combatted for flying purposes.

Aiding in the quest are three civilian glider pilots provided by the Soaring Society of America—Paul Tuntland, of Los Angeles, movie stunt pilot; William Dolger, of New York, former chief instructor of the Army's mobile glider school, and Don Pollard, former Navy flyer from Roanoke, Va.

The gliders are towed high into the dark clouds and left to the buffeting of the storms. The pilots' observations and data recorded on Weather Bureau equipment later are compiled to furnish scientists with an account of the storm's behavior.

The P-61s, also packed with weather recording and radar equipment, fly through the thunderheads at different altitudes, checking the intensity of the storms, prevalence of ice or snow, and numerous other factors at each level. Aerial photographs supplement the data collected by instruments.

Weather Bureau scientists hope to gather information from the project that will make possible the reduction of flying accidents caused by hazardous weather.

ARMY, NAVY PLANES SEEK CRASH VICTIMS

PANAMA, July 23 — (AP) All available U. S. Army and Navy planes and ships joined the search today for 15 crew members missing since Saturday when two army flying fortresses collided in the air near Coiba island.

The services also continued unsuccessfully their search for three missing pursuit planes, lost in a severe storm last Thursday, for which the fortress crews were hunting.
